(v) When Dividends Can Be Properly Declared and Paid — (a) In General. In England an ordinary trading company may lawfully pay a dividend to the shareholders out of current profits, without setting aside a sum sufficient to cover depreciation in the value of the fixed capital.[60] In the same country it has been held that a corporation formed to invest its capital in stocks and securities, the receipts from the income of which are made applicable to paying a dividend, may declare a dividend, notwithstanding some of the investments have declined in price and others have proved worthless so as to impair the capital; since a corporation may sink its capital in the purchase of property producing income and divide that income without making provision for keeping up the value of the capital, and the capital may be lost, but the excess of current receipts over current expenses may still be applied in payment of a dividend.[61] In the same country a sum derived from the sale of part of the undertaking of a banking company, remaining after deducting from the proceeds of sale and paid-up capital and incidental expenses, is profit on capital, which, after appropriating the proper amount to the reserve fund, may be distributed as dividends.[62] In the same country profits shown by the profit-and-loss account of a corporation may be applied in payment of a dividend on preferred shares fully paid up in cash, of which a large portion is paid to the vendor of the business of the company in addition to all the ordinary shares, although, according to a valuation, the assets of the company, including good-will, fall far short of the nominal capital, where the loss which has accrued does not arise from the company's having received a price less than it originally gave for a portion of its assets.[63] In the same country a mining company which has paid interest on debentures, during a time when the mine was closed by its falling in, out of the capital, is not bound to apply profits in replacing the amount so paid before declaring a dividend to shareholders.[64] This procession of decisions upholding the payment of dividends out of capital may be concluded by a holding to the effect that a land company which for the purpose of equalizing a bad debt has brought into its profit-and-loss account in a previous year the appreciation of its land is not bound in a subsequent year to bring into such account a depreciation in the lands, so as to prevent the declaration and payment of a dividend from the profit of that year.[65] Seemingly in line with the foregoing, it has been held that a mutual insurance company may, in the absence of any statute, rule, or resolution of the company forbidding the same, declare and pay dividends to its members where in the judgment of the members it is safe and prudent to do so, although the effect will be to reduce the assets of the company provided for indemnity against losses.[66]

(b) Dividends Permissible Without Establishing Sinking Fund or Providing For Waste and Depreciation of Property. It may be collected from an important decision by the English court of appeal that where the tangible property of the corporation from its very nature is subject to a continuing waste and depreciation — as in the case of a mining property — it will not be ultra vires or a breach of trust on the part of the directors to declare and pay dividends out of profits, without providing for a sinking fund to meet such depreciation, or with-declaration and payment of the cash dividend. Hardin County v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 92 Ky. 412, 17 S. W. 860, 14 Ky. L. Rep. 401.

60. In re Kingston Cotton Mill Co. No. 2, [1896] 1 Ch. 331, 65 L. J. Ch. 290, 73 L. T. Rep. N. S. 745, 44 Wkly. Rep. 363 [reversed on other grounds in [1896] 2 Ch. 279].

61. Verner v. General, etc., Invest. Trust Co., [1894] 2 Ch. 239, 63 L. J. Ch. 456, 70 L. T. Rep. N. S. 516, 1 Manson 136, 7 Reports 170.

62. Lubbock v. British Bank of South America, [1892] 2 Ch. 198, 61 L. J. Ch. 498, 67 L. T. Rep. N. S. 74, 41 Wkly. Rep. 103.

63. Wilmer v. McNamara, [1895] 2 Ch. 245, 64 L. J. Ch. 516, 72 L. T. Rep. N. S. 552, 13 Reports 513, 43 Wkly. Rep. 519.

64. Bosanquet v. St. John D'El Rey Min. Co., 77 L. T. Rep. N. S. 206.

65. Bolton v. Natal Land, etc., Co., [1892] 2 Ch. 124, 61 L. J. Ch. 281, 65 L. T. Rep. N. S. 786.

66. McKean v. Biddle, 181 Pa. St. 361, 37 Atl. 528.

out applying the profits to the capital, so as to keep the value of the assets equal to the nominal amount of the capital.[67]

(VI) When Dividends Cannot Be Properly Declared and Paid. Dividends upon common stock cannot be properly declared and paid to the exclusion of annually accruing interest on the bonded debt of the corporation, but the interest charged must be paid first.[68] A so-called "land company" formed for the purpose of selling lands to the best advantage as the owners' agent, one fourth conveyed to it absolutely being paid for with its stock, the remainder conveyed in consideration of its scrip to be sold by it in trust for the benefit of its scrip-holders until they are paid the face value of their scrip, when the remainder is to belong to the corporation absolutely, is guilty of a breach of trust in making a dividend among its shareholders of scrip paid to it for, or bought with, the proceeds of land sold.[69]

(VII) When Declaration of Dividends Not Obligatory—(A) In General. From what has preceded, it must be concluded that in general the declaration of a dividend, even where there are profits which may be divided, is not obligatory; since the directors or a majority of the shareholders may, in the exercise of a sound discretion, refrain from dividing their surplus in order to use it for betterments, and instead of making a cash dividend may issue to their shareholders a stock dividend without violating the law.[70]

(B) Property Not Divided Compulsorily Because Corporation Has No Power to Hold It. A conveyance of property to a corporation which it is incompetent, under its charter or governing statute, to take and hold, is not void but voidable only, by the state, at its election in a proceeding in the nature of office found. A court of equity will not therefore at the suit of a shareholder take such property from the assets of the corporation and divide it among the shareholders.[71]

(VIII) Liability of Directors For Improperly Declaring Dividends. This subject is dealt with elsewhere, under the subtitle of directors. If the capital stock of a corporation is a trust fund for its creditors, then unquestionably the directors are quasi-trustees for the creditors, and ought to be held liable to them or to a representative of the corporation acting in their behalf for dividends improperly declared and paid to the shareholders. It has been so held, even in England, where the so-called "trust-fund doctrine" does not obtain.[72] This is obviously not a breach of trust toward the shareholders who receive the unlawful dividends, since they could not directly or indirectly be allowed to recover them again.[73]

(IX) Ratification by Shareholders of Unlawful Declaration of Dividend. Although the declaration of a dividend, whatever form it may take,

67. Lee v. Neuchatel Asphalte Co., 41 Ch. D. 1, 58 L. J. Ch. 408, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 11, 1 Meg. 140, 37 Wkly. Rep. 321.

68. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Tennessee, 153 U. S. 486, 14 S. Ct. 968, 38 L. ed. 793.

69. Rogers v. New York, etc., Land Co., 134 N. Y. 197, 32 N. E. 27, 48 N. Y. St. 263.

Circumstances under which a final dividend cannot be sanctioned, where the articles of incorporation provide for the submission of accounts up to a date within three months, and reports thereon, except at the annual general meeting, etc. Nicholson v. Rhodesia Trading Co., [1897] 1 Ch. 434, 66 L. J. Ch. 251, 76 L. T. Rep. N. S. 147.

70. Howell v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 51 Barb. (N. Y.) 378. Where the charter of a merchants' exchange company authorized the corporation to divide the profits of the exchange among its shareholders at such times as might be deemed expedient, it was held that this did not compel a division of the profits, or prevent their accumulation; and that such accumulation might legally be invested in the exchange itself so as to be capable of distribution as a dividend. Barry v. Merchants' Exch. Co., 1 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 280.

71. Burden v. Burden, 8 N. Y. App. Div. 160, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 499.

72. In re National Funds Assur. Co., 10 Ch. D. 118, 48 L. J. Ch. 163, 39 L. T. Rep. N. S. 420, 27 Wkly. Rep. 302; Evans v. Coventry, 8 De G. M. & G. 835, 2 Jur. N. S. 557, 25 L. J. Ch. 489, 4 Wkly. Rep. 466, 57 Eng. Ch. 645. Compare Hallett v. Dowdall, 18 Q. B. 2, 16 Jur. 462, 21 L. J. Q. B. 98, 83 E. C. L. 2; In re Mercantile Trading Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 475, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 502, 17 Wkly. Rep. 654. See also the decree in 8 De G. M. & G. 846.

73. Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625.

may be ultra vires or unlawful as against the shareholders, yet it may be cured so far as they are concerned by ratification.[74]

3. STOCK AND SCRIP DIVIDENDS — a. Stock Dividends Generally Lawful. In the absence of a statute restraining such action, it is within the discretion of the directors of a corporation, or at least within the power of the corporation itself, to issue additional shares of stock to represent its surplus profits, and to divide such shares pro rata among its shareholders, provided that by so doing it does not increase its aggregate capital stock beyond the limit allowed by its charter or governing statute.[75]

b. What Are Not Stock or Scrip Dividends. It has been held that a cash dividend, declared out of profits by a corporation, indebted nearly to the amount of such profits for permanent improvements, which is exactly sufficient to pay for the proportion of new stock at par, issued at the same time and allotted to each shareholder, for subscription, and which the shareholders may elect to invest in the new stock, or may retain, selling the right to subscribe for the new stock which is worth more than par, is not a stock dividend; but is to be treated, as between a life-tenant and a remainder-man, as income.[76]

c. Rescission of Resolution Declaring Stock Dividend. A shareholder does not acquire a vested right in a proportionate share of stock, which by a resolution of the board of directors has been directed to be distributed as dividends, so as to prevent a rescission of the resolution, where no step has been taken to separate the stock from the general property of the company by the execution of a power of attorney to transfer or otherwise.[77]

d. Rights in Distribution of Stock Dividends. A resolution of a corporation increasing its capital stock "to secure the services of new parties in the working

74. When therefore the legality of the adoption of a resolution at an annual meeting of the shareholders to pay interest on their stock was called in question, it was held that the act, if illegal, could be cured by a subsequent ratification, and that such a ratification might be inferred from the act of the corporation in paying the interest of the shareholders in pursuance of the resolution, and from the subsequent passing of a vote to issue certificates for the payment of such interest, and the action of the treasurer in issuing the same. Richardson v. Vermont, etc., R. Co., 44 Vt. 613. But it has been held that the acceptance by a shareholder of a dividend declared upon his stock is not a ratification of the illegal conduct of the directors in holding a meeting outside the limits of the state, in direct violation of a statute, at which they vote to appropriate to themselves certain stock. Hilles v. Parrish, 14 N. J. Eq. 380.

75. Williams v. Western Union Tel. Co., 93 N. Y. 162 [reversing 48 N. Y. Super. Ct. 349, 9 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 419 (reversing 9 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 437, 61 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 216)]. See also the following cases:

Massachusetts.— Rand v. Hubbell, 115 Mass. 461, 15 Am. Rep. 121; Minot v. Paine, 99 Mass. 101, 96 Am. Dec. 705.

New York.— Jones v. Terre Haute, etc., R. Co., 57 N. Y. 196; Howell v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 51 Barb. 378.

Pennsylvania.— Com. v. Pittsburg, etc., Co., 74 Pa. St. 83; Brown v. Lehigh Coal, etc., Co., 49 Pa. St. 270.

United States.— Kenton Furnace R., etc., Co. v. McAlpin, 5 Fed. 737.

England.— Mills v. Buenos Ayres Co. Northern R. Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 621, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 719, 19 Wkly. Rep. 171; In re Barton, L. R. 5 Eq. 238.

That a railroad company might divide among its shareholders the shares of its capital stock owned by the state, and assign to it in exchange of its bonds, notwithstanding a general statute forbidding the railroad company to declare a stock dividend without authority of the legislature, see Com. v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 142 Mass. 146, 7 N. E. 716.

76. Davis v. Jackson, 152 Mass. 58, 25 N. E. 21, 23 Am. St. Rep. 801.

Construction of a statute authorizing a bank to retain a certain share of the "dividends" upon stock owned by the state toward certain unpaid stock of the state, with the conclusion that a portion of the capital stock divided among the shareholders was not dividends within the meaning of the statute. Atty.-Gen. v. State Bank, 21 N. C. 545.

That a dividend based upon new stock created and sold as a premium is not a "dividend" within the meaning of a statute relating to the taxation of dividends see State v. Franklin Bank, 10 Ohio 91.

When a railroad company may issue bonds in lieu of cash dividends, declaring and paying dividends for four years at one time in this manner. Wood v. Lary, 47 Hun (N. Y.) 550.

77. Dock v. Schlichter Jute Cordage Co., 167 Pa. St. 370, 31 Atl. 656.

department," and giving a portion of the increase to three shareholders and the balance to the "old firm" out of which the old corporation was organized, to be disposed of as thought proper by the present directors, who compose the members of such firm, gives the beneficial ownership of such stock to the firm, instead of making them trustees for the corporation.[78]

e. Shares Issued in Distribution of Stock Dividend Deemed to Be "Paid-Up Capital Stock." For the purpose of determining the validity of a debt contracted by a corporation in the face of a provision of its charter limiting its indebtedness to one-half the amount of its "paid-up capital stock," it has been held that where, at a time when the corporation is earning large profits, it divides them among its shareholders in the form of stock dividends, the increase of its capital in this manner being authorized by the shareholders, the whole of its capital stock, comprising both the amount of the original subscription and the amount added thereto by such stock dividends, is to be regarded as "paid-up capital stock."[79]

4. Right to Dividends as Between Successive Owners of Shares — a. Dividend Belongs to Owner of Shares at Time Dividend Is Declared. The general rule, stated in the briefest way, is that a dividend belongs to the one who is the owner of the stock at the time when the dividend is actually declared, irrespective of the time when it is earned, although it may be made payable at a future date.[80]

b. Right to Undivided Profits Passes With Transfer of Shares. The profits and surplus funds of the corporation, whensoever they may accrue, are, until separated from the capital by the declaration of a dividend, a part of the stock itself, and will pass with the stock under that name in a transfer or bequest.[81] The purchaser of a share of stock in a corporation takes the share with all its incidents, one of which is the right to receive all future dividends declared on such share.[82] Nor does it make any difference at what times or from what sources the profits thus divided may have accrued; they are an incident to the share, to which the purchaser becomes at once entitled, provided he remain a member of the corporation until a dividend is made.[83] In still other words a shareholder in 78. Knapp v. Knapp, 127 Mo. 53, 29 S. W. 885.

79. Cunningham v. German Ins. Bank, 101 Fed. 977, 41 C. C. A. 609.

80. Connecticut.— Phelps v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 26 Conn. 269.

Indiana.— Bright v. Lord, 51 Ind. 272, 19 Am. Rep. 732.

Maine.— Goodwin v. Hardy, 57 Me. 143, 99 Am. Dec. 758.

Massachusetts.— In re Foote, 22 Pick. 299.

New Hampshire.— March v. Eastern R. Co., 43 N. H. 515.

New York.— Hyatt v. Allen, 56 N. Y. 553, 15 Am. Rep. 449; Brundage v. Brundage, 65 Barb. 397; Jones v. Terre Haute, etc., R. Co., 29 Barb. 353, 17 How. Pr. 529; Hill v. Newichawanick Co., 48 How. Pr. 427; Clapp v. Astor, 2 Edw. 379. Compare Currie v. White, 6 Abb. Pr. N. S. 352, 37 How. Pr. 330.

Contra, Burroughs v. North Carolina R. Co., 67 N. C. 376, 12 Am. Rep. 611.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 569.

Right to dividends under particular conditions of fact.— State of facts under which neglect to pay instalments forfeited right to dividend. Baltimore Mar. Bank v. Biays, 4 Harr. & J. (Md.) 338. State of facts under which a dividend received by A, vendor of shares, belonged to B, vendee, who could recover it from A in an action for money had and received. Harris v. Stevens, 7 N. H. 454. State of facts under which a purchaser of shares declined to execute his contract of purchase, because the vendor claimed a dividend, whereby the purchaser lost his hold both on the shares and the dividend. Phinizy v. Murray, 83 Ga. 747, 10 S. E. 358, 20 Am. St. Rep. 342, 6 L. R. A. 426. Circumstances under which the secretary of a company, who received in addition to a fixed salary dividends on certain stock as additional compensation was not estopped, on quitting the service of the company, from claiming the dividends accruing up to the time when he left such service. Crane Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Adams, 142 Ill. 125, 30 N. E. 1030. That a contract to pay for services in shares is fulfilled by issuing the agreed amount of shares exclusive of dividends see Southwestern R. Co. v. Papot, 67 Ga. 675.

81. Phelps v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 26 Conn. 269; Ryan v. Leavenworth, etc., R. Co., 21 Kan. 365; Jermain v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 91 N. Y. 483; Jones v. Terre Haute, etc., R. Co., 57 N. Y. 196; Marble v. Van Wert Nat. Bank, 3 Ohio Cir. Ct. 464. Compare Burroughs v. North Carolina R. Co., 67 N. C. 376, 12 Am. Rep. 611.

82. March v. Eastern R. Co., 43 N. H. 515.

83. March v. Eastern R. Co., 43 N. H. 515.

a corporation has an interest in proportion to the amount of his stock, in all the corporate property, and has a right to share in any surplus of profits arising from its use and employment in the business of the company; and this right does not depend upon the time when he became a shareholder, but attaches whenever he acquires the stock, and entitles him to all subsequent dividends.[84]

c. Dividend Declared Does Not Pass With Future Transfer of Shares — (I) In General. A dividend when declared becomes the separate property of the shareholder, and wholly disconnected from his shares. It therefore does not pass with a subsequent transfer of the shares, unless the contract of transfer expressly so provides.[85] And this is so without reference to the date at which the dividend is made payable, for it is the declaration of the dividend that creates the segregation and establishes the debt from the corporation to the shareholder.[86]

(II) Dividends Declared Previously to Transfer but Payable Thereafter. It also results from the foregoing that, in the absence of any provision to the contrary in the contract for the sale or transfer of the shares, a dividend declared previously to such sale or transfer belongs to the seller of the shares, although for the convenience of the company it may be made payable thereafter.[87]

(III) Custom of Brokers Not Admissible to Alter These Principles. A custom of brokers by which dividends declared but not paid belong to the purchaser of shares is not admissible to alter the legal rights to such a transaction, as fixed by the foregoing rules.[88]

(IV) Rules of Stock Exchange Are So Admissible With Respect to Their Members. But where the parties to the transaction are members of a stock exchange, which has adopted rules on the subject different from the rule of the law, these rules may be regarded as entering into any contract made between the members of the body, and as superseding as to them the rule of the law.[89]

(V) Application of These Principles to "Option" Sales of Shares. When therefore an "option" of stock is sold, that is to say, when the owner of stock makes a contract with another by which he gives him the option of purchasing from him the stock at or before a certain date, and that other elects to accept the shares on the last day of the option, he will not get a dividend which has been declared between the date of the contract and the expiration of the option, unless it passes to him by the express terms of the agreement.[90] But

84. Jones v. Terre Haute, etc., R. Co., 57 N. Y. 196. See also Jones v. Morrison, 31 Minn. 140, 16 N. W. 854; Williams v. Western Union Tel. Co., 93 N. Y. 162; Hyatt v. Allen, 56 N. Y. 553, 15 Am. Rep. 449; Clapp v. Astor, 2 Edw. (N. Y.) 379; In re Barton, L. R. 5 Eq. 238. See for illustration a case where a person became a shareholder on December 16, and thereby acquired the right to a dividend declared on December 17 (Jones v. Terre Haute, etc., R. Co., 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 353, 17 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 529); also a case where shares were sold at auction on August 1, and a deposit was paid by the purchaser, and by the conditions of the sale the purchase was to be completed on August 29, which was done and a transfer signed; in the meanwhile on August 24 a dividend was declared, which was held to belong to the purchaser (Black v. Homersham, 4 Ex. D. 24, 48 L. J. Exch. 79, 39 L. T. Rep. N. S. 671, 27 Wkly. Rep. 171).

85. Hopper v. Sage, 112 N. Y. 530, 20 N. E. 350, 21 N. Y. St. 491, 8 Am. St. Rep. 771.

86. Wheeler v. Northwestern Sleigh Co., 39 Fed. 347. But in seeming disregard of this principle, it has been held that where, at the time of the sale of shares, a dividend has been declared by the directors, payable on a day subsequent to the sale, the sale, in the absence of a stipulation on the point, carries to the vendee the right to the dividends. Burroughs v. North Carolina R. Co., 67 N. C. 376, 12 Am. Rep. 611. See also Curry v. Woodward, 44 Ala. 305.

87. Hopper v. Sage, 112 N. Y. 530, 20 N. E. 350, 21 N. Y. St. 491, 8 Am. St. Rep. 771; Jones v. Terre Haute, etc., R. Co., 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 353, 17 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 529; De Gendre v. Kent, L. R. 4 Eq. 283. Where a contract is made for the sale of stock on which a dividend has been declared, payable upon a day subsequent to the agreed time of delivery of the stock, such dividend does not pass to the buyer. Spear v. Hart, 3 Rob. (N. Y.) 420.

88. Spear v. Hart, 3 Rob. (N. Y.) 420, per Monell, J.

89. Hopper v. Sage, 112 N. Y. 530, 20 N. E. 350, 21 N. Y. St. 491, 8 Am. St. Rep. 771.

90. Bright v. Lord, 51 Ind. 272, 19 Am. Rep. 732.

where A agreed with B to accept from bearer, at any time within thirty days, certain shares of stock at a certain price, A to be "entitled to all dividends or extra dividends declared during the time," it was held that A was not entitled to a dividend which had been previously declared, but which was payable during the thirty days.[91]

(VI) Same Rule With Respect to Interest-Bearing Shares. The same rule applies with respect to interest-bearing shares. Where interest has accrued upon such shares, and has been carried to the account of the shareholder, it does not pass by a sale or transfer of the shares, unless the contract of sale or transfer so provides.[92]

(VII) To Whom Belongs in Case of Unrecorded Transfer of Shares. In the case where a transfer of the shares has actually been made but has not been recorded a dividend thereafter declared no doubt belongs to the transferee of the shares as between him and the transferrer.[93] But if the corporation, without notice of the transfer, pass the dividend in good faith to the transferrer, it seems that it will be protected.[94]

(VIII) Contract With Shareholder Respecting Dividends Extends Only to Dividends Which Have Been Declared. From the foregoing principles it follows that a contract made by a shareholder in reference to dividends and profits upon his stock includes only dividends or profits ascertained and declared by the company and allotted to the shareholders, and not profits to be ascertained by third persons or courts of justice, upon an investigation of the accounts and transactions of the company.[95]

(IX) Authority of Agent to Sell Shares Does Not Authorize Him to Sell Dividends. It also follows from the foregoing principles that an authorization given to an agent to sell shares does not include an authority, either real or apparent, to dispose of a dividend previously declared.[96]

d. Right to Stock Dividends as Between Successive Shareholders. As between successive proprietors of the shares, the right to stock dividends stands on precisely the same footing as the right to a cash dividend;[97] it belongs to those who are the holders of the stock at the time of the declaration of the dividend, without regard to the source from which, or the time during which, the funds divided were acquired by the corporation.[98]

e. What Scrip-Holders Are Entitled to Dividends Where There Has Been Succession to Ownership. It seems that the holders of scrip certificates convertible into stock stand on the same footing as the purchaser or assignee of the stock in respect of the right to dividends; they are only entitled to such dividends as accrue on the shares which they acquire by the conversion of their scrip, and which are declared subsequently to such conversion.[99]

f. Right to Dividends in Cases Where Shares Have Been Pledged After Extinguishment of Debt — (I) In General. It seems that the right to dividends is in the pledgee during the period of the pledge and until the payment of the debt for which the pledge was made, unless the contract of pledge otherwise provides. After the debt is satisfied the pledgee loses all interest in the dividends, and cannot thereafter object that they have been paid to another instead of to the pledger.[1]

91. Hopper v. Sage, 112 N. Y. 530, 534, 20 N. E. 350, 21 N. Y. St. 491, 8 Am. St. Rep. 771.

92. Ohio v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 6 Ohio St. 489.

93. Gemmell v. Davis, 75 Md. 546, 23 Atl. 1032, 32 Am. St. Rep. 412.

94. McSherry, J., in Gemmell v. Davis, 75 Md. 546, 23 Atl. 1032, 32 Am. St. Rep. 412; Utica Bank v. Smalley, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 770, 780, 14 Am. Dec. 526 (per Savage, C. J.).

95. Hyatt v. Allen, 56 N. Y. 553, 15 Am. Rep. 449.

96. Wheeler v. Northwestern Sleigh Co., 39 Fed. 347.

97. See supra, VII, B, 4, a et seq.

98. Jermain v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 91 N. Y. 483.

For illustrations see Coleman v. Columbia Oil Co., 51 Pa. St. 74.

99. See for illustration Brown v. Leigh Coal, etc., Co., 49 Pa. St. 270.

1. Cross v. Eureka Lake, etc., Canal Co.,

(II) How in Case of Renewal of Note Secured by Such Pledge. The renewal of a note secured by a pledge of corporate stock, upon which a new contract of pledge is given and the old contract and note returned, is, where the book entries of the pledge indicate that such was the intention, an extinguishment of the original contract of pledge, so far as to deprive the pledgee of dividends accruing before the renewal.[2]

(III) Liability of Corporation to Pledgee For Paying Dividends to Pledger. The pledgee being entitled to the dividends during the period of the pledge, the corporation becomes liable to him, where it appears from the books of the corporation that he is the owner of the shares, in case the corporation pays dividends to the pledger; and it has been held that the corporation is not relieved from such liability by the fact that the pledgee received part payment of the debt, surrendered to the pledger a note evidencing the same and accepted another for the balance, so long as he retained the stock as collateral and had no knowledge that the dividends had been so paid.[3] And although the transfer to the pledgee may not have been made on the books of the corporation, yet it has been held that if the corporation has knowledge of the transfer and subsequently declares a dividend, such dividend belongs to the pledgee and cannot be retained by the corporation as a set-off against an indebtedness due to the corporation by the pledger prior to the transfer in pledge.[4] Nor can the corporation in such a case exonerate itself from the liability to pay dividends to the pledgee, by setting up a by-law providing that transfers of stock must be made on the books of the corporation.[5]

5. Right to Dividends as Between Life-Tenant and Remainder-Man — a. In General. This subject relates to the law of wills and the succession of estates, and demands no more than a brief treatment in an article on the law of corporations.[6]

b. Stock Dividends Declared Out of Profits of Business Go to Life-Tenant — (I) In General. The leading principle is that dividends which are declared out of the profits of the business of the corporation or out of its mere income go to the life-tenant and not to the remainder-man, as accretions of the property of the corporation, although paid in new shares instead of cash.[7] In other words a cash dividend is not changed to a stock dividend and to be considered an accretion of capital, because the person receiving the dividend takes stock in the place of cash.[8]

(II) View That Extra Dividends, Bonuses, Etc., Declared From Profits Go to Life-Tenant. Many courts take substantially this view, and, looking through the mere form of corporate action to the substance, and regardless of the question whether the particular dividend has been declared in cash, in 73 Cal. 302, 14 Pac. 885, 2 Am. St. Rep. 808; Gemmell v. Davis, 75 Md. 546, 23 Atl. 1032, 32 Am. St. Rep. 412; Hill v. Newichawanick Co., 8 Hun (N. Y.) 459 [affirmed in 71 N. Y. 593].

2. Fairbank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 132 Ill. 120, 22 N. E. 524.

3. Boyd v. Conshohocken Worsted Mills, 149 Pa. St. 363, 24 Atl. 287.

4. Gemmell v. Davis, 75 Md. 546, 23 Atl. 1032, 32 Am. St. Rep. 412.

5. Central Nebraska Nat. Bank v. Wilder, 32 Nebr. 454, 49 N. W. 369.

6. The subject is treated in extenso in 2 Thompson Corp. § 2192 et seq.

Where the estate consists in whole or in part of shares in a corporation, and the will is silent on the precise subject, as it ought never to be, the difficulty lies in discriminating between those stock dividends which represent the natural growth or increase in the value of the permanent property of the corporation, and those which represent mere profits of the business or income accruing from the business of the corporation. Great as the difficulty is in many cases, the courts are obliged to confront it and to solve it. The same difficulty of discriminating between the rights of the life-tenant and the remainder-man arises in cases where the estate is invested in property other than corporate shares; and the principle on which the judges have proceeded in such cases may be illustrated by In re Foster, 45 Ch. D. 629, 60 L. J. Ch. 175, and In re Sheldon, 39 Ch. D. 50, 58 L. J. Ch. 25, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 133, 37 Wkly. Rep. 26. See also Porter v. Baddeley, 5 Ch. D. 542.

7. Hite v. Hite, 93 Ky. 257, 20 S. W. 778, 14 Ky. L. Rep. 385, 40 Am. St. Rep. 189, 19 L. R. A. 173.

8. Waterman v. Alden, 42 Ill. App. 294 [reversed on other grounds in 144 Ill. 90, 32 N. E. 972].

scrip, or in new shares, inquire whether it is a dividend arising from earnings or profits, or from the capital of the company. If it is found that it has arisen from earnings or profits it goes to the life-tenant, although it is a dividend of new shares;[9] but if it is found that it is a dividend of the capital of the company it will go to the remainder-man, although it has been declared in cash.[10] This rule is generally known in America as "the Pennsylvania rule." The early English rule was that extra dividends, or additions to the usual annual dividend, whether paid in cash or in capital stock, went to the corpus of the trust.[11] But this rule was abandoned as unjust, and it is uniformly held in that country,[12] and frequently in this country,[13] that cash dividends, extra dividends, or bonuses, declared from the earnings, are to be regarded as income, and go to the life-tenant. And such is the rule, although the dividends or bonuses were earned before the creation of the trust, but declared afterward.[14] Nor is the mere name by which a dividend is called by the directors, at the time when they declare it, a controlling circumstance in determining its character; but the court will look to its real substance, and will for example declare it a dividend out of income and hence belonging to the life-tenant, although it is called in the resolution by which it is declared a "special bonus."[15]

c. Dividends Declared Out of Accretions to Capital Go to Remainder-Man. A stock dividend declared out of profits resulting from the sale of real estate owned by the corporation at the time of the testator's death belongs to the remainder-man.[16] New shares issued by a corporation to increase its capital stock, which represent the increase in value of the property of an association, resulting from the development of its business, and which are not strictly speaking the products of the stock dividends and do not represent surplus earnings in the ordinary sense, and which are apportioned pro rata among existing shareholders, constitute capital, and not income or dividends, as between a person entitled to the income or dividends of the original shares during life and a person entitled at her death to the reconveyance of the stock.[17] In like manner a privilege offered by a corporation to its shareholders to take at par additional shares which are worth more than the existing common shares is held to be an incident of the old stock and therefore a part of the capital of the corporation, and the new shares belong to the remainder-man.[18]

9. Peirce v. Burroughs, 58 N. H. 302; Lord v. Brooks, 52 N. H. 72; Van Blarcom v. Dager, 31 N. J. Eq. 783; Ashhurst v. Field, 26 N. J. Eq. 1; Van Doren v. Olden, 19 N. J. Eq. 176, 97 Am. Dec. 650; Simpson v. Moore, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 637; Clarkson v. Clarkson, 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 646; Matter of Pollock, 3 Redf. Surr. (N. Y.) 100; Woodruff's Estate, Tuck. Surr. (N. Y.) 58; Vinton's Appeal, 99 Pa. St. 434, 44 Am. Rep. 116; Biddle's Appeal, 99 Pa. St. 278; Wiltbank's Appeal, 64 Pa. St. 256, 3 Am. Rep. 585; Earp's Appeal, 28 Pa. St. 368. The New York decisions above cited seem to be overruled by In re Kernochan, 104 N. Y. 618, 11 N. E. 149.

10. Moss' Appeal, 83 Pa. St. 264, 24 Am. Rep. 164.

11. Hooper v. Rossiter, McClel. 527, 13 Price 774; Preston v. Melville, 16 Sim. 163, 39 Eng. Ch. 163; Witts v. Steere, 13 Ves. Jr. 363; Paris v. Paris, 10 Ves. Jr. 185; Brander v. Brander, 4 Ves. Jr. 800.

12. Bates v. Mackinley, 31 Beav. 280, 8 Jur. N. S. 299, 31 L. J. Ch. 389, 5 L. T. Rep. N. S. 783; Wright v. Tuckett, 1 Johns. & H. 266; Murray v. Glasse, 17 Jur. 816; Johnson v. Johnson, 15 Jur. 714; Cuming v. Boswell, 2 Jur. N. S. 1005, 4 Wkly. Rep. 752; Price v. Anderson, 15 Sim. 473, 38 Eng. Ch. 473.

13. Reed v. Head, 6 Allen (Mass.) 174; Cogswell v. Cogswell, 2 Edw. (N. Y.) 231; Ware v. McCandlish, 11 Leigh (Va.) 595.

14. Bates v. Mackinley, 31 Beav. 280, 8 Jur. N. S. 299, 31 L. J. Ch. 389, 5 L. T. Rep. N. S. 783.

15. In re Alsbury, 45 Ch. D. 237, 60 L. J. Ch. 29, 63 L. T. Rep. N. S. 576, 2 Meg. 346, 39 Wkly. Rep. 136. And so where it is called in the resolution a "premium." In re Warren, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 787, 33 N. Y. St. 584.

16. Hite v. Hite, 93 Ky. 257, 14 Ky. L. Rep. 385, 40 Am. St. Rep. 189, 20 S. W. 778, 19 L. R. A. 173, dividend declared out of profits resulting from the sale of real estate owned by the corporation at the time of the testator's death belongs to the remainder-man.

17. Spooner v. Phillips, 62 Conn. 62, 24 Atl. 524, 16 L. R. A. 461.

18. Hite v. Hite, 93 Ky. 257, 20 S. W. 778, 14 Ky. L. Rep. 385, 40 Am. St. Rep. 189, 19 L. R. A. 173, holding that life-tenants who have availed themselves of such an option

d. Distinction Between Undivided Profits Which Have Accumulated During Lifetime of Testator and Those Accumulating After His Death — (I) In General. The rule, often called "the Pennsylvania rule," on this subject is that "when the stock of a corporation is by the will of a decedent given in trust, the income thereof for the use of the beneficiary for life, with remainder over, the surplus profits, which have accumulated in the lifetime of the testator but which are not divided until after his death, belong to the corpus of his estate, whilst the dividends of earnings made after his death are income and are payable to the life-tenant, no matter whether the dividend be in cash, scrip, or stock." [19]

(II) Question of Value, How Determined Under Pennsylvania Rule. Under the Pennsylvania rule the question of value is to be determined, not by the fluctuations of the stock market, but by an estimation of the actual assets held by the corporation, although it is conceded that the market value may aid in the ascertainment of the actual value, and is therefore properly received in evidence on that issue.[20]

(III) Application of Pennsylvania Rule Where Life-Tenant Dies Before Declaration of Stock Dividend. In the case supposed by this caption the new shares were held to belong to the corpus of the estate, and to be accounted for as capital, and this was held to work no injustice to the life-tenant, since he got a dividend on the new shares as well as on the old, and was better off than before.[21] should not be required to restore to the estate the shares so acquired, but the value of them should be ascertained at the time when the options were given, and the life-tenants should be required to account to the estate for the profit thereby realized, as a part of the capital of the estate, and that premiums paid for the bonds in which the capital of the estate is invested cannot be charged to the life-tenants, and the amount thereof restrained from the income and added to the capital, for the purpose of meeting the loss which will occur when the bonds mature and drop to par. According to a holding of an orphans' court in Pennsylvania moneys received from the sale of options to purchase stock of a new railroad corporation, the bonds of which are guaranteed by a corporation in which stock is held by the estate, are principal, and not income going to the life-tenant. In re Thomson, 1 Pa. Dist. 139, 11 Pa. Co. Ct. 198, 30 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 23.

(IV) Profits Accruing From Discovery of Minerals After Death of Shareholder. In the case indicated by this caption a shareholder in an unincorporated land company had died and his shares were held by his executor. While thus held a supposed discovery of a valuable lot of copper upon the land was made, and this created a great "boom," under the operation of which a small portion of the land was sold for a sum so large that the directors of the company were able to declare a cash dividend of nineteen dollars and fifty cents per share, amounting, upon the shares held by the trustee of the deceased member, to the sum of one hundred and eight thousand eight hundred and forty-nine dollars. It was held that this enormous dividend was income, and belonged to the life-tenant, although the contrary would seem to have been the better conclusion.[22]

19. Smith's Estate, 140 Pa. St. 344, 352, 31 Atl. 438, 27 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 420, 23 Am. St. Rep. 237, per Clark, J. [following Earp's Appeal, 28 Pa. St. 368, which is the leading case in Pennsylvania on the question]. Compare Vinton's Appeal, 99 Pa. St. 434, 44 Am. Rep. 116; Biddle's Appeal, 99 Pa. St. 278; Moss' Appeal, 83 Pa. St. 264, 24 Am. Rep. 164; Wilthank's Appeal, 64 Pa. St. 256, 3 Am. Rep. 585; McKeen's Appeal, 42 Pa. St. 479. In the leading Pennsylvania case on this subject, the distinction was said to lie in the fact that the testator had not made a bequest of the stock itself to the applicants, but had given them only the income of it for life, so that their interests necessarily commenced after the death of the testator, and so that they had no right whatever to claim the income which had accumulated after his death. On the other hand profits arising since his death went to them as income, within the meaning of the will. Earp's Appeal, 28 Pa. St. 368, 374.

20. Smith's Estate, 140 Pa. St. 344, 357, 21 Atl. 438, 27 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 420, 23 Am. St. Rep. 237; Biddle's Appeal, 99 Pa. St. 278; Moss' Appeal, 83 Pa. St. 364, 24 Am. Rep. 164.

21. Smith's Estate, 140 Pa. St. 344, 21 Atl. 438, 27 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 420, 23 Am. St. Rep. 237.

22. In re Oliver, 136 Pa. St. 43, 20 Atl. 527, 26 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 392, 20 Am. St. Rep. 894, 9 L. R. A. 421.

e. Ordinary Cash Dividends Presumptively Go to Life-Tenant — (I) In General. This proposition is clear when it is considered that a corporation, while a going concern, has no power to declare dividends, except out of profits or earnings, from which it follows that a cash dividend cannot be presumed to have been made out of capital. The true rule is therefore said to be "that, when a dividend upon its stock is declared by a corporation, it belongs to the person holding the stock at the time of the declaration, whether the holder be a life-tenant or remainder-man, without regard to the source from which or the time during which the profits and earnings divided were acquired by the company."[23]

(II) Illustration of Rule. Thus dividends made in cash by a manufacturing corporation, although made out of money received from the sale of patent rights and a large amount of materials, have been held income and not capital.[24] So cash dividends made by land company, whose business is the sale of lands which are the corporate property, have been held, in the absence of any facts necessarily pointing to the contrary conclusion, to be income and not capital of a trust fund created by the will of a shareholder.[25]

(III) Cash Dividend Issued to Pay Invalid Stock Dividend. Where the directors of a corporation vote a cash dividend for the purpose of paying for new stock to be issued to its shareholders, the whole transaction constituting a stock dividend, if the issue of the stock is void because of non-compliance with the provisions of a statute, the cash dividend will fall also, and cannot be claimed by a person entitled to the income of certain shares of stock.[26]

(IV) Cash Dividend Declared Out of Capital Goes to Remainder-Man. In the operation of this rule, which looks through the form to the substance of the matter, it has been held that if a cash dividend is declared from a sale of the franchises and permanent property of the corporation it will be regarded as capital and will go to the remainder-man, notwithstanding the form in which it was declared.[27]

f. Dividend Payable Out of Old Shares. Where a dividend, declared to be made out of the earnings of the corporation, is not made in the form of cash, but in old shares of the corporation itself, in which it has invested the amount, it has been held income of the shares previously held by the shareholders.[28]

g. Stock Dividend Where Shares Have Been Reduced in Consequence of Losses and Then Reissued After Recovery. Where a banking corporation lawfully reduced the par value of its shares, in consequence of certain supposed losses, and upon recovery of the sum supposed to have been lost issued additional stock to its shareholders to represent the restored value, it was held that the new stock thus issued belonged to the corpus of the estate of a deceased shareholder and did not go to the life-tenant.[29]

h. What Dividends Pass to Specific Legatee. Under the foregoing principles a specific legatee of corporate shares is entitled to all dividends which are declared after the death of the testator.[30] To this rule one English case adds the qualification that a dividend earned before the death of the testator and which ought to have been declared before goes to the corpus of his estate, and does not follow the shares of the specific legatee.[31] Another English case holds that dividends payable after the death of the testator go to the specific legatee, although the 23. Richardson v. Richardson, 75 Me. 570, 575, 46 Am. Rep. 428.

24. Harvard College v. Amory, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 446.
25. Reed v. Head, 6 Allen (Mass.) 174; Balch v. Hallet, 10 Gray (Mass.) 402.
26. Rand v. Hubbell, 115 Mass. 461, 15 Am. Rep. 121.
27. Vinton's Appeal, 99 Pa. St. 434, 44 Am. Rep. 116; Moss' Appeal, 83 Pa. St. 264, 24 Am. Rep. 164.
28. Leland v. Hayden, 102 Mass. 542.
29. Parker v. Mason, 8 R. I. 427.
30. Browne v. Collins, L. R. 12 Eq. 586; Ibbotson v. Elam, L. R. 1 Eq. 188, 35 Beav. 594, 12 Jur. N. S. 114, 14 Wkly. Rep. 241; Jacques v. Chambers, 2 Coll. 435, 11 Jur. 295, 16 L. J. Ch. 243, 4 R. & Can. Cas. 205, 33 Eng. Ch. 435; Wright v. Warren, 4 De G. & Sm. 367.
31. Browne v. Collins, L. R. 12 Eq. 586.

resolution declaring them may have been passed in the testator's lifetime.[32] Although this case is said by Sir Nathaniel Lindley[33] to have turned on the special wording of the company's deed of settlement, yet it reaches the result which would be reached in most American courts in respect of ordinary dividends. The rule elsewhere stated[34] that the severance of title in respect of the dividend takes place at the date when it is declared without reference to the date when it is made payable would take it to the general estate if it were declared prior to the death of the testator, and to the specific legatee if declared after his death. Most of the English cases conform to this theory, and unite in holding that dividends declared before the death of the testator belong prima facie to his general estate, and do not pass to a specific legatee, although he may die before the date at which they are payable.[35]

i. Doctrine That Question Is to Be Determined by Form of Corporate Action — (I) Statement of Doctrine. Contrary to a view put forth in cases already considered, that the courts will look through the form and determine the question according to the substance,[36] the doctrine of one authoritative court is that the question whether a dividend belongs to the corpus of an estate and goes to the remainder-man, or is to be regarded as mere income and goes to the life-tenant, depends upon the substance and intent of the action of the corporation, as shown by the vote by which the dividend is declared.[37] The doctrine rests upon the view that it would be impracticable for the courts, in determining the comparative rights of different persons in particular shares of stock, to go behind the votes of the corporation and its directors, and investigate the accounts and affairs of the corporation, in order to ascertain how the corporation acquired the fund out of which the dividend was declared.[38]

(II) Cash Dividends, However Large, Are Income; Stock Dividends, However Made, Are Capital. The logical result of this doctrine is that cash dividends, however large, are income and go to the life-tenant and that stock dividends, however made, are capital and go to the remainder-man.[39]

(III) Undivided Earnings Are Capital. Another result of this view is that undivided earnings of the corporation are likewise regarded as capital; and hence that as between the life-tenant and remainder-man the interest in such earnings represented by each certificate of stock is an interest in the capital, and

32. Clive v. Clive, Kay 600, 23 L. J. Ch. 981.

33. Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 545, note i.

34. See supra, VII, B, 4, a.

35. De Gendre v. Kent, L. R. 4 Eq. 283; Lock v. Venables, 27 Beav. 598; Wright v. Tuckett, 1 Johns. & H. 266; Clive v. Clive, Kay 600, 23 L. J. Ch. 981.

36. In re Warren, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 787, 33 N. Y. St. 584; In re Alsbury, 45 Ch. D. 237, 60 L. J. Ch. 29, 63 L. T. Rep. N. S. 576, 2 Meg. 346, 39 Wkly. Rep. 136.

37. Adams v. Adams, 139 Mass. 449, 1 N. E. 746; Leland v. Hayden, 102 Mass. 542; Minot v. Paine, 99 Mass. 101, 96 Am. Dec. 705; Gibbons v. Mahon, 136 U. S. 549, 34 L. ed. 525 [affirming 4 Mackey (D. C.) 130, 54 Am. Rep. 262]; In re Barton, L. R. 5 Eq. 238; Price v. Anderson, 15 Sim. 473, 38 Eng. Ch. 473. The question has given rise to great perplexity in the English equity courts. Sir Nathaniel Lindley throws many of the cases into contrast in a note, thus: "Compare (1) Hopkins' Trusts, 18 Eq. 696; Plumbe v. Neild, 6 Jur. N. S. 529; Price v. Anderson, 15 Sim. 473; Preston v. Melville, 16 Sim. 163, and Barclay v. Wainwright, 14 Ves. 66, in which the payments were held to be income, with (2) Straker v. Wilson, 6 Ch. 503; Barton's Trusts, 5 Eq. 238; Ward v. Combe, 7 Sim. 634; Witts v. Steer, 13 Ves. 363; Paris v. Paris, 10 Ves. 185; Brander v. Brander, 4 Ves. 800, in which the payments were held to be capital. See also Cuming v. Boswell, 2 Jur. N. S. 1005, where the House of Lords held that, upon the true construction of a Scotch deed, bonuses belonged to an infant's estate, and not to the person who, on his death under twenty-one, became entitled to the stocks which yielded them." Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 545.

38. Rand v. Hubbell, 115 Mass. 461, 15 Am. Rep. 121, 134.

39. Adams v. Adams, 139 Mass. 449, 1 N. E. 746; Leland v. Hayden, 102 Mass. 542; Daland v. Williams, 101 Mass. 571; Minot v. Paine, 99 Mass. 101, 96 Am. Dec. 705. Compare Sohier v. Burr, 127 Mass. 221; Heard v. Eldredge, 109 Mass. 258, 12 Am. Rep. 687; Balch v. Hallet, 10 Gray (Mass.) 402; In re Barton, L. R. 5 Eq. 238; Hooper v. Rossiter, McClel. 527, 13 Price 774.

not an interest in the income.[40] Moreover as the corporation may, in the absence of a restraining statute, treat its undivided earnings either as capital or income, that is, turn them into its property or business, or distribute them in cash dividends,[41] it follows that it may, during the entire life of the life-tenant of its shares, turn its earnings into capital and issue stock dividends to represent the increase, which dividends, under the operation of this rule, will be reserved for the remainder-man, leaving the life-tenant to starve and defeating the plain intent of the testator.

(IV) Stock Dividend Capital, Although Derived From Net Earnings. It results from this view that when the vote of the corporation is to distribute to each shareholder a certain number of additional shares in the corporation, in proportion to the amount of shares already held by him, the shares so distributed are received by the shareholder as capital, and not as income, although the means of making the dividend are derived from net earnings of the corporation; and hence if such new shares go to the trustee in such a trust as we are considering he must hold them for the remainder-man.[42] If therefore a joint-stock association increases its capital stock, to represent profits actually invested in extending its business and increasing the value of its plant, and apportions the new shares pro rata among its existing shareholders, the new shares become capital and not income, for the purposes of such a trust as those under consideration.[43]

(V) Dividends Accruing During Lifetime of Life-Tenant, but Not Declared Until After His Death, Go to Remainder-man. Under the operation of this rule, and contrary to the rule in Pennsylvania, dividends on corporate shares belonging to an estate, which are declared after the death of the life-tenant, pass to the remainder-man as a part of the corpus of the estate, although in point of fact they represent profits which accrued prior to his death.[44]

(VI) Corporation Voting Cash Dividend Convertible Into Contemporaneous Stock Dividend. In a jurisdiction where this rule obtains, it has been held that if a corporation votes to create new shares and at the same time declares a dividend payable in cash to the shareholders, and authorizes its treasurer to receive this dividend in payment for such shares, and to issue certificates of stock in return, the dividend is, as between the owners of successive interests in the shares, capital and not income, although the corporation is not allowed by the law of the state in which it is established to make stock dividends.[45]

(VII) Increase in Value of Shares Is Capital. It follows that the enhanced price for which stocks may sell by reason of dividends earned but not declared, inures, under the modern rule, to the benefit of the remainder-man.[46]

40. Gifford v. Thompson, 115 Mass. 478; Rand v. Hubbell, 115 Mass. 461, 15 Am. Rep. 121.

41. Rand v. Hubbell, 115 Mass. 461, 15 Am. Rep. 121.

42. Connecticut.— Brinley v. Grou, 50 Conn. 66, 47 Am. Rep. 618.

Maine.— Richardson v. Richardson, 75 Me. 570, 574, 46 Am. Rep. 428.

Massachusetts.— Gifford v. Thompson, 115 Mass. 478; Rand v. Hubbell, 115 Mass. 461, 15 Am. Rep. 121, 135; Leland v. Hayden, 102 Mass. 542; Daland v. Williams, 101 Mass. 571; Minot v. Paine, 99 Mass. 101, 96 Am. Dec. 705; Atkins v. Albree, 12 Allen 359.

Rhode Island.— Greene v. Smith, 17 R. I. 28, 19 Atl. 1081; In re Brown, 14 R. I. 371, 51 Am. Rep. 397.

United States.— Gibbons v. Mahon, 136 U. S. 549, 10 S. Ct. 1057, 34 L. ed. 525.

England.— In re Barton, L. R. 5 Eq. 238, 243; In re Bouch, 29 Ch. D. 635 [reversed in 12 App. Cas. 385, 56 L. J. Ch. 1037, 57 L. T. Rep. N. S. 345, 36 Wkly. Rep. 193].

Compare In re Kernochan, 104 N. Y. 618, 11 N. E. 149.

43. Spooner v. Phillips, 62 Conn. 62, 24 Atl. 524, 16 L. R. A. 461.

44. Quinn v. Madigan, 65 N. H. 8, 17 Atl. 976. This seems to be the rule in New York. In re Warren, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 787, 33 N. Y. St. 584.

45. Daland v. Williams, 101 Mass. 571.

Further illustrations of the so-called Massachusetts rule may be found in the following cases: Davis v. Jackson, 152 Mass. 58, 25 N. E. 21, 23 Am. St. Rep. 801; Rand v. Hubbell, 115 Mass. 461, 15 Am. Rep. 121: Leland v. Hayden, 102 Mass. 542.

46. Scolefield v. Redfern, 2 Dr. & Sm. 173, 9 Jur. N. S. 485, 32 L. J. Ch. 627, 8 L. T. Rep. N. S. 487, 11 Wkly. Rep. 453.

So where the corporation upon increasing its capital stock issues new shares in exchange for its old ones, these new shares are not regarded as income, but go to the remainder-man.[47]

(VIII) Dividends in Winding-Up Under This Rule. Under this rule of considering the form of the corporate action merely, it is held that when a corporation dissolves and winds up its affairs, and makes to its shareholders a dividend in cash, arising from all its assets, consisting in part of undivided earnings, the entire amount divided will be capital and not income.[48]

(IX) Dividend Arising From Proceeds of Condemnation of Land Belong to Corporation. It has been ruled in Massachusetts that where the property of a corporation consists wholly of real estate and a part of it is taken under the right of eminent domain, and the compensation paid to the corporation therefor is by it distributed as a cash dividend to its shareholders, such a dividend belongs to the capital, and not to the income of a trust fund invested in the shares.[49]

j. Profits Turned Into Capital and Afterward Divided. Two decisions of the house of lords sanction the view that if a company has no power to increase its capital, but accumulates profits, which it uses as capital, but which it afterward divides among its shareholders, such divided profits are capital, and do not go to the life-tenant of the shares, but are held for the remainder-man.[50]

k. Premiums Accruing From Sale of New Shares. In like manner it has been held in Massachusetts that when a corporation votes to increase its capital stock, and to allow the holders of the old shares to subscribe for the new ones pro rata, and that any new shares not so taken shall be sold by the directors, and the premiums realized by the sale paid over to the parties entitled to the right of subscribing for the shares, the sum received by the directors upon such sale is capital to the shareholder.[51] So under the Pennsylvania rule the profits accruing from a sale of shares of increased stock taken by trustees holding old stock, which gave them a right to take it, is capital and not income, as between life-tenant and remainder-man.[52]

l. Profits Arising From Options to Take New Shares. It is held that if the corporation increases its capital stock and allows each shareholder the option of taking at par as many new shares as he held of the old, and the trustees under a will bequeathing the income, profit, and products of certain stock in the company to a person for life with remainder over, sell a part of their option to take new shares and with the proceeds of such sale buy some of the new shares, these shares will be capital and will go to the remainder-man. The view is that the option to take new shares is not a profit.[53]

47. Greene v. Smith, 17 R. I. 28, 19 Atl. 1081.

48. Gifford v. Thompson, 115 Mass. 478. Thus stock dividends arising from the sale of a part of the assets of a corporation, being capital and not income, belong to the remainder-man and not to the life-tenant. Matter of Skillman, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 469, 29 N. Y. St. 217, 2 Connoly Surr. (N. Y.) 161.

49. Heard v. Eldredge, 109 Mass. 258, 12 Am. Rep. 687. This decision is a flat denial of the doctrine of the leading case in Massachusetts, in which the opinion was written by the same judge (Chapman, C. J.), in which the doctrine is laid down thus: "A simple rule is, to regard cash dividends, however large, as income, and stock dividends, however made, as capital." Minot v. Paine, 99 Mass. 101, 108, 96 Am. Dec. 705. It shows that the Massachusetts court does not follow the unjust and arbitrary rule which it has laid down for the government of this subject. See 2 Thompson Corp. § 2221, where Heard v. Eldredge, 109 Mass. 258, 12 Am. Rep. 687, is explained and commented on.

What is the "natural increase," and not "an extraordinary accumulation of the corpus," within the meaning of the Georgia code, illustrating the difficulty of a legislature undertaking to interpret wills. Millen v. Guerrard, 67 Ga. 284, 44 Am. Rep. 720.

50. Bouch v. Sproule, 12 App. Cas. 385, 56 L. J. Ch. 1037, 57 L. T. Rep. N. S. 345, 36 Wkly. Rep. 193 [reversing 29 Ch. D. 635]; Irving v. Houstoun, 4 Paton Sc. App. 521.

51. Atkins v. Albree, 12 Allen (Mass.) 359.

52. Smith's Estate, 140 Pa. St. 344, 21 Atl. 438, 27 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 420, 23 Am. St. Rep. 237.

53. Hite v. Hite, 93 Ky. 257, 20 S. W. 778, 14 Ky. L. Rep. 385, 40 Am. St. Rep. 189, 19

6. Remedies to Compel Payment of Declared Dividends — a. Shareholder Cannot Sue For Dividend Until It Has Been Declared. From what has preceded it follows that except in the case of preferential or guaranteed stock, elsewhere considered, a shareholder cannot ordinarily sue the corporation for his share of accumulated profits until a dividend has been declared, a matter which generally rests within the sound discretion of the directors, which discretion the courts will not control unless it has been plainly abused.[54]

b. Shareholder May Sue Corporation at Law to Recover Dividend Which Has Been Declared — (i) In General. But when a dividend has been declared it becomes a debt due from the corporation,[55] to each shareholder in proportion to the number of his shares, and he may sue and recover the same at law.[56] The resolution declaring the dividend is a written admission on the part of the corporation of an indebtedness to each particular shareholder, payable in the legal currency of the country, unless otherwise specified in the resolution.[57] Where a dividend has been declared by the directors of a corporation, whether that declaration was by resolution or by proceedings to divide up without any formal action on behalf of the company, the remedy for a shareholder is one at law to sue the company for his proportion of the funds or for his dividend; and, if the company has allowed the directors to retain the money, then an implied promise would inure to the benefit of the shareholder against them to recover on that promise.[58]

(ii) Unavailing Defenses to Such Actions. It follows that it will be no defense to such an action to show that the earnings of the corporation were received in property other than legal currency.[59] Nor can the corporation set up as a defense to such an action that it has been compelled to part with its surplus funds in the payment of an illegal tax under duress of a threatened levy.[60]

(iii) Limitation of Such Actions. Dividends declared on the capital stock of a corporation and payable on demand are not subject to the running of prescription or limitation until there has been a demand and refusal.[61] The reason is that, although the declaration of a dividend creates a debt of the corporation in favor of the shareholder, it is a debt payable only on demand, and has been compared to the obligation of a bank to its depositors.[62] Other cases rest their holdings upon the trust relation which exists between the company and its share-

L. R. A. 173; Moss' Appeal, 83 Pa. St. 264, 24 Am. Rep. 164; In re Thomson, 1 Pa. Dist. 139, 11 Pa. Co. Ct. 198, 30 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 23. Seemingly opposed to above conclusion is Wiltbank's Appeal, 64 Pa. St. 256, 3 Am. Rep. 585. See also MacLaren v. Starinton, 3 De G. F. & J. 202, 64 Eng. Ch. 159; Plumbe v. Neild, 6 Jur. N. S. 529, 29 L. J. Ch. 618, 8 Wkly. Rep. 337. Compare Wiltbank v. Insurance Co., 7 Phila. (Pa.) 327.

54. Beveridge v. New York El. R. Co., 112 N. Y. 1, 19 N. E. 489, 20 N. Y. St. 962, 2 L. R. A. 648.

55. Wheeler v. Northwestern Sleigh Co., 39 Fed. 347.

56. Beers v. Bridgeport Spring Co., 42 Conn. 17; Keppel v. Petersburg R. Co., 14 Fed. Cas. No. 7,722, Chase 167.

57. Ehle v. Chittenango Bank, 24 N. Y. 548; Scott v. Central R., etc., Co., 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 45.

58. Larwill v. Burke, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 605, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 513.

59. Ehle v. Chittenango Bank, 24 N. Y. 548; Scott v. Central R., etc., Co., 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 45.

60. Kimball v. Corn Exch. Nat. Bank, 1 Ill. App. 209.

61. Kentucky.— Louisville Bank v. Gray, 84 Ky. 565, 2 S. W. 168, 8 Ky. L. Rep. 664.

Louisiana.— Armant v. New Orleans, etc., R. Co., 41 La. Ann. 1020, 7 So. 35; De St. Romes v. Levee Steam Cotton Press, 20 La. Ann. 381.

Maryland.— State v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 6 Gill 363, 387.

Ohio.— Larwill v. Burke, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 605, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 513.

Pennsylvania.— Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. v. Cowell, 28 Pa. St. 329, 339, 70 Am. Dec. 128.

See also Keppel v. Petersburg R. Co., 14 Fed. Cas. No. 7,722, Chase 167, 213, where it was held that dividends being payable only on demand, interest can be allowed only from that date.

62. Armant v. New Orleans, etc., R. Co., 41 La. Ann. 1020, 7 So. 35. See also Brown v. Pike, 34 La. Ann. 576.

holders, which in effect amounts to the same thing;[63] for there must be an initial point at which the possession of the company becomes one animo domini.

c. Remedy in Equity to Recover Declared Dividend. Where a dividend has been declared, and the corporation or the directors afterward attempt to reappropriate and refuse to pay it, the shareholders may invoke the aid of a court of equity to compel its payment. The foundation of the jurisdiction is the principle elsewhere stated, that the corporation is regarded as a trustee, and the directors as trustees, in theory of equity, of the dividend, for the shareholders.[64] In another case it is held that after a dividend has been declared the shareholder can maintain a bill in equity for an accounting, if the corporation refuses to pay him his share of the dividend.[65] Where the directors declared a dividend of seventy per cent to be credited to the shareholders pro rata, and to be paid without interest at such time as should be directed by the board, and certain shareholders sued in equity to compel its payment, it was held that the corporation could not withhold payment indefinitely, but must pay the dividend within a reasonable time, and that the shareholders were entitled to the aid of equity to compel its payment.[66]

d. Parties to Actions to Compel Payment of Dividends. The corporation is necessarily the principal defendant, and therefore the action cannot be brought against its treasurer.[67] Where the shares have been illegally transferred, the corporation is also a necessary party defendant in an action brought for the purpose of discovering the true owner, and having the shares retransferred to him, and having an account of the dividends in his behalf. The holder of the shares is also a necessary party defendant in such an action.[68]

e. Necessity of Demand. It may be assumed that unless there is a statute dispensing with a demand in actions for the recovery of money, a shareholder must prove a demand before he can maintain an action for a dividend.[69]

f. Effect of Pendency of Action For Conversion of Shares. One who has brought an action against the corporation for the conversion of his shares cannot, while such action is pending, maintain an action against the corporation for dividends on the shares; nor can his assignee who stands in his shoes maintain such an action. The reason is that the two actions are inconsistent; the former proceeds on the ground that through the tortious action of the corporation he has lost his title to his shares, while the latter proceeds on the ground that he still has title and is hence entitled to dividends.[70] But he may proceed in equity to be restored to his rights as a shareholder and to be paid any accrued dividends.[71]

g. When Shareholder of Lessee Corporation Cannot Sue For Dividend. Where two corporations agreed together for a lease of the property of one of them to the other, the lessor guaranteeing a certain dividend, and agreeing to make certain quarterly payment, it was held that a shareholder of the lessee corporation could not, on behalf of himself and other shareholders of such corporation, maintain an action against the lessor corporation to enforce the agreement and to compel the payment of his dividend.[72] The reason was that the promise was made to the lessee corporation, and not to its shareholders.[73]

63. Louisville Bank v. Gray, 84 Ky. 565, 2 S. W. 168, 8 Ky. L. Rep. 664.

64. Beers v. Bridgeport Spring Co., 42 Conn. 17; Gordon v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 81 Va. 621.

65. Cook County Brick Co. v. Kaehler, 83 Ill. App. 448.

66. Beers v. Bridgeport Spring Co., 42 Conn. 17.

67. French v. Fuller, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 108.

68. Southwestern R. Co. v. Thomason, 40 Ga. 408.

69. Scott v. Central R., etc., Co., 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 45.

70. Hughes v. Vermont Copper Min. Co., 72 N. Y. 207. Cases depending upon particular circumstances. Bates v. Androscoggin, etc., R. Co., 49 Me. 491; Bank of Commerce v. Dalrymple, 16 Md. 17; State v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 6 Gill (Md.) 363; Soeding v. Bonner, etc., Iron Co., 35 Mo. App. 349; Moss' Appeal, 43 Pa. St. 23.

71. See infra, VII, D, 7, a et seq.

72. Harkness v. Manhattan R. Co., 54 N. Y. Super. Ct. 174 [approved in 112 N. Y. 25, 19 N. E. 489, 20 N. Y. St. 962, 2 L. R. A. 648].

73. The court cited and relied on Wheat v. Rice, 97 N. Y. 296, where a promise to as-

C. Interest-Bearing, Preferred, and Guaranteed Stock — 1. Interest-Bearing Stock — a. Corporation Cannot Contract to Pay Interest on Its Shares. The better view is that a corporation cannot contract to pay interest or dividends on the shares of its capital stock in excess of its earnings, unless expressly authorized to do so by statute.[74]

b. Corporation Cannot Guarantee Dividends on Shares of Another Company. Nor in the absence of express legislative authorization can a corporation guarantee dividends on the shares of another company.[75]

c. Corporation May Guarantee "Interest Dividends" Payable Out of Profits. But a corporation may agree to pay to each shareholder interest on sums which he pays in upon his share subscription, under the name of "interest dividends," until the undertaking of the corporation is completed and goes into operation, payable whenever the surplus earnings enable it to do so.[76]

d. What Is "Preferred Stock" — (I) In General. Preferred stock is not an indebtedness of the corporation, or an absolute agreement to pay certain dividends upon its shares, but is merely a pledge of its profits in favor of certain shares in preference to the others, in other words an agreement to give a preference to particular shares over the other shares in the division of profits, but only in case there shall be profits to divide. Hence if it appears in any case that no profits have been earned the holders of preferred stock cannot maintain actions against the company to enforce payment of the guaranteed dividends.[77]

(II) Preferred Stock Constituting Lien Upon Property and Franchises. Of course the equity of what passes under the designation of preferred stock depends upon the terms of the statute under which it is issued or the terms of the contract embodied in the resolution under which it is issued, as expressed in the share certificates or otherwise. What is called preferred stock may be an indebtedness of the corporation, and even a lien upon its property and franchises, cutting under other liens. Thus the preferred stock authorized by a statute of Maryland[78] differs radically from the preferred stock described in the preceding paragraph, in that by the terms of the statute it is made a "lien on the franchises and property" of the corporation, with priority over subsequent mortgages or other encumbrances.[79]

e. "Interest Certificates" Not Shares — (I) In General. It has been held that "interest certificates" issued by a corporation to its shareholders, and made assignable by their terms, are not shares, although payable at the option of the company out of future earnings, so as to pass in a will under the description of "shares."[80] sume the debts of a copartnership was held not a promise to any one of its creditors.

74. Ohio Dental Surgery College v. Rosenthal, 45 Ohio St. 183, 12 N. E. 665; Painesville, etc., R. Co. v. King, 17 Ohio St. 534; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Allegheny County, 63 Pa. St. 126; In re Sharpe, [1892] 1 Ch. 154.

75. Rhorer v. Middlesboro Town, etc., Co., 103 Ky. 146, 44 S. W. 448, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 1788; Memphis Grain, etc., Elevator Co. v. Memphis, etc., R. Co., 85 Tenn. 703, 5 S. W. 52, 4 Am. St. Rep. 798.

76. Richardson v. Vermont, etc., R. Co., 44 Vt. 613.

77. Taft v. Hartford, etc., R. Co., 8 R. I. 310, 332, 5 Am. Rep. 575. A statute authorizing a railroad company to issue shares of stock to be applied to the payment of interest on instalments paid in by subscribers to the stock, until an income should be realized from the road, was construed in Manice v. Hudson River R. Co., 3 Duer (N. Y.) 426.

Preferred stock of a railroad company is not an indebtedness which can be considered in determining whether its obligations are such as to prevent its operating an additional train. People v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 176 Ill. 512, 52 N. E. 292 [affirming on rehearing, (Ill. 1896) 45 N. E. 824, 35 L. R. A. 656].

78. Md. Code, art. 23, § 294.

79. Heller v. National Mar. Bank, 89 Md. 602, 43 Atl. 800, 73 Am. St. Rep. 212, 45 L. R. A. 438.

80. Brundage v. Brundage, 60 N. Y. 544 [affirming 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 397, 1 Thomps. & C. (N. Y.) 82, and distinguishing Burroughs v. North Carolina R. Co., 67 N. C. 376, 12 Am. Rep. 611; Clive v. Clive, Kay 600, 23 L. J. Ch. 981].

(II) Protection of Corporation in Case of Loss of Such Certificate. It has been held that a corporation which has issued negotiable certificates for an extra dividend, making them payable at a time fixed therein, or sooner at its option, and elects to redeem them sooner, cannot refuse to pay a shareholder the amount of a lost certificate. It may protect itself by exacting indemnity, as in case of lost commercial paper.[81]

2. Issuing Preferred Stock — a. Power to Issue Preferred Stock as Against Dissent of Common Shareholders — (I) In General. The power to issue preferred shares does not exist unless it is expressly given by a previously existing and valid statute, or by the unanimous consent of all the shareholders, anything less than unanimous consent not being sufficient.[82] The subject has been controlled in some of the states by constitutional, and in many of them by statutory, provisions.[83] No implied power exists in a corporation thus to create inequalities among its shareholders. No such power is granted in a clause in a charter conferring "such additional powers as may be convenient for the due and successful execution of the powers granted." Such a clause will not legalize a guaranty of a specific dividend on the shares of the corporation, at a premium, to induce a subscription, even though the guaranty be in part in consideration of services rendered by the subscriber to the company.[84]

(II) No Such Power as Against Unregistered Shareholders. The rule of the preceding section extends so far that, although all the registered shareholders consent to the issue of preferred shares, their action will not be allowed so to operate as to affect the rights of any purchaser of common shares who has not as yet been registered as an owner of them on the books of the corporation.[85]

81. Butler v. Glen Cove Starch Mfg. Co., 18 Hun (N. Y.) 47.

82. Ashbury v. Watson, 30 Ch. D. 376, 54 L. J. Ch. 985, 54 L. T. Rep. N. S. 27, 33 Wkly. Rep. 882; Hutton v. Scarborough Cliff Hotel Co., 2 Dr. & Sm. 514, 11 Jur. N. S. 849, 13 L. T. Rep. N. S. 57, 13 Wkly. Rep. 1059 [affirmed in 9 Jur. N. S. 551, 34 L. J. Ch. 643]; Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 396. See also Guinness v. Ireland Land Corp., 22 Ch. D. 349, 52 L. J. Ch. 177, 47 L. T. Rep. N. S. 517, 31 Wkly. Rep. 341. Compare Painesville Nat. Bank v. King Varnish Co., 8 Ohio Cir. Ct. 563.

In Pennsylvania an alteration of a charter authorizing the issue of preferred stock does not release common shareholders from their liability as such, the theory being that such an alteration is in pursuance of the common design, and is impliedly assented to by the shareholder in advance at the time of his subscription. Everhart v. West Chester, etc., R. Co., 28 Pa. St. 339. It follows that an acceptance of such an amendment by a majority of the shareholders will bind the minority and empower the directors to issue the preferred shares, notwithstanding the opposition of individual shareholders. Curry v. Scott, 54 Pa. St. 270. Compare McManus v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 58 Pa. St. 330. See on analogous theories Gray v. Monongahela Nav. Co., 2 Watts & S. (Pa.) 156, 37 Am. Dec. 500; Clark v. Monongahela Nav. Co., 10 Watts (Pa.) 364; Irvin v. Susquehanna, etc., Turnpike Co., 2 Penr. & W. (Pa.) 466, 23 Am. Dec. 53; Indiana, etc., Turnpike Road Co. v. Phillips, 2 Penr. & W. (Pa.) 184.

83. By the constitution of Alabama it is provided: "No corporation shall issue preferred stock without the consent of the owners of two thirds of the stock of said corporation." Ala. Const. (1875), art. 13, § 9. By the constitution of Missouri "No Corporation shall issue preferred stock without the consent of all the stockholders." Mo. Const. (1875), art. 12, § 10. Statutory grants of this power (Ala. Acts (1883–1889), No. 98, p. 86) and statutory prohibitions of it (Minn. Gen. Laws (1887), c. 49, p. 104) exist; but it has been found impracticable to collect them. A statutory authority to issue preferred stock does not, it has been held, include a grant of power to issue common stock. Covington, etc., Bridge Co. v. Sargent, 1 Cinc. Super. Ct. 354. A contract by a corporation to repay a loan in preferred stock which it had no authority to issue, being a nullity, is not renewed by a subsequent act authorizing it to issue preferred stock, but which does not empower it to renew that contract. Anthony v. Household Sewing Mach. Co., 16 R. I. 571, 18 Atl. 176, 5 L. R. A. 575. That a note given in payment for a subscription for preferred stock is valid, etc., see Magee v. Badger, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 246.

Formalities in the mode of issue.— When a departure from the statutory mode of issue invalidates the issue see American Tube Works v. Boston Mach. Co., 139 Mass. 5, 29 N. E. 63.

84. Memphis Grain, etc., Elevator Co. v. Memphis, etc., R. Co., 85 Tenn. 703, 5 S. W. 52, 4 Am. St. Rep. 798.

85. Campbell v. American Zylonite Co., 122 N. Y. 455, 25 N. E. 853, 34 N. Y. St. 38,

(III) Whether Such Power Included in Power to Borrow. Corporations have undoubtedly a general power to borrow money, and may borrow even from their own shareholders, and from them alone;[86] but whether the existence of this power includes the power to issue shares to the lender of money to the corporation has been answered in the negative by one authoritative court[87] and in the affirmative by another.[88]

(IV) Power May Be Reserved in Articles of Association. There is no doubt that where the governing statute authorizes it, and probably where it does not forbid it, a corporation may assume this power, by a clause to that effect in its articles of association or other instrument of incorporation, so that a majority may order such shares to be issued contrary to the will of the minority.[89]

(V) Power May Be Assumed at Outset in Its By-Laws. It seems that a corporation created by a special charter may, by by-laws adopted in advance of its receiving subscriptions to its shares, divide its stock into classes, preferring one class over another.[90]

(VI) Corporation Cannot Divide Its Shareholders Into Different Classes After Subscription—(A) In General. But, although a corporation may possibly do this by a by-law in the first instance and before any subscriptions have been taken, it cannot, after its shares have been subscribed for and distributed, divide its existing shareholders into different classes, giving to one class a preference over the other, without precedent legislative authority or unanimous consent.[91]

(B) Such Power Not Conferred by Power to Alter By-Laws. A power thus to create inequality among the shareholders against the will of the minority of them is not conferred by a power to make, repeal, or alter by-laws;[92] since no corporation has power to establish by-laws which impair vested rights.[93] And this is so, although, in the light of what has subsequently transpired, the agreement may appear to have been exceedingly unconscionable; for an unconscionable arrangement will not be disturbed where there has been a ratification of it with knowledge of all its bearings, if time has been had for consideration.[94]

(C) Such Change Not Valid as Against Unregistered Shareholders, Although All Registered Shareholders Consent. Such being the governing principle, an agreement signed by all the registered shareholders, whereby, in order to raise money to pay debts, forty per cent of the stock is to be surrendered and sold, and new shares issued in lieu thereof, entitled to preferential dividends of ten per cent per annum, is void even as against an unregistered pledgee of the common stock, and as against one who purchases the same from him after default in the payment of the debt for which they are pledged.[95]

11 L. R. A. 596 [reversing 55 N. Y. Super. Ct. 562, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 822].

86. Kent v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159, 177 (per Folger, J.); Curtis v. Leavitt, 15 N. Y. 9.

87. Kent v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159.

88. This holding was that if a corporation has power to borrow money on bond and mortgage it may, as a mode of borrowing, issue new shares and give to the holders of them a preference over the holders of its common shares. West Chester, etc., R. Co. v. Jackson, 77 Pa. St. 321.

89. Harrison v. Mexican R. Co., L. R. 19 Eq. 358; In re Bridgewater Nav. Co., 39 Ch. D. 1, 57 L. J. Ch. 809, 58 L. T. Rep. N. S. 476, 36 Wkly. Rep. 769; In re South Durham Brewery Co., 31 Ch. D. 261, 55 L. J. Ch. 179, 53 L. T. Rep. N. S. 928, 34 Wkly. Rep. 126.

That a limited company in England, authorized to issue preferential shares, may issue such shares to its members as fully paid up, in consideration of an equivalent number of common shares, see In re County Palatine Loan, etc., Co., L. R. 9 Ch. 54; Eichbaum v. Chicago Grain Elevators, [1891] 3 Ch. 459, 61 L. J. Ch. 28, 40 Wkly. Rep. 153. Compare Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409, 57 L. J. Ch. 28, 57 L. T. Rep. N. S. 457, 36 Wkly. Rep. 145.

90. Dictum of Folger, J., in Kent v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159, 178, 179.

91. Kent v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159.

92. Kent v. Quicksilver, Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159.

93. Gray v. Portland Bank, 3 Mass. 364, 3 Am. Dec. 156. See also supra, V, C, 8.

94. Kent v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159.

95. Campbell v. American Zylonite Co., 122 N. Y. 455, 25 N. E. 853, 34 N. Y. St. 38, 11 L. R. A. 596.

(VII) Such Preferences Validated by Laches and Estoppel — (A) In General. But, even though the issuing of preferential shares may be illegal under the foregoing principle, yet they may become legal by laches, acquiescence, and by the operation of the principle of estoppel with respect to those who are entitled to question the transaction.[96]

(B) Shareholder Proceeding in Time May Rescind. Under any theory one who agrees to take preferred shares may rescind the agreement on discovering that the issue will be illegal, if he proceeds in time, and may recover back the money which he has paid under it, notwithstanding a statute may have been subsequently enacted under which preferred shares were issued and tendered to him.[97]

(VIII) Doctrine That Persons Accepting Preferred Shares Are Estopped From Disputing Their Validity. Where persons accept preferred shares which have been illegally issued and receive interest upon them for several years, they and their assigns thereby become estopped from questioning the power of the corporation to issue such shares.[98]

b. Privilege of Taking Preferred, in Exchange For Common, Stock Must Be Exercised Within Reasonable Time. Under a scheme by which preferred shares are issued for common shares, but in which no time is designated for making the exchange, it must be made within a reasonable time, and the period of thirty-three years after the date when the privilege was conferred is not a reasonable time.[99]

3. Rights of Preferred Shareholders — a. Question of Interpretation of the Contract — (I) In General. An examination of the cases shows in most instances that the questions which have arisen with respect to the rights of preferential shareholders are questions of interpretation, depending upon the terms of the particular constating instrument, let us say the governing statute, the by-law, the vote of the shareholders at general meeting, the resolution of the directors, and the recitals in the certificate of preferential shares, rather than upon the general principles of law.[1]

96. Kent v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159 [affirming 12 Hun (N. Y.) 53]; Hoyt v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 17 Hun (N. Y.) 169; Hill v. Cincinnati Hotel Co., 11 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 281, 25 Cinc. L. Bul. 425. To the contrary see Reed v. Boston Mach. Co., 141 Mass. 454, 5 N. E. 852; American Tube-Works v. Boston Mach. Co., 139 Mass. 5, 29 N. E. 63. Compare Bard v. Banigan, 39 Fed. 13, 17, per Shipman, J., where the Massachusetts cases just cited were criticized by a distinguished federal judge who found himself "not favorably impressed" with them. That the decision thus criticizing them was affirmed by the supreme court of the United States see Banigan v. Bard, 134 U. S. 291, 10 S. Ct. 565, 33 L. ed. 932. See as to the general principle of the foregoing text Veeder v. Mudgett, 95 N. Y. 295; Chubb v. Upton, 95 U. S. 665, 24 L. ed. 523. Compare Sheldon Hat Blocking Co. v. Eickemeyer Hat Blocking Mach. Co., 90 N. Y. 607; Aspinwall v. Sacchi, 57 N. Y. 331; Eaton v. Aspinwall, 19 N. Y. 119. And to the contrary see Ft. Scott First Nat. Bank v. Drake, 29 Kan. 311, 44 Am. Rep. 646.

97. Anthony v. Household Sewing Mach. Co., 16 R. I. 571, 18 Atl. 176, 5 L. R. A. 575.

98. Branch v. Jesup, 106 U. S. 468, 1 S. Ct. 495, 27 L. ed. 297. Contra, Reed v. Boston Mach. Co., 141 Mass. 454, 5 N. E. 852; American Tube-Works v. Boston Mach. Co., 139 Mass. 5, 29 N. E. 63.

99. Holland v. Cheshire R. Co., 151 Mass. 231, 24 N. E. 206, where it was also held that the appointment by the corporation of a committee, twenty years after a vote authorizing shareholders to exchange common for preferred stock, to investigate the claims of holders of common stock, with authority to settle the same by purchase or otherwise, and a purchase by the committee of common stock, giving in exchange therefor shares of preferred stock previously bought in by the company and held as part of the assets, did not constitute an exchange of stock under the original arrangement.

1. Cases could be cumulated depending upon the terms of such instruments rather than on any general principle of law, but a detailed examination of them would be of little value. Among such cases are the following:

Georgia.— Totten v. Tison, 54 Ga. 139.

Maine.— Belfast, etc., R. Co. v. Belfast, 77 Me. 445, 1 Atl. 362.

New York.— Thompson v. Erie R. Co., 11 Abr. Pr. N. S. 188, 42 How. Pr. 68.

Pennsylvania.—Culver v. Reno Real Estate Co., 91 Pa. St. 367.

United States.— Bailey v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 2 Fed. Cas. No. 736, 1 Dill. 174; St. John v. Erie R. Co., 21 Fed. Cas. No. 12,226, 10 Blatchf. 271; Sullivan v. Portland, etc., R. Co., 23 Fed. Cas. No. 13,596, 4 Cliff. 212.

Interpretation of the phrase "dividends ac-

(II) Contract Creating Preference May Consist of By-Law. A by law providing for the payment of dividends on the preferred stock of a company, establishes a contract between the company and its preferred shareholders.[2]

b. Preferred Stock Gives Right to Interest Chargeable Upon Profits. The view of some of the English courts that a preferred and guaranteed dividend authorized by an act of parliament is substantially interest, chargeable exclusively upon profits,[3] has been adopted in this country, and the conclusion thus expressed has been reached: "The guaranty of a dividend by a railway company is considered by the courts, . . . to mean nothing more than a pledge of the funds legally applicable to the purposes of a dividend; that, in short, it is a dividend, and not a debt, which is thus preferred and guaranteed."[4]

c. Entitles Holder to Dividends Only in Case They Are Earned. The ordinary species of preferred stock amounts merely to an engagement to divide earnings among the preferred shareholders in preference to those who are not preferred. If there are no earnings in a particular year they get no dividend in that year. Whether there are earnings in a particular year which can be divided among the preferred shareholders is a matter for the directors to determine in the first instance in the exercise of a sound and honest business discretion, and subject to the control of the courts in case their discretion is abused, as hereafter shown.[5] Such a claim makes the holder of the share certificate a shareholder and not a creditor.[6] When therefore no profits have been earned out of which a preferred dividend can be paid, the holder of preferred shares on which a dividend is guaranteed at a certain rate per annum "before any dividend shall be paid on other stock of said company" cannot maintain an action of assumpsit for the recovery of the annual dividend thus guaranteed.[7]

d. Right of Preferred Shareholders to Dividends Not Absolute, but Subject to Just Discretion of Directors. The right of the holder of preferred shares is not an absolute right to a dividend, unless the contract so states; but it is a qualified right controlled by the sound discretion of the directors, subject to judicial superintendence where there are profits which, considering the entire situation of the company, its public duties, if any, can be divided, and which ought to be divided.[8] A declaration of a dividend out of net profits, contrary to the judgment of the directors, is not required by the fact that the directors have guaranteed the payment of dividends upon preferred shares in accordance with a statute which permits a guaranty of such dividends, payable cumulatively out of net profits.[9] cruing."— Parks v. Automatic Bank Punch Co., 14 Daly (N. Y.) 424, 14 N. Y. St. 710.

Interpretation of the phrase "interest dividends," payable "when able."— Barnard v. Vermont, etc., R. Co., 7 Allen (Mass.) 512. Compare Cunningham v. Vermont, etc., R. Co., 12 Gray (Mass.) 411.

Rights of preferred shareholders as against schemes of arrangement under the English Railway Act of 1867. In re Neath, etc., R. Co., [1892] 1 Ch. 349.

2. Hazeltine v. Belfast, etc., R. Co., 79 Me. 411, 10 Atl. 328, 1 Am. St. Rep. 330; Belfast, etc., R. Co. v. Belfast, 77 Me. 445, 1 Atl. 362.

3. Henry v. Great Northern R. Co., 1 De G. & J. 606, 3 Jur. N. S. 1133, 27 L. J. Ch. 1, 6 Wkly. Rep. 87, 58 Eng. Ch. 470. See also Matthews v. Great Northern R. Co., 5 Jur. N. S. 284, 28 L. J. Ch. 375, 7 Wkly. Rep. 233; Crawford v. North-eastern R. Co., 3 Jur. N. S. 1093.

4. Taft v. Hartford, etc., R. Co., 8 R. I. 310, 335, 5 Am. Rep. 575.

5. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Nickals, 119 U. S. 296, 7 S. Ct. 209, 30 L. ed. 363.

6. State v. Cheraw, etc., R. Co., 16 S. C. 524.

7. Taft v. Hartford, etc., R. Co., 8 R. I. 310, 5 Am. Rep. 575.

8. Field v. Lamson, etc., Mfg. Co., 162 Mass. 388, 38 N. E. 1126, 27 L. R. A. 136; Feld v. Roanoke Invest. Co., 123 Mo. 603, 27 S. W. 635; McLean v. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., 159 Pa. St. 112, 28 Atl. 211, 33 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 459; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Nickals, 119 U. S. 296, 7 S. Ct. 209, 30 L. ed. 363.

9. Field v. Lamson, etc., Mfg. Co., 162 Mass. 388, 38 N. E. 1126, 27 L. R. A. 136.

Right of directors to expend profits.— It has been held that holders of preferred stock in a corporation, evidenced by certificates providing that such holders are entitled to dividends out of the net earnings of each year when declared by the board of directors, to the extent of a certain percentage, before

e. What Are "Net Earnings" to Be Appropriated in Dividends on Preferred Shares — (I) In General. This question has been answered thus by Sir George Jessel, M. R.: "That means this, that the preference shareholders only take a dividend if there are profits for that year sufficient to pay their dividend. . . . They are, so to say co-adventurers for each particular year, and can only look to the profits of that year." If they are lost for that year, they are lost forever. "'Profits for the year' of course mean the surplus receipts, after paying the expenses and restoring the capital to the position it was in on the 1st of January of that year."[10] Similarly the following definition by Mr. Justice Blatchford has been often quoted: "Net earnings are, properly, the gross receipts, less the expenses of operating the road to earn such receipts. Interest on debts is paid out of what thus remains, that is, out of net earnings. Many other liabilities are paid out of the net earnings. When all liabilities are paid, either out of the gross receipts or out of the net earnings, the remainder is the profit of the shareholders, to go towards dividends, which, in that way, are paid out of the net earnings."[11] Net earnings are what is left after paying current expenses and interest on debt and everything else which the stockholders, preferred and common, as a body corporate, are liable to pay.[12]

(II) Preferential Dividends Do Not Cumulate. It is to be inferred from the preceding paragraph that the right of preferred shareholders to dividends is ordinarily confined to the profits in each particular year; that such dividends do not cumulate; so that if they cannot be paid in a particular year they are not chargeable on the profits of the next year, so as to be payable out of such profits to the prejudice of the common shareholders.[13]

f. Earnings Not Withheld From Preferred Shareholders in Order to Cumulate Fund For Liquidation of Debts Secured on Corporate Property and Maturing in Future. If a corporation has a funded interest-bearing debt which represents so much borrowed capital, and is able to maintain its plant in a suitable payment of dividends to the holders of common stock, but that such dividends are not cumulative, are not entitled to any dividends when the board of directors determines that it is for the interest of the corporation to expend the profits in the enlargement, extension, and increase of its works and business, instead of in declaring dividends. McLean v. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., 159 Pa. St. 112, 28 Atl. 211, 33 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 459.

Effect of failure to pay interest.— Where a shareholder in another corporation has exchanged his shares for preferred shares in the particular corporation, and the preferred shares call for the payment of interest semi-annually, the failure to pay such interest is not a substantial breach of the contract, entitling the holder of the shares to a rescission of the exchange. Feld v. Roanoke Invest. Co., 123 Mo. 603, 27 S. W. 635.

10. Dent v. London Tramways Co., 16 Ch. D. 344, 353, 50 L. J. Ch. 190, 44 L. T. Rep. N. S. 91. To a similar effect see Morawetz Corp. (2d ed.) § 459.

11. St. John v. Erie R. Co., 21 Fed. Cas. No. 12,226, 10 Blatchf. 271, 279 [affirmed in 22 Wall. (U. S.) 136, 22 L. ed. 743]. In Elkins v. Camden, etc., R. Co., 36 N. J. Eq. 233, 239, it is said in discussing this question that "rights were to be governed and regulated each year by the pecuniary condition of the corporation at the close of the year." This is in conformity with the definition of profits as given in People v. Niagara County, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 20, by Bronson, J.: "Profits generally mean the gain which is made upon any business or investment when both receipts and payments are taken into the account." See also the reasoning in Belfast, etc., R. Co. v. Belfast, 77 Me. 445, 452, 1 Atl. 362; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Nickals, 119 U. S. 296, 7 S. Ct. 209, 30 L. ed. 363.

12. Warren v. King, 108 U. S. 389, 2 S. Ct. 789, 27 L. ed. 769.

It follows from the above principles that a by-law which describes preferred stock as "non-cumulative" means that the arrearages of one year cannot be paid out of the earnings of a subsequent year. Hazeltine v. Belfast, etc., R. Co., 79 Me. 411, 10 Atl. 328. 1 Am. St. Rep. 330; Belfast, etc., R. Co. v. Belfast, 77 Me. 445, 1 Atl. 362.

13. Staples v. Eastman Photographic Materials Co., [1896] 2 Ch. 303, 65 L. J. Ch. 682, 74 L. T. Rep. N. S. 479. Compare Bishop v. Smyrna, etc., R. Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 265, 64 L. J. Ch. 617, 72 L. T. Rep. N. S. 773, 2 Manson 429, 43 Wkly. Rep. 647, where it is held that money standing to the revenue account of a limited company at the date of "commencement of its liquidation, representing net profits earned by it to that date" is applicable to the payment of arrears of dividend due at that date to the preferred shareholders, in priority to a deficit on the capital account and the cost of liquidation.

condition for the conduct of its business and to pay the interest on such funded debt, the directors will ordinarily not be justified in allowing profits to accumulate in a reserve fund for the purpose of liquidating the funded debt when it matures, to the exclusion of the right of preferred shareholders to their dividends; provided that the property upon which its funded debt is secured is amply sufficient to enable it to renew the same at maturity, as is generally done. The contrary rule, it has been pointed out, would in the case of many if not most of the American railways result in withholding the dividends from preferred shareholders indefinitely. The hardship is especially apparent when the rule is recollected[14] that where the dividends for a particular year are passed because there are no net earnings to divide the right to that dividend is lost forever.[15]

g. Effect of Guaranty of Dividends — (i) Doctrine That Guaranty of Stated Dividend Creates Absolute Debt. There has been a difference of judicial opinion on the question whether a guaranty of a dividend by a corporation is tantamount to an agreement to pay annual interest on the shares at a stated sum, and hence creates an absolute debt, or whether it is tantamount to an agreement to pay a stated dividend on the shares in preference to any dividend on the common shares, in case there shall be profits to divide. It should seem that there ought not to have been any difference of judicial opinion on such a question, since to construe such an engagement merely as an agreement to make a dividend out of profits in case there shall be profits which can be divided leaves the preferential shares on no better footing than though the dividend upon them had not been guaranteed, in other words leaves the question whether such a dividend shall be declared and paid, for the determination of the directors of the corporation in the exercise of their discretion. The sound view plainly is that where the corporation guarantees, as is sometimes the case, not only interest on the stock, but also agrees to receive back or otherwise liquidate the principal of the shares at par, at a date named, then the certificates become substantially an interest-bearing bond of the corporation, and the holder of it becomes to the fullest extent a creditor, although he may also have rights pertaining to a shareholder, such as the right to vote at corporate meetings. It has been pointed out that under some schemes what has been called "preferred stock" is really an interest-bearing debenture of the corporation, which creates the relation of debtor and creditor between the corporation and the so-called shareholder.[16] Where, in addition to the guaranty of interest at the rate named, the stock is payable in full on a dissolution of the corporation next after the payment of debts, there is no room for any hesitation in holding that the guaranty of interest is absolute and wholly independent of the question whether there are profits in any year whatever on which a dividend could be properly declared;[17] for here the share certificate is in the nature of an interest-bearing debenture.

14. See supra, VII, C, 3, d; VII, C, 3, e, (I).

15. See Hazeltine v. Belfast, etc., R. Co., 79 Me. 411, 10 Atl. 328, 1 Am. St. Rep. 330, where the hardship and injustice of such a rule is forcibly and unanswerably pointed out by Peters, C. J.

Scheme of preference under which preferred shareholders had a right to participate with the common shareholders in any surplus after receiving their preferred dividends. Bailey v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 2 Fed. Cas. No. 736, 1 Dill. 174.

Scheme of preference under which a dividend on the preferred shares might be paid although the capital of the company was impaired. Cotting v. New York, etc., R. Co., 54 Conn. 156, 5 Atl. 851.

Right to preferential dividend in case of changes of ownership.— Scheme of preference under which it was held that holders of preferred stock were entitled to such dividends, up to seven per cent, as the profits of a particular year would yield, before any dividends were paid to the common shareholders, although the deficiency of profits in one year was not to be made up in another year; and that when a holder of preferred stock failed to claim his rights in certain years a subsequent owner thereof could claim reimbursement. Elkins v. Camden, etc., R. Co., 36 N. J. Eq. 233.

16. Such was the case in Williams v. Parker, 136 Mass. 204; West Chester, etc., R. Co. v. Jackson, 77 Pa. St. 321; and in Burt v. Rattle, 31 Ohio St. 116.

17. Williams v. Parker, 136 Mass. 204, per Field, J.

(II) Doctrine That Guaranty Is Guaranty of Dividends Only in Case There Are Profits That Can Be Divided. There are, however, holdings to the effect that a general guaranty of dividends by a railroad company on its preferred stock is not a guaranty of payment in any event, but only in the event that the dividends are earned.[18] It has also been held that the holders of preferred stock or preference shares of a corporation are entitled to dividends when there are profits out of which dividends may be declared, and not otherwise, although the resolution of the directors under which the stock is issued provides that "a semi-annual dividend of five per cent., payable upon the first days of March and September in each year, shall be guaranteed by the company," and although the certificate of stock contains the recital "five per cent. semi-annual dividend guaranteed";[19] the reason being that such a construction of the contract would place the preferred in antagonism to the general shareholders, and would be contrary to public policy.[20]

(III) Such Guaranty May Make Right to Dividends Cumulative. Such a guaranty may, however, have the possible effect of making the right to the dividends cumulative, that is, of making the profits of one year make up the deficiencies of the preceding years.[21]

(IV) Whether Preferential Share Certificate Is Certificate of Stock or of Indebtedness — (A) In General. This question must be answered by the terms of the governing statute, or the resolution under which the preferred shares are issued, and of the recitals in the share certificates, all these elements entering into and forming a part of the contract. It has been ruled that where a resolution adopted by shareholders of a railroad company authorizing the issue of preferred stock recites that it is to be issued under an act which authorizes the issue of preferred stock, and not of certificates of indebtedness, referring to it by its title and date, which resolution is made a part of the certificates thereafter issued, such certificates will be held to be certificates of stock, unless, considering the whole transaction, it is clear that the purpose was to create a debt, and unless a debt was in fact created.[22]

(B) Guaranteed Stock Creates Lien Superior to General Creditors. Where a manufacturing corporation providing for the issue of preferred stock to pay debts issues certificates of preferred stock, so-called, certifying that the corporation guaranteed to holders the payment of four per cent semiannual dividends, and the final payment of the entire amount at a specified time, with the right to convert the preferred stock into common stock; and the company at the same time executed and delivered to a trustee its bond and mortgage to secure the holders of such certificates, it was held that the holders of the certificates did not thereby become shareholders or members of the corporation, but its creditors; and that as such creditors they had a lien upon the mortgage property superior to that of general creditors of the corporation or of its assignees.[23]

h. Preferred Shareholders Not Entitled to Priority — (I) Over Creditors. Excluding from consideration the holders of shares upon which dividends are guaranteed by the corporation,[24] it may be stated generally that preferred shareholders occupy the status of shareholders or members and that their right of preference is only a right of preference in the distribution of dividends over the common shareholders. It seems that such a shareholder has no preference over creditors upon the winding-up of the corporation;[25] but that his rights are to 18. Miller v. Ratterman, 47 Ohio St. 141, 24 N. E. 496.

19. Lockhart v. Van Alstyne, 31 Mich. 76, 19 Am. Rep. 156.

20. Lockhart v. Van Alstyne, 31 Mich. 76, 19 Am. Rep. 156, opinion by Cooley, J.

21. Prouty v. Michigan Southern, etc., R. Co., 4 Thomps. & C. (N. Y.) 230, opinion by Daniels, J.

22. Miller v. Ratterman, 47 Ohio St. 141, 24 N. E. 496.

23. Burt v. Rattle, 31 Ohio St. 116.

24. See supra, VII, C, 1, c.

25. In re London India Rubber Co., L. R. 5 Eq. 519, 37 L. J. Ch. 235, 17 L. T. Rep. N. S. 530, 16 Wkly. Rep. 334; Griffith v. Paget, 6 Ch. D. 511, 46 L. J. Ch. 493, 37 L. T. Rep. N. S. 141, 25 Wkly. Rep. 523.

have his preferred dividend, in case there is a surplus which can properly be divided among shareholders, and there can be no such surplus so long as debts of the corporation remain unpaid as they mature.[26] And creditors who surrender their debentures for preferred stock remit themselves to this position; for by so doing they cease to be creditors and become shareholders.[27]

(II) Over Other Shareholders in Final Winding-Up and Distribution. Nor does a mere right to a preference in receiving dividends out of profits give a right of preference over other shareholders in the distribution of the company's assets on a final winding-up. The preferred shareholder is still a shareholder, and is entitled to whatever preference his contract gives him and to no more.[28]

i. Preferred Shares May Be Issued Without Right to Vote. Ownership of shares in a corporation carries with it as a general rule the right to vote with respect to the same at any meeting of shareholders. But to this rule there may be exceptions; the voting power can be lawfully separated from shares;[29] and it has been held competent for a railroad company, in issuing certificates of preferred stock, to stipulate therein that the holders shall not have or exercise the right to vote the same, as the owners of the same, at any meeting of the holders of the capital stock of the company.[30]

4. Remedies of Preferred Shareholders — a. Action at Law. An action at law has been allowed against a corporation on a contract to make a dividend of its earnings;[31] and in a plain case of the breach of such a contract no reason is perceived why such an action would not lie. But manifestly such an action does not lie where the nature of the contract or its judicial construction is such as to leave the question of the propriety of declaring the dividend to the discretion of the directors.[32]

b. Remedy in Equity — (I) In General — (A) Propriety of Remedy. The contract which gives the preferred shareholders a right to the dividend out of the net earnings impresses any net earnings in the hands of the directors, for the particular year, with a trust in behalf of the preferred shareholders, to the extent required by the terms of the contract. If the directors refuse to perform that trust by making the distribution, a court of equity will obviously, in a suit in which the parties in interest are made defendants, compel them so to do.[33] But this is not so where the contract, as judicially construed, leaves the question of declaring and paying the preferred dividend to the discretion of the directors. In such a case it was held that a court of equity would not compel the declaration of a dividend on preferred shares out of net profits from which the directors had a right to make the dividend payable cumulatively where,

26. Warren v. King, 108 U. S. 389, 2 S. Ct. 789, 27 L. ed. 769 [affirming 2 Fed. 36], holding that the preferred shareholders had no claim on the property superior to that of creditors whose debts were contracted by the company subsequently to the issue of the preferred stock, and that their only valid claim was one to a priority over the holders of common stock.

27. St. John v. Erie R. Co., 22 Wall. (U. S.) 136, 22 L. ed. 743 [affirming 21 Fed. Cas. No. 12,226, 10 Blatchf. 271].

28. Griffith v. Paget, 6 Ch. D. 511, 46 L. J. Ch. 493, 37 L. T. Rep. N. S. 141, 25 Wkly. Rep. 523.

The separate assent of the preferred shareholders, as a class, is not necessary to an "arrangement" under section 12 of the English Companies Act of 1867. In re Brighton, etc., R. Co., 44 Ch. D. 28, 59 L. J. Ch. 329, 62 L. T. Rep. N. S. 353, 38 Wkly. Rep. 321.

29. See supra, IV, F, 18.

30. Miller v. Ratterman, 47 Ohio St. 141, 24 N. E. 496.

31. Bates v. Androscoggin, etc., R. Co., 49 Me. 491. Compare Taft v. Hartford, etc., R. Co., 8 R. I. 310, 5 Am. Rep. 575, which was an action of assumpsit.

32. Field v. Lamson, etc., Mfg. Co., 162 Mass. 388, 38 N. E. 1126, 27 L. R. A. 136, holding that the right to dividends on preferred stock, which are payable out of net profits, cannot be enforced in an action at law, even if there are net profits out of which they might be paid, if no dividend has been declared.

33. This was done in Hazeltine v. Belfast, etc., R. Co., 79 Me. 411, 10 Atl. 328, 1 Am. St. Rep. 330. See also Boardman v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 84 N. Y. 157; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Nickals, 119 U. S. 296, 7 S. Ct. 209, 30 L. ed. 363 [reversing 15 Fed. 575, 21 Blatchf. 177]; Mackintosh v. Flint, etc., R. Co., 32 Fed. 350; Ashbury v. Watson, 30 for half the time for which the dividends were claimed, there were no net profits, and where the condition of the corporation was such that the court could not say that the payment of dividends might not injure the concern or that the withholding of them might not be judicious.[34]

(B) Scope of Remedy. Where the dividends are not paid upon preferred stock in pursuance of the terms of a contract, the holders of such stock may maintain an equitable action to compel a specific performance of the contract and to restrain the payment of dividends on the common stock until the arrears of their preferred dividends shall have been paid.[35]

(II) Remedy in Equity of Holders of Guaranteed Stock. So, it has been held, that a suit in equity may be maintained by the holders of guaranteed stock to compel the corporation to allow them to participate, equally with the holders of the common stock, in any larger dividends declared in favor of the latter after the payment to plaintiffs of the preferential or guaranteed dividends;[36] that such a suit is to be treated as a creditor's bill, in such a sense that the remedy accorded by the decree settling the rights of the parties accrues in favor of all the guaranteed shareholders, whether parties to the suit or not; that a reference should be made to a commissioner to ascertain, state, and report who are the other holders of guaranteed stock, and in what shares money dividends are coming to them under the decree settling the rights of the parties; and further, that proper steps should be taken for the allowance of counsel fees against the guaranteed shareholders not already represented by counsel.[37]

D. Transfers of Shares — 1. Right of Alienation of Shares — a. In General. The jus disponendi, being an incident of the ownership of property, the general rule (subject to exceptions hereafter pointed out and discussed) is that every owner of corporate shares has the same uncontrollable right to alien them which attaches to the ownership of any other species of property.[38] A shareholder is under no obligation to refrain from selling his shares, at the sacrifice of his personal interest, in order to secure the welfare of the corporation, or to enable another shareholder to make gains and profits.[39]

b. Correlative Right to Purchase Shares. The correlative right to purchase corporate shares rests upon similar grounds; the right to become the possessor, by lawful means, of this species of property is as clear a right as the right to

Ch. D. 376, 54 L. J. Ch. 985, 54 L. T. Rep. N. S. 27, 33 Wkly. Rep. 882.

34. Field v. Lamson, etc., Mfg. Co., 162 Mass. 388, 38 N. E. 1126, 27 L. R. A. 136. Much to the same effect see McLean v. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., 159 Pa. St. 112, 28 Atl. 211, 33 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 459.

35. Boardman v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 84 N. Y. 157.

36. Gordon v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 78 Va. 501.

37. Gordon v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 81 Va. 621.

Parties to suit.— An action to secure the application of future earnings of a corporation to the payment of dividends due holders of preferred stock is properly brought by one of the holders of such stock on his own behalf, and on the behalf of others having like grounds of complaint. Common shareholders are not proper parties defendant. Prouty v. Michigan Southern, etc., R. Co., 4 Thomps. & C. (N. Y.) 230.

Minutes of corporation as evidence.— Minutes of the corporation showing the resolution of the directors authorizing the issue of the preferred shares are evidence. Boardman v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 84 N. Y. 157.

Laches of common shareholders preventing them from undoing a scheme by which preferred shares have been issued. Sullivan v. Portland, etc., R. Co., 23 Fed. Cas. No. 13,596, 4 Cliff. 212.

38. Trisconi v. Winship, 43 La. Ann. 45, 9 So. 29, 26 Am. St. Rep. 175; Smith v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 91 Tenn, 221, 18 S. W. 546.

Transferability of shares in an unincorporated joint-stock company.— Such shares are protected as equitable interests, and so is the title of a transferee thereto. Durkee v. Stringham, 8 Wis. 1.

Right of state to transfer its shares.— If the state holds shares in a corporation, it will have the same right to transfer them as that possessed by any other shareholder. La Grange, etc., R. Co. v. Rainey, 7 Coldw. (Tenn.) 420.

39. Lamb Knit-Goods Co. v. Lamb, 119 Mich. 568, 78 N. W. 646 (shareholder cannot be compelled to surrender to the corporation certain shares of the stock which he has sold and transferred to his wife for a bona fide consideration, and which have been transferred to her on the books of the company); Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 163 U. S. 31, 16 S. Ct. 917, 41 L. ed. 60.

become the possessor of any other species of property; nor can the motive influencing the party who makes such a purchase become the subject of a judicial inquiry, where the motive is not in itself unlawful. Accordingly it has been held that parties who are interested in opposition to a corporation have the right to purchase its stock in order to defeat a contract which it is about to make; and in general it is competent for one person to obtain a controlling interest in a corporation by buying all or a majority of its shares.[40]

c. Right of Directors to Transfer Their Shares. The right to transfer his shares is incident to every shareholder, and is as much the right of a director as of any other member. His exercise of this right will not be affected by his knowledge of the fact that a call upon the shares is imminent, unless there is some equity against him as director, such as having been party to a postponement of the call to enable him to get rid of his shares and so evade liability.[41]

d. Purpose of Transfer. In the absence of allegations of fraud, the purpose with which stock has been transferred will not be inquired into; and it has been held that the transferee of stock upon the corporate records is qualified to vote and become a director, although the transfer was made for the express and sole purpose of so qualifying him.[42]

e. Transfers in Fraud of Creditors of Transferrer. Transfers of corporate shares, made upon secret trusts for the transferrer, and intended to hinder, delay, and defraud his creditors, rest on much the same footing as other fraudulent transfers of personalty made with the same motive. Such a transfer is good as between the parties; and hence equity will not declare a trust and order a return of the shares at the interest of one who has transferred them for the purpose of cheating his creditors.[43] If the transferee himself becomes insolvent, a court will not aid the transferrer in getting back his shares, especially where it appears that the creditors of the fraudulent assignee have given him credit on the faith of his being the owner of them.[44]

f. Power of Corporations to Restrain or Prevent Transfers of Their Shares.[45] — (1) In General. It follows from the foregoing that a corporation has no power to prevent or to restrain transfers of its shares, unless such power is expressly conferred in its charter or governing statute. This conclusion follows from the further consideration that by-laws or other regulations restraining such transfers, unless derived from authority expressly granted by the legislature, would 40. Pittsburgh Library Assoc. v. Mercantile Library Hall Co., 189 Pa. St. 479, 42 Atl. 142, company organized to construct a building for a library.

41. In re Cawley, 42 Ch. D. 209. It has even been held competent for the directors of a corporation to transfer their shares to a so-called "trust" for the purpose of enabling the latter to acquire a majority of the stock of the company and to wreck it. Trisconi v. Winship, 43 La. Ann. 45, 9 So. 29, 26 Am. St. Rep. 175.

42. In re Argus Printing Co., 1 N. D. 434, 48 N. W. 347, 26 Am. St. Rep. 639, 12 L. R. A. 781.

Temporary transfers to secure incidental benefits.— Where the charter of a corporation organized to erect and maintain a theater provided that every five shares of stock should entitle the holder to a free ticket of admission, and that the directors should set apart a certain portion of the house for the exclusive use of such shareholders; and certain shareholders holding large amounts of the stock made transfers of small lots to other persons, with the understanding that the same stock was to be retransferred at the end of the season, it was held that the temporary transferees did not become owners of the stock in the sense which entitled them to the tickets; but that such transfers were illegal and would be enjoined. Baker's Appeal, 108 Pa. St. 510, 1 Atl. 78, 56 Am. Rep. 231.

43. Hukill v. Yoder, 189 Pa. St. 233, 42 Atl. 122, 43 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 347.

44. Hirsch v. Norton, 115 Ind. 341, 17 N. E. 612. One court has held that the failure to protect such a transfer by the proper entry in the books of the corporation is prima facie evidence of a secret trust to the use of the transferrer, which, unexplained, becomes conclusive and renders the transfer void as against creditors as a matter of law. Pinkerton v. Manchester, etc., R. Co., 42 N. H. 424. That the fraudulent vendee could not deny his title to the shares which he had received and sold because the indorsement upon the certificate by the fraudulent vendor was of the within "share" see Skowhegan Bank v. Cutler, 52 Me. 509.

45. Lien of corporation on its shares see infra, VII, D, 2.

be regarded as impositions in restraint of trade.[46] From this the conclusion easily follows that a charter power to "regulate" the transfer of shares does not include the power to prevent such transfers, or to prescribe to whom the owner may sell and to whom not, or on what terms.[47]

(II) By-Laws Restraining Free Transfer of Shares—(A) In General. From the foregoing it follows that in the absence of express authority in the charter or other governing statute or of the unanimous consent of the shareholders, a by-law or notice restraining the free transfer of the shares of the members of the corporation is inoperative and void.[48] An unauthorized by-law forbidding a shareholder to sell his shares without first offering them to the corporation for a period of thirty days is not binding upon an assignee of the stock as a personal contract, although his assignor knew of the by-law and took part in its adoption.[49] A new certificate of shares issued to their holders, after complying with such a by-law, which certificate does not contain any recital of any restrictions upon its transfer, is not subject to the by-law.[50] A transfer of shares to the real owner, by one in whose name they had been issued to give him an opportunity to acquire them, and who does not choose to do so, is not a "sale" of them within the meaning of such a by-law.[51]

(B) By-Laws or Agreements Not to Transfer Are Not Operative as Against Rights of Third Persons. An agreement among the members of a corporation, although unanimous, would not be operative as against the rights of third persons purchasing shares of the company without notice of it. Nor can a by-law which provides that transfers of stock shall not be valid unless approved by the board of directors be made available to defeat the rights of third persons.[52]

(C) By-Laws Reserving Options to Company to Purchase. Such a by-law is capable of being waived by the corporation and its members, and a waiver will be presumed, or it will be presumed that an offer was tendered to the other members as required by the by-law and declined, from the fact that the corporation permitted the transfer to be made, especially after the lapse of several years without any objection.[53]

(D) By-Laws Requiring Small Fee For Registration Not Invalid. A by-law requiring a small fee for the making of a transfer of shares on the books of the corporation is not invalid, notwithstanding a statutory provision that the corporation shall, on application by a transferrer of its shares, enter the name of the transferee on its register of shareholders, in the same manner as if the application had been made by the transferee.[54]

(E) By-Laws Restraining Transfers Not Applicable to Sales of Delinquent Shares For Assessments. By-laws providing that the transfers of the stock for an irrigation company shall be made only with the land of which it was issued do not apply to a sale of delinquent stock for assessment, as the purchaser is not a transferee of the former owner of the stock.[55]

g. Transfer of Shares by Minor. A sale by a minor of his shares not being void, but voidable only, the company must register the transfer if it has not been avoided by the minor at the date of the application for registration.[56]

46. Moore v. Bank of Commerce, 52 Mo. 377; Chouteau Spring Co. v. Harris, 20 Mo. 382.

47. Chouteau Spring Co. v. Harris, 20 Mo. 382.

48. Moore v. Bank of Commerce, 52 Mo. 377; Chouteau Spring Co. v. Harris, 20 Mo. 382; Kinnan v. Sullivan County Club, 26 N. Y. App. Div. 213, 50 N. Y. Suppl. 95; In re Klaus, 67 Wis. 401, 29 N. W. 582.

49. Ireland v. Globe Milling Co., 21 R. I. 9, 41 Atl. 258, 79 Am. Rep. 769.

50. Matter of David Jones Co., 67 Hun (N. Y.) 360, 22 N. Y. Suppl. 318, 51 N. Y. St. 829.

51. Victor G. Bloede Co. v. Bloede, 84 Md. 129, 34 Atl. 1127, 57 Am. St. Rep. 373, 33 L. R. A. 107.

52. Farmers', etc., Bank v. Wasson, 48 Iowa 336, 30 Am. Rep. 398.

53. American Nat. Bank v. Oriental Mills, 17 R. I. 551, 23 Atl. 795.

54. Giesen v. London, etc., Mortg. Co., 102 Fed. 584, 42 C. C. A. 515, holding that such a by-law cannot be said to be unreasonable.

55. Spurgeon v. Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Co., 120 Cal. 71, 52 Pac. 140, 39 L. R. A. 701.

56. Smith v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 91 Tenn. 221, 18 S. W. 546.

h. Transfers of Shares After Dissolution. By the dissolution of a corporation the transferable nature of the stock is destroyed, and a subsequent sale by a holder of stock at the time of the dissolution transfers only the right to the balance which may be found due him after paying all his debts due the corporation.[57]

2. Lien of Corporation on Its Shares — a. Corporation Has No Implied Lien. A corporation has at common law no lien upon its shares which it can assert against its shareholder, restraining a free alienation of the shares; but wherever such a lien is claimed, authority to impose it must be sought for in legislation.[58] In the case of a corporation as distinguished from a partnership, there is nothing in the mere relation of the shareholder to the company which should give rise to such a lien.[59] The denial of such a lien has also been put upon the ground that a different rule would subvert the wholesome principle of the common law against secret liens.[60]

b. Lien May Be Created by Charter, Statute, Articles of Association, Etc. — (i) In General. The charter of the corporation, the governing statute, or the articles of association or deed of settlement under the English system, if authorized by the statute, may, in fixing the terms of the contract between the company

57. James v. Woodruff, 10 Paige (N. Y.) 541. Compare In re Onward Bldg. Soc., [1891] 2 Q. B. 463, 60 L. J. Q. B. 752, 65 L. T. Rep. N. S. 516, 40 Wkly. Rep. 26, arising under the English Companies Act, where the court refused to sanction a registration after an order for a compulsory winding-up, on the ground that the applicant represented a company engaged in speculating in the shares, which company had purchased them at a discount.

58. Iowa.— Farmers', etc., Bank v. Wasson, 48 Iowa 336, 30 Am. Rep. 398.

Kentucky.— Dana v. Brown, 1 J. J. Marsh. 304; Fitzhugh v. Shepherdsville Bank, 3 T. B. Mon. 126, 16 Am. Dec. 90.

Maryland.— Gemmell v. Davis, 75 Md. 546, 23 Atl. 1032, 32 Am. St. Rep. 412.

Massachusetts.— Massachusetts Iron Co. v. Hooper, 7 Cush. 183; Sargent v. Franklin Ins. Co., 8 Pick. 90, 19 Am. Dec. 306.

Nebraska.— Williams v. Lowe, 4 Nebr. 382.

North Carolina.— Heart v. State Bank, 17 N. C. 111.

Pennsylvania.— Bell's Appeal, 115 Pa. St. 88, 8 Atl. 177, 2 Am. St. Rep. 532; Merchants' Bank v. Shouse, 102 Pa. St. 488; Steamship Dock Co. v. Heron, 52 Pa. St. 280.

Washington.—Dearbon v. Washington Sav. Bank, 18 Wash. 8, 50 Pac. 575.

England.— Murray v. Pinkett, 12 Cl. & F. 764, 8 Eng. Reprint 1612; s. c. sub nom. Pinkett v. Wright, 2 Hare 120, 6 Jur. 1102, 12 L. J. Ch. 119, 24 Eng. Ch. 120.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 605.

A similar rule prevails in Louisiana. New Orleans Nat. Banking Assoc. v. Wiltz, 10 Fed. 330, 4 Woods 43.

Any attempt to reserve such a lien by an indorsement upon a share certificate, to the effect that the shares therein named are subject to a lien for indebtedness due the corporation from the holder, is inoperative and void. Van Liew v. Barrett, etc., Beverage Co., 144 Mo. 509, 46 S. W. 202.

Where the charter of a corporation does not give it a lien on stock of the holder for indebtedness to the corporation, it has no right, by by-law or otherwise, as against the transferee of its shares for value and without notice, to deduct the transferrer's indebtedness on an assignment of his shares. Drexel v. Long Branch Gas Co., 3 N. J. L. J. 250.

59. Farmers', etc., Bank v. Wasson, 48 Iowa 336, 30 Am. Rep. 398; Massachusetts Iron Co. v. Hooper, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 183. Compare Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 456.

60. Steamship Dock Co. v. Heron, 52 Pa. St. 280.

Banker's lien for general indebtedness of shareholder.— The lien of a banking corporation upon the shares of its members for a general indebtedness due by them as customers of the bank rests upon a custom peculiar to banking, confirmed in many states by statute, and is therefore not considered in this article. See Banks and Banking; and the following cases: Springfield Wagon Co. v. Batesville Bank, 68 Ark. 234, 57 S. W. 257 (lien superior to that of execution creditor); Oakland County Sav. Bank v. Carson City State Bank, 113 Mich. 284, 71 N. W. 453, 67 Am. St. Rep. 463 (lien superior to right of bona fide purchaser); Mohawk Nat. Bank v. Schenectady Bank, 78 Hun (N. Y.) 90, 28 N. Y. Suppl. 1100, 60 N. Y. St. 510 [affirmed in 151 N. Y. 665, 46 N. E. 1149]; Stafford v. Produce Exch. Banking Co., 16 Ohio Cir. Ct. 50, 8 Ohio Cir. Dec. 483 (power exercised by inserting a provision in share certificate). National banks have no such lien. Bullard v. National Eagle Bank, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 589, 21 L. ed. 923. See to the same effect Goodbar v. Sulphur Spring City Nat. Bank, 78 Tex. 461, 14 S. W. 851; South Bend First Nat. Bank v. Lanier, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 369, 20 L. ed. 72. Compare Rosenback v. Salt Springs Nat. Bank, 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 495. Contra, Young v. Vough, 23 N. J. Eq. 325; Knight v. Old Nat. Bank, 14 Fed. Cas. No. 7,885, 3 Cliff. 429.

and its shareholders, provide for such a lien.[61] A provision in the charter which goes no further than to say that the shares shall be transferable only on the books, and prohibiting such transfers by a shareholder who is indebted to the corporation, except by consent of the president and directors, has been held to have that effect.[62] The same ruling was made in regard to a similar provision in a general incorporation law, the terms of which were declared to be applicable to companies thereafter incorporated by special act, when not otherwise expressly provided.[63]

(II) Validity of Statutes Creating Such Liens and Their Operation Upon Existing Transactions. A statute providing that a private corporation shall have a lien on the shares of its shareholders for any debt or liability incurred to it by a shareholder, and that if necessary for the payment of such debt the corporation may sell the shares after notice, is not unconstitutional when applied to subscriptions made prior to its passage, as it merely enlarges the remedy for legal rights already existing, so far as the sale of stock for unpaid subscriptions is concerned.[64] But where the rights of a third party have intervened, as by an assignment of the certificates, a different question is presented. So where a banking association had not, before it obtained its charter, a lien on the stock of its shareholders, it was held in an early case that the lien given by the charter could not overreach a prior assignment of stock so as to preclude its transfer.[65] There is authority to the effect that the legislature may pass an act creating a lien upon the stock of a corporation already pledged by a shareholder to a third person, where the corporation has not been notified of the pledge;[66] although, as the pledgee in such a case would have an equitable interest which the law ought to protect, and as the statute confiscates that interest, the validity of such a statute may well be doubted on general principles.

(III) Validity of By-Laws Creating Liens—(A) In General. By-laws creating liens in favor of corporations, upon the shares of their members for debts due the corporation from such members, have (generally, although not always)

61. In re General Exch. Bank, L. R. 6 Ch. 818, 40 L. J. Ch. 429, 24 L. T. Rep. N. S. 787, 19 Wkly. Rep. 791; In re London, etc., Banking Co., 34 Beav. 332; New London, etc., Bank v. Brocklebank, 21 Ch. D. 302, 51 L. J. Ch. 711, 47 L. T. Rep. N. S. 3, 30 Wkly. Rep. 737; In re Stockton Malleable Iron Co., 2 Ch. D. 101, 45 L. J. Ch. 168; Ex p. Plant, 4 Deac. & C. 160; Hague v. Dandeson, 2 Exch. 740, 17 L. J. Exch. 269.

62. Kenton Ins. Co. v. Bowman, 84 Ky. 430, 1 S. W. 717, 8 Ky. L. Rep. 467; Farmers' Bank v. Iglehart, 6 Gill (Md.) 50; Rogers v. Huntington Bank, 12 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 77; Cecil Nat. Bank v. Watsontown Bank, 105 U. S. 217, 26 L. ed. 1039; Brent v. Washington Bank, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 596, 9 L. ed. 547; Alexandria Mechanics' Bank v. Seton, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 299, 7 L. ed. 152; Georgetown Union Bank v. Laird, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 390, 4 L. ed. 269; Pierson v. Washington Bank, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 11,155, 3 Cranch C. C. 363.

63. Mt. Holly Paper Co.'s Appeal, 99 Pa. St. 513.

Articles construed.—And where the articles of association of a bank provided that no shareholder should be permitted to transfer his shares or receive a dividend thereon, who should owe the bank any debt then due, unless by consent, etc., and authority was given whenever such a debt was past due to sell the stock and apply the proceeds to pay the same, it was held that these two provisions taken together created a lien upon the stock in favor of the bank for the holder's debts to it. Arnold v. Suffolk Bank, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 424. Compare Rosenback v. Salt Springs Nat. Bank, 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 495; In re Dunlop, 21 Ch. D. 583, 48 L. T. Rep. N. S. 89, 31 Wkly. Rep. 211 (where it was held that a clause authorizing the directors to forfeit the shares upon the failure of the shareholder to pay any demand due the company did not create a lien on the shares, since after forfeiture the debt still remained due).

64. Tutwiler v. Tuskaloosa Coal, etc., Co., 89 Ala. 391, 7 So. 398. But a by-law creating such a lien is void as to antecedent transfers. People v. Crockett, 9 Cal. 112.

65. Neale v. Janney, 17 Fed. Cas. No. 10,069, 2 Cranch C. C. 188.

66. Hartford First Nat. Bank v. Hartford L., etc., Ins. Co., 45 Conn. 22. The lien created by a statute "for any debt or liability incurred to it (the corporation) by a stockholder, before notice of transfer, or of a levy on such shares" is not confined to debts created after the enactment of the statute, but includes debts contracted before the enactment thereof. Birmingham Trust, etc., Co. v. East Lake Land Co., 101 Ala. 304, 13 So. 72.

been held valid, although inconsistent with the general policy of the law, which favors the free alienation of personal property.[67]

(B) Power to "Regulate" Transfers Includes Power to Restrain. The grant to a corporation of the power to "regulate" transfers of its shares has been generally held sufficient to authorize a by-law restraining such transfers until the payment of any indebtedness due by the shareholder to the corporation.[68]

(C) Power Possessed but Not Regularly Exercised. Where the corporation has such power, it must be shown, in order to establish a valid lien, that it was duly exercised. Thus if the power to enact by-laws is vested in the corporation rather than in the board of directors, it must be exercised by the shareholders; and a mere adoption by the directors of such a rule will not create the lien.[69]

c. Equitable Lien Arising From Language of Share Certificate. In still another class of cases a lien is implied from the acceptance by the shareholder of a certificate of his shares which in terms reserves such a lien to the company. Thus where the defendant company's charter provided that they might establish and put in execution such by-laws, ordinances, and regulations as should be deemed expedient for the well-ordering of the concerns of the corporation, and it was conceded that no by-law had been passed by the company giving it a lien on the shares of its shareholders for their indebtedness to it, it was nevertheless held that the acceptance by the shareholder, without objection, of a certificate which declared the stock to be transferable only at the office of the company on the surrender of the certificate, "subject nevertheless to his indebtedness and liabilities," was tantamount to an agreement on his part that his stock should be subject to such a lien.[70]

d. Protection of Purchaser of Shares Where Certificate Contains No Language Importing Lien. But, where the certificate contains no language importing a lien in favor of the corporation, then the general rule is that it is a continuing affirmation of the ownership of the special amount of stock by the person designated therein or his assignee, and that a purchaser has a right to rely thereon and claim the benefit of an estoppel in his favor as against the corporation.[71]

e. Agreements Creating Equitable Lien. On the same principle it has been held that a shareholder who takes stock with full notice and recognition of a lien reserved to the corporation for any debt of the holder is bound by such an agreement, and that his assignee is likewise bound if he had knowledge of the lien when he purchased the stock, although the reservation of the lien itself is unauthorized.[72] An agreement between a bank and its shareholders, by which the bank has an equitable lien upon the stock for any and all liabilities of the shareholder to the bank, is not void as to the creditors of the shareholder as being contrary to law or as against public policy.[73]

f. Statute Lien Does Not Enlarge Power of Company to Lend to Its Shareholders. A provision of a corporate charter giving the corporation a lien upon its shares belonging to its shareholders, by way of security from them to it, does 67. St. Louis Perpetual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149. See to the same effect Spurlock v. Pacific R. Co., 61 Mo. 319; Mechanics' Bank v. Merchants' Bank, 45 Mo. 513, 100 Am. Dec. 388. Compare Tuttle v. Walton, 1 Ga. 43.

68. Cunningham v. Alabama L. Ins., etc., Co., 4 Ala. 652; McCready v. Rumsey, 6 Duer (N. Y.) 574; Geyer v. Western Ins. Co., 3 Pittsb. (Pa.) 41; Pendergast v. Stockton Bank, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 10,918, 2 Sawy. 108. Contra, Attica Bank v. Manufacturers', etc., Bank, 20 N. Y. 501. Compare Plymouth Bank v. Norfolk Bank, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 454; Nesmith v. Washington Bank, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 324.

69. Carroll v. Mullanphy Sav. Bank, 8 Mo. App. 249.

70. Vansands v. Middlesex County Bank, 26 Conn. 144. Acceptance by a shareholder of such a certificate binds him by its terms on the principle of contract or of estoppel. Jennings v. State Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233.

71. Kisterbock's Appeal, 127 Pa. St. 601, 18 Atl. 381, 24 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 446, 14 Am. St. Rep. 868. See also supra, VI, M, 3, a.

72. Morrison-Wentworth Bank v. Kerdolff, 75 Mo. App. 297.

73. Farmers', etc., Bank v. Haney, 87 Iowa 101, 54 N. W. 61.

not operate as a special legislative permission to the shareholders to borrow or to the corporation to lend to them its capital.[74]

g. What Indebtedness Will Support Such Lien — (I) In General. This question depends largely upon the language of the charter, statute, by-law, or other instrument creating the lien. Thus under articles of association in pursuance of the English Companies Act,[75] providing that the directors should have discretion to refuse registration of the transfer, where the shareholder was "indebted to the company in respect of calls or otherwise," it was held that until a call had been made the shareholder was not indebted for the unpaid portion of his shares, and that no lien accrued.[76] A resolution for a call on stock which does not fix the date when it is to be paid does not constitute a call which will create an indebtedness to prevent registration of a transfer of shares; and a subsequent resolution completing the call by supplying the date will not relate back for that purpose.[77] Where the governing statute gave to the corporations at "all times" a lien on members' stock for "all" the debts due from them to the corporation,[78] the court held that the lien attached, whether the debt accrued before or after a member's acquisition of stock,[79] and a lien, in the language of the charter, "for all debts and liabilities," was held to include not only debts due for stock, but also all debts due from the shareholder prior to notice of the assignment of his stock.[80] And a by-law restraining transfers while the shareholder "is indebted to the company" was held to apply to an indebtedness not yet due,[81] and also where the obligation of the shareholder was merely that of a surety on a debt due to the company.[82]

(II) Debts of Equitable Owners of Shares. Such a lien has been held to extend not merely to the debts and liabilities of the nominal shareholder, but to embrace debts contracted by the equitable owners of the stock known by the company to be such owners. Thus, on the dissolution of a firm owning stock in a bank, the retiring partner sold out his interest to the others, who assumed the debts of the partnership and continued the business under a new name. No formal transfer was made on the books of the company, but the new firm, as the successor of the old, became the equitable owners of the stock. It was held that the bank's lien covered the liabilities of the new firm in its subsequent transactions with the bank, and must prevail over the claim of an equitable assignee of the retiring partner.[83]

(III) Debt of Nominal Owner of Shares Purchased and Held as Trustee For Others. If the articles of association give the company a final and paramount charge on the shares of any member, for all moneys owing to the company, from him alone or jointly with any other persons, and provide that when a share is held by more persons than one the company shall have a like lien and charge thereon with respect to all moneys so owing to it, or any of the holders thereof, alone or jointly with any other person, and the trustees under a marriage settlement invest a part of their trust funds in shares of the company, which shares are transferred into their joint names, and one of the trustees is partner in a firm which goes into liquidation owing a debt to the company, this private debt of the trustee is constituted a lien or charge on the shares which will prevail over the title of the cestuis que trustent. One reason for this conclusion is that the trustees in purchasing the shares get them subject to the

74. Webster v. Howe Mach. Co., 54 Conn. 394, 8 Atl. 482.
75. Companies Act (1862), § 35.
76. In re Cawley, 42 Ch. D. 209.
77. In re Cawley, 42 Ch. D. 209.
78. Minn. Gen. Stat. c. 34, § 114.
79. Schmidt v. Hennepin County Barrel Co., 35 Minn. 511, 29 N. W. 200.
80. Mobile Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cullom, 49 Ala. 558. See also Rogers v. Huntington Bank, 12 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 77.
81. St. Louis Perpetual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149. See also In re London, etc., Banking Co., 34 Beav. 332.
82. St. Louis Perpetual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149.
83. Planters', etc., Mut. Ins. Co. v. Selma Sav. Bank, 63 Ala. 585.

burden which the law of the corporation imposes upon them, and cannot get the benefit without taking the burden.[84]

(IV) Invalid Demands — (A) In General. A demand that is invalid, without warrant of law, will not of course support such a lien. Thus where a deceased shareholder had left stock pledged to the company for his indebtedness, and his executor, who was also president of the company, made unauthorized payments from the funds of the company to the widow, it was held that the lien on the stock would not extend to such additional indebtedness.[85]

(B) Debts Contracted Through Abuse of Powers of Corporation. Where a debt of a shareholder in respect of which the corporation asserts its lien is evidenced by a negotiable security, the corporation may have acquired the security under such circumstances as will operate to postpone its lien to the rights of a subsequent assignee of the shares of the debtor. Thus where an insurance company purchased a bill of exchange payable by one of its members, and the purchase was in excess of its powers, and the object of its officers in making the purchase was, by the assertion of a banker's lien, to subject the shares of such member to the payment of the bill, it was held such an abuse of corporate rights as would prevent the company from refusing its assent to an assignment of the shares previously made to a third person, although such an assignment was unknown to the officers of the company at the time of the purchase of the bill.[86]

(V) Time of Ascertaining Fact of Indebtedness. The time of ascertaining the fact of indebtedness is it seems the time when the transfer is sent to the proper officer for registration, and not when it subsequently comes before a meeting of the board of directors on the question of its registration.[87]

h. Effect of Such Lien — (I) In General. Where a valid lien exists, whether by force of statute or otherwise, so that it is good as against third persons, a purchaser, pledgee, or other transferee of the shares takes them subject to the lien,[88] in such a sense that a sale of the shares by the corporation to enforce the lien divests his title.[89] And where the lien attaches for the security of debts not yet due, the corporation may refuse to transfer until the debts are paid.[90]

(II) Whether Liens For Calls Extend Only to Particular Shares. Sometimes, under the terms of the law creating it, a lien for unpaid calls extends only to the particular shares as to which the shareholder is in default, and as to other shares his right to transfer is unimpaired.[91]

84. New London, etc., Bank v. Brocklebank, 21 Ch. D. 302, 51 L. J. Ch. 711, 47 L. T. Rep. N. S. 3, 30 Wkly. Rep. 737.

85. Reading Trust Co. v. Reading Iron-Works, 137 Pa. St. 282, 21 Atl. 169, 170, 27 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 95.

86. White's Bank v. Toledo F. & M. Ins. Co., 12 Ohio St. 601.

87. In re Cawley, 42 Ch. D. 209.

88. Georgetown Union Bank v. Laird, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 390, 4 L. ed. 269.

89. West Branch Bank v. Armstrong, 40 Pa. St. 278.

90. Where an assignee demands a transfer, but refuses to pay the debts then due the bank by the shareholder, and afterward makes a second demand when other notes of the shareholder had become due and payable, he cannot obtain a transfer without paying all the debts due at the time of the last demand. Reese v. Bank of Commerce, 14 Md. 271, 74 Am. Dec. 536.

91. Hubbersty v. Manchester, etc., R. Co., L. R. 2 Q. B. 59. An agreement between a shareholder and a corporation by whose articles of association it has a lien on all his shares for his debt to it, and his right to transfer them depends on the assent of the directors, giving him additional time in consideration of his allowing certain shares to be sold on default without the delay prescribed by the articles, does not affect the lien, or the right to withhold permission to transfer as to the remaining shares. Africa Bank v. Salisbury Gold Min. Co., [1892] A. C. 281, 61 L. J. P. C. 34, 66 L. T. Rep. N. S. 237, 41 Wkly. Rep. 47. The lien given by a statute, which provides that no certificate of stock shall be transferred without the consent of the board of directors while the holder is indebted to the company, is not restricted to indebtedness growing out of the original subscription and subsequent assessments and calls thereon. National Bank of Republic v. Rochester Tumbler Co., 172 Pa. St. 614, 33 Atl. 748.

That a lien given by such statute includes all kinds of indebtedness see Winans v. Sanderson Oil, etc., Co., 7 Lack. Leg. N. (Pa.) 9.

(III) Lien For Unpaid Purchase-Money Follows Shares. There is a species of lien which follows the shares, on principles already stated,[92] unless the share certificates recite that they are paid up, or at least unless they fail to recite that they are assessable, and the transferee takes them in good faith believing that they are paid up or non-assessable; that is the lien for purchase-money due to the corporation for the shares themselves.[93] Under some schemes of incorporation this lien does not exist. Thus in California a corporation has no special seller's lien, in the absence of a contract to that effect, on shares of its capital stock for unpaid instalments of purchase-money.[94]

(IV) Lien Upon Shares Survives, Although Debt Barred by Limitation. Under a well-known principle the lien of a company upon the shares of a member for debts due from him to the company survives after the right of action of the company for the debt has become extinguished by the statute of limitations, so that the company can refuse to transfer the shares on its books until its demand is satisfied.[95]

(V) Effect of Such Liens as Against Bona Fide Purchasers Without Notice. If a lien upon the shares of a member is given by the charter of the corporation,[96] or by a general statute operating upon the corporation,[97] it is not discharged by a transfer of the shares to a person who is ignorant of the lien.[98] But if a third person has a prior claim upon shares of stock, of which claim the corporation has notice at the time when the shareholder becomes indebted to it, then such prior claim will be paramount to the statutory lien of the corporation upon the shares, although they may not have been transferred to the prior claimant on the books of the corporation as required by the statute.[99]

1. Notice of Lien — (I) When Created by Special Charter. If the corporation is operating under a special charter, and the lien is created by the charter, the assignee of the shares is bound to take notice of it.[1]

(II) When Created by General Law. Where by the general law a lien is given to a corporation upon its stock for the indebtedness of the shareholder, it is valid and enforceable against all the world; whoever deals with it is charged with notice of all limitations and burdens attached to it by such statute, whether the party lives in or out of the state.[2] The same rule obtains where under the general law an assignment of corporate stock is not valid as to third persons unless it is entered on the books; and an assignee of a stock certificate of a bank, from one who is in debt to the bank, which certificate provides that the transfer shall not be entered on the books until the holder has paid all he owes, is not a bona fide purchaser; and the equitable lien held by the bank on the stock for the amount due it from the original holder is retained as against such assignee; and it

92. See supra, VI, M, 3, a et seq.

93. One who accepted and transferred his certificate of stock in a Virginia corporation prior to an assessment made by order of the court was not discharged from liability to be further assessed under the Virginia statute (Va. Code (1873), c. 57, § 26), providing that "no stock shall be assigned on the books without the consent of the company until all the money . . . shall have been paid, and . . . the assignee and assignor shall each be liable for any installments," etc. Morris v. Glenn, 87 Ala. 628, 7 So. 90.

94. Lankershim Ranch Land, etc., Co. v. Herberger, 82 Cal. 600, 23 Pac. 134.

95. Farmers' Bank v. Iglehart, 6 Gill (Md.) 50; Reading Trust Co. v. Reading Iron-Works, 137 Pa. St. 282, 21 Atl. 169, 170, 27 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 95; Geyer v. Western Ins. Co., 3 Pittsb. (Pa.) 41.

96. German Nat. Bank v. Kentucky Trust Co., 40 S. W. 458, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 361.

97. Dorr v. Life Ins. Clearing Co., 71 Minn. 38, 73 N. W. 635, 70 Am. St. Rep. 309; Wright Lumber Co. v. Hixon, 105 Wis. 153, 80 N. W. 1110, 1135.

98. Jennings v. State Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233; Newberry v. Detroit, etc., Iron Mfg. Co., 17 Mich. 141; Hammond v. Hastings, 134 U. S. 401, 10 S. Ct. 727, 33 L. ed. 960; Bank of Commerce v. Newport Bank, 63 Fed. 898, 11 C. C. A. 484.

99. Prince Invest. Co. v. St. Paul, etc., Land Co., 68 Minn. 121, 70 N. W. 1079.

1. Georgetown Union Bank v. Laird, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 390, 4 L. ed. 269, opinion by Story, J.

2. Hammond v. Hastings, 134 U. S. 401, 10 S. Ct. 727, 33 L. ed. 960.

will extend to subsequent advances or loans made to the assignor, where the assignee gives no notice of the assignment.[3]

(III) When Created by By-Law or Contract. But where the corporation itself asserts a right of lien upon the shares of stock held by one of its members by virtue of a by-law merely, there is much judicial authority, based on the soundest reasoning, to the effect that it cannot make good this lien against a bona fide transferee of the shares who had no knowledge of it; and this although the certificates which represent the shares recite that they are transferable only on the books of the company, or at the company's office by person or by attorney.[4] And so, where a shareholder died insolvent and indebted to the corporation, and subsequently the directors, by resolution, prohibited the transfer of stock by any debtor of the company until the debt should be paid or secured, and the shareholder's administratrix sold the stock to a person who was ignorant of the indebtedness and of the resolution, it was held that the corporation had no right to refuse to transfer the stock to the purchaser.[5] But a lien created by by-law is valid as against one purchasing stock at execution sale with knowledge of the by-law, if the indebtedness to the company is older than the judgment.[6] If the share certificate has printed upon it a by-law imposing certain conditions upon any transfer of the shares, then a pledgee of it is put upon inquiry as to such conditions, and does not occupy the position of an innocent purchaser.[7]

j. Waiver of Lien — (I) In General. Such a lien, however created, being for the benefit of the corporation, may be waived by the corporation.[8] Such a lien may be waived and discharged by a new arrangement entered into between the corporation and the shareholder which is incompatible with its retention of the lien, or which shows an intention on the part of the corporation to waive it.[9] The corporation waives its lien where, in the absence of fraud or collusion, it permits, through its proper officers, a transfer of the shares to be made on its books with the usual formalities.[10]

(II) Lien Waived by Giving Further Credit After Notice. Where the company, after being charged with notice that a conflicting lien on the stock has accrued, gives further credit to the shareholder, it will be held to have waived its lien as to such subsequent credits. Thus a shareholder deposited his share certificates with a bank as security for the balance due on his current account, and the bank gave the company notice of the deposit. The certificate stated that the shares were held subject to the articles of association. It was held that the company could not, in respect of moneys which became due from the shareholder to the company after notice of the deposit with the bank, claim priority over advances by the bank made after such notice.[11]

(III) Circumstances Under Which Lien Was Not Waived. Where a corporation permitted a shareholder to have his stock transferred on the books, which was the only manner in which an assignment could be made, to a fictitious name,

3. Jennings v. State Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233.

4. Holly Springs Bank v. Pinson, 58 Miss. 421, 38 Am. Rep. 330.

5. Steamship Dock Co. v. Heron, 52 Pa. St. 280.

6. Tuttle v. Walton, 1 Ga. 43. Compare Leggett v. Sing Sing Bank, 24 N. Y. 283.

7. State Sav. Assoc. v. Nixon-Jones Printing Co., 25 Mo. App. 642.

8. St. Paul Nat. Bank v. Life Ins. Clearing Co., 71 Minn. 123, 73 N. W. 713; Cecil Nat. Bank v. Watsontown Bank, 105 U. S. 217, 26 L. ed. 1039.

9. Africa Bank v. Salisbury Gold Min. Co., [1892] A. C. 281, 61 L. J. P. C. 34, 66 L. T. Rep. N. S. 237, 41 Wkly. Rep. 47. For an arrangement between a corporation, its shareholder, and a bank, which was held tantamount to a waiver of the statutory lien held by the corporation on the shares of its member, see St. Paul Nat. Bank v. Life Ins. Clearing Co., 71 Minn. 123, 73 N. W. 713.

10. Hodges v. Planters' Bank, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 306; Hill v. Pine River Bank, 45 N. H. 300.

11. Bradford Banking Co. v. Briggs, 12 App. Cas. 29, 56 L. J. Ch. 364, 56 L. T. Rep. N. S. 62, 35 Wkly. Rep. 521.

Other circumstances amounting to a waiver of the lien. Dobbins v. Walton, 37 Ga. 614, 95 Am. Dec. 37; Africa Bank v. Salisbury Gold Min. Co., [1892] A. C. 281, 61 L. J. P. C. 281, 66 L. T. Rep. N. S. 237, 41 Wkly. Rep. 47.

which was known to the officers of the corporation, and he afterward caused the stock to be transferred to plaintiff, by a person represented by him to be the holder, as security for a debt due plaintiff from him, no money being paid on the transfer, it was held that the lien of the corporation upon the stock for a debt due from the shareholder was not thereby divested.[12] The mere fact that the officers of the corporation acting for it at the time the indebtedness was created failed to insist upon the production of the certificate of the stock which had been pledged for another debt, although not transferred on the books, will not operate as a waiver of the company in favor of a prior creditor to whom the certificate had been delivered as collateral for a previous debt.[13] Mere ignorance on the part of the purchaser of the fact of the existence of the lien does not destroy it, for this constitutes no waiver on the part of the corporation.[14] Nor, unless an intention to do so clearly appears, does a corporation waive its lien on stock by taking a mortgage on other property to secure the indebtedness.[15] The fact that a cashier of a bank testified that "if a party is in good standing, we don't question his right to transfer; we waive it by transferring. We do not pretend to claim the right to refuse a transfer against a shareholder in good credit," and the further fact that the shareholder was allowed a large overdraft, do not show that the loan was made on his personal credit alone, so as to waive the lien on the stock.[16] The mere assenting to an assignment, made by a shareholder for the benefit of all his creditors, "with no other preference than is or may be authorized by law," is not a waiver of the lien on the stock for debts due by the assignor to the corporation;[17] nor is the giving the shareholder additional time in consideration of his allowing certain shares to be sold on default without the delay prescribed by the articles a waiver of the lien or of the right to withhold permission to transfer as to the remaining shares.[18]

(IV) Corporation May Waive Formal Assent of Its Directors to Transfer of Shares. Even where the charter required the consent of the directors to the validity of a transfer, it was held that such consent need not be obtained at a formal convocation of the board, but that if it appeared that the assent of a majority of the directors had been given, and in the manner that transfers of stock were frequently made, it would be sufficient.[19] On grounds even more clear, where the restraint upon the alienation without the consent of the directors while the shareholder is indebted to the company is imposed by a by-law, the necessity of obtaining such consent may be waived by the corporation; and it has been held that it is waived by a course of conduct establishing a usage of not bringing such cases before the board; so that a transfer without such consent, but in accordance with the usage of the company, would be good as against the company.[20]

12. Stebbins v. Phenix F. Ins. Co., 3 Paige (N. Y.) 350.

13. Platt v. Birmingham Axle Co., 41 Conn. 255.

14. Hammond v. Hastings, 134 U. S. 401, 10 S. Ct. 727, 33 L. ed. 960.

15. Kenton Ins. Co. v. Bowman, 84 Ky. 430, 1 S. W. 717, 8 Ky. L. Rep. 467; Georgetown Union Bank v. Laird, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 390, 4 L. ed. 269.

16. Jennings v. State Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 330, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233.

17. Dobbins v. Walton, 37 Ga. 614, 95 Am. Dec. 37.

18. Africa Bank v. Salisbury Gold Min. Co., [1892] A. C. 281, 61 L. J. P. C. 34, 66 L. T. Rep. N. S. 237, 41 Wkly. Rep. 47.

Circumstances under which a banking corporation did not require a pledge from an original subscriber to its shares for a fresh advance after an assignment of the shares, of which the bank had notice. Nesmith v. Washington Bank, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 324.

Settlement with depositor by mistake not a waiver of the lien. Mechanics' Bank v. Earp, 4 Rawle (Pa.) 384. Compare Callanan v. Edwards, 32 N. Y. 483.

Circumstances under which the failure of a corporation to require its secretary to withdraw from illegal ventures as soon as it learned that he was using its money therein did not defeat its statutory lien upon his shares for the amount of his defalcations. National Bank of Republic v. Rochester Tumbler Co., 172 Pa. St. 614, 33 Atl. 748.

19. Ellison v. Schneider, 25 La. Ann. 435.

20. Chambersburg Ins. Co. v. Smith, 11 Pa. St. 120.

k. Personal Liability of Directors For Improperly Approving Transfers. Where the directors have the power to disapprove of or to refuse the making of transfers, if they exercise their power corruptly or with gross negligence, to the injury of the corporation, they will be personally liable to it or to its representative, on principles hereafter considered in dealing with the subject of directors; but not so where they act honestly, and are guilty of a mere mistake of judgment.[21]

l. Construction of Various Statutes and Other Instruments Creating Such Liens. The articles of a company gave the company a lien on all the shares held by any shareholder indebted to the company, and gave the directors power to sell such shares in certain events. They also empowered the board to lend money, or to give credit with or without security, but no advances without security were to be made or credit given to any director. It was held that the lien given by the articles on the shares constituted a "security," and advances could be made both to shareholders and directors on such security, if the board considered the shares of adequate value.[22] A provision in the charter of a bank giving it a lien on the shares of its shareholders for debts due from them does not give the bank a lien for a debt against shares transferred to the bank by a third person as collateral security for a debt due from him to the bank, even though the shareholder is president of the bank at the time.[23]

m. When Corporation Not Guilty of Laches as Against Bona Fide Purchaser in Not Enforcing Its Lien. Where a shareholder continued to be an officer of the corporation up to within a few weeks of the time an alleged bona fide purchaser made advances on his stock, and nothing occurred between the time of his withdrawal from the corporation and the advancement whereby the purchaser was prejudiced, the corporation was not guilty of laches in not sooner enforcing its paramount lien on the shareholder's shares for his debt to the corporation, although the debt had existed for several years.[24]

3. Nature of Share Certificate — a. What a Share Certificate Is and Is Not — (I) Not Property but Symbol of Property — (A) In General. A share certificate is merely the paper representative of an incorporeal right, and stands on a footing similar to that of other muniments of title.[25] It is not in itself property, but is merely the symbol or paper evidence of property; hence the proprietary right may exist without a certificate.[26]

(B) Consequences Which Flow From This Doctrine. Numerous cases accordingly hold that a person may acquire the rights[27] and incur the liabilities[28] of a shareholder, both to the corporation and to its creditors,[29] although no certificate has in fact been issued. The same consequences may follow where a certificate

21. In re Faure Electric Accumulator Co., 40 Ch. D. 141, 58 L. J. Ch. 48, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 918, 1 Meg. 99, 37 Wkly. Rep. 116.

22. In re Wales Nat. Bank, [1899] 2 Ch. 629, 68 L. J. Ch. 634, 81 L. T. Rep. N. S. 363, 48 Wkly. Rep. 99.

23. Boyd v. Redd, 120 N. C. 335, 27 S. E. 35, 58 Am. St. Rep. 792. Articles and statute under which the shareholder has a right to require the company, upon payment of the sum due from him to it, to assign the debt and its lien to his assignee. Everitt v. Automatic Weighing Mach. Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 506, 62 L. J. Ch. 241, 67 L. T. Rep. N. S. 349, 3 Reports 34. That the provisions of a charter of a corporation that the amount due by subscribers for unpaid stock shall be a fund for the payment of the corporate debts, that the transfer of stock by a subscriber shall not relieve him from payment, and that, on failure of subscriber to pay for stock when due, a right of action shall exist against him for such payment, do not create a lien in favor of the corporation on unpaid shares see Ingles Land Co. v. Knoxville F. Ins. Co., (Tenn. Ch. App. 1899) 53 S. W. 1111.

24. Wright Lumber Co. v. Hixon, 105 Wis. 153, 80 N. W. 1110, 1135.

25. Connor v. Hillier, 11 Rich. (S. C.) 193, 73 Am. Dec. 105.

26. See supra, VI, H, 7, a.

27. Rio Grande Cattle Co. v. Burns, 82 Tex. 50, 17 S. W. 1043. A shareholder may accordingly assign his shares to his wife, so as to vest her with full ownership, where she is recognized as such by the corporation, although no certificate is delivered. Colton v. Williams, 65 Ill. App. 466.

28. Agricultural Bank v. Wilson, 24 Me. 273; Agricultural Bank v. Burr, 24 Me. 256.

29. Thayer v. Butler, 141 U. S. 234, 11 S. Ct. 987, 35 L. ed. 711; Pacific Nat. Bank v. Eaton, 141 U. S. 227, 11 S. Ct. 984, 35 L. ed. 702.

had been issued, but has been purposely left unsigned.[30] It follows that where a transfer of corporate shares is otherwise valid, no irregularity in the issue of the share certificate to the transferee will affect his interest or lessen his lawful rights to the stock transferred,[31] although it may impair the evidence by which he can assert that right. A recital upon the face of such a certificate that it shall be negotiable only upon a transfer upon the books of the company, with the assent of the company first obtained, will not prevent the vesting of a complete equitable title in an assignee by an absolute and unconditional assignment of the certificate.[32]

(C) Is Symbol by Delivery of Which Shares May be Assigned. A share certificate, like warehouse receipts and other documents representing personal property, is a symbol by the delivery of which the shares in a corporation which it describes may be assigned.[33]

(D) Share Certificates Not Securities. Share certificates are not securities in any proper sense of the word, although sometimes described as such in statutes. "They are simply the muniments and evidence of the holder's title to a given share in the property and franchises of the corporation in which he is a member."[34]

(E) Share Certificates Are Not Letters of Credit. Certificates of shares of corporate stock are not letters of credit or in the nature of letters of credit.[35]

(F) Share Certificates Are Not Negotiable Instruments — (1) IN GENERAL. Certificates of shares of capital stock are not negotiable instruments either in form or character,[36] although they are often said to be quasi-negotiable.

(2) PURCHASER TAKES THEM SUBJECT TO EQUITIES. The general consequence of this doctrine is that whoever takes them takes them subject to the equities and burdens which attend them, as in the case of the purchase of any other non-negotiable paper, and that, although ignorant of such equities and burdens, his ignorance does not relieve the paper thereof, or enable him to hold it discharged therefrom.[37] They are non-negotiable in the sense that a complete transfer of title, good not only between the parties but also against the corporation itself, can only be made with the concurrence of the act of the corporation in pursuance of its charter, governing statute, or operative by-laws.[38]

(G) Are Assignable When Properly Indorsed. But they are assignable as between the vendor or purchaser, or pledger and pledgee, by mere delivery, when properly indorsed; for when indorsed in blank by the person named therein as the owner of the shares, they pass by mere delivery of the certificate, without further indorsement, and without transfer on the books of the corporation,

30. Thus where a deed of trust assigned stock standing on the corporation books in the grantor's name, and authorized the trustee to transfer it to himself or others, and the grantor delivered the certificates, the fact that they were not signed did not affect the operation of the deed, although the grantor purposely omitted to sign them, with the secret intention of retaining control of the shares. Curtis v. Crossley, 59 N. J. Eq. 358, 45 Atl. 905. Compare May v. Genesee County Sav. Bank, 120 Mich. 330, 79 N. W. 630.

31. O'Rourke v. Schultz, 23 Mont. 285, 58 Pac. 712.

32. Hubbard v. Manhattan Trust Co., 87 Fed. 51, 30 C. C. A. 520.

33. Lawler v. Kell, 6 Ohio S. & C. Pl. Dec. 311, 4 Ohio N. P. 218, where it is said that a share certificate so far partakes of the nature of a chose in action that an assignment in equity may be made of it.

34. Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599, 627 [quoted with approval in Atkins v. Gamble, 42 Cal. 86, 10 Am. Rep. 282]. See also Hawley v. Brumagim, 33 Cal. 394; Hardenbergh v. Bacon, 33 Cal. 356.

35. Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599.

36. O'Herron v. Gray, 168 Mass. 573, 47 N. E. 429, 60 Am. St. Rep. 411, 40 L. R. A. 498; Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599. See also infra, VII, E, 1, a et seq.

37. Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599; Hawes v. Gas Consumers' Ben. Co., 9 N. Y. Suppl. 490; Young v. South Tredegar Iron Co., 85 Tenn. 189, 2 S. W. 202, 4 Am. St. Rep. 752; Hammond v. Hastings, 134 U. S. 401, 10 S. Ct. 727, 33 L. ed. 960. See notes on this subject in 4 Am. St. Rep. 759; 28 Centr. L. J. 404.

38. Hall v. Rose Hill, etc., Road Co., 70 Ill. 673. See also infra, VII, D, 5, a, (I) et seq.

although the certificate is not a negotiable security;[39] and this equitable title is perfected into a full legal title by the transferee procuring the transfer to him to be registered on the books of the corporation, as hereafter shown.[40]

(H) Are Continuing Affirmation by Corporation of Title and Interest of Shareholder. It has often been said that a certificate of stock in a corporation, stating that a designated person is owner of a certain number of shares, transferable only on the books on the indorsement and surrender of the certificate, is a continuing affirmation of the ownership of the person named therein; that the corporation will not transfer the stock upon its books until a surrender of the certificate; and that the owner has the power and right to transfer and sell the stock until such power and right are lawfully terminated.[41]

(I) Liability of Corporation in Case of Fraudulent Issues of Share Certificates. From this it follows that a corporation may become liable to innocent third persons who have been induced to become the purchasers of its share certificates, although unauthorized and fraudulently issued by its officer, either to the extent of admitting him to the rights of a shareholder where the issue was within its powers, or of indemnifying him with respect to his loss where the issue was beyond its powers, and even where it was within its powers.[42] Privity of contract is not necessary to support such an action, because the injured party is not seeking redress upon a contract, but merely for a tortious act in the commission of which the contract was but an incident.[43]

(J) Liability of Corporate Officers For Issuing False Share Certificates. It has been held that officers of a corporation who sign and issue certificates of its stock in the usual form, stating upon their face that the corporation is incorporated according to the laws of a particular state, and that the stock is non-assessable, thereby represent that the stock is not spurious or invalid because of their known acts or omissions, and also that everything has been done which is necessary to make the stock rightfully exempt from further assessment; and that if such representations are false the officers will be liable in damages to one who has taken the certificates in good faith and for value, relying upon the representations.[44]

(K) Are Subject to Limitations and Burdens Created by General and Public Laws. Share certificates are of course subject to those limitations and burdens created by general laws governing the corporation. If therefore a public statute — as distinguished from a private statute — reserves to the corporation a lien upon its shares for debts due by the shareholders to the corporation, whoever purchases such shares takes them subject to this right of lien, although in point of fact he may be ignorant of the existence of the statute.[45] And while the lien of the corporation is capable of being waived,[46] yet the omission of the corpora-

39. Graves v. Mono Lake Hydraulic Min. Co., 81 Cal. 303, 22 Pac. 665.

40. See infra, VII, D, 4, d, (I), (A) et seq.

41. Joslyn v. St. Paul Distilling Co., 44 Minn. 183, 46 N. W. 337; Kisterbock's Appeal, 127 Pa. St. 601, 18 Atl. 381, 24 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 446, 14 Am. St. Rep. 868.

42. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30; Jarvis v. Manhattan Beach Co., 53 Hun (N. Y.) 362, 6 N. Y. Suppl. 703, 25 N. Y. St. 1.

43. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30. Thus if the treasurer of a private corporation, whose duty it is to issue certificates of the stock of the corporation, fraudulently issues certificates, regular in form, but not representing any real stock, and pledges them to secure money borrowed by himself, which money he uses for his own purposes, the corporation will be liable in damages to the pledgee who took the certificates without notice of the fraud, for the amount loaned by him to the treasurer, with interest. Tome v. Parkersburg Branch R. Co., 39 Md. 36, 17 Am. Rep. 540. In this case the question is considered at great length and many authorities cited. See also Titus v. Great Western Turnpike Road, 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 250 [affirmed in 61 N. Y. 237].

The measure of damages in such a case is said to be either the market value of the stock, at the date of the loan, with interest, or the amount of the loan with interest. But it cannot exceed the latter sum. Tome v. Parkersburg Branch R. Co., 39 Md. 36, 17 Am. Rep. 540.

44. Windram v. French, 151 Mass. 547, 24 N. E. 914, 8 L. R. A. 750.

45. Hammond v. Hastings, 134 U. S. 401, 10 S. Ct. 727, 33 L. ed. 960.

46. Cecil Nat. Bank v. Watsontown Bank, 105 U. S. 217, 26 L. ed. 1039.

tion to state in the share certificate that the corporation retains a lien thereon by force of the statute is not a waiver by the corporation of this right of lien.[47]

(L) Share Certificate Is Evidence of Vested Right—(1) In General. The possession of a share certificate is an evidence of a right vested in the holder of the certificate which the law will protect. If therefore the corporation assumes, by a by-law or otherwise, to divide the shares of its stock, already sold and in the hands of lawful owners, into two classes, and to give to one class a preference over others in sharing in the earnings of the corporation, this act will be void, unless made good by unanimous consent. And this is so, although the equality of rights in the shares of the company was fixed by a by-law existing at the time when the purchaser acquired his shares; for such a by-law, equally with a charter provision or that of a governing statute, enters into and forms a part of his contract.[48]

(2) Illustrated in Case of Interest-Bearing Certificates. Where power exists to issue interest-bearing certificates, a certificate issued in the ordinary form of certificates of stock, but containing a promise on the part of the corporation to pay interest thereon until the happening of a specified event, constitutes the person to whom it is issued a shareholder. In such a case the corporation cannot, by a vote of the shareholders, without the individual assent of the particular holder, oblige him to receive their bond instead of money for the interest upon such certificate.[49]

b. Validity of Share Certificates. At the outset the share certificate carries with it a general presumption that the precedent steps to its valid issue were taken.[50] It has also been held that an ultra vires share certificate may be sustained to some extent on the theory of contract; for example, that where the certificate purports to be a certificate for one share, drawing interest at six per cent, although not operative as a certificate of stock, it may be sustained as a contract to pay annual interest during the lifetime of the corporation;[51] but this conclusion seems doubtful. A share certificate is not necessarily invalid because it is issued to one of the officers of the corporation by whom it is signed. When therefore the treasurer of a stock company whose duty it was, in connection with the president, to sign certificates of stock, issued certificates to himself, apparently regular, but in fact fraudulent, the signature of the president having been negligently affixed, and disposed of them for value to plaintiff, who took them in good faith supposing them to be genuine, it was held that the company was liable to plaintiff for the money advanced by him. The fact that the treasurer had signed certificates issued to himself did not of itself render them irregular or invalid.[52] It has been held that a share certificate, previously sold and transferred

47. Hammond v. Hastings, 134 U. S. 401, 10 S. Ct. 727, 33 L. ed. 960.

48. Kent v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159.

49. McLaughlin v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 8 Mich. 100, holding that if a railway corporation have authority to issue such a certificate, they may ratify one which has been issued without authority, and that it is sufficient evidence of such ratification that the corporation, at a regular meeting of the shareholders, passed a resolution for the payment, in their bonds, of interest on such certificate. It has been held in a subordinate court, but by a judge of distinction, that where subscriptions to shares are made, to be paid in instalments, and certificates are to be issued for the several instalments, the corporation is not bound to issue the certificates before getting in the instalments, but that a readiness and willingness to issue them at the time when payment is to be made is all that can be required of it; and that, in an action to recover such an instalment, an averment of this readiness and willingness to issue the certificates is necessary. The issue of the shares and payment therefor were regarded as intended to be contemporaneous acts. James v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 2 Disn. (Ohio) 261, opinion by Gholson, J. A contract to deliver a certain number of shares has been held, under particular circumstances, to be fulfilled, where the obligor places the obligee in a position to demand the certificate from the corporation. Field v. Pierce, 102 Mass. 253.

50. Smock v. Henderson, Wils. (Ind.) 241.

51. Bryant v. Ohio Dental Surgery College, 1 Cinc. Super. Ct. 307, where it was also held that no lien was created on the real estate of the corporation by such a certificate.

52. Titus v. Great Western Turnpike Road, 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 250 [affirmed in 61 N. Y. 237].

on the books of the corporation, may be signed by the treasurer, even in a case where the corporation has been dissolved by a decree of court and perpetually enjoined from transacting business and receivers thereof appointed, where there has been a failure to procure the signature of the treasurer before dissolution.[53] Certificates of shares are not necessarily invalid because issued at a place outside the state in which the corporation was organized and has its principal place of business.[54]

c. Right to Share Certificate. The right of a subscriber to the shares of a corporation to a certificate evidencing his title depends of course upon his performance of his contract of subscription, according to its terms or lawful implications; so that a payment is a condition precedent to the issuing of the certificate; then until he pays he is not entitled to it.[55]

d. Conditional Share Certificates. If the right to the share certificate depends upon a valid condition precedent, to be performed by the sharetaker, then until this condition is performed he cannot claim the certificate.[56] Conditional stock certificates which merely provide that upon payment for them the company will issue unconditional stock, and which do not entitle the holder to dividends, are said to involve the reservation of a lien on the part of the company for the amount due thereon by the holders to whom the certificates are issued. The performance of the condition by such holders, that is, the payment for the shares according to the contract of subscription, is a condition precedent which must be fulfilled before the corporation can be required to issue the unconditional certificates, or before it can rightfully do so, where it has received what are called "stock notes" in liquidation of the amount due by the subscribers to the conditional certificates, which notes it has transferred to bona fide takers for value.[57]

e. Issuing Share Certificates — (I) What Constitutes an Issuing. It has been held on a question concerning the right to a dividend that the execution of a stock certificate and placing it in the post-office addressed to the person named therein is an issue to him of the stock as of that date, entitling him to all the rights of a shareholder.[58]

(II) Effect of Issuing Shares to Wrong Person and of Making Improper Division of Shares Among Coadventurers. Where parties form a mining corporation to contain a certain number of shares, and convey their mining claims to trustees who are to hold the realty for corporation purposes, and issue certificates of stock, and certificates are issued to the full extent of the shares, all such certificates are valid, although some of them are issued to the wrong persons, that is, although some get more than their proportion; and the court cannot grant relief to parties who have not received their just number of certificates, by ordering the issue of new certificates to them. It seems that if in such a case the court can get the proper parties before it, it can equalize the holdings of the shareholders; but it cannot do this where the shares have passed into the hands of innocent purchasers for value. Those who have not received their proportion will, however, it seems, be entitled to indemnity from the corporation, not in the form of new shares, for that will be beyond the power of the corporation, but in the form of pecuniary compensation for their loss.[59]

53. Sewell v. Chamberlain, 16 Gray (Mass.) 581.

54. Courtright v. Deeds, 37 Iowa 503.

55. A decision in New York is to the effect that where a corporation, in a suit for the balance of a subscription for shares of the company, recovers only a portion of the sum claimed, because the other part is barred by the statute of limitations, and enforces the judgment by execution, the subscriber or his assignee, after having paid the amount recovered, is entitled to a certificate of the stock. Johnson v. Albany, etc., R. Co., 40 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 193.

When right to certificate not put an end to by laches.— Kobogum v. Jackson Iron Co., 76 Mich. 498, 43 N. W. 602.

56. See supra, VII, D, 3, c.

57. See for illustration Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Bremond, 66 Tex. 159, 18 S. W. 448.

58. Jones v. Terre Haute, etc., R. Co., 17 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 529.

59. Smith v. North American Min. Co., 1 Nev. 423.

4. Formalities in Transfer of Shares — a. Modes of Transferring Shares Governed by Law of Domicile of Corporation. The validity of the transfer of shares in a corporation is tested and governed by the law of the state under whose laws the corporation is organized and exists, and this although the transfer is made in another state.[60]

b. Transfer Must Be Made According to General Statute, the Charter, By-Laws, or Usage of Corporation, or Terms of Share Certificate. If the charter or governing statute prescribes in detail the mode in which transfers shall be made in order to be valid, that of course must be followed. If the charter is silent, contains only general provisions, or remands the subject to the by-laws, either in terms or by implication, and by-laws are passed prescribing the method, which by-laws do not infringe the charter or the law of the land, then that method must be followed. In the absence of by-laws, then, a mode of transfer may be established by the company by usage and recited on the certificate, and a transfer in that mode will be good.[61]

c. Book in Which Transfer Is to Be Registered — (i) Constitutional Provisions and Statutes Requiring Transfer Offices to Be Kept. Constitutional provisions and statutes exist in some of the states requiring corporations to keep offices for the registry and transfer of their shares and for making and keeping records of other matters.[62]

(ii) Necessity of Keeping Such Offices Within State. Statutes exist which, expressly or impliedly require the transfer-books of corporations to be kept within the state; and some of them impose penalties for a violation of this requirement.[63] A statute of Iowa which requires the books of corporations to show all transfers of shares, and to be kept subject to inspection, means to be kept within the state subject to inspection; and hence a transfer in an Iowa corporation is not valid when made on the books of the corporation kept in the state of Massachusetts.[64]

(iii) In What Kind of Book Transfer Is to Be Registered — Stock Ledger, Stub of Subscription Book, Etc. — (a) In General. Although the by-laws of a corporation require the entry of transfers of shares on a stock ledger, yet if none is kept, and a transfer by the subscriber to the capital stock to another is entered according to the custom of the company on the subscription list, an assignment is indorsed on the shares themselves, and a new certificate is issued to the purchaser by the company, the latter cannot deny the validity of the transfer.[65] So a provision in a by-law and in corporate stock certificates that they shall be transferable only on the company's transfer-books is waived where no regular transfer-books are ever furnished and the transfers are registered on the certificate book, which, with memoranda on its marginal stubs, answers the purpose of a transfer-book and a stock ledger as well as of a certificate book.[66] And even where the requirement of a general statute was that transfers, to be valid as to third persons, must be "regularly entered on the books of the company,"[67] it has

60. Masury v. Arkansas Nat. Bank, 87 Fed. 381. It has been held that a subscriber to the stock of a foreign corporation is deemed to be, as far as his relationship to such corporation is concerned, a resident of the domicile of such corporation. McKean v. New York Nat. Bldg., etc., Assoc., 10 Pa. Dist. 197, 24 Pa. Co. Ct. 458, 7 Lack. Leg. N. (Pa.) 28, 14 York Leg. Rec. (Pa.) 161.

61. It has been held that, in the absence of any by-law or other law of a corporation regulating the mode in which its stock shall be transferred, transfers must be made in the manner prescribed by the usages of the company, or set forth in the certificates of its stock. Mechanics' Banking Assoc. v. Mariposa Co., 3 Rob. (N. Y.) 395; State v. McIver, 2 S. C. 25.

62. See for example Cal. Const. (1879), art. 12, § 14; Tex. Const. (1876), art. 10, § 3.

63. Such for example is N. Y. Laws (1897), c. 384, relating to foreign corporations having offices for the transaction of business within the state. Recknagel v. Empire Self-Lighting Oil Lamp Co., 24 Misc. (N. Y.) 193, 52 N. Y. Suppl. 635.

64. Perkins v. Lyons, 111 Iowa 192, 82 N. W. 486.

65. Stewart v. Walla Walla Printing, etc., Co., 1 Wash. 521, 20 Pac. 605.

66. American Nat. Bank v. Oriental Mills, 17 R. I. 551, 23 Atl. 795.

67. Iowa Code, § 1628.

been held that a simple entry in a stock-book that certain stock has been assigned as collateral security is sufficient to protect the assignee from the claims of the assignor's judgment creditors.[68] In short a transfer may be valid and effectual as between the parties, without any registration at the office of the company, and will be binding upon all parties, if noted by the company according to their usual method, no transfer-books being kept by them.[69]

(B) When Lawful to Procure and Adopt New Stock-Book. It is lawful for the directors of a corporation to adopt and procure a new seal and a new stock-book in order to effect the transfer of shares upon the books before the annual meeting of shareholders, where the prior president of the corporation withholds the old seal and stock-book of the corporation for the purpose of preventing such transfer.[70] They should make the new stock-book as far as possible a copy of the old. In such a case the inspectors of a corporate election may properly refer to the new stock-book to ascertain who are voters; but if the old book be produced, the record therein must govern in reference to transfers recorded before the new book was opened.[71]

(C) In Case of Shares in Names of Joint Executors. In the case of shares in the names of joint executors the title is joint in such a sense that a transfer must be executed by all of them.[72]

(IV) Transfer-Book or Stock Ledger as Evidence. On principle the transfer-book or stock ledger of the corporation is evidence against those who are in privity with it, and against such persons only.[73] For instance the transfer-book is admissible to show the date of a transfer when that is material.[74] It has been held that as between a corporation and a corporator the stock-book is primary, and the certificate secondary, evidence of their relation.[75] The appropriate evidence of the shareholder's right to vote at corporate elections by incorporated companies includes the stock ledger as well as the certificate book and transfer-book, but the ledger is evidence only as subordinate to, and as supported by, the other books. In case of dispute the transfer-book must control the rest.[76]

d. Mode of Effecting Transfers — (I) By Indorsement and Delivery of Certificate With Power of Attorney in Blank — (A) In General. The usual share certificate contains on its back a printed assignment or indorsement and also a power of attorney in blank, like the following: "For value received I hereby assign the within named shares to ——, and appoint —— my attorney to make the transfer on the books of the company." This is signed by the person to whom the shares are issued. In this manner, by the usages of business, of which the courts take judicial notice, the certificate may be passed from hand to hand indefinitely, by the person to whom the certificate is issued simply signing this 68. Moore v. Marshalltown Opera-House Co., 81 Iowa 45, 46 N. W. 750.

69. Haegele v. Western Stove Mfg. Co., 29 Mo. App. 486.

Under the Iowa statute it has been held that a memorandum made with a pencil on the stub of the stock-book of the corporation showing the parties, the shares transferred, and the nature of the transfer is a sufficient record of it. Perkins v. Lyons, 111 Iowa 192, 82 N. W. 486.

Under the statute of Kansas a sufficient record of the transfer of shares is kept by a corporation by making a memorandum of the transfer on the stub of the old certificate, with a reference to the number of the new certificate issued in its place, where the stubs contain a memorandum of the date of issue, number of certificate, number of shares, and the name of the person to whom it is issued, and a new certificate is always issued when a transfer is made. Plumb v. Enterprise Bank, 48 Kan. 484, 29 Pac. 699.

70. Socorro Mountain Min. Co. v. Preston, 17 Misc. (N. Y.) 220, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 1040.

71. In re Schoharie Valley Railroad Case, 12 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 394.

72. Barton v. London, etc., R. Co., 24 Q. B. D. 77, 59 L. J. Q. B. 33, 62 L. T. Rep. N. S. 164, 38 Wkly. Rep. 197.

73. See supra, VI, P, 5, b, (II). Contra, Hoagland v. Bell, 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 57. Compare Pinkerton v. Manchester, etc., R. Co., 42 N. H. 424.

74. Kraft v. Coykendall, 7 N. Y. Suppl. 140, 26 N. Y. St. 79.

75. In re Bank of Commerce, 73 Pa. St. 59.

76. Downing v. Potts, 23 N. J. L. 66.

indorsement and delivering the certificate with the blanks unfilled to his assignee. When it reaches the hands of someone who desires to assume the legal rights of a shareholder, so as to be entitled to vote at corporate elections and to receive dividends, he fills up the blanks by inserting his own name as transferee, just as the holder of a promissory note indorsed in blank is entitled by the law merchant to insert any name he pleases above the indorsement as the payee. He also inserts in the second blank the name of the attorney in fact whom he wishes to make the transfer for him on the books of the corporation.[77] This person is usually the secretary or some other officer of the company, although he may insert the name of whomsoever he pleases.[78] The attorney so appointed does exactly what the original shareholder would have done had he gone to the company's office to make the transfer of the shares to his vendee. He makes an entry on the book kept by the company for that purpose, usually the stock ledger, to the effect that the shares have been transferred to the new purchaser. Then the certificate is surrendered, as hereafter indicated,[79] and a new certificate is issued to the transferee.

(B) Assignment Need Not Be Under Seal. An assignment of shares in a corporation need not be under seal.[80]

(II) By Registering Transfer on Books of Company — (A) Registration Made by Whom — By What Officer. In strictness the making of the transfer on the books of the company is properly made only by the attorney appointed by the transferrer to make it; but in practice it is made by the officer of the corporation having the custody of its books, usually its secretary.[81] Where the corporation had no secretary or clerk, but its president had charge of its stock-books, it was held that a demand upon him to make the necessary transfer on the books of shares to a purchaser of them was sufficient.[82]

(B) What Is Sufficient Registration of Such Transfer. The following methods of registration of transfers of shares on the books of the corporation have been held sufficient: A registration of the written assignment of the shares in extenso on the books of the company by its clerk;[83] a memorandum entered upon a stub of a stock certificate book, "Transf. to Winston Jones, assignee, for collateral, Dec. 1, '84," this importing notice to a subsequent creditor or purchaser and making the assignment good as against him;[84] for the secretary to whom the power of attorney to make the transfer had been made to enter on a book that the shares were transferred, with the words "see paper filed," which paper, being

77. Kortright v. Buffalo Commercial Bank, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 91 [affirmed in 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 348, 34 Am. Dec. 317].

78. Dunn v. Buffalo Commercial Bank, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 580.

Where the owner of shares assigned them to two persons, and gave a power of attorney to one of them to transfer them on the books of the bank, the power was held to be valid, whether the power authorized the transfer to be made to both assignees, or to the attorney alone; and the bank was held not to be liable for refusing to transfer the shares to a subsequent attaching creditor who sold them on execution. Plymouth v. Norfolk Bank, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 454.

79. See infra, VII, D, 4, e, (II), (A) et seq.

Interpretation of a by-law requiring an attestation "in presence of the cashier or two other witnesses." Dane v. Young, 61 Me. 160.

80. Atkinson v. Atkinson, 8 Allen (Mass.) 15. But in England if the corporation undertakes to give a certificate of the title of a shareholder, to enable him to effect a transfer of his shares to a new purchaser, this is held to be a representation of the credit and validity of the transfer within the meaning of section 6 of Lord Tenterden's Act, and if not under seal, is invalid and ultra vires. Bishop v. Balkis Consol. Co., 25 Q. B. D. 77.

81. See supra, VII, D, 4, d, (I), (A).

Where the charter provided that the shares should be transferable in the manner prescribed by the by-laws, and it was not shown that any by-laws governing the subject had been adopted, but the share certificates provided that the stock should be transferable only on the books of the company, on the surrender of the certificate, it was held that the officers of the company, and not the assignor of the shares, should transfer them on the books of the corporation. Green Mount, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Bulla, 45 Ind. 1.

82. Green Mount, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Bulla, 45 Ind. 1.

83. Northrop v. Curtis, 5 Conn. 246. Compare Bridgeport Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 30 Conn. 231; Richmondville Mfg. Co. v. Prall, 9 Conn. 487.

84. Fisher v. Jones, 82 Ala. 117, 3 So. 13.

the power of attorney, he wafered to the book, attesting the entry of transfer as secretary, but not signing it as attorney of the shareholder.[85]

e. Surrendering Old Certificate and Issuing New One — (I) Surrendering Old Certificate Not Strictly Necessary — (A) In General. A transfer of stock upon the books of the company to a bona fide holder for value carries the title to the stock, although the certificate previously issued is not surrendered at the time of the transfer.[86] The rules of the company as to the mode of making transfers of its stock, requiring a surrender of the certificate, while they may be insisted upon by the company, cannot be allowed to have the effect of impairing the rights of third persons who are ignorant of them.[87]

(B) Corporation Must Require Surrender of Certificate at Its Peril. The corporation must require the surrender of the old certificate at its own peril.[88] The certificate being a continuing affirmation by the corporation that the person therein named is entitled to the number of shares therein named of its capital stock, it is evident that the corporation, by allowing the transfer to be made on its books while the certificate is outstanding, may put it in the power of any one into whose hands it may fall to injure an innocent third person by transferring it to him for value. Such a taker of the certificate could not be admitted to the rights of a shareholder, but he would have an action for damages against the company.[89]

(C) Old Certificate Must Be Properly Indorsed. If the corporation takes up the old certificate when it is not properly indorsed and cancels it and makes the transfer on its books to the new transferee, it does so at the peril of having to answer in damages to the real owner of the shares for their conversion in case the transferee had no right to have the transfer made to him.[90]

(II) Issue of New Certificate Unnecessary, but Usual — (A) In General. The certificate being only a document constituting evidence of the title of the shareholder,[91] when the shares are formally transferred to him on the books of the company, they are his, although a new certificate of them has not been issued to him.[92] For a similar reason, if the transferrer retains the certificate in his own possession, this will not prevent the legal title from passing to the transferee by way of gift, although he may have no knowledge of the transfer.[93]

(B) Confusion Which May Result From Failure to Issue New Certificate. A consequence of this principle is that if a person transfers his shares to another,

85. Chambersburg Ins. Co. v. Smith, 11 Pa. St. 120.

What is a sufficient "entry in the books of the bank" within the meaning of Me. Rev. Stat. (1840), c. 76, § 12. Skowhegan Bank v. Cutler, 52 Me. 509.

Entry on the stub of the old stock-book sufficient. Plumb v. Enterprise Bank, 48 Kan. 484, 29 Pac. 699.

86. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 534 [affirmed in 34 N. Y. 30]. See also Moores v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 111 U. S. 156, 4 S. Ct. 345, 28 L. ed. 385. Compare Bond v. Mt. Hope Iron Co., 99 Mass. 505, 99 Am. Dec. 49.

87. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 534 [affirmed in 34 N. Y. 30].

88. Supply Ditch Co. v. Elliott, 10 Colo. 327, 15 Pac. 691, 3 Am. St. Rep. 586.

89. See supra, VI, K, 5, c, (II), (A).

90. Tafft v. Presidio, etc., R. Co., 84 Cal. 131, 24 Pac. 436, 18 Am. St. Rep. 166, 11 L. R. A. 125.

91. See supra, VII, D, 3, a, (I), (A).

92. Davenport First Nat. Bank v. Gifford, 47 Iowa 575; Agricultural Bank v. Wilson, 24 Me. 273; Agricultural Bank v. Burr, 24 Me. 256; Chouteau Spring Co. v. Harris, 20 Mo. 382; Haegele v. Western Stove Mfg. Co., 29 Mo. App. 486. The record of transfers of stock upon the books of a bank was held sufficient, as between the assignee and the bank, to work a change of ownership, without new certificates. Keyser v. Hitz, 133 U. S. 138, 10 S. Ct. 290, 33 L. ed. 531. Compare New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30; Thayer v. Butler, 141 U. S. 234, 11 S. Ct. 987, 35 L. ed. 711; Pacific Nat. Bank v. Eaton, 141 U. S. 227, 11 S. Ct. 984, 35 L. ed. 702.

93. Thus T transferred two thousand shares of stock to F, a niece of his wife, on the books of the corporation, but retained the certificates in his possession; and after his death they were found in an envelope with his own name and that of F indorsed thereon. F had no knowledge of the transfer; she lived in the family of T, and was in all respects treated and regarded as his daughter. It was held that the transfer on the books of the corporation vested in F the legal title. Roberts' Appeal, 85 Pa. St. 84.

and the transfer is duly registered on the books of the company, but no new certificate is issued to the transferee, and the transferrer thereafter undertakes to transfer the same shares to a third person, and the company does issue a new certificate to the latter, he thereby gets no title to the shares, the certificate not being the shares themselves, but a mere evidentiary paper.[94]

(c) Transferee May Have Aid of Equity to Compel Delivery to Him of New Certificates. But while the new certificate is not necessary to the title of the transferee, it is an important muniment of his title, without which his shares would become practically non-vendible. He may therefore have the aid of equity to compel the corporation to issue it to him.[95]

f. Transfer Under General Assignment For Creditors. A general assignment made by a shareholder for the benefit of his creditors does not operate to pass the legal title to his shares until the transfer has been completed on the books of the corporation, in the mode pointed out by its charter, statute, by-law, or other governing instrument. But if the assignment is valid under the laws of the state in which the assignor resides, an equitable title will pass; and if the laws of the state in which the corporation exists do not prohibit the assignment of equitable interests in corporate shares, such an assignment will bind all persons who have notice of it.[96]

5. Necessity of Registering Transfers and Effect of Unregistered Transfers[97]— a. Corporation Looks Only to Its Books — (i) In General. The general rule is that as between the corporation on the one hand, and its shareholders and third persons on the other, for the purpose of determining who its shareholders are, the corporation looks only to its books. This rule, we have seen, obtains for the purpose of determining who are entitled to vote at corporate elections;[98] who are entitled to receive dividends;[99] who have such a standing as shareholders as will entitle them to petition for a dissolution of the corporation for failing to pay an annual divividend;[1] and who has such a standing as a shareholder as will enable him to prosecute a suit in equity to restrain the corporation from increasing its indebtedness.[2]

(ii) Unregistered Transfers Not Binding on Corporation. Subject to qualifications elsewhere considered, a transfer of shares not registered on the books of the corporation, in accordance with its governing statute or its by-laws, is not binding upon it, either with or without notice aliunde of the transfer.[3]

(iii) Corporation May Recognize Holders of Unregistered Certificates. "A corporation is ordinarily justified in treating the assignee and holder

94. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Van Alstyne, 56 Tex. 439.

95. Cecil Nat. Bank v. Watsontown Bank, 105 U. S. 217, 26 L. ed. 1039. See also infra, VII, D, 7, a.

96. Black v. Zacharie, 3 How. (U. S.) 483, 11 L. ed. 690.

A general assignment by a corporation for the benefit of its creditors is not rendered void by the fact that the notice of the shareholders' meeting at which it was authorized to be made was given to the transferees, and not to the transferrers, of certain shares, the transfers of which were insufficient to pass the legal title, because not formally made in the transfer-books. American Nat. Bank v. Oriental Mills, 17 R. I. 551, 23 Atl. 795.

97. Sale of shares and subsequent sale of interest due thereon from the corporation passes no title to the interest which has passed with the sale of the shares. Manning v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 24 Hun (N. Y.) 360.

When shares of state bank of Indiana became transferable.— Coleman v. Spencer, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 197.

Decisions under special transactions.— Shipman v. Ætna Ins. Co., 29 Conn. 245; Denny v. Lyon, 38 Pa. St. 98, 80 Am. Dec. 463.

98. See supra, IV, F, 3, a et seq.

99. Brisbane v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 25 Hun (N. Y.) 438. To the same effect see Smith v. American Coal Co., 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 317. See also supra, VII, B, 4, a et seq.

1. Armstrong v. Herancourt Brewing Co., 11 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 297, 26 Cinc. L. Bul. 39.

2. Becher v. Wells Flouring-Mill Co., 1 Fed. 276, 1 McCrary 62.

3. Stockwell v. St. Louis Mercantile Co., 9 Mo. App. 133 [citing Wagner Stat. Mo. 289, § 1; White v. Salisbury, 33 Mo. 150; A. Wight Co. v. Steinkemeyer, 6 Mo. App. 575; Fine v. Hornsby, 2 Mo. App. 61].

of certificates of stock as the legal and equitable owner thereof."[4] It may for example give him notice of a general meeting convened to authorize an assignment for the benefit of creditors, and this will not vitiate the proceedings had at the meeting.[5]

(iv) When Unregistered Transferee Not Bound by Subsequent Contract Between Corporation and Other Shareholders. It has been held that assignees of shares of corporate stock having possession of the certificates, although holding under unregistered transfers, are not bound by a subsequent contract between the corporation and the other shareholders, including the assignor in whose name the shares remain registered, to surrender a portion of such stock without a consideration, in order that new stock may be issued to pay corporate debts, on which ten per cent per annum is to be paid, or as much thereof as can be paid from the net profits.[6]

b. Unregistered Transfers Good as Between Parties to Them — (i) In General. Another very general statement of doctrine is that unregistered transfers of corporate shares, that is, transfers which have not been made on the books of the corporation or which have not been otherwise made in conformity with its rules or by-laws, are good, as between the parties to them, that is, that they pass to the assignee all the interest of the assignor, or at least all the interest that the parties intended should pass; although they may not be good as against the corporation itself, or more generally speaking, against third parties.[7]

(ii) Unregistered Transfer of Share Certificate Sufficient to Execute Gift. A shareholder may clothe another with a complete equitable title to his shares by a delivery to him of the share certificate, without a compliance with the forms required by the corporation for a transfer of the shares,[8] and

4. Supply Ditch Co. v. Elliott, 10 Colo. 327, 334, 15 Pac. 691, 3 Am. St. Rep. 586 [citing South Bend First Nat. Bank v. Lanier, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 369, 20 L. ed. 172].

5. American Nat. Bank v. Oriental Mills, 17 R. I. 551, 23 Atl. 795.

6. Campbell v. American Zylonite Co., 122 N. Y. 455, 25 N. E. 853, 34 N. Y. St. 38, 11 L. R. A. 596 [reversing 55 N. Y. Super. Ct. 562, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 822].

7. Alabama.— Duke v. Cahawba Nav. Co., 10 Ala. 82, 44 Am. Dec. 472.

California.— Weston v. Bear River, etc., Min. Co., 5 Cal. 186, 63 Am. Dec. 117.

Georgia.— Bates-Farley Sav. Bank v. Dismukes, 107 Ga. 212, 33 S. E. 175.

Indiana.— Bruce v. Smith, 44 Ind. 1.

Maryland.— Hall v. U. S. Insurance Co., 5 Gill 484.

Massachusetts.— Sargent v. Essex Mar. R. Corp., 9 Pick. 202; Sargent v. Franklin Ins. Co., 8 Pick. 90, 19 Am. Dec. 306; Nesmith v. Washington Bank, 6 Pick. 324; Quiner v. Marblehead Social Ins. Co., 10 Mass. 476.

Minnesota.— Baldwin v. Canfield, 26 Minn. 43, 1 N. W. 261.

Missouri.— Chouteau Spring Co. v. Harris, 20 Mo. 382; St. Louis Perpetual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149; Haegele v. Western Stove Mfg. Co., 29 Mo. App. 486.

New Jersey.— Mt. Holly, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Ferree, 17 N. J. Eq. 117; Broadway Bank v. McElrath, 13 N. J. Eq. 24; Rogers v. New Jersey Ins. Co., 8 N. J. Eq. 167.

New York.— Burrall v. Bushwick R. Co., 75 N. Y. 211; Johnson v. Underhill, 52 N. Y. 203; Leitch v. Wells, 48 N. Y. 585; Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599; Leavitt v. Fisher, 1 Duer 1; De Comeau v. Guild Farm Oil Co., 3 Daly 218; Buffalo Commercial Bank v. Kortright, 22 Wend. 348, 34 Am. Dec. 317; Gilbert v. Manchester Iron Mfg. Co., 11 Wend. 627; Utica Bank v. Smalley, 2 Cow. 770, 14 Am. Dec. 526.

Pennsylvania.— Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Clarke, 29 Pa. St. 146; Chambersburg Ins. Co. v. Smith, 11 Pa. St. 120.

Rhode Island.— Hoppin v. Buffum, 9 R. I. 513, 11 Am. Rep. 291.

United States.—Beardsley v. Beardsley, 138 U. S. 262, 11 S. Ct. 318, 34 L. ed. 928; Johnston v. Laflin, 103 U. S. 800, 26 L. ed. 532; Black v. Zacharie, 3 How. 483, 11 L. ed. 690; Georgetown Union Bank v. Laird, 2 Wheat. 390, 4 L. ed. 269; U. S. v. Cutts, 25 Fed. Cas. No. 14,912, 1 Sumn. 133.

Compare State v. Harris, 3 Ark. 570, 36 Am. Dec. 460.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 480.

Sufficient tender on rescission of sale.— Where certificates of stock are transferred by indorsement in blank, and not on the books of the company, an offer to redeliver the certificates is a sufficient tender thereof by the transferee, on a rescission of the sale. Hill v. Wilson, 88 Cal. 92, 25 Pac. 1105.

8. Com. v. Crompton, 137 Pa. St. 138, 20 Atl. 417 [citing Tide Water Pipe Co. v. Kitchenman, 108 Pa. St. 630; Finney's Appeal, 59 Pa. St. 398; German Union Bldg., etc., Assoc. v. Sendmeyer, 50 Pa. St. 67; this although the securities recite that the shares are "transferable only by his or her attorney on the surrender of this certificate." [9]

(III) THEORY THAT UNREGISTERED TRANSFER PASSES BOTH LEGAL AND EQUITABLE TITLE. Some of the decisions assert that as between the parties to the transaction the delivery of a share certificate with an assignment and blank power of attorney indorsed, passes, as between the owner and the assignee, the entire legal and equitable title in the stock, subject only to such liens or claims as the corporation may have upon it.[10]

(IV) THEORY THAT ONLY AN EQUITABLE TITLE PASSES — (A) Statement of Theory. Other decisions are to the effect that a transfer of shares not perfected on the company's books passes only an equitable title.[11] In line with this theory an unrecorded assignment of shares is sometimes called an equitable assignment.[12] And it is often said, with reference to cases where the governing statute provides that the stock of the corporation shall be assignable only on the books of the company, that an assignment not entered on the books of the company in conformity with the statute will not pass the legal title, although it may pass an equitable title.[13]

(B) Meaning of This Expression. The divergencies indicated by the two preceding paragraphs seem to be mere divergencies of expression, and not of real meaning. The meaning of the expression that an unregistered transfer of shares passes only the legal title is that the legal owner of shares in a corporation is the owner in whose name the shares stand on the books of the corporation; whereas the equitable owner is the one who, being the beneficiary, that is the real owner, is not registered as such on the corporate books, and who must, if the corporation refuses so to register him, go into a court of equity to compel them to do so.[14] The real meaning is that his title is complete as against everybody but the corporation itself, and those who have a superior right to have the corporation make the transfer to them.[15]

c. Neeessity of Assignment and Delivery of Share Certificate — (I) REGISTERED TRANSFER PASSES TITLE WITHOUT DELIVERY OF CERTIFICATE. The general rule being that in order to pass the full legal title the assignment must be

Com. v. Watmough, 6 Whart. (Pa.) 117; U. S. v. Vaughan, 3 Binn. (Pa.) 394, 5 Am. Dec. 375].

9. Walsh v. Sexton, 55 Barb. (N. Y.) 251.

10. Boatmen's Ins., etc., Co. v. Able, 48 Mo. 136; St. Louis Stoneware Co. v. Partridge, 8 Mo. App. 580; Carroll v. Mullanphy Sav. Bank, 8 Mo. App. 249; Leitch v. Wells, 48 N. Y. 585; McNeil v. New York City Tenth Nat. Bank, 46 N. Y. 325, 7 Am. Rep. 341; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30; De Comeau v. Guild Farm Oil Co., 3 Daly (N. Y.) 218; Hill v. Newichawanick Co., 48 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 427; Buffalo Commercial Bank v. Kortright, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 348, 34 Am. Dec. 317; Gilbert v. Manchester Iron Mfg. Co., 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 627; Utica Bank v. Smalley, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 770, 14 Am. Dec. 526.

11. Bruce v. Smith, 44 Ind. 1; In re Bank of Commerce, 73 Pa. St. 59; Lippitt v. American Wood Paper Co., 15 R. I. 141, 23 Atl. 111, 2 Am. St. Rep. 886.

12. Fraser v. Charleston, 11 S. C. 486.

13. The following cases all sustain the statement in the text that an assignment by delivery will not pass the legal title, although it may pass an equitable title; but they vary as to the rights of an attaching creditor.

California.— Farmers' Nat. Gold Bank v. Wilson, 58 Cal. 600; Naglee v. Pacific Wharf Co., 20 Cal. 529.

Connecticut.— Shipman v. Ætna Ins. Co., 29 Conn. 245; Northrop v. Newton, etc., Turnpike Co., 3 Conn. 544; Marlborough Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 2 Conn. 579.

Illinois.— Otis v. Gardner, 105 Ill. 436.

Massachusetts.—Blanchard v. Dedham Gaslight Co., 12 Gray 213; Fisher v. Essex Bank, 5 Gray 373.

New Jersey.—Broadway Bank v. McElrath, 13 N. J. Eq. 24.

Pennsylvania.— Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Clarke, 29 Pa. St. 146.

Rhode Island.— Lippitt v. American Wood Paper Co., 15 R. I. 141, 23 Atl. 111, 2 Am. St. Rep. 886.

Tennessee.— State Ins. Co. v. Sax, 2 Tenn. Ch. 507.

Wisconsin.— Murphy's Application, 51 Wis. 519, 8 N. W. 419.

United States.— Black v. Zacharie, 3 How. 483, 11 L. ed. 690; Georgetown Union Bank v. Laird, 2 Wheat. 390, 4 L. ed. 269; Brown v. Adams, 4 Fed. Cas. No. 1,986, 5 Biss. 181; Williams v. Mechanics' Bank, 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,727, 5 Blatchf. 59.

14. See infra, VII, D, 7, a et seq.

15. See in illustration Parrott v. Byers, 40 Cal. 614; Ross v. Southwestern R. Co., 53 Ga. 514.

made on the books of the company, it is therefore held that a contract to sell and deliver shares of stock is satisfied by transferring the shares to the vendee upon the books of the company without delivering the certificate of stock to him, the certificate being merely additional evidence of title.[16]

(II) Nature of Equitable Title Which Passes by Delivery of Certificate. On the other hand it is a recognized rule in the sale of such shares that an assignment of the stock certificate will not of itself pass the title to the shares, although, like an agreement in writing to sell land, it gives an equity, so that the assignee of the certificate can compel a transfer upon the books, except as against a bona fide purchaser who has acquired a title by such transfer.[17] It follows that the purchaser of such shares may insist that the certificate shall be delivered up to him; and where the corporation itself is the purchaser, it may insist that the certificate shall be delivered up for cancellation. Yet where this is not insisted upon at the time of the transaction the purchaser is not at liberty to refuse payment on the ground that he has not received a transfer of title. The outstanding certificate might be evidence of an equity in the hands of a bona fide holder, and might give the purchaser trouble; but he should protect himself by requiring its surrender to him at the time of the sale.[18]

d. Unregistered Transfers Estop Transferrer — (I) In General. A party who sells corporate shares, receives a consideration therefor, and delivers the share certificate to the purchaser, with the usual assignment and power of attorney indorsed thereon in blank, and duly signed, becomes estopped as against parties who have acquired rights under the transfer, from asserting title to the shares.[19]

(II) This Estoppel Extends to Privies of Transferrer. This estoppel extends of course to the privies of the transferrer, for example to his assignee in bankruptcy.[20]

e. Unregistered Transfers Not Valid as Against Third Parties Without Notice — (I) In General. Another view which receives much support in reason and authority is that, where the governing statute requires the transfer to be made on the books of the company, a transfer of shares of corporate stock not registered on the books of the corporation is not valid as against third persons who have not actual notice of the transfer. These decisions proceed on the larger view that the object of such a statute is not merely the protection of the corporation itself, but the protection of the public; that it is in the nature of a recording act, and that the books of the corporation furnish a registry to which any person intending to deal in respect of the shares may look for information as to their real ownership.[21]

16. White v. Salisbury, 33 Mo. 150. See also Agricultural Bank v. Burr, 24 Me. 256; Ellis v. Essex Merrimack Bridge, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 243; Chester Glass Co. v. Dewey, 16 Mass. 94, 8 Am. Dec. 128.

17. Boatmen's Ins., etc., Co. v. Able, 48 Mo. 136. See also Sargent v. Essex Mar. R. Corp. Co., 9 Pick. (Mass.) 202; Sargent v. Franklin Ins. Co., 8 Pick. (Mass.) 90, 19 Am. Dec. 306; Chouteau Spring Co. v. Harris, 20 Mo. 382; Buffalo Commercial Bank v. Kortright, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 348, 34 Am. Dec. 317.

18. Boatmen's Ins., etc., Co. v. Able, 48 Mo. 136.

19. Chew v. Baltimore Bank, 14 Md. 299; Merchants' Bank v. Livingston, 74 N. Y. 223; Colonial Bank v. Hepworth, 36 Ch. D. 36, 56 L. J. Ch. 1089, 57 L. T. Rep. N. S. 148, 36 Wkly. Rep. 259.

For the reasons on which the rule rests see Prall v. Tilt, 28 N. J. Eq. 479; Mt. Holly, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Ferree, 17 N. J. Eq. 117; McNeil v. New York City Tenth Nat. Bank, 46 N. Y. 325, 7 Am. Rep. 341; Daniel Neg. Instr. (3d ed.) § 1708*g*. That it rests on the doctrine that when one of two innocent parties must suffer, etc., see East Birmingham Land Co. v. Dennis, 85 Ala. 565, 5 So. 317, 7 Am. St. Rep. 73, 2 L. R. A. 836 [citing Allen v. Maury, 66 Ala. 10, which related to warehouse receipts].

20. Dickinson v. Central Nat. Bank, 129 Mass. 279, 37 Am. Rep. 351. See also Continental Nat. Bank v. Eliot Nat. Bank, 7 Fed. 369, 37 Am. Rep. 353 note, learned opinion by Lowell, J.

21. This conclusion is affirmed, and this view of such statutes is expressed with more or less directness, in the following cases: Parrott v. Byers, 40 Cal. 614; People v. Elmore, 35 Cal. 653; Naglee v. Pacific Wharf Co., 20 Cal. 529; Strout v. Natoma Water, etc., Co., 9 Cal. 78; Weston v. Bear River, etc., Min. Co., 5 Cal. 186, 63 Am. Dec. 117, 6

(II) Not Valid as Against Subsequent Purchaser in Good Faith Without Notice. Another consequence of the same doctrine is that an unregistered transfer is not good as against a subsequent purchaser of the shares from the transferrer without actual notice of the transfer.[22] The rule under discussion does not, under the circumstances named, exact inquiry outside of or behind the register,[23] the principle being that bona fide purchasers of stock without notice are at liberty to act upon the faith of the title being where, upon the books of the bank, it appears to be.[24]

(III) Otherwise as to Purchaser at Judicial Sale With Notice. But if such shares are seized under an attachment against the transferrer and sold, a purchaser at the sale who has notice of the transfer will not get a good title.[25]

(IV) Unregistered Transfers in Blank Good as to Third Persons Having Actual Notice. The correlative doctrine is that where by the charter stock is assignable by transfer on the books of the corporation, the assignment of the certificate, with a written power to the assignee to transfer the stock to himself on the books, is a symbolical delivery, affecting those who have notice thereof as if the transfer had been made on the books.[26]

6. Priorities as Between Attaching Creditors and Unrecorded Transfers — a. Unregistered Transfers Not Good as Against Attaching Creditors of Transferrer — (I) In General. The general doctrine is that an unregistered assignment of corporate shares is not good as against an attaching creditor of the assignor.[27] The courts which take this view, resting their conclusion in some cases on express statutory enactments,[28] in some cases on the implications arising

Cal. 425; Murphy's Application, 51 Wis. 519, 8 N. W. 419. Compare Pendergast v. Stockton Bank, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 10,918, 2 Sawy. 108. The California cases are made to rest on the peculiar language of the statute: "No transfer . . . shall be valid for any purpose . . . except to render the 'transferee liable for corporate debts' until it shall be entered as required by the provisions of this section." This was copied from the Wisconsin statute, which in its turn came from Maine. Skowhegan Bank v. Cutler, 49 Me. 315. The different readings of statutes which govern this question may account for much of the conflict of judicial opinion with reference to it. Opposing views on this question with respect to creditors will be noted in the next subdivision.

Danger of failing to have transfer registered.—The dangers to the transferee of failing to have his transfer registered on the books of the corporation were pointed out by an eminent judge in New York, but his observations need not be repeated. Rapallo, J., in McNeil v. New York City Tenth Nat. Bank, 46 N. Y. 325, 7 Am. Rep. 341. As to the necessity of recording transfers see a learned article by Chief Justice Corliss, in 39 Alb. L. J. 164, 184.

22. People v. Elmore, 35 Cal. 653; Naglee v. Pacific Wharf Co., 20 Cal. 529; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 534.

23. Williams v. Fletcher, 129 Ill. 356, 21 N. E. 783; Cady v. Potter, 55 Barb. (N. Y.) 463.

24. Sabin v. Woodstock Bank, 21 Vt. 353.

25. Weston v. Bear River, etc., Min. Co., 6 Cal. 425.

26. Van Cise v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, (Dak. 1887) 33 N. W. 897; Bank of America v. McNeil, 10 Bush (Ky.) 54.

27. Alabama.— Abels v. Planters', etc., Ins. Co., 92 Ala. 382, 9 So. 423; Berney Nat. Bank v. Pinckard, 87 Ala. 577, 6 So. 364.

California.— Naglee v. Pacific Wharf Co., 20 Cal. 529; Weston v. Bear River, etc., Min. Co., 5 Cal. 186, 63 Am. Dec. 117.

Colorado.— Conway v. John, 14 Colo. 30, 23 Pac. 170.

Connecticut.— Shipman v. Ætna Ins. Co., 29 Conn. 245; Dutton v. Connecticut Bank, 13 Conn. 493; Northrop v. Newton, etc., Turnpike Co., 3 Conn. 544.

Illinois.— People's Bank v. Gridley, 91 Ill. 457.

Iowa.— Commercial Nat. Bank v. Farmers', etc., Nat. Bank, 82 Iowa 192, 47 N. W. 1080; Ft. Madison Lumber Co. v. Batavian Bank, 71 Iowa 270, 32 N. W. 336, 60 Am. Rep. 789.

Maine.— Skowhegan Bank v. Cutler, 49 Me. 315; Fisk v. Carr, 20 Me. 301.

Maryland.— Noble v. Turner, 69 Md. 519, 16 Atl. 124.

Massachusetts.— Blanchard v. Dedham Gas Light Co., 12 Gray 213; Fisher v. Essex Bank, 5 Gray 373. Compare Boston Music Hall Assoc. v. Cory, 129 Mass. 435.

New Hampshire.—Buttrick v. Nashua, etc., R. Co., 62 N. H. 413, 13 Am. St. Rep. 578; Pinkerton v. Manchester, etc., R. Co., 42 N. H. 424. Compare Scripture v. Francestown Soapstone Co., 50 N. H. 571.

Wisconsin.—Murphy's Application, 51 Wis. 519, 8 N. W. 419.

United States.— Johnston v. Laflin, 103 U. S. 800, 26 L. ed. 532.

28. California.— Naglee v. Pacific Wharf Co., 20 Cal. 529.

from statutes requiring transfers to be recorded on the books of the corporation,[29] and in still others on legal analogies,[30] hold that the rights of the attaching creditor prevail over those of the prior unregistered transferee. One of the reasons of the rule is the consideration which avoids transfers of tangible property as against creditors, in cases where there has been no visible change of possession, such as the circumstances reasonably admit of.[31] The rule is also founded on the consideration that statutes requiring transfers of shares to be made on the books of the corporation, or only on the books of the corporation, are in the nature of recording acts, and are intended for the protection of creditors, and of the public generally, as well as for the protection of the corporation.[32]

(II) Unless Attaching Creditor Has Actual Notice of Transfer — (A) In General. But this rule does not obtain where the attaching or execution creditor has actual knowledge or notice of the prior unrecorded transfer.[33]

(B) Statutory Exception to This Rule. The knowledge of an attaching creditor and the officer levying the attachment on corporate stock, of a previous transfer thereof by the debtor, which has not been entered upon the books of the company, does not protect the transfer from the operation of a statute, providing that the transfer of shares of stock is not valid except as between the parties thereto until it is regularly entered upon the books of the company.[34]

b. View That Unrecorded Transfers Prevail Over Subsequent Attaching or Execution Creditors of Transferrer — (I) In General. Other courts take the contrary view, and hold that an unrecorded transfer of shares made to a purchaser for value will prevail over a subsequent attaching or execution creditor, or over one purchasing at a sale under a subsequent attachment or execution, provided of course the governing statute does not by express terms or by necessary implication make a transfer on the books of the corporation necessary, even as against third persons.[35] These courts proceed upon the view that an attaching creditor gets no

Colorado.— Conway v. John, 14 Colo. 30, 23 Pac. 170; Longmont First Nat. Bank v. Hastings, 7 Colo. App. 129, 42 Pac. 691.

Idaho.— Aulbach v. Dahler, (1896) 43 Pac. 322.

Iowa.— Ryan v. Campbell, 71 Iowa 760, 32 N. W. 340; Ft. Madison Lumber Co. v. Batavian Bank, 71 Iowa 270, 32 N. W. 336, 60 Am. Rep. 789.

Massachusetts.— Newell v. Williston, 138 Mass. 240.

Wisconsin.—Murphy's Application, 51 Wis. 519, 8 N. W. 419.

United States.— Masury v. Arkansas Nat. Bank, 87 Fed. 381, holding that a writ of attachment or execution against shares of stock in a corporation takes precedence of a prior transfer of the stock which was not recorded on the books of the company or in the county clerk's office, under a statute providing that no transfer shall be valid against any creditor until the certificate of transfer shall be deposited with the county clerk for record.

Numerous statutes exist making transfers of shares void as against bona fide creditors or subsequent purchasers without notice, and these statutes have been frequently the subject of judicial interpretation, such as for instance in Berney Nat. Bank v. Pinckard, 87 Ala. 577, 6 So. 364; and in Jones v. Latham, 70 Ala. 164, opinion by Stone, C. J.

29. Central Nat. Bank v. Williston, 138 Mass. 244; Fisher v. Essex Bank, 5 Gray (Mass.) 373.

30. Ft. Madison Lumber Co. v. Batavian Bank, 71 Iowa 270, 32 N. W. 336, 60 Am. Rep. 789.

31. Ft. Madison Lumber Co. v. Batavian Bank, 71 Iowa 270, 32 N. W. 336, 60 Am. Rep. 789.

32. Ft. Madison Lumber Co. v. Batavian Bank, 71 Iowa 270, 32 N. W. 336, 60 Am. Rep. 789. See also Dutton v. Connecticut Bank, 13 Conn. 493. Compare Johnston v. Laflin, 103 U. S. 800, 26 L. ed. 532. It will be noted that this doubtful view raises the books of private corporations to the rank and dignity of public records. 2 Thompson Corp. § 2411; Allen v. Stewart, 7 Del. Ch. 287, 44 Atl. 786.

33. Farmers' Nat. Gold Bank v. Wilson, 58 Cal. 600; Scripture v. Francestown Soapstone Co., 50 N. H. 571; Bridgewater Iron Co. v. Lissberger, 116 U. S. 8, 6 S. Ct. 241, 29 L. ed. 557.

34. Ottumwa Screen Co. v. Stodghill, 103 Iowa 437, 72 N. W. 669.

35. Delaware.— Allen v. Stewart, 7 Del. Ch. 287, 44 Atl. 786.

Louisiana.— Kern v. Day, 45 La. Ann. 71, 12 So. 6.

Minnesota.— Lund v. Wheaton Roller Mill Co., 50 Minn. 36, 52 N. W. 268, 36 Am. St. Rep. 623.

Mississippi.— Clark v. German Security Bank, 61 Miss. 611.

Missouri.—Wilson v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 108 Mo. 588, 18 S. W. 286, 32 Am. St. Rep.

higher rights by levying on shares standing on the books of the corporation in the name of his debtor than his debtor has in them at the time of the levy.[36] This view of course prevails in those jurisdictions where an unrecorded transfer is held to pass the legal title as between the transferrer and transferee;[37] and where a complete legal title, under this theory, has thus passed, the levy will hold nothing, unless the theory prevails in the particular jurisdiction that any equities which may remain in the assignor are leviable.[38]

(II) This View Prevails Under Theory That Statutes Requiring Registration of Transfers Are Intended For Protection of Corporation Only. This view prevails among those courts which adopt the theory that statutes requiring transfers of shares to be made on the books of the corporation are intended merely for the protection of the corporation and not for the protection of the outside public, and that such statutes are hence not in the nature of public recording acts.[39]

(III) Corporation Unjustifiably Refusing to Make Transfer. The rule has been held to be the same where the corporation unjustifiably refuses to make a transfer of the shares on its books; which wrongful act does not subject the shares to attachment to the exclusion of the rights of the real owner.[40]

(IV) Distinction Between Case Where Transfer Is Required to Be Made on Corporate Books by Statute and by By-Law. If the charter of a corporation, assuming that it is a public law of which all persons are bound to take notice, contains the provision that a transfer in order to be valid must be made upon the books of the corporation, then a transfer not so made will not be good as against an attaching creditor of the transferrer, although notice of the transfer may have been communicated to the corporation before the levying of the attachment.[41] But it may be different where the requirement of a registra-

624; Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Richards, 6 Mo. App. 454 [affirmed in 74 Mo. 77].

New Jersey.—Broadway Bank v. McElrath, 13 N. J. Eq. 24.

New York.— De Comeau v. Guild Farm Oil Co., 3 Daly 218.

Rhode Island.— Beckwith v. Burrough, 13 R. I. 294.

Tennessee.— Cornick v. Richards, 3 Lea 1.

Texas.— Tombler v. Palestine Ice Co., 17 Tex. Civ. App. 596, 43 S. W. 896 [distinguishing Rio Grande Cattle Co. v. Burns, 82 Tex. 50, 17 S. W. 1043; James v. James, 81 Tex. 373, 16 S. W. 1087; Seeligson v. Brown, 61 Tex. 114].

United States.— Hazard v. National Exch. Bank, 26 Fed. 94.

36. This view has been taken, even where the governing statute declared the stock of the corporation personal property and "transferable, on the books," and that "books of transfer of stock should be kept, and should be evidence of the ownership of said stock in all elections," etc., by the shareholders. Broadway Bank v. McElrath, 13 N. J. Eq. 24. In England the same doctrine prevails, and in that country it has been held that a judgment against a director of a corporation cannot be charged upon stock which he has sold, although it remains in his name on the company's register, and he continues to act as director, and the charter provides that a director must possess in his own right a certain number of shares. Howard v. Sadler, [1893] 1 Q. B. 1, 41 Wkly. Rep. 126.

37. See supra, VII, D, 5, b, (III).

38. As to which see 2 Thompson Corp. § 2774.

With respect to shares of national banks, it has been held that an unrecorded transfer for value and in good faith prevails over a subsequent attachment by a creditor of the assignor. Continental Nat. Bank v. Eliot Nat. Bank, 7 Fed. 369, 37 Am. Rep. 353 note. Compare Scott v. Pequonnock Nat. Bank, 15 Fed. 494, 21 Blatchf. 203.

39. Thurber v. Crump, 86 Ky. 408, 6 S. W. 145, 10 Ky. L. Rep. 59; Lund v. Wheaton Roller Mill Co., 50 Minn. 36, 52 N. W. 268, 36 Am. St. Rep. 623. Compare Smith v. Crescent City Live-Stock Landing, etc., Co., 30 La. Ann. 1378; Joslyn v. St. Paul Distilling Co., 44 Minn. 183, 46 N. W. 337; Baldwin v. Canfield, 26 Minn. 43, 1 N. W. 261.

40. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Richards, 6 Mo. App. 454 [affirmed in 74 Mo. 77]. To the same effect see Telford, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Gerhab, (Pa. 1888) 13 Atl. 90.

Under the operation of a statute of Illinois the delivery of certificates of shares in good faith to one who has advanced money on the security of the possession of such certificates is sufficient to protect him against executions or attachments against the purchaser to the extent of the debt secured by the shares, even though there is no transfer in writing or upon the books of the corporation. Rice v. Gilbert, 72 Ill. App. 649 [affirmed in 173 Ill. 348, 50 N. E. 1087].

41. Fisher v. Essex Bank, 5 Gray (Mass.) 373.

tion of the transfer on the books of the corporation is established in the by-laws merely, such by-laws being regarded as merely arrangements of the corporation for its own convenience in regulating the payment of dividends, etc., and not as affecting strangers.[42]

(v) Under This Rule Notice to Corporation Immaterial, Except Where Corporation Is the Creditor. Notice to the corporation of such unrecorded transfer is obviously immaterial where this rule prevails,[43] except where the corporation is itself the creditor of the transferrer, since the attaching creditor would not be affected by such notice. It was so held even where the transferee wrote to the corporation requesting that the shares be transferred to him on its books, and the corporation made a minute of the transfer on the certificate stub in the book of the corporation, for the reason that it had no transfer-book, a case which seems to carry the principle very far.[44] But if the corporation is the creditor, and has notice, actual or constructive, the rule is different; and it has been held that constructive notice may come to the corporation through its president where he sells the shares and afterward ceases to act as president, and the shares are attached by the company as his property before the transfer has been made on the corporate books.[45]

c. Rights of Attaching Creditors Are Paramount to Those of Subsequent Purchasers Without Notice. The rights of an attaching creditor who levies upon shares held by his debtor will prevail over the rights of a subsequent bona fide purchaser of the shares for value, without notice of the attachment.[46] And this is so, even where the corporation is a foreign corporation, doing business within the domestic state, providing there is a statute, such as has been frequently enacted, subjecting foreign corporations doing business within the state to the operation of the statute governing domestic corporations.[47]

d. Reasonable Time Allowed For Transfer on Books. There is a theory of law, analogous to that which sometimes obtains with respect to the recording of mortgages, which allows a reasonable time between the execution of the instrument and the placing of it upon record, during which time an attaching creditor will not acquire a priority.[48] Statutes somewhat analogous to this principle, but which proceed in view of the fact that the corporation may unjustifiably refuse to register the transfer, require that in order that the transfer shall take precedence of an intervening attachment the transferee shall have exerted all reasonable means to have the transfer entered on the books of the corporation; and construing such a statute it has been held that he did not exert all reasonable means by going to the office of the corporation where the transfer-books were kept, and merely requesting that the transfer be made, but without staying and seeing that it was made.[49]

e. Levy of Execution or Attachment After Regular Transfer on Corporate Books Acquires No Interest. Subject to exceptions such as obtain in the case where shares have been fraudulently transferred as against creditors it is plain that under any theory, after a transfer has been made and regularly entered on the books of the corporation, one who levies upon the shares an execution or attachment sued out against the transferrer acquires no rights by virtue of the 42. Sargent v. Essex Mar. R. Corp., 9 Pick. (Mass.) 202.

43. Fisher v. Essex Bank, 5 Gray (Mass.) 373.

44. Newell v. Williston, 138 Mass. 240, where the case was decided under an express statutory provision that shares should be transferable only on delivery of the certificate.

45. Scripture v. Francestown Soapstone Co., 50 N. H. 571.

46. Shenandoah Valley R. Co. v. Griffith, 76 Va. 913.

47. Young v. South Tredegar Iron Co., 85 Tenn. 189, 2 S. W. 202, 4 Am. St. Rep. 752.

Invalidity of a transfer of more shares than are necessary to secure the debt for which they have been hypothecated, as against an attaching creditor who has previously attached and served notice on the corporation. Kyle v. Montgomery, 73 Ga. 337.

48. Pinkerton v. Manchester, etc., R. Co., 42 N. H. 424.

49. Perkins v. Lyons, 111 Iowa 192, 82 N. W. 486.

levy merely; nor does one who derives his title by purchase at judicial sale, through the person so levying.[50]

7. Compelling Transfers in Equity — a. Equity Will Compel Transfers Under Proper Conditions. Equity will under proper circumstances compel a corporation to transfer on its books shares of stock to the owner of the equitable title and to issue to him certificates for the same.[51]

b. Circumstances Under Which Transfers Compelled. Stated generally, equity will compel a corporation to register a transfer of shares upon its books, and to admit the transferee to the rights of a shareholder, where he has become the purchaser of shares and the certificate has been regularly transferred and delivered to him by the customary indorsement in blank;[52] where the transferee has in this manner become the equitable owner of the shares, and a transfer is fraudulently withheld from him by the officers of the corporation;[53] where a subscriber to the shares of a proposed corporation received a share certificate which stated that a certain sum had been paid thereon, and that it was transferable on the books of the company only, and such subscriber assigned it to plaintiff, who requested the company to transfer it on its books, which it refused to do;[54] where a deed of gift of corporate shares was made, vesting the complete beneficial ownership in the donee, and the officers of the corporation refused to transfer the shares on the book;[55] where the total stock of the corporation consisted of four hundred shares, and plaintiff had surrendered his certificate of two hundred shares to obtain other certificates of smaller dimensions, and certificates were given him for one hundred and fifty shares, but the corporation refused to give him certificates for the remaining fifty;[56] where a shareholder has been adjudged a bankrupt and his assignee in bankruptcy tenders a sufficient bond of indemnity and demands that the shares be transferred to him on the books of the corporation;[57] where a second certificate had been erroneously issued in lieu of the first one alleged to have been lost, in which case the corporation acted at its peril, and could not set up its

50 Simmons v. Hill, 96 Mo. 679, 10 S. W. 61, 2 L. R. A. 476.

Effect of an assignment of shares by a writing lodged with the secretary of the corporation, after a levy by one creditor of the assignor and before a levy by another creditor. Colt v. Ives, 31 Conn. 25, 81 Am. Dec. 161.

51. Alabama.— Thompson v. Hudgins, 116 Ala. 93, 22 So. 632.

Kentucky.— Commonwealth Bank v. Winn, 61 S. W. 32, 22 Ky. L. Rep. 1629.

Maryland.— Real Estate Trust Co. v. Bird, 90 Md. 229, 44 Atl. 1048.

Minnesota.— Prince Invest. Co. v. St. Paul, etc., Land Co., 68 Minn. 121, 70 N. W. 1079.

New Hampshire.—Hill v. Rockingham Bank, 44 N. H. 567.

New Jersey.— Archer v. American Water Works Co., 50 N. J. Eq. 33, 24 Atl. 508.

New York.— Cushman v. Thayer Mfg. Jewelry Co., 76 N. Y. 365, 32 Am. Rep. 315; Pollock v. National Bank, 7 N. Y. 274, 57 Am. Dec. 520; Bedford v. American Aluminum, etc., Co., 51 N. Y. App. Div. 537, 64 N. Y. Suppl. 856; Middlebrook v. Merchants' Bank, 41 Barb. 481, 18 Abb. Pr. 109, 27 How. Pr. 474 [affirmed in 3 Abb. Dec. 295, 3 Keyes 135]; Purchase v. New York Exch. Bank, 3 Rob. 164; Buckmaster v. Consumers' Ice Co., 5 Daly 313; Ernst v. Elmira Municipal Imp. Co., 24 Misc. 583, 54 N. Y. Suppl. 116; Williamson v. Continental Filter Co., 23 Misc. 755, 53 N. Y. Suppl. 1118 [affirmed in 34 N. Y. App. Div. 630, 53 N. Y. Suppl. 1118]; Williamson v. Anderson, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 833; White v. Schuyler, 1 Abb. Pr. 300.

Ohio.— Iron R. Co. v. Fink, 41 Ohio St. 321, 52 Am. Rep. 84.

Pennsylvania.— Grimes v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 189 Pa. St. 619, 42 Atl. 303, 69 Am. St. Rep. 830.

Wisconsin.— Tanner v. Gregory, 71 Wis. 490, 37 N. W. 830; Dousman v. Wisconsin Min., etc., Co., 40 Wis. 418.

United States.—Alexandria Mechanics Bank v. Seton, 1 Pet. 299, 7 L. ed. 152; Skinner v. Ft. Wayne, etc., R. Co., 58 Fed. 55.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 518.

52. See, generally, the cases cited to the preceding paragraph.

53. Archer v. American Waterworks Co., 50 N. J. Eq. 33, 24 Atl. 508.

54. Real Estate Trust Co. v. Bird, 90 Md. 229, 44 Atl. 1048.

55. Thompson v. Hudgins, 116 Ala. 93, 22 So. 632. To the same effect see Cushman v. Thayer Mfg. Jewelry Co., 76 N. Y. 365, 32 Am. Rep. 315, where the assignment was formally made and witnessed by a husband to his wife.

56. Bedford v. American Aluminum, etc., Co., 51 N. Y. App. Div. 537, 64 N. Y. Suppl. 856.

57. Wilson v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 2 Fed. 459.

own negligence against the equity of the real owner of the shares to compel the issue of a certificate to himself;[58] and in the other cases noted in the margin.[59]

c. Circumstances Under Which Transfers Not Compelled — (i) Not Compelled in Face of Superior Opposing Equities. Such a decree will not be made in the face of superior opposing equities. It was refused to a person who had acquired possession of certain stock certificates, as the agent and instrument of a trust company, to enable it to commit a fraud on the rights of a shareholder.[60]

(ii) Not Compelled Where Plaintiff Fails to Produce Sufficient Proof of Title to Shares. This truism is well illustrated by the case described in the margin.[61]

(iii) Not Compelled Where Plaintiff Has Been Guilty of Laches. A court of equity will not lend its aid for the purpose of compelling the registration of a transfer of shares on the books of the corporation to one who has been guilty of unreasonable delay in asserting his rights.[62] But the execution of a deed of gift of shares, vesting the complete beneficial ownership in the donee, carries with it the authority and duty on the part of the corporation to make the proper transfer of the shares on its books, upon presentation of the certificate and the deed, and it may be compelled to perform this duty.[63]

(iv) Not Compelled in Case of Ultra Vires Shares. A corporation will not be compelled to transfer on its books shares which have been issued in violation of its charter, even though all the shareholders may have consented to the issue.[64]

(v) Not Compelled in Case of Executory Contract to Sell. An executory contract to sell shares, like other executory contracts of sale, will not in general be specifically enforced in equity.[65]

58. Brisbane v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 94 N. Y. 204 [affirming 25 Hun (N. Y.) 438].

59. Commonwealth Bank v. Winn, 61 S. W. 32, 22 Ky. L. Rep. 1629 (transfer compelled of shares held by a trustee, which had been sold for reinvestment in real estate, the corporation refusing to make the transfer on the ground that it might thereby become liable to a contingent remainder-man); Sims v. Bonner, 60 N. Y. Super. Ct. 70, 16 N. Y. Suppl. 801, 42 N. Y. St. 14 (shares sold under a judgment collusively obtained); Grimes v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 189 Pa. St. 619, 42 Atl. 303, 69 Am. St. Rep. 830 (transfer of shares in an American corporation held by an executrix of an executrix of a deceased citizen of Great Britain, such transfers being authorized by the law of England, and both wills having been proved, compelled); Skinner v. Ft. Wayne, etc., R. Co., 58 Fed. 55 (transfers of shares assigned by contractors for the construction of a part of the railroad of the corporation, compelled).

60. Gould v. Head, 41 Fed. 240.

It was denied under the following circumstances: B, having sufficient funds in bank, paid by his check for certain shares of stock in a corporation, which were transferred on the books thereof to his credit, but no certificate was issued. The bank being notified of an adverse claim to his deposit, growing out of previous and independent frauds which he had committed, refused to pay the check, and he became bankrupt. It was held that the seller of the shares could not maintain a bill in equity against B and the corporation to compel a conveyance thereof. The previous frauds did not taint this transaction. Consequently the stock belonged in equity to the assignees of B, to be distributed among his creditors with his other property. Comins v. Coe, 117 Mass. 45.

61. A corporation issued twelve shares of its capital stock to S, as attorney of H, but before the issue was made H died. Subsequently S produced a formal transfer of the stock to himself as attorney for C, signed, "Denis A. Spellissy, as attorney for Ellen Hayden," and a purported consent to such transfer, signed by E as executor of H's estate, but did not produce any proof of E's appointment or qualification, and the corporation refused to make the transfer. It was held that an action to compel the corporation to make the transfer was properly dismissed. Spellissy v. Cook, etc., Co., 58 N. Y. App. Div. 283, 68 N. Y. Suppl. 995.

62. Newberry v. Detroit, etc., Iron Mfg. Co., 17 Mich. 141 (purchaser of shares at execution sale); York v. Passaic Rolling-Mill Co., 30 Fed. 471 (delay of seven years in bringing suit for specific performance of an agreement to issue shares to an employee, who had in the meantime left the company's service). Compare Wonson v. Fenno, 129 Mass. 405, where the proceeding was by one who had bought shares from a firm, but delayed to have his title perfected and registered until the shares had been sold to other persons and had risen in value.

63. Thompson v. Hudgins, 116 Ala. 93, 22 So. 632.

64. People v. Sterling Burial Case Mfg. Co., 82 Ill. 457.

65. But the denial of relief in equity proceeds upon the ground that the party claim-

(VI) NOT COMPELLED IN CASE OF UNEXECUTED PROMISE TO MAKE GIFT OF SHARES. It has been held that where the constating instrument provides that shares of the corporate stock shall be transferred only on the books of the corporation, if a shareholder promises even in writing — as by an instrument in the form of an assignment — to give his shares to another, the gift is not enforceable after his death, by a proceeding in equity against the corporation, any more than it could be enforced against him in his lifetime;[66] although it would be otherwise if such an inchoate transfer were made for value, or if the certificate were delivered to the donee.[67]

d. Questions of Procedure in Such Actions — (I) WHETHER DEMAND NECESSARY TO RIGHT OF ACTION. Where one who had purchased certain shares at a sheriff's sale on execution, the corporation having under its charter a preëmption right in respect of its stock or an option of purchasing it in preference to any one else, filed a bill in equity against the corporation to compel a transfer of the purchased stock without first demanding such transfer, this was held no reason for dismissing the bill.[68]

(II) PARTIES TO SUITS IN EQUITY TO COMPEL TRANSFERS. It has been held that the corporation is not a necessary party to an action against its officers to compel them to transfer stock;[69] but this is doubtful. In an action against a corporation to compel it to transfer to plaintiff certain shares of its stock, which plaintiff has acquired by purchase under a mortgage foreclosure sale, the prior owner is not a necessary party defendant.[70]

(III) QUESTIONS OF PLEADINGS IN SUCH ACTIONS. A complaint which alleges that plaintiff is the owner of certain shares of stock in defendant corporation, and that the corporation has recognized him as a shareholder, but refuses to deliver to him the certificates for his shares, states an equitable cause of action.[71] An execution purchaser of shares, seeking to compel registration, need not allege that when he made the purchase he had no notice that persons other than the execution debtor claimed any interest in the shares. Nor is such a petition bad because it fails to allege that the interest of defendants, who claimed to be the owners of the shares, was not registered prior to the levy. Where the complaint in such a suit alleges that the shares were registered in the name of the execution debtor at the time of the levy, it is incumbent upon the defendant corporation and the other defendants claiming an interest in the shares to traverse such allegation.[72]

(IV) ISSUES NOT TRIABLE BY JURY. Such an action is purely one of equi-

ing relief may have adequate compensation in an action at law for damages, and it seems that the rule itself is limited to cases where such compensation may be had. Cushman v. Thayer Mfg. Jewelry Co., 76 N. Y. 365, 32 Am. Rep. 315 (per Miller, J.); Phillips v. Berger, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 608. Compare Cowles v. Whitman, 10 Conn. 121, 25 Am. Dec. 60.

66. Baltimore Retort, etc., Brick Co. v. Mali, 65 Md. 93, 3 Atl. 286, 57 Am. Rep. 304; Pennington v. Gittings, 2 Gill & J. (Md.) 208. But see Stone v. Hackett, 12 Gray (Mass.) 227; Cushman v. Thayer Mfg. Jewelry Co., 76 N. Y. 365, 32 Am. Rep. 315.

67. See supra, VII, D, 5, b, (II). Further as to the governing principle see Robinson v. Ring, 72 Me. 140, 39 Am. Rep. 308; Conser v. Snowden, 54 Md. 175, 39 Am. Rep. 368; Wilcox v. Matteson, 53 Wis. 23, 9 N. W. 814, 40 Am. Rep. 754.

68. Barrows v. National Rubber Co., 12 R. I. 173. For a case where it was held that a shareholder in an irrigation company, who did not, when he demanded a transfer of his shares, produce the share certificates, or offer any excuse for failing to do so, or demand the water, the right to which went with the possession of the shares, or tender payment therefor, had no right to take the water by force, and was a trespasser in so doing, see Supply Ditch Co. v. Elliott, 10 Colo. 327, 15 Pac. 691, 3 Am. St. Rep. 586.

69. Gould v. Head, 41 Fed. 240. Compare Sayward v. Houghton, 82 Cal. 628, 23 Pac. 120.

70. Tregear v. Etiwanda Water Co., 76 Cal. 537, 18 Pac. 658, 9 Am. St. Rep. 245. A similar ruling was made by the supreme court of the United States in an early case, where the prior owner, having sold the stock, was ready and entirely willing to make the transfer. Alexandria Mechanics Bank v. Seton, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 299, 7 L. ed. 152.

71. Tanner v. Gregory, 71 Wis. 490, 37 N. W. 830.

72. Wetumpka Bridge Co. v. Kidd, 124 Ala. 242, 27 So. 431.

table cognizance, and defendant cannot demand a trial by jury.[73] But of course the chancellor may as in other cases take the verdict of a jury on any issue of fact, but without being bound by it.

e. Form and Scope of Relief — (i) In General. The relief granted in actions of this kind is not necessarily limited to ordering a registration of the transfer of the shares on the books of the corporation. It may extend to any other relief to which plaintiff is entitled, and which is within the scope of his action. It may for example extend to the enjoining of holding corporate meetings until the transfer to which plaintiff is entitled can be compelled;[74] to having the rights of plaintiff as a shareholder established, and to having the share certificates wrongfully issued to others representing shares belonging to him canceled, and for an accounting;[75] to having void certificates issued upon a sale of the Confederate government for a sequestration, surrendered by and canceled as a cloud upon the title of plaintiff, the rightful shareholder;[76] to compel the corporation to deliver up to plaintiff as the real owner of the certificates representing shares to which he was entitled.[77]

(ii) Decreeing Transfers and Deferred Dividends. Plaintiff may have a decree for the transfer and also for the payment of the dividends which have accrued on the shares, with interest.[78]

(iii) Transfers Compelled as of What Date. Where the action is brought by a shareholder against the corporation to record new shares issued upon an increase of its capital stock, the corporation having refused to transfer on its books to plaintiff his portion of such new shares, the transfer will be ordered as of the date of the demand made by plaintiff upon the corporation for such transfer.[79]

f. Conclusiveness of Transfer Made Under Decree. The rule as to a proceeding, so far as it partakes of the nature of a proceeding in rem, seems to be that it is within the power of the court, having the proper parties before it, to render a decree which will operate upon the title to the shares, and which will have the effect of transferring them to a third person, notwithstanding the certificate therefor is outstanding.[80]

8. Mandamus to Compel Transfers — a. As a Rule Mandamus Will Not Lie to Compel Transfers. One who is entitled to have shares which he has purchased transferred to him on the books of the corporation cannot at common law have a mandamus to compel the transfer, for the reason that he has a right of action against the company for damages for the conversion of his stock in case a transfer is refused.[81] The inadequacy of the remedy at law and the denial of a remedy by

73. Cushman v. Thayer Mfg. Jewelry Co., 7 Daly (N. Y.) 330.

74. Archer v. American Water Works Co., 50 N. J. Eq. 33, 24 Atl. 508.

75. Sims v. Bonner, 16 N. Y. Suppl. 801, 42 N. Y. St. 14.

76. Perdicaris v. Charleston Gaslight Co., 19 Fed. Cas. No. 10,974, Chase 435.

77. Bean v. American L. & T. Co., 122 N. Y. 622, 26 N. E. 11, 34 N. Y. St. 620.

If the suit is by a transferee to enjoin an illegal issue of preferred shares, the court may also require the corporation to record the transfer to plaintiff of the common shares, the transfer of which he is entitled to have made on the corporate books. Ernst v. Elmira Municipal Imp. Co., 24 Misc. (N. Y.) 583, 54 N. Y. Suppl. 116.

78. Chew v. Baltimore Bank, 14 Md. 299. Compare Brisbane v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 94 N. Y. 204; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Davenport, 97 U. S. 369, 24 L. ed. 1047.

79. Real Estate Trust Co. v. Bird, 90 Md. 229, 44 Atl. 1048.

80. Sprague v. Cocheco Mfg. Co., 22 Fed. Cas. No. 13,249, 10 Blatchf. 173, holding that the court is not bound to recognize the title of one who years after such a decree produces the outstanding share certificate with the signature of the former owner to a blank assignment, and proves that since such judicial proceedings he has advanced money on the faith of the certificate.

As to the conclusiveness of such decree upon third persons under the doctrine of lis pendens see Holbrook v. New Jersey Zinc Co., 57 N. Y. 616; Leitch v. Wells, 48 N. Y. 585. See also Dovey's Appeal, 97 Pa. St. 153.

81. California.— Kimball v. Union Water Co., 44 Cal. 173, 13 Am. Rep. 157, opinion by Niles, J.

Connecticut.— Tobey v. Hakes, 54 Conn. 274, 7 Atl. 551, 1 Am. St. Rep. 114; Amera mandamus have given rise to the remedy in equity discussed in another subdivision.[82]

b. Exceptions to Rule — (I) In Cases of Quasi-Public Corporations. Exceptions to this rule have been allowed in the case of railroad[83] and turnpike companies,[84] on the ground that such corporations are created for the performance of public duties. But this reason is destitute of force; since in respect of the rights of their members these corporations are not public but private.[85]

(II) In Case of Shares Sold at Judicial Sale. It has been held that mandamus will lie, where the shares have been sold at judicial sale, to compel the president of the corporation to transfer them to the purchaser on the books of the company, on the ground that he has become an officer of the court pro hac vice.[86] But the same court holds that with this exception mandamus will not lie to compel such transfer.[87]

(III) In Case of Breach of Duty With Respect to Incidental Rights. Sometimes the rule which refuses relief by mandamus is admitted, but with the qualification that the remedy may exist, where there is a breach of duty in respect of incidental rights, such as the right to vote and be voted for, to draw dividends, etc.[88]

9. Action at Law Against Corporation For Refusing to Register Transfer — a. Refusal to Register Valid Transfer Is Conversion, Remediable by Action For Damages. Where a transfer of shares has been made in accordance with the charter and by-laws of the corporation, if the officers of the corporation refuse, on the application of the transferee, to enter his name as a holder of the shares upon the corporate books, this is deemed a conversion of his shares by the corporation, and his ordinary remedy is an action at law against the corporation for damages as for a conversion.[89] ican Educational, etc., Asylum v. Phœnix Bank, 4 Conn. 172, 10 Am. Dec. 112.

Massachusetts.—Stackpole v. Seymour, 127 Mass. 104.

Minnesota.— Baker v. Marshal, 15 Minn. 177.

Missouri.— State v. Rombauer, 46 Mo. 155.

Nevada.— State v. Guerrero, 12 Nev. 105.

New Jersey.—Morton v. Timken, 48 N. J. L. 87, 2 Atl. 783; State v. People's Bldg., etc., Assoc., 43 N. J. L. 389.

New York.— Ex p. Fireman's Ins. Co., 6 Hill 243; Kortright v. Buffalo Commercial Bank, 20 Wend. 91 [affirmed in 22 Wend. 348, 34 Am. Dec. 317]; Shipley v. Mechanics' Bank, 10 Johns. 484.

Oregon.— Durham v. Monumental Silver Min. Co., 9 Oreg. 41.

Rhode Island.— Wilkinson v. Providence Bank, 3 R. I. 22.

England.— Rex v. London Assur. Co., 5 B. & Ald. 899, 1 D. & R. 510, 7 E. C. L. 489; Rex v. Bank of England, 2 Dougl. 506.

Cases where mandamus denied on the merits.—In several cases mandamus has been denied on the merits, on the ground that the right to relief was not clear. Townes v. Nichols, 73 Me. 515; State v. Warren Foundry, etc., Co., 32 N. J. L. 439; People v. Parker Vein Coal Co., 10 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 186; Law Guarantee, etc., Soc. v. Bank of England, 24 Q. B. D. 406, 54 J. P. 582, 62 L. T. Rep. N. S. 496, 38 Wkly. Rep. 493; Reg. v. Liverpool, etc., R. Co., 16 Jur. 949, 21 L. J. Q. B. 284.

Circumstances insufficient to vary rule.— It has been held that the fact that the business of the corporation is very profitable, that its shares of stock have no known market value, or that they are greatly enhanced by the good-will of a growing business, will not vary the rule, where the actual value is ascertainable in an action to recover damages. Freon v. Carriage Co., 42 Ohio St. 30, 51 Am. Rep. 794.

82. Cushman v. Thayer Mfg. Jewelry Co., 76 N. Y. 365, 32 Am. Rep. 315.

83. People v. Crockett, 9 Cal. 112 [where no reason was given except a discussion of the merits and overruled in Kimball v. Union Water Co., 44 Cal. 173, 13 Am. Rep. 157]; State v. McIver, 2 S. C. 25. Compare Reg. v. Shropshire Union R., etc., Co., L. R. 8 Q. B. 420, 42 L. J. Q. B. 193, 27 L. T. Rep. N. S. 412, 21 Wkly. Rep. 953, submitted on a case stated, no question made as to form of remedy, but judgment awarding mandamus [reversed in L. R. 7 H. L. 496, 45 L. J. Q. B. 31, 32 L. T. Rep. N. S. 283, 23 Wkly. Rep. 709].

84. Green Mount, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Bulla, 45 Ind. 1.

85. See Stackpole v. Seymour, 127 Mass. 104, where such a mandamus was denied in case of a railroad company, the court, through Gray, C. J., saying: "No public interest or corporate right is in question."

86. Bailey v. Strohecker, 38 Ga. 259, 95 Am. Dec. 88.

87. State Bank v. Harrison, 66 Ga. 696.

88. Freon v. Carriage Co., 42 Ohio St. 30, 51 Am. Rep. 794. Compare Memphis Appeal Pub. Co. v. Pike, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 697.

89. Sargent v. Franklin Ins. Co., 8 Pick. (Mass.) 90, 19 Am. Dec. 306; Kahn v. St. Joseph Bank, 70 Mo. 262; St. Louis Per-

b. So of Wrongful Transfer to One Without Right — (i) In General. So when a company, having notice of the adverse claim of plaintiff to the stock, which is in litigation, nevertheless ignores it and transfers the shares on its books to the indorsee of the certificate, it does so at its peril, and cannot avoid liability to plaintiff simply on the ground that no preliminary injunction restraining its action has been obtained.[90]

(ii) Not Necessary to Prove Fraud, but Proof of Negligence Sufficient. Where plaintiff is suing for damages for the wrongful act of the corporation in permitting his shares to be transferred to someone else, it is not necessary in order to charge the corporation that its officers should have been guilty of fraud or collusion, but it is sufficient that they have failed to exercise reasonable care.[91] But where the company acts without notice of such adverse claim it cannot be held to such a liability.[92]

c. Doctrine That Trover Lies For Conversion of Shares — (i) Statement of Doctrine. Many courts hold that shares, considered as ideal property, and distinguished from the certificate, which as already seen [93] is the mere evidence or muniment of title, may be the subject of a conversion in such a sense as to support an action of trover at common law.[94]

(ii) Circumstances Under Which This Right of Action Arises. This right of action arises against an individual who, by a wrongful use of a share certificate, bearing an executed assignment and transfer power, procures the title to the shares to be vested in a person not entitled thereto,[95] and against the corporation itself when it totally denies plaintiff's rights as a shareholder therein and repudiates its obligations to him as such.[96]

petual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30; Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599; Kortright v. Buffalo Commercial Bank, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 91. It was so held too of a refusal to issue a certificate to the assignee of one who had subscribed to the capital of a company and was entitled to the rights of a shareholder, but to whom no certificate had ever been issued. Rio Grande Cattle Co. v. Burns, 82 Tex. 50, 17 S. W. 1043. Compare Baltimore City Pass. R. Co. v. Sewell, 35 Md. 238, 6 Am. Rep. 402.

Right of action by member of voluntary association against a subsequent corporation for refusing to issue to him certificate of shares. Baltimore City Pass. R. Co. v. Sewell, 35 Md. 238, 6 Am. Rep. 402. Compare Rio Grande Cattle Co. v. Burns, 82 Tex. 50, 17 S. W. 1043. Not necessary in such an action for plaintiff to show his interest by a formal ascertainment. Baltimore City Pass. R. Co. v. Sewell, 35 Md. 238, 6 Am. Rep. 402.

90. Hawes v. Gas Consumers' Ben. Co., 9 N. Y. Suppl. 490.

91. Loring v. Salisbury Mills, 125 Mass. 138; Fisher v. Brown, 104 Mass. 259, 6 Am. Rep. 235; Shaw v. Spencer, 100 Mass. 382, 97 Am. Dec. 107, 1 Am. Rep. 115; Atkinson v. Atkinson, 8 Allen (Mass.) 15; Bayard v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232; Duncan v. Jaudon, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 165, 21 L. ed. 142; Lowry v. Commercial, etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310. See also Hodges v. Planters' Bank, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 306; Albert v. Baltimore Sav. Bank, 1 Md. Ch. 407.

92. Thus a corporation which in good faith accepts the surrender of old stock certificates from one holding a power of attorney authorizing him to transfer them, and issues new certificates to the purchasers, is not liable for the stock to the owners, although such attorney surreptitiously obtained possession of the stock and converted the proceeds to his own use. Coats v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 92 Ky. 263, 17 S. W. 564, 13 Ky. L. Rep. 557.

93. See supra, VII, D, 3, a, (I), (A).

94. California.— Payne v. Elliot, 54 Cal. 339, 35 Am. Rep. 80.

Connecticut.— Ayres v. French, 41 Conn. 142.

Maine.— Freeman v. Harwood, 49 Me. 195.

Maryland.— Maryland F. Ins. Co. v. Dalrymple, 25 Md. 242, 89 Am. Dec. 779.

Massachusetts.— Bond v. Mt. Hope Iron Co., 99 Mass. 505, 97 Am. Dec. 49; Jarvis v. Rogers, 15 Mass. 389.

Michigan.— Doctrine recognized in Daggett v. Davis, 53 Mich. 35, 18 N. W. 548, 51 Am. Rep. 91.

Nevada.— Boylan v. Huguet, 8 Nev. 345.

New York.— Anderson v. Nicholas, 28 N. Y. 600.

South Carolina.— Connor v. Hillier, 11 Rich. 193, 73 Am. Dec. 105.

Utah.— Kuhn v. McAllister, 1 Utah 273 [affirmed in 96 U. S. 87, 24 L. ed. 615].

95. Baker v. Wasson, 53 Tex. 150; McAllister v. Kuhn, 96 U. S. 87, 24 L. ed. 615.

96. Bond v. Mt. Hope Iron Co., 99 Mass. 505, 97 Am. Dec. 49.

That trover lies by the owner of stock who has pledged it as collateral for a usurious loan see Cousland v. Davis, 4 Bosw. (N. Y.) 619.

It has been held that the action lies where the company has practically deprived the

(III) View That There Is No Sensible Distinction Between Conversion of Certificate and Conversion of Shares—(A) In General. The courts which so hold are unable to perceive any valid reason why trover should lie for the certificate, which is merely the paper evidence of the title of the shareholder to the shares, and yet should not lie for the shares themselves. Nor are they able to perceive any sensible distinction between an action for a certificate of stock which is unlawfully retained when demanded, for which it has always been held that trover will lie, and an action for the shares represented by the certificate, and without which the paper itself has no substantial value.[97]

(B) Same View Under the Codes. Under the modern codes of procedure the doctrine is recognized that an action for damages will lie for the conversion of intangible property; and it is accordingly held, in an action for the conversion of shares of stock, that it is the shares of the stock which constitute the property of the shareholder, and not merely the certificate; and that an action is maintainable for the conversion of the shares of stock which the certificate represents as well as for the conversion of the certificate.[98]

(IV) There May Be Conversion of Certificate, Although Not of Shares—(A) In General. In order to constitute a conversion it is not necessary that there should be a complete and absolute deprivation of property, but a conversion may take place where the deprivation is only partial or temporary. There may therefore be a conversion of a share certificate, although the wrong-doer does not make use of it so as to acquire possession of the shares, in other words a conversion of the certificate, for which an action will lie, without a conversion of the shares which the certificate represents.[99]

(B) Trover Lies For Conversion of Share Certificates. Whatever doubt may exist as to whether an action in the nature of trover will lie for the conversion of shares of stock, considered as ideal property, there is no doubt that the paper certificate of the shares is a valuable monument of title, and hence is tangible property for which trover will lie, even under the early theory of an action of trover, which rested on the fiction of a loss and a finding.[1]

d. Doctrine That Trover Does Not Lie For Conversion of Shares but Only For Conversion of Certificate. A stricter view is that trover will not lie to recover damages for the conversion of shares of corporate stock, for the reason that trover will no more lie to recover such intangible right than it will lie to recover an interest in a partnership.[2]

e. Doctrine That Assumpsit Lies Against Corporation For Refusing to Register Transfer of Shares. There is a class of cases which hold that where the corporation refuses to register upon its books a transfer of its shares, upon the demand of the transferee, and to issue to him a new certificate therefor where such new certificate is required by its charter or by-laws, he has an action of assumpsit plaintiff of his stock by bidding it in at a pretended sale under its by-laws, although such sale is in fact illegal and void, as not having been conducted in compliance with the by-laws purporting to authorize it. Allen v. American Bldg., etc., Assoc., 49 Minn. 544, 52 N. W. 144, 32 Am. St. Rep. 574.

97. Ayres v. French, 41 Conn. 142.

That a wrongful conversion of the share certificate may operate as a conversion of the shares see McAllister v. Kuhn, 96 U. S. 87, 24 L. ed. 615.

98. Payne v. Elliot, 54 Cal. 339, 35 Am. Rep. 80. See also Fromm v. Sierra Nevada Silver Min. Co., 61 Cal. 629. So held in Boylan v. Huguet, 8 Nev. 345; and in Utah under a code similar to that of California. Kuhn v. McAllister, 1 Utah 273 [affirmed in 96 U. S. 87, 24 L. ed. 615].

99. Daggett v. Davis, 53 Mich. 35, 18 N. W. 548, 51 Am. Rep. 91.

1. Atkinson v. Gamble, 42 Cal. 86, 10 Am. Rep. 282; Morton v. Preston, 18 Mich. 60, 100 Am. Dec. 146; Anderson v. Nicholas, 28 N. Y. 600.

In Louisiana a corporation is liable for the damages caused by the wrongful canceling of a certificate of its stock by its president and secretary. Factors, etc., Ins. Co. v. Marine Dry Dock, etc., Co., 31 La. Ann. 149.

That trover will not lie against the estate of a decedent for stock which has been pledged to the decedent and sold by a special administrator see Von Schmidt v. Bourn, 50 Cal. 616.

2. Neiler v. Kelley, 69 Pa. St. 403 [following Sewall v. Lancaster Bank, 17 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 285].

against the corporation for the breach of the implied agreement that upon such a transfer it will discharge such duty to the transferee upon his request.[3]

f. Doctrine That Form of Action For Such Injury Is Special Action on the Case. It seems that for the breach of this duty by a corporation actions of assumpsit and case have been indifferently maintained; and there are circumstances where, according to the views of the judges, the latter is the proper form of action at common law.[4]

g. Incidents of Such Actions—(I) Plaintiff Must Have Right to Immediate Possession. If the action is in the nature of trover to recover the share certificate, plaintiff must have a right to the immediate possession of it.[5]

(II) Demand and Refusal. If defendant acquired the certificate in subordination to the rights of plaintiff, for example as his bailee, then a right of action may not arise in favor of plaintiff until he has made a demand upon defendant for their possession and the demand has been refused. It has been held that a demand for a certificate of shares of corporate stock and a refusal to deliver it may not of themselves constitute a conversion, but they may be evidence of a conversion to go to the jury;[6] and that a demand, by the assignee of the shares, upon the corporation for a transfer of the shares, is not equivalent to a demand of access to the books of the corporation for the purpose of making such transfer, and does not tend to prove a conversion of the shares;[7] but this seems too great a refinement.

h. Questions of Procedure in Such Actions[8]—(I) Parties. Where the corporation negligently cancels the certificates of a shareholder and issues new certificates to another person, the true owner may pursue the corporation without making such other person a party to the suit,[9] or he may proceed against both.[10]

(II) Not Necessary to Prove Fraud or Collusion—Negligence Sufficient. Where plaintiff is suing for damages for the wrongful act of the corporation in permitting his shares to be transferred to someone else, it is not necessary, in order to charge the corporation, that its officers should have been guilty of

3. Sargent v. Franklin Ins. Co., 8 Pick. (Mass.) 90, 19 Am. Dec. 306; Kortright v. Buffalo Commercial Bank, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 91 [affirmed in 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 348, 34 Am. Dec. 317]. Contra, Telford, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Gerhab, (Pa. 1888) 13 Atl. 90.

4. Protection L. Ins. Co. v. Osgood, 93 Ill. 69; Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599; Kortright v. Buffalo Commercial Bank, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 91 (per Nelson, J.); Telford, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Gerhab, (Pa. 1888) 13 Atl. 90; Morgan v. Bank of North America, 8 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 73, 11 Am. Dec. 575. One court has reasoned that, although a shareholder who has transferred his shares in pledge has not, after making such transfer, such legal title as will enable him to maintain trover against the pledgee for an unauthorized sale, yet he may maintain a special action on the case; and a count in case may be added to the count in trover, by amendment. Nabring v. Mobile Bank, 58 Ala. 204. But that is on the conception that the legal title passes to the pledgee which as elsewhere seen (see infra, VII, F, 1, c) is not the usual view.

5. Ayres v. French, 41 Conn. 142.

6. Alabama.— Dent v. Chiles, 5 Stew. & P. 383, 26 Am. Dec. 360.

Connecticut.— See Thompson v. Rose, 16 Conn. 71, 41 Am. Dec. 121.

Illinois.— Sturges v. Keith, 57 Ill. 451, 11 Am. Rep. 28.

Maine.— Davis v. Buffum, 51 Me. 160.

Michigan.— Daggett v. Davis, 53 Mich. 35, 18 N. W. 548, 51 Am. Rep. 91.

Missouri.— Huxley v. Hartzell, 44 Mo. 370.

New York.— Mechanics' Banking Assoc. v. Mariposa Co., 3 Rob. 395; Hawkins v. Hoffman, 6 Hill 586, 41 Am. Dec. 767.

Tennessee.— Houston v. Dyche, Meigs 76, 33 Am. Dec. 130.

Vermont.— Farrar v. Rollins, 37 Vt. 295.

Wisconsin.— Lander v. Bechtel, 55 Wis. 593, 13 N. W. 483.

7. Purchase v. New York Exch. Bank, 3 Rob. (N. Y.) 164, per Robertson, C. J.

8. When not necessary to plead that the assessment was made for a valuable consideration see Baltimore City Pass. R. Co. v. Sewell, 35 Md. 238, 6 Am. Rep. 402.

Presumption of title in case of a transfer in blank see Holbrook v. New Jersey Zinc Co., 57 N. Y. 616.

Not necessary to show authority of the president of the corporation to permit transfers of shares. Buffalo Commercial Bank v. Kortright, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 348, 34 Am. Dec. 317.

9. Baker v. Wasson, 53 Tex. 150; St. Romes v. Levee Steam Cotton-Press Co., 127 U. S. 614, 8 S. Ct. 1335, 32 L. ed. 289.

10. Woodhouse v. Crescent Mut. Ins. Co., 35 La. Ann. 238 (rule in Louisiana); Baker v. Wasson, 53 Tex. 150.

fraud or collusion, but it is sufficient that they have failed to exercise reasonable care.[11]

i. Measure of Damages For Refusing to Transfer — (i) General Rule. The general rule as to the measure of damages in an action of trover is the value of the goods at the time of the conversion, to which may be added interest up to the time of the trial, unless there were some special circumstances of outrage in the case, when the jury are at liberty to give more;[12] and this may be laid down as the general rule where the subject of the conversion is shares of stock in a corporation. The measure of damages in such actions, is (1) the value of the shares at the time of the refusal of the officers of the company to register the transfer;[13] (2) the dividends accrued thereon at that time;[14] (3) with interest to the date of the trial,[15] or in some states (and this is the better rule), to the date of the judgment.[16]

(ii) Where Company Wrongfully Transfers Plaintiff's Shares to Third Person. Where the company wrongfully transfers plaintiff's shares, on its books, to someone else, the conversion takes place at the date of the transfer, and the measure of damages is the value of the stock at that time.[17]

(iii) Where Plaintiff Has Sold Shares, Company Refuses to Make Transfer, and Plaintiff Is Obliged to Buy Other Shares to Fulfil His Contract. Where plaintiff has sold his shares and is unable to deliver them because of the refusal of the company to make the transfer on its books, so that in order to make his contract good he is obliged to buy other shares, the damages which he is entitled to recover from the company consist of the price which he was compelled to pay for the shares which he necessarily bought owing to the wrong of the company.[18]

(iv) Full Value of Shares at Time of Conversion. Coming now to a rule which emphasizes the importance of the distinction between trover for the conversion of the shares and trover for the conversion of share certificates merely,[19] and which hold that in trover for the conversion of a certificate of corporate stock plaintiff is entitled to recover the market value of the stock, as shown by evidence, at the time of the conversion,[20] we find a class of decisions which proceed upon the analogy of the measure of damages under the English law for the conversion of title deeds, which was the full value of the shares conveyed by the

11. Loring v. Salisbury Mills, 125 Mass. 138; Fisher v. Brown, 104 Mass. 259, 6 Am. Rep. 235; Shaw v. Spencer, 100 Mass. 382, 97 Am. Dec. 107, 1 Am. Rep. 115; Atkinson v. Atkinson, 8 Allen (Mass.) 15; Bayard v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232; Duncan v. Jaudon, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 165, 21 L. ed. 142; Lowry v. Commercial, etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310. See also Hodges v. Planters' Bank, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 306; Albert v. Baltimore Sav. Bank, 1 Md. Ch. 407.

12. Weld v. Oliver, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 559; Pierce v. Benjamin, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 356, 25 Am. Dec. 396; Neiler v. Kelley, 69 Pa. St. 403; Harger v. McMains, 4 Watts (Pa.) 418; Taylor v. Morgan, 3 Watts (Pa.) 333; Berry v. Vantries, 12 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 89; Dennis v. Barber, 6 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 420; Jacoby v. Laussatt, 6 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 300.

13. Baltimore City Pass. R. Co. v. Sewell, 35 Md. 238, 6 Am. Rep. 402; Parsons v. Martin, 11 Gray (Mass.) 111; Hussey v. Manufacturers', etc., Bank, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 415; Sargent v. Franklin Ins. Co., 8 Pick. (Mass.) 90, 19 Am. Dec. 306; St. Louis Perpetual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149.

14. Nutting v. Thomasson, 57 Ga. 418.

15. Baltimore City Pass. R. Co. v. Sewell, 35 Md. 238, 6 Am. Rep. 402.

16. Hussey v. Manufacturers', etc., Bank, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 415.

17. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Humphries, (Miss. 1890) 7 So. 522.

Where the company has wrongfully forfeited and sold plaintiff's shares, he may recover the amount for which the shares sold in excess of their par value. Budd v. Multnomah St. R. Co., 12 Oreg. 271, 7 Pac. 99, 53 Am. Rep. 355, 15 Oreg. 413, 15 Pac. 659, 3 Am. St. Rep. 169.

18. Tomkinson v. Balkis Consol. Co., [1891] 2 Q. B. 614.

19. See supra, VII, D, 9, c, (III), (A). See also Clowes v. Hawley, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 484. Thus it is said in a work of reputation: "In trover for title deeds, the jury give the full value of the estate to which they belong by way of damages, which, however, are generally reduced to forty shillings on the deed being given up." Mayne Dam. (Woods Am. ed.) 497.

20. Connor v. Hillier, 11 Rich. (S. C.) 193, 73 Am. Dec. 105.

deed, and not merely the value of the paper muniments of title. In short where the possession of the certificate is necessary to the possession and enjoyment of the shares, the measure of damages is not the value of the paper on which the certificate is printed, or anything else than the value of the shares of which the paper is the muniment of title, and for the possession and enjoyment of which property the paper is necessary.[21]

(v) For Conversion of Certificate Merely, Actual Damages, and Not Value of Shares, Recoverable. Where the case is one of the conversion of the certificate merely, and not of the conversion of the shares represented thereby, as where the shares continue to stand in the name of plaintiff, and defendant continues wrongfully to hold possession of the scrip certificate, although unable to make use thereof to effect a transfer of the shares to himself, the measure of damages of plaintiff will be limited to the loss he actually suffers, which loss is not necessarily the value of the shares.[22]

(vi) Corporation Not Liable For Subsequent Depreciation. A corporation failing or refusing to transfer stock on its books, at the request of a pledgee, is not liable for subsequent depreciation of the stock.[23]

(vii) Nominal Damages Only For Technical Conversion. It is said that where plaintiff has suffered a technical conversion of his shares merely, without any actual pecuniary loss, he can recover nominal damages only.[24]

10. Fiduciary Relations Between Corporation and Shareholder — a. Corporation a Trustee For Its Shareholders For Protection of Their Title. A well-settled qualification of the rule that a corporation does not stand in a fiduciary relation to its shareholders, but that they may deal with each other at arm's length in the absence of fraud, is that a corporation is a trustee for its shareholders for the purpose of protecting their titles to their shares; and to this end it is bound to exercise reasonable care and diligence, and is consequently responsible to a shareholder who has lost his title to his shares through its negligence or misconduct.[25]

b. Duty of Corporation to Exercise Care and Diligence in Discharging This Trust. The duty of a corporation toward those interested in the transfer of the shares of its stock has been thus stated: It is "made the custodian of the shares of stock, and clothed with power sufficient to protect the rights of every one interested, from unauthorized transfers; it is a trust placed in the hands of the corporation for the protection of individual interests, and like every other trustee it is bound to execute the trust with proper diligence and care, and is responsible 21. Morton v. Preston, 18 Mich. 60, 100 Am. Dec. 146.

22. Daggett v. Davis, 53 Mich. 35, 18 N. W. 548, 51 Am. Rep. 91. Compare Connor v. Hillier, 11 Rich. (S. C.) 193, 73 Am. Dec. 105 (where a recovery was allowed for the full value of the stock represented by the shares which had been converted, the report not showing that the conversion of the certificate did not deprive plaintiff of his legal title to the shares); Nelson v. King, 25 Tex. 655 (which seems to resemble the last case in its main facts). See also to the same effect Mowry v. Wood, 12 Wis. 413, where the subject of the conversion was a certificate of land scrip issued by the state, and where plaintiff was restricted to actual damages.

23. Dayton Nat. Bank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 37 Ohio St. 208.

24. Budd v. Multnomah St. R. Co., 15 Oreg. 413, 15 Pac. 659, 3 Am. St. Rep. 169.

For an illustration in a case arising between a broker and customer see Gruman v. Smith, 81 N. Y. 25. Compare Nutting v. Thomasson, 57 Ga. 418.

25. Morawetz Corp. § 237; Perry Trusts, § 242; and the following cases:

Colorado.— Supply Ditch Co. v. Elliott, 10 Colo. 327, 15 Pac. 691, 3 Am. St. Rep. 586.

Maryland.— Stewart v. Firemen's Ins. Co., 53 Md. 564; Hodges v. Planters' Bank, 7 Gill & J. 306; Albert v. Baltimore Sav. Bank, 1 Md. Ch. 407.

Massachusetts.— Loring v. Salisbury Mills, 125 Mass. 138; Shaw v. Spencer, 100 Mass. 382, 97 Am. Dec. 107, 1 Am. Rep. 115; Atkinson v. Atkinson, 8 Allen 15.

Pennsylvania.— Pennsylvania R. Co.'s Appeal, 86 Pa. St. 80; Bayard v. Farmers' Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232.

Tennessee.— Caulkins v. Memphis Gas-Light Co., 85 Tenn. 683, 4 S. W. 287, 4 Am. St. Rep. 786; Covington v. Anderson, 16 Lea 310.

United States.—Duncan v. Jaudon, 15 Wall. 165, 21 L. ed. 142; Lowry v. Commercial, for any injury sustained by its negligence or misconduct."[26] It is said that "in all such cases there may be no actual fault on the part of the corporation, yet the principle results from the justice and expediency, in such transactions, of casting the loss on those who can best provide against it.[27]

c. Liable in Damages For Failure to Discharge It, Although Not Guilty of Fraud, Collusion, or Bad Faith — (I) In General. It may be further stated that here as elsewhere the corporation can act only through agents, and that if a loss is sustained through the act of the proper officer of the corporation touching a transfer of the shares, the corporation, in the absence of fraud or collusion practised against it, must bear the loss, and it cannot be put upon the transferee.[28] As the corporation appoints the officers before whom the transfers of stock must be made, it is responsible for their acts, and must answer for their negligence or default, whenever the rights of a third person are concerned.[29]

(II) Liable For Issuing New Certificate Without Surrender of Old. To illustrate this duty and liability, it may be observed that the corporation does not act with proper care and diligence if it admits a transfer to registry, and issues a new certificate without the surrender of the old one, unless the loss or destruction of the old one is proved; and even then it seems that the corporation is entitled to a bond of indemnity.[30] If therefore its officers, through neglect, issue a new certificate to a supposed transferee without requiring the old certificate to be surrendered, the corporation becomes liable in damages to a bona fide transferee of such new certificate.[31]

(III) Liable For Transferring Shares on Ancient Powers of Attorney Without Inquiring Whether They Have Been Revoked. So where the signatures to powers of attorney for transfers were genuine, but at the time of the transfer were thirteen years old, the corporation was put upon inquiry, and was bound, before making the transfer, to ascertain whether the power had been revoked.[32]

(IV) Liable For Permitting Wrongful Transfers. Under the operation of this principle, a corporation which permits wrongful transfers of shares to be made upon its books becomes liable in damages to the true owner whose legal title has been thereby divested. This liability arises where the corporation permits one who is agent of another to transfer the shares of his principal to himself on its books, without proper authority from his principal, in the particular case, with no other authority than a general power of attorney authorizing him to sell and transfer stock and other securities and property, the share certificates not being indorsed by his principal;[33] and where a corporation, knowing that certain stock is held in trust, aids the trustee in converting it to his own use, by changing and reissuing stock certificates, and making transfers on its books;[34] or (in Louisiana) where the corporation, without a mandate "express and special," within article 2997 of the civil code, has permitted a transfer of a shareholder's shares.[35] And in general if a person gets possession of the certificates of shares of another, under circumstances which do not constitute him the owner or put him under the protection of the rule relating to bona fide purchasers for value, etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310.

26. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Robbins, 35 Ohio St. 483; Lowry v. Commercial, etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310.

27. Chew v. Baltimore Bank, 14 Md. 299; Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Robbins, 35 Ohio St. 483, 500.

28. Hodges v. Planters' Bank, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 306; Albert v. Baltimore Sav. Bank, 1 Md. Ch. 407.

29. Lowry v. Commercial, etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310.

30. See infra, VII, D, 12, b, (II).

31. Supply Ditch Co. v. Elliott, 10 Colo. 327, 15 Pac. 691, 3 Am. St. Rep. 586.

32. Pennsylvania R. Co.'s Appeal, 86 Pa. St. 80; Bayard v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232.

33. Tafft v. Presidio, etc., R. Co., 84 Cal. 131, 24 Pac. 436, 18 Am. St. Rep. 166, 11 L. R. A. 125, decided under Cal. Civ. Code, § 324.

34. Caulkins v. Memphis Gas-Light Co., 85 Tenn. 683, 4 S. W. 287, 4 Am. St. Rep. 786. See also infra, VII, D, 13, b et seq.

35. Woodhouse v. Crescent Mut. Ins. Co., 35 La. Ann. 238.

the corporation will be liable to the real owner, in an action for damages for the conversion of his shares, if its officers transfer the shares on the corporate books to the supposed owner. The governing principle is that the owner of property cannot be deprived of it without his consent, except by due process of law.[36]

(v) Liable For Restricting Rightful Transfers. In like manner it is a breach of this trust for a corporation to refuse to make upon its books a rightful transfer of the shares of a member, for which it is liable to him in damages.[37] A mere notice to the officers of the company, from parties having a beneficial interest in the stock sought to be transferred, that the right of the party having the legal title to make the transfer is questioned and will be contested, will not justify the officers in a persistent refusal to make the transfer, after a reasonable and sufficient time has elapsed to enable the parties giving the notice to institute legal proceedings to contest the right to make the transfer.[38]

11. Liability of Corporation For Making or Permitting Wrongful Transfers on Its Books — a. Liability For Transferring on Power of Attorney Executed by Shareholder Who Is Non Sui Juris. We shall see[39] that the rule is that where a corporation recognizes a power of attorney to transfer shares on its books, it takes the risk of its validity, just as a banker takes the risk of the validity of the signature of the check which it pays. Under this view the corporation is therefore liable in case it permits a transfer under a power of attorney which is either forged,[40] or executed by an infant, a married woman, or a lunatic.[41]

b. Corporation Cannot Refuse Transfer Because It Dissents From Motive of Parties to Transfer — (1) In General. As elsewhere seen, when treating of the right of shareholders to alien their shares,[42] the conclusion is that where the parties to the transfer of corporate shares comply with the conditions which give them the legal right to have the transfer made on the books of the company, the officers of the corporation are under no duty to inquire into the motives of the transfer, nor can they refuse to make the transfer on the books of the corporation because they may think that the motives of the parties are improper, or that the transfer may injuriously affect the interests of that or of some other company. Their duties are merely ministerial and clerical, and they have no judicial 36. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Davenport, 97 U. S. 369, 24 L. ed. 1047. It has been held that, for a banking corporation to take up a share certificate from one to whom a life-estate therein had been bequeathed, upon her presentation of the same, with an indorsement thereon by the executors, that they had sold, assigned, and transferred to her such shares, without inquiring as to whether there was an actual sale or transfer to her for value, is such negligence as will render the bank and its officers liable to the remainderman, where such officer had actual knowledge of the contents of the will. Cox v. Wilson First Nat. Bank, 119 N. C. 302, 26 S. E. 22.

37. Carroll v. Mullanphy Sav. Bank, 8 Mo. App. 249, no evidence that the shareholder was indebted to the corporation.

38. State v. McIver, 2 S. C. 25. It has been held that the fact that certificates of stock purporting to be fully paid have been inadvertently issued to subscribers who have paid but two thirds of their subscriptions, and that the secretary of the corporation has been ordered by the directors to call in and cancel such certificates, does not justify him in refusing to transfer on the books of the corporation shares purchased from one of such subscribers. Nor is it material whether the sale of the stock was bona fide or not, since the purchaser in such a case becomes responsible for whatever remains unpaid in respect of the shares. Herdegen v. Cotzhausen, 70 Wis. 589, 36 N. W. 385. To this statement of doctrine it ought to be added by way of caution, that other courts have held that where a corporation issues unpaid stock as fully paid up it thereby estops itself, as against an innocent purchaser for value, from claiming that anything remains unpaid in respect of them. See supra, VI, M, 3, a.

39. See infra, VII, D, 14, a, (1).

40. See infra, VII, D, 14, a, (1) et seq.

41. Chew v. Baltimore Bank, 14 Md. 299, where a corporation was held liable to a lunatic for permitting a transfer on its books of shares belonging to the lunatic on the faith of a power of attorney executed by the lunatic. But it has been held that a sale of corporate stock by a minor, if not on its face manifestly injurious to her, is merely voidable at her election; and the corporation, being bound to make transfer to the purchaser if the sale has not been avoided at the time it is demanded, is not liable for any loss resulting from the sale and transfer. Smith v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 91 Tenn. 221, 18 S. W. 546.

42. See supra, VII, D, 1, d.

power to pass upon the validity of the reasons which induce the parties to demand the transfer.[43]

(II) Exception in Case of Conspiracy to Wreck Corporation and Merge It in a "Trust." An exception to this principle has been admitted, to the effect that where a person demanding the transfer of the shares on the books of the company has conspired with others and entered into an arrangement whereby the shares were to be indorsed and delivered to him, apparently and professedly for value, but really without any consideration, so as to enable him to acquire the ownership and control of the corporation to the exclusion of all other persons interested therein, the person demanding the transfer being an agent of one of that species of combination known as a "trust" for the control of corporations, the officers of the corporation will be justified in resisting the transfer.[44]

(III) Corporation Cannot Restrain Transfers Made to Effect Collateral Purposes Not Unlawful. Under the operation of the foregoing principle this will be the rule in the case of an out-and-out transfer made for the purpose of enabling the transferee to vote at a corporate election.[45] It has been so held where the object of the transfer was to enable the transferee to become a party to an action.[46] But such an effect will not be ascribed to a transfer where it appears that it was a sham, and that there was no real change in ownership.[47]

e. Whether Blank Transferee Must Satisfy Corporation That He Is Genuine Purchaser. It has been held that the corporation is under no obligation to permit a transfer to be made to a person claiming to be the assignee of a certificate, on the mere presentation of such a certificate, with an assignment and power of attorney executed by the original holder in blank, no person being named or specified as the assignee or attorney; and moreover, that an action of assumpsit cannot be maintained against the bank, for refusing to permit such transfer, without proof by plaintiff that he had purchased the certificate and was the owner thereof.[48] But the true view seems to be that the holder of a certificate of shares of stock, with an irrevocable power of attorney from the owner to transfer them, is the presumptive equitable owner, and if shown to be a holder for value without notice his title cannot be impeached, although the attorney's name is in blank; that such a power of attorney may be filled up and executed, by any one of several successive bona fide holders, whenever his interests may require it; and that the power is neither exhausted by its first use, revoked by the maker's death, nor affected by passing through any number of hands, until its execution by an 43. State v. McIver, 2 S. C. 25; In re Klaus, 67 Wis. 401, 29 N. W. 582.

44. Gould v. Head, 41 Fed. 240. Compare 38 Fed. 886.

It has been held that a pooling arrangement by which shareholders transfer their shares to trustees, to be voted as directed by holders of the majority thereof for the period of five years, unless the holders of two thirds of such stock vote to put an end to the trust sooner, is contrary to public policy and void, as against the right of an assignee of some of the trustees' certificates to have the shares, thereby represented, issued to him in his own name and under his own control. Harvey v. Linville Imp. Co., 118 N. C. 693, 24 S. E. 489, 54 Am. St. Rep. 749, 32 L. R. A. 265.

45. See supra, VII, D, 1, d. It has been held that if a party purchases of a bank a large amount of stock to increase the number of votes he is entitled to throw, makes use of them for that purpose, and immediately thereafter the directors return the purchase-money and resume the stock, a court of equity will not compel the purchaser to refund the money and take back the stock where the proof shows that no injury has resulted from the transaction. Taylor v. Miami Exporting Co., 6 Ohio 176.

46. Stock was transferred to A on the day of the commencement of an action to set aside sales made by the corporation, in order that A might join in the action. The money with which the purchase was made was placed to A's credit by the person who wanted him to join, and the shares were not transferred on the books of the corporation. It was held (Davis, P. J., dissenting) that the transfer carried title to A, and that he was properly a party to the action. Ervin v. Oregon R., etc., Co., 35 Hun (N. Y.) 544.

47. A transfer of bank-stock to citizens of the state, by a non-resident holder, for the purpose of enabling them to vote, under the statute, without any real change in the ownership, does not according to one holding make the transferees legal voters. State v. Hunton, 28 Vt. 594.

48. Dunn v. Buffalo Commercial Bank, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 580.

actual transfer.[49] As he is presumptively the equitable owner, the corporation cannot, before permitting a transfer to him of the shares on its books, put him to further proof of his title, without first producing evidence impeaching it.[50]

d. Corporation Not a Guarantor of Shareholder's Title — (i) In General. As already indicated[51] it is sometimes held that the measure of duty of the corporation is good faith and reasonable care and diligence; and that, in the absence of fraud or collusion on the part of its officers charged with the duty of protecting the title of the shareholder, the mere transfer of stock on the books thereof, by direction of the vendor to his vendee, does not make the company liable as a guarantor of the vendor's title to the stock.[52]

(ii) Does Not Become Such Guarantor by "Certification" of Shares Under English Custom. A "certification" of shares, under a custom which has sprung up on the English Stock Exchange, has been held to amount to no more than a representation that the transferrer has produced to the person certifying such documents as are apparently in order, and as show on the face of them a prima facie title in the transferrer to transfer the shares mentioned in the transfer. It does not warrant the title of the transferrer, or the validity of the various documents which establish his title. It does not therefore estop the company from afterward denying title to one who purchases shares on the faith of such a certification, or give him an action against it for a careless misrepresentation.[53]

e. Right of Corporation to Refuse Substitution of Assignee Until Subscription Paid. No general rule upon this question can be stated with confidence, but its solution depends in most cases upon the terms of the charter, governing statute, or valid by-law. One view is that the fact that an assessment against the shares has been made and is delinquent does not defeat the right of a shareholder to have the shares transferred to a purchaser, since the identity of the shares, or the lien thereon for the assessment, is not affected by the transfer.[54] The principle, however, remains that the mere assignment by a subscriber of his shares will not relieve him from liability to the corporation in respect of any unpaid balance due thereon until the assignee is regularly substituted in his place on the books of the corporation.[55]

f. Corporation Should Refuse Transfer Unless Old Certificate Surrendered. (i) In General. Where certificates are outstanding representing shares of stock, it is the duty of the corporation to resist any transfer of such shares on its books, without the production and surrender of the certificates; and any act done or suffered by the corporation which invests a new party with the ownership of 49. Mt. Holly, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Ferree, 17 N. J. Eq. 117; Leavitt v. Fisher, 4 Duer (N. Y.) 1; Tatman v. Lobach, 1 Duer (N. Y.) 354.

50. Thus it has been held that a corporation whose duty to its shareholders is to protect persons interested from unauthorized transfers of stock upon its books is not bound to examine whether a transferrer with power to transfer is attempting a fraud. Hughes v. Drovers', etc., Nat. Bank, 86 Md. 418, 38 Atl. 936. On the same grounds it has been held that a corporation which in good faith accepts the surrender of old stock certificates from one holding a power of attorney authorizing him to transfer them and issue new certificates to the purchaser is not liable for the stock to the owners, although such attorney surreptitiously obtained possession of the stock and converted the proceeds to his own use. Couts v. Louisville, etc., R. Co, 92 Ky. 263, 17 S. W. 564, 13 Ky. L. Rep. 557.

51. See supra, VII, D, 10, b.

52. Central R., etc., Co. v. Ward, 37 Ga. 515.

53. Bishop v. Balkis Consol. Co., 25 Q. B. D. 512, 59 L. J. Q. B. 565, 63 L. T. Rep. N. S. 601, 2 Meg. 292, 39 Wkly. Rep. 99 [affirming 25 Q. B. D. 77].

54. Craig v. Hesperia Land, etc., Co., 113 Cal. 7, 45 Pac. 10, 54 Am. St. Rep. 316, 35 L. R. A. 306.

The fact that a shareholder does not know of an assessment upon his stock at the time he demands a transfer on the books of the company to a purchaser from him, or when he brings action to enforce his rights, does not defeat his right to the transfer. Craig v. Hesperia Land, etc., Co., 113 Cal. 7, 45 Pac. 10, 54 Am. St. Rep. 316, 35 L. R. A. 306.

55. Putnam v. New Albany, etc., R. Co., 16 Wall. (U. S.) 390, 21 L. ed. 361, opinion by Strong, J.

the shares, without the due production and surrender of the certificate, renders the corporation liable to the real owner of the shares for their conversion.[56] And it is so liable to a bona fide holder for value of the old certificate.[57]

(II) New Certificates Issued Without Taking Up Original Ones Invalid. If the secretary of a corporation issues new share certificates without taking up and canceling the original certificates, the new certificates will be invalid,[58] except as the foundation of a claim for indemnity against the corporation under the principles elsewhere stated.[59]

(III) Validity of By-Law Restraining Transfers Except Upon Surrender of Certificate, Etc. It follows from what has preceded that a by-law of a corporation, providing that no shares of its stock shall be transferred on its books until the certificate has been surrendered to its president or shown to be lost, is valid and binding on all its shareholders and their heirs.[60]

(IV) Corporation Not Liable to Holder of Certificate in Case of Transfer by Order of Court. When a judicial tribunal of last resort, after a bona fide contest by the corporation, has ordered stock to be transferred to a purchaser at a sheriff's sale, the corporation is not liable to the holder of the certificate of the stock, who took no steps to protect himself.[61]

(V) Previous Transfer to Purchaser at Execution Sale. One who purchases shares of bank-stock, expressed to be "transferable at the bank," has no action against the bank for refusing to transfer to him on its books, where, previous to any notice by him to the bank, it had transferred them in good faith to one who had purchased them at a sale on execution against the person in whose name they stood on the corporate books.[62]

12. Duties and Responsibilities of Corporation Where Certificates Have Been Lost or Stolen — a. Rights of Owner Superior to Those of Bona Fide Purchasers of Lost or Stolen Share Certificates. Share certificates not being negotiable instruments, if such a certificate is lost or stolen from the owner, without fault on his part, his right to it is superior to that of any person who may acquire it by purchase for value from any other holder;[63] and he may maintain, against the corporation and the person who holds the stolen scrip, an action to establish his right to it.[64]

56. Illinois.— Hall v. Rose Hill, etc., Road Co., 70 Ill. 673.

Maryland.— Cohen v. Gwynn, 4 Md. Ch. 357.

Massachusetts.— Sewall v. Boston Water Power Co., 4 Allen 277, 81 Am. Dec. 701.

New York.— Cushman v. Thayer Mfg. Jewelry Co., 76 N. Y. 365, 32 Am. Rep. 315 (per Miller, J.); New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30; Pollock v. National Bank, 7 N. Y. 274, 57 Am. Dec. 520; Smith v. American Coal Co., 7 Lans. 317.

Texas.— Strange v. Houston, etc., R. Co., 53 Tex. 162.

United States.— South Bend First Nat. Bank v. Lanier, 11 Wall. 369, 20 L. ed. 172.

England.— Donaldson v. Gillot, L. R. 3 Eq. 274, 12 Jur. N. S. 959, 15 L. T. Rep. N. S. 382, 15 Wkly. Rep. 166; Matter of Bahia, etc., R. Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 584, 9 B. & S. 844, 37 L. J. Q. B. 176, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 467, 16 Wkly. Rep. 862; Davis v. Bank of England, 2 Bing. 393, 3 L. J. C. P. O. S. 4, 9 Moore C. P. 747, 9 E. C. L. 629.

57. Supply Ditch Co. v. Elliott, 10 Colo. 327, 15 Pac. 691, 3 Am. St. Rep. 586; South Bend First Nat. Bank v. Lanier, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 369, 20 L. ed. 172.

Equitable owner, not producing certificate, cannot maintain action against the corporation for refusing to register a transfer of the shares to him. New London Nat. Bank v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 21 Ohio St. 221.

Circumstances under which a corporation was held liable in damages to the real owner of shares for transferring them on its books to another and issuing a new certificate without the production of the old one. Strange v. Houston, etc., R. Co., 53 Tex. 162.

58. Hall v. Rose Hill, etc., Road Co., 70 Ill. 673; Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 11 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 50, 24 Cinc. L. Bul. 198.

59. See infra, VII, D, 14, d, (I).

60. State v. Iberville Parish Judge, 30 La. Ann. 307.

61. Friedlander v. Slaughter House Co., 31 La. Ann. 523.

62. Williams v. Mechanics' Bank, 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,727, 5 Blatchf. 59.

63. East Birmingham Land Co. v. Dennis, 85 Ala. 565, 5 So. 317, 7 Am. St. Rep. 73, 2 L. R. A. 836; Barstow v. Savage Min. Co., 64 Cal. 388, 1 Pac. 349, 49 Am. Rep. 705.

64. Wells v. Smith, 7 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 261. For the same principle as to bills of lading indorsed in blank see Gurney v. Beh-

b. Corporation Issues New Certificate Where Old One Not Produced at Its Peril — (I) In General. If the share certificate of a shareholder has been lost, and he or his alleged vendee claims of the corporation the issue of a new certificate, the corporation will issue it at its peril, and is therefore as elsewhere stated [65] entitled to demand indemnity before making such new issue.[66]

(II) May Require Bond of Indemnity Before Issuing New Certificate. A bond of indemnity may be required by a corporation as a condition of issuing new certificates of stock for those that have been lost, where the owner is an assignee and has never had possession of the old certificates, and the lapse of time is not so great as to preclude danger of their reappearance.[67]

c. Corporation Refuses to Register Transfer to Rightful Owner at Its Peril — (I) In General. So where, on a false allegation made to the corporation by a shareholder that his share certificate has been lost, if the corporation refuses to admit a bona fide purchaser of such certificate to registration on its books, as a shareholder in respect of it, it equally proceeds at its peril.[68]

(II) In Such Case Vendor of Bona Fide Shareholder May Be Liable Together With Corporation. If a shareholder sells his shares to a purchaser for value and in good faith, and afterward, by means of a false affidavit of their loss and a bond of indemnity, procures the corporation to issue new shares to him, and to refuse to admit to registration and to the rights of a shareholder his vendee, the latter may have an action against both him and the corporation.[69] The right of action against the vendor of the shares is supported on the principle which gives a right of action not only against the principal tortfeasor, but also against all who aid and abet him in the doing of the wrong, all being regarded as principals.[70]

13. Transfers of Shares Held in Trust — a. Issuing Shares to Third Persons "In Trust." The propriety of a corporation issuing its shares to a third person who is not a regular subscriber thereto, to be held in trust for the corporation, or to be held upon some other trust, depends of course upon the governing statute, or where the governing statute permits such an issuing, in some cases upon the governing by-laws. It seems that a corporation cannot, by an arrangement of this kind, whereby it issues a part of its shares in trust, disable itself from issuing the remaining shares to bona fide takers at their par value, that is, from filling rend, 3 E. & B. 622, 18 Jur. 856, 23 L. J. Q. B. 265, 2 Wkly. Rep. 425, 77 E. C. L. 622.

That the purchaser from one who has no title must prove negligence of the true owner and show that it is the proximate cause of the deceit see Barstow v. Savage Min. Co., 64 Cal. 388, 1 Pac. 349, 49 Am. Rep. 705 [quoted with approval in East Birmingham Land Co. v. Dennis, 85 Ala. 565, 5 So. 317, 7 Am. St. Rep. 73, 2 L. R. A. 836].

65. See infra, VII, D, 12, b, (II).

66. For a case proceeding upon this principle and deciding a number of incidental questions see Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Robbins, 35 Ohio St. 483.

67. Guilford v. Western Union Tel. Co., 43 Minn. 434, 46 N. W. 70. For an untenable holding to the effect that the company may be compelled by mandamus to issue a new share certificate in place of one advertised under a by-law as lost see State v. New Orleans Gaslight Co., 25 La. Ann. 398.

Protecting the company by requiring the claimant of the lost share certificate to furnish a bond of indemnity, and also by allowing the case to stand on the docket and be kept open for any further proceedings which justice might require. Galveston City Co. v. Sibley, 56 Tex. 269. The decree, which is a long one, is set out in the report, 56 Tex. 279–281.

Statute of New York giving a remedy for procuring a duplicate certificate in case of a loss of the original. N. Y. Laws (1873), c. 151, § 1. For comments on this statute with the view that its constitutionality is doubtful see 2 Thompson Corp. § 2524. Consideration of this statute explained and petition upon which it was held that the court had no jurisdiction to order the issuing of a new certificate see Biglin v. Friendship Assoc., 46 Hun (N. Y.) 223, 11 N. Y. St. 566.

68. Greenleaf v. Ludington, 15 Wis. 558, 82 Am. Dec. 698.

69. Greenleaf v. Ludington, 15 Wis. 558, 82 Am. Dec. 698.

70. Among the cases illustrating this principle are: Dreyer v. Ming, 23 Mo. 434; Coats v. Darby, 2 N. Y. 517; Judson v. Cook, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 642; Herring v. Hoppock, 3 Duer (N. Y.) 20 [affirmed in 15 N. Y. 409]; Beardsley, C. J., in Davis v. Newkirk, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 92, 94; Wall v. Osborn, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 39; Root v. Chandler, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 110. 25 Am. Dec. 546; Phillips v.

up its capital stock in the regular way.[71] A resolution to deliver the stock of a corporation to trustees of a certain association or combination, which is carried unanimously by the votes of all who are present, including every member of the trustees of the corporation and all the shareholders except two, who own but a small part of the stock, and who in fact have consented to the delivery of the stock, has been held sufficient to make the corporation a party to the combination.[72]

b. Effect of Notice on Books of Corporation That They Are Held in Trust For Third Persons. Although there has been some wavering of judicial opinion on this question,[73] yet most of the cases unite in holding that where the shares are so registered on the books of the company as to convey to the officers of the company notice that they are held in trust for a third person, the corporation is bound to see, before it permits a conveyance on its books by the trustee, that he has the consent of the cestui que trust where that is necessary, or that he is otherwise acting within the authority conferred upon him by the instrument creating the trust or by the decree of a court of competent jurisdiction; otherwise the corporation will be obliged to make good any loss accruing to the trust estate from the unauthorized transfer. In short if the corporation, having notice of the trust, permits the trustee to transfer without authority, it is liable if he misappropriates the fund.[74] Therefore one who holds corporate shares on the books of the corporation as trustee of another cannot insist upon their transfer by the corporation without exhibiting his authority in full.[75]

c. Notice in Case of Fiduciary Having Power to Sell Personal Property of Estate, Such as Administrators, Guardians, Assignees in Insolvency, Etc.— (i) In General. How far the company or transfer agent is chargeable with notice of the terms under which stock is held in a fiduciary capacity depends largely upon the nature of the trust. In the case of administrators, guardians, and assignees of the estates of insolvents, it would seem that the company acting in good faith is discharged of any participation in the wrong, when it assures itself of the official character of the person seeking to make the transfer. For the law casts the legal title of the personal property of the estate upon such trustees. Their primary duty is administration, and involves the power to sell personalty, when necessary for the payment of debts or the proper management of the estate.[76] So where the transfer is signed simply as administrator and is made to the "heirs and distributees" of the decedent, the company is not charged with notice of the existence and contents of a will, although in fact the transfer is made by an administrator cum testamento annexo, and passes the title to the stock to the legatees in accordance with the terms of the will; and consequently is not liable for permitting a subsequent transfer in violation of the terms of the trust.[77]

(ii) In Case of Judicial Sale Duty of Corporation Before Transferring Shares to See That Terms of Order Are Complied With. Where an order of court authorized an administrator to sell shares belonging to the estate

Hall, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 610, 24 Am. Dec. 108.

71. Poor v. European, etc., R. Co., 59 Me. 270.

72. People v. North River Sugar Refining Co., 54 Hun (N. Y.) 354, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 401, 7 N. Y. Suppl. 406, 27 N. Y. St. 282, 2 L. R. A. 33, 5 L. R. A. 386 [affirmed in 121 N. Y. 582, 24 N. E. 834, 31 N. Y. St. 781, 18 Am. St. Rep. 843, 9 L. R. A. 33].

73. See Albert v. Baltimore, 2 Md. 159; Albert v. Baltimore Sav. Bank, 1 Md. Ch. 407.

74. California.— Brewster v. Hartley, 37 Cal. 15, 99 Am. Dec. 237.

Maryland.— Marbury v. Ehlen, 72 Md. 206, 19 Atl. 648, 20 Am. Rep. 467; Stewart v. Firemen's Ins. Co., 53 Md. 564; Farmers', etc., Bank v. Wayman, 5 Gill 336.

Pennsylvania.— Bayard v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232.

South Carolina.— Magwood v. Southwestern Railroad Bank, 5 S. C. 379.

United States.— Lowry v. Commercial, etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310, opinion by Taney, J.

See note on this subject in 19 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 412.

75. Bayard v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232.

76. Field v. Schieffelin, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 150, 11 Am. Dec. 441; Bayard v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232; Wallace v. Holmes, 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,100, 9 Blatchf. 65. Compare Atkinson v. Atkinson, 8 Allen (Mass.) 15.

77. Smith v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 91 Tenn. 221, 18 S. W. 546.

at private sale, on good security, and authorized a credit of only one year, and the administrator sold upon a credit of ten years, and accepted the individual note of the purchaser without security, the company was liable for the loss sustained by the estate in consequence of its registering the transfer and issuing new certificates.[78]

d. Executors Under a Will — (i) In General. An executor under a will holds the legal title to the personalty and presumably has the power to sell shares belonging to the estate for the purpose of the trust created by the will or imposed upon him by the will. His letters testamentary show an apparent right to dispose of the stocks of the testator even though bequeathed specifically; and on principle the company is bound to respect his title and transfer them according to his desire. Nor, in the absence of notice of an intended breach of trust, is the corporation bound to concern itself with the disposition which the trustee makes of the proceeds of the sale; or to see whether, in making distribution, he proceeds in conformity with the terms of the will.[79]

(ii) When Company Liable For Issuing New Certificates After Removal of Executor From Office. Where a company upon reorganization issued two negotiable certificates to an executor, redeemable in new stock, in place of stock belonging to the estate which he surrendered, it was held liable for a loss occasioned to the estate by his negotiation of the certificates after his removal from office, and the issue of the new stock to the holders thereof.[80]

(iii) Where Executor Is Also Trustee Under Will, Company Put on Inquiry With Respect to His Powers. There are cases, however, which are difficult to reconcile with this view, in which it is said that the transfer being made by an executor, his character of executor is notice of itself that there is a will open to inspection on the public records, and that the company is charged with a notice of its contents and of the trust which it creates as if it had actually read it.[81]

e. In Case of Shares Held by a Guardian. If shares are transferred on the books of the corporation to a person, with the addition of the word "guardian," 78. Citizens' St. R. Co. v. Robbins, 128 Ind. 449, 26 N. E. 116, 25 Am. St. Rep. 445, 12 L. R. A. 498. Compare Marbury v. Ehlen, 72 Md. 206, 19 Atl. 648, 20 Am. St. Rep. 467; Webb v. Graniteville Mfg. Co., 11 S. C. 396, 32 Am. Rep. 479.

79. Hutchins v. State Bank, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 421. The English courts have adopted this view in cases growing out of the duties of the Bank of England as transfer agent of shares in the public funds. Franklin v. Bank of England, 9 B. & C. 156, 7 L. J. K. B. O. S. 183, 4 M. & R. 11, 1 Russ. 575, 46 Eng. Ch. 511, 17 E. C. L. 78; Fowler v. Churchill, 2 Dowl. N. S. 562, 7 Jur. 156, 12 L. J. Exch. 230, 11 M. & W. 323; Bank of England v. Lunn, 15 Ves. Jr. 569; Bank of England v. Parsons, 5 Ves. Jr. 665; Hartga v. Bank of England, 3 Ves. Jr. 55. Compare Keane v. Roberts, 4 Madd. 332, 20 Rev. Rep. 306; McLeod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. Jr. 152, 11 Rev. Rep. 41. These cases all turn upon the legal title of the executor to the fund. The facts were not such as to charge him as trustee in addition to, or independently of, his office as executor. The principle has been recognized in those American cases in which the executor has acted solely in his capacity as executor, and the case is unembarrassed by any additional trust relation growing out of the provisions of the will, and with a knowledge of which it is sought to charge the company. Bayard v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232.

80. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Humphries, (Miss. 1890) 7 So. 522.

81. Stewart v. Firemen's Ins. Co., 53 Md. 564; Caulkins v. Memphis Gas-Light Co., 85 Tenn. 683, 4 S. W. 287, 4 Am. St. Rep. 786; Lowry v. Commercial, etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310. For a case proceeding on this principle, charging the company with notice of the powers of the executor under the terms of the will and with knowledge that he was dealing with the shares as his own property, so as to make the company liable for the loss sustained by the cestui que trust, in consequence of transferring the shares on its books, see Lowry v. Commercial, etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310. Compare Albert v. Baltimore, 2 Md. 159 [reversing 1 Md. Ch. 407], a case growing out of the same estate and the transactions of the same executor. It was there held that the mere facts that the stock in question stood on the books in the names of the executors as such, and was subsequently transferred to them as "trustees" in connection with the privilege of a certain married woman to draw the dividends, were insufficient to charge the corporation with notice of the trust, and render it liable for a loss resulting from allowing the trustees to transfer the stock.

this will charge the corporation with notice of the fact that the shares are held in trust; and if they are thereafter hypothecated without an order of court, and the corporation recognizes the transfer and completes it on its books, it will be liable for a conversion.[82] So where the certificate gives notice on its face that shares are the property of the minors, the transfer will be void both as to the company and the transferee.[83]

f. In Case of Ordinary Trustees — (I) In General. The principle is that ordinary trustees, excluding those already considered, have no powers ex officio, or as matter of law, but that one dealing with them must ascertain the extent of their powers at his peril. When therefore a share certificate shows on its face that the stock is held in trust, one lending money on a pledge of it by the trustee will be charged with notice of the fact that the latter is abusing his trust, when apparently the loan is for a private purpose, and an inquiry would reveal the fact.[84] And since the company is a custodian of the rights of the shareholders, such a notice to it of the fiduciary nature of the transferrer's title will charge it with the obligation to ascertain the extent of his power to transfer it. If it permit a transfer without doing so, it will render itself liable to the cestui que trust, who is thereby injured.[85] To protect itself against such liability, it has a right to refuse a transfer of stock held in trust until the terms of the trust are submitted to its legal adviser.[86]

(II) Lapse of Time Will Not Affect Liability After Notice of Trust. When the company is once charged with a notice of the fact that the stock is held in trust and of the limited powers of the trustee, the mere lapse of time before the transfer in fraud of the cestui que trust will not affect its liability.[87]

(III) Not Necessary That Beneficiary Should Be Named on Books. An examination of the foregoing cases will show that it is not necessary that the name of the beneficiary should be disclosed on the books, to charge the corporation with knowledge of the trust. The addition of the word "executor," "guardian," or "trustee" is sufficient to put it upon inquiry, and that is enough.[88]

(IV) In Case Shares Are Registered as Held "In Trust." It has been said that the fact that shares are entered in the books of a company and in a transfer as held "in trust" is sufficient of itself to put a purchaser on inquiry as to the right to sell them.[89]

82. Webb v. Graniteville Mfg. Co., 11 S. C. 396, 32 Am. Rep. 479, where the shares had been indorsed in blank and placed by the guardian in the hands of his attorney for purposes connected with the administration, and were by the attorney hypothecated to secure his own debt.

83. Atkinson v. Atkinson, 8 Allen (Mass.) 15.

84. Duncan v. Jaudon, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 165, 21 L. ed. 142. To the same effect see Shaw v. Spencer, 100 Mass. 382, 97 Am. Dec. 107, 1 Am. Rep. 115.

85. Maryland.— Marbury v. Ehlen, 72 Md. 206, 19 Atl. 648, 20 Am. St. Rep. 467; Stewart v. Firemen's Ins. Co., 53 Md. 564.

Massachusetts.— Loring v. Salisbury Mills, 125 Mass. 138.

Pennsylvania.— Bayard v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232.

South Carolina.—Magwood v. Southwestern Railroad Bank, 5 S. C. 379.

Tennessee.— Caulkins v. Memphis Gas-Light Co., 85 Tenn. 683, 4 S. W. 287, 4 Am. St. Rep. 786.

86. Bayard v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232.

87. Marbury v. Ehlen, 72 Md. 206, 19 Atl. 648, 20 Am. St. Rep. 467.

88. Webb v. Graniteville Mfg. Co., 11 S. C. 396, 32 Am. Rep. 479. For two early and seemingly untenable decisions opposed to this principle see Albert v. Baltimore, 2 Md. 159; Albert v. Baltimore Sav. Bank, 1 Md. Ch. 407.

A good illustration of the text will be found in a case where a corporation had issued share certificates showing on their face that they were to be taken by the holder as devisee under and subject to the provisions of a certain will. Here it was held that the corporation was chargeable with notice of the contents of the will and of the trusts imposed thereby, in all its subsequent dealings with such shares of stock. Caulkins v. Memphis Gas-Light Co., 85 Tenn. 683, 4 S. W. 287, 4 Am. St. Rep. 786.

89. Raphael v. McFarlane, 18 Can. Supreme Ct. 183. Contra, where shares are registered in a name with the addition of

(v) Liability of Corporation For Issuing New Certificate Where Trustee Transfers in Breach of His Trust. A corporation which has issued a certificate of stock to a person as trustee, and has notice of the name of the cestui que trust, but on the trustee's wrongful transfer of the certificate issues a new one, without making inquiry, is liable to the rightful owner thereby injured, without proof of collusion between the trustee and itself.[90]

(vi) In Case Shares Are Vested in Trustee Who Has Discretionary Power to Sell. Where the trustee is vested, under the terms of the instrument creating the trust, with a discretion to sell or otherwise dispose of the shares in question, it would seem that the company, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, has the right to assume that a proposed transfer is lawful and within the power conferred. It is not charged with a duty to investigate the grounds and purpose with which the discretion is exercised.[91]

(vii) Corporation Not Liable Unless Registration Is Proximate Cause of Loss Sustained by Cestui Que Trust. The negligence of the corporation in permitting the transfer must be the efficient and proximate cause of the loss sustained by the cestui que trust. If the purchaser's title was complete without the transfer, then it cannot be the efficient, proximate cause of the loss. Such a purchaser could compel a transfer to himself, and it would be the grossest injustice to hold the corporation responsible when its refusal would subject it to liability to the purchaser, and in no way improve the case of the cestui que trust.[92]

g. Bona Fide Purchasers of Shares Sold by Trustees Protected — (i) In General. The rule does not extend so far as to endanger the rights of bona fide purchasers of the shares; neither the shares nor their value can be recovered by or on behalf of the cestui que trust from such purchaser. While the successor in the trust for instance can maintain a bill in equity to recover them from the purchaser who took them from the original trustee with knowledge of the facts, yet he cannot maintain such a bill to recover shares which the former trustee assigned to one having no knowledge, from the shares or otherwise, of the trust.[93] Even where the cestui que trust is an infant at the time of the conversion, a subsequent bona fide purchaser is protected.[94]

(ii) Who So Protected as Bona Fide Purchaser — (a) In General. The bona fide purchaser who is protected in such cases must be one who either has (1) no notice of the trust;[95] or (2) no notice that the transfer is being made in violation of the trust;[96] or (3) no notice or knowledge of facts which ought to put an honest and prudent man upon inquiry as to either of the two preceding facts.

(b) Purchaser Without Notice of Trust. Within the first of these conditions, it is held that a bona fide purchaser of stock in a bank or other corporation stand-the word "trustee." Brewster v. Sime, 42 Cal. 139.

Meaning of the words "in trust," where there have been a series of transfers of the shares, with the conclusion that the transferees were trustees for the institutions of which they were respectively the officers or servants, and not for the original owner. Duggan v. London, etc., Loan Co., 18 Ont. App. 305.

Other circumstances where corporation chargeable with notice of the terms under which the shares are held and liable accordingly. Brewster v. Hartley, 37 Cal. 15, 99 Am. Dec. 237. Such notice not imputed to a custodian of shares transferred to a national bank, merely because the bank had no power to purchase such shares. Peck v. Providence Gas Co., 17 R. I. 275, 21 Atl. 543, 23 Atl. 967, 15 L. R. A. 643.

Circumstances under which corporation liable for assisting in an unauthorized sale of shares, although it acted in good faith and on advice of counsel. Caulkins v. Memphis Gas-Light Co., 85 Tenn. 683, 4 S. W. 287, 4 Am. St. Rep. 786.

90. Loring v. Salisbury Mills, 125 Mass. 138.

91. Peck v. Providence Gas Co., 17 R. I. 275, 21 Atl. 543, 23 Atl. 967, 15 L. R. A. 643. To this general principle see the full discussion in Mason v. Bank of Commerce, 16 Mo. App. 275.

92. Smith v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 91 Tenn. 221, 18 S. W. 546.

93. Atkinson v. Atkinson, 8 Allen (Mass.) 15. See also Citizens' St. R. Co. v. Robbins, 128 Ind. 449, 26 N. E. 116, 25 Am. St. Rep. 445, 12 L. R. A. 498.

94. Keeney v. Globe Mill Co., 39 Conn. 145, holding that the remedy of the infant was on administrator's bond.

95. See infra, VII, D, 13, g, (II), (B).

96. See infra, VII, D, 13, g, (II), (C).

ing in the name of trustees, without notice of the trust, will be protected, whether the trustees have the legal authority to make the transfer or not.[97]

(c) Purchaser Without Notice That Transfer Is Being Made in Violation of Trust. Within the second, it has been held that the mere addition of the word "trustee" to the name of the person who appears on the books of the corporation as the shareholder, with nothing to indicate the character of the trust or the party beneficially interested, will not deprive him of the legal capacity to transfer the stock, although by so doing he may commit a breach of trust.[98] This is in conformity with the general principle which, in the absence of fraud, protects persons who purchase from trustees, which is, that where the power exists in the trustee to sell, or as it is sometimes called, to vary the securities, the purchaser is not concerned with the disposition which he makes of the purchase-money.[99]

(d) Assignee in Insolvency Not Bona Fide Purchaser. An assignee under a statute, of the estate of an insolvent, has been held not to be a bona fide purchaser of shares, in such a sense that he can reclaim from the corporation shares which stand in the name of the insolvent without notice of a secret trust attaching to them. On the contrary the cestui que trust is entitled to have the shares transferred to him.[1]

h. Corporation Not Liable in Case of Irregular Transfer From Trustee to Cestui Que Trust. The foregoing principle has been justly held not to apply so as to make the corporation liable where a transfer which, although irregular, but such as a court of equity would order on a proper application, is made by the trustee to the beneficiary in the trust.[2]

i. In Case of Several Trustees All Must Join in Transfer. Where the shares are held in trust by several trustees, in order to a valid transfer all must join.[3]

j. Right of Cestui Que Trust to Demand That Shares Be Transferred to Himself. The corporation has of course the right to a reasonable opportunity to examine the grounds upon which the alleged cestui que trust claims that the shares be transferred to him on the books of the company. But where the company refused in such a case to examine the evidence offered and to permit a transfer, it was held proper, on a bill in equity against it to compel a transfer, where it appeared that it could easily have satisfied itself of the truth of the facts, to enter a decree against it for costs as well as to compel the transfer.[4]

14. Liability For Transferring Shares on Forged Power of Attorney — a. Corporation Liable For Transferring Shares on Forged Indorsement of Certificate — (i) In General. A corporation, as trustee for its shareholder of the title to his shares, is bound at its peril to know his signature. If therefore the power of attorney on the old certificate has been forged, and the company issues a new certificate to the holder, it will be liable to the true owner for the conversion of the shares.[5]

97. Winter v. Montgomery Gas-Light Co., 89 Ala. 544, 7 So. 773; Albert v. Baltimore Sav. Bank, 1 Md. Ch. 407; Smith v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 91 Tenn. 221, 18 S. W. 546.

98. Albert v. Baltimore Sav. Bank, 1 Md. Ch. 407.

99. Mason v. Bank of Commerce, 16 Mo. App. 275.

1. Sibley v. Quinsigamond Nat. Bank, 133 Mass. 515.

2. Butler v. Merchants' Ins. Co., 14 Ala. 777.

3. When therefore under the English Companies Clauses Act of 1845, § 18, the names of the executors of a deceased shareholder in a company were placed on the register of shareholders in respect of shares which belonged to their testator, they become joint shareholders in the individual capacity, although they might be described as executors in the register; and consequently the shares could be transferred only by means of a transfer executed by all of them. Barton v. London, etc., R. Co., 24 Q. B. D. 77, 59 L. J. Q. B. 33, 62 L. T. Rep. N. S. 164, 38 Wkly. Rep. 197.

4. Iasigi v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 129 Mass. 46.

When a trustee of shares is not a purchaser and consequently not liable to the corporation for unpaid balances. Powell v. Willamette Valley R. Co., 15 Oreg. 393, 15 Pac. 633.

Effect of sale by a cestui que trust under Massachusetts statute rendering void contracts for the sale of shares, except, etc. Duchemin v. Kendall, 149 Mass. 171, 21 N. E. 242, 3 L. R. A. 784.

5. Pratt v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 126 Mass. 443; Pratt v. Taunton Copper Mfg. Co., 123

(II) Qualification That Owner of Shares Has Not Been Negligent — (A) In General. The owner of the shares must exercise ordinary care, adapted to the circumstances of the case, and so must the corporation.[6] So far as the negligence of plaintiff is concerned, the governing principle is that parties guilty of negligence which alters the rights of others are concluded by such negligence.[7]

(B) Such Negligence May Consist in Receiving Dividends on Number of Shares Reduced by the Forgery. According to a more or less doubtful decision of Lord Denman, the negligence of the shareholder who has been defrauded by the forgery may consist in receiving dividends from the corporation on the reduced number of his shares, although he receives such dividends without knowledge of the fraud which has been practised upon him; since he is under the duty of inquiry, to the end that the corporation shall not be induced by his acceptance of the dividends to believe that the transfers are genuine.[8] But it is not easy to see how a negligent act or omission of the true owner, done after the commission of the forgery, and after the accomplishment of the purpose of the forgery, could be deemed the proximate cause of the owner's loss. The conclusion is therefore preferably put on the ground of ratification.[9]

(C) Doctrine That Shareholder's Right of Action Against Corporation Is Not Concluded by His Allowing Escape of Forger. The English court of common pleas in 1824, in a very elaborate opinion written by Best, C. J., decided that a shareholder might recover from the Bank of England the dividends arising from his stock in the funds, although at the time the dividends were payable he knew that the stock had some months previously been placed, under a forged power of attorney, in the name of another person, and had omitted to notify the bank of the circumstance, and had not demanded payment of the dividends until after the escape of the offender.[10]

(D) Theory of Liability Where Certificates Are Fraudulently Transferred by Holder's Agent. The principle which protects the corporation in such a case is that where one of two innocent parties must suffer for the fraud of a third, the loss shall rather fall on the one who enabled the third person to commit the fraud. Where the owner of shares intrusted the certificates, with blank powers of attorney, to his own agent for safekeeping, and the agent fraudulently transferred them to a third party, who in turn without knowledge of the fraud had Mass. 110, 25 Am. Rep. 37; Sewall v. Boston Water Power Co., 4 Allen (Mass.) 277, 81 Am. Dec. 701; Pollock v. National Bank, 7 N. Y. 274, 57 Am. Dec. 520; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Davenport, 97 U. S. 369, 24 L. ed. 1047; Matter of Bahia, etc., R. Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 584, 9 B. & S. 844, 37 L. J. Q. B. 176, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 467, 16 Wkly. Rep. 862.

6. Coles v. Bank of England, 10 A. & E. 437, 451, 2 P. & D. 521, 37 E. C. L. 242. Lord Denman cited Hume v. Bolland, 1 C. & M. 130, R. & M. 371, 2 Tyrw. 575, 21 E. C. L. 770, and Davis v. Bank of England, 2 Bing. 393, 409, 3 L. J. C. P. O. S. 4, 9 Moore C. P. 747, 9 E. C. L. 629, as recognizing this doctrine.

7. Sewall v. Boston Water Power Co., 4 Allen (Mass.) 277, 81 Am. Dec. 701.

8. Coles v. Bank of England, 10 A. & E. 437, 2 P. & D. 521, 37 E. C. L. 242.

9. In Bank of Ireland v. Evans, 5 H. L. Cas. 389, 3 Wkly. Rep. 573, this case received an interpretation, not only in the unanimous opinion of the judges of England, delivered to the house of lords by Mr. Baron Parke, but also in the separate opinions of the lords themselves, to the effect that what Lord Denman really held was that the negligent conduct of plaintiff in receiving the dividends on the sum to which the stock was reduced by the forged transfers was a ratification of those transfers, by which the stock was reduced to that amount. But this seems to be an unfaithful, or at least an inaccurate, interpretation of that decision, and it seems to be better to regard it as Lord Brougham did, as "a somewhat doubtful case." In Swan v. North British Australasian Co., 2 H. & C. 175, 181, 10 Jur. N. S. 102, 32 L. J. Exch. 273, 11 Wkly. Rep. 862, decided in the court of exchequer chamber in 1863, Blackburn, J., in giving his opinion, said that he did not consider Coles v. Bank of England to be binding in a court of error.

10. Davis v. Bank of England, 2 Bing. 393, 3 L. J. C. P. O. S. 4, 9 Moore C. P. 747 [reversed on error on two points in 5 B. & C. 185, 11 E. C. L. 422]. See the comments of Lord Denman on this case in Coles v. Bank of England, 10 A. & E. 437, 449, 2 P. & D. 521, 37 E. C. L. 242, and for a detailed explanation of Davis v. Bank of England, 2 Bing. 393, 3 L. J. C. P. O. S. 4, 9 Moore C. P. 747, 9 E. C. L. 629, see 2 Thompson Corp. §§ 2559, 2560, where the reasoning of Best, C. J., is quoted at length.

them transferred to himself, it was held that the owner could not recover from the corporation for the loss.[11]

(E) Not Negligence For Shareholder by Reposing Confidence in Another to Afford Opportunity For Forgery. The present law of England is that the mere fact that the shareholder reposes confidence in another, in such a manner as to make it possible for him to commit a fraud upon third persons and upon the corporation, by means of executing a forged transfer of the shares, does not make the loss thereby entailed the natural or probable result of the confidence thus reposed; because the forgery, not being the natural and probable consequence of the negligence, but an unusual and extraordinary act, is not the proximate, but is the remote, consequence of such negligence;[12] and this doctrine seems to have been substantially adopted in Massachusetts.[13]

b. Remedy in Equity of Original Shareholder Against Corporation — (I) In General. If a power of attorney to make a transfer of shares is forged, and a transfer is made by the corporation, the rightful shareholder may maintain a bill in equity to compel the corporation to issue to him a new certificate for his shares and to pay dividends thereon; in other words he may maintain a bill to compel the corporation specifically to perform what it has undertaken in his favor.[14]

(II) Form of Relief in Such Cases. The ordinary form of equitable relief is a decree compelling the corporation to reinstate him on its books, to issue a proper certificate of stock to him, and to pay him the dividends declared on the stock after its unauthorized transfer, or an alternative decree for the value of the stock and dividends.[15]

11. Pennsylvania R. Co.'s Appeal, 86 Pa. St. 80.

12. England v. Bank of England, 21 Q. B. D. 160; Swan v. North British Australasian Co., 2 H. & C. 175, 10 Jur. N. S. 102, 32 L. J. Exch. 273, 11 Wkly. Rep. 862; Bank of Ireland v. Evans, 5 H. L. Cas. 389, 3 Wkly. Rep. 573. See also Vagliano v. Bank of England, 22 Q. B. D. 103 [affirmed in 23 Q. B. D. 243, 53 J. P. 564, 58 L. J. Q. B. 357, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 419, 37 Wkly. Rep. 640 (reversed in [1891] 1 A. C. 107)].

13. Hill v. C. F. Jewett Pub. Co., 154 Mass. 172, 28 N. E. 142, 26 Am. St. Rep. 230, 13 L. R. A. 193.

The doctrine of a leading English case on this subject is that negligence that will visit the shareholder with the loss of his shares must be something more than confiding in another whose honesty he had no reason to suspect, but must be something that amounts to an estoppel or to a ratification. Bank of Ireland v. Evans, 5 H. L. Cas. 389, 3 Wkly. Rep. 573. To the same effect see England v. Bank of England, 21 Q. B. D. 160.

Alteration assisted by the gross negligence of a clerk of the corporation, of an assignment of part of the shares named in the certificate, so as to make it an assignment of all, broker committing the fraud becoming insolvent, corporation liable to the owner as for a conversion. Sewall v. Boston Water Power Co., 4 Allen (Mass.) 277, 81 Am. Dec. 701.

Circumstances insufficient to discharge corporation.— It has been held that a corporation which transfers shares of stock on the surrender of the original certificates and the supposed authority of powers of attorney from executors whose signatures were forged is not relieved from liability to the estate by reason of the fact that the forgery was committed by a son of one of the executors, who had been intrusted with a key to the box in which the shares were kept, when there was nothing to show that the father had reason to suppose him untrustworthy. Pennsylvania Ins. Co. v. Franklin F. Ins. Co., 181 Pa. St. 40, 37 Atl. 191, 40 Wkly. Notes Cas. 145, 37 L. R. A. 780.

14. Pratt v. Taunton Copper Mfg. Co., 123 Mass. 110, 25 Am. Rep. 37; Sewall v. Boston Water Power Co., 4 Allen (Mass.) 277, 81 Am. Dec. 701; Pollock v. National Bank, 7 N. Y. 274, 57 Am. Dec. 520; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Davenport, 97 U. S. 369, 24 L. ed. 1047; Ashby v. Blackwell, Ambl. 503, 27 Eng. Reprint 326, 2 Eden. 299, 28 Eng. Reprint 913; Midland R. Co. v. Taylor, 8 H. L. Cas. 751, 8 Jur. N. S. 419, 31 L. J. Ch. 336, 6 L. T. Rep. N. S. 73, 10 Wkly. Rep. 382; Sloman v. Bank of England, 9 Jur. 243, 14 L. J. Ch. 226, 14 Sim. 475, 37 Eng. Ch. 475; Hildyard v. South Sea Co., 2 P. Wms. 76, 24 Eng. Reprint 647. See also supra, VII, D, 7, a.

15. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Davenport, 97 U. S. 369, 24 L. ed. 1047.

A form of a decree will be found in Brown v. Howard F. Ins. Co., 42 Md. 384, 20 Am. Rep. 90. Compare Lowry v. Commercial, etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310; Swan v. North British Australasian Co., 7 H. & N. 603.

English rule where blank transfers are lodged with a broker who has fraudulently filled them up. Transfer void; original owner entitled to have certificates delivered up and their registration in the name of the

c. Liability of Corporation to Bona Fide Subpurchaser—(I) In General. On the ordinary principle of equitable estoppel in pais,[16] applied to the doctrine that a share certificate is a continuing affirmation by the corporation to the public, intending that the public shall act upon the faith of it in dealing with the shares, that the person named therein is the rightful owner of the number of shares described therein,[17] if the certificate has been issued in pursuance of a forged indorsement of the certificate held by the previous owner, the corporation is bound to make good the loss sustained by a bona fide purchaser of the new certificate.[18]

(II) American Doctrine Applicable to Certificates Originally Issued and to Those Reissued in Effecting Transfer. The American doctrine, applicable alike to forged or fraudulent share certificates originally issued, or to those reissued in effecting a transfer, is that forged or fraudulent stock certificates are not certificates in legal contemplation and give no rights of their own force. Still the act of the corporation in issuing them, they having been accepted and acted upon in good faith by another, estops the corporation from denying their validity, in so far as they are made the foundation of a claim for indemnity against the corporation.[19]

d. Liability of Corporation For Fraudulent Issues or Overissues of Its Shares—(I) In General. Restating what has been gone over in former sections[20] and leaving out of view the question whether the new certificate is issued in consequence of the company having been misled by a forgery of the old one, the broader doctrine is that if the officer of the corporation charged with the duty of issuing share certificates to its members and of transferring their shares on its books, with power to countersign, seal, and issue certificates, upon surrender and cancellation of prior certificates, etc., makes a fraudulent issue the company will be bound to make it good in the form of damages.[21] purchaser restrained. Tayler v. Great Indian Peninsula R. Co., 4 De G. & J. 559, 61 Eng. Ch. 442.

Equitable action by original owner in the case of a forged indorsement followed by a transfer to an innocent purchaser, and still another transfer and a refusal of the corporation to issue a certificate to the last transferee. Brown v. Howard F. Ins. Co., 42 Md. 384, 20 Am. Rep. 90. Compare Lowry v. Commercial, etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310; Swan v. North British Australasian Co., 7 H. & N. 603.

Notice by corporation to a shareholder of an application to register a transfer of his shares and a neglect by the shareholder of such notice held not to estop him from setting up that his signature to the transfer was a forgery. Barton v. London, etc., R. Co., 24 Q. B. D. 77, 59 L. J. Q. B. 33, 62 L. T. Rep. N. S. 164, 38 Wkly. Rep. 197.

That the original shareholder has no remedy in equity against a subsequent bona fide purchaser in the case of a transfer of his shares on a forged certificate see Pratt v. Taunton Copper Mfg. Co., 123 Mass. 110, 25 Am. Rep. 37.

Circumstances under which the corporation was exonerated where forged certificates of its shares were issued by its president, who was not its proper officer to issue such certificates. Hill v. C. F. Jewett Pub. Co., 154 Mass. 172, 28 N. E. 142, 26 Am. St. Rep. 230, 13 L. R. A. 193.

If one of two executors forges signature of the other to a blank transfer, it will not pass title to the shares, since there must be a valid transfer by both. Barton v. London, etc., R. Co., 24 Q. B. D. 77, 59 L. J. Q. B. 33, 62 L. T. Rep. N. S. 164, 38 Wkly. Rep. 197.

16. As to which see Matter of Bahia, etc., R. Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 584, 9 B. & S. 844, 37 L. J. Q. B. 176, 16 Wkly. Rep. 862, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 467; Gregg v. Wells, 10 A. & E. 90, 2 P. & D. 296, 37 E. C. L. 71; Pickard v. Sears, 6 A. & E. 469, 2 N. & P. 488, 33 E. C. L. 257; Freeman v. Cooke, 2 Exch. 654, 12 Jur. 777, 18 L. J. Exch. 114.

17. See supra, VII, D, 3, a, (II).

18. Shaw v. Port Philip, etc., Gold Min. Co., 13 Q. B. D. 103, 53 L. J. Q. B. 369, 50 L. T. Rep. N. S. 685, 32 Wkly. Rep. 771; Matter of Bahia, etc., R. Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 584, 9 B. & S. 844, 37 L. J. Q. B. 176, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 467, 16 Wkly. Rep. 862; Davis v. Bank of England, 2 Bing. 393, 3 L. J. C. P. O. S. 4, 9 Moore C. P. 747, 9 E. C. L. 629.

19. Kisterbock's Appeal, 127 Pa. St. 601, 18 Atl. 381, 24 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 446, 14 Am. St. Rep. 868.

20. See supra, VI, K, 5, a, (I) et seq.

21. Allen v. South Boston R. Co., 150 Mass. 200, 22 N. E. 917, 15 Am. St. Rep. 185, 5 L. R. A. 716; Boston, etc., R. Co. v. Richardson, 135 Mass. 473; Machinists' Nat. Bank v. Field, 126 Mass. 345; Pratt v. Taunton Copper Mfg. Co., 123 Mass. 110, 25 Am. Rep. 37; Batavia Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 106 N. Y. 195, 12 N. E. 433, 60 Am. Rep. 440; Titus v. Great Western Turnpike Road, 61 N. Y. 237; Holbrook v. New Jersey Zinc Co., 57 N. Y. 616; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30; Fifth Ave. Bank v. Forty-Second St., etc., R. Co., 17 N. Y. Suppl.

(II) First Taker of Original Certificates Has No Such Right of Action Against Company. The right of action against the company, on the principles already explained,[22] is a right of action in bona fide subtransferees of the new certificates which have been issued in consequence of the forgery. The first person deceived by the forgery has on principle no right of action against the company for recognizing the forgery and issuing a new certificate to him, since it is his duty to discover the forgery as much as it is the duty of the company.[23] It was distinctly held by the English court of appeal in 1880 that the issue of the company's stock certificate under a forged transfer is not a representation by the company that the immediate transfer to the person procuring it is valid, so as to give him a right of action against the company if it proves invalid.[24]

(III) But Company Has Right of Action Against Him. On the contrary, if the purchaser exhibits to the corporation a forged assignment of some of its shares, or a forged power of attorney to assign it, and thus obtains a new certificate which he sells, he is liable to the corporation, not because it is his duty to attend to the transfer of the shares, but because he has impliedly represented to the corporation that the forged signature is the genuine signature of the shareholder, whereby he has deceived the corporation.[25]

e. When Corporation Not Bound by Forged Indorsement Made By Its Transfer Agent. A corporation is not bound by the act of its treasurer and transfer agent in forging the name of a holder of shares to an assignment thereof, as his act is not within the scope of his employment as in case of an issue of the stock certificate itself.[26]

E. Bona Fide Purchasers of Shares — 1. In General — a. Certificates of Shares Are Not Negotiable Instruments — (I) In General. Certificates of corporate shares are not negotiable paper in the full sense of the term.[27] The most that can be said is that such instruments possess a quasi-negotiability dependent upon the customs of merchants and the convenience of trade. They are not in the matter of transferability protected strictly as negotiable paper.[28]

(II) Custom or Usage of Regarding Them as Negotiable Not Good. It being an established principle of law that certificates of stock are not to be 826, 44 N. Y. St. 379; Moores v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 111 U. S. 156, 4 S. Ct. 345, 28 L. ed. 385; Shaw v. Port Philip, etc., Gold Min. Co., 13 Q. B. D. 103, 53 L. J. Q. B. 369, 50 L. T. Rep. N. S. 685, 32 Wkly. Rep. 771.

22. See supra, VII, D, 14, c, (I).

23. This is clearly brought out in Hildyard v. South Sea Co., 2 P. Wms. 76, 24 Eng. Reprint 647, where the transferee of the shares under the forged letter of attorney was by reason of his negligence held to pay the cost of the suit in equity to restore the title to the real owner.

24. Simm v. Anglo-American Tel. Co., 5 Q. B. D. 188, 44 J. P. 280, 49 L. J. Q. B. 392, 42 L. T. Rep. N. S. 37, 28 Wkly. Rep. 290. Compare Hart v. Frontino, etc., Gold Min. Co., L. R. 5 Exch. 111, 39 L. J. Exch. 93, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 30.

25. Boston, etc., R. Co. v. Richardson, 135 Mass. 473.

That it is the duty of the first transferee to examine the genuineness of the transfer and that the loss is primarily upon him see Hambleton v. Central Ohio R. Co., 44 Md. 551; Brown v. Howard F. Ins. Co., 42 Md. 384, 20 Am. Rep. 90.

Rule as to forged commercial paper is illustrated in Vagliano v. Bank of England, 22 Q. B. D. 103 [affirmed in 23 Q. B. D. 243, 53 J. P. 564, 58 L. J. Q. B. 357, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 419, 37 Wkly. Rep. 640 (reversed in [1891] 1 A. C. 107)].

26. New York City Second Nat. Bank v. Curtiss, 2 N. Y. App. Div. 508, 37 N. Y. Suppl. 1028, 74 N. Y. St. 323 [affirmed in 153 N. Y. 681, 48 N. E. 1107].

27. Winter v. Belmont Min. Co., 53 Cal. 428; Sherwood v. Meadow Valley Min. Co., 50 Cal. 412 [followed in Barstow v. Savage Min. Co., 64 Cal. 388, 1 Pac. 349, 49 Am. Rep. 705]; Hall v. Rose Hill, etc., Road Co., 70 Ill. 673; Weaver v. Barden, 49 N. Y. 286; Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599. Compare the following cases in New York: Moore v. Metropolitan Nat. Bank, 55 N. Y. 41, 14 Am. Rep. 173 [overruling McNeil v. New York City Tenth Nat. Bank, 46 N. Y. 325, 7 Am. Rep. 341; Bush v. Lathrop, 22 N. Y. 535].

28. East Birmingham Land Co. v. Dennis, 85 Ala. 565, 567, 5 So. 317, 7 Am. St. Rep. 73, 2 L. R. A. 836 (opinion by Somerville, J.); Shaw v. Spencer, 100 Mass. 382, 97 Am. Dec. 107, 1 Am. Rep. 115. See also Sewall v. Boston Water Power Co., 4 Allen (Mass.) 277, 81 Am. Dec. 701.

regarded as negotiable paper, it is not permissible to prove a custom or usage among stock-brokers to the contrary, the reason being that no usage is good which conflicts with an established principle of law, any more than one which contravenes or nullifies the express stipulations of a contract.[29]

(III) Are Said to Be Quasi-Negotiable. Most business men, in conformity with a settled general usage, have come to regard such certificates as partaking very nearly of the character of negotiable notes or bonds, which by mere delivery pass from hand to hand the debts which they evidence. It was proved in one case that it was the custom in the city of New York that share certificates so indorsed in blank should pass from hand to hand by delivery,[30] and courts, which take judicial notice of the usages of trade[31] will no doubt take notice that such is the custom of trade throughout the whole country. The conclusion then is, as said by Mr. Justice Davis, that certificates of stock, "although neither in form or character negotiable paper . . . approximate to it as nearly as practicable."[32]

b. View That Bona Fide Purchaser of Shares Takes Only Title of His Vendor — (I) Statement of View. From the premise that certificates of stock are not negotiable paper, the conclusion would naturally follow that a bona fide assignee of such certificates takes them subject to the equities which exist against the assignor.[33] Under this theory an unregistered assignment will not pass title as against creditors of the assignor,[34] as against subsequent purchasers from him without notice,[35] or as against the lien of the corporation on the shares for the indebtedness of the shareholder.[36] A qualified statement of this rule is that an innocent purchaser for value of a certificate of corporate shares of stock, although indorsed in blank by the owner, obtains no better title to the stock than this vendor had, in the absence of negligence on the part of the owner.[37] Under this rule the transfer of shares stands on the same footing as an assignment of a merchant's account, a non-negotiable note, or any other species of personal property. With this premise in mind, it is sometimes laid down by judges in general terms that the purchaser in good faith of corporate shares gets no higher title than his vendor had to convey.[38] This is the general rule with regard to sales of personal property[39] other than negotiable securities, at least in America, where there is no market overt; and it is the English rule with regard to sales of shares, in the absence of special circumstances raising an estoppel, something more than the mere act of signing a blank transfer and delivering the certificate to another person.[40]

29. East Birmingham Land Co. v. Dennis, 85 Ala. 565, 5 So. 577, 7 Am. St. Rep. 73, 2 L. R. A. 836; Shaw v. Spencer, 100 Mass. 382, 97 Am. Dec. 107, 1 Am. Rep. 115. To the same effect see East Tennessee, etc., R. Co. v. Johnston, 75 Ala. 596, 51 Am. Rep. 489; Lehman v. Marshall, 47 Ala. 362.

30. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Richards, 6 Mo. App. 454.

31. Davis v. Hanly, 12 Ark. 645; Gregory v. Wendell, 39 Mich. 337, 33 Am. Rep. 390; Greenleaf Ev. (15th ed.) § 5.

32. For a discussion of the grounds on which the courts uphold the seminegotiability of corporate shares see the language of Davis, J., in Lanier v. South Bend First Nat. Bank, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 369, 377, 20 L. ed. 172 [quoted with approval in Supply Ditch Co. v. Elliott, 10 Colo. 327, 15 Pac. 691, 3 Am. St. Rep. 586, and in many other cases].

33. Perhaps the ablest presentation of this view is found in the powerful opinion of Comstock, J., in Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599, 623, which is understood not to express the present law of New York on this subject. See infra, VII, E, 1, c, (I).

34. See supra, VII, D, 6, a, (I); Blanchard v. Dedham Gaslight Co., 12 Gray (Mass.) 213.

35. Pinkerton v. Manchester, etc., R. Co., 42 N. H. 424.

36. Georgetown Union Bank v. Laird, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 390, 4 L. ed. 269.

37. East Birmingham Land Co. v. Dennis, 85 Ala. 565, 5 So. 317, 7 Am. St. Rep. 73, 2 L. R. A. 836.

38. Young v. South Tredegar Iron Co., 85 Tenn. 189, 2 S. W. 202, 4 Am. St. Rep. 752.

39. Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599.

40. London, etc., Banking Co. v. London, etc., Plate Bank, 20 Q. B. D. 232; Williams v. Colonial Bank, 38 Ch. D. 388, 57 L. J. Ch. 826, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 643, 36 Wkly. Rep. 625; Colonial Bank v. Hepworth, 36 Ch. D. 36, 56 L. J. Ch. 1089, 57 L. T. Rep. N. S. 148, 36 Wkly. Rep. 259; France v. Clark, 26

(II) Rule Applicable Where Share Certificate Is Purchased From Thief. The general rule is that one who purchases personal property from a thief (except in England, in market overt) gets no title. This principle applies to all kinds of personal property, except to money and negotiable securities. A certificate of corporate stock does not form an exception to this rule.[41] It has been held to apply in a case where one having no title to shares of corporate stock purloins the certificate, duly indorsed in blank, and for a valuable consideration transfers it to an innocent third party.[42]

e. Contrary View, Where Certificate Is Delivered With Power of Attorney Indorsed in Blank, That Bona Fide Purchaser Gets Good Title—(I) Statement of View. A contrary rule, and one generally recognized and applied in America, is that a person in possession of a certificate of shares having indorsed thereon a written transfer and power of attorney in blank, signed by the person named therein as owner, may transfer to a third person, who has no notice or knowledge of any equities existing between the original owner and such holder, or any informality in the title of such holder, a greater interest in the certificate, and consequently in the shares represented by it, than the original owner had.[43]

(II) Reasons of This Rule. "Certificates of stock," it has been said, "are

Ch. D. 257, 53 L. J. Ch. 585, 50 L. T. Rep. N. S. 1, 32 Wkly. Rep. 466 [affirming 22 Ch. D. 830, 52 L. J. Ch. 362, 48 L. T. Rep. N. S. 185, 31 Wkly. Rep. 374, and distinguishing In re Tahiti Cotton Co., L. R. 17 Eq. 273].

An excellent illustration of the English rule is furnished by a case where the English executors of a deceased English holder of shares in an American railroad signed blank transfers, with powers of attorney indorsed on the certificates, and gave them to their brokers in London to enable them to receive the dividends, and if it should become necessary to sell the shares, and the brokers fraudulently deposited them with a London bank as security for advances made to themselves, and afterward became bankrupt, in which case it was held that as between the bank and the executors the right to the shares stood in the executors and that they were entitled to be restored as holders of them. Williams v. Colonial Bank, 38 Ch. D. 388, 57 L. J. Ch. 826, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 643, 36 Wkly. Rep. 625. Compare Duggan v. London, etc., Loan, etc., Co., 18 Ont. App. 305 [overruling 19 Ont. 272]. See also supra, VII, D, 14, a, (II), (A) et seq. Thus it has been held in that country that the conduct of executors in delivering to a broker transfers of stock without filling out blank powers of attorney was consistent either with an intention to sell or pledge the shares, or to have themselves registered as the owners, and therefore did not estop them from setting up their title as against a bank to which he had fraudulently transferred them, for the bank ought to have inquired into the broker's authority. Colonial Bank v. Cady, 15 App. Cas. 267, 60 L. J. Ch. 131, 63 L. T. Rep. N. S. 27, 39 Wkly. Rep. 17.

41. Barstow v. Savage Min. Co., 64 Cal. 388, 1 Pac. 349, 49 Am. Rep. 705 [distinguishing or denying Winter v. Belmont Min. Co., 53 Cal. 428, and following Sherwood v. Meadow Valley Min. Co., 50 Cal. 412]. See also East Birmingham Land Co. v. Dennis, 85 Ala. 565, 5 So. 317, 7 Am. St. Rep. 73, 2 L. R. A. 836.

42. Anderson v. Nicholas, 28 N. Y. 600. See to the same effect Knox v. Eden Musee American Co., 148 N. Y. 441, 42 N. E. 988, 51 Am. St. Rep. 700, 31 L. R. A. 779 [reversing 74 Hun (N. Y.) 483, 26 N. Y. Suppl. 482, 57 N. Y. St. 48]; Bangor Electric Light, etc., Co. v. Robinson, 52 Fed. 520 (although there is nothing on the certificate to show that it is irregularly transferred, and although there is no person within reach from whom inquiry can be made).

43. National Safe Deposit, etc., Co. v. Gray, 12 App. Cas. (D. C.) 276.

A somewhat different statement of the same rule has been to say that where, on the face of certificates of stock, absolute ownership appears in him who is in possession thereof, and there is no evidence outside showing actual or constructive notice that the ownership is in another, the person taking such certificates for value gets title, good against the actual owner, who put it in the power of the one in possession to deal therewith as his own.

Alabama.— Winter v. Montgomery Gas Light Co., 89 Ala. 544, 7 So. 773.

California.— Brewster v. Sime, 42 Cal. 139.

Georgia.—Stinson v. Thornton, 56 Ga. 377; Nutting v. Thomason, 46 Ga. 34.

Illinois.— Williams v. Fletcher, 129 Ill. 356, 21 N. E. 783.

Maryland.— Farmers', etc., Bank v. Wayman, 5 Gill 336.

Michigan.— Walker v. Detroit Transit R. Co., 47 Mich. 338, 11 N. W. 187.

New Jersey.—Mt. Holly, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Ferree, 17 N. J. Eq. 117.

New York.— Weaver v. Barden, 49 N. Y. 286 (collecting the authorities); McNeil v. New York City Tenth Nat. Bank, 46 N. Y. 325, 7 Am. Rep. 341.

Pennsylvania.— Westinghouse v. German Nat. Bank, 196 Pa. St. 249, 46 Atl. 380; Burton v. Peterson, 12 Phila. 397, 35 Leg. Int. 144.

assignable, and pass from hand to hand by indorsement, as bills of exchange and promissory notes pass, and holders of such certificates are prima facie presumed to be bona fide owners thereof, and an innocent purchaser thereof for value will hold them against the true owner, where the latter has placed it in the power of the assignor to perpetrate a fraud upon the innocent assignee."[44] If therefore the corporation is thus induced to issue new certificates of shares in the place of the old ones, to facilitate a division and sale, a purchaser of one of the new certificates in good faith, for value without notice of any infirmity connected with it, will get a good title.[45] The theory of the courts which uphold this line of doctrine is that statutory or other provisions that the shares shall be transferable on the books of the company are for the benefit of the company merely, and do not extend to the protection of the general public, of third parties,[46] or even of the shareholders.[47] If the corporation assent to such transfer otherwise than on the books, and by such transfer the persons to whom it is transferred become shareholders, no objection can be made by the corporation or by the shareholder as long as he is in fact a shareholder.[48]

d. When Unregistered Transfers Are Subject to Equity of Corporation — (i) In General. Where there is a power, either in the corporation at large or in its directors, to regulate the transfer of its stock, they may require by by-law the transfer to be made on the books of the company; and in that case the title of a purchaser before the transfer is entered on the books, although good between him and the vendor, is not a legal but an equitable title merely, and being no more than an equity, it will be subject to the prior equity, if any, of the corporation. In other words the assignee merely steps into the shoes of the assignor and takes no greater title or right than he has.[49] Under this theory he takes the risk that the equitable title is such as will enable him to compel a legal transfer.[50]

(ii) When Not Subject to Such Equity. Opposed to this are holdings to the effect that a transfer of shares by one to a bona fide purchaser for value vests the title in the purchaser free from equities between the seller and the corporation of which the purchaser was ignorant at the time of the transfer, although provided for by a by-law of the corporation. The fact of the existence of such a by-law is not enough to charge him with notice. The power of corporations to make by-laws governing the transfer of their stock does not include the power to create liens thereon affecting purchasers for value without notice.[51]

United States.— Johnston v. Laflin, 103 U. S. 800, 26 L. ed. 532; Cowdrey v. Vandenburgh, 101 U. S. 572, 25 L. ed. 923.

England.— Dodds v. Hills, 2 Hem. & M. 424, 12 L. T. Rep. N. S. 139.

So enacted by statute in New Hampshire by N. H. Laws (1887), c. 16, p. 417.

44. Supply Ditch Co. v. Elliott, 10 Colo. 327, 333, 15 Pac. 691, 3 Am. St. Rep. 586. See also Lanier v. South Bend First Nat. Bank, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 369, 20 L. ed. 172.

45. Caulkins v. Memphis Gas-Light Co., 85 Tenn. 683, 4 S. W. 287, 4 Am. St. Rep. 786 [citing Cherry v. Frost, 7 Lea (Tenn.) 1; Cornick v. Richards, 3 Lea (Tenn.) 1]. See also supra, VII, D, 14, c, (i) et seq.

46. Chouteau Springs Co. v. Harris, 20 Mo. 382; St. Louis Perpetual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149; Utica Bank v. Smalley, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 770, 14 Am. Dec. 526; U. S. v. Cutts, 25 Fed. Cas. No. 14,912, 1 Sumn. 133.

47. Joslyn v. St. Paul Distilling Co., 44 Minn. 183, 46 N. W. 337.

48. Smock v. Henderson, 4 Wils. (Ind.) 241.

49. Vansands v. Middlesex County Bank, 26 Conn. 144; Stebbins v. Phenix F. Ins. Co., 3 Paige (N. Y.) 350; Lockwood v. Mechanics' Nat. Bank, 9 R. I. 308, 11 Am. Rep. 253; Georgetown Union Bank v. Laird, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 390, 4 L. ed. 269.

50. Wood v. Maitland, 10 Phila. (Pa.) 84, 30 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 352.

Under the civil code of California, section 324, providing that a transfer of stock by indorsement and delivery of the certificate "is not valid, except between the parties, until the same is entered upon the books," an assignee of the certificate, according to a later holding in that state, takes subject to the bank's equity, and as the condition is sufficient to put him on inquiry he is not a bona fide purchaser. Jennings v. State Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 331, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233. Compare Anglo-Californian Bank v. Grangers' Bank, 63 Cal. 359.

51. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Grangers' Bank, 63 Cal. 359; Driscoll v. West Bradley, etc., Mfg. Co., 59 N. Y. 96; Bullard v. National Eagle Bank, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 589, 21 L. ed. 923.

When a "charter" in Louisiana does not

(III) Doctrine That Corporation Is Estopped to Deny Validity of Certificates Formally Issued — (A) In General. A corporation is estopped to deny the validity of stock certificates issued in proper form and under its seal, and duly signed by its officers authorized to issue certificates, as against holders of such certificates who have taken them for value without knowledge that they had been fraudulently issued, or without being in possession of such facts as should have put a careful and fair-minded man upon such an inquiry as would have led to the discovery of such facts.[52]

(B) Bona Fide Purchasers of Such New Certificates Protected. Hence a purchaser of corporate shares, receiving new certificates therefor, signed by the proper officers, although issued through their fraud, is, if he acts in good faith, entitled to be protected as a bona fide purchaser. He owes no duty to the corporation to see to it that the seller surrenders the old certificates and transfers them on the books of the corporation.[53] The reason is that stock certificates constitute a continuing affirmation by the corporation of the ownership of the stated amount of stock by the person designated therein or his assignee, and the purchaser has a right to rely thereon and claim the benefit of an estoppel against the corporation.[54] After there has been a surrender of the old certificate to the corporation to effect a transfer,[55] and an issue by the corporation of a new certificate to the holder of the old, and the new certificate has passed into the hands of a bona fide purchaser, there has been in law a change of title to the shares; the new purchaser will hold the certificate as against the world;[56] although as already stated[57] the corporation may be liable to the original owner for a conversion.[58]

(C) Corporations Liable For Issuing Such Fraudulent Certificates Creating Overissues. As already stated[59] a corporation is liable in damages where a certificate of its capital stock is issued to a bona fide purchaser by its treasurer, with create a lien in favor of the corporation.— The "charter" of a corporation organized under a general law in Louisiana seems to be the same as the articles of association where the corporation is organized under a general statute in other states. Such a "charter," it has been held, cannot create a lien in favor of the corporation upon the shares of its members for debts due by them to the corporation, unless the creation of such a lien is authorized by the general law, which it is not. New Orleans Nat. Banking Assoc. v. Wiltz, 10 Fed. 330, 4 Woods 203. So held in regard to a by-law. Bryon v. Carter, 22 La. Ann. 98.

52. Massachusetts.— Allen v. South Boston R. Co., 150 Mass. 200, 22 N. E. 917, 15 Am. St. Rep. 185, 5 L. R. A. 716; Boston, etc., R. Co. v. Richardson, 135 Mass. 473; Machinists' Nat. Bank v. Field, 126 Mass. 345; Pratt v. Taunton Copper Mfg. Co., 123 Mass. 110, 25 Am. Rep. 37.

Missouri.— Mechanics' Sav. Inst. v. Potthoff, 9 Mo. App. 574.

New York.— Holbrook v. New Jersey Zinc Co., 57 N. Y. 616; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30.

Ohio.— Lee v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 2 Cinc. Super. Ct. 298.

Pennsylvania.— Kisterbock's Appeal, 127 Pa. St. 601, 18 Atl. 381, 24 Wkly. Notes Cas. 446, 14 Am. St. Rep. 868.

England.— Shaw v. Port Philip, etc., Gold Min. Co., 13 Q. B. D. 103, 53 L. J. Q. B. 369, 50 L. T. Rep. N. S. 685, 32 Wkly. Rep. 771.

53. Allen v South Boston R. Co., 150 Mass. 200, 22 N. E. 917, 15 Am. St. Rep. 185, 5 L. R. A. 716; Knox v. Eden Musee American Co., 148 N. Y. 441, 42 N. E. 988, 51 Am. St. Rep. 700, 31 L. R. A. 779 [reversing 74 Hun (N. Y.) 483, 26 N. Y. Suppl. 482, 57 N. Y. St. 48 (affirming 25 N. Y. Suppl. 164)].

54. Holbrook v. New Jersey Zinc Co., 57 N. Y. 616; Kisterbock's Appeal, 127 Pa. St. 601, 18 Atl. 381, 24 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 446, 14 Am. St. Rep. 868; State Bank v. Schuylkill Bank, 1 Pars. Eq. Cas. 180; Matter of Bahia, etc., R. Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 584, 9 B. & S. 844, 37 L. J. Q. B. 176, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 467, 16 Wkly. Rep. 862. See also Jefferson v. Burford, 17 S. W. 855, 13 Ky. L. Rep. 650. When therefore stock was issued on the vote of directors, and used by them as a pledge to obtain a loan, the corporation was held estopped from setting up that the issue of unpaid stock is prohibited by the constitution, and the holder was entitled to the same to the extent of the loan. Gasquct v. Crescent City Brewing Co., 49 Fed. 496.

55. See supra, VII, D, 4, e, (I), (A) et seq.; VII, D, 11, f, (I) et seq.

56. Machinists' Nat. Bank v. Field, 126 Mass. 345; Pratt v. Taunton Copper Mfg. Co., 123 Mass. 110, 25 Am. Rep. 37; Mandlehaum v. North American Min. Co., 4 Mich. 465.

57. See supra, VII, D, 10, c, (IV).

58. Winter v. Montgomery Gaslight Co., 89 Ala. 544, 7 So. 773.

59. See supra, VI, K, 5, c, (I).

whom blank certificates, signed by its president, have been left, although all of the stock which the corporation is entitled to issue has been previously issued, and although the treasurer fraudulently issued the certificate in question to effect some purpose of his own. Nor does the fact that the certificate thus issued was transferable on the books of the company only on the surrender of the old certificate, and that no old certificate was ever surrendered, relieve the corporation from liability, if the purchaser of the stock paid full value for it and otherwise acted in good faith.[60] Such a certificate is not indeed a genuine certificate, and does not give to the holder the rights of a shareholder; it merely gives to him the right to be indemnified by the corporation to the extent of his expenditure on the faith of it.[61]

(D) Effect of Pledge of Such Fraudulent Certificate. If such a certificate is given in pledge to an innocent taker, the thing pledged is not shares of stock, but merely a right to call upon the corporation for indemnity against any loss suffered in consequence of relying upon its representations, contained in the share certificate, that the person named therein is entitled to the shares of stock therein named.[62]

(E) Corporation Estopped by Its Books. A bona fide transferee of shares, which the books of the corporation show to be paid up, is not liable for any alleged deficiency in the consideration received by the corporation for it, of which he had no notice.[63]

(F) Rights of Bona Fide Purchasers to Unpaid Shares. It follows that bona fide purchasers of stock in a corporation, which was paid for by the subscriber in land, while the charter of the company allowed it to take real estate for stock, cannot be held liable for any difference between the actual value of the land and the price at which it was taken, especially where it is impossible to restore the parties to the original condition, because coal in the mine had been largely mined out of it.[64]

e. Purchaser Not Bound to Look Beyond Face of Share Certificate — (I) Statement of Rule. Where the shares of a corporation are offered for sale by the person named in the certificate, an intending purchaser is not required to look beyond the recitals of the certificate in regard to his title or the equities of the corporation, or to suspect fraud in the issuing of the shares, where all seems fair and honest. He is not bound to examine the books of the corporation to ascertain the validity of a transfer.[65] The reason arises from the nature of a share certificate, which as already stated is a continuing affirmation of the ownership of the specified amount of stock by the person designated therein or his assignee, until it is withdrawn in some manner recognized by law; and a purchaser in good faith has a right to rely thereon and to claim the benefit of an estoppel in his favor

60. Allen v. South Boston R. Co., 150 Mass. 200, 22 N. E. 917, 15 Am. St. Rep. 185, 5 L. R. A. 716.

61. Kisterbock's Appeal, 127 Pa. St. 601, 18 Atl. 381, 24 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 446, 14 Am. St. Rep. 868. See also Jeanes' Appeal, 116 Pa. St. 573, 11 Atl. 862, 2 Am. St. Rep. 624; Wright's Appeal, 99 Pa. St. 425.

62. Kisterbock's Appeal, 127 Pa. St. 601, 18 Atl. 381, 34 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 446, 14 Am. St. Rep. 868.

Fraudulent pledger not entitled to recover from fraudulent pledgee any part of what the latter may have received from the corporation on the claim of the pledgee for indemnity, although such claim may have been paid in genuine shares which afterward increased in value to an amount exceeding the debt of the pledger to the pledgee. Kisterbock's Appeal, 127 Pa. St. 601, 18 Atl. 381, 24 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 446, 14 Am. Rep. 868.

Circumstances under which a corporation does not estop itself from disputing the validity of spurious share certificates which the holder has pledged for a loan and afterward repurchased. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 11 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 50, 24 Cinc. L. Bul. 198, opinion by Taft, J.

63. Mallinckrodt Chemical Works v. Belleville Glass Co., 34 Ill. App. 404. See also supra, VI, M, 3, a et seq.

64. Brant v. Ehlen, 59 Md. 1; Keystone Bridge Co. v. McCluney, 8 Mo. App. 496; Du Pont v. Tilden, 42 Fed. 87.

65. Salisbury Mills v. Townsend, 109 Mass. 115; Bayard v. Farmers' Bank, 52 Pa. St. 232; Foreman v. Bigelow, 9 Fed. Cas. No. 4,934, 4 Cliff. 508; Lowry v. Commercial, as against the corporation.[66] Accordingly it has been held that a corporation whose certificate of stock is outstanding cannot defeat the title of a purchaser in good faith without actual notice, by proof of the pendency of an action in a competent court of New York, to determine the title of the original holder of the stock. Its own positive statements in the certificate cannot be overcome by such a constructive theoretical notice.[67] For the same reason a purchaser of corporate stock receiving new certificates therefor, signed by the proper officers, although issued through their fraud, is, if he acts in good faith, entitled to be protected as a bona fide purchaser. He owes no duty to the corporation to see to it that the seller surrenders any old certificates and transfers them on the books of the corporation.[68]

(11) Rule Limited to Cases Where Certificate Has Been Issued by Corporate Officer Empowered to Issue Such Certificates. By parallel reasoning the corporation should be held liable where through its negligence it suffers its share certificates, formally filled out, signed and sealed, to get out upon the market where they may operate to deceive innocent purchasers; and this is probably the American rule. But where the certificates have fraudulently and without negligence of the corporation gotten into the possession of an officer of the corporation having no power to issue share certificates, and he issues them and negotiates with innocent persons, then it seems that the corporation is not liable to such innocent takers.[69]

f. Other Holdings With Respect to Rights of Bona Fide Purchasers. No discrimination can be made by the corporation between bona fide purchasers of the stock of a corporation or company which is on sale in open market, as to the right to perfect their title to the stock, when no discretionary power is reserved to that effect.[70] An innocent purchaser of corporate shares for value from the apparent owner obtains an indefeasible title and is unaffected by a secret defect in his seller's title, although the seller was a trustee and guilty of a breach of trust in making the sale.[71] A transfer of shares on the books of the corporation, made by de facto officers of the corporation, to an innocent party is valid,[72] under principles elsewhere explained.

etc., Bank, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,581, Taney 310.

66. Holbrook v. New Jersey Zinc Co., 57 N. Y. 616. This principle is recognized in Hall v. Rose Hill, etc., Road Co., 70 Ill. 673.

67. Holbrook v. New Jersey Zinc Co., 57 N. Y. 616.

68. Allen v. South Boston R. Co., 150 Mass. 200, 22 N. E. 917, 15 Am. St. Rep. 185, 5 L. R. A. 716.

69. Thus where the certificates were not issued by the corporate officer empowered to issue them, but were issued by its president, who had no such power, but who made use of the facilities afforded by his office to get possession of some blank certificates which had been signed, and also of the corporate seal which he had affixed to them, and then fraudulently issued them for his own purposes, it was held that the certificates so issued stood on the footing of forged certificates, and that they did not estop the corporation; and further that the corporation had not been negligent in permitting its president to continue in office and have access to its certificate book and seal in such a sense as to make it liable for his act in issuing the certificates, although it knew of his former misconduct in pledging his own shares to another person in violation of an agreement to pledge them to an associate, and that he was insolvent. Hill v. C. F. Jewett Pub. Co., 154 Mass. 172, 28 N. E. 142, 26 Am. St. Rep. 230, 13 L. R. A. 193. Similarly it has been held that it is not within the apparent scope of the authority of the secretary of a corporation to issue stock certificates directly as belonging to himself; and his representations that they represent real transactions, implied from the fact of their issuance, will not estop the company to deny their validity. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 11 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 50, 24 Cinc. L. Bul. 198, opinion by Taft, J.

70. Rice v. Rockefeller, 134 N. Y. 174, 31 N. E. 907, 47 N. Y. St. 542, 29 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 120, 30 Am. St. Rep. 658, 17 L. R. A. 237.

71. Smith v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 91 Tenn. 221, 18 S. W. 546. That equity will not require a purchaser in good faith of corporate shares at more than their full value from a solvent corporation, which had purchased them from the holder, to surrender them on the ground that the corporation had no power to purchase its own shares without express legislative authority see Jefferson v. Burford, 17 S. W. 855, 13 Ky. L. Rep. 650.

72. Morris v. Stevens, 17 Pa. Co. Ct. 209.

2. Who Are and Who Are Not Bona Fide Purchasers — a. Must Have Paid Purchase-Money Before Notice of Prior Right or Equity — (I) In General. To entitle a party to the character of a bona fide purchaser, without notice of a prior right or equity, he must not only have obtained the legal right to the property, but he must have paid the purchase-money or some part thereof, or have parted with value on the faith of the purchase, before notice of such prior right or equity. The mere giving of security to pay the purchase-money is not sufficient to entitle the purchaser to the protection of the court.[73]

(II) Pendency of Action in Another State Not Such Notice. The pendency of an action in another state to determine the title to corporate stock is not constructive notice to the purchaser in New York of a defect in the title of his assignor, and does not affect the title acquired by him.[74]

b. Circumstances Sufficient to Put Purchaser on Inquiry and Prevent Him From Being Regarded as Innocent Purchaser — (I) In General. Where a certificate of shares is regular on its face, imports ownership in its holder, and contains no intimation of any equities impairing such ownership or full title, whether in the corporation or in third persons, an intending purchaser is not bound to suspect fraud or infirmity of title, or to go back and search the register, but may rely upon the disclosures of the certificate.[75] But one who knows that the person purporting to sell or pledge is acting in fraud of the rights of the real owner, or who has information sufficient to put a reasonable and just man upon such inquiry as would discover that such is the fact, is not an innocent purchaser within the meaning of this rule. Thus, when the purchaser knew that the holder held the certificate in a fiduciary character, he was not protected when he took it to secure a debt growing out of another transaction.[76] So where the vendor was a boy of only sixteen years of age, it was held that the vendee was not a bona fide purchaser.[77] So where one buys a certificate of corporate stock not under seal of the corporation and not signed by the person whom he knows is its president under a representation that it is all the stock of the company, but with the knowledge that certain persons are officers and directors of the company, and that the articles of incorporation require directors to be shareholders, these facts are sufficient to put him on inquiry, and he cannot be said to be an innocent purchaser.[78]

(II) When Purchaser From Corporate Officer Bound to Investigate His Authority. One who accepts newly-issued certificates of stock from an

73. Weaver v. Barden, 49 N. Y. 286.

74. Holbrook v. New Jersey Zinc Co., 57 N. Y. 616.

That a lis pendens can have no extraterritorial effect see Carr v. Lewis Coal Co., 96 Mo. 149, 8 S. W. 907, 9 Am. St. Rep. 328 [affirming 15 Mo. App. 551]; Shelton v. Johnson, 4 Sneed (Tenn.) 672, 70 Am. Dec. 265, 269 note.

75. See as supporting the principle of the text Scarlett v. Ward, 52 N. J. Eq. 197, 27 Atl. 820; Duggan v. London, etc., Loan, etc., Co., 18 Ont. App. 305.

76. Prall v. Tilt, 28 N. J. Eq. 479.

77. Anderson v. Nicholas, 28 N. Y. 600.

78. Byers v. Rollins, 13 Colo. 22, 21 Pac. 894.

Other circumstances insufficient to put purchaser on inquiry.— A purchaser of a certificate of stock indorsed in blank by the shareholder named therein, from an officer of the corporation who has no part to perform in the execution of the certificate, is not charged with the duty of inquiring as to its validity. Knox v. Eden Musee American Co., 148 N. Y. 441, 42 N. E. 988, 51 Am. St. Rep. 700, 31 L. R. A. 779 [reversing 74 Hun (N. Y.) 483, 26 N. Y. Suppl. 482, 57 N. Y. St. 48 (affirming 25 N. Y. Suppl. 164)]. It has been held that an owner of railway stock who loans it and transfers the certificate to his son, who takes out a new certificate and delivers it to his father, with a power of attorney authorizing the transfer on the corporate books, with full power of substitution, is a "bona fide purchaser for value," within the meaning of Mass. Stat. (1884), c. 229, providing that the delivery of a stock certificate to such a purchaser, with a written power of attorney to sell, assign, or transfer the same, shall be a sufficient delivery to transfer the title. Andrews v. Worcester, etc., R. Co., 159 Mass. 64, 33 N. E. 1109.

Other circumstances sufficient to put intending purchaser upon inquiry were disclosed in the following cases: Sabin v. Woodstock Bank, 21 Vt. 353; Colonial Bank v. Cady, 15 App. Cas. 267, 60 L. J. Ch. 131, 63 L. T. Rep. N. S. 27, 39 Wkly. Rep. 17 [affirming 38 Ch. D. 388, and reversing 36 Ch. D. 659, 57 L. T. Rep. N. S. 188].

officer of a corporation, who has authority from the corporation to sign, seal, and issue for the corporation certificates of its stock, as collateral security for a personal loan made to the officer, is bound to inquire whether the officer has authority to issue the certificates for the purpose intended; and if he does not make such inquiry, and the officer in fact issued them in fraud of the rights of the corporation, he takes them subject to those rights.[79]

(III) Notice to Purchaser From Corporate Officer Acting as Purchaser's Agent. The mere fact that the officer of the corporation who makes fraudulent issue of its shares to a purchaser is acting as broker for the purchaser at the time does not impute to the purchaser constructive notice of the fraudulent character of his act, the principle being that notice to an agent is not imputed to his principal when the agent is engaged in committing an independent fraudulent act on his own account, and when the facts to be imputed relate to this fraudulent act.[80]

(IV) Notice of Broker's Want of Authority Implied From His Failure to Execute Blank Power of Attorney. If the principal delivers certificates to the broker without executing the usual power of attorney indorsed thereon, this fact will put any one with whom the broker seeks to negotiate the shares upon inquiry as to the extent of his authority.[81]

c. Who Not Purchasers For Value — (I) In General. On principle, supported by some authority, in order to make a purchaser of corporate shares at the time of the transfer a purchaser for value, he must have parted with new value before other conflicting superequities supervened. Thus it has been held that, although there has been a negotiation for a sale, yet if the creditor of the intending vendor attaches before the purchase-price is paid and the certificates delivered, the rights of the attaching creditor are superior to those of the vendee.[82] And more broadly and in analogy to the rule in respect of land, and it may be added on the soundest grounds, it has been held that one is a holder for value within the meaning of the rule only in so far as he parts with value at the time of the transaction; he is not a purchaser for value to the extent of an overdue check surrendered and an antecedent debt receipted for.[83]

(II) Purchaser of Shares at Execution Sale A purchaser of corporate stock at execution sale against the registered owner is not a bona fide purchaser as against a prior transferee thereof by a transfer of the certificate, where, although at the time of the levy he was ignorant of the transfer, he was notified of it at the sale, and there is no constitutional or statutory prohibition of transfer of stock by means of transfer of the certificate.[84]

F. Pledges and Mortgages of Shares — 1. Nature and Incidents of Contract — a. Delivery of Share Certificate Essential. Delivery of the thing pledged being ordinarily essential to a contract of pledge,[85] and, in cases where the subject of the pledge is intangible delivery of its symbol being essential, it follows that shares of stock cannot be pledged, unless they are evidenced by certificates, which 79. Farrington v. South Boston R. Co., 150 Mass. 406, 23 N. E. 109, 15 Am. St. Rep. 222, 5 L. R. A. 849. Compare Allen v. South Boston R. Co., 150 Mass. 200, 22 N. E. 917, 15 Am. St. Rep. 185, 5 L. R. A. 716, where the preceding case is distinguished.

80. Allen v. South Boston R. Co., 150 Mass. 200, 22 N. E. 917, 15 Am. St. Rep. 185, 5 L. R. A. 716.

81. Colonial Bank v. Cady, 15 App. Cas. 267, 60 L. J. Ch. 131, 63 L. T. Rep. N. S. 27, 39 Wkly. Rep. 17 [affirming 38 Ch. D. 388, 57 L. J. Ch. 826, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 643, 36 Wkly. Rep. 625].

82. Young v. South Tredegar Iron Co., 85 Tenn. 189, 2 S. W. 202, 4 Am. St. Rep. 752.

83. Moodie v. Seventh Nat. Bank, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 366, 33 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 400. Compare Conrad v. Fisher, 37 Mo. App. 352, 8 L. R. A. 147, where this subject is discussed with respect to ordinary personal property.

84. Wilson v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 108 Mo. 588, 18 S. W. 286, 32 Am. St. Rep. 624.

85. Brewster v. Hartley, 37 Cal. 15, 99 Am. Dec. 237; Atkinson v. Foster, 134 Ill. 472, 25 N. E. 528; Vanstone v. Goodwin, 42 Mo. App. 39; Casey v. Schneider, 96 U. S. 496, 24 L. ed. 790; Casey v. Cavaroc, 96 U. S. 467, 24 L. ed. 779; New Orleans Banking Assoc. v. Wiltz, 10 Fed. 330. See also Caffin v. Kirwan, 7 La. Ann. 221.

must be transferred and delivered to the pledgee. If therefore there are no certificates there can be no pledge.[86] On the other hand the doctrine is constantly recognized that shares of corporate stock may be pledged by a contract accompanied with the simple delivery of the share certificates.[87]

b. Distinction Between Pledge and Mortgage of Shares — (I) In General. The substantial distinction between a pledge and a mortgage seems to be that in the case of a pledge the thing itself must pass by a delivery, either actual or symbolical, while at the same time the legal title does not pass; whereas in the case of a mortgage the legal title does pass, while the thing mortgaged may remain in the possession of the mortgagor.[88] Moreover if the debt, to secure the payment of which the pledge is made, be not discharged when due, the pledgee does not for that reason obtain an absolute title to the pledge; but he then acquires the right to sell it and to pay himself out of the proceeds of the sale. If such proceeds are not sufficient to discharge the debt entire, the pledger remains liable for the deficiency; if they are more than sufficient, the pledgee is responsible for the surplus.[89]

(II) Mortgage of Shares With Possession Retained by Mortgagor. In the case of a mortgage, the question of delivery, as between the parties, saving always the rights of creditors and subsequent purchasers, is immaterial. If the mortgage is foreclosed and the stock sold, the purchaser may maintain an action against the corporation to compel the issue of the certificate to himself; and to such action the mortgagor is not a necessary party.[90] On the other hand a pledge by an instrument in writing (or, in Louisiana, by a notarial act), not accompanied by a delivery of the certificate, is no pledge as against third persons, and, notwithstanding such an attempted pledge, is not good as against a judgment creditor of the pledger.[91]

c. Title How Vested After Pledge. It is often said that as between the pledger and pledgee of corporate stock the general property remains in the pledger, and the pledgee has a special property in the pledge during the continuance of the 86. Lallande v. Ingram, 19 La. Ann. 364; Bidstrup v. Thompson, 45 Fed. 452.

87. Dewey v. Bowman, 8 Cal. 145; Factors', etc., Ins. Co. v. Marine Dry Dock, etc., Co., 31 La. Ann. 149; Blouin v. Hart, 30 La. Ann. 714; Vanstone v. Goodwin, 42 Mo. App. 39; Doak v. State Bank, 28 N. C. 309.

The modern theory of a pledge was understood in the time of Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Ld. Raym. 909, where it is said that the fourth sort of bailment is where goods or chattels are delivered to another as a pawn to be a security to him for money borrowed of him by the bailor. Of course where the legal title passes it cannot be called a bailment. On the other hand where the legal title does not pass the instrument will not be allowed to operate as a mortgage. Vanstone v. Goodwin, 42 Mo. App. 39. And it is reasoned in one case that a delivery of incorporeal property in pledge, such as corporate shares, must necessarily be effectuated by a writing; but this means nothing more than that the symbol representing the shares, namely, the share certificate, must be in writing or printing and that the indorsement thereon must of course be so. Brewster v. Hartley, 37 Cal. 15, 99 Am. Dec. 237. See also Dewey v. Bowman, 8 Cal. 145; Bowman v. Wood, 15 Mass. 534; Jewett v. Warren, 12 Mass. 300, 7 Am. Dec. 74; Wilson v. Little, 2 N. Y. 443, 51 Am. Dec. 307.

The nature of pledges of certificates of corporate stock is treated in the following cases:

California.— Thompson v. Toland, 48 Cal. 99.

Illinois.— Rozet v. McClellan, 48 Ill. 345, 95 Am. Dec. 551.

Maryland.— Worthington v. Tormey, 84 Md. 182.

Massachusetts.— Fisher v. Brown, 104 Mass. 259, 6 Am. Rep. 235.

New York.— Van Blarcom v. Broadway Bank, 9 Bosw. 532; Hasbrouck v. Vanderveort, 4 Sandf. 74.

Pennsylvania.— Conyngham's Appeal, 57 Pa. St. 474.

West Virginia.— Whitteker v. Charleston Gas Co., 16 W. Va. 717.

Wisconsin.— Heath v. Silverthorn Lead Min. Co., 39 Wis. 146.

88. See Dewey v. Bowman, 8 Cal. 145; Vanstone v. Goodwin, 42 Mo. App. 39; Doak v. State Bank, 28 N. C. 309. See also Newton v. Fay, 10 Allen (Mass.) 505, 506, where the distinction is explained by Chapman, J.

89. Dewey v. Bowman, 8 Cal. 145.

For an instrument which was held to be neither a pledge nor a mortgage see Vanstone v. Goodwin, 42 Mo. App. 39.

90. Tregear v. Etiwanda Water Co., 76 Cal. 537, 18 Pac. 658, 9 Am. St. Rep. 245.

91. Bidstrup v. Thompson, 45 Fed. 452.

contract of pledge.[92] Until the debt matures the pledgee has merely a possessory lien upon the shares; and when the debt to secure which they are pledged to him is extinguished the lien is also extinguished.[93] The general property which the pledger is said usually to retain is nothing more than the legal right to the restoration of the thing pledged on payment of the debt.[94]

d. Neither Notice to Corporation Nor Transfer to Corporate Books Necessary to Valid Pledge as Between Parties. Neither a notice to the corporation nor a transfer on its books is essential to the creation of a pledge of corporate stock, valid as between the pledger and pledgee.[95] The transfer of shares on the books of the corporation is not essential to the liability of the corporation to the pledgee of stock as collateral security, for dividends accruing during the continuance of the pledge, if the corporation had actual notice of the pledge.[96] A pledger of corporate shares has a right to cause a proper entry of the transaction between himself and his pledger to be entered upon the books of the corporation for his protection, although the contract is silent on the subject.[97] A court of equity will not decree a transfer of corporate stock on the corporate books in favor of a pledgee, unless he shows a present interest in the stock.[98] A pledgee of share certificates in place of which new stock has been issued, and which have been treated as canceled, although not surrendered, has no right to have the stock transferred to him upon the books of the company, where he did not pay or advance any valuable consideration on account of it.[99]

e. Absolute Transfer May Be Shown by Parol to Have Been Intended as Pledge. Although the transfer is absolute and there is no written contract of pledge, the pledger may show, on a bill in equity to redeem, that the delivery

92. Cross v. Eureka Lake, etc., Canal Co., 73 Cal. 302, 14 Pac. 885, 2 Am. St. Rep. 808; Brewster v. Hartley, 37 Cal. 15, 99 Am. Dec. 237; Dewey v. Bowman, 8 Cal. 145; Wilson v. Little, 2 N. Y. 443, 51 Am. Dec. 307; Garlick v. James, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 146, 7 Am. Dec. 294 (case of pledge of a note).

93. Cross v. Eureka Lake, etc., Canal Co., 73 Cal. 302, 14 Pac. 885, 2 Am. St. Rep. 808. See also Brewster v. Hartley, 37 Cal. 15, 99 Am. Dec. 237. That it is not invariably true that the legal title always remains in the pledger see the intelligent discussion of the subject by Ruggles, J., in Wilson v. Little, 2 N. Y. 443, 444, 447, 51 Am. Dec. 307.

94. Wilson v. Little, 2 N. Y. 443, 51 Am. Dec. 307.

That the special property in the pledge passes to the pledgee see Doak v. State Bank, 28 N. C. 309.

Sense in which an equitable title merely passes to the pledgee see Noble v. Turner, 69 Md. 519, 524, 16 Atl. 124.

Sense in which an innocent subpledgee of the shares without notice of the rights of the original holder may be regarded as acquiring a title which will be negatively protected by a court of equity by withholding the usual remedy see Otis v. Gardner, 105 Ill. 436. In such cases it is reasoned that, corporate shares being similar to choses in action, an equitable title passes without observing the requirements of the charter or by-laws that there shall be a registration of the transfer on the books. Laing v. Burley, 101 Ill. 591; Kellogg v. Stockwell, 75 Ill. 68. But it must remain true that in a strict sense, in the case of a mere pledge of corporate shares, no title passes to the pledgee either legal or equitable.

95. Pitot v. Johnson, 33 La. Ann. 1286; Friedlander v. Slaughter House Co., 31 La. Ann. 523; Factors', etc., Ins. Co. v. Marine Dry Dock, etc., Co., 31 La. Ann. 149; Smith v. Crescent City Live-Stock Landing, etc., Co., 30 La. Ann. 1378; May v. Cleland, 117 Mich. 45, 75 N. W. 129, 44 L. R. A. 163; Meredith Village Sav. Bank v. Marshall, 68 N. H. 417, 44 Atl. 526; Masury v. Arkansas Nat. Bank, 93 Fed. 603, 35 C. C. A. 476.

96. Guarantee Co. of North America v. East Rome Town Co., 96 Ga. 511, 23 S. E. 503, 51 Am. St. Rep. 150.

97. Spreckels v. Nevada Bank, 113 Cal. 272, 45 Pac. 329, 54 Am. St. Rep. 348, 33 L. R. A. 459.

98. Grand Forks Second Nat. Bank v. St. Thomas First Nat. Bank, 8 N. D. 50, 76 N. W. 504.

99. Miller v. Houston City St. R. Co., 69 Fed. 63, 16 C. C. A. 128.

What is transfer on books.— A note made by the secretary of a corporation on the margin of the stubs of certain certificates of stock transferred as collateral security by the owner that the transferee holds them as security for a loan does not constitute a transfer of the stock on the books of the corporation, as against creditors of the transferrer, where such transfer has not been authorized by either party. McFall v. Buckeye Grangers' Warehouse Assoc., 122 Cal. 468, 55 Pac. 253, 68 Am. St. Rep. 47.

Registration with county clerk.— That a pledge of shares as collateral security for a debt is not within the terms of a statute providing for the registration of stock transfers with the county clerk, etc., see Masury v. Arkansas Nat. Bank, 93 Fed. 603, 35 C. C. A. 476 [reversing 87 Fed. 381].

was intended as a pledge to secure a debt and not as an absolute transfer of title to the shares.[1]

f. Effect of Pledge of Shares Upon Lien of Corporation Thereon. If the corporation has a valid lien upon its shares and if a person to whom they are offered in pledge has notice of such lien, as where the lien is created by a general law of which all persons are charged with knowledge,[2] or where notice of it is conveyed upon the share certificate, then it is not necessary to say that this lien cannot be displaced by the mere act of the shareholder concurring with the act of a third party. And while no doubt the corporation may waive or divest itself of such lien by overt corporation action,[3] yet clearly the act of a subordinate ministerial officer, not a member of the board of directors, such as the assistant secretary, in certifying that the corporation has no such lien, will not have this effect.[4] It is also a sound view that where the corporation issues certificates, stating that the shares are paid up, and without reserving a lien for any unpaid balance on the face of the certificates, it ought to be estopped from asserting a lien against an innocent purchaser or pledgee without notice. But where the certificate itself contains a recital that no transfer shall take place on the books of the corporation until after payment of all indebtedness due to the corporation by the persons in whose name the shares stand on the books of the corporation, then one who takes such a certificate, in pledge or otherwise, holds the shares subject to any lien of the corporation for any indebtedness of the pledger to the corporation, and this is so, although no lien is given to the corporation, either by its charter, by statute, or by its by-laws. It is simply the case where two parties create a lien by a compact between themselves, and where third persons having notice of it take subject to it.[5] If the case is one of a banking corporation, the acceptance of such a certificate by the shareholder and a subsequent loan to him by the bank effects a contract which creates an equitable lien on his shares for the amount of the indebtedness.[6] Hence if there is a delivery of the certificates in pledge, and the pledgee gives no notice to the bank of his rights, and the pledger afterward becomes indebted to it, its lien will be superior to the equities of the pledgee.[7] A citizen of the United States holding shares in a corporation existing under the laws of a foreign country holds them subject to the laws and policy of that country, and where, by an amendment of its laws, the corporation acquires a lien which under such laws becomes paramount to a previous pledge, the priority of such lien will be recognized by the courts of the United States.[8] A corporation having knowledge of a prior pledge of stock cannot extend credit to the shareholder and rely upon its lien as against him, although the statute provides that transfers or liens affecting the stock, if not made or registered upon the books, are invalid as to bona fide creditors or subsequent purchasers without notice.[9]

g. Whether Pledgee Becomes Shareholder — (i) In General. This question must generally be answered by the terms of the governing statute and the contract of pledge. In the absence of anything in the statute or in the contract varying the rule, it is and must be, that a pledgee of shares, no matter what form

1. Newton v. Fay, 10 Allen (Mass.) 505.
2. Birmingham Trust, etc., Co. v. East Lake Land Co., 101 Ala. 304, 13 So. 72.
3. See supra, VII, D, 2, j, (I) et seq.
4. Kenton Ins. Co. v. Bowman, 84 Ky. 430, 1 S. W. 717, 8 Ky. L. Rep. 467.
5. Jennings v. State Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233; Vansands v. Middlesex County Bank, 26 Conn. 144.
6. Vansands v. Middlesex County Bank, 26 Conn. 144.

As to the lien of a banking corporation upon the shares of its shareholders see Morgan v. Bank of North America, 8 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 73, 11 Am. Dec. 575.

7. Jennings v. State Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233.

In Louisiana a pledge of shares of stock in a corporation is valid by the delivery of the certificate, and will not be defeated by the fact that the pledger afterward becomes indebted to the corporation, the character of which prohibits transfers in case of the shareholder being indebted to the company. Shares of stock are not "credits" within the meaning of La. Civ. Code, art. 3158. Pitot v. Johnson, 33 La. Ann. 1286.

8. Hudson River Pulp, etc., Co. v. Warner, 99 Fed. 187, 39 C. C. A. 452.
9. Birmingham Trust, etc., Co. v. Louisiana Nat. Bank, 99 Ala. 379, 13 So. 112, 20 L. R. A. 600.

the transaction takes other than that of an absolute transfer, does not become a shareholder so as to make him liable for an assessment laid against the shares, in the absence of any conduct on his part estopping him from asserting his true character.[10] If there is a statute permitting persons holding shares as trustees to vote at corporate meetings, this principle prevents the principle from being extended so as to include pledgees who hold the shares as collateral security, and such persons are not entitled to vote.[11]

(II) No Right to Inspect Corporate Books. A mere pledgee has therefore no right to inspect the books of the corporation.[12]

(III) Right of Pledgee to Vote at Corporate Elections — When Give Proxy to Pledger. If the shares have been transferred to the pledgee on the books of the corporation he becomes the legal owner as between the corporation and himself, and has prima facie the right to vote in respect of the shares for directors, which right the pledger has not. But it is held that equity will in a proper case compel him to give the pledger a proxy.[13] A statute provided that a certificate of stock issued as a pledge shall so state, and also give the name of the pledger, who alone shall be responsible as a shareholder. A certificate stated that it was held as collateral for the note of a person named, but did not state that he was the pledger. It was held that the statute was not complied with, and hence the pledgee, who held the certificate, was entitled to vote the stock rather than the pledger.[14]

h. Pledges of Shares Held in Trust. If one to whom shares are offered in pledge has notice, actual or constructive, that they are held in trust for another, then if they are transferred to him in violation of the conditions of the trust he acquires no rights with respect to them.[15] On the other hand, where the intending pledgee has no such notice, and the share certificate does not convey such notice to him, then the principle obtains that he is not bound to suspect fraud or to institute inquiry, where all seems fair and honest and conformable to correct business dealings.[16] For example a bank taking a pledge of shares, the certificate of which shows that the pledger is entitled as executor, is not chargeable with notice of the settlement under which such stock is held, where its manager inquires of the borrower whether he is absolutely entitled to the stock, and is informed that he is, and examines the will, which contains no reference to any trust, and endeavors to obtain a new certificate in the pledger's name, but is informed that such is not the practice of the company where the holder is entitled as executor.[17]

i. Rights of Innocent Holders of Shares. Where a share certificate with a transfer indorsed in blank and signed by the person named therein as owner has been intrusted to a broker or other third person, and has been by such custodian fraudulently pledged to raise money for his own purposes, the pledgee being without knowledge that the broker is not the real owner, then whether the pledgee will get a better title than the real owner depends upon which of two divergent theories, already considered,[18] prevails in the particular jurisdiction. In

10. Beal v. Essex Sav. Bank, 67 Fed. 816, 15 C. C. A. 128.

The question of the liability of a pledgee of shares to the creditors of the corporation is most fully considered infra, VIII, M, 1, b et seq.

11. National Bank of Commerce v. Allen, 90 Fed. 545, 33 C. C. A. 169 [citing People v. Hill, 16 Cal. 113; Miller v. Murray, 17 Colo. 408, 30 Pac. 46; Com. v. Dalzell, 152 Pa. St. 217, 25 Atl. 535, 34 Am. St. Rep. 640; Hoppin v. Buffum, 9 R. I. 513, 11 Am. Rep. 291].

12. Matter of Brooklyn First Nat. Bank, 44 N. Y. App. Div. 635, 60 N. Y. Suppl. 1138 [affirming 28 Misc. (N. Y.) 662, 59 N. Y. Suppl. 1042].

13. In re Argus Printing Co., 1 N. D. 434, 48 N. W. 347, 26 Am. St. Rep. 639, 12 L. R. A. 781. See also In re Barker, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 509; Ex p. Wilcocks, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 402, 17 Am. Dec. 525; McDaniels v. Flower Brook Mfg. Co., 22 Vt. 274.

14. Wentworth Co. v. French, 176 Mass. 442, 57 N. E. 789.

15. Paterson First Nat. Bank v. National Broadway Bank, 156 N. Y. 459, 51 N. E. 398, 42 L. R. A. 139 [modifying 22 N. Y. App. Div. 24, 47 N. Y. Suppl. 880].

16. See supra, VII, E, 2, b, (I).

17. Powell v. London, etc., Bank [1893] 1 Ch. 610.

18. See supra, VII, E, 1, b, (I) et seq.

England the pledgee acquires no inchoate title as against the real owner, which can ripen into a real title by a registration of the transfer on the books of the company, the blank space in the certificate being filled up by the name of such pledgee.[19] In some jurisdictions in America the real owner, by intrusting the broker or other person with the means of deceiving third persons as to his title to the shares, may lose his own title by the misconduct of the broker with reference to them.[20]

j. Incidental Rights of Pledgee. A pledgee of shares cannot maintain actions at law against the directors for losses sustained by reason of their negligence or mismanagement rendering the shares valueless,[21] since even the shareholders cannot.[22]

k. Status of Pledgee Where Debt Has Been Paid. Where the debt for which the shares had been pledged has been paid, and the legal title is still allowed to stand in the name of the pledgee, his trust relation is not determined, but he holds the shares in trust for the pledger, subject to the obligation of returning the same upon the demand of the latter. When therefore shares of stock of an incorporated company had been conveyed by plaintiff to defendant as collateral security for a debt, and the debt was afterward paid, but nevertheless the shares continued to stand in defendant's name, and while so standing were assessed under an act of the legislature, were sold for the non-payment of the assessment, and defendant became the purchaser, it was held that the sale was invalid, and that defendant was liable in trover for the value of the shares at the time of the alleged sale, and for the dividends he had received thereon, together with interest, after deducting the amount of the assessment and expenses of the sale.[23] Holders of conditional scrip in a corporation, who are equitable holders of pledged stock subject to the pledge, have the right to redeem it by paying the debt at any time after it is due.[24]

l. When Pledgee Not Entitled to New Certificate. It has been held that a pledgee of stock is not entitled to have the certificate surrendered and a new one issued in his name when the contract is silent on the subject; since the statute requiring an entry of a transfer upon the books of the corporation to protect the transferee is satisfied by entering the names of the pledger and pledgee, the number or designation of the shares, and the date of the transfer, without the cancellation of the certificates and the issue of new ones.[25]

m. Protection of One Who Takes Pledge of Shares From Married Woman. In a state where married women have the capacity to acquire and transfer personal property as if sole, if shares stand in the name of a married woman, the certificate is evidence of an absolute ownership by her, and if nothing indicates a trust in favor of another person, one from whom a loan is solicited upon a pledge of the shares as security is warranted in making the loan upon an assumption of ownership and power to transfer, and is not bound to institute inquiries for the purpose of ascertaining how she obtained them.[26]

2. Validity of Pledges of Shares as Against Third Parties — a. Assignment of Shares in Pledge Without Delivery Not Good as Against Creditors Without Notice. An assignment of shares in pledge, without a delivery of the share cer-

19. Fox v. Martin, 64 L. J. Ch. 473.

20. See supra, VII, E, 1, c, (I). It has been held that a transfer of shares in a corporation by the trustees of the corporation to whom the entire stock has been issued, to be held as collateral security for money loaned the corporation, made to a subscriber to the capital stock of such corporation on the payment of his subscription, and at the request of the corporation, conveys a perfect title, even though the pledge of stock to the trustee was invalid. Northwood Union Shoe Co. v. Pray, 67 N. H. 435, 32 Atl. 770.

21. Barnes v. Swift, 11 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 321, 26 Cinc. L. Bul. 110.

22. Smith v. Hurd, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 371, 46 Am. Dec. 690; Howe v. Barney, 45 Fed. 668.

23. Freeman v. Harwood, 49 Me. 195, opinion by Tenney, C. J.

24. Higgins v. Lansingh, 154 Ill. 301, 40 N. E. 362.

25. Spreckels v. Nevada Bank, 113 Cal. 272, 45 Pac. 329, 54 Am. St. Rep. 348, 33 L. R. A. 459.

26. Leitch v. Wells, 48 N. Y. 585.

tificates, is not good as to creditors who are without actua. notice of such assignment, but creates merely a secret lien; so that such a creditor or his representative may seize them to the exclusion of the interest in them which has passed to the assignee.[27]

b. Doctrine That Attachment of Creditor Prevails Over Unregistered Pledge. If therefore the shares are not regularly transferred to the pledgee on the books of the corporation, the pledge will not, according to the prevailing opinion,[28] be valid as against subsequent attaching or execution creditors of the pledger;[29] but such an unrecorded transfer in pledge vests such a title in the pledgee as equity will protect against one attaching the stock in a suit against the pledger with knowledge of facts sufficient to put him on inquiry regarding the so-called equitable ownership.[30]

c. Doctrine That Unregistered Pledge Prevails Over Attachments and Executions. Contrary to the foregoing, other courts hold that where the pledge has been perfected by the delivery of the share certificates the right of the pledgee, although the shares have not been transferred to him, or the fact of the pledge noted on the corporate books, will prevail over the rights of attachment and execution creditors or purchasers at execution sales claiming through them.[31] According to one of these decisions the right of the pledgee is superior to that of the purchaser on execution against the pledging shareholder, although the execution is on a judgment in favor of the corporation against the shareholder for the amount of an assessment on the stock.[32] It has been held that the right of a pledgee to corporate stock is superior to that of the purchaser of the stock at a subsequent sale under execution, although the corporation was not notified of the transfer of the stock, and no transfer was made on the books of the corporation, where the purchaser at the sale had notice of the pledgee's rights before his purchase.[33]

d. Power of Pledgee Holding Certificate Indorsed in Blank to Pass Title to Innocent Purchaser. So also a pledgee to whom shares of corporate stock are delivered, with an assignment indorsed in blank and an irrevocable power of transfer signed and sealed by the transferrer, may pass a good title thereto to an innocent purchaser, or may pass such an interest therein to an innocent pledgee that the latter may hold them as security for his advances after other securities are exhausted, the reason being that the pledger delivers something more than the mere possession of a chattel; he delivers a written evidence of a transfer of

27. Atkinson v. Foster, 134 Ill. 472, 25 N. E. 528 (the shares were seized by a receiver); Bidstrup v. Thompson, 45 Fed. 452.

28. See supra, VII, D, 6, a, (I) et seq.

29. Ft. Madison Lumber Co. v. Batavian Bank, 71 Iowa 270, 32 N. W. 336, 60 Am. Rep. 789, 77 Iowa 393, 42 N. W. 331; Noble v. Turner, 69 Md. 519, 16 Atl. 124; State Ins. Co. v. Sax, 2 Tenn. Ch. 507.

30. Weston v. Bear River, etc., Min. Co., 6 Cal. 425; Cheever v. Meyer, 52 Vt. 66. An entry in a stock-book of a corporation that certain stock has been assigned as collateral security is sufficient to protect the assignee against the claims of judgment creditors of the assignor, under Iowa Code, § 1078, providing that a transfer of corporate stock is not valid as to third persons until regularly entered in the company's books. Moore v. Marshalltown Opera-House Co., 81 Iowa 45, 46 N. W. 750. B and S were indebted to A by their joint note. A calling on them for security, they agreed that they would each transfer to him fifteen shares of certain insurance stock, and that the stock of S, after securing the note, should be held by A as security to B for certain liabilities assumed by him for S. B transferred his fifteen shares to A, and S went to the insurance office to transfer his, when it was found that all his stock had been attached by a creditor. The creditors of S soon after instituted proceedings in insolvency against him. The attachment being vacated thereby, it was held that B acquired no lien whatever on the fifteen shares of the stock of S. Shipman v. Ætna Ins. Co., 29 Conn. 245.

31. Masury v. Arkansas Nat. Bank, 93 Fed. 603, 35 C. C. A. 476 [reversing 87 Fed. 381].

32. Dearborn v. Washington Sav. Bank, 18 Wash. 8, 50 Pac. 575.

33. May v. Cleland, 117 Mich. 45, 75 N. W. 129, 44 L. R. A. 163. Compare Buffalo German Ins. Co. v. Buffalo Third Nat. Bank, 162 N. Y. 163, 56 N. E. 521, 48 L. R. A. 107 [reversing 29 N. Y. App. Div. 137, 51 N. Y. Suppl. 667 (affirming 19 Misc. (N. Y.) 564, 43 N. Y. Suppl. 550)].

full title, without expressing on its face the conditions upon which the title is absolutely transferred.[34]

e. Purchasers With Notice Take Subject to Rights of Pledger — (I) Rule Stated. It is scarcely necessary to say that one who purchases shares of corporate stock, whether at a private or judicial sale,[35] with actual notice,[36] or with a knowledge of such facts as upon reasonable inquiry would enable him to know[37] that the certificates have been pledged, takes subject to the rights of the pledgee and gets only such title as the pledgee had.

(II) What Imports Notice — (A) Certificate Issued "In Trust" to Person Who Attempts to Pledge It. By analogy to the rule elsewhere pointed out,[38] if the certificate shows on its face that it is issued "in trust" to the person who attempts to pledge it, this is sufficient to put the pledgee upon inquiry and to charge him with notice of the trust, and of all that he might have ascertained by inquiry; and if he pledges it in breach of his trust, the pledgee must account to the cestui que trust or to the substituted trustee for the amount misappropriated by the pledger.[39]

(B) Owner's Name in Certificate Not Notice of His Rights. Where the owner of stock delivers the certificate to his pledgee with a power to transfer it, the fact that his name is in the certificate is not notice of his rights, as against third persons who take it for value from the pledgee.[40]

(C) Lis Pendens Not Notice. Stocks are articles of commerce passed from hand to hand, like commercial paper; and it has been said that the doctrine of a constructive notice by lis pendens is not applicable to them.[41]

34. Thompson v. Toland, 48 Cal. 99; McNeil v. New York City Tenth Nat. Bank, 46 N. Y. 325, 7 Am. Rep. 341. To the same effect see Brewster v. Sime, 42 Cal. 139; Cherry v. Frost, 7 Lea (Tenn.) 1. In Thompson v. Toland, 48 Cal. 99, this principle was applied on very doubtful grounds in a case where the pledgee pledged the shares to secure an antecedent debt, and his pledgee parted with no new value. Such a person ought not to be held a purchaser for value as against the real owner, unless he makes it appear that he lost other means securing his debt by taking the pledge. Burton v. Peterson, 12 Phila. (Pa.) 397, 35 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 397. See further Jarvis v. Rogers, 13 Mass. 105, 15 Mass. 369; Fatman v. Lobach, 1 Duer (N. Y.) 364 [with which compare McCready v. Rumsey, 6 Duer (N. Y.) 574]; Buffalo Commercial Bank v. Kortright, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 348, 34 Am. Dec. 317. Compare Bush v. Lathrop, 22 N. Y. 535; Covell v. Tradesman's Bank, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 131; Matter of North British Australasian Co., 7 C. B. N. S. 400, 30 L. J. C. P. 113, 97 E. C. L. 400; Swan v. North British Australasian Co., 2 H. & C. 175, 10 Jur. N. S. 102, 32 L. J. Exch. 273, 11 Wkly. Rep. 862; Swan v. North British Australasian Co., 7 H. & N. 603. It has therefore been held that pledgees of corporate shares, in good faith and without notice that their pledger is not the absolute owner, are entitled to hold them as security for their entire loan, although it is much greater than the debt of the real owner who pledged the shares to their pledger, where, although they might have discovered by investigation that he was a stock-broker, besides being engaged in other business, there was nothing in the original or various intermediate transfers before they reached the pledgees to show that he held the shares by way of security in connection with stock speculations. Duggan v. London, etc., Loan, etc., Co., 18 Ont. App. 305. That the rule is different under the English law, the purchaser getting no more than his vendor had and conveyed, see supra, VII, E, 1, b, (I); Williams v. Colonial Bank, 38 Ch. D. 388, 57 L. J. Ch. 826, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 648, 36 Wkly. Rep. 625. That such is the English law in regard to personal property generally see Cole v. North Western Bank, L. R. 10 C. P. 354, 44 L. J. C. P. 233, 32 L. T. Rep. N. S. 733.

35. For example at a sheriff's sale. Weston v. Bear River, etc., Min. Co., 6 Cal. 425; May v. Cleland, 117 Mich. 45, 75 N. W. 129, 44 L. R. A. 163.

36. Weston v. Bear River, etc., Min. Co., 6 Cal. 425.

37. Cheever v. Meyer, 52 Vt. 66.

38. See supra, VII, D, 13, f, (IV).

39. Gaston v. American Exch. Nat. Bank, 29 N. J. Eq. 98; Budd v. Monroe, 18 Hun (N. Y.) 316; Duncan v. Jaudon, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 165, 21 L. ed. 142; Duggan v. London, etc., Loan, etc., Co., 19 Ont. 272.

40. Felt v. Heye, 23 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 359.

41. Leitch v. Wells, 48 N. Y. 585, 609, per Earl, C.

Other holdings relating to pledges of shares. — The fact that a shareholder who has pledged certain shares of his stock to secure an indebtedness of the corporation is the owner and holder of the rest of the corporate stock will not authorize him to transfer the property of the corporation to secure his own individual indebtedness to the prejudice of

3. Returning Identical Certificate — a. Right to Shares Is Not Right to Certificates of Particular Number in Series. A certificate for shares not being the shares themselves, but being merely a muniment or evidence of title to them,[42] it follows that where the shares in a corporation are equal in denomination and none of them in any respect preferred before the others, the right of a subscriber to have a given number of shares may broadly be said to be not a right to have certificates of any particular number in the series. His rights are satisfied if there be allotted to him the number of shares of stock for which he has subscribed; for when he is the holder of certificates numbered from one to ten he holds precisely the same proprietary interest in the company as when he holds certificates numbered from ninety-one to one hundred. Therefore, where a bailee holds corporate stock in his own name, or in the name of a third person in trust for his bailor, he is not bound to ear-mark or identify the particular certificates and have them forthcoming under the terms of the trust agreement, but it is sufficient if he keep at all times on hand a sufficient number of shares of the company of the same series and kind to return to his bailor when lawfully called upon so to do.[43]

b. Pledgee or Trustee Not Bound to Hold Identical Certificates — (i) In General. If shares of stock have been pledged as collateral to secure the payment of a promissory note, it will be sufficient if the pledgee have on hand the same number of the same series of the shares of the same company, at the time the note falls due; and if he sell these in pursuance of the contract of pledge, he will discharge the contract on his part, and will not be liable to account to his bailor for the highest price at which similar shares were sold by him, the bailee, at any time during the period.[44]

(ii) Failing to Return Identical Certificates Liable For No More Than Nominal Damages. Under this theory the pledgee may, by delivering to the pledger other certificates of shares in the same company, being in all respects of the same series and equal in value to those which were the subject of the pledge, exonerate himself from more than nominal damages for the conversion of the certificates actually received in pledge.[45]

(iii) Rule Where Shares Not Specially Marked. Where the certificates of the shares which are the subject of the pledge are not specially marked so as to identify them and distinguish them from other shares of the like denominations of the same corporation, the broker is not bound to keep on hand the identical certificates and redeliver them, but it will be sufficient if, at the expiration of the term of pledge, he redelivers an equivalent number of the like shares.[46] Nor is the identity of the pledge changed by the act of the pledgee in creditors of the corporation and of the pledgee of such stock. Stewart v. Gould, 8 Wash. 367, 36 Pac. 277. A statute providing for a public registration of transfers of shares in the office of the county clerk was held not applicable to transfers by way of pledge, but only to absolute sales. Batesville Telephone Co. v. Myer-Schmidt Grocer Co., 68 Ark. 115, 56 S. W. 784.

42. Hawley v. Brumagim, 33 Cal. 394, 399, opinion by Sanderson, J.

43. Hawley v. Brumagim, 33 Cal. 394; Horton v. Morgan, 6 Duer (N. Y.) 56 [affirmed in 19 N. Y. 170, 75 Am. Dec. 311]; Allen v. Dykers, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 593; Nourse v. Prime, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 490, 8 Am. Dec. 606, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 69, 87, 11 Am. Dec. 403; Gilpin v. Howell, 5 Pa. St. 41, 45 Am. Dec. 720; Le Croy v. Eastman, 10 Mod. 499.

44. Atkins v. Gamble, 42 Cal. 86, 10 Am. Rep. 282; Berlin v. Eddy, 33 Mo. 426; Nourse v. Prime, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 490, 8 Am. Dec. 606, 7 Johns. Ch. 69, 11 Am. Dec. 403.

As to the extent to which this rule is applicable where shares are held by a trustee see Pinkett v. Wright, 2 Hare 120, 6 Jur. 1102, 12 L. J. Ch. 119, 24 Eng. Ch. 120.

For illustrations of the foregoing rule see Atkins v. Gamble, 42 Cal. 86, 10 Am. Rep. 282; Ketchum v. Bank of Commerce, 19 N. Y. 499; Frost v. Clarkson, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 24; Raymond v. Bearnard, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 274, 7 Am. Dec. 317; Noyes v. Spaulding, 27 Vt. 420; Hogan v. Shee, 2 Esp. 522; Shales v. Seignoret, 1 Ld. Raym. 440; Giles v. Edwards, 7 T. R. 181, 4 Rev. Rep. 414.

45. The reason of the rule was aptly stated by Crockett, J., in Atkins v. Gamble, 42 Cal. 86, 10 Am. Rep. 282.

46. Nourse v. Prime, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 490, 8 Am. Dec. 606; Gilpin v. Howell, 5 Pa. St. 41, 45 Am. Dec. 720.

surrendering the certificates which have been delivered and taking out new ones in his own name.[47]

(IV) Rule Not Applicable to Case of Shares of Different Values or Kinds. The rule which permits the pledgee to return shares evidenced by certificates different from those which were delivered to him has of course no application where the corporation has two kinds of stock of different values in the market, and where the bailee converts the more valuable stock and offers to return an equal number of shares of the less valuable kind. In such a case it has been well said that the bailee is bound to restore the identical stock pledged.[48]

c. Pledgee Liable if He Does Not Keep on Hand Same Number of Shares of Same Denomination — (I) In General. Dismissing from consideration the mere certificates, which are not the shares themselves, where a broker to whom shares are pledged by his customer sells the shares contrary to the terms of the pledge, and does not keep on hand the same number of the same kind of shares, it will be a breach of trust and a conversion, and in an action for damages therefor it will be no defense that he afterward tendered to plaintiff the proper amount of the same kind of shares.[49] Nor will it be any defense to a claim arising from such an unlawful conversion that defendant was at all times afterward either actually possessed of, or had the means of immediately obtaining, other shares of stock in the same company, of equal value with those disposed of, which he was ready and intended, whenever called upon, to substitute for those belonging to plaintiff of which he had disposed.[50]

(II) Distinction Between Pledge of Shares and Doctrine of Fungibles in Scotch Law. The distinction has been pointed out between a pledge of shares and the doctrine of fungibles in the Scotch law, which consists of a loan of something, such as corn, wine, money, etc., to be used by the borrower and to be returned, not in the shape of the article itself, but in the same quantity of an article of the like kind. Here there is no breach of trust in consuming the article which is the subject of the loan because that is the contract of the parties. But in the case of a pledge of shares, if the pledgee sells them without authority, it is a violation of his trust, although he afterward purchases other articles of the same kind and value, to be returned to the pledger, unless there is some agreement, either expressed or implied, between the parties that he shall be permitted so to do.[51]

(III) Custom to Rehypothecate or Otherwise Use Pledge. In an action by a pledger against his pledgee, a broker, for the conversion of certain shares delivered to the latter in pledge, it has been held that evidence was inadmissible by defendant, of a custom or usage by which a broker was authorized to hypothecate or otherwise to use securities received by him as margins on transactions like the one in question, and that plaintiff had knowledge of the custom.[52]

d. Doctrine That Pledgee Is Bound to Return Identical Certificates. Contrary to the foregoing, there is a limited view that the pledgee is bound, at the election of the pledger, to return the identical certificates pledged.[53] According to this view one who has pledged a certificate of stock as collateral security may treat a transfer thereof by the pledgee to a creditor of the pledgee as a conversion, although the pledgee has a greater number of shares standing to his credit on the books of the corporation.[54]

47. Ketchum v. Bank of Commerce, 19 N. Y. 499.

48. Wilson v. Little, 2 N. Y. 443, 51 Am. Dec. 307.

49. Allen v. Dykers, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 593 [affirmed in 7 Hill (N. Y.) 497, 42 Am. Dec. 87]. Compare Duggan v. London, etc., Loan, etc., Co., 19 Ont. 272.

50. Parsons v. Martin, 11 Gray (Mass.) 111.

51. Dykers v. Allen, 7 Hill (N. Y.) 497, 42 Am. Dec. 87.

52. Lawrence v. Maxwell, 53 N. Y. 19. To the same effect see Dykers v. Allen, 7 Hill (N. Y.) 497, 42 Am. Dec. 87.

53. Langton v. Waite, L. R. 6 Eq. 165, 37 L. J. Ch. 345, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 80, 16 Wkly. Rep. 508.

54. Fay v. Gray, 124 Mass. 500, opinion by Soule, J.

e. Doctrine That Pledgee Has No Right to Sell Shares Before Maturity of Loan. According to this last view the pledgee has no right to sell before maturity, whether he keeps on hand a like number and kind or not; and if he does so he is chargeable with the price produced by the sale, whatever may be the subsequent reduction in its value.[55] But according to the former view if the pledgee before maturity of the debt and without authority in the terms of the contract of pledge sells the shares, and does not keep in hand the same number and kind of shares, this will render him liable to the pledger for a breach of trust, and he cannot discharge this liability by afterward purchasing other shares of the same denominations and value with which to replace those which he has sold.[56]

4. Enforcing Contract of Pledge[57] — a. Ordinary Remedies of Pledgee. The ordinary remedies of a pledgee are: (1) To proceed personally against the pledger for his debt, without first selling the collateral security.[58] (2) To file a bill in chancery, and have a judicial sale under a regular decree of forfeiture.[59] (3) To

55. Langton v. Waite, L. R. 6 Eq. 165, 37 L. J. Ch. 345, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 80, 16 Wkly. Rep. 508; Ex p. Dennison, 3 Ves. Jr. 552.

56. Dykers v. Allen, 7 Hill (N. Y.) 497, 42 Am. Dec. 87 [affirming 3 Hill (N. Y.) 593].

57. Preliminary statement.— With respect to the remedies available to the pledgee for the enforcement of the contract of pledge there is on most points no difference between pledges of corporate shares and pledges of other personal property, for which see, generally, Pledges.

58. Sonoma Valley Bank v. Hill, 59 Cal. 107; Jones v. Scott, 10 Kan. 33; Stover v. Flack, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 162. And see Hendrix v. Harman, 19 S. C. 483. By pursuing this course he does not destroy or impair his lien upon the property pledged. Ehrlich v. Ewald, 66 Cal. 97, 4 Pac. 1062; Darst v. Bates, 95 Ill. 493; Archibald v. Argall, 53 Ill. 307; Smith v. Strout, 63 Me. 205; Butterworth v. Kennedy, 5 Bosw. (N. Y.) 143.

It follows from this that he is not required to return the pledge before bringing such an action, unless there is a stipulation in the contract of pledge to that effect.

Arkansas.— West v. Carolina L. Ins. Co., 31 Ark. 476.

Illinois.— Darst v. Bates, 95 Ill. 493.

Massachusetts.— Taylor v. Cheever, 6 Gray 146.

Missouri.— American Nat. Bank v. Harrison Wire Co., 11 Mo. App. 446.

Nebraska.— Lormer v. Bain, 14 Nebr. 178, 15 N. W. 323.

Vermont.— Rutland Bank v. Woodruff, 34 Vt. 89.

United States.— Lewis v. U. S., 92 U. S. 618, 23 L. ed. 513.

Value of pledge as set-off.— Nor can the pledgee or those sued set up the value of the pledge by way of set-off or recoupment (Winthrop Sav. Bank v. Jackson, 67 Me. 570, 24 Am. Rep. 56), although in some jurisdictions damages for the conversion of the pledge will avail as a defense if the conversion is established (Cass v. Higenbotam, 100 N. Y. 248, 3 N. E. 189). So loss to pledger by negligence of pledgee may be set up by way of counter-claim. Scott v. Crews, 2 S. C. 522. See also Stearns v. Marsh, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 227, 47 Am. Dec. 248; Douglass v. Mundine, 57 Tex. 344. Where this rule prevails the pledgee must in such action either produce the collateral security or account for its non-production. Ocean Nat. Bank v. Fant, 50 N. Y. 474; Stuart v. Bigler, 98 Pa. St. 80.

Effect on pledgee's lien.— An attachment by the pledgee of the thing pledged is in general a waiver of his lien. Evans v. Warren, 122 Mass. 303; Buck v. Ingersoll, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 226. And see Sickles v. Richardson, 14 Hun (N. Y.) 110. But of course in a jurisdiction where an action against the pledger is not a waiver of the pledgee's lien, he will not waive it by attaching other property of the pledger in such an action. Taylor v. Cheever, 6 Gray (Mass.) 146. As to the effect of an attachment where corporate shares have been pledged see Norton v. Norton, 43 Ohio St. 509, 3 N. E. 348. The writer is indebted for the matter of this note to 79 Am. Dec. 500, where the reader will find a learned note on the general subject of pledge.

59. At common law the pledgee, in the absence of a special contract to the contrary, could obtain a sale of the pledge only under a judicial decree. Ogden v. Lathrop, 1 Sweeny (N. Y.) 643; Cortelyou v. Lansing, 2 Cai. Cas. (N. Y.) 200. Such it seems is the rule of the civil law (Hart v. Ten Eyck, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 62), and under the civil code of Louisiana (Brother v. Saul, 11 La. Ann. 223). The right to come into equity to obtain a decree of sale still exists, in the absence of a special provision to the contrary, in the contract of pledge. Briggs v. Oliver, 68 N. Y. 336; Ogden v. Lathrop, 1 Sweeny (N. Y.) 643; Sitgreaves v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 49 Pa. St. 359; Smith v. Coale, 12 Phila. (Pa.) 177, 34 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 58. Compare Durant v. Einstein, 5 Rob. (N. Y.) 423, 35 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 223, where the jurisdiction of equity is denied except under special circumstances. This course may be safer and more advantageous in many cases for obvious reasons than to make a non-judicial sale of the pledge. Boynton v. Payrow, 67 Me. 587; Conyngham's Appeal, 57 Pa. St. 474. It may be even necessary in sell without judicial process, upon giving reasonable notice to the debtor to redeem.[60]

b. His Right of Action. A pledgee of stock may sue in his own name to protect his interest as such in the property of the corporation, and is not required to act through the corporation.[61]

c. Statute of Limitations Does Not Run. The pledgee of corporate stock has a right to retain it until the debt for which it was pledged is fully satisfied. But during the time that he so holds it, he cannot assert that he holds it adversely, and thereby acquire it under the statute of limitations.[62]

d. Obligation of Corporation to Transfer to Purchaser at Pledgee's Sale. Where the sale has regularly taken place, in pursuance of the contract of pledge, or in pursuance of law, in the absence of express provisions in the contract, the corporation must transfer the shares to the purchaser on its books and issue to him a new certificate in the appropriate mode. But the corporation cannot be put in the wrong for refusing such a transfer where the pledgee has not sold at public auction after due notice to the pledger, and has not resorted to a suit in equity as he may do.[63]

5. Action by Pledger For Conversion of Shares[64] — a. Tender of Amount Due Not Necessary Before Such Action — (I) In General. Where shares of stock have been converted by a pledgee who holds them as collateral security for an amount due him by the pledger, it is not necessary, in order to enable the pledger to maintain an action for damages for the conversion, that he should first tender to the pledgee the amount due by him to the latter.[65]

(II) But Pledgee May Recoup Such Indebtedness. But in such a case the pledgee is entitled to recoup the damages by the amount of the debt that is due him by the pledger.[66]

b. Pledgee May Show That Transfers Were Fictitious. It has been held that the pledgee may show, as a defense to an action for the conversion of the shares, that the transfers of them made by him were fictitious, designed to conceal his transactions, and to prevent the injury to his credit which might follow from a publication of the fact of his having so many shares of the particular kind in some cases, as where the pledger has not waived his right to notice and cannot be found, to be personally served with notice to redeem. Indiana, etc., Co. v. McKernan, 24 Ind. 62; Stearns v. Marsh, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 227, 47 Am. Dec. 248. In such a suit the pledger will not be allowed to set up as a defense that he gave the pledge with intention to defraud his creditors, for a conveyance void as to creditors is nevertheless good as between the parties to it. Chafee v. A. W. Sprague Mfg. Co., 14 R. I. 168.

60. 2 Kent Comm. 582.

California.— Wilson v. Brannan, 27 Cal. 258.

Connecticut.— Stevens v. Hurlbut Bank, 31 Conn. 146.

Iowa.— Robinson v. Hurley, 11 Iowa 410, 79 Am. Dec. 497.

Massachusetts.— Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Thompson, 133 Mass. 482.

Texas.— King v. Texas Banking, etc., Co., 58 Tex. 669; Brightman v. Reeves, 21 Tex. 70.

England.— Pigot v. Cubley, 15 C. B. N. S. 701, 10 Jur. N. S. 318, 33 L. J. C. P. 134, 12 Wkly. Rep. 467, 109 E. C. L. 701; Tucker v. Wilson, 1 P. Wms. 261, 24 Eng. Reprint 379.

This power of sale is ordinarily an incident of the pledge in such a sense that it follows the debt into the hands of an assignee, the same as the power of sale in a mortgage deed of trust follows an assignment of the notes secured by the mortgage. Alexandria, etc., R. Co. v. Burke, 22 Gratt. (Va.) 254. But the pledgee is not bound on default to sell the thing pledged, even after notice from the pledger so to do. Napier v. Central Georgia Bank, 68 Ga. 637; Field v. Leavitt, 37 N. Y. Super. Ct. 215.

The equitable right of redemption does not exist in respect of a mortgage of stocks; that right extends only to mortgages of land. Lockwood v. Ewer, 2 Atk. 303, 9 Mod. 275, 26 Eng. Reprint 585.

61. Baldwin v. Canfield, 26 Minn. 43, 1 N. W. 261.

62. Cross v. Eureka Lake, etc., Canal Co., 73 Cal. 302, 14 Pac. 885, 2 Am. St. Rep. 808.

63. Indiana, etc., R. Co. v. McKernan, 24 Ind. 62.

As to the obligation of the corporation to issue new certificates to the pledgee see Haldeman v. Hillsborough, etc., R. Co., 2 Handy (Ohio) 101, 12 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 351.

64. For form of good count in trover for conversion of corporate shares see Ayres v. French, 41 Conn. 142.

65. Neiler v. Kelley, 69 Pa. St. 403.

66. Neiler v. Kelley, 69 Pa. St. 403.

his possession; and that all the stocks remained in his control and ready for delivery to the owner on the payment of the amount for which they were pledged.[67]

c. Measure of Damages. Where a broker had sold shares of his principal it was held that the principal was entitled to recover from him the amount of profit which he had realized in dealing with them.[68] In another case the measure of damages which the pledger was entitled to recover from the pledgee for a conversion of corporate shares which were the subject of the pledge, in a common-law action of trover therefor, was held to be the value of the shares at the time of the alleged sale, and the dividends which the pledgee had received thereon, together with interest, after deducting the amount of the assessments and expenses of the sale.[69]

VIII. LIABILITY OF SHAREHOLDERS TO CREDITORS OF CORPORATION.

A. Non-Liability at Common Law — 1. General Rule. As already seen[70] the corporation and its shareholders are distinct persons in law. The general rule of law therefore is that the shareholders of a joint-stock corporation are not liable for its debts[71] or for its torts,[72] except to make good the amount due to the corporation for their shares,[73] unless made so by constitutional or statutory enactment,[74] or unless they have assumed a larger liability by contract or by conduct.

67. Day v. Holmes, 103 Mass. 306.

68. Langton v. Waite, L. R. 6 Eq. 165, 37 L. J. Ch. 345, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 80, 16 Wkly. Rep. 508.

69. Freeman v. Harwood, 49 Me. 195.

70. See supra, VI, F, 1, a et seq.

71. Alabama.—Smith v. Huckabee, 53 Ala. 191, 193, per Brickell, J.

California.— Green v. Beckman, 59 Cal. 545; French v. Teschemaker, 24 Cal. 518.

Connecticut.— Middletown Bank v. Magill, 5 Conn. 28, 51, per Hosmer, C. J.

Indiana.— Shaw v. Boylan, 16 Ind. 384.

Iowa.— Spense v. Iowa Valley Constr. Co., 36 Iowa 407.

Maine.— Coffin v. Rich, 45 Me. 507, 71 Am. Dec. 559.

Massachusetts.— Oliver v. Liverpool, etc., L., etc., Ins. Co., 100 Mass. 531, 539 (per Hoar, J.) [affirmed in 10 Wall. (U. S.) 566, 575, 19 L. ed. 1029 (per Miller, J.)]; Norton v. Hodges, 100 Mass. 241; Gray v. Coffin, 9 Cush. 192; Andover Free Schools v. Flint, 13 Metc. 539.

New Jersey.— Salt Lake City Nat. Bank v. Hendrickson, 40 N. J. L. 52.

New York.— Seymour v. Sturgess, 26 N. Y. 134; Harger v. McCullough, 2 Den. 119; Freeland v. McCullough, 1 Den. 414, 423, 43 Am. Dec. 685; Thomas v. Dakin, 22 Wend. 9, 95 (per Cowen, J.); Slee v. Bloom, 19 Johns. 456, 473, 10 Am. Dec. 273 (per Spencer, C. J.).

Pennsylvania.— Myers v. Irwin, 2 Serg. & R. 368, 371, per Tilghman, C. J.

Rhode Island.— New England Commercial Bank v. Newport Steam Factory, 6 R. I. 154, 188, 75 Am. Dec. 688, per Ames, C. J.

United States.— Terry v. Little, 101 U. S. 216, 25 L. ed. 864.

England.— Van Sandau v. Moore, 4 L. J. Ch. O. S. 177, 1 Russ. 441, 46 Eng. Ch. 441.

72. Peck v. Cooper, 8 Ill. App. 403.

73. Toner v. Fulkerson, 125 Ind. 224, 25 N. E. 218; Walker v. Lewis, 49 Tex. 123 (holding that they are bound to make good their subscriptions in favor of creditors in some form of proceeding).

Liability of the shareholder to creditors of the corporation is therefore exhausted by his making the full payment for his shares, except where constitutional provisions or statutes make the shares assessable, although the purchase-price has been fully paid. Green v. Abietine Medical Co., 96 Cal. 322, 31 Pac. 100 (under constitution of California); Santa Cruz R. Co. v. Spreckles, 65 Cal. 193, 3 Pac. 666, 802; Gainey v. Gilson, 149 Ind. 58, 48 N. E. 633.

74. Indiana.— Toner v. Fulkerson, 125 Ind. 224, 25 N. E. 218.

Iowa.— Spense v. Iowa, etc., Constr. Co., 36 Iowa 407.

Louisiana.—Monaghan v. Hall, 18 La. Ann. 310.

Ohio.— Wood v. Pearce, 2 Disn. 411.

Tennessee.— Jackson v. Meek, 87 Tenn. 69, 9 S. W. 225, 10 Am. St. Rep. 620.

United States.— Bank of North America v. Rindge, 57 Fed. 279.

Statutes and constitutional provisions.— The rule that shareholders are bound in favor of creditors of the corporation to make good their subscriptions is affirmed by various statutes and constitutional provisions too numerous to set forth in detail. See the following cases:

Colorado.— Smith v. Londoner, 5 Colo. 365.

Indiana.— Wheeler v. Thayer, 121 Ind. 64, 22 N. E. 972.

Iowa.— Warfield v. Marshall County Canning Co., 72 Iowa 666, 34 N. W. 467, 2 Am. St. Rep. 263.

Maine.— Libby v. Tobey, 82 Me. 397, 19 Atl. 904.

Missouri.— Schricker v. Ridings, 65 Mo. 208; Miley v. Parker, 7 Mo. App. 561.

2. Cannot Enlarge Liability by By-Law, Etc., Except by Unanimous Consent. The members of a corporation cannot enlarge their liability by by-law, resolution, etc., except by unanimous consent; because to do so would be to alter the charter or other fundamental agreement by which all, upon becoming incorporate, have agreed to be bound;[75] although, if credit has been sought and obtained upon the faith of such a by-law, it may possibly, on the principle of estoppel, give a right of action against the signers of it.[76]

3. May Enlarge Liability by Contract — a. In General. But there is no rule of law or principle of public policy which will prevent the shareholders of a corporation from enlarging their liability to the corporation or to its creditors by contract unanimously concurred in.[77]

b. Such Engagements Within Statute of Frauds. But as the shareholder is in law a different person from the corporation, his promise to become personally liable for the debts of the latter beyond the extent to which he stands liable under the law is a promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person, and is hence within the statute of frauds, and not enforceable unless in writing.[78]

c. Feme Covert Shareholder Cannot Bind Her Estate. So where, under the law of the state, a married woman can pledge her personal responsibility only to effect some purpose of her own, or for the benefit of her own estate, she cannot bind herself by indorsing a promissory note to secure the debt of a corporation of which she is a shareholder, because the estate of the corporation is not her estate, and such an indorsement is therefore not for the benefit of her estate.[79]

d. Effect of Representation to Public That Shareholders Are Liable For Corporate Debts. The fact that individual members of a corporation may have represented to the public that they were so liable will not bind them as shareholders; nor will equity entertain a bill against them as shareholders under such by-law, or on account of such representations. If they have incurred liabilities as individuals, disconnected from their corporate capacity, they should be proceeded against as individuals.[80]

e. Not Necessary That Creditors Should Know of Guaranty Made by Shareholders. It has been held that where shareholders, in order to obtain credit for the corporation and a discount for its benefit, execute a guaranty to a banking company and its assigns to secure payment of the general indebtedness of the corporation to a specified amount, they become liable on such guaranty to the holders of notes of the corporation discounted by the banking company, although when the notes were transferred the purchaser did not know of the existence of the guaranty.[81]

75. Reid v. Eatonton Mfg. Co., 40 Ga. 98, 2 Am. Rep. 563; Flint v. Pierce, 99 Mass. 68, 96 Am. Dec. 691; Andover Free Schools v. Flint, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 539.

76. Flint v. Pierce, 99 Mass. 68, 96 Am. Dec. 691.

Validity of the by-law of a corporation not professing to have any fixed capital whereby its members agree to contribute equally and ratably to all expenses incurred. Hume v. Winyaw, etc., Co., 1 Carolina L. J. 217. Compare Savage v. Putnam, 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 420.

77. London, etc., Bank v. Parrott, 125 Cal. 472, 58 Pac. 164 (liable both as shareholders and as guarantors); Lillard v. Decatur Cotton Seed Oil Co., 14 Tex. Civ. App. 67, 36 S. W. 792; Tidioute Sav. Bank v. Libbey, 101 Wis. 193, 77 N. W. 182, 70 Am. St. Rep. 907.

78. Flint v. Pierce, 99 Mass. 68, 96 Am. Dec. 691.

79. Russel v. People's Sav. Bank, 39 Mich. 671, 33 Am. Rep. 444; West v. Laraway, 28 Mich. 464; De Vries v. Conklin, 22 Mich. 255.

80. Reid v. Eatonton Mfg. Co., 40 Ga. 98, 2 Am. Dec. 563. Invalidity, as against shareholders, of indorsement on circulating notes of bank of the words "individual property of stockholders liable." Lowry v. Inman, 46 N. Y. 119. That the obligation of certain shareholders of a bank to "pay and discharge all the debts owing by the company" did not oblige them to pay its circulating notes see Pollard v. Kentucky Exporting Co., 4 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 52. That a bond, with security given by the corporators of a savings bank to secure depositors therein, is not capital stock see Huntington v. District of Columbia Nat. Sav. Bank, 96 U. S. 388, 24 L. ed. 777.

81. Tidioute Sav. Bank v. Libbey, 101 Wis. 193, 77 N. W. 182, 70 Am. St. Rep. 907.

f. When Shareholder Entitled to Advantages of Sureties. As the promise of a shareholder to pay a debt of the corporation is a promise to pay the debt of another, it entitles the promisor to all the rights and remedies of a surety as to extensions and renewals of credits not authorized by him.[82] A statute providing that the release of any debtor under the insolvent law shall not operate to discharge any other party liable as security, guarantor, or otherwise for the same debt, applies to shareholders who have become liable for the debt of the corporation, where the corporation is discharged in insolvency.[83] Shareholders do not occupy the position of sureties as to a debt of the corporation, where the benefit arising from such debt is a direct and intended benefit to the members of the corporation;[84] or in consequence of an agreement and compromise of debts of the corporation made by the shareholders acting separately, in which they provide for the issue of certain debentures and bonds.[85]

g. Stipulation For Payment Only on Call. A stipulation in the contract of subscription that it shall be payable only on the call of the company is valid as between shareholders, but will not be allowed to defeat the rights of creditors.[86]

h. Charter Provision For Payment Only on Call. In like manner a provision in the charter that "the balance due on each share shall be subject to the call of the directors" does not give a shareholder the right, as between himself and the company's creditors, to withhold payment of the balance due from him until the necessities of the company require payment in full for the shares subscribed.[87]

i. When Shareholders Liable to Indemnify Directors For Illegal Distribution of Assets. The directors of a company who have been required by its liquidator in winding-up proceedings to replace a portion of the capital distributed by them among the shareholders upon the ground that the reduction of the capital was ultra vires because not sanctioned by the court are entitled to indemnity from the shareholders, where the latter knew at the time that they were receiving a part of the capital.[88]

4. Not Liable to Creditors When Not Liable to Corporation. Except where a different rule of liability is prescribed by constitutional or statutory provision, and except where elements of estoppel supervene, the general rule is that the shareholder is not liable to creditors after the insolvency of the corporation, unless the circumstances are such that he would have been liable to the corporation itself.[89]

5. Power of Corporation to Reinstate Liability of Shareholders. Where two corporations make a valid agreement by which the debt of one is assumed by the other it is competent for them to rescind such agreement, reinstate the liability

82. Home Nat. Bank v. Waterman, 134 Ill. 461, 29 N. E. 503.

83. Willis v. Mabon, 48 Minn. 140, 50 N. W. 1110, 31 Am. St. Rep. 626, 16 L. R. A. 281.

84. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Nicholas, 98 Ala. 92, 12 So. 723.

85. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Nicholas, 98 Ala. 92, 12 So. 723. That a shareholder in a corporation who purchases stock of another shareholder cannot require the latter to pay a part of a note made by both shareholders for a corporate debt, where sufficient property of the corporation to secure its payment was set apart for the purpose, see Meguiar v. Walsh, 36 S. W. 1124, 18 Ky. L. Rep. 433.

86. Curry v. Woodward, 53 Ala. 371.

87. Hill v. Merchants' Mut. Ins. Co., 134 U. S. 515, 526, 10 S. Ct. 589, 33 L. ed. 994 [affirming 86 Mo. 466 (affirming 12 Mo. App. 148)].

88. Moxham v. Grant, [1899] 1 Q. B. 480, 68 L. J. Q. B. 283.

89. Deadwood First Nat. Bank v. Gustin Minerva Consol. Min. Co., 42 Minn. 327, 44 N. W. 198, 18 Am. St. Rep. 510, 6 L. R. A. 676; Robertson v. Sibley, 10 Minn. 323; Union Sav. Assoc. v. Seligman, 92 Mo. 635, 15 S. W. 630, 1 Am. St. Rep. 776 [overruling Griswold v. Seligman, 72 Mo. 110]; Burgess v. Seligman, 107 U. S. 20, 2 S. Ct. 10, 27 L. ed. 359.

Illustrations.— If a subscription has been made upon a valid condition, so that without complying with the condition the corporation could not enforce it, a creditor cannot. Hahn's Appeal, (Pa. 1886) 7 Atl. 482. So where a subscriber to stock tendered the amount of his subscription to the corporation while it was solvent and demanded a certificate, which was refused, it was held that he was not liable to the assignee in insolvency of the corporation. Potts v. Wallace, 32 Fed. 272. So in case of a valid forfeiture by the directors of the shares of the shareholder. Mills v. Stewart, 62 Barb. (N. Y.) 444.

of the corporation so discharged, and place the parties in statu quo; and the shareholders of the debtor corporation will become, under a constitutional provision, personally liable for their respective proportionate shares of the liability so created or reinstated. The corporation has the same power to bind its shareholders by reinstating the old debt that it would have to create a new one.[90]

6. Liability of Shareholders Where Corporation Embarks in Other Business Than That Authorized by Its Charter. There is judicial authority for the proposition that if a corporation embarks in other business than that authorized by its charter, and incurs indebtedness in that business, its shareholders will, with respect to such indebtedness, be liable as partners;[91] and the contrary has been held.[92] So where a constitutional provision imposes a double liability upon the shareholders of corporations, except those organized for manufacturing purposes, and a corporation organized for such purposes enters upon general merchandising, with respect to indebtedness incurred while so merchandising, its members will incur the liability imposed by the constitutional provision.[93]

7. Where Corporation Is Formed For Illegal Purpose or Enters Upon Illegal Business. It seems that where the formation of the corporation is prohibited by law or public policy,[94] or where a corporation engages in a business which is prohibited by law or public policy,[95] its members become liable as partners;[96] but not so where its shares are void for non-compliance with the provision of its charter.[97]

8. Liability of Sole Shareholder or of Shareholder in "One-Man Corporation." In theory of law, although all the shares pass into the hands of one person, yet so long as the corporate existence is maintained, the liability of this one person as a shareholder and his immunity from such liability are the same as where there are many shareholders.[98] It has been held in conformity with this principle that the sole shareholder of a bank who has received its assets is bound for its debts to the extent of such assets.[99] But this does not exclude the conclusion that a sole shareholder who wrongfully causes the transfer of all the property of the corporation to be made to himself, so as to deprive a creditor of the corporation of the payment of his debt, may be held responsible, not as a shareholder, but as a fraudulent conveyee, for that payment.[1]

9. Shareholders Personally Liable For Their Fraud Committed in Dealing With Corporate Assets. It is not necessary to enlarge upon, or to illustrate the principle that immunity from personal liability does not extend to cases where shareholders use the corporation as a mere cloak for their own fraudulent schemes, and commit frauds in dealing with corporate assets or otherwise, on pretense of acting on behalf of the corporation.[2]

90. Borland v. Haven, 37 Fed. 394, 13 Sawy. 551.

91. Ridenour v. Mayo, 40 Ohio St. 9, 29 Ohio St. 138.

92. Trowbridge v. Scudder, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 83; Whitwell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425.

93. Mohr v. Minnesota Elevator Co., 40 Minn. 343, 41 N. W. 1074. Compare State v. Minnesota Thresher Mfg. Co., 40 Minn. 213, 41 N. W. 1020, 3 L. R. A. 510.

Further as to ultra vires debts see infra, VIII, J, 2, b.

94. Empire Mills v. Alston Grocery Co., (Tex. App. 1891) 15 S. W. 505, 12 L. R. A. 366 [affirming (Tex. App. 1891) 15 S. W. 209].

95. McGrew v. City Produce Exch., 85 Tenn. 572, 4 S. W. 38, 4 Am. St. Rep. 771, stock gambling.

96. But see American Mirror, etc., Co. v. Bulkley, 107 Mich. 447, 65 N. W. 291.

97. Tschumi v. Hills, 6 Kan. App. 549, 51 Pac. 619. See also Zabriskie v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 23 How. (U. S.) 381, 16 L. ed. 488; Andrews v. National Foundry, etc., Works, 76 Fed. 166, 22 C. C. A. 110, 36 L. R. A. 139; In re London, etc., Ins. Corp., L. R. 4 Ch. 682, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 182, 17 Wkly. Rep. 751. That the holder of stock in a corporation, part of which is valid and part invalid, cannot require that payments made by him on the latter shall be applied to his valid stock see Kampmann v. Traver, (Tex. Civ. App. 1895) 29 S. W. 1144.

98. Louisville Banking Co. v. Eisenman, 21 S. W. 531, 14 Ky. L. Rep. 705, 19 L. R. A. 684 [rehearing denied in 21 S. W. 1049, 14 Ky. L. Rep. 710]; Salomon v. Salomon, [1897] A. C. 22, 66 L. J. Ch. 35, 75 L. T. Rep. N. S. 426, 4 Manson 89, 45 Wkly. Rep. 193.

99. Robertson v. Conrey, 5 La. Ann. 297.

1. Angle v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 151 U. S. 1, 14 S. Ct. 240, 38 L. ed. 55.

2. Colquitt v. Howard, 11 Ga. 556 (persons exercising powers of corporations held to ac-

B. Liability in Equity on Ground That Capital Stock of Corporation Is Trust Fund For Its Creditors — 1. General Doctrine Stated. It is a favorite doctrine of the American courts[3] that the capital stock and other property of a corporation are to be deemed a trust fund for the payment of the debts of the corporation, so that the creditors have a lien upon, or right of priority of payment out of, it, in preference to any of the shareholders of the corporation.[4]

2. This Trust Fund Includes Unpaid Subscriptions For Shares — a. In General. This capital stock, it has been said, consists of the money paid in, or authorized or required to be paid in, as the basis of the business of the corporation and the means of conducting its operations.[5] It is an essential part of the doctrine of the preceding section that money agreed to be paid into the corporate treasury by the shareholders for their respective shares is a part of this trust fund.[6] When the liquidation of these unpaid subscriptions becomes necessary to pay the debts of the company, the shareholders cannot be allowed to refuse the payment of count as trustees); Medill v. Collier, 16 Ohio St. 599; Whitwell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425. Compare Sisson v. Matthews, 20 Ga. 848; Matthews v. Stanford, 17 Ga. 543; Tinkham v. Borst, 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 407.

Not personally liable for securing to themselves fraudulent preferences.— Whitwell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425, questionable holding.

3. The writer has not found a similar statement of doctrine in any English book of reports. The idea appears to have been invented by Story, J., in Wood v. Dummer, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,944, 3 Mason 308, decided in 1824.

4. Alabama.— Curry v. Woodward, 53 Ala. 371; Smith v. Huckabee, 53 Ala. 191; St. Mary's Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566; Paschall v. Whitsett, 11 Ala. 472; Allen v. Montgomery R. Co., 11 Ala. 437.

Connecticut.—Crandall v. Lincoln, 52 Conn. 73, 52 Am. Rep. 560.

Georgia.— Beck v. Henderson, 76 Ga. 360; Reid v. Eatonton Mfg. Co., 40 Ga. 98, 2 Am. Rep. 563; Robison v. Carey, 8 Ga. 527; Hightower v. Thornton, 8 Ga. 486, 52 Am. Dec. 412.

Illinois.— Union Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Frear Stone Mfg. Co., 97 Ill. 537, 37 Am. Rep. 129; Tarbell v. Page, 24 Ill. 46.

Massachusetts.— Baker v. Atlas Bank, 9 Metc. 182; Spear v. Grant, 16 Mass. 9; Vose v. Grant, 15 Mass. 505.

Mississippi.— Payne v. Bullard, 23 Miss. 88, 55 Am. Dec. 74.

Nebraska.— State v. Commercial State Bank, 28 Nebr. 677, 44 N. W. 998.

New Jersey.— New York City Nat. Trust Co. v. Miller, 33 N. J. Eq. 155.

New York.— Mann v. Pentz, 3 N. Y. 415; Hurd v. Tallman, 60 Barb. 272; Briggs v. Penniman, 8 Cow. 387, 18 Am. Dec. 454; Slee v. Bloom, 19 Johns. 456, 10 Am. Dec. 273. In Tinkham v. Borst, 31 Barb. 407, the court proceeded on the idea that creditors have an equitable lien upon the assets of a dissolved corporation in the hands of one of its members.

North Carolina.— Marshall Foundry Co. v. Killian, 99 N. C. 501, 6 S. E. 80, 6 Am. St. Rep. 539.

Ohio.— Henry v. Vermillion, etc., R. Co., 17 Ohio 187; Miers v. Zanesville, etc., Turnpike Co., 11 Ohio 273, 13 Ohio 197.

Vermont.— Bassett v. St. Albans Hotel Co., 47 Vt. 313.

Wisconsin.— Adler v. Milwaukee Patent Brick Mfg. Co., 13 Wis. 57.

United States.— Morgan County v. Allen, 103 U. S. 498, 26 L. ed. 498; Sawyer v. Hoag, 17 Wall. 610, 21 L. ed. 731; Putnam v. New Albany, etc., R. Co., 16 Wall. 390, 21 L. ed. 361; New Albany v. Burke, 11 Wall. 96, 20 L. ed. 155; Ogilvie v. Knox Ins. Co., 22 How. 380, 16 L. ed. 349; Curran v. Arkansas, 15 How. 304, 14 L. ed. 705; Mumma v. Potomac Co., 8 Pet. 281, 8 L. ed. 945; Kenton Furnace R., etc., Co. v. McAlpin, 5 Fed. 743; Main v. Mills, 16 Fed. Cas. No. 8,976, 6 Biss. 98; Marsh v. Burroughs, 16 Fed. Cas. No. 9,112, 1 Woods 463; Payson v. Stoever, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 10,863, 2 Dill. 427; Union Nat. Bank v. Douglass, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14,375, 1 McCrary 86; Wood v. Dummer, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,944, 3 Mason 308.

5. Farrington v. Tennessee, 95 U. S. 679, 24 L. ed. 558.

6. So held in nearly all the cases cited in the preceding section. Also in the following cases:

Alabama.— Allen v. Montgomery R. Co., 11 Ala. 437.

Georgia.— Hightower v. Thornton, 8 Ga. 486, 52 Am. Dec. 412.

Missouri.— Shickle v. Watts, 94 Mo. 410.

North Carolina.— Marshall Foundry Co. v. Killian, 99 N. C. 501, 6 S. E. 680, 6 Am. St. Rep. 539.

Wisconsin.— Gogebic Invest. Co. v. Iron Chief Min. Co., 78 Wis. 427, 47 N. W. 726, 23 Am. St. Rep. 417; Adler v. Milwaukee Patent Brick Mfg. Co., 13 Wis. 57.

United States.— Washburn v. Green, 133 U. S. 30, 10 S. Ct. 280, 33 L. ed. 516; Morgan County v. Allen, 103 U. S. 498, 26 L. ed. 498; Sanger v. Upton, 91 U. S. 56, 23 L. ed. 220; Sawyer v. Hoag, 17 Wall. 610, 21 L. ed. 731; Ogilvie v. Knox Ins. Co., 22 How. 380, 16 L. ed. 349; Marsh v. Burroughs, 16 Fed. Cas. No. 9,112, 1 Woods 463; Winans v. McKean R., etc., Co., 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,862, 6 Blatchf. 215. But a bond with security, given by the corporators of a savings bank them, unless they show such an equity as would entitle them to a preference over the creditors, if the capital had been paid in cash.[7]

b. Former Extent of This Trust-Fund Doctrine. It was also a part of this doctrine that any device by which its members seek to avoid the liability imposed upon them by law is void as to creditors.[8]

c. Recent Qualifications of This Doctrine. But this doctrine, as already seen,[9] has been recently modified by the supreme court of the United States to the extent of holding that, in the absence of circumstances creating an equitable estoppel in favor of the creditor of the corporation and against the shareholder, the latter cannot be compelled to pay, even for the purpose of liquidating the debts of the corporation after its insolvency, anything beyond what the corporation agreed with him to accept as full payment.[10]

d. No Longer a Trust Fund For All of Its Creditors Ratably. It is a necessary part of a doctrine which makes the assets of a corporation a trust fund in equity for its creditors, that such assets are a trust fund for all the creditors of the corporation, to be distributed ratably to those standing in equal equity. This necessarily includes the conclusion that the directors or managers of a corporation cannot, in contemplation of insolvency, so dispose of its assets as to prefer particular creditors and defer others. But a modern inroad upon the doctrine made by several American courts leaves it in the power of a corporation to prefer its creditors, thus placing it, even in contemplation of insolvency, precisely in the same position with respect to its power of disposition of its property as that occupied by a natural person.[11]

3. Shareholders Withdrawing This Trust Fund Bound to Restore It For Benefit of Creditors — a. In General. If a shareholder withdraws this trust fund created by his share subscription, or any part of it, without restoring to the corporation a full and fair consideration for it, he will be held bound to make it good whenever it is necessary to do so for the satisfaction of the creditors of the corporation.[12] Nor have the directors as trustees of this fund any power, except in the way of bona fide compromises, to release a subscriber to the fund, either as against creditors or as against other shareholders,[13] or to accept payment of part for the whole.[14]

b. But Not Bona Fide Dividends of Profits. This principle does not extend so far as to require shareholders to surrender, for the benefit of creditors, bona fide dividends of profits declared and distributed at a time when the company was solvent and prosperous.[15]

c. Grounds of Equitable Relief Where Capital Stock Is Divided Leaving Debts Unpaid — (i) In General. If the capital stock should be divided, leaving any debts unpaid, every shareholder receiving his share of the capital stock would in equity be held liable pro rata to contribute to the discharge of such debts out of the fund in his own hands.[16] to secure depositors therein, is in no sense capital stock of the company. Huntington v. District of Columbia Nat. Sav. Bank, 96 U. S. 388, 24 L. ed. 777.

7. Ogilvie v. Knox Ins. Co., 22 How. (U. S.) 380, 16 L. ed. 349.

According to one judicial expression with respect to national banks it also includes the superadded statutory liability of the holders of paid-up shares under U. S. Rev. Stat. § 5151. Stuart v. Hayden, 72 Fed. 402, 18 C. C. A. 618.

8. Howe v. Illinois Agricultural Works, 46 Ill. App. 85; Upton v. Tribilcock, 91 U. S. 45, 23 L. ed. 203. See also supra, VI, M, 1, b, (v), (B) et seq.

9. See supra, VI, M, 1, i.

10. Hospes v. Northwestern Mfg., etc., Co., 48 Minn. 174, 50 N. W. 1117, 31 Am. St. Rep. 637, 15 L. R. A. 470, where the new doctrine was applied.

11. Hospes v. Northwestern Mfg., etc., Co., 48 Minn. 174, 50 N. W. 1117, 31 Am. St. Rep. 637, 15 L. R. A. 470.

12. St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566 (division of assets among shareholders in contemplation of insolvency); Lewis v. Robertson, 13 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 558.

13. Rider v. Morrison, 54 Md. 429.

14. Mann v. Pentz, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 257. See also McAvity v. Lincoln Pulp, etc., Co., 82 Me. 504, 20 Atl. 82; Payne v. Bullard, 23 Miss. 88, 55 Am. Dec. 74.

15. Reid v. Eatonton Mfg. Co., 40 Ga. 98, 2 Am. Rep. 563; Wood v. Dummer, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,944, 3 Mason 308.

16. St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566; Reid v. Eatonton Mfg. Co., 40 Ga. 98, 2

(II) Remedy of Judgment Creditor in Such Case. Accordingly, when the property has been divided among the shareholders, a judgment creditor, after the return of an execution against the corporation unsatisfied, may maintain a creditor's bill against a single shareholder,[17] or against as many shareholders as he can find within the jurisdiction,[18] to charge him or them to the extent of the assets thus diverted; and it is immaterial whether he got them by fair agreement with his associates or by an act wrongful as against them.

4. This Trust Fund Pursued Only in Equity — a. In General. In the absence of special statutory provisions this trust fund can in general be reached only by appropriate proceedings in equity.[19]

b. Grounds on Which Courts of Equity Proceed. In affording relief to creditors of corporations on this ground, courts of equity proceed on the familiar principle that whoever is found in possession of a trust fund, under circumstances which charge him with knowledge of the trust, is bound to account as trustee to those beneficially interested in such fund.[20] Whenever shareholders have in their possession any of this trust fund they hold it cum onere, subject to all the equities which attach to it;[21] and they stand in such a relation of privity with the corporation that their dealings with it will be subjected to close scrutiny where the rights of its creditors are involved.[22]

c. Grounds of Equitable Relief Where Stock Is Not Paid in — (I) In General. If the shareholders are indebted to the corporation on account of subscriptions made by them to the capital stock, and the board of directors fail or refuse to raise the money to pay such debts, by making and enforcing against the members the necessary assessments, a court of equity will interfere, and either Am. Rep. 563; Spear v. Grant, 16 Mass. 9; Vose v. Grant, 15 Mass. 505; Curran v. Arkansas, 15 How. (U. S.) 304, 14 L. ed. 705; Wood v. Dummer, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,944, 3 Mason 308; Story Eq. Jur. § 1252. See also Schley v. Dixon, 24 Ga. 273, 71 Am. Dec. 121; Tinkham v. Borst, 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 407.

17. Hastings v. Drew, 76 N. Y. 9; Bartlett v. Drew, 57 N. Y. 587 [affirming 4 Lans. (N. Y.) 444, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 648].

18. Wood v. Dummer, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,944, 3 Mason 308.

That a receiver of the assets of the corporation has an equitable lien on assets so improperly distributed among the shareholders see Heman v. Britton, 88 Mo. 549 [reversing 14 Mo. App. 121]. See also In re National Funds Assur. Co., 10 Ch. D. 118, 48 L. J. Ch. 163, 39 L. T. Rep. N. S. 420, 27 Wkly. Rep. 302.

That this remedy to compel restoration of capital improperly divided is available only in equity see Spear v. Grant, 16 Mass. 9; Vose v. Grant, 15 Mass. 505. Compare Gifford v. Thompson, 115 Mass. 478.

Construction of a statute making shareholders liable where corporate funds have been improperly diverted to the payment of dividends, with the conclusion that the word "funds" means resources. Miller v. Bradish, 69 Iowa 278, 28 N. W. 594.

That this rule is not varied by a public registration of the shares see Ward v. Griswoldville Mfg. Co., 16 Conn. 593.

19. See Practical Knowledge Soc. v. Abbott, 2 Beav. 559, 4 Jur. 453, 9 L. J. Ch. 307, 17 Eng. Ch. 559; Wallworth v. Holt, 4 Myl. & C. 619, 18 Eng. Ch. 619. Therefore there was no remedy in Massachusetts until the system of equity was adopted by statute. Spear v. Grant, 16 Mass. 9; Vose v. Grant, 15 Mass. 505.

20. St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566; Calhoun v. King, 5 Ala. 523; Panhandle Nat. Bank v. Emery, 78 Tex. 498, 15 S. W. 23; Wood v. Dummer, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,944, 3 Mason 308; Adair v. Shaw, 1 Sch. & Lef. 266; Hill v. Simpson, 7 Ves. Jr. 152, 6 Rev. Rep. 105.

21. Adler v. Milwaukee Patent Brick Mfg. Co., 13 Wis. 57; Wood v. Dummer, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,944, 3 Mason 313.

22. See the observations of Miller, J., upon this subject in Sawyer v. Hoag, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 610, 21 L. ed. 731 [citing Lawrence v. Nelson, 21 N. Y. 158].

For an illustration of proceeding in equity to compel shareholders to account for diversions of this fund see Hancock v. Holbrook, 40 La. Ann. 53, 3 So. 351; McKusick v. Seymour, 48 Minn. 172, 50 N. W. 1116. See also Horner v. Carter, 11 Fed. 362, 3 McCrary 595.

For decisions illustrating the scope of equitable relief where there has been a fraudulent conversion of corporate property see the following cases:

Alabama.— Allen v. Montgomery R. Co., 11 Ala. 437.

Georgia.— Hightower v. Mustian, 8 Ga. 506.

Mississippi.— Wright v. Petrie, Sm. & M. Ch. 282.

New York.— Nathan v. Whitlock, 9 Paige 152.

United States.— Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Chicago Third Nat. Bank, 134 U. S. 276, 10 S. Ct. 550, 33 L. ed. 900.

compel the directors to perform this duty, or, according to the modern practice, perform it by its own proper officers.[23]

(II) Equity Will Compel Directors to Make Assessments. The power of the directors to make assessments upon shares, when necessary to discharge the debts of the corporation, is not discretionary in the sense of being beyond the control of a court of justice.[24] But courts of equity will compel the exercise of the power or exercise it themselves.[25]

(III) Or Make Assessments by Its Own Methods. Or what is now the more frequent practice the court will make an assessment by its own methods, ordering the shareholders to pay the amount assessable against them severally to the receiver,[26] the assignee for creditors,[27] or even to the complainant.[28]

d. Reference to Master — (I) In General. According to the usual practice of a court of equity a reference will be made to a master to ascertain and report the amount of the debt, and the proportion of it with which each of the shareholders should be charged.[29]

(II) Where Corporation Is in Hands of Receiver. This will be done where the corporation is in the hands of a receiver; and the proper course is said to be for the receiver to procure an order on the shareholders to show cause why a call should not be made, and for the court, on the return-day of the order, after hearing the parties, to grant or refuse the order of assessment.[30]

(III) In Case of Assignment For Benefit of Creditors. Where an assignment has been made by an insolvent corporation for the benefit of its creditors, it is competent for the superintending court to make an order requiring the payment of unpaid share subscriptions.[31]

23. Ward v. Griswoldville Mfg. Co., 16 Conn. 593; Henry v. Vermilion, etc., R. Co., 17 Ohio 187; Adler v. Milwaukee Patent Brick Mfg. Co., 13 Wis. 57, 62; Ogilvie v. Knox Ins. Co., 22 How. (U. S.) 330, 16 L. ed. 349; Marsh v. Burroughs, 16 Fed. Cas. No. 9,112, 1 Woods 463.

24. See Marsh v. Burroughs, 16 Fed. Cas. No. 9,112, 1 Woods 463 (per Bradley, J.); Reg. v. Victoria Park Co., 1 Q. B. 287, 292, 41 E. C. L. 544 (per Lord Denman, C. J.).

25. Alabama.— Allen v. Montgomery R. Co., 11 Ala. 437, 449, per Goldthwaite, J.

Georgia.— Hightower v. Thornton, 8 Ga. 486, 52 Am. Dec. 412, leading case where the doctrine takes root.

Minnesota.—In re Minnehaha Driving Park Assoc., 53 Minn. 423, 55 N. W. 598 (under a statute); Marson v. Deither, 49 Minn. 423, 52 N. W. 38.

New Jersey.— Falk v. Whitman Cigar Co., 55 N. J. Eq. 396, 36 Atl. 1094.

New York.— Briggs v. Penniman, 8 Cow. 387, 18 Am. Dec. 454; Slee v. Bloom, 19 Johns. 456, 10 Am. Dec. 273.

Ohio.— Henry v. Vermilion, etc., R. Co., 17 Ohio 187.

Washington.—McKay v. Elwood, 12 Wash. 579, 41 Pac. 919.

United States.— Ogilvie v. Knox Ins. Co., 22 How. (U. S.) 380, 387, 16 L. ed. 349 (in which Grier, J., said that a bill filed for this purpose was in the nature of an attachment, in which the shareholders are called on to answer as garnishees of the principal debtor); Furnald v. Glenn, 56 Fed. 372.

England.— Salmon v. Hamborough Co., 1 Ch. Cas. 204, 1 Kyd Corp. 273.

26. See infra, VIII, B, 4, d, (II).

27. See infra, VIII, B, 4, d, (III).

28. Slee v. Bloom, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 456, 484, 10 Am. Dec. 273.

29. Briggs v. Penniman, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 387, 18 Am. Dec. 454.

30. Falk v. Whitman Cigar Co., 55 N. J. Eq. 396, 36 Atl. 1094.

31. In re Minnehaha Driving Park Assoc., 53 Minn. 423, 55 N. W. 598 (statutory assignment for benefit of creditors); Marson v. Deither, 49 Minn. 423, 52 N. W. 38; McKay v. Elwood, 12 Wash. 579, 41 Pac. 919 (by direction of the court, after the execution of a common-law assignment for creditors by the corporation makes the subscribers liable as for a debt presently due).

The authority of the court to order the assessment depends upon the question whether it is necessary to assess the shareholders in order to raise money to liquidate the debts of the corporation. In re Minnehaha Driving Park Assoc., 53 Minn. 423, 55 N. W. 598.

Such an assessment does not determine the liability of any particular shareholder, but merely has the effect of making due and payable whatever he may be liable for under the call, so that suit may be brought therefor by the assignee. In re Minnehaha Driving Park Assoc., 53 Minn. 423, 55 N. W. 598.

If the court makes an excessive assessment upon the unpaid shares, this does not violate the substantial rights of the shareholders, since the excess will be repaid to them upon distribution, although no more should be called than is necessary to pay the debts of the corporation and the costs of the winding-up proceedings. Furnald v. Glenn, 56 Fed. 372.

(iv) Conclusiveness of Call When Ordered by Court. The propriety of the assessment ordered by the court appointing a receiver of an insolvent corporation cannot be questioned, in an action by the receiver to collect the assessment.[32]

(v) Power of Directors to Make Calls Ceases With Commencement of Winding-Up Proceedings. The power of the directors to make assessments on the shares comes to an end ipso facto with the making of a judicial order to wind up the corporation.[33]

(vi) Whether Call or Assessment Necessary After Commencement of Winding-Up Proceedings. No call or assessment by the directors is necessary before the institution of suits to collect unpaid balances on subscriptions to capital stock of a corporation, where the corporation has become insolvent and proceedings have been instituted by creditors to wind up and distribute its assets.[34]

5. Creditors Entitled to Share Ratably. The mere statement that the capital stock of a corporation is a trust fund in equity for its creditors carries with it the conclusion that all the beneficiaries of the trust — all the creditors — are entitled to share ratably in its distribution, according to the principles upon which courts of equity proceed in the distribution of equitable assets;[35] and such is the rule, with confusing exceptions[36] growing out of theories of the right of a corporation to prefer its creditors, which will be hereafter discussed.[37]

C. Liability For Debts Incurred Before Organization — 1. General Doctrine That Members Are in Such Cases Liable as Partners — a. Statement of Doctrine. It is a general principle that until a corporation is legally organized the coadventurers will be liable as partners for all debts contracted on behalf of the aggregate body, with their consent, either express or implied.[38]

b. When Partners Liable by Estoppel After Incorporation. Where partners have dealt as such with a third person who has sold goods to them, and after 32. Rand v. Mutual F. Ins. Co., 58 Ill. App. 528.

33. Fowler v. Broad's Patent Night Light Co., [1893] 1 Ch. 724, 62 L. J. Ch. 373, 68 L. T. Rep. N. S. 576, 3 Reports 295, 41 Wkly. Rep. 247.

34. Ross-Meehan Brake-Shoe Foundry Co. v. Southern Malleable Iron Co., 72 Fed. 957.

35. Rieper v. Rieper, 79 Mo. 352; Heiman v. Fisher, 11 Mo. App. 275; Purdy v. Doyle, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 558; Morrice v. Bank of England, Cas. t. Talb. 218; Story Eq. Jur. § 544. See further as to the general rule Atlas Bank v. Nahant Bank, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 581; Codwise v. Gelston, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 507; McDermutt v. Strong, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 687.

36. Wetherbee v. Baker, 35 N. J. Eq. 501.

37. See infra, XX, B, 1, a et seq.

That the directors may become personally liable for a breach of this trust and duty of distributing ratably see Graham v. Hoy, 38 N. Y. Super. Ct. 506.

38. Florida.— Taylor v. Branham, 35 Fla. 297, 17 So. 552, 48 Am. St. Rep. 249, 39 L. R. A. 362.

Illinois.— McDowell v. Joice, 149 Ill. 124, 36 N. E. 1012.

Iowa.— Kaiser v. Lawrence Sav. Bank, 56 Iowa 104, 8 N. W. 772, 41 Am. Rep. 85.

Kentucky.— Cincinnati Cooperage Co. v. Bate, 96 Ky. 356, 26 S. W. 538, 16 Ky. L. Rep. 626, 49 Am. St. Rep. 306, where the directors changed the corporate name without complying with the statute, and the shareholders were held liable on the ground of disincorporation.

Mississippi.— Perkins v. Rouss, 78 Miss. 343, 29 So. 92.

Missouri.— Martin v. Fewell, 79 Mo. 401; Kimball v. Davis, 52 Mo. App. 194 (failure to file statutory notice of the amount of capital stock, and holding that a substantial mistake in stating the amount of capital stock leaves the shareholders liable, whether a typographical error or not).

New York.— Fuller v. Rowe, 57 N. Y. 23.

Pennsylvania.— Guckert v. Hacke, 159 Pa. St. 303, 28 Atl. 249, 34 Wkly. Notes Cas. 41 (those who transact business upon the strength of a corporate organization which is materially defective are liable as partners); McFall v. McKeesport, etc., Ice Co., 123 Pa. St. 259, 16 Atl. 478, 23 Wkly. Notes Cas. 146.

Wisconsin.— Bergeron v. Hobbs, 96 Wis. 641, 71 N. W. 1056, 65 Am. St. Rep. 85, omission to file papers required by statute as a condition precedent — corporation not such de facto.

That it is necessary to show that the shareholder was acting as a partner at the time the contract was made or that upon some consideration he consented to be liable with the other shareholders see Fuller v. Rowe, 57 N. Y. 23.

For an agreement by which the members of an expired corporation created an agent to renew and carry on the business, and thereby became liable as partners for his becoming incorporated they continue to deal with him as before, having their bills made in the same way, without apprising him of their altered condition, they will continue to be liable to him as partners under the principle of estoppel, unless he have actual knowledge, derived from some other source, of the fact of their having become incorporated.[39] Somewhat opposed to the foregoing, it has been held that the failure of an association organized under a statute to record its articles of incorporation before the commencement of negotiations for the purchase of goods, which culminated in a contract with the association after the articles were recorded, does not render its members liable as individuals or general partners for the goods so purchased and delivered.[40]

c. Liability of Members of Joint-Stock Company Afterward Incorporated. If an unincorporated joint-stock company contracts liabilities, and afterward becomes incorporated and assigns its property to the corporation, the members of the unincorporated association remain primarily and jointly and severally liable for the debts so contracted. The responsibility of the corporation for debts so contracted by the voluntary association does not become substituted, without the consent of the creditors, so as to exempt the members from individual liability.[41] But the corporation which thus steps into the shoes of the joint-stock company and accepts an assignment of its property becomes also primarily liable for the existing indebtedness of the company. The creditors thus retain the same security which they had before, namely, the property of the joint-stock company, now that of the corporation, and the individual liability of the members of the joint-stock company, who now become corporators.[42] But existing creditors of the joint-stock company may, by acts which indicate a clear understanding that the credit of the corporation is substituted for that of the partners, discharge the latter from personal liability for the partnership debts, as by continuing with the corporation their previous course of dealing with the partnership and transferring on their books their account against the partnership to their account against the corporation.[43]

2. Distinction Between Prerequisite Steps Necessary to Incorporation and Directory Provisions — a. In General. This distinction relates to cases where attempts are made to create corporations in pursuance of general enabling statutes, and cases where there has been an incorporation by a special act of the legislature. In the former case the enabling statute prescribes the taking of certain steps which are either by the express terms of the statute or by its reasonable construction a condition precedent to the coming into existence of the corporation; so that until those steps are taken the coadventurers do not acquire an exemption from individual liability for debts incurred with their sanction, in behalf of the supposed corporation.[44]

b. Failure to File Articles of Incorporation — (i) In General. The requirement of most of these general enabling acts that articles of incorporation shall be undertakings, see National Union Bank v. Landon, 45 N. Y. 410.

For an example of a promissory note drawn by the master and indorsed by the treasurer of a masonic lodge, on which the members of the lodge were held liable, see Ferris v. Thaw, 72 Mo. 446 [affirming 5 Mo. App. 279], the members of the lodge being charged on the theory of being undisclosed principals.

39. Goddard v. Pratt, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 412, 28 Am. Dec. 259; Martin v. Fewell, 79 Mo. 401; Whitwell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425.

40. Durham Fertilizer Co. v. Clute, 112 N. C. 440, 17 S. E. 419; Hinds v. Battin, 163 Pa. St. 487, 30 Atl. 164, 35 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 350.

41. Goddard v. Pratt, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 412, 28 Am. Dec. 259; Haslett v. Wotherspoon, 1 Strobh. Eq. (S. C.) 209; Broyles v. McCoy, 5 Sneed (Tenn.) 602.

42. Haslett v. Wotherspoon, 1 Strobh. Eq. (S. C.) 209.

43. Whitwell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425, opinion by Redfield, J.

44. Bigelow v. Gregory, 73 Ill. 197; Kaiser v. Lawrence Sav. Bank, 56 Iowa 104, 8 N. W. 772, 41 Am. Rep. 85. See further Harris v. McGregor, 29 Cal. 124; Mokelumne Hill Canal, etc., Co. v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 424, 73 Am. Dec. 658; Granby Mining, etc., Co. v. Richards, 95 Mo. 106, 8 S. W. 246; Abbott v. Omaha Smelting, etc., Co., 4 Nebr. 416. But compare Krutz v. Paola Town Co., 20 Kan. 397; Buffalo, etc., R. Co. v. Cary, 26 N. Y. 75; Eaton v. Aspinwall, 19 N. Y. 119.

filed in a certain public office,[45] or with the secretary of state,[46] falls within the class of mandatory provisions without compliance with which there is no incorporation, and the coadventurers remain liable as partners;[47] but this is not true where the frame of language employed by the statute does not necessarily imply that the filing of articles shall be a prerequisite to the assumption of corporate powers.[48]

(II) Debts Contracted After Articles Filed, but Before Payment For Shares. After the articles of incorporation have been filed in compliance with the governing statute, individual liability for the debts contracted by or on behalf of the corporation ceases, even in respect to members who have not paid up their share subscriptions,[49] unless the statute in terms makes them liable until such payment.[50]

e. Failure to Publish Articles or Notice of Incorporation. This is not a prerequisite to the coming into existence of the corporation, such as leaves shareholders liable for its debts as partners.[51] Even if the rule were otherwise no debt is created, within the meaning of such a statute, by the mere making of an executory contract for the purchase of goods, until the contract has been broken, so as to make the shareholders liable for the debt thereby created, under a statute, by reason of not having given notice of their corporate character by the filing of a certificate.[52]

d. Failure to Keep Corporate Books. A failure to keep corporate books as required by a statute does not render the shareholders liable for the debts of the corporation.[53]

e. Failure to Post By-Laws. A failure to post by-laws as required by a statute does not render the shareholders liable for the debts of the corporation.[54]

f. Failure to File Certificate With County Clerk. A failure to file the certificate of incorporation with the clerk of the county where the principal business of the corporation is to be carried on, as required by a statute, does not leave the corporators liable for debts of the corporation.[55]

3. Increasing Capital Stock Under General Law — a. In General. Where a corporation has been organized under a special charter granted by the legislature, and proceeds to increase its capital stock under the provisions of a general law, this is tantamount to a reincorporation under the general law; so that if there is a failure to pay in the full amount of the increased capital, and to file a certificate thereof as required by the general law, the subscribers to the increase of stock will become individually liable for the subsequent debts of the company to the full extent of the amount subscribed by them respectively.[56] If the liability under the general law is a superadded individual liability, the subscribers to the invalid increase of shares will become individually liable.[57]

45. Bigelow v. Gregory, 73 Ill. 197.

46. Hurt v. Salisbury, 55 Mo. 310. See also Harris v. McGregor, 29 Cal. 124; Abbott v. Omaha Smelting, etc., Co., 4 Nebr. 416.

47. The same has been held of a statute prescribing that in case of a banking corporation certain securities shall be deposited in a public depository. Medill v. Collier, 16 Ohio St. 599.

48. McClain Anno. Code Iowa, § 1611; Iowa Code (1873), § 1061.

49. Jefferson Nat. Bank v. Texas Invest. Co., 74 Tex. 421, 12 S. W. 101.

50. Such was the statute of Massachusetts construed and applied in Barre First Nat. Bank v. Hingham Mfg. Co., 127 Mass. 563.

51. Clark v. Richardson, 31 S. W. 878, 17 Ky. L. Rep. 514.

52. Wing v. Slater, 19 R. I. 597, 35 Atl. 302, 33 L. R. A. 566.

53. Langan v. Iowa, etc., Constr. Co., 49 Iowa 317.

54. Langan v. Iowa, etc., Constr. Co., 49 Iowa 317; McKellar v. Stout, 14 Iowa 359.

55. Jones v. Butler, 146 N. Y. 55, 40 N. E. 633 [reversing 83 Hun (N. Y.) 91, 41 N. Y. Suppl. 401, 63 N. Y. St. 814].

Where the corporation does business in two counties, evidence that the certificate required by statute to be filed by the corporation has not been filed in one of the counties is prima facie evidence that no certificate has been filed. Maher v. Carman, 38 N. Y. 25.

56. Tibballs v. Libby, 87 Ill. 142.

57. Butler v. Walker, 80 Ill. 345. Compare Sayles v. Brown, 40 Fed. 8. That no liability with respect to an increase of shares, because of a failure to file a certificate of the increase, can attach to a member of the company until it is proved that he is

b. Liability in Case of Increase of Shares Until Whole Amount Has Been Paid in. A statute requiring in the case of an increase of capital the payment of the full amount, and the filing and recording of a certificate to that effect, means that until the certificate has been filed and recorded a shareholder remains liable for debts contracted after the increase, although in point of fact he may have paid in full his subscription to the increased shares;[58] and until all the shares as increased are paid for the members are severally liable for the corporate debts.[59]

4. Statutory Liability Until Capital Paid and Certificate Thereof Filed — a. In General. Another statutory provision existing in several of the states is to the effect that until the capital stock of a corporation shall have been paid in, and a certificate thereof filed in some office of public registration, the shareholders shall be individually liable for its debts.[60] Under some of these statutes the liability attaches to the shareholders, although for other purposes the corporation may have acquired a valid organization,[61] and although the contract may not be ultra vires, but may be enforceable by the corporation on its part.[62] As in the case of some other like statutes, the effect of the omission is not to invalidate contracts made by the corporation until the condition is complied with, but is to leave the members liable to answer for them.[63] On the other hand such a statute[64] has been held to mean that the several shareholders of a corporation are individually liable until the whole amount of its capital stock shall have been paid in for any debts of the corporation contracted before that time, and that the subsequent paying in of all the stock terminates the liability. If therefore the whole capital stock of a company was paid in before the trial of a suit brought by a creditor against a shareholder under this statute, the antecedent liability of defendant having thus terminated, plaintiff could not proceed to judgment.[65] And where the statute[66] provides that the shareholders shall be liable until the whole amount of the capital stock shall be paid in, and further provides that it shall be paid in within two years, the creditor is not bound to wait until the expiration of that time before proceeding against a shareholder.[67]

b. Statute Must Be Complied With Both as to Payment and Recording, Etc. The fact that the capital may have been paid in will not exonerate the shareholders, unless the statutory certificate is made and recorded within the pre-a holder of a part of the increased shares see Griffeth v. Green, 129 N. Y. 517, 29 N. E. 838, 42 N. Y. St. 101 [affirming 13 N. Y. Suppl. 470, 37 N. Y. St. 705].

58. Butler v. Walker, 80 Ill. 345.

59. Booth v. Campbell, 37 Md. 522.

60. Salem First Nat. Bank v. Almy, 117 Mass. 476; Hawes v. Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co., 111 Mass. 200.

61. Baker v. Backus, 32 Ill. 79.

62. Chase's Patent Elevator Co. v. Boston Tow-Boat Co., 152 Mass. 428, 28 N. E. 300.

63. Chase's Patent Elevator Co. v. Boston Tow-Boat Co., 152 Mass. 428, 28 N. E. 300, 9 L. R. A. 339.

64. Md. Code (Suppl. 1868), art. 26.

65. Booth v. Campbell, 37 Md. 522.

66. N. Y. Laws (1848), c. 40, § 10.

67. King v. Duncan, 38 Hun (N. Y.) 461.

Construction of New York Insurance Law making corporators jointly and severally liable until the whole amount of the "capital raised" has been paid in, etc. Chase v. Lord, 77 N. Y. 1 [reversing 16 Hun (N. Y.) 369, Earl, Folger, and Miller, JJ., dissenting].

Where the coadventurers embark upon the corporate business without paying in anything, they render themselves liable to creditors to make good the minimum capital prescribed by the governing statute. Burns v. Beck, 83 Ga. 471, 10 S. E. 121.

Payment by a single subscriber of the amount subscribed by him does not exonerate him from personal liability where the statute requires the whole amount of the capital to be paid in, and a certificate thereof recorded; and this extends to a superadded personal liability. Butler v. Walker, 80 Ill. 345 [reaffirmed in Tibbals v. Libby, 87 Ill. 412].

Constitutionality of statute.— That a general statute making directors and shareholders liable for the debts of the corporation, where it was organized under a special charter before the passage of the general statute, because of the capital stock not having been wholly paid in, is not unconstitutional in this application of it see Black v. Womer, 100 Ill. 328; Gulliver v. Roelle, 100 Ill. 141.

Prima facie evidence and burden of proof in order to charge a shareholder under such a statute — burden on plaintiff, although necessary to prove a negative. Chase v. Lord, 77 N. Y. 1, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 258; Bruce v. Driggs, 25 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 71. See also Taylor v. New England, etc., scribed time;[68] nor will the recording of a certificate which is merely acknowledged but not sworn to, as required by the statute, exonerate them.[69]

c. Effect of Issuing Shares as Fully Paid Which Have Not Been Fully Paid. It is further held that proof that shares of stock of the company have been issued as fully paid, when they have not been fully paid, establishes fraud in law, and it is not necessary to supplement this by proving an actual fraudulent intent. So also if it be shown that the shares were issued in exchange for property, with a knowledge on the part of the trustees of the corporation that the value of the property was much less than the par value of the shares, no other fraudulent intent need be shown to authorize a recovery against a shareholder, under the statute, than such as is evidenced by such action.[70]

d. Payment in Worthless Inventions. The payment of the stock exacted by this statute may be either a payment in money or in property honestly regarded as a fair equivalent of money; and where payment had been made, not in cash, but in the transfer to a corporation of certain worthless inventions, a verdict of a jury against a shareholder was sustained, the evidence being, in the view of the court, "sufficient, if not overwhelming."[71]

e. Extraterritorial Effect of Statutes of This Kind. Statutes of the kind under consideration, making the shareholders liable for all debts and contracts made by the company before the capital stock has been paid in and a certificate thereof made and recorded, etc., fall within the class of statutes which are construed as remedial, and not as penal,[72] and are consequently enforced by the courts of other states than those enacting them.[73]

f. Rule Where There Is No Such Statute. If there is no statute such as we are considering the fact that the corporation commences business after a part only of its authorized or potential stock has been subscribed for does not make or leave its members liable as partners for its debts.[74]

5. Rule in Case of De Facto Corporations. In the absence of explicit statutory requirements varying this conclusion, the rule is that although there may have been irregularities in the steps taken to create the corporation, yet where there has been an imperfect organization the members will not be liable to creditors as partners.[75]

6. Liability of Corporators For Debts Contracted Before Shares Distributed. Where an association of persons have complied with the provisions of the law necessary to constitute them a corporation, and have fixed the amount of their capital stock, but have not divided it, and in this situation contract debts, the individual members are jointly and severally liable for such debts.[76]

7. Conclusiveness of Certificate of Incorporation. Upon principles already considered[77] the certificate of incorporation, usually issued by the secretary of Co., 4 Allen (Mass.) 577. For an instruction to a jury to this effect which met with judicial approval see Abbott v. Omaha Smelting, etc., Co., 4 Nebr. 416.

68. Plass v. Housman, 2 N. Y. Suppl. 235, 17 N. Y. St. 671.

69. Hardman v. Sage, 124 N. Y. 25, 26 N. E. 354, 35 N. Y. St. 54.

70. National Tube-Works Co. v. Gilfillan, 124 N. Y. 302, 26 N. E. 538, 35 N. Y. St. 357.

71. National Tube-Works Co. v. Gilfillan, 124 N. Y. 302, 26 N. E. 538, 35 N. Y. St. 357.

Entering upon business with a less capital than that prescribed in special act of incorporation — liable as partners to the extent of making good the deficiency. Haslett v. Wotherspoon, 1 Strobh. Eq. (S. C.) 209. But see South Carolina Mfg. Co. v. State Bank, 6 Rich. Eq. (S. C.) 227, where the same court holds that in such a case the solvent shareholders are not bound to make up the deficiencies of the insolvent ones.

72. See infra, VIII, E, 2; VIII, E, 3.

73. Flash v. Conn, 16 Fla. 428, 26 Am. Rep. 721. Compare Sayles v. Brown, 40 Fed. 8.

74. Thornton v. Balcom, 85 Iowa 198, 52 N. W. 190; Sweney v. Talcott, 85 Iowa 103, 52 N. W. 106.

75. Bendall v. Jackson, 11 Pa. Co. Ct. 183 (mistake occurring in the office of the secretary of state); Seymour Opera-House Co. v. Wooldridge, (Tex. Civ. App. 1895) 31 S. W. 234; Stokes v. Findlay, 23 Fed. Cas. No. 13,478, 4 McCrary 205.

76. Salem First Nat. Bank v. Almy, 117 Mass. 476; Hawes v. Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co., 101 Mass. 385, 111 Mass. 200.

77. See supra, I, M, 7.

state, is a quasi-adjudication of the fact that the corporation has been formed; so that one who afterward gives credit to it as a corporate body cannot support an action against its members by proving that notwithstanding its certificate of incorporation certain prerequisites of the law authorizing its incorporation had not been complied with.[78] In such a case the validity of the existence of the corporation can only be contested by the state.[79]

8. ESTOPPELS AGAINST RAISING QUESTION OF VALIDITY OF CORPORATE EXISTENCE — a. When Shareholders Estopped. Under many circumstances the shareholders will be estopped from setting up the want of such a compliance with the law as is necessary to call the corporation into existence for the purpose of escaping their liability as shareholders, thereby taking advantage of their own wrong.[80]

b. When Creditor Estopped by Reason of Having Contracted With Corporation as Such — (I) IN GENERAL. If the corporation is such de facto, in other words, is a body which might exist under the laws of the jurisdiction, and is in the exercise of corporate franchises, the general rule is that one who contracts with it, and who extends credit to it as an artificial body, becomes thereby estopped from questioning its corporate existence, and consequently from attempting to enforce the contract against its members as partners or original undertakers.[81]

(II) THIS RULE VARIED BY STATUTES. But it is to be carefully kept in mind that this rule is here and there varied by statutes, such as have the effect of making the members of defective corporations, such as but for the statute would be regarded as corporations de facto, personally liable for their debts.[82]

(III) DOCTRINE OF SOME COURTS THAT MEMBERS OF ABORTIVE CORPORATIONS ARE NOT LIABLE AS PARTNERS GENERALLY OR SPECIALLY. Contrary to the foregoing we find that some courts proceed upon the ground that in

78. Laflin, etc., Powder Co. v. Sinsheimer, 46 Md. 315, 24 Am. Rep. 522. See also on a similar case American Salt Co. v. Heidenheimer, 80 Tex. 344, 15 S. W. 1038, 26 Am. St. Rep. 743.

79. Laflin, etc., Powder Co. v. Sinsheimer, 46 Ind. 315, 25 Am. Rep. 522. To the proposition that where a corporation has acquired a formal or colorable existence, its right to exist cannot be challenged in a collateral proceeding so long as the state acquiesces, see also the following cases:

Alabama.— Duke v. Cahawba Nav. Co., 16 Ala. 372; Selma, etc., R. Co. v. Tipton, 5 Ala. 787, 39 Am. Dec. 344.

Massachusetts.— Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 7 Pick. 344.

New Hampshire.— State v. Carr, 5 N. H. 367.

New York.— Jones v. Dana, 24 Barb. 395.

North Carolina.— Tar River Nav. Co. v. Neal, 10 N. C. 520.

Pennsylvania.— Centre, etc., Turnpike Road Co. v. McConaby, 16 Serg. & R. 140.

80. For pertinent illustrations see McDougald v. Lane, 18 Ga. 444; McDougald v. Bellamy, 18 Ga. 411; Hammond v. Straus, 53 Md. 1 (where, however, the statutory requirements were construed as conditions subsequent).

81. Alabama.— Cory v. Lee, 93 Ala. 468, 8 So. 694; Snider's Sons' Co. v. Troy, 91 Ala. 224, 8 So. 658, 24 Am. St. Rep. 887, 11 L. R. A. 515.

Georgia.— Planters', etc., Bank v. Padgett, 69 Ga. 159.

Michigan.— Merchants', etc., Bank v. Stone, 38 Mich. 779.

New Jersey.— Stout v. Zulick, 48 N. J. L. 599, 7 Atl. 362.

Texas.— American Salt Co. v. Heidenheimer, 80 Tex. 344, 15 S. W. 1038, 26 Am. St. Rep. 743.

United States.— Whitney v. Wyman, 101 U. S. 392, 25 L. ed. 1050; Gartside Coal v. Maxwell, 22 Fed. 197.

See also Fox v. McComb, 17 N. Y. Suppl. 783, 44 N. Y. St. 178.

The reasons in support of this doctrine are that the corporate character of a corporation which has had a de facto existence for a considerable time cannot be collaterally assailed by persons who contracted with it in its corporate capacity, relying upon the corporate credit, in order to hold a shareholder thereof individually liable on account of the failure to observe the statutory requirements essential to constitute a de jure corporation. Hogue v. Capital Nat. Bank, 47 Nebr. 929, 66 N. W. 1036, well set forth by Clopton, J., in Snider's Sons' Co. v. Troy, 91 Ala. 224, 8 So. 658, 24 Am. St. Rep. 887, 11 L. R. A. 515.

82. See and compare the following cases:

Arkansas.—Garnett v. Richardson, 35 Ark. 144.

Illinois.— Bigelow v. Gregory, 73 Ill. 197.

Indiana.— Coleman v. Coleman, 78 Ind. 344.

Iowa.— Thornton v. Balcom, 85 Iowa 198, 52 N. W. 190; Heuer v. Carmichael, 82 Iowa 288, 47 N. W. 1034.

the case of a defectively organized corporation the members do not become liable for debts contracted in its behalf, as partners, generally or specially,[83] because they have not agreed to become such and have not held themselves out as such to the other contracting party, and for the further reason that a partnership is not formed by an abortive attempt to form a corporation.[84]

D. Constitutional Provisions Creating and Abolishing Individual Liability — 1. Description of These Provisions — a. Nature and Extent of Liability Created Thereby. Constitutional provisions have been established in many states designed to secure the creditors of corporations by providing for a superadded individual liability. The following may be taken as a model: "Dues from corporations shall be secured by such individual liability of the corporators and other means as may be prescribed by law."[85]

b. Meaning of Word "Dues" in Such Provision. The word "dues" in such a provision makes the shareholders liable for all contracted liabilities of the corporation, but not for unauthorized or ultra vires engagements made by its officers,[86] even though the corporation itself may be estopped from repudiating the contract by reason of having received the benefit of it.[87]

2. Constitutional Provisions Restricting Liability to Unpaid Subscriptions. Other constitutional provisions designed to attract incorporated capital into the state declare a liability to the amount of shares subscribed for or held, and no more, thus: "Dues from private corporations shall be secured by such means as may be prescribed by law; but in no case shall any stockholder be individually liable otherwise than for the unpaid stock owned by him or her."[88]

3. Constitutional Provisions Securing Debts Due For Labor. Constitutional provisions also exist securing debts due by corporations and joint-stock associations for labor, by an individual liability of their shareholders.[89]

4. Constitutional Provisions For Proportional Individual Liability. A provision of this nature is found in the constitution of California.[90]

5. Constitutional Provisions Securing Creditors of Banking Companies. Numerous constitutional provisions have been established especially relating to banking Nebraska.— Abbott v. Omaha Smelting, etc., Co., 4 Nebr. 416.

83. Blanchard v. Kaull, 44 Cal. 440; Stafford Nat. Bank v. Palmer, 47 Conn. 443; Salem First Nat. Bank v. Almy, 117 Mass. 476; Trowbridge v. Scudder, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 83; Fay v. Noble, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 188; Central City Sav. Bank v. Walker, 66 N. Y. 424.

84. Blanchard v. Kaull, 44 Cal. 440. See also supra, I, Q, 7, c, (VI).

85. California.— Const. (1849), art. 4, § 32; Const. (1879), art. 12, § 2.

Indiana.— Const. (1851), art. 11, § 14.

Kansas.— Const. (1859), art. 12, § 2. Hence a provision in a Kansas charter that the shareholders shall not be individually liable for the corporate debts is unconstitutional; but it may be rejected and does not invalidate the organization. Aultman v. Waddle, 40 Kan. 195, 19 Pac. 730.

Montana.— Const. (1889), art. 15, § 19.

North Carolina.—Const. Amendm. (1876), art. 8, § 2.

South Carolina.— Const. (1868), art. 12, § 4.

In Missouri the following cases apply to the Missouri constitution of 1865: State Sav. Assoc. v. Kellogg, 63 Mo. 540; Blakeman v. Benton, 9 Mo. App. 107; Pickering v. Templeton, 2 Mo. App. 424.

The abolition of this double liability by constitutional amendment leaves shareholders liable as at common law to the extent of their unpaid shares and no more. Gausen v. Buck, 68 Mo. 545; Schricker v. Ridings, 65 Mo. 208.

86. Ward v. Joslin, 100 Fed. 676 [affirmed in 105 Fed. 224, 44 C. C. A. 456].

87. Ward v. Joslin, 105 Fed. 224, 44 C. C. A. 456.

88. Alabama.— Const. (1875), art. 14, § 8.

Idaho.— Const. (1889), art. 11, § 17.

Minnesota.— Const. (1857), art. 10, § 3.

Missouri.— Const. (1875), art. 12, § 9.

Nebraska.— Const. (1875), art. 11, § 4 (in special and particular language); Gorder v. Connor, 56 Nebr. 781, 77 N. W. 383.

Nevada.— Const. (1864), art. 8, § 3.

Oregon.— Const. (1857), art. 11, § 3.

South Carolina.— Const. (1868), art. 12, §§ 4, 5; Flenniken v. Marshall, 43 S. C. 80, 20 S. E. 788, 28 L. R. A. 402.

Washington.— Const. (1889), art. 12, § 4, "except banking and insurance companies."

West Virginia.— Const. (1872), art. 11, § 2.

89. Mich. Const. (1850), art. 15, § 7.

As to liability for "labor debts" see infra, VIII, K, 1, a et seq.

90. See Larrabee v. Baldwin, 35 Cal. 155; Borland v. Haven, 37 Fed. 394, 13 Sawy.

companies, securing the creditors of such companies and especially the holders of their circulating notes[91] by a superadded liability of their shareholders.[92]

6. WHETHER THESE CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS ARE SELF-ENFORCING. Following the doctrine of the supreme court of the United States in what is perhaps the leading case on the question whether constitutional provisions are self-executing,[93] a majority, but not all, of the courts have held that constitutional provisions of this kind are not self-enforcing, but that they are merely directory to the legislature.[94] Other courts, proceeding perhaps on clearer and better grounds, hold that such provisions are self-enforcing, unless their language merely imports a command to the legislature.[95]

7. EFFECT OF CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISION CREATING DOUBLE LIABILITY. The necessary effect of a constitutional provision creating what is called a double liability on the part of a shareholder for the debts of the corporation is to prevent the legislature from authorizing a subscription to the shares of a corporation, even by a municipal body, on the condition of a single liability only;[96] or to prevent the legislature from enacting a statute creating a proportionate liability, where the constitution has created a simple superadded liability which may be sued for by any creditor;[97] although such a provision would not necessarily invalidate other portions of the act.[98]

8. EFFECT OF CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT ABOLISHING DOUBLE LIABILITY. A constitutional amendment abolishing this double liability would not be operative as against creditors of a corporation who become such while the constitutional provision creating the double liability was in force, because this would operate to impair the obligation of their contract within the meaning of the contract clause of the federal constitution;[99] but this would not be the case with respect to bonds

551. Under this provision shares are assessable although full paid. Green v. Abietine Medical Co., 96 Cal. 322, 31 Pac. 100; Santa Cruz R. Co. v. Spreckles, 65 Cal. 193, 3 Pac. 661, 802.

91. Allen v. Clayton, 63 Iowa 11, 18 N. W. 663, 50 Am. Rep. 716.

92. Ill. Const. (1870), art. 11, § 6. Similar are Ind. Const. (1851), art. 11, § 6; Iowa Const. (1857), art. 8, § 9; Mich. Const. (1850), art. 15, § 3, Amendm. 1860. That the provision of this nature in the constitution of New York of 1846 applied to special chartered banks as well as to those organized under a general law was held in In re Reciprocity Bank, 22 N. Y. 9.

93. Groves v. Slaughter, 15 Pet. (U. S.) 449, 10 L. ed. 800, a decision by a court sitting without a full bench and some of the judges, including Story, J., dissenting.

94. Illinois.— Bell v. Farwell, 176 Ill. 489, 52 N. E. 346, 68 Am. St. Rep. 194, 42 L. R. A. 804.

Massachusetts.— New Haven Horse Nail Co. v. Linden Springs Co., 142 Mass. 349, 7 N. E. 773.

Missouri.— Blakeman v. Benton, 9 Mo. App. 107. So in effect ruled in Jerman v. Benton, 79 Mo. 148.

New Hampshire.— Crippen v. Leighton, 69 N. H. 540, 44 Atl. 538, 76 Am. St. Rep. 192, 46 L. R. A. 467 (relating to a constitution of Kansas); Rice v. Merrimack Hosiery Co., 56 N. H. 127.

New York.— Marshall v. Sherman, 148 N. Y. 9, 42 N. E. 419, 51 Am. St. Rep. 654, 34 L. R. A. 757, relating to the constitution of Kansas.

Rhode Island.— Hancock Nat. Bank v. Farnum, 20 R. I. 466, 40 Atl. 341.

See also Morley v. Thayer, 3 Fed. 737. Upon the analogous question whether a constitutional provision imposing a personal liability upon directors is self-enforcing see Larrabee v. Baldwin, 35 Cal. 155; French v. Teschemaker, 24 Cal. 518; State v. Kelsey, 89 Mo. 623, 1 S. W. 838; Cummings v. Winn, 89 Mo. 51, 14 S. W. 512; Householder v. Kansas, 83 Mo. 488; Fusz v. Spaunhorst, 67 Mo. 256 [reversing 5 Mo. App. 583].

95. Schertz v. Chester First Nat. Bank, 47 Ill. App. 124; McKusick v. Seymour, 48 Minn. 158, 50 N. W. 1114; Willis v. Mabon, 48 Minn. 140, 50 N. W. 1110, 31 Am. St. Rep. 626, 16 L. R. A. 281; Densmore v. Shepard, 46 Minn. 54, 48 N. W. 528, 681; Arthur v. Willius, 44 Minn. 409, 46 N. W. 851; Mohr v. Minnesota Elevator Co., 40 Minn. 343, 41 N. W. 1074; State v. Minnesota Thresher Mfg. Co., 40 Minn. 213, 41 N. W. 1020, 3 L. R. A. 510; Allen v. Walsh, 25 Minn. 543; Dodge v. Minnesota Plastic Slate Roofing Co., 16 Minn. 368; Whitman v. Oxford Nat. Bank, 83 Fed. 288, 28 C. C. A. 404 [affirmed in 176 U. S. 559, 20 S. Ct. 477, 44 L. ed. 587].

96. Dupee v. Swigert, 127 Ill. 494, 21 N. E. 622.

97. French v. Teschemaker, 24 Cal. 518.

98. Robinson v. Bidwell, 22 Cal. 379; Dupee v. Swigert, 127 Ill. 494, 21 N. E. 622; Aultman v. Waddle, 40 Kan. 195, 19 Pac. 730.

99. St. Louis R. Supplies Mfg. Co. v. Harbine, 2 Mo. App. 134 [following Hathorn v. Calef, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 10, 17 L. ed. 776].

of a corporation issued between the establishment of the original constitutional ordinance and the act of the legislature carrying it into effect, it not being self-executing.[1] And where a corporation has issued its negotiable bonds when the double liability clause of the constitution was in effect, the security afforded by this liability inhered in the bonds so as to be available to one who purchased them after the constitutional provision had been abolished.[2]

9. Creditor May Waive His Constitutional or Statutory Right to Proceed Against Shareholders. There is no doubt that a creditor may, by express contract with the corporation, waive his constitutional or statutory right to proceed against its shareholders in case of its failure to pay the debts;[3] and it is equally clear that the creditor may waive this right by contract even at the time of making the contract,[4] or subsequently, assuming in the latter case that there is a consideration accruing to the creditor for such a release of his rights. But on the question whether an implied waiver arises from the fact that the shareholders have agreed among themselves not to be answerable to creditors and that a creditor has notice of this agreement there is more doubt.

10. Exemption From Individual Liability in Case of Corporations Engaging in Particular Business. It remains to consider the condition of the constitutional law of Minnesota under which shareholders of corporations generally rest under an individual liability for the debts of the corporation, but exempting from such liability shareholders in corporations organized for manufacturing and mechanical purposes.[5] The construction of the provision is that in order to acquire the benefit of the exemption the corporation must have been created exclusively for manufacturing or mechanical purposes.[6]

E. Construction of Statutes Making Shareholders Personally Liable For Corporate Debts — 1. Doctrine That Such Statutes Are to Be Strictly Construed — a. Statement of Doctrine. The courts of several of the states have adopted the rule that statutes creating an individual liability on the part of shareholders to pay the debts of the corporation are in derogation of the common law and hence to be strictly construed.[7]

1. Jerman v. Benton, 79 Mo. 148.

2. Blakeman v. Benton, 9 Mo. App. 107.

3. French v. Teschemaker, 24 Cal. 518, 539; Robinson v. Bidwell, 22 Cal. 379, 388 (per Crocker, J.); Basshor v. Forbes, 36 Md. 154.

4. Ohio L. Ins., etc., Co. v. Merchants' Ins., etc., Co., 11 Humphr. (Tenn.) 1, 53 Am. Dec. 742.

That there is such a waiver in the case of a partnership see Story Partn. § 164; also the opinion of Crocker, J., in Robinson v. Bidwell, 22 Cal. 379, 389. But note the opinion of Sir Nathaniel Lindley that all engagements of this kind among shareholders are valueless. Lindley Partn. (1st ed.) 301.

5. Minn. Const. (1857), art. 10, § 3.

6. Arthur v. Willius, 44 Minn. 409, 46 N. W. 851.

What corporations are within this exemption.— Senour Mfg. Co. v. Church Paint, etc., Co., 81 Minn. 294, 84 N. W. 109 (what language in articles of incorporation sufficiently describe the business — manufacturing of painters' materials and supplies, etc., within the statute); Cuyler v. City Power Co., 74 Minn. 22, 76 N. W. 948 (water and steam power company); Nicollet Nat. Bank v. Frisk-Turner Co., 71 Minn. 413, 74 N. W. 160, 70 Am. St. Rep. 334 (manufacturing clothing and then selling it).

What corporations are not within this exemption.— Gould v. Fuller, 79 Minn. 414, 82 N. W. 673 (general laundry business); Minnesota Title Ins., etc., Co. v. Regan, 72 Minn. 431, 75 N. W. 722 (manufacturing and leasing manufactured articles and buying, owning, selling, leasing, and otherwise disposing of real estate, patents, inventions, and other personal property).

Evading this constitutional provision by incorporating ostensibly for manufacturing or mechanical purposes and then engaging in other business. Mohr v. Minnesota Elevator Co., 40 Minn. 343, 41 N. W. 1074. Compare Senour Mfg. Co. v. Church Paint, etc., Co., 81 Minn. 294, 84 N. W. 109 (shareholders not liable, although corporation organized within the statute did engage in other business than manufacturing or mechanical purposes); State v. Minnesota Thresher Mfg. Co., 40 Minn. 213, 41 N. W. 1020, 3 L. R. A. 510.

7. Libby v. Tobey, 82 Me. 397, 19 Atl. 904; Coffin v. Rich, 45 Me. 507, 71 Am. Dec. 559; Dane v. Dane Mfg. Co., 14 Gray (Mass.) 488; Gray v. Coffin, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 192; Chase v. Lord, 77 N. Y. 1, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 258 [reversing 16 Hun (N. Y.) 369]; Means' Appeal, 85 Pa. St. 75; Moyer v. Pennsylvania Slate Co., 71 Pa. St. 293.

b. Comments on Doctrine. It may be doubted whether, under proper conceptions of the line of demarcation between the province of the legislature and that of the judiciary, there is properly any canon of statutory construction, as strict construction, liberal construction, or any other construction than a construction which gives so far as possible full and fair effect to the intention of the legislature.[8] But however this may be, the reason given by the judges for applying a rule of strict construction in the relation under consideration, that statutes which subject members of corporations to liability for the debts are in derogation of the common law,[9] is believed to be gross misconception. Instead of such statutes being in derogation of the common law, the true view is that statutes conferring upon members of corporations an exemption from liability to pay the debts of the corporation, that is to say, to pay their own debts, contracted by their own agents in their own behalf and for their own profit, thus exempting them from the burden of paying their own debts which rest upon the inhabitants of the state in common, are in derogation of the common law.

c. Illustration of Strict Construction, With Conclusion That in Case of Death of Shareholder His Statutory Liability Cannot Be Revived Against His Executor. Applying this rule of construction, under a statute providing that the person or property of a shareholder was not thereafter to be taken upon an execution issued against the corporation, "unless a summons in the action was left with said stockholder," it was held that if, pending the determination of the question of the liability of a shareholder who has been summoned, he should die, the proceeding could not be revived against his executor;[10] a holding which affords a gross illustration of the doctrine of strict construction.

2. Decisions Which Import Remedial Construction. Decisions are not wanting which support the theory that such statutes are to be construed remedially so as to suppress the mischief and advance the remedy.[11]

3. Such Statutes When Penal to Be Strictly Construed. Statutes imposing a liability upon shareholders for the payment of debts of the corporation are to be strictly construed when penal in their nature, such as a statute making them so liable because of the failure to perform some specific act,[12] such as the failure to publish an annual notice of the indebtedness of the corporation.[13] But it is to be observed that statutes imposing individual liability on shareholders are generally held to be not penal.[14]

4. What Statutes of Individual Liability Are Penal and What Not — a. In General. It has been held that a statute making shareholders individually liable for certain contracts which it expressly forbids the corporation to make is not to be regarded as making them liable as on contract, but creates a liability in the nature of a penalty.[15] So a statute making the shareholders liable to pay the debts of the corporation contracted while it is in default in publishing a notice of the state of its affairs therein provided for has been held to be penal in its character.[16] The courts are, however, substantially agreed in one thing: That an ordi-

8. In vindication of this principle read the language of Lumpkin, J., in Lane v. Morris, 8 Ga. 468, 475, 478; of Kent, J., in Ingalls v. Cole, 47 Me. 530, 540; of Graves, J., in Bohn v. Brown, 33 Mich. 257; and also judicial expressions in the following cases: Davidson v. Rankin, 34 Cal. 503, 505; Mokelumne Hill Canal, etc., Co. v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 265; Coffin v. Rich, 45 Me. 507, 511, 71 Am. Dec. 559, per Davis, J. [affirming the language of 4 Bacon Abr. 652].

9. Gray v. Coffin, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 192.

10. Dane v. Dane Mfg. Co., 14 Gray (Mass.) 488. See also Ripley v. Sampson, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 371.

11. Lane v. Morris, 8 Ga. 468; Van Hook v. Whitlock, 2 Edw. (N. Y.) 304; Atwood v. Rhode Island Agricultural Bank, 1 R. I. 376; Carver v. Braintree Mfg. Co., 5 Fed. Cas. No. 2,485, 2 Story 432.

12. Cable v. McCune, 26 Mo. 371, 72 Am. Dec. 214; Garrison v. Howe, 17 N. Y. 458.

13. Globe Pub. Co. v. State Bank, 41 Nebr. 175, 59 N. W. 683, 27 L. R. A. 854. Compare Kritzer v. Woodson, 19 Mo. 327.

14. See infra, VIII, E, 4, a et seq.

15. Lawler v. Burt, 7 Ohio St. 340. To similar effect see Bird v. Hayden, 1 Rob. (N. Y.) 383, 2 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 61; Struges v. Burton, 8 Ohio St. 215, 72 Am. Dec. 582.

16. Cable v. McCune, 26 Mo. 371, 72 Am. Dec. 214. See also Sayles v. Brown, 40 Fed. 8.

nary double or individual liability imposed upon a shareholder for the debts of the corporation is not in the nature of a penalty, but springs out of contract.[17]

b. Statute Supplanting One More Onerous. These it seems should be remedially construed.[18]

5. Statutory Remedy Against Shareholders to Be Followed — a. In General. Laying theories out of view, the general conclusion of the courts is that in any proceeding to enforce a statutory individual liability against a shareholder or shareholders the remedy prescribed by the statute must be followed.[19]

b. Rule Where Statute Points Out No Remedy. This is consistent with the conclusion that if the constitutional ordinance or statute creating the personal liability points out no remedy, then the proper remedy must be sought for in the principles of the common law or of equity.[20]

6. Such Statutes Not Construed as Retroactive — a. In General. Upon a familiar rule of statutory construction,[21] statutes imposing an individual liability on shareholders for the debts of the corporation are not construed so as to make them retroactive in their operation, unless their terms clearly import an intention on the part of the legislature that they shall be so construed.[22]

b. But May Operate Upon Existing Corporations. But it has been held that such a statute may well be held to operate upon existing corporations, although not as to past transactions.[23]

c. Liability Governed by Statute in Force When Debt Created. It follows that the statutory liability of a shareholder for the debts of the corporation is to be

17. Norris v. Wrenschall, 34 Md. 492; Bagley v. Tyler, 43 Mo. App. 195; Manville v. Edgar, 8 Mo. App. 324; Hodgson v. Cheever, 8 Mo. App. 318; Aultman's Appeal, 98 Pa. St. 505. See as showing that the liability is contractual Hawkins v. Iron Valley Furnace Co., 40 Ohio St. 507; Brown v. Hitchcock, 36 Ohio St. 667; Wright v. McCormack, 17 Ohio St. 86; Hathorn v. Calef, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 10, 17 L. ed. 776. But see Rice v. Merrimack Hosiery Co., 56 N. H. 114, 128, where the court, in refusing to enforce the liability of shareholders in an Ohio corporation for all debts due to laborers, declared it to be a "mere creature of the statute, having none of the elements of a contract, whether express or implied."

18. Gay v. Keys, 30 Ill. 413; Holyoke Bank v. Goodman Paper Mfg. Co., 9 Cush. (Mass.) 576.

19. Illinois.— Peck v. Coalfield Coal Co., 3 Ill. App. 619.

Maine.— Grose v. Hilt, 36 Me. 22.

Massachusetts.— Chamberlin v. Huguenot Co., 118 Mass. 532; Priest v. Essex Hat Mfg. Co., 115 Mass. 380; Erickson v. Nesmith, 15 Gray 221; Knowlton v. Ackley, 8 Cush. 93, 97; Stone v. Wiggin, 5 Metc. 316; Kelton v. Phillips, 3 Metc. 61; Andrews v. Callender, 13 Pick. 484; Ripley v. Sampson, 10 Pick. 371; Child v. Coffin, 17 Mass. 64; Leland v. Marsh, 16 Mass. 389.

Minnesota.— Johnson v. Fischer, 30 Minn. 173, 14 N. W. 799; Allen v. Walsh, 25 Minn. 543.

New York.— Lowry v. Inman, 46 N. Y. 119; Diven v. Lee, 36 N. Y. 302, 34 How. Pr. 197; St. Louis Sav. Assoc. v. O'Brien, 51 Hun 45, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 764, 20 N. Y. St. 826.

Pennsylvania.— Youghiogheny Shaft Co. v. Evans, 72 Pa. St. 331; Hoard v. Wilcox, 47 Pa. St. 51; Brinham v. Wellersburg Coal Co., 47 Pa. St. 43.

Rhode Island.— Moies v. Sprague, 9 R. I. 541.

Vermont.— Bassett v. St. Albans Hotel Co., 47 Vt. 313; Windham Provident Inst. v. Sprague, 43 Vt. 502; Dauchy v. Brown, 24 Vt. 197.

United States.— New York Fourth Nat. Bank v. Francklyn, 120 U. S. 747, 7 S. Ct. 757, 30 L. ed. 825. Compare Terry v. Little, 101 U. S. 216, 25 L. ed. 864; Pollard v. Bailey, 20 Wall. 520, 22 L. ed. 376.

20. Cummings v. Winn, 89 Mo. 51, 14 S. W. 512; Householder v. Kansas City, 83 Mo. 488; Windham Provident Inst. v. Sprague, 43 Vt. 502.

21. Connecticut.— Whedon v. Gorham, 38 Conn. 408.

New York.— Palmer v. Conly, 4 Den. 374.

Vermont.— Perrin v. Sargeant, 33 Vt. 84; Simonds v. Powers, 28 Vt. 354.

Wisconsin.— Seamans v. Carter, 15 Wis. 548, 82 Am. Dec. 696.

England.— Hitchcock v. Way, 6 A. & E. 943, 6 L. J. K. B. 215, 2 N. & P. 72, W. W. & D. 491, 33 E. C. L. 490; Paddon v. Bartlett, 3 A. & E. 884, 1 H. & W. 286, 5 N. & M. 384, 30 E. C. L. 399; London v. Harrison, 9 B. & C. 524, 17 E. C. L. 238, 7 L. J. K. B. O. S. 249, M. & M. 191, 22 E. C. L. 504, 4 M. & R. 404.

22. Hathorn v. Towle, 46 Me. 302; Carroll v. Hinkley, 46 Me. 81; Coffin v. Rich, 45 Me. 507, 71 Am. Dec. 559; Grose v. Hilt, 36 Me. 22.

23. Arenz v. Weir, 89 Ill. 25 (where such a statute was construed as applying to corporations organized before its passage); Gray v. Coffin, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 192. Com-

determined according to the law in force when the debt was contracted, and not by a subsequent statute, although the latter statute was enacted before the particular shareholder became such, and although it lessens the liability of shareholders to creditors, the reason being that this individual liability enters into the contract of subscription of each shareholder and forms a part of the security of the creditor.[24]

7. STATUTORY DESCRIPTIONS OF PERSONS CHARGEABLE AS SHAREHOLDERS. It is not necessary to say that the person sought to be charged with liability as a shareholder must come within the statutory description, a rule which has been applied so as to exonerate from liability the estate of a deceased shareholder;[25] so as to make the word "subscribers" in an amendatory statute include all shareholders, not only those who were original subscribers to the shares but those who became owners of them by transfer, the amendatory act reinstating the ordinary liability to the amount of stock subscribed for;[26] and so as to make the phrase "all the members" in a statute of individual liability include all who are members at the time when the liability is sought to be enforced.[27]

8. INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY SURVIVES IN PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE OF DECEASED SHAREHOLDER. Statutes which merely impose upon shareholders an individual liability for the debts of the corporation, not being penal in their nature,[28] the liability thus created does not die with the shareholder, but survives, and may be enforced against his estate in the hands of his personal representative.[29]

F. Constitutional Questions Arising Under Such Statutes — 1. GENERAL DOCTRINE THAT LEGISLATIVE ALTERATION OF CHARTER IS VOID — a. Statement of Doctrine. The charter of a corporation, when accepted, is a contract between the corporation and the state; and unless the right of legislative supervision is reserved therein any subsequent act of the legislature which impairs any of the substantial privileges conferred by it impairs the obligation of a contract, and is hence in conflict with the constitution of the United States and void.[30]

b. Invalidity of Statutes Substituting Liability of Corporation For That of Shareholders. Therefore it is not within the power of the state legislature, under the constitution of the United States, by granting a charter to the members of a joint-stock company, who are personally liable for its debts, to substitute the responsibility of the joint fund for that of the individual members and the fund, without the consent of the creditors.[31]

2. STATUTES IMPOSING INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY UNCONSTITUTIONAL AS TO EXISTING CHARTERS. Statutes and state constitutional ordinances imposing, without their consent, an individual liability upon shareholders for the debts of the corporation pare Megargee v. Wakefield Mfg. Co., 48 Pa. St. 442.

24. National Commercial Bank v. McDonnell, 92 Ala. 387, 9 So. 149; Gibbs v. Davis, 27 Fla. 531, 8 So. 633.

25. Diven v. Lee, 36 N. Y. 302, 34 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 197.

26. Gay v. Keys, 30 Ill. 413.

27. Curtis v. Harlow, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 3. See also Longley v. Little, 26 Me. 162.

28. See infra, VIII, O, 1 et seq.

29. Cochran v. Wiechers, 119 N. Y. 399, 23 N. E. 803, 29 N. Y. St. 388, 7 L. R. A. 553; Chase v. Lord, 77 N. Y. 1; Bailey v. Hollister, 26 N. Y. 112; Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S. 27, 7 S. Ct. 788, 30 L. ed. 862; Flash v. Conn, 109 U. S. 371, 3 S. Ct. 263, 27 L. ed. 966; Allen v. Fairbanks, 40 Fed. 188. To the contrary see Dane v. Dane Mfg. Co., 14 Gray (Mass.) 488. Compare Gray v. Coffin, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 192.

Words importing a superadded individual liability to the amount of the stock held.— The words "to the extent of their stock" were so construed. McDonnell v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 85 Ala. 401, 5 So. 120.

Whether a release of a corporation under an insolvent act releases its shareholders.— See and compare Willis v. Mabon, 48 Minn. 140, 50 N. W. 1110, 31 Am. St. Rep. 626, 16 L. R. A. 281; Tripp v. Northwestern Nat. Bank, 41 Minn. 400, 43 N. W. 60.

Construction of the words "business and property" in an English winding-up act. China Bank v. Morse, 44 N. Y. App. Div. 435, 61 N. Y. Suppl. 268.

30. U. S. Const. art. 1, § 10; Nichols v. Somerset, etc., R. Co., 43 Me. 356; Nichols v. Bertram, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 342; Wales v. Stetson, 2 Mass. 143, 3 Am. Dec. 39; Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 518, 4 L. ed. 629.

31. Witmer v. Schlatter, 2 Rawle (Pa.) 359.

are therefore unconstitutional, in so far as they operate upon existing charters under which there is no such liability,[32] unless in the original charter or in some statute or constitutional provision existing and operative at the time of its passage, a power on the part of the legislature to alter the charter is reserved;[33] and this rule applies under the same conditions to corporations which have been organized under general laws.[34]

3. STATUTES IMPOSING LIABILITY AS TO FUTURE DEBTS NOT UNCONSTITUTIONAL. A statute which makes the shareholders of an existing corporation liable for the future debts of the corporation or which discharges them from such liability[35] does not infringe the chartered franchises of the corporation, but merely regulates the future relations of debtor and creditor, and is hence a valid exercise of legislative power.[36] But such a statute would be unconstitutional, in so far as it should attempt to create an individual liability for debts of the corporation already contracted.[37]

4. LEGISLATIVE POWER OVER LIABILITY OF SHAREHOLDERS WHERE RIGHT OF REPEAL IS RESERVED. Where the legislature passes a general statute authorizing the organization of corporations, and provides for an exemption from individual liability on the part of their members, and in the statute reserves the right to alter or repeal it, this is a reservation of the power to alter or repeal all or any of the terms, conditions, and rules of liability prescribed in the act; and it is competent for the legislature thereafter to pass an act imposing individual liability upon the members of such corporations, although they were such at the time of the latter act.[38]

5. EFFECT OF CONSTITUTIONAL MANDATE UPON CHARTERS WITH RESPECT TO WHICH NO RIGHT OF REPEAL OR AMENDMENT HAS BEEN RESERVED. The provision which we have found in so many constitutions,[39] that "dues from corporations . . . shall be secured by such individual liability of the corporators, or other means, as may be prescribed by law,"[40] has been held to authorize the passage of a law imposing an individual liability on shareholders of corporations which had been previously chartered, and in whose charter no right of amendment thereof was reserved. The view being that the language was designed to express a reservation of power in the general assemby to provide from time to time by legislation, as experience should suggest or wisdom dictate, for securing dues from corporations by individual liability of the corporators or by other means.[41]

6. STATUTES AFFECTING REMEDY MERELY, NOT INVALID — a. Rule Stated. Statutes which do not attempt to impose a new or an increased liability upon shareholders, but which merely change or otherwise affect the remedy of the creditor against them are not unconstitutional.[42]

b. What Statutes Taking Away Remedies Against Shareholders Have Been Held Valid — (I) IN GENERAL. Of this nature is a statute repealing a previous 32. Com. v. Cochituate Bank, 3 Allen (Mass.) 42; Fairchild v. Masonic Hall Assoc., 71 Mo. 526; Ireland v. Palestine, etc., Turnpike Co., 19 Ohio St. 369 [qualifying Palestine, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Wooden, 13 Ohio St. 395]; Steacy v. Little Rock, etc., R. Co., 22 Fed. Cas. No. 13,329, 5 Dill. 348 (state constitutional ordinance). Compare State v. Sullivan County Ct., 51 Mo. 522.

33. In re Oliver Lee, etc., Bank, 21 N. Y. 9. See also supra, I, K, 3, a et seq.

34. Ireland v. Palestine, etc., Turnpike Co., 19 Ohio St. 369.

35. Sparks v. Lower Payette Ditch Co., 2 Ida. 1030, 29 Pac. 134; Hathorn v. Towle, 46 Me. 302; Carroll v. Hinkley, 46 Me. 81.

36. Coffin v. Rich, 45 Me. 507, 71 Am. Dec. 559; Stanley v. Stanley, 26 Me. 191; Gray v. Coffin, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 192. Compare Longley v. Little, 26 Me. 162; Wheeler v. Frontier Bank, 23 Me. 308; Com. v. Cochituate Bank, 3 Allen (Mass.) 42.

37. Com. v. Cochituate Bank, 3 Allen (Mass.) 42.

38. Sherman v. Smith, 1 Black (U. S.) 587, 17 L. ed. 163 [affirming In re Oliver Lee, etc., Bank, 21 N. Y. 9, and followed in Re Reciprocity Bank, 22 N. Y. 9]. Compare Wiliams v. Nall, 108 Ky. 21, 55 S. W. 706, 21 Ky. L. Rep. 1526.

39. See supra, VIII, D, 1, a et seq.

40. Ill. Const. art. 10, § 2.

41. Weidenger v. Spruance, 101 Ill. 278.

42. Com. v. Cochituate Bank, 3 Allen (Mass.) 42; Steam Stone-Cutter Co. v. Scott, 157 Mo. 520, 57 S. W. 1076.

statute making shareholders liable to arrest under execution issued upon judgment recovered against the corporation[43] and a statute changing the remedy of the creditors of certain insolvent corporations to a bill in equity brought by trustees as their representatives.[44]

(II) Statutes Giving New or Additional Remedies to Creditors. The same principle upholds the validity of statutes which give a new or additional remedy to creditors of the corporation against its shareholders without increasing the measure of their liability.[45]

(III) Statutes Giving Summary Remedies. Statutes which permit an execution on a judgment against a corporation to be levied upon the body[46] and goods of a shareholder are not unconstitutional.[47]

7. Waiver by Shareholder of Constitutional Immunity. While an individual liability for corporate debts cannot be imposed upon a shareholder by a statute passed subsequently to the time when he became such, yet he may waive this constitutional immunity and become liable by his own consent.[48]

8. Statutes Repealing Individual Liability Laws, if Retroactive, Void — a. In General. It is the settled law of this country that a statute[49] or ordinance of a state constitution[50] which repeals a former statute which made the shareholders of a corporation individually liable to pay the debts of the corporation is, as respects creditors whose debts were contracted prior to its passage, in derogation of the constitution of the United States[51] and void.[52]

b. Otherwise in Case of Shareholders Subsequently Joining. But such a repeal is valid as to shareholders subsequently joining the company.[53]

9. No Power in Legislature to Vary Liability Fixed by State Constitution. If the state constitution prescribes the extent of the liability of shareholders to corporate creditors in such language as excludes the power of the legislature, any act passed by that body extending such liability[54] will be void as to the shareholders, and any act restricting it will be void as to creditors.

G. Extraterritorial Force of Statutes Imposing Individual Liability Upon Shareholders — 1. Liability of Resident Shareholders in Foreign Corporations Determined By Law of Domicile — a. In General. The charter of a corporation, or the statute under which it is organized, furnishes the guide in determining the liability of its shareholders to its creditors;[55] and this is so where 43. Ex p. Penniman, 11 R. I. 333.

44. Com. v. Cochituate Bank, 2 Allen (Mass.) 42; Story v. Furman, 25 N. Y. 214.

45. Sparks v. Lower Payette Ditch Co., 2 Ida. 1030, 29 Pac. 134; Hill v. Merchants' Mut. Ins. Co., 134 U. S. 515, 10 S. Ct. 589, 33 L. ed. 994.

46. Before the abolition of imprisonment for debt.

47. Stanley v. Stanley, 26 Me. 191; Marcy v. Clark, 17 Mass. 330 (opinion by Parker, C. J.).

48. Ireland v. Palestine, etc., Turnpike Co., 19 Ohio St. 369.

49. Norris v. Wrenschall, 34 Md. 492; Story v. Furman, 25 N. Y. 214; Rochester v. Barnes, 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 657; Conant v. Van Schaick, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 87; Hathorn v. Calef, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 10, 17 L. ed. 776.

50. McDonnell v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 85 Ala. 401, 5 So. 120; Ochiltree v. Iowa R. Contracting Co., 54 Mo. 113 [affirmed in 21 Wall. (U. S.) 249, 22 L. ed. 546]; Provident Sav. Inst. v. Jackson Place Skating, etc., Rink, 52 Mo. 552; Blakeman v. Benton, 9 Mo. App. 107; St. Louis R. Supplies Mfg. Co. v. Harbine, 2 Mo. App. 134.

51. U. S. Const. art. 10, § 1.

52. Hathorn v. Calef, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 10, 17 L. ed. 776. That this is an additional security extended to the creditor is the doctrine of nearly all the cases. Hawkins v. Iron Valley Furnace Co., 40 Ohio St. 507; Brown v. Hitchcock, 36 Ohio St. 667; Wright v. McCormack, 17 Ohio St. 86; Aultman's Appeal, 98 Pa. St. 505. Cases proceeding upon the principle of the text, where the state was a shareholder, are: Curran v. Arkansas, 15 How. (U. S.) 304, 14 L. ed. 705; Woodruff v. Trapnall, 10 How. (U. S.) 190, 13 L. ed. 383.

53. Ochiltree v. Iowa R. Contracting Co., 21 Wall. (U. S.) 249, 22 L. ed. 546 [affirming 54 Mo. 113].

54. Van Pelt v. Gardner, 54 Nebr. 701, 74 N. W. 1083, 75 N. W. 874.

55. Alabama.—Smith v. Huckabee, 53 Ala. 191; St. Mary's Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566; Bingham v. Rushing, 5 Ala. 403.

Connecticut.— Fish v. Smith, 73 Conn. 377, 47 Atl. 711, 84 Am. St. Rep. 161.

Georgia.— Lane v. Morris, 8 Ga. 468, opinion by Lumpkin, J.

Indiana.— Shaw v. Boylan, 16 Ind. 384.

the proceeding is by a creditor of a foreign corporation against a resident shareholder; if the shareholder is liable at all he is in general liable only according to the law of the domicile of the corporation.[56] Nor can he plead ignorance of such law any more than he can plead ignorance of the law of another state, when he makes a contract to be executed therein.[57] Subject to exceptions hereafter stated, those laws are administered in the courts, state or federal, in which the action to charge the shareholder is brought as rules of property, obligatory not only in the state enacting them but everywhere else.[58] This of course supposes that there is no valid and operative legislation in the state of the shareholder's domicile imposing upon him a distinct liability as a shareholder in a foreign corporation, in view of which he has elected to assume that liability.[59] It also supposes that the statute imposing the liability is not penal in its nature; for if it is it will not be allowed to have any extraterritorial operation.[60]

b. So in Case of Shareholders in Migrating Companies. The court of appeals of New York has clothed the shareholders of a Connecticut corporation doing business in the state of New York with the immunities attaching to their situation under the laws of Connecticut;[61] has enabled citizens of New York to organize themselves into a corporation under the laws of another state for the purpose of doing business in New York, and to enjoy the immunity of corporators in their own state;[62] and has even allowed a foreign corporation domiciled in New York to make an assignment, preferring particular creditors, which a domestic corporation could not do.[63]

c. Interpretation of Foreign Statute in Foreign Forum Followed. In all such cases, where the question of the liability of the resident shareholder depends upon the interpretation of the charter or statute of the foreign state by which the corporation was created, or by which it is governed, the court will follow the interpretation which the courts of that state have put upon it, in pursuance of the well-known rule that a foreign tribunal is followed in the interpretation of its own statutes.[64]

Maine.— Coffin v. Rich, 45 Me. 507, 71 Am. Dec. 559.

Massachusetts.— Andover Free Schools v. Flint, 13 Metc. 539.

Ohio.— Judson v. Stewart, 7 Ohio S. & C. Pl. Dec. 532, 7 Ohio N. P. 160.

United States.— Sumner v. Marcy, 23 Fed. Cas. No. 13,609, 3 Woodb. & M. 105.

56. Massachusetts.— New Haven Horse Nail Co. v. Linden Springs Co., 142 Mass. 349, 7 N. E. 773; Halsey v. McLean, 12 Allen 438, 90 Am. Dec. 157; Hutchins v. New England Coal Min. Co., 4 Allen 580; Blackstone Mfg. Co. v. Blackstone, 13 Gray 488; Penobscot, etc., R. Co. v. Bartlett, 12 Gray 244, 71 Am. Dec. 753; Jones v. Sisson, 6 Gray 288.

Minnesota.— Deadwood First Nat. Bank v. Gustin Minerva Consol. Min. Co., 42 Minn. 327, 44 N. W. 198, 18 Am. St. Rep. 510, 6 L. R. A. 676.

New York.— Merrick v. Van Santvoord, 34 N. Y. 208; Seymour v. Sturgess, 26 N. Y. 134; St. Louis Sav. Assoc. v. O'Brien, 51 Hun 45, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 764, 20 N. Y. St. 826; McDonough v. Phelps, 15 How. Pr. 372; Ex p. Van Riper, 20 Wend. 614.

West Virginia.— Nimick v. Mingo Iron Works Co., 25 W. Va. 184.

United States.— Glenn v. Liggett, 135 U. S. 533, 10 S. Ct. 867, 34 L. ed. 262; Allen v. Fairbanks, 45 Fed. 445; Payson v. Withers, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 10,864, 5 Biss. 269.

The liability of a shareholder in a corporation created by the provincial parliament of Quebec to its creditors is to be determined, in a court of New York, by the law of that province. Molson's Bank v. Boardman, 47 Hun (N. Y.) 135, 14 N. Y. St. 658.

A shareholder of a national bank subjects himself to the provisions of the National Bank Act, as part of the contract in the bank's charter. Young v. Wempe, 46 Fed. 354.

57. Payson v. Withers, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 10,864, 5 Biss. 269, 278.

58. Chase v. Curtis, 113 U. S. 452, 5 S. Ct. 554, 28 L. ed. 1038; Allen v. Fairbanks, 45 Fed. 445.

59. See Drinkwater v. Portland Mar. R. Co., 18 Me. 35.

60. See infra, VIII, G, 5, b, (III).

61. Merrick v. Van Santvoord, 34 N. Y. 208.

62. Demarest v. Flack, 128 N. Y. 205, 28 N. E. 645, 40 N. Y. St. 383, 13 L. R. A. 854.

63. Vanderpoel v. Gorman, 140 N. Y. 563, 35 N. E. 932, 56 N. Y. St. 503, 37 Am. St. Rep. 601, 24 L. R. A. 548. See also 28 Am. L. Rev. 307, 461.

64. St. Louis Sav. Assoc. v. O'Brien, 51 Hun (N. Y.) 45, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 764, 20 N. Y. St. 826; Merrimac Min. Co. v. Levy, 54 Pa. St. 227, 93 Am. Dec. 697; Johnston v. South Western R. Bank, 3 Strobh. Eq. (S. C.) 263. See also Franks Oil Co. v. McCleary, 63 Pa. St. 317, where the second case is referred to.

d. Remedy According to Law of Forum — (I) In General. Subject to the exceptions already noted, upon a well-understood principle, the matters pertaining to the remedy are governed by the law of the forum.[65]

(II) Statutes Creating Common-Law Liabilities. A statute creating, in favor of the creditor of the corporation and against the shareholder, a common-law liability, may be enforced in another state by an ordinary action at law.[66]

(III) Where Statute Creates Liability but Prescribes No Remedy. And the general rule no doubt is that where the statute law of the state creating the corporation makes the shareholders liable to its creditors, but without prescribing the mode of making this liability available to them, the course of proceeding in another state must be regulated by the law of that state.[67]

(IV) Where Foreign Statute Creates Right to Which Domestic Statute May Appropriately Apply Remedy. It is believed to be a sound view that where a foreign statute creates a right but prescribes no remedy, any remedy available under a domestic statute may be applied.[68]

e. What Rule in Federal Courts. Courts of the United States in dealing with this question are not bound by the decisions of state courts, especially where the right of plaintiff is founded upon a judgment of the foreign state to which the courts of the domestic state are bound, under the constitution of the United States, to give full faith and credit. A court of the United States accordingly is not bound by a decision of a court of the state in which it is sitting which refuses to enforce the statute of another state rendering holders of shares in an insolvent corporation situated in that state individually liable for its debts.[69]

2. Where Liability Is in Respect of Unpaid Shares. Where the liability is in respect of unpaid shares merely, then it rests in contract, and will be enforceable everywhere under the rule of comity,[70] subject to a few possibly ill-founded exceptions.

3. Action by Foreign Receiver to Enforce This Contractual Liability. To enforce this contractual liability, one suing in a representative capacity, such as the receiver, trustee,[71] or assignee in bankruptcy[72] of a foreign corporation, may maintain his action against the resident shareholder, if the corporation itself could have maintained it had the shareholder been a citizen of the state in which it was domiciled.[73]

4. Doctrine That Shareholder Is Bound by Decree in Foreign Insolvency Proceedings Without Notice. It is no defense by a resident shareholder of a foreign corporation, when thus sued by its representative, that he had no notice of the

This doctrine is either stated in terms or conceded in all the decisions. Chase v. Curtis, 113 U. S. 452, 5 S. Ct. 554, 28 L. ed. 1038; Allen v. Fairbanks, 45 Fed. 445.

65. Deadwood First Nat. Bank v. Gustin Minerva Consol. Min. Co., 42 Minn. 327, 44 N. W. 198, 18 Am. St. Rep. 510, 6 L. R. A. 676.

66. St. Louis Sav. Assoc. v. O'Brien, 51 Hun (N. Y.) 45, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 764, 20 N. Y. St. 826.

67. Drinkwater v. Portland Mar. R. Co., 18 Me. 35. Compare Kersall v. Marshall, 1 C. B. N. S. 241, 87 E. C. L. 241. See also Rice v. Merrimack Hosiery Co., 56 N. H. 114; Globe Rolling-Mill Co. v. Ballou, 42 Fed. 749, decisions of doubtful propriety.

68. Persch v. Simmons, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 783.

69. Dexter v. Edmands, 89 Fed. 467, holding that a state statute giving a creditor of an insolvent corporation a right to sue individual shareholders for his debt wherever they may be found cannot be said to offend the public policy of the United States, or to be repugnant to justice or good morals, or calculated to injure the United States or its citizens so as to prevent a court of United States from enforcing it.

70. Fish v. Smith, 73 Conn. 377, 47 Atl. 711, 84 Am. St. Rep. 161 (enforceable by an action brought by the foreign receiver); Mann v. Cooke, 20 Conn. 178; Seymour v. Sturgess, 26 N. Y. 134.

Requisites of "garnishment bill." — What a "garnishment bill" in Tennessee to enforce the liability of resident shareholders in a foreign corporation must show. Doak v. Stahlman, (Tenn. Ch. App. 1899) 58 S. W. 741.

71. Howard v. Glenn, 85 Ga. 238, 11 S. E. 610, 21 Am. St. Rep. 156.

72. Payson v. Withers, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 10,864, 5 Biss. 269; Payson v. Stoever, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 10,863, 2 Dill. 427.

73. Seymour v. Sturgess, 26 N. Y. 134; McDonough v. Phelps, 15 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 372. That a shareholder of a dissolved foreign corporation in the possession of its as-action in which such representative was appointed. The reason is that when a corporation is sued at the instance of creditors, and duly served, a subscriber to the capital stock, although a non-resident and not served with notice, is so far represented by the corporation as to be bound as a corporator by the proceedings and the decree rendered therein.[74] In the absence of fraud such decree is not open to collateral attack by the shareholder when sued by the representative of the corporation to collect the assessment thereby ordered.[75] It cannot be impeached except for actual fraud.[76]

5. Statutes of Individual Liability Enforced or Not Ex Comitate Unless Penal — a. In General. If the liability of the domestic shareholder in a foreign corporation exists wholly by virtue of a statute of the foreign state in which such corporation is domiciled it will be enforced or not, according to the laws enacted by the legislature, or the views of policy and comity entertained by the courts of the state of the shareholder's domicile. It is a case for the application of the well-understood principle of law that the legislation of one state has no operation in another state ex proprio vigore, but only ex comitate.[77]

b. When Enforced — (i) In General. The courts of the state where the laws of such foreign state are sought to be enforced will use a sound discretion as to the extent and mode of that comity. They will not permit their tribunals to be used for the purpose of affording remedies which are denied to parties in the jurisdiction of the state that enacted the law, and which tend to operate with hardship on their own citizens.[78] But on the other hand the view has been taken that the statutory right to proceed against a shareholder for a debt of the corporation, in addition to the amount invested in his shares, is a substantial right of the creditor, and is enforceable against a resident of the state of the forum, who is a shareholder in the insolvent corporation created and undergoing administration in another state.[79]

(ii) When Liability Is Contractual. If the liability sought to be enforced is in the nature of contract, and is not opposed to the legislation or public policy of the state in which it is sought to be enforced the courts of such state will give effect to it.[80]

(iii) When Liability Is Penal. If the statute creating such liability is penal in its nature it will not be enforced outside of the sovereignty enacting it.[81] sets in the domestic state may be proceeded against for the same see Tinkham v. Borst, 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 407.

74. Howard v. Glenn, 85 Ga. 238, 11 S. E. 610, 21 Am. St. Rep. 156, and cases cited below. Contra, Finney v. Guy, 106 Wis. 256, 82 N. W. 595, 49 L. R. A. 486; Wigton v. Bosler, 102 Fed. 70.

75. Hawkins v. Glenn, 131 U. S. 319, 9 S. Ct. 739, 33 L. ed. 184.

76. Glenn v. Liggett, 135 U. S. 533, 10 S. Ct. 867, 34 L. ed. 262.

77. Plymouth First Nat. Bank v. Price, 33 Md. 487, 3 Am. Rep. 204; Smith v. Mutual L. Ins. Co., 14 Allen (Mass.) 336; Halsey v. McLean, 12 Allen (Mass.) 438, 90 Am. Dec. 157; Erickson v. Nesmith, 4 Allen (Mass.) 233; Erickson v. Nesmith, 15 Gray (Mass.) 221; Gale v. Eastman, 7 Metc. (Mass.) 14; Healy v. Root, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 389; Bagley v. Tyler, 43 Mo. App. 195; Erickson v. Nesmith, 46 N. H. 371.

78. Rice v. Merrimack Hosiery Co., 56 N. H. 114.

79. Tabler v. Anglo-American Assoc., 32 S. W. 602, 17 Ky. L. Rep. 815; Howarth v. Lombard, 175 Mass. 570, 56 N. E. 888, 49 L. R. A. 301; Dexter v. Edmands, 89 Fed. 467. And this although he may be subjected to the inconvenience of not being able to recoup himself from the other shareholders. Schertz v. Chester First Nat. Bank, 47 Ill. App. 124.

80. Broadway Nat. Bank v. Baker, 176 Mass. 294, 57 N. E. 603 (failure to recover judgment and have an execution returned nulla bona in the state of the forum does not preclude a recovery); Hodgson v. Cheever, 8 Mo. App. 318; Western Nat. Bank v. Reckless, 96 Fed. 70 (absence of a statute in the state of the forum enacting proceeding for the enforcement of the individual liability of shareholders, not evidence of a settled public policy which should prevent the enforcement of such liability against a shareholder of a foreign corporation resident in the state); Kisseberth v. Prescott, 91 Fed. 611 (immaterial that the court is without power to enforce a contribution among the shareholders).

81. Maryland.—Plymouth First Nat. Bank v. Price, 33 Md. 487, 3 Am. Rep. 204.

Massachusetts.— Halsey v. McLean, 12 Allen 438, 90 Am. Dec. 157; Gale v. Eastman, 7 Metc. 14.

New Jersey.— Derrickson v. Smith, 27 N. J. L. 166.

(IV) STATUTE OF INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY NOT PENAL, BUT REMEDIAL. Statutes which merely create an individual liability on the part of shareholders to pay the debts of the corporation upon the default of the artificial body are generally regarded as remedial and not penal.[82] The courts of several of the states have enforced against their own citizens, shareholders in foreign corporations, a limited statute liability to creditors, in excess of any amount which might remain unpaid of their stock subscription.[83]

(V) WHAT STATUTES OF INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY ARE PENAL. Statutes making directors liable to pay the debts of the corporation for failing to make and file certain described annual reports;[84] or making them liable for contracting or assenting to the contracting of corporate debts beyond the amount of capital paid in;[85] or making shareholders liable to pay the debts of the company in case of a failure to give a certain notice therein specified;[86] or liable for certain contracts of the corporation which it is forbidden by statute to make[87] have been held penal in their nature[88] and not to be enforced outside of the state enacting them.[89] But this doctrine does not apply to judgments recovered in one state against the directors of corporations for such defaults as those above described; and these are suable in the courts of another state, under that clause of the constitution of the United States which requires each state to give full faith and credit to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other state.[90]

c. When Not Enforced. Other courts, proceeding upon this pretext or that, hold that a statute of another state rendering shareholders in a corporation created under the laws of such other state liable to contribute to the payment of its debts, in addition to the amount of their share subscriptions, will not be enforced against shareholders residing in the state of the forum, although not penal,[91] it being consonant with the public policy of such state to exonerate its own citizens from paying debts which they have agreed to pay, and which have been contracted by their own agents and for their own profit, for no other reason than the reason that such debts were contracted in another state.

New York.— Scoville v. Canfield, 14 Johns. 338, 7 Am. Dec. 467.

Ohio.— Indiana v. John, 5 Ohio 217.

England.— Folliott v. Ogden, 4 Bro. P. C. 111, 1 H. Bl. 123, 3 T. R. 726, 2 Eng. Reprint 75.

82. Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. ed. 1123; Dexter v. Edmands, 89 Fed. 467.

83. Sackett's Harbor Bank v. Blake, 3 Rich. Eq. (S. C.) 225. See also the following cases:

Connecticut.— Paine v. Stewart, 33 Conn. 516.

Massachusetts.— Bond v. Appleton, 8 Mass. 472, 5 Am. Dec. 111.

Missouri.— Bagley v. Tyler, 43 Mo. App. 195; Hodgson v. Cheever, 8 Mo. App. 318.

New York.— St. Louis Sav. Assoc. v. O'Brien, 51 Hun 45, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 764, 20 N. Y. St. 826; McDonough v. Phelps, 15 How. Pr. 372.

Pennsylvania.— Aultman's Appeal, 98 Pa. St. 505.

The salutary decision of the supreme court of the United States in Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. ed. 1123, goes beyond many of the state decisions and places the doctrine on its true ground.

84. Halsey v. McLean, 12 Allen (Mass.) 438, 90 Am. Dec. 157; Derrickson v. Smith, 27 N. J. L. 166. See also infra, IX, P, 5, a et seq.

85. Plymouth First Nat. Bank v. Price, 33 Md. 487, 3 Am. Rep. 204. See also infra, IX, P, 7, a et seq.

86. Cable v. McCune, 26 Mo. 371, 72 Am. Dec. 214.

87. Lawler v. Burt, 7 Ohio St. 340; Sayles v. Brown, 40 Fed. 8.

88. Compare on this point Kritzer v. Woodson, 19 Mo. 327; Boughton v. Otis, 21 N. Y. 261; Shaler, etc., Quarry Co. v. Bliss, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 309; Andrews v. Murray, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 354; Bird v. Hayden, 1 Rob. (N. Y.) 383, 2 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 61; Squires v. Brown, 22 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 35; Sturges v. Burton, 8 Ohio St. 215, 72 Am. Dec. 582; Harrisburg Bank v. Com., 26 Pa. St. 451; Hill v. Frazier, 22 Pa. St. 320.

89. Plymouth First Nat. Bank v. Price, 33 Md. 487, 3 Am. Rep. 204; Halsey v. McLean, 12 Allen (Mass.) 438, 90 Am. Dec. 157; Derrickson v. Smith, 27 N. J. L. 166; Nimick v. Mingo Iron Works Co., 25 W. Va. 184.

90. Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. ed. 1123 [reversing 70 Md. 191, 16 Atl. 651, 14 Am. St. Rep. 344, 2 L. R. A. 779].

91. Crippen v. Laighton, 69 N. H. 540, 44 Atl. 538, 76 Am. St. Rep. 192, 46 L. R. A. 467 (notwithstanding a decision of a court in the state of the foreign corporation that the statutory liability is contractual and not penal); Brookman v. Merchants' Sav. Bank, 31 Misc.

6. ACTIONS BY FOREIGN RECEIVERS TO ENFORCE STATUTES OF INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY — a. Conditions Under Which Such Action Upheld. Proceeding on the ground that the statutory superadded individual liability of shareholders to pay the debts of the corporation in the event of the default of the artificial body is contractual, it has frequently been held that where a proceeding in insolvency has taken place in the state which is the domicile of the corporation, in which proceeding the amount which ought to be paid by each shareholder, under the governing statute, to liquidate the debts of the corporation, has been ascertained, the receiver or other liquidating officer duly appointed in the foreign jurisdiction may maintain an action against a domestic shareholder in such foreign corporation to recover his share of the amount necessary to a liquidation so ascertained.[92]

b. Conditions Under Which Such Action Not Upheld. Such an action has not been upheld to recover the amount of an assessment made upon the shares by the court of another state, it being the domicile of the corporation, in a proceeding to which the shareholder was not a party, to which he did not appear, and to which he could not have been required to appear because of his being beyond the jurisdiction of the court.[93]

7. WHERE GOVERNING STATUTE OF FOREIGN CORPORATION IMPOSES INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY AND PRESCRIBES REMEDY. Where the governing statute of the foreign corporation imposes the individual liability and prescribes the remedy, then under a well-settled rule of statutory construction[94] such remedy is exclusive; and this rule is applied in courts of the United States as well as in state courts.[95]

8. WHETHER FOREIGN SHAREHOLDERS ENTITLED TO CONTRIBUTION FROM RESIDENT SHAREHOLDERS — a. In General. Where the foreign statute which creates the liability is penal in its nature, no action for contribution by the non-resident shareholder can be maintained according to one holding.[96]

b. Where Foreign Statute Requires Suit in Equity, Relief Denied. Some courts have adopted the conclusion that where the foreign statute requires a suit in equity, any remedy to charge the creditors where the statute governing the corporation creates an individual liability on the part of its shareholders for its debts, and prescribes a remedy to enforce the same by a suit in equity brought on behalf of all the creditors, in which the corporation itself and all the shareholders within reach of the process of the court are made parties, no separate action of any sort, whether at law or in equity, can be maintained in a state other than that of the (N. Y.) 191, 65 N. Y. Suppl. 54; Wyatt v. Moorehead, 7 Ohio S. & C. Pl. Dec. 380; Finney v. Guy, 106 Wis. 256, 82 N. W. 595, 49 L. R. A. 486.

92. Fish v. Smith, 73 Conn. 377, 47 Atl. 711, 84 Am. St. Rep. 161 (holding that the right of action depends not on the right of a foreign receiver to sue on demands in favor of the party he represents, but on the right of a substituted promisee to sue a promisor whose contract provided for such substitution, since the shareholder's relations depend on the laws of the state in which the corporation is created); Howarth v. Lombard, 175 Mass. 570, 56 N. E. 888, 49 L. R. A. 301 (holding that the general right of action is thereby created against each and every shareholder and that it is immaterial that he is a non-resident of the state of the administration); Howarth v. Angle, 162 N. Y. 179, 56 N. E. 489, 30 N. Y. Civ. Proc. 307, 47 L. R. A. 725 [affirming 39 N. Y. App. Div. 151, 57 N. Y. Suppl. 187, no domestic creditors claiming part of the fund, and the remedy in the domestic forum being the same as in the foreign state]. Compare Hansou v. Davison, 73 Minn. 454, 76 N. W. 254.

For a good complaint in an action by a foreign receiver under this rule see Fish v. Smith, 73 Conn. 377, 47 Atl. 711, 84 Am. St. Rep. 161.

93. Wigton v. Bosler, 102 Fed. 70. See also Stoddard v. Lum, 32 N. Y. App. Div. 565, 53 N. Y. Suppl. 607; Mercantile Trust, etc., Co. v. Mellon, 20 Pa. Co. Ct. 25 (action by foreign receiver to recover the shareholders' proportion of a tax).

94. Stafford v. Ingersol, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 38; Almy v. Harris, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 175; Lynch v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 22 W. Va. 554, 46 Am. Rep. 520; Farmers', etc., Nat. Bank v. Dearing, 91 U. S. 29, 23 L. ed. 196.

95. Patterson v. Lynde, 106 U. S. 519, 1 S. Ct. 432, 27 L. ed. 265.

96. Sayles v. Brown, 40 Fed. 8. But see Allen v. Fairbanks, 45 Fed. 445.

Reviving a judgment against a corporation to reach property of non-resident members situated within the state. De Wolf v. Mallett, 3 Dana (Ky.) 214.

domicile of the corporation against any of its shareholders, however numerous, to charge them with such individual liability.[97]

c. Contrary Holdings on This Question. Other courts have taken the view that an action by a single shareholder can be maintained under a statute of the state wherein the corporation has been created and is undergoing administration, against a single shareholder residing within the state of the forum, notwithstanding the objection that all the shareholders were not joined, and that plaintiff had no right to a decree against defendant for anything more than contribution after the accounts necessary for the purpose have been stated.[98]

d. Maintaining Creditor's Bill Founded on Foreign Judgment. In the case cited to the preceding paragraph, the doctrine (for what it is worth) seems to have been overlooked that a creditor's bill cannot be founded on a foreign judgment.[99]

H. Statutes Creating Joint and Several Liability as Partners — 1. Not Liable as Partners, Except by Statute, Where Corporation Is Lawfully Formed. Where a corporation has been lawfully formed, its shareholders are not partners, even as amongst themselves, unless the governing statute makes or leaves them so.[1]

2. Liability as Partners Before Organization. The liability already considered which attaches to the members of inchoate corporations on obligations incurred before the corporation has been formed is not a statutory liability, but is a common-law liability, arising by the act of the parties, on the ground that there is no corporation which is answerable for the obligation which they have created.[2] Statutes[3] and charters exist affirming this species of liability, but they cannot be regarded as creating a special or statutory liability, since they merely affirm the liability which exists at common law.[4]

3. Liability as Partners After Abandonment of Franchise. Where the shareholders in a corporation completely abandon their corporate franchise and subsequently incur debts, they become liable as partners to pay the same.[5]

4. Liability as Partners For Embarking in Business Not Authorized by Statute. It seems that if a corporation embarks in a business, with respect to which the statute law affords no immunity from the general liability of partners, the shareholders may become liable as such, although as to matters within the powers of the corporation and the protection of the statute law they will be protected from personal liability.[6]

97. Post v. Toledo, etc., R. Co., 144 Mass. 341, 11 N. E. 540, 59 Am. Rep. 86 [quoted in Bank of North America v. Rindge, 154 Mass. 203, 27 N. E. 1015, 26 Am. St. Rep. 240, 13 L. R. A. 56]; Erickson v. Nesmith, 4 Allen (Mass.) 233 (holding that the New Hampshire statute meant a bill in equity in New Hampshire, and repelling a suit in equity in Massachusetts on that ground); Erickson v. Nesmith, 15 Gray (Mass.) 221; Nimick v. Mingo Iron Works, 25 W. Va. 184 (remedy denied on the ground that the foreign assignee could not be compelled to account in West Virginia so as to do justice to all the parties). See also New Haven Horse Nail Co. v. Linden Springs Co., 142 Mass. 349, 7 N. E. 773, and cases cited, several of which bear upon this question by analogy.

98. Sackett's Harbor Bank v. Blake, 3 Rich. Eq. (S. C.) 225, where, however, the company was insolvent and all other shareholders had responded to its debts to the extent of their statutory liability. See also Shickle v. Watts, 94 Mo. 410, 7 S. W. 274.

99. See as to this doctrine Davis v. Bruns, 23 Hun (N. Y.) 648; Tarbell v. Griggs, 3 Paige (N. Y.) 207, 23 Am. Dec. 790; Claflin v. McDermott, 12 Fed. 375, 20 Blatchf. 522. See, however, Hatch v. Dorr, 11 Fed. Cas. No. 6,206, 4 McLean 112, and Wilkinson v. Yale, 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,678, 6 McLean 16.

Action for discovery.— Action by a nonresident judgment creditor of a foreign corporation for a discovery of the names of its shareholders upheld. Post v. Toledo, etc., R. Co., 144 Mass. 341, 11 N. E. 540, 59 Am. Rep. 86.

Resident members of resident corporations liable on foreign contracts the same as on domestic contracts. Hutchins v. New England Coal Min. Co., 4 Allen (Mass.) 580.

1. Baker v. Backus, 32 Ill. 79; Cincinnati Second Nat. Bank v. Hall, 35 Ohio St. 158.

2. Broyles v. McCoy, 5 Sneed (Tenn.) 602.

3. Salem First Nat. Bank v. Almy, 117 Mass. 476; Hawes v. Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co., 101 Mass. 385, 111 Mass. 200.

4. Perkins v. Sanders, 56 Miss. 733.

5. It was so held where shareholders proceeded to change the name of their corporation without complying with the law. Perkins v. Sanders, 56 Miss. 733.

6. Lehman v. Knapp, 48 La. Ann. 1148, 20 So. 674. But see to the contrary Tennessee

5. Statutes and Charters Under Which Liability Is That of Partners. The shareholders of incorporated companies have been held liable as partners, precisely as though they had not been incorporated, under a charter provision declaring them liable individually "in the same manner as carriers at common law, for the transportation of all goods," etc.;[7] under a charter making them personally liable, "at all times, for all debts due by said corporation,"[8] although this liability attached only to those who were members of the corporation when the suit was brought;[9] under a charter making them personally liable, "provided said corporation shall become insolvent," etc., their liability as joint debtors or copartners attaching whenever the corporate responsibility fails;[10] and under various other charter and statute provisions exhibited by the cases cited in the margin.[11]

6. "Double Liability" Regarded as That of Partners Except as to Limitation of Amount. The statutory liability of shareholders to pay, in liquidation of the debts of the corporation, an amount equal to the par value of the stock held by them — often called a "double liability" — is in some jurisdictions regarded as that of partners, except as to the limitation of amount.[12]

7. Liability as Partners Attaches to Members Who Were Such When Debt Contracted. This liability, when it arises under statutes and charters, attaches to those who were members at the time the debt was contracted, and not to those who had ceased at that time to be members, or who became such subsequently,[13] unless retiring members had suffered themselves to be held out as members after so retiring, and credit had been obtained by the company on the faith of their being members.[14]

8. Liability of Principal Debtors or Undertakers, and Not That of Guarantors or Sureties — a. In General. This liability is that of principal debtors — original undertakers — and not that of guarantors or sureties.[15]

b. Does Not Depend Upon Corporate Assets Being Exhausted. It does not depend upon the predicate that the assets of the corporation have been exhausted, but the shareholders may be proceeded against, although an assignee of the corporation has assets in his hands sufficient to pay the debts.[16]

c. Extension of Time Does Not Discharge Liability. Therefore an extension of time given to a corporation by a creditor will not discharge the shareholder from liability to pay the debt.[17]

Automatic Lighting Co. v. Massey, (Tenn. Ch. App. 1899) 56 S. W. 35.

7. Allen v. Sewall, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 327 [reversed on other grounds in 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 335].

8. Southmayd v. Russ, 3 Conn. 52.

9. Middletown Band v. Magill, 5 Conn. 28, this holding probably untenable.

10. Deming v. Bull, 10 Conn. 409.

11. Young v. Rosenbaum, 39 Cal. 646; Davidson v. Rankin, 34 Cal. 503; Mokelumne Hill Canal, etc., Co. v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 265; Moss v. Averell, 10 N. Y. 449; Corning v. McCullough, 1 N. Y. 47, 49 Am. Dec. 287; Conant v. Van Schaick, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 87; Hager v. McCullough, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 119; Moss v. Oakley, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 265; New England Commercial Bank v. Newport Steam Factory, 6 R. I. 154, 75 Am. Dec. 688. See also McAuley v. York Min. Co., 6 Cal. 80; Planters' Bank v. Bivingsville Cotton Mfg. Co., 10 Rich. (S. C.) 95.

12. Schalucky v. Field, 124 Ill. 617, 16 N. E. 904, 7 Am. St. Rep. 399; Thompson v. Meisser, 108 Ill. 359; Fuller v. Ledden, 87 Ill. 310; Conklin v. Furman, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 484, 8 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 161; Coleman v. White, 14 Wis. 700, 80 Am. Dec. 797.

13. Middletown Bank v. Magill, 5 Conn. 28 (per Hosmer, C. J., and Brainard, J.); Moss v. Oakley, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 265.

14. See infra, VIII, L, 3, b. But see Middletown Bank v. Magill, 5 Conn. 28 (per curiam, Chapman, Peters, and Bristol, JJ.; contra, Hosmer, C. J., and Brainard, J.); Marcy v. Clark, 17 Mass. 330; Bond v. Appleton, 8 Mass. 472, 5 Am. Dec. 111.

15. Young v. Rosenbaum, 39 Cal. 646; Davidson v. Rankin, 34 Cal. 503; Mokelumne Hill Canal, etc., Co. v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 265; Southmayd v. Russ, 3 Conn. 52; Marcy v. Clark, 17 Mass. 330; Moss v. Averell, 10 N. Y. 449; Corning v. McCullough, 1 N. Y. 47, 49 Am. Dec. 287; Harger v. McCullough, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 119 [overruling Moss v. McCullough, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 131]; Simonson v. Spencer, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 548.

16. Hatch v. Burroughs, 11 Fed. Cas. No. 6,203, 1 Woods 439. But under many charters and statutes the liability of the corporation must be first exhausted. See infra, VIII, P, 2, a.

17. Harger v. McCullough, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 119. Contra, Sonoma Valley Bank v. Hill, 59 Cal. 107 (under Cal. Civ. Code, § 322); Hanson v. Donkersley, 37 Mich. 184.

d. Direct Action Lies Against Shareholders as Partners. This liability, being original and not collateral, an action at law lies directly against the shareholders, as against partners, on their joint contract,[18] and need not be predicated on a judgment obtained against the corporation;[19] nor is the remedy against the shareholders merged in the judgment against the company.[20]

e. Limitation Runs From Time of Contracting Debt. For the same reason the statute of limitations begins to run in favor of the shareholder from the time when the debt was contracted.[21]

f. Assets of Deceased Shareholder Liable. Where the liability is that of a partner, if a shareholder dies, a creditor may maintain a suit in equity to have satisfaction of his debt out of the decedeut's estate.[22]

g. Liability of Shareholder Not Merged by Judgment Against Corporation. Where the liability is that of partners it is not merged in a judgment recovered against the corporation, unless the shareholders were parties to the suit; but an action may be subsequently brought against the shareholders.[23]

h. Actions Against Shareholders and Corporation Jointly. There are statutes which allow actions to be prosecuted against the corporation and the shareholders jointly.[24]

I. Statutes Imposing Individual Liability Upon Shareholders — 1. Such Statutes Are Merely in Affirmation of Common Law — a. In General. Some of the statutes under consideration are merely in affirmation of the common law, such as those which declare shareholders liable to creditors of the corporation, to the extent of the capital subscribed for by them and not paid in.[25]

b. Statutes Declaring Liability For Stock Subscribed but Not Paid in, and For Capital Improperly Withdrawn. Some of the statutes declare a liability to creditors for capital subscribed for but not paid in, and also for capital subscribed for and paid in, but improperly withdrawn.[26] These also are obviously in affirmation of the common law.

2. Statutes Declaring Superadded or Double Liability — a. In General. The most numerous class of statutes impose a liability upon shareholders to the extent of the stock subscribed for by them, in addition to the common-law liability thus incurred. This liability has been created by such expressions as "liable to double the amount of his stock and no more"; this meaning that the shareholder is liable to pay for his stock and as much more, but not twice as much more;[27] "liable to the amount of stock held or owned by him," this meaning the same thing as the 18. Southmayd v. Russ, 3 Conn. 52; Freeland v. McCullough, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 414, 43 Am. Dec. 685; Simonson v. Spencer, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 548; Planters' Bank v. Bivingsville Cotton Mfg. Co., 10 Rich. (S. C.) 95.

19. Young v. Rosenbaum, 39 Cal. 646; Davidson v. Rankin, 34 Cal. 503; Witherhead v. Allen, 4 Abb. Dec. (N. Y.) 628, 3 Keyes (N. Y.) 562, 8 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 164, 33 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 620.

20. Young v. Rosenbaum, 39 Cal. 646; Witherhead v. Allen, 4 Abb. Dec. (N. Y.) 628, 3 Keyes (N. Y.) 562, 8 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 164, 33 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 620; Conklin v. Furman, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 484. See also infra, VIII, H, 8, g.

21. Davidson v. Rankin, 34 Cal. 503. The rule is the same where the officers of a corporation are made personally liable for its debts during the period of omission on their part to perform a statutory duty. Bassett v. St. Albans Hotel Co., 47 Vt. 313.

22. New England Commercial Bank v. Newport Steam Factory, 6 R. I. 154, 75 Am. Dec. 688.

23. Dodge v. Minnesota Plastic Slate Roofing Co., 16 Minn. 368. See also supra, VIII, H, 8, d.

24. See Conklin v. Furman, 48 N. Y. 527 [affirming 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 484].

25. Such is the liability under Oreg. Const. art. 12, § 2 (Ladd v. Cartwright, 7 Oreg. 329; Patterson v. Lynde, 106 U. S. 519, 1 S. Ct. 432, 27 L. ed. 265); and under the New York statutes (Beals v. Buffalo Expanded Metal Constr. Co., 49 N. Y. App. Div. 589, 63 N. Y. Suppl. 635). See also Colorado Fuel, etc., Co. v. Sedalia Smelting Co., 13 Colo. App. 474, 59 Pac. 222 (action may be maintained against a corporation and a shareholder, and an original judgment recovered against a shareholder for his unpaid stock); Wilson Cotton Mills v. C. C. Randleman Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 475, 20 S. E. 770 [rehearing denied in 116 N. C. 647, 21 S. E. 431].

26. For an example of such a statute examine Poor v. Willoughby, 64 Me. 379.

27. Schricker v. Ridings, 65 Mo. 208. See also Gibbs v. Davis, 27 Fla. 531, 8 So. 633.

preceding.[28] And generally such expressions as liable "to the amount of his stock," or "to the amount of his stock and no more," import a superadded liability to the full amount of the par value of the shares held by each shareholder, which is not satisfied by his merely paying up what is due under his contract of subscription.[29]

b. This Liability Is Several, Unequal, and Limited — (I) In General. This liability is not joint, but is several, unequal, and limited, as to which each member stands alone, except that if he pays more than his proportion of the debts of the company, he may as in other cases have contribution from his co-shareholders.[30] A judgment at law cannot therefore be rendered against the shareholders jointly to enforce this liability, or against each in solido.[31] Nor does a judgment against some of the shareholders have the effect of releasing the others.[32]

(II) But This Presents No Obstacles to Proceedings in Equity. But this as we shall see presents no obstacle to the joining of all the members as defendants in a suit in equity; for these courts have the power, in a proceeding in which all the members are before it, to mold their decree according to the several rights and liabilities of each member.[33] The rule in equity is therefore the reverse of that at law; here all members must be made parties, unless the joinder of some is shown to be impracticable.[34]

c. When This Liability That of Original and Principal Debtors. It has been held that the liability created by an act relating to state banking corporations, providing that such shareholders shall be individually responsible to the amount of their respective share or shares for all the indebtedness and liability of the bank, is that of original and principal debtors; and, subject to the limitation as to the amount of the liability of each shareholder, more nearly resembles that of copartners than any other with which it can be compared.[35]

d. Statute Held to Create Liability of Guarantors. A statute providing that the shareholders of electric light companies shall be jointly and severally liable for the payment of all debts contracted during the time of their holding their

28. Willis v. Mabon, 48 Minn. 140, 50 N. W. 1110, 31 Am. St. Rep. 626, 16 L. R. A. 281 (under constitution of Minnesota). See also Lauraglenn Mills v. Ruff, 52 S. C. 448, 50 S. E. 587 (under S. C. Const. (1895), § 18, jointly and severally liable to its creditors in an amount equal to the par value of their stock, together with five per cent of its par value).

29. Alabama.—McDonnell v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 85 Ala. 401, 5 So. 120, opinion by Somerville, J.

Illinois.— Root v. Sinnock, 120 Ill. 350, 11 N. E. 339, 60 Am. Rep. 558; Queenan v. Palmer, 117 Ill. 62, 619, 7 N. E. 470, 613; Thompson v. Meisser, 108 Ill. 359; Eames v. Doris, 102 Ill. 350; Harper v. Union Mfg. Co., 100 Ill. 225; Wincock v. Turpin, 96 Ill. 135; Bromley v. Goodwin, 95 Ill. 118; Tibballs v. Libby, 87 Ill. 142; Culver v. Chicago Third Nat. Bank, 64 Ill. 528.

Michigan.— Pettibone v. McGraw, 6 Mich. 441.

Missouri.— Gausen v. Buck, 68 Mo. 545 [overruling Lewis v. St. Charles County, 5 Mo. App. 225]; Schricker v. Ridings, 65 Mo. 208; Lewis v. St. Charles County, 13 Mo. App. 48.

New York.— U. S. Trust Co. v. U. S. Fire Ins. Co., 18 N. Y. 199; Walker v. Crain, 17 Barb. 119; Woodruff, etc., Iron Works v. Chittenden, 4 Bosw. 406; Poughkeepsie Bank v. Ibbotson, 24 Wend. 473; Briggs v. Penniman, 8 Cow. 387, 18 Am. Dec. 454; Slee v. Bloom, 20 Johns. 669.

Pennsylvania.— Lane's Appeal, 105 Pa. St. 49, 51 Am. Rep. 166.

Tennessee.— Ohio L. Ins., etc., Co. v. Merchants' Ins., etc., Co., 11 Humphr. 1, 53 Am. Dec. 742.

See also Norris v. Johnson, 34 Md. 485.

30. 3 Thompson Corp. § 3816.

31. Reynolds v. Feliciana Steam Boat Co., 17 La. 397.

32. Hanson v. Davison, 73 Minn. 454, 76 N. W. 254.

Liability under an agreement that each shareholder shall be liable for the repayment of money borrowed by the corporation, etc., is several and not joint. Dorman v. Swift, 1 Pennew. (Del.) 457, 41 Atl. 1105.

33. Perry v. Turner, 55 Mo. 418, 426 (per Napton, J.); Umsted v. Buskirk, 17 Ohio St. 113.

34. Crease v. Babcock, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 525; Umsted v. Buskirk, 17 Ohio St. 113; Pierce v. Milwaukee Constr. Co., 38 Wis. 253; Coleman v. White, 14 Wis. 700, 80 Am. Dec. 797. Compare Castleman v. Holmes, 4 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 1 (not error to decree against some and continue the cause as to the others); Reynolds v. Feliciana Steam Boat Co., 17 La. 397 (to the contrary where the liability was for unpaid shares).

35. Booth v. Dear, 96 Wis. 516, 71 N. W. 816.

shares to the extent of twenty-five per cent of the amount of stock held by them, if a judgment is obtained against the company, an execution returned thereon unsatisfied, and a suit brought against any such shareholder while continuing to hold his stock, or within two years thereafter, has been held to make the shareholders liable to the creditors of the company as guarantors.[36]

3. LIABILITY THUS CREATED IS CONTRACTUAL IN ITS NATURE — a. In General. The liability created by these ordinary statutes of superadded individual liability is not penal or statutory, but is contractual in its nature, the theory being that the statute enters into and forms a part of the engagement of the shareholders when they become members of the corporation, and that each shareholder impliedly contracts with the creditors of the corporation that he will assume the liability declared by the statute in their favor.[37]

b. May Be Enforced Everywhere. It follows that the liability thus created may be enforced everywhere, and that a court of the United States, sitting in another state, is not deprived of jurisdiction to enforce it in a state other than that creating the corporation.[38]

4. WHAT STATUTES OF INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY ARE PENAL. Some statutes of individual liability are penal in their nature, such as statutes imposing upon shareholders liability to pay the corporate debts, because of certain defaults of the directors or managing officers with respect to certain prescribed acts, such as filing certain reports, publishing certain statements, etc.[39] These statutes have no extra-territorial force; and consequently if the resident shareholders have been made liable for the corporate debts under them they cannot, it has been held, have contribution from the non-resident shareholders.[40] While these statutes are penal in their nature, a substantial compliance with their terms is necessary to exonerate the shareholders, as where the statute requires the filing of an annual certificate stating the liabilities of the corporation, and a certificate is filed which is false.[41]

5. LIABILITY IN PROPORTION WHICH SHARES OF SHAREHOLDER BEAR TO CORPORATE INDEBTEDNESS — a. In General. Some of the state constitutions and statutes have adopted the policy of making each shareholder liable in the proportion which his portion of the whole share capital bears to the whole amount of the corporate debts.[42]

b. Liability Reduced by Corporate Indebtedness Taken Up by Shareholder. The liability thus declared has been held subject to be reduced by the amount of the indebtedness of the corporation which the shareholder may have taken up 36. Ball Electric Light Co. v. Child, 68 Conn. 522, 37 Atl. 391.

37. Maryland.— Hager v. Cleveland, 36 Md. 476; Norris v. Wrenschall, 34 Md. 492.

Minnesota.— Hanson v. Davison, 73 Minn. 454, 76 N. W. 254; Deadwood First Nat. Bank v. Gustin Minerva Consol. Min. Co., 42 Minn. 327, 44 N. W. 198, 18 Am. St. Rep. 510, 6 L. R. A. 676.

Ohio.— Cleveland Gas Co. v. Collins, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 247, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 475; Judson v. Stewart, 7 Ohio S. & C. Pl. Dec. 532.

Pennsylvania.— Aultman's Appeal, 98 Pa. St. 505.

West Virginia.— Nimick v. Mingo Iron Works Co., 25 W. Va. 184.

United States.— Whitman v. Oxford Nat. Bank, 176 U. S. 559, 20 S. Ct. 477, 44 L. ed. 587 [affirming 83 Fed. 288, 28 C. C. A. 404]; Flash v. Conn, 109 U. S. 371, 3 S. Ct. 263, 27 L. ed. 966; Hathorn v. Calef, 2 Wall. 10, 17 L. ed. 776.

38. Whitman v. Oxford Nat. Bank, 83 Fed. 288, 28 C. C. A. 404 [affirmed in 176 U. S. 559, 20 S. Ct. 477, 44 L. ed. 587].

39. McKellar v. Stout, 14 Iowa 359.

40. Sayles v. Brown, 40 Fed. 8.

41. Congdon v. Winsor, 17 R. I. 236, 21 Atl. 540. See also Hite Natural Gas Co.'s Appeal, 118 Pa. St. 436, 12 Atl. 267, which related to a limited partnership.

Liability for frauds under Iowa statute. Hoffman v. Dickey, 54 Iowa 135, 6 N. W. 174.

42. For expositions and illustrations of this liability see the following cases:

California.— Larrabee v. Baldwin, 35 Cal. 155.

Georgia.— Branch v. Baker, 53 Ga. 502; Belcher v. Willcox, 40 Ga. 391; Adkins v. Thornton, 19 Ga. 325; Robinson v. Darien Bank, 18 Ga. 65; Lane v. Harris, 16 Ga. 217.

Kentucky.— Castleman v. Holmes, 4 J. J. Marsh. 1.

Maine.— Dane v. Young, 61 Me. 160; Wiswell v. Starr, 48 Me. 401.

before the commencement of the suit against him, although the statute does not say so in terms; so that if he has redeemed bills of the bank to the amount of his personal liability this discharges him.[43]

6. Whether Solvent Shareholders Liable to Make Up Deficiency Caused by Defaults of Insolvent Ones. Statutory schemes have existed (but they are few) under which, in case the assets of a corporation are not sufficient to satisfy all its creditors, the corporators are individually liable to make good the deficiency, including that which may arise from the insolvency of any of the corporators to the extent of the capital professed to be paid in as set forth in the charter.[44]

7. Statutes Creating Liability "For All Losses," Etc. A bank charter declaring that "the stockholders of said Bank shall be personally and individually liable for all losses, deficiencies and failures of the capital stock of said Bank," has been held to make the shareholders personally liable to the creditors of the bank for its indebtedness in proportion to their respective shares in the stock of the same,[45] and not merely bound to keep the capital good by assessments. A bank charter making the shareholders individually liable "to make good losses to depositors and others" renders the shareholders liable to all creditors suffering from the failure of the bank to pay its debts.[46] But no personal liability is imposed on the shareholders of an insolvent corporation in process of liquidation, by a clause in the charter that "if at any time the capital stock paid into said corporation shall be impaired by losses or otherwise, the directors shall forthwith repair the same by assessment."[47]

8. Individual Liability Is Not Liability to Corporation. The statutory superadded individual liability under discussion is in no sense a liability to the corporation itself, and such statutes do not give the corporation the right to assess the shareholders; but it is a liability to the creditors only, or a liability to be worked out in their behalf in a proper judicial proceeding.[48]

9. This Superadded Individual Liability Exists Only by Force of Statute. The superadded individual liability dealt with above, being an exception to the rule of non-liability of the common law,[49] must as a general rule be imposed by a constitutional ordinance or a statute, or it does not exist at all.[50] It cannot, we have seen,[51] be imposed by a mere by-law; although of course it may be assumed by the shareholders by a contract with the creditors, provided the contract is supported by a consideration,[52] and is in writing.[53]

10. Individual Liability Does Not Depend Upon Stock Being Paid For. This superadded individual statutory liability does not depend in any sense upon the question whether the shares have been paid for.[54] Neither does it depend in Massachusetts.— Crease v. Babcock, 10 Metc. 525.

43. Branch v. Baker, 53 Ga. 502; Belcher v. Willcox, 40 Ga. 391; Robinson v. Darien Bank, 18 Ga. 65; Lane v. Harris, 16 Ga. 217. Compare Tallmadge v. Fishkill Iron Co., 4 Barb. (N. Y.) 382.

This rule is frequently declared in the statutes creating this species of proportionate liability. See for instance Cal. Laws (1863), p. 736.

44. Haslett v. Wotherspoon, 1 Strobh. Eq. (S. C.) 209.

That this is not the liability of shareholders of national banks see U. S. v. Knox, 102 U. S. 422, 26 L. ed. 216. Nor under a state statute rendering each shareholder liable to contribute "equally and ratably" to the amount of his shares see In re Hollister Bank, 27 N. Y. 393, 84 Am. Dec. 292.

45. Atwood v. Rhode Island Agricultural Bank, 1 R. I. 376.

46. Queenan v. Palmer, 117 Ill. 62, 619, 7 N. E. 470, 613.

47. Dewey v. St. Albans Trust Co., 57 Vt. 332.

Construction of charter provision that stock shall not be assessed more than fifty per cent. Wilbur v. Stockholders, 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,636.

48. Liberty Female College Assoc. v. Watkins, 70 Mo. 13; Umsted v. Buskirk, 17 Ohio St. 113; Atwood v. Rhode Island Agricultural Bank, 1 R. I. 376.

49. See supra, VIII, A, 1.

50. Libby v. Tobey, 82 Me. 397, 19 Atl. 904. See Shaw v. Boylan, 16 Ind. 384; Norton v. Hodges, 100 Mass. 241; Ossipee Hosiery, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Canney, 54 N. H. 295.

51. See supra, VIII, A, 2.

52. See supra, VIII, A, 3, a.

53. See supra, VIII, A, 3, b.

54. Driesbach v. Price, 133 Pa. St. 560, 19 Atl. 569.

any sense upon the question whether the shareholder has received a certificate of stock.[55]

11. Individual Liability of Married Women as Shareholders. A general statute imposing an individual liability upon shareholders includes married women, and, unless they are specially mentioned by its terms, they are not exempted by reason of their coverture.[56] They are not exempted from the liability imposed by the act of congress[57] upon shareholders in national banks;[58] and this is so, whether the shares were acquired by subscription, purchase, bequest, or otherwise.[59] It is so, even where the husband may have transferred such shares to his wife to conceal them from his creditors, and if she accepts the transfer, ratifies it, or accepts benefits under it, so as to become the owner of the shares, she will be liable to be assessed as a shareholder, and the receiver of the bank may recover a judgment against her upon the assessment; but no opinion is expressed as to what property may be reached in the enforcement of the judgment.[60]

12. Individual Liability of Shareholders of National Banks — a. In General. This liability arises under that portion of the National Currency Act which is embodied in section 5152 of the Revised Statutes of the United States. The liability thus created is for all such contracts, debts, and engagements as have arisen in the ordinary course of business.[61] It is a several liability, and the solvent shareholders are not bound to make up deficiencies caused by the defaults of the insolvent ones, but each shareholder pays only what he would have to pay if all were solvent and able to respond.[62] It is regarded as being in the nature of an asset of the bank, to be resorted to in the event of insolvency as a species of guaranty fund.[63] A shareholder who with his assent is assessed under another section of the statute[64] to restore the impaired capital of the bank is not for this reason relieved from his individual liability under section 5151.[65]

b. Liability in Case of Increase of Shares. Where there has been a valid increase of the shares under the provisions of the statute, those original shareholders who, under the option given them, subscribe for the new shares and pay for them, become of course in the event of the insolvency of the bank individually liable in respect of them.[66]

13. Liability Extends to Holders of Preferred Stock. These statutes, unless they import the contrary, render the holders of preferred shares liable to creditors in common with the holders of the common shares.[67]

14. Other Questions Relating to These Statutes of Individual Liability. Where the corporation entered upon business without filling up the full amount of the capital named in the act of incorporation, they were held liable to make up the deficiency to creditors.[68] Shareholders will be held liable upon a construction of their charter by which they have held themselves out to creditors as being personally liable and will not be allowed to repudiate it.[69]

55. Mitchell v. Beckman, 64 Cal. 117, 28 Pac. 110.

56. In re Reciprocity Bank, 22 N. Y. 9. See also Dreisbach v. Price, 133 Pa. St. 560, 19 Atl. 569; Sayles v. Bates, 15 R. I. 342, 5 Atl. 497.

57. U. S. Rev. Stat. (1872), § 5151.

58. Keyser v. Hitz, 133 U. S. 138, 10 S. Ct. 290, 33 L. ed. 531; Witters v. Sowles, 32 Fed. 767, 35 Fed. 640, 1 L. R. A. 64; Anderson v. Line, 14 Fed. 405; Hobart v. Johnson, 8 Fed. 493, 19 Blatchf. 359.

59. Witters v. Sowles, 35 Fed. 640, 1 L. R. A. 64.

60. Keyser v. Hitz, 133 U. S. 138, 10 S. Ct. 290, 33 L. ed. 531.

61. Schrader v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 133 U. S. 67, 10 S. Ct. 238, 33 L. ed. 564.

62. U. S. v. Knox, 102 U. S. 422, 26 L. ed. 216.

63. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 21 Fed. 197.

64. U. S. Rev. Stat. (1872), § 5205.

65. Delano v. Butler, 118 U. S. 634, 7 S. Ct. 39, 30 L. ed. 260; Scovill v. Thayer, 105 U. S. 143, 26 L. ed. 968; Morrison v. Price, 23 Fed. 217.

66. Delano v. Butler, 118 U. S. 634, 7 S. Ct. 39, 30 L. ed. 260.

67. Railroad Co. v. Smith, 48 Ohio St. 219, 31 N. E. 743.

68. Haslett v. Wotherspoon, 1 Strobh. Eq. (S. C.) 209.

69. Atwood v. Rhode Island Agricultural Bank, 1 R. I. 376.

Effect of a statutory revision upon ques-

J. For What Debts These Statutes Make Shareholders Liable — 1. Liable Only For Debts Mentioned in Statute. Under any rule of construction, a shareholder cannot be charged with an individual liability for debts not mentioned in the statute.[70]

2. Liable Only For Debts Which Might Have Been Enforced Against Corporation — a. In General. Nor is he liable, except for debts that might have been enforced against the company.[71]

b. Ultra Vires Debts. For example where the element of estoppel does not supervene, shareholders are not liable for an obligation which the officers of the corporation have attempted to impose upon it, either in excess of their authority or in excess of the powers of the corporation,[72] although an exception to this rule has been admitted where the associates enter upon a business entirely distinct from the business which the corporation was authorized to carry on, and in the course of that business contract debts. But circumstances may arise which will estop the shareholder from setting up this defense.[73] For example shareholders are not liable as individuals or partners for goods bought in the name of the corporation by an ultra vires act of the directors.[74] But they may become so where they have acquiesced in the ultra vires dealings, and accepted the profits and derived dividends from them, so as to become estopped from setting up this defense.[75]

c. Debts Accruing From Money Loaned and Afterward Misappropriated. Shareholders may become personally liable under a statute in favor of one who has loaned money to the corporation, or in favor of shareholders of the corporation who repay the loan, although the loan has been misappropriated by the officers of the corporation,[76] the rule being that one who loans money to a trustee is not concerned with the use which he makes of the money, provided he possesses the power to borrow it.[77]

d. Contracts of Promoters. Shareholders of a corporation which has been organized in violation of a statute requiring a certain proportion of the stock to tion of individual liability (Fairchild v. Masonic Hall Assoc., 71 Mo. 526) with the conclusion that a revision has not the effect of breaking the continuity of the statute law (St. Louis v. Foster, 52 Mo. 513). See also St. Louis v. Alexander, 23 Mo. 483.

No liability for doing business on credit in violation of a statute unless the statute says so. Rendall v. Jackson, 1 Pa. Dist. 726.

No liability on the part of the shareholders of the Central Pacific Railroad Company to the United States under California statute. U. S. v. Stanford, 161 U. S. 412, 16 S. Ct. 576, 40 L. ed. 751 [affirming 70 Fed. 346, 17 C. C. A. 143 (affirming 69 Fed. 25)].

Liability of shareholders of distilling companies for the federal distilling tax see Wolters v. Henningsan, 114 Cal. 433, 46 Pac. 277; Richter v. Henningsan, 110 Cal. 530, 42 Pac. 1077.

Liability under particular statutes.— Walter v. Merced Academy Assoc., 126 Cal. 582, 59 Pac. 136 (holding that actions in favor of creditors will lie against shareholders personally, and that the remedy is not limited to a sale of their shares); Santa Rosa Nat. Bank v. Barnett, 125 Cal. 407, 58 Pac. 85 (personal liability not referred to by Cal. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 348, 359, or Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 309); McGowan v. McDonald, 111 Cal. 57, 43 Pac. 418, 52 Am. St. Rep. 149 (construing various provisions of the civil code of California); Dawnson v. Sholley, 4 Kan. App. 367, 45 Pac. 949 (Kan. Gen. Stat. p. 1204); Williams v. Nall, 108 Ky. 21, 55 S. W. 706, 21 Ky. L. Rep. 1526 (construing Ky. Stat. §§ 547, 573); Hirshfeld v. Bopp, 145 N. Y. 84, 39 N. E. 817, 64 N. Y. St. 535 (Banking Law of 1892, § 52, and Corporation Law, § 55).

70. Ossipee Hosiery, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Canney, 54 N. H. 295.

71. Van Hook v. Whitlock, 7 Paige (N. Y.) 373, 3 Paige (N. Y.) 409; Buffington v. Bardon, 80 Wis. 635, 50 N. W. 776.

72. Curtiss v. Murry, 26 Cal. 663; Smucker v. Duncan, 10 Pa. Co. Ct. 430; Athenæum L. Assur. Soc. v. Pooley, 1 Giff. 102, 4 Jur. N. S. 371.

73. Third Ave. Sav. Bank v. Dimock, 24 N. J. Eq. 26; Amerman v. Wiles, 24 N. J. Eq. 13; Medill v. Collier, 16 Ohio St. 599; Kearny v. Buttles, 1 Ohio St. 362.

74. Smucker v. Duncan, 10 Pa. Co. Ct. 340.

75. McNab v. McNab, etc., Mfg. Co., 62 Hun (N. Y.) 18, 16 N. Y. Suppl. 448, 41 N. Y. St. 906.

76. Borland v. Haven, 37 Fed. 394, 13 Sawy. 551.

77. Goodwin v. American Nat. Bank, 48 Conn. 550; Fountain v. Anderson, 33 Ga. 372; Shaw v. Spencer, 100 Mass. 328, 97 Am. Dec. 107, 1 Am. Rep. 115; Ashton v. Atlantic Bank, 3 Allen (Mass.) 127; Mason v. Bank of Commerce, 16 Mo. App. 275.

be paid in are not liable upon a contract made by its promoters upon which the corporation itself would not have been liable, provided the corporation has not made itself liable by ratifying or adopting the contract.[78]

3. Torts and Judgments For Torts, When Within These Statutes — a. In General. There is a conflict among the decisions on the question whether statutes of individual liability include liability for the torts of the corporation. The solution of the question turns in many cases on the inquiry whether the statute is in its nature remedial or penal.[79]

b. View That Word "Debt" Includes Any Just Demand. If the statute is regarded as remedial, then it is a sound conclusion that the word "debt" is to be taken in its broadest sense as embracing any just demand, whether growing out of contract or out of tort.[80]

c. View That Word "Dues" Includes Obligations Growing Out of Torts as Well as Contracts. A well-founded view is that the expression "dues from corporations," in constitutional provisions requiring them to be secured by the individual liability of the shareholders, includes any just demand which may be due from the corporation, whether growing out of contract or out of tort.[81]

d. Contrary View Where Statute Is Deemed to Be Penal in Its Nature. Where the statute belongs to a class which have been held to be penal in their nature, such as a statute making the shareholders liable for the failure to file or publish an annual statement of the corporate indebtedness, the word "debt" or "debts" contracted does not embrace judgments recovered for torts, such as a judgment for damages for the negligent sinking of a steamboat,[82] or for a personal injury inflicted upon a passenger.[83]

e. Rule Where Statute Uses Words "Debts Contracted." The same conclusion has been reached under a statute using the words "debts contracted," the liability of an incorporated carrier for an injury to a passenger not being deemed a "debt" of this nature.[84]

f. Doctrine That Liability Extends to Judgments Against Corporation For Torts — (1) In General. A judgment against a corporation is certainly a debt of the corporation without reference to the question whether it was founded upon a tort or upon a contract.[85] Hence where it is sought merely to subject what remains unpaid by the shareholder in respect of his shares, it is clear that any demand against the corporation which has been reduced to a judgment will be available as a basis of such a proceeding without reference to the nature of the original claim.[86] If it is merged in the judgment it becomes a "debt of record," in the language of the common law; and upon this point there will be no difference of judicial opinion. So as already seen[87] constitutional provisions and statutes securing to creditors dues from corporations by a superadded individual liability of their shareholders are remedial in their nature, and hence embrace judgments against the corporation for damages in actions for its torts.[88]

78. Buffington v. Bardon, 80 Wis. 635, 50 N. W. 776.

79. See infra, VIII, J, 3, b et seq.

80. Carver v. Braintree Mfg. Co., 5 Fed. Cas. No. 2,485, 2 Story 432, 2 Robb Pat. Cas. 141.

81. Rider v. Fritchey, 49 Ohio St. 285, 30 N. E. 692, 15 L. R. A. 513; Carver v. Braintree Mfg. Co., 5 Fed. Cas. No. 2,485, 2 Story 432, 2 Robb Pat. Cas. 141.

82. Cable v. McCune, 26 Mo. 371, 72 Am. Dec. 214.

83. Doolittle v. Marsh, 11 Nebr. 243, 9 N. W. 54.

84. Bohn v. Brown, 33 Mich. 257. So where the statute made the shareholders of every corporation personally liable "to its creditors," and in describing the debt used the words "contract" and "becomes due" (Doyle v. Kimball, 23 Misc. (N. Y.) 431, 52 N. Y. Suppl. 195), and under a constitutional provision using the word "dues" and a statute using the words "debts unpaid" (Ward v. Joslin, 105 Fed. 224, 44 C. C. A. 456). See also under the latter statute Brown v. Trail, 89 Fed. 641.

85. See to the governing principle Conroy v. Sullivan, 44 Ill. 451; Dellinger v. Tweed, 66 N. C. 206.

86. Powell v. Oregonian R. Co., 36 Fed. 726, 13 Sawy. 535, 2 L. R. A. 270.

87. See supra, VIII, E, 2.

88. Rider v. Fritchey, 49 Ohio St. 285, 30 N. E. 692, 15 L. R. A. 513.

(II) Extends to Judgments For Damages Resulting in Death. So the word "dues," used in a state constitution imposing upon the shareholders of corporations a superadded liability, extends to judgments obtained under a statute giving a right of action for damages resulting in death.[89]

g. Unliquidated Damages For Breaches of Contract — (I) In General. The word "debt," in a statute making the members of a corporation liable for all its debts until its whole capital stock should be paid in and a certificate thereof filed for record, embraces unliquidated damages growing out of the breach of a contract.[90]

(II) What Demands Deemed to Arise Ex Contractu. Of this nature is a liability of directors for declaring dividends when the corporation is insolvent;[91] and the liability of a corporation for a breach of an implied warranty upon the sale of a chattel, the same being a "debt" within the meaning of such a statute.[92]

h. Unliquidated Damages For Torts — (I) In General. Denying a decision of Mr. Justice Story at circuit,[93] the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts has held that unliquidated damages for a tort are not embraced in a statute of individual liability which uses the word "debts" and the words "debts and contracts";[94] but the contrary conclusion was reached where the statute employed the words "debts" and "liabilities."[95]

(II) Shareholders Not Primarily Liable For Frauds and Torts of Officers or Promoters. Of course the shareholders of a corporation are not primarily liable for the frauds and torts of its officers and promoters, unless there is a statute making them so, or unless they themselves are such officers or promoters.[96]

4. Debts Barred by Limitation. Shareholders are not liable under such statutes for debts of the corporation which are barred by limitation.[97] And it has been held that this is so where the debt was so barred at the time of the dissolution of the corporation, although it could not have been enforced against the shareholders by action prior to the dissolution.[98]

5. Debts Which Have Been Renewed. As a general rule the renewal of a debt does not create a new debt, but merely operates to prolong and keep alive the old one. Therefore, on principle at least, a shareholder of a corporation is not relieved from individual liability because, when the indebtedness became due, new notes were given in renewal of old ones, for such renewal notes did not create a new debt or discharge or satisfy the old one, where it was not so expressly agreed between the parties.[99] It has been held, on grounds which the writer ventures to regard as untenable, that the liability of shareholders is so far like that of sureties that it cannot be revived or extended by any agreement between the creditor and the corporation renewing or extending the original debt.[1]

89. Rider v. Fritchey, 49 Ohio St. 285, 30 N. E. 692, 15 L. R. A. 513.

90. Mill Dam Foundry v. Hovey, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 417, 455. Compare Child v. Boston, etc., Iron Works, 137 Mass. 516, 50 Am. Rep. 328 (where this case is explained and limited); Cable v. McCune, 26 Mo. 371, 72 Am. Dec. 214 (where it is criticized).

91. Cable v. McCune, 26 Mo. 371, 72 Am. Dec. 214.

92. Dryden v. Kellogg, 2 Mo. App. 87.

93. Carver v. Braintree Mfg. Co., 5 Fed. Cas. No. 2,485, 2 Story 432, 2 Robb Pat. Cas. 141, demand for unliquidated damages for the infringement of a patent.

94. Child v. Boston, etc., Iron Works, 137 Mass. 516, 50 Am. Rep. 328 (damages arising out of negligence); Heacock v. Sherman, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 58.

95. Haynes v. Brown, 36 N. H. 545.

96. Matthews v. Stanford, 17 Ga. 543.

97. Cook v. Wheeler, Harr. (Mich.) 443; Van Hook v. Whitlock, 3 Paige (N. Y.) 409.

98. Van Hook v. Whitlock, 3 Paige (N. Y.) 409.

99. Hauenschild v. Standard Coffin Co., 10 Ohio S. & C. Pl. Dec. 536.

When cessation of business for one year under a statute does not dissolve the corporation for all purposes and does not prevent its officers from giving a renewal note to which the statutory liability of the shareholders will attach. See Salina Nat. Bank v. Prescott, 60 Kan. 490, 57 Pac. 121 [reversing 9 Kan. App. 886, 53 Pac. 769].

1. Hyman v. Coleman, 82 Cal. 650, 23 Pac. 62, 16 Am. St. Rep. 178; Hardman v. Sage, 124 N. Y. 25, 26 N. E. 354, 35 N. Y. St. 54; Parrott v. Sawyer, 87 N. Y. 622 [affirming 22 Hun (N. Y.) 611]; Jagger Iron

6. Debts Due to Other Shareholders — a. In General. Generally speaking the mere fact that the creditor is also a shareholder will not deprive him of the ordinary remedies to secure his debt which the principles of the common law, equity, or the statute law accord to other shareholders.[2]

b. Debts Due to Shareholders Who Have Been Guilty of Wrong For Which Liability Is Denounced. The above rule does not apply in the case of debts which are due from the corporation to its shareholders, where the liability is denounced by the statute for the commission of a wrong in which they have participated, such as contracting debts beyond the prescribed limit.[3]

c. Debts Due to Shareholders Buying Up Claims After Insolvency. After a corporation has become insolvent and has made an assignment for its creditors under which a liquidation has commenced, there is nothing in the relation of a mere shareholder to the corporation which restrains him from buying up claims against it and proving them up the same as any other creditor may, and charging the shareholders with a personal liability with respect to them.[4] It is otherwise where a confidential relation, like that of treasurer, still subsists, in which case the purchase of the debts by him will extinguish them as against the corporation,[5] or at most prevent him from proving them for more than his disbursements.[6]

7. Debts Contracted After Suspension. After a corporation has gone into liquidation the power of its officers or contracting agents to bind its shareholders by the creation of new obligations ceases,[7] although this rule is not universal.

8. Rents Earned, Although After Insolvency. Rents earned from a corporation or its representatives, although after its insolvency, under a lease made while it was a going concern, constitute a debt which can be enforced against its shareholders, although this conclusion may in particular cases be influenced by statutes.[8]

9. Debts Paid by Sureties. The liability of a principal to indemnify his

Co. v. Walker, 76 N. Y. 521; Parrott v. Colby, 71 N. Y. 597 [affirming 6 Hun (N. Y.) 55].

This rule has been adopted in California although in that state the liability of shareholders is that of principal debtors and not that of sureties. Hyman v. Coleman, 82 Cal. 650, 23 Pac. 62, 16 Am. St. Rep. 178.

2. California. — Richardson v. Chicago Packing, etc., Co., (1900) 63 Pac. 74; Knowles v. Sandercock, 107 Cal. 629, 40 Pac. 1047.

Kansas.— Milford Sav. Bank v. Joslyn, 59 Kan. 778, 53 Pac. 756, after he has discharged his own statutory liability.

Minnesota.— Mendenhall v. Duluth Dry Goods Co., 72 Minn. 312, 75 N. W. 232; Harper v. Carroll, 66 Minn. 487, 69 N. W. 610 [modified in 69 N. W. 1069] (but the collection of assets will be stayed when it appears that the dividend coming to him as a creditor will pay any future assessments for which as a shareholder he will be liable); Oswald v. Minneapolis Times Co., 65 Minn. 249, 68 N. W. 15.

New York.— Montgomery v. Brush Electric Illuminating Co., 48 N. Y. App. Div. 12, 62 N. Y. Suppl. 606.

Pennsylvania.— Schlaudecker's Appeal, (1888) 14 Atl. 229.

United States.— Brown v. Trail, 89 Fed. 641, after crediting upon his claim the amount of his own stock.

3. Connecticut River Sav. Bank v. Fiske, 62 N. H. 178. Nor can he have subrogation under a statute. Hill v. Frazier, 22 Pa. St. 320.

4. Craig's Appeal, 92 Pa. St. 396; Hill v. Frazier, 22 Pa. St. 320.

5. Hill v. Frazier, 22 Pa. St. 320.

6. Kisseberth v. Prescott, 91 Fed. 611. See also infra, IX, G, 15, b.

But where an agreement has been made between the corporation and the shareholder that he shall not be obliged to pay for his shares, then a creditor who has purchased claims against the corporation after it has become insolvent and after its affairs have been placed in the hands of a receiver, will not be granted relief in equity without showing that he paid a substantial consideration for the claims. Hospes v. Northwestern Mfg., etc., Co., 48 Minn. 174, 50 N. W. 1117, 13 Am. St. Rep. 637, 15 L. R. A. 470.

A note of a corporation taken up by its president with borrowed money with the intention of assigning to another for the purpose of bringing suit to enforce individual liability, when not deemed paid, see Knowles v. Sandercock, 107 Cal. 629, 40 Pac. 1047.

7. Union Bank v. Wando Min., etc., Co., 17 S. C. 339; Schrader v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 133 U. S. 67, 10 S. Ct. 238, 33 L. ed. 564; Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S. 27, 7 S. Ct. 788, 30 L. ed. 864. "The business of the bank must stop when insolvency is declared." U. S. v. Knox, 111 U. S. 784, 787, 4 S. Ct. 686, 28 L. ed. 603.

8. McIntyre v. Strong, 63 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 43, under a statute, rents accruing within two surety for any payment which the latter may be compelled to make for the former takes effect from the time when the surety becomes responsible for the debt of his principal; so that upon payment by the surety the debt which the principal owes to him becomes a "debt contracted" at the time when the surety becomes responsible and not at the time of such payment.[9]

10. Debts Due to Directors of Corporation. It has been held that a statute creating an individual liability on the part of the corporators does not protect debts which are due to the directors of the corporation.[10]

11. Other Debts Not Already Enumerated. Decisions with respect to the personal liability of shareholders for other debts of the corporation not hitherto enumerated will be found in cases cited in the margin.[11]

12. Liability For Interest — a. Where Principal of Judgment, Together With Interest, Does Not Exhaust Sum For Which Shareholder Liable. If the principal of the judgment, together with the interest, does not exhaust the sum for which the shareholder is liable, then the judgment will carry interest as in other cases, and the shareholder will be liable for interest as well as for the principal.[12]

b. Liable For Interest From Commencement of Action, Although in Excess of Statutory Liability. It has been ruled that interest will run against the shareholder from the date of the commencement of the suit against him, although it results in charging him with a sum in excess of that for which he was individually liable.[13] Where the liability of the shareholders is what is called a "proportionate liability," each being liable as a principal debtor for his proportion of the debts of the corporation, they are liable for interest accruing upon such debts.[14]

c. View That Interest Is Not Recoverable. Several of the courts have denied the principle that interest is recoverable from the shareholder, proceeding chiefly on the ground that the liability is to be sought in the statute alone and that it is to be strictly construed.[15]

d. From What Time Interest Begins to Run. It has been held to run from the maturity of the debt;[16] in a winding-up proceeding, from the date of the final call and notice thereof to the shareholders;[17] in a case of liability to redeem the bills of a bank, from the time when the redemption was demanded by the bill-holders of the shareholder, and not from the time when payment was demanded of the bank;[18] under the New York Manufacturing Act,[19] from the time when years recoverable, but rents accruing after two years not.

9. Rice v. Southgate, 16 Gray (Mass.) 142; Cox v. Gould, 6 Fed. Cas. No. 3,301, 4 Blatchf. 341. See also Byers v. Franklin Coal Co., 106 Mass. 131.

10. McDowall v. Sheehan, 129 N. Y. 200, 29 N. E. 299, 41 N. Y. St. 415.

11. Debts created by indorsement, where the liability is that of partners. Harger v. McCullough, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 119; Freeland v. McCullough, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 414, 43 Am. Dec. 685. Deposits in a savings-bank, where no certificate of deposit is issued, but where the deposit is noted in a pass-book. Dows v. Naper, 91 Ill. 44. Deficiency of indebtedness secured by a mortgage — stock liable for. Maine Trust, etc., Co. v. Southern Loan, etc., Co., 92 Me. 444, 43 Atl. 24. "Mortgage debt" under a statute exempting shareholder from liability for mortgage debts — what not such a debt. Barron v. Paine, 83 Me. 312, 22 Atl. 218. Shareholders liable for indebtedness of the corporation maturing after its dissolution. Cottrell v. Manlove, 58 Kan. 405, 49 Pac. 519. When debt is deemed to have been "contracted" under a statute making shareholders liable for all debts which should be contracted during a default in filing reports of the condition of the corporation, with the conclusion that there was no debt until the goods which had been purchased were delivered, the statute being penal. Garrison v. Howe, 17 N. Y. 458.

12. Grund v. Tucker, 5 Kan. 70; Haslett v. Wotherspoon, 1 Strobh. Eq. (S. C.) 209; Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S. 27, 7 S. Ct. 788, 30 L. ed. 864.

13. Burr v. Wilcox, 22 N. Y. 551; Mason v. Alexander, 44 Ohio St. 318, 7 N. E. 435; Wehrman v. Reakirt, 1 Cinc. Super. Ct. 230.

14. Wells v. Enright, 117 Cal. 669, 60 Pac. 439, 49 L. R. A. 647. Contra, Grew v. Breed, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 569; Crease v. Babcock, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 525. Compare In re Blakely Ordnance Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 412, 37 L. J. Ch. 230, 17 L. T. Rep. N. S. 554, 16 Wkly. Rep. 322.

15. Munger v. Jacobson, 99 Ill. 349; Cole v. Butler, 43 Me. 401; Sackett's Harbor Bank v. Blake, 3 Rich. Eq. (S. C.) 225.

16. Wheeler v. Millar, 90 N. Y. 353.

17. Andrew's Appeal, 1 Mon. (Pa.) 126.

18. Lane v. Morris, 10 Ga. 162.

19. N. Y. Laws (1848), c. 40, § 10.

suit is begun against the shareholder;[20] in the liquidation of a national bank, from the date of the suspension; and in case of book-accounts in favor of depositors, interest runs from such date, without any demand;[21] and under statutes of Wisconsin, from the date of the judgment by which it is ascertained that the assets of the bank have been exhausted, and that the deficiency exceeds the amount of the stock.[22]

13. LIABILITY FOR COSTS — a. In General. The shareholder is liable for the cost of the proceeding prosecuted to charge him as a shareholder.[23]

b. Where Proceeding Is in Equity. No settled rule can be stated with reference to the liability of shareholders for costs where the proceeding is in equity; because where there is no restraint by statute courts of equity give or refuse costs in the exercise of a sound discretion. Shareholders have been held liable for costs in proceedings in equity where the action was brought against the corporation and its members and the members were charged with a liability in respect of what was unpaid on their shares.[24] Shareholders who are defendants to a bill in equity under the Massachusetts statute, in which a decree is rendered against them, are jointly and severally liable for costs.[25] But the officers will be allowed the cost of their answer.[26] In an action to enforce a shareholder's liability, brought by one creditor for the benefit of all, he is equitably entitled to reimbursement for his reasonable expenses, and to an allowance for services of his attorney rendered for the common benefit of all the creditors.[27]

14. COUNSEL FEES. One court has held that in a suit in equity the court has power to allow to plaintiffs reasonable counsel fees, payable out of the fund;[28] but another court has held that the fees of plaintiff's solicitors should not be charged to the fund obtained from the shareholders.[29]

K. Statutes Making Shareholders Liable For Debts Due For Labor, Provisions, Goods, Etc.—1. SUCH STATUTES FAIRLY CONSTRUED BUT NOT EXTENDED — a. In General. Statutes exist in several of the states making the shareholders in corporations formed under them jointly and severally liable for wages due to laborers, and for supplies and materials furnished in the prosecution of the work of the corporation. These statutes rest on the same policy as mechanic's lien laws, and so far as the writer can see do not appear to have been construed 20. Burr v. Wilcox, 22 N. Y. 551 [affirming 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 198].

21. Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S. 27, 7 S. Ct. 788, 30 L. ed. 864.

22. Cleveland v. Burnham, 64 Wis. 347, 25 N. W. 407.

The decisions under the English winding-up acts on the subject of interest do not seem to have much interest for us, since for the most part they seem to have been made in respect of companies where the liability of the shareholders was unlimited. See cases collected in Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 724, 725. That interest on calls provided for in articles does not apply to calls in winding-up proceedings see In re Welsh Flannel, etc., Co., L. R. 20 Eq. 360, 44 L. J. Ch. 391, 32 L. T. Rep. N. S. 361, 23 Wkly. Rep. 558. That interest on a call runs from the date named in the notice for payment see In re Overend, L. R. 3 Ch. 784, 38 L. J. Ch. 15, 19 L. T. Rep. 271, 16 Wly. Rep. 1160.

23. Abbey v. Long, 44 Kan. 688, 24 Pac. 1111; Cole v. Butler, 43 Me. 401; Grose v. Hilt, 36 Me. 22.

24. Haslett v. Wotherspoon, 1 Strobh. Eq. (S. C.) 209.

25. Burnap v. Haskins Steam-Engine Co., 127 Mass. 586.

Liability for calls to defray expenses of winding-up.— Matter of Sea, etc., Assur. Co., 3 De G. M. & G. 459, 18 Jur. 118, 387, 2 Wkly. Rep. 322, 23 Eng. L. & Eq. 422, 52 Eng. Ch. 358. As to the present rules in England see Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 864–867. And see Fisk v. Keeseville Woolen, etc., Mfg. Co., 10 Paige (N. Y.) 592, where costs were not allowed which had accrued subsequently to the date of a de facto dissolution.

Where the object of the bill is a discovery merely, costs are not generally allowed. McIntyre v. Union College, 6 Paige (N. Y.) 239.

26. Masters v. Rossie Lead Min. Co., 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 301. When a judgment against each defendant shareholder for the entire costs of the case, but providing that any shareholder who should pay the whole cost or have the right to control the judgment, so as to compel the others to contribute their pro rata share of the cost was not an abuse of discretion. Torras v. Raeburn, 108 Ga. 345, 33 S. E. 989.

27. Helm v. Smith-Fee Co., 79 Minn. 297, 82 N. W. 639.

28. Mason v. Alexander, 44 Ohio St. 318, 7 N. E. 435.

29. Alling v. Wenzell, 27 Ill. App. 511.

unfavorably to the special class of creditors falling fairly within their terms;[30] but the courts have refused to extend them by construction.

b. Liability Secondary. The liability created by such statutes is secondary, and the right of the labor-creditor to proceed against the shareholders comes into existence only when the assets of the corporation have been exhausted. If there are assets turned over to the trustees for the benefit of creditors, exceeding the amount of the debts of the company, the labor-creditor cannot proceed under such a statute.[31] But this may not be the interpretation of all such statutes.

2. Such Statutes Extend to Assignees of Such Debts — a. In General. Such statutes extend to the protection of the assignees of such debts.[32]

b. To Payee of Bill of Exchange Drawn by Laborer. They also extend to the payee of a bill of exchange drawn on a corporation by one to whom it is indebted for services as a laborer.[33]

3. Include Those Who Work by The Piece. Such statutes include those who work by the piece as well as those who work by the day, week, or month.[34]

4. Do Not Extend to Services of Professional Men — a. In General. Such statutes do not extend to the protection of persons whose labor or service is of a professional or quasi-professional character,[35] such as an attorney-at-law,[36] although performing services for the corporation at a weekly stipend.[37]

b. Supervising Architect. It seems that a supervising architect who draws the plans and superintends and directs the construction of a building is within the protection of a statute securing debts due to "laborers," etc.,[38] especially where the statute uses the word "work" instead of "labor."[39]

5. Engineers of Works, Master Mechanics, Conductors, Etc. — a. In General. Statutes and constitutional provisions of this kind using the word "labor" or "laborer" do not extend to the protection of such professional laborers as the chief engineer of a railway company,[40] a consulting engineer,[41] or a civil engineer.[42]

b. Doctrine That All Persons Not Distinctively Officers and Agents Are Within Protection of Such Statutes. It has been broadly laid down that "all persons employed in the service of a railway company who have not a due, proper, and

30. But see Hanson v. Donkersley, 37 Mich. 184.

Some decisions under particular statutes may be here noted. That Mich. Comp. Laws, § 2412, makes shareholders liable for labor debts only to the extent of their stock. Peck v. Miller, 39 Mich. 594. That this feature of the New York Manufacturing Act of 1848 is not retained in the act of 1875, c. 611. Richards v. Beach, 19 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 84. What the case must state to bring it within Wis. Rev. Stat. c. 73, § 25. Harrod v. Hamer, 32 Wis. 162. Conditions precedent to a right of recovery under Wis. Rev. Stat. § 1769. Sleeper v. Goodwin, 67 Wis. 577, 31 N. W. 335. That the New York Railroad Acts of 1848 and 1850 should be limited to corporations created under them. Rochester v. Barnes, 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 657.

31. Albitztigui v. Guadalupe Y Caloo Min. Co., 92 Tenn. 598, 22 S. W. 739.

32. Reading Industrial Mfg. Co. v. Graeff, 64 Pa. St. 395. To the contrary see Weigley v. Coal Oil Co., 5 Phila. (Pa.) 67, 19 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 292.

33. Pilcher v. Brayton, 17 Hun (N. Y.) 429.

34. Thayer v. Mann, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 371 (received materials from the corporation and took them to his own shop and there worked them up); Seiders' Appeal, 46 Pa. St. 57.

35. Adams v. Goodrich, 55 Ga. 233; Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340, 31 Am. Rep. 503; Pennsylvania, etc., R. Co. v. Leuffer, 84 Pa. St. 168, 24 Am. Rep. 189.

36. Bristor v. Smith, 158 N. Y. 157, 53 N. E. 42 [affirming 29 N. Y. App. Div. 624, 52 N. Y. Suppl. 1138 (affirming 22 Misc. (N. Y.) 55, 49 N. Y. Suppl. 404), and distinguishing Boyd v. Gorman, 157 N. Y. 365, 52 N. E. 113].

37. Bristor v. Kretz, 22 Misc. (N. Y.) 55, 49 N. Y. Suppl. 404.

38. Stryker v. Cassidy, 76 N. Y. 50, 32 Am. Rep. 262; Mutual Ben. L. Ins. Co. v. Rowand, 26 N. J. Eq. 389.

39. Commonwealth Bank v. Gries, 35 Pa. St. 423.

For analogies drawn from the subject of mechanics' liens, with the examination of numerous cases, see 3 Thompson Corp. p. 2264.

40. Brockway v. Innes, 39 Mich. 47, 33 Am. Rep. 348.

41. Ericsson v. Brown, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 390.

42. Pennsylvania, etc., R. Co. v. Leuffer, 84 Pa. St. 168, 24 Am. Rep. 189. But see to the contrary Williamson v. Wadsworth, 49 Barb. (N. Y.) 294, holding that a civil engineer and traveling agent employed at a fixed salary is a "servant" within the protection of such a statute. The court, how-distinctive appellation, such as officers and agents of the company," are "laborers and servants," as for instance civil engineers, master mechanics, and conductors.[43]

6. MANAGER, SUPERINTENDENT, FOREMAN — a. In General. A bookkeeper and general manager is not a laborer, servant, or apprentice within the meaning of such a statute;[44] nor is the superintendent of a mining corporation within a provision of the charter of a corporation making shareholders liable for moneys due "laborers, servants, clerks, and operatives, . . . in case the company becomes insolvent";[45] nor is a person employed at a salary to perform the duties of the agent having superintendence of the affairs of a gold mining corporation during the absence of such agent;[46] nor is a mining superintendent in charge of a mine located in another county from the principal place of business of the corporation clothed with authority to contract for supplies, ores, workmen, etc.[47]

b. What Servants of This Class Are Within Such Statutes. But a superintendent or foreman of works has been held within the protection of statutes making shareholders personally liable for debts owing to "clerks," "servants," and "laborers."[48]

7. SECRETARY OF CORPORATION. The secretary of the corporation does not enjoy the protection of such a statute, although in addition to his duties as secretary he performs the duties of bookkeeper.[49]

8. BOOKKEEPER. A mere bookkeeper, having no other duties to perform than such as shall pertain to his position, is a "servant" within the protection of such a statute.[50]

9. TRAVELING SALESMAN. A traveling salesman employed by a corporation is not a "laborer" within the protection of a constitutional provision of this nature;[51] but if he spends part of the time on the road selling goods, making collections, etc., and the rest of the time working in a store, shipping and receiving goods, moving and handling stock, making sales, and collecting bills in the city, he is a "clerk" within the meaning of such a statute.[52]

10. ASSISTANT EDITOR AND REPORTER. Such a statute may well be held to extend to bookish or liberal labor, and to bring within its protection an assistant city editor and reporter, under the designation of "laborer."[53]

11. CONTRACTORS. Such statutes do not extend to the protection of contractors, such as the owner of a planing-mill who does works at his own mill and prepares materials to be delivered to the corporation for the erection of its building;[54] to a contractor for the building of a railway;[55] to one who has contracted for ever, rests its decision upon Richardson v. Abendroth, 43 Barb. (N. Y.) 162, holding that the secretary of a manufacturing corporation is a "servant" within the statute. That decision was subsequently overruled in Coffin v. Reynolds, 37 N. Y. 640.

43. Conant v. Van Schaick, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 87 [approved in Coffin v. Reynolds, 37 N. Y. 640].

44. Wakefield v. Fargo, 90 N. Y. 213.

45. Cocking v. Ward, (Tenn. Ch. App. 1898) 48 S. W. 287.

46. Dean v. De Wolf, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 186.

47. Krauser v. Ruckel, 17 Hun (N. Y.) 463.

48. Sleeper v. Goodwin, 67 Wis. 577, 31 N. W. 335. Similarly see Short v. Medberry, 29 Hun (N. Y.) 39, foreman helping to manufacture, solicit orders, obtain loans, etc. See also Vincent v. Bamford, 33 N. Y. Super. Ct. 506, 42 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 109 (foreman of work who often discharged duties of superintendent and did everything that he was ordered to do); Hovey v. Ten Broeck, 3 Rob. (N. Y.) 316 (overseer and bookkeeper held to be a servant). Compare Jones v. Shawhan, 4 Watts & S. (Pa.) 257, for analogy drawn from the law of mechanics' liens.

49. Coffin v. Reynolds, 37 N. Y. 640 [overruling Richardson v. Abendroth, 43 Barb. (N. Y.) 162, and citing Viele v. Wells, 9 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 277].

50. Hovey v. Ten Broeck, 3 Rob. (N. Y.) 316 (overseer and bookkeeper); Chapman v. Chumar, 7 N. Y. Suppl. 230, 26 N. Y. St. 473.

51. Jones v. Avery, 50 Mich. 326, 15 N. W. 494.

52. Hand v. Cole, 88 Tenn. 400, 12 S. W. 922, 7 L. R. A. 96.

53. Harris v. Norval, 1 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 127.

54. Wis. Rev. Stat. (1858), c. 73, § 25.

55. Aikin v. Wasson, 24 N. Y. 482; Boutwell v. Townsend, 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 205. To the same effect under the Michigan statute see Peck v. Miller, 39 Mich. 594.

labor to be performed by his team of horses;[56] or to a contractor who has engaged to carry on certain quarrying operations at his own expense and for a period of years, in a quarry owned by the corporation, and to deliver the rock so quarried to the corporation at certain rates.[57]

12. ANOTHER SHAREHOLDER. Such statutes were not intended to give such remedy to one shareholder against another.[58]

13. ANOTHER CORPORATION AGGREGATE. A corporation aggregate cannot be the "employee" of another corporation within the meaning of such a statute.[59]

14. WAIVER OF THIS STATUTORY RIGHT — a. By Recovering Judgment, Receiving Dividend, Etc. This statutory right to proceed against individual shareholders is not waived by the servant by taking the note of the corporation for his debt, obtaining judgment thereon, and receiving a pro rata dividend out of the assets of the corporation upon such judgment.[60]

b. Accepting Promissory Note. One court has taken the isolated view that by taking the promissory note of the corporation the laborer waives the protection of such a statute;[61] but another court has held the contrary with much better reason.[62]

c. Whether Waived by Taking "Store Orders." It has been held with doubtful propriety that a laborer waives this statutory right by taking "store orders" of the corporation for his debt, which "store orders" are not honored.[63]

15. APPLICATION OF PAYMENTS BY LABORER. Where the statute limits the remedy of the servant or laborer to debts due for wages, not exceeding six months in any one case,[64] and the corporation keeps a running account with a laborer, and no particular application of an amount paid him within six months is made, he may apply it in payment of wages first earned by him.[65]

16. TO WHAT SHAREHOLDERS THIS LIABILITY ATTACHES. The liability created by such statutes generally attaches to those who were shareholders at the time when the labor was performed,[66] and the liability then incurred is not divested by a transfer of their shares.[67] They do not render a shareholder liable for debts of the corporation which were contracted before he became a member.[68]

17. RELEASE BY PLAINTIFF OF SOME SHAREHOLDERS. Where there is a general statute[69] authorizing one or more joint debtors to compromise their joint indebtedness in discharge of their joint liability without affecting the liability of the other joint debtors, and under another statute the liability of shareholders is several as well as joint, plaintiff, proceeding against the shareholders for a so-called "labor debt," may release some of the defendants, without affecting his right to recover the balance of his claim from the others.[70]

18. DEFENSES AVAILABLE TO SHAREHOLDER. Here as in other cases[71] he may escape liability by proof that he has not been a shareholder, or that he was not a shareholder within the period when, by operation of the statute, liability attached

56. Balch v. New York, etc., R. Co., 46 N. Y. 521. The reverse was held by the supreme court of Wisconsin in Hogan v. Cushing, 49 Wis. 169, 5 N. W. 490, in respect of a statute giving a lien "for labor and services upon logs."

57. Taylor v. Manwaring, 48 Mich. 171, 12 N. W. 28. For analogy see Wentroth's Appeal, 82 Pa. St. 469.

58. Richardson v. Abendroth, 43 Barb. (N. Y.) 162. But compare supra, VIII, J, 6, a et seq.

59. Dukes v. Love, 97 Ind. 341, construing Ind. Rev. Stat. (1881), § 3869.

60. Jackson v. Meek, 87 Tenn. 69, 9 S. W. 225, 10 Am. St. Rep. 620, construing Tenn. Acts (1875), c. 142, § 21.

61. Hanson v. Donkersley, 37 Mich. 184, Marston, J., dissented, and his view more nearly accords with the current of opinion.

62. Jackson v. Meek, 87 Tenn. 69, 9 S. W. 225, 10 Am. St. Rep. 620.

63. Beecher v. Dacey, 45 Mich. 92, 7 N. W. 689.

64. Wis. Rev. Stat. (1878), § 1769.

65. Sleeper v. Goodwin, 67 Wis. 577, 31 N. W. 335.

66. Macomber v. Wright, 108 Mich. 109, 65 N. W. 610; Kamp v. Wintermute, 107 Mich. 635, 65 N. W. 570.

67. Jackson v. Meek, 87 Tenn. 69, 9 S. W. 225, 10 Am. St. Rep. 620.

68. Reeder v. Maranda, 66 Ind. 485.

69. Here, N. Y. Acts (1838), c. 257.

70. Herries v. Platt, 21 Hun (N. Y.) 132.

71. 3 Thompson Corp. § 3161.

to the shareholders for the particular debt.[72] He may plead the statute limiting the period within which such an action may be brought against the shareholders.[73] He may plead a previous payment and the exhaustion of his liability under limitations elsewhere considered; and it seems that under the New York statute[74] he is absolutely discharged from his liability by paying to any creditor for whose debts he is liable an amount equal to his stock;[75] while under the Massachusetts statute[76] it is no ground of defense to one of the defendants that he has paid some of the operatives other sums due them, and has a claim for contribution upon the other defendants.[77] But it is no defense that the corporation has been dissolved by its own voluntary act; that no judgment has been recovered against the corporation; that no receiver of the assets of the corporation has been appointed, or other means taken to ascertain whether a dividend in favor of creditors may not be made; or that plaintiff has presented his claim for the purpose of receiving and sharing in a dividend.[78]

19. Remedy at Law or in Equity. Some courts have deemed it consistent with justice to drive a common laborer into a complicated suit in equity in order to collect from shareholders his so-called "labor debts."[79] The sense of justice of the supreme court of Wisconsin holds that since the Michigan statute, in creating this right to hold shareholders liable for labor debts of the corporation, prescribes a remedy by an action in assumpsit, the remedy cannot migrate, so that the laborer has no remedy in the enlightened state of Wisconsin.[80]

20. Complaint in Such Actions. Where the condition of the statute is that the labor debt must have been contracted to be paid within one year, plaintiff must allege that the debt which is the subject of his action was so contracted.[81]

21. Parties Defendant. A servant who brings an action under the New York statute,[82] making all the shareholders parties defendant, cannot thereafter discontinue as to one without the consent of the others.[83]

22. Other Points in Construction of Such Statutes. The liability created by such a statute extends to the protection of laborers where labor is performed outside the state within which the corporation existed.[84]

23. Statutes Making Shareholders Liable For Goods, Wares, and Merchandise Sold and Delivered. A statute of Michigan (among other things) enacts that for all goods sold to a corporation each shareholder shall be held liable to the amount of his capital stock therein. As this statute is local and special, we will merely refer to cases in which it has received interpretation.[85]

L. To What Class of Shareholders Liability Attaches — Present and Past Members — 1. General Rule That Liability Follows Shares — a. Statement of Rule. In the absence of special statutory provisions the general rule, 72. Powell v. Eldred, 39 Mich. 552.

73. Arno v. Wayne Cir. Judge, 42 Mich. 362, 4 N. W. 147.

74. N. Y. Laws (1840), c. 40, § 18.

75. Mathez v. Neidig, 72 N. Y. 100, opinion by Church, C. J.

76. Mass. Stat. (1870), c. 224, § 42.

77. Burnap v. Haskins Steam-Engine Co., 127 Mass. 586.

For other available defenses see Mathez v. Neidig, 72 N. Y. 100.

78. Sleeper v. Goodwin, 67 Wis. 577, 31 N. W. 335.

79. Bell v. Spaulding, 3 Allen (Mass.) 485; Foster v. Posson, 105 Wis. 99, 81 N. W. 123 [citing Gager v. Marsden, 101 Wis. 598, 77 N. W. 922; Day v. Buckingham, 87 Wis. 215, 58 N. W. 254].

80. May v. Black, 77 Wis. 101, 45 N. W. 949.

81. Dean v. Mace, 19 Hun (N. Y.) 391. See further as to allegation, proof, and procedure under the same statute Dempsey v. Willett, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 264.

For a complaint in such an action which does not state a cause of action because it fails to show that plaintiff's claims are for labor done, etc., see Toner v. Fulkerson, 125 Ind. 224, 25 N. E. 218.

82. N. Y. Laws (1848), c. 40, § 18.

83. Dean v. Whiton, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 203.

Statutory changes in Michigan under which plaintiff might proceed at common law against the shareholder alone. Tilden v. Young, 39 Mich. 58.

84. Clokus v. Hollister Min. Co., 92 Wis. 325, 66 N. W. 398.

Provision of Dak. Comp. Laws, § 3111, impliedly repealed by section 2933, subsequently enacted. Busby v. Riley, 6 S. D. 401, 61 N. W. 164.

85. Kirkpatrick v. Bessalo, 116 Mich. 657, 74 N. W. 1042; Kirkpatrick v. Mehalitch, 113 Mich. 631, 71 N. W. 1077.

applicable alike to the English joint-stock company and the American corporation, is that liability as contributories or to creditors follows the shares,[86] and attaches, not merely to those who were members at the time or before the debt was contracted, but to those who were such either (1) when, by reason of the stoppage, dissolution, or winding-up[87] of the company, the right to transfer shares ceased; or, (2) in the case of direct proceedings by creditors against shareholders, when the right of the creditor against the shareholder became fixed in an appropriate proceeding.[88]

b. Need Not Have Been Shareholder at Time Creditor's Right of Action Accrued. It follows that in an action to enforce the individual liability of a shareholder under a statute, a recovery may be had against him, although he was not a shareholder when the creditor's cause of action accrued.[89]

2. Past Members Not Liable Unless Made So by Statute — a. In General. The general, and, it is believed, the universal rule is that members who have bona fide transferred their shares to others before the institution of proceedings to charge the shareholders are no longer liable in any form for the debts of the corporation, unless their liability has been continued by statute.[90] Where the liability is in respect to any balance due upon their shares, the liability attaches to the shares and is not affected by the time when the debts sought to be enforced accrued.[91]

b. Statutory Liability of Past Members in America — (i) In General. There are statutes in America which continue the liability of shareholders for limited periods after they have ceased to be such.[92]

(ii) Liability For Debts Contracted at Time He Was Member. In general the meaning of these statutes is that shareholders are liable for debts of the corporation contracted before or while the shareholder was a member, but not for debts contracted after he ceased to be a member.[93]

86. Williams v. Hanna, 40 Ind. 535; Chesley v. Pierce, 32 N. H. 388. See also infra, VIII, N, 1.

87. In re Asiatic Banking Corp., L. R. 5 Ch. 298, 39 L. J. Ch. 461, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 217, 18 Wkly. Rep. 366; In re Continental Bank Corp., L. R. 8 Eq. 504.

88. Connecticut.—Deming v. Bull, 10 Conn. 409; Middletown Bank v. Magill, 5 Conn. 28.

Illinois.— Root v. Sinnock, 120 Ill. 350, 11 N. W. 339, 60 Am. Rep. 558. See also Wheelock v. Kost, 77 Ill. 296.

Maine.— Longley v. Little, 26 Me. 162.

Massachusetts.— Child v. Coffin, 17 Mass. 64; Bond v. Appleton, 8 Mass. 472, 5 Am. Dec. 111.

Missouri.— McClaren v. Franciscus, 43 Mo. 452.

Ohio.— Brown v. Hitchcock, 36 Ohio St. 667.

England.— Dodgson v. Scott, 6 D. & L. 27, 2 Exch. 457, 12 Jur. 521, 17 L. J. Exch. 321, 5 R. & Can. Cas. 654; Nixon v. Green, 11 Exch. 550, 25 L. J. Exch. 209 [affirmed in 3 H. & N. 686, 6 Wkly. Rep. 772, 27 L. J. Exch. 509].

89. Root v. Sinnock, 120 Ill. 350, 11 N. E. 339, 60 Am. Rep. 558 [distinguishing Thompson v. Meisser, 108 Ill. 359; Buchanan v. Meisser, 105 Ill. 638; Hull v. Burtis, 90 Ill. 213; Fuller v. Ledden, 87 Ill. 310; Culver v. Chicago Third Nat. Bank, 64 Ill. 528].

90. Minnesota.— Olson v. Cook, 57 Minn. 552, 59 N. W. 635, under a statute.

Ohio.— Railroad Co. v. Smith, 48 Ohio St. 219, 31 N. E. 743, no defense to an action by creditors to enforce the statutory liability of the shareholders of an insolvent corporation, that defendants became shareholders after the liability of the corporation to such creditors was incurred.

Pennsylvania.— Fuller, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Brereton, 29 Pittsb. L. J. N. S. 366.

Vermont.— Barton Nat. Bank v. Atkins, 72 Vt. 33, 47 Atl. 176.

Wisconsin.— Killen v. Barnes, 106 Wis. 546, 82 N. W. 536, under a statute.

See also infra, VIII, N, 1.

91. Maine Trust, etc., Co. v. Southern L. & T. Co., 92 Me. 444, 43 Atl. 24.

Where the liability is under a covenant in a mortgage, whether a corporation contract a debt when it covenanted to save one harmless from the payment of a mortgage previously given, or when the mortgage fell due, is immaterial as affecting the liability of a shareholder whose ownership of stock began before the date of the covenant and continued until after the mortgage fell due. Barron v. Burrill, 86 Me. 66, 29 Atl. 939.

92. Examples of such statutes and their interpretation will be found in Libby v. Tobey, 82 Me. 397, 19 Atl. 904; Ingalls v. Cole, 47 Me. 530.

93. Alabama.— Morris v. Glenn, 87 Ala. 628, 7 So. 90.

Illinois.— Fuller v. Ledden, 87 Ill. 310.

Maryland.— Hambleton v. Glenn, 72 Md. 331, 20 Atl. 115; McKim v. Glenn, 66 Md. 479, 8 Atl. 130.

(III) Exceptional Rule of Liability as Partners Attaching to Those Who Were Shareholders When Debt Was Contracted. Formerly, in New York, and still it seems in other states, an exceptional rule obtains under which the test of liability is that the shareholder was such at the time the debt was contracted.[94] As this subject of liability, namely, that of partners, is very exceptional and for the most part out of date, the subject will not be further pursued.[95]

3. Liability For Debts Contracted Before Membership — a. In General. From the premise that liability follows the shares,[96] the conclusion is stated with entire confidence to be that shareholders are liable on the insolvency of the corporation, to the extent of their contract of subscription or of the superadded statutory imposition, for the debts of the corporation contracted before they became members as well as for the debts contracted during their membership.[97]

b. Exception Where Liability Is That of Partners. Where the governing statute makes or leaves the shareholders liable as partners they are not liable for debts contracted before they became shareholders, by analogy to the well-known rule with regard to partnerships.[98]

c. Exception Where Liability Is in Nature of Penalty For Wrongful Act — (I) In General. Where the liability is in the nature of a penalty for a prohibited act, such as suffering the indebtedness of the corporation to exceed a given limit, then it does not attach to those shareholders who do not become members at the time of the doing of such act, since it would be intolerable to visit them with punishment for the doing of an act with which they were in any manner privy.[99]

(II) As For Contracting Debts Before Stock Paid in. It also follows that, under a statutory provision making shareholders liable to creditors until the whole amount of the capital is paid in, etc., a shareholder is not liable for debts contracted before he became a shareholder.[1] A transfer of shares to a purchaser does not operate to transfer such a liability to him, nor can the creditor be deemed to trust persons who, when the credit is given, are not yet shareholders.[2] And this conclusion may equally be rested on the ground that the Ohio.— Cleveland Gas Co. v. Collins, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 247, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 475.

Tennessee.—Marr v. West Tennessee Bank, 4 Lea 578, original subscriber liable for the whole amount of his subscription, although he had transferred his shares.

Virginia.— Hamilton v. Glenn, 85 Va. 901, 9 S. E. 129.

United States.— Glenn v. Priest, 51 Fed. 400, 2 C. C. A. 305; Glenn v. Priest, 48 Fed. 19; Glenn v. Foote, 36 Fed. 824 (release by trustees in insolvency of assignor of shares does not release assignee).

Under New York Stock Corporation Law, § 54, must have been a shareholder before the debt was created where stock was originally issued to him. Doyle v. Kimball, 23 Misc. (N. Y.) 431, 52 N. Y. Suppl. 195.

94. California.— Larrabee v. Baldwin, 35 Cal. 155; Davidson v. Rankin, 34 Cal. 503; Mokelumne Hill Canal, etc., Co. v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 265.

Illinois.— Schalucky v. Field, 124 Ill. 617, 16 N. E. 904, 7 Am. St. Rep. 399; Thompson v. Meisser, 108 Ill. 359; Fuller v. Ledden, 87 Ill. 310.

Indiana.— Williams v. Hanna, 40 Ind. 535.

Massachusetts.— Bordman v. Osborn, 23 Pick. 295.

New Hampshire.— Chesley v. Pierce, 32 N. H. 388.

New York.— Tracy v. Yates, 18 Barb. 152; McCullough v. Moss, 5 Den. 567; Harger v. McCullough, 2 Den. 119; Freeland v. McCullough, 1 Den. 414, 43 Am. Dec. 685; Adderly v. Storm, 6 Hill 624; Moss v. Oakley, 2 Hill 265; Judson v. Rossie Galena Co., 9 Paige 598, 38 Am. Dec. 569.

Ohio.— Brown v. Hitchcock, 36 Ohio St. 667.

Vermont.— Windham Provident Sav. Inst. v. Sprague, 43 Vt. 502.

95. But the reader is referred to a considerable note collecting the cases in 3 Thompson Corp. § 3173.

96. See supra, VIII, L, 1, a; and infra, VIII, N, 1.

97. Lee v. Imbrie, 13 Oreg. 510, 11 Pac 270.

98. Chesley v. Pierce, 32 N. H. 388; Moss v. McCullough, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 279.

99. Windham Provident Sav. Inst. v. Sprague, 43 Vt. 502.

1. Tracy v. Yates, 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 152.

2. Tracy v. Yates, 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 152. Contra, McMaster v. Davidson, 29 Hun (N. Y.) 542.

statutory liability of a shareholder is in the nature of a contract with the creditors of the corporation.[8]

4. Statutes Under Which Liability Attaches to Those Who Are Shareholders at Time Liability Is Sought to Be Enforced. By analogy to the doctrine that the liability follows the shares,[4] the rule under many statutes and charters is that the superadded individual liability thus created attaches to those who are shareholders at the time when the action is brought to charge them,[5] whether by a winding-up proceeding, or by a direct action at law, in equity, or under a statute.[6]

5. At Time When Execution Against Corporation Is Returned Nulla Bona. Statutes exist which impose a liability upon shareholders to pay the debts of the corporation who were such at the time when execution upon a judgment against the corporation was returned nulla bona.[7]

6. Effect of Renewals Upon Liability of Present and Past Members. Where by the terms of the governing statute or by construction the shareholders are liable for no other than those debts which were contracted during the time when they held their shares the question is likely to arise, At what time is a debt to be deemed to have been contracted, when it is evidenced by a note in renewal of a previous one? In such a case it has been held that each note given in renewal is to be regarded as a new contract and a new debt.[8] But this rule does not apply in the case of a note given for a previous book-account debt; this is not the creating of a new debt, but the giving of a higher security for an existing debt; and therefore, where the liability attaches to those who were shareholders at the time the debt was contracted, it is unnecessary for the declaration of a creditor, in an action at law against a shareholder, to state that defendant was a shareholder when the note was given.[9]

7. Other Points Relating to Liability of Present and Past Members. These will be briefly stated in the marginal note.[10]

3. Hager v. Cleveland, 36 Md. 476; Norris v. Wrenschall, 34 Md. 492; Matthews v. Albert, 24 Md. 527; Holyoke Bank v. Burnham, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 183.

4. See supra, VIII, L, 1, a; and infra, VIII, N, 1.

5. Root v. Sinnock, 120 Ill. 350, 11 N. E. 339, 60 Am. Rep. 558 [affirming 24 Ill. App. 537].

6. Deming v. Bull, 10 Conn. 409 (liability attached to those who were shareholders when the debt was contracted and also when the suit was commenced); Root v. Sinnock, 120 Ill. 350, 11 N. E. 339, 60 Am. Rep. 558; Barrick v. Gifford, 47 Ohio St. 180, 24 N. E. 259, 21 Am. St. Rep. 798; Brown v. Hitchcock, 36 Ohio St. 667; Cleveland v. Burnham, 55 Wis. 598, 13 N. W. 677, 680. Compare Middletown Bank v. Magill, 5 Conn. 28; Southmayd v. Russ, 3 Conn. 52; Curtis v. Harlow, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 3; Mill Dam Foundry v. Hovey, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 417; Dodgson v. Scott, 6 Dowl. & L. 27, 2 Exch. 457, 12 Jur. 521, 17 L. J. Exch. 321, 5 K. & Can. Cas. 654 (construing the words in the statute "for the time being," and holding that liability attaches at the time of suing out scire facias for an execution against the members).

7. Skrainka v. Allen, 76 Mo. 384 [reversing on this point 7 Mo. App. 434]; Bagley v. Tyler, 43 Mo. App. 195; Brown v. Trail, 89 Fed. 641; Nixon v. Green, 11 Exch. 550, 25 L. J. Exch. 209 [affirmed in 3 H. & N. 686, 27 L. J. Exch. 509, 6 Wklv. Rep. 772]. Compare Miller v. Great Republic Ins. Co., 50 Mo. 55; McClaren v. Franciscus, 43 Mo. 452 (at the time when execution is sued out).

8. Castleman v. Holmes, 4 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 1; Milliken v. Whitehouse, 49 Me. 527. The same ruling has been made where the question arose with reference to the statute of limitations. Fisher v. Martin, 47 Barb. (N. Y.) 159.

9. Freeland v. McCullough, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 414, 43 Am. Dec. 685. See this question in another relation, supra, VIII, J, 5.

10. Shareholder becoming such subsequently to constitutional amendment imposing individual liability not subject to the same. Ochiltree v. Iowa Contracting R. Co., 21 Wall. (U. S.) 249, 22 L. ed. 546 [affirming 54 Mo. 113]. Charter fixing the liability upon those who were shareholders at the time when payment was refused by corporation. Bond v. Appleton, 8 Mass. 472, 5 Am. Dec. 111. Compare McDougald v. Bellamy, 18 Ga. 411. Rule where the governing statute is such that execution upon the judgment obtained against the corporation will also run against the shareholders. Child v. Coffin, 17 Mass. 64. Compare Marcy v. Clark, 17 Mass. 330, where it is said that the execution might be levied upon him who was a member at the time of the levy. Effect in such case of death of shareholder before commencement of action against corporation. Child v. Coffin, 17 Mass. 64. Compare Longley v. Little, 26 Me. 162; Powis v. Butler, 3 C. B. N. S. 645, 91 E. C. L. 645. Assignee of shares not liable for fraudulent dividends received by his assignor. Hurlbut v. Taylor, 62 Wis. 607, 22 N. W. 855.

M. Status and Liability of Legal and Equitable Owners of Shares — 1. General Rule That Legal Owner Is Liable — a. Statement of Rule. The general rule is that the legal owner, that is to say, he whose name rightfully[11] appears as owner on the books of the corporation, is to be regarded as the shareholder, both as to the corporation and as to the public.[12]

b. Pledgee Registered as Shareholder Liable as Such. Under the operation of this rule, a pledgee holding the stock of his pledger as collateral security, if registered as the legal owner, is liable to the creditors of the company as a shareholder, and if, in consequence of the operation of this rule, he suffer a loss, that is a matter between him and his pledger.[13]

c. Pledger Liable if Shares Continue to Stand in His Name on Corporate Books. If the shares continue to stand on the corporate books in the name of the pledger, he, and not the pledgee, will be liable to creditors, because he remains the owner of them.[14]

Under New York Manufacturing Act, liability attaches to those who were shareholders at the time of the purchase of their shares, and not at the time of the transfer of them on the books of the corporation. Washburn, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Clark, 17 N. Y. Suppl. 568, 43 N. Y. St. 709. Under a statute creating a liability for "debts contracted or due during the time of their holding stock therein," a shareholder is liable for a debt of the corporation contracted before he purchased his shares. Ball Electric Light Co. v. Child, 68 Conn. 522, 37 Atl. 391. There is no sense in a proposition found in an official syllabus in Georgia that in order to enable a creditor of a corporation to recover from one alleged to be a shareholder therein, and as such liable on an unpaid stock subscription, it must appear that the defendant was in fact such a shareholder at a time when he was in law so liable. Fouche v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 110 Ga. 827, 36 S. E. 256.

11. Simmons v. Hill, 96 Mo. 679, 10 S. W. 61, 2 L. R. A. 476; Keyser v. Hitz, 133 U. S. 138, 10 S. Ct. 290, 33 L. ed. 531; In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 3 Eq. 360.

12. California.— Baines v. Story, (1892) 30 Pac. 777; Baines v. Babcock, 95 Cal. 581, 27 Pac. 674, 30 Pac. 776, 29 Am. St. Rep. 158.

Connecticut.— State v. Ferris, 42 Conn. 560.

Illinois.— Wheelock v. Kost, 77 Ill. 296.

Iowa.— Hale v. Walker, 31 Iowa 344, 7 Am. Rep. 137.

Maine.— Skowhegan Bank v. Cutler, 49 Me. 315; Fowler v. Ludwig, 34 Me. 455; Stanley v. Stanley, 26 Me. 191.

Maryland.— Magruder v. Colston, 44 Md. 349, 22 Am. Rep. 47.

Massachusetts.— Holyoke Bank v. Burnham, 11 Cush. 183; Grew v. Breed, 10 Metc. 569; Crease v. Babcock, 10 Metc. 525.

Missouri.— Simmons v. Hill, 96 Mo. 679, 10 S. W. 61, 2 L. R. A. 476.

New York.— Matter of Empire City Bank, 18 N. Y. 199 [reversing 6 Abb. Pr. 385]; Rosevelt v. Brown, 11 N. Y. 148; Adderly v. Storm, 6 Hill 624.

United States.— Hawkins v. Glenn, 131 U. S. 319, 9 S. Ct. 739, 33 L. ed. 184; Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S. 27, 7 S. Ct. 788, 30 L. ed. 864 [distinguishing Whitney v. Butler, 118 U. S. 655, 7 S. Ct. 61, 30 L. ed. 266]; Germania Nat. Bank v. Case, 99 U. S. 628, 25 L. ed. 448; Pullman v. Upton, 96 U. S. 328, 24 L. ed. 818.

13. Illinois.— Wheelock v. Kost, 77 Ill. 296.

Massachusetts.— Holyoke Bank v. Burnham, 11 Cush. 183; Grew v. Breed, 10 Metc. 569; Crease v. Babcock, 10 Metc. 525.

Minnesota.— Harper v. Carroll, 66 Minn. 487, 69 N. W. 610, 1069.

Missouri.— Simmons v. Hill, 96 Mo. 679, 10 S. W. 61, 2 L. R. A. 476.

New York.— In re Empire City Bank, 18 N. Y. 199, 8 Abb. Pr. 192; Rosevelt v. Brown, 11 N. Y. 148; Adderly v. Storm, 6 Hill 624.

United States.— Germania Nat. Bank v. Case, 99 U. S. 628, 25 L. ed. 448; Pullman v. Upton, 96 U. S. 328, 24 L. ed. 818; Moore v. Jones, 17 Fed. Cas. No. 9,769, 3 Woods 53.

England.— Franklin v. Neate, 14 L. J. Exch. 59, 13 M. & W. 481.

A person who allows a transfer to be made to him, upon the books of a national bank, of shares of stock therein, even though such a transfer is made solely as security for a debt due the transferee, is liable as a shareholder under U. S. Rev. Stat. (1872), § 5139. Moore v. Jones, 17 Fed. Cas. No. 9,769, 3 Woods 53.

Although the debt has been paid, yet so long as the shares stand in the name of the pledgee, he remains liable as a shareholder. Adderly v. Storm, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 624. But a retransfer divests him of all future liability. Holyoke Bank v. Burnham, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 183.

The rule of liability does not apply to the savings-bank holding shares in pledge which it has no right to own. Canada Exch. Bank v. City, etc., Sav. Bank, 6 Montreal Q. B. 196.

In California a pledgee who holds shares as security for a debt acquires only a lien or special property therein, and is not liable to assessment upon the shares in case of the insolvency of the corporation, although the stock stands upon the registry in the pledgee's name as such. Pauly v. State Loan, etc., Co., 58 Fed. 666, 7 C. C. A. 422 [affirming 56 Fed. 430].

14. Henkle v. Salem Mfg. Co., 39 Ohio St. 547; Welles v. Larrabee, 36 Fed. 866, 2

d. Liability of Pledgee of Unissued Shares of Corporation. In the absence of circumstances of estoppel arising in favor of creditors, the pledgee of the unissued shares of a corporation will occupy the position in which it was intended to place him by the contract of pledge, and will ordinarily not be liable as a shareholder.[15]

e. Pledgee Taking Transfer in Name of Irresponsible Party. The pledgee of shares in a national bank who, in good faith and with no fraudulent intent, takes the security for his own benefit in the name of an irresponsible trustee, for the avowed purpose of avoiding individual liability as a shareholder, and who exercises none of the powers or rights of a shareholder, incurs no liability as such to creditors of the bank in case of its failure.[16]

2. Trustees Registered as Owners Liable Personally — a. In General. If shares are registered in the name of a person with his consent[17] to be held in trust for another,[18] or in trust for a bank,[19] he assumes the responsibility of a shareholder, and if he thereby suffers loss he must seek indemnity from his cestui que trust.[20]

b. Statutes Making Trust Estate Liable and Exonerating Trustee. Statutes have been enacted in various jurisdictions providing that no person holding shares as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee shall be subject to any liabilities as

L. R. A. 471; Becher v. Wells Flouring Mill Co., 1 Fed. 276, 1 McCrary 62. See also supra, VII, F, 1, c.

15. Kansas.— Tschumi v. Hills, 6 Kan. App. 549, 51 Pac. 619, no liability where the shares were void as not being issued in conformity with the charter of the corporation.

Maryland.— Matthews v. Albert, 24 Md. 527.

Missouri.— Union Sav. Assoc. v. Seligman, 92 Mo. 635, 15 S. W. 630, 1 Am. St. Rep. 776 [overruling Griswold v. Seligman, 72 Mo. 110, and reversing 11 Mo. App. 142].

United States.— Burgess v. Seligman, 107 U. S. 20, 2 S. Ct. 10, 27 L. ed. 359; Andrews v. National Foundry, etc., Works, 76 Fed. 166, 22 C. C. A. 110, 36 L. R. A. 139 [rehearing denied in 77 Fed. 774, 23 C. C. A. 454, 36 L. R. A. 153], the latter case holding a pledgee not liable to creditors who were not misled, especially where he forbids the issue of unpaid stock and declares that it shall be void. But see National Foundry, etc., Works v. Oconto Water Co., 68 Fed. 1006, where it was held that the pledgees became the absolute owners and were liable to creditors of the corporation.

England.— Ex p. Currie, 32 L. J. Ch. 57, 11 Wkly. Rep. 675; Ashworth v. Bristol, etc., R. Co., 15 L. T. Rep. N. S. 561.

Canada.— McCraken v. McIntyre, 1 Can. Supreme Ct. 479.

16. Anderson v. Philadelphia Warehouse Co., 111 U. S. 479, 4 S. Ct. 525, 28 L. ed. 478.

17. If done without his consent it will not bind him unless ratified. In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 3 Eq. 361. Nor will it if he is an infant and incapable of consenting, unless he affirms on becoming of age. In re North of England Joint-Stock Banking Co., 1 Hall & T. 580, 13 Jur. 951, 19 L. J. Ch. 69, 1 Macn. & G. 307, 47 Eng. Ch. 246. See in connection with this case Hoare's Case, 30 Beav. 225, 2 Johns. & H. 229.

18. Stover v. Flack, 30 N. Y. 64; In re International Contract Co., L. R. 7 Ch. 485, 41 L. J. Ch. 564, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 487, 20 Wkly. Rep. 430; In re Norwegian Charcoal Iron Co., L. R. 9 Eq. 363, 39 L. J. Ch. 199, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 811, 18 Wkly. Rep. 331; Cree v. Somervail, 4 App. Cas. 648; Cuninghame v. Glasgow Bank, 4 App. Cas. 607; In re Glasgow Bank, 4 App. Cas. 547; Muir v. Glasgow Bank, 4 App. Cas. 337, 40 L. T. Rep. N. S. 339, 27 Wkly. Rep. 603; Hoare's Case, 30 Beav. 225, 2 Johns. & H. 229; Re Australia Royal Bank, 2 Giff. 189, 6 Jur. N. S. 908, 2 L. T. Rep. N. S. 349; Lumsden v. Buchanan, 4 Macq. 959; In re Independent Assur. Co., 1 Sim. N. S. 389, 40 Eng. Ch. 389. Compare In re North of England Joint-Stock Banking Co., 1 Hall & T. 580, 13 Jur. 951, 19 L. J. Ch. 69, 1 Macn. & G. 307, 47 Eng. Ch. 246 [reversing 3 De G. & Sm. 80]; Ex p. Scully, 6 Ir. Ch. 72.

In case of an unlimited company, such trustees standing on the books as legal owners are liable as partners. Gillespie v. Glasgow Bank, 4 App. Cas. 632. And see Matter of Joint-Stock Co.'s Act, 4 De G. J. & S. 416, 10 Jur. N. S. 711, 10 L. T. Rep. N. S. 594, 12 Wkly. Rep. 925, 69 Eng. Ch. 320; Matter of St. Marylebone Banking Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 21; In re London, etc., Assur. Co., 4 Jur. N. S. 448, 27 L. J. Ch. 666, 6 Wkly. Rep. 479.

19. In re National Financial Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 791, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 895, 16 Wkly. Rep. 994; In re Norwegian Charcoal Iron Co., L. R. 9 Eq. 363, 39 L. J. Ch. 199, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 811, 18 Wkly. Rep. 331; Hemming v. Maddick, L. R. 9 Eq. 175 [affirmed in L. R. 7 Ch. 395, 41 L. J. Ch. 522, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 565, 20 Wkly. Rep. 433]; In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 3 Eq. 361; Cree v. Somervail, 4 App. Cas. 648; Hoare's Case, 30 Beav. 225, 2 Johns. & H. 229; Preston v. Guyon, 5 Jur. 146, 10 L. J. Ch. 73, 11 Sim. 327, 34 Eng. Ch. 327.

20. Russell v. Bristol, 49 Conn. 251.

a shareholder. Such statutes have existed in Massachusetts[21] and in Rhode Island;[22] and such is one of the provisions of the act of congress governing national banks.[23] Under these statutes it has been held that the trust property is answerable for the debts of the company in like manner as the property of the shareholder would have been if he had not held the shares in trust.[24]

c. Trustees Holding Shares For Company. Where "treasury stock," so-called, is held in the name of a trustee for the company, the holder will not incur a liability to creditors providing the transaction is lawful,[25] and providing, in case the trustee thereby suffers loss, he is entitled to indemnity from the company;[26] but otherwise if the transaction is unlawful, ultra vires, or fraudulent, in which case he will be held to his liability, and will not be entitled to such indemnity.[27]

d. Liability of Trustee Who Conceals His Trust. Statutes exonerating persons who hold shares as trustees from personal liability apply only to cases where the trust is expressed on the books of the company. If the trust is concealed, the trustee stands liable to creditors precisely as though he were the actual owner.[28]

e. Holder of Shares Which Have Been Transferred to Him Without His Knowledge or Consent. Liability as a shareholder does not attach to one to whom shares have been transferred on the books of the corporation without his knowledge or consent,[29] unless he ratifies the transfer by accepting the shares.[30]

f. Effect of Trustee Resigning Trust and Substituting Another Trustee. A resignation of his trust by a trustee in whose name the shares stand on the books of the corporation will be ineffectual to exonerate him from liability as a shareholder; but he must go further and transfer the shares, on the books of the company, out of his name and into the name of another who may lawfully take them.[31] A substitution of trustees, made while the company is a going concern, and ending in a formal transfer of the shares on the books of the company to the new trustee, will of course terminate the liability of the retiring trustee.[32] But such a substitution of trustees, ending in a formal execution of a transfer from the retiring to the assuming trustee, will not be effectual to terminate the liability of the former where it is made after the corporation, by reason of insolvency, has ceased to be a going concern.[33]

g. Taking Shares in Name of Fictitious Trustee. Where shares are taken in 21. Mansur v. Pratt, 101 Mass. 60; Stedman v. Eveleth, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 114.

22. Sayles v. Bates, 15 R. I. 342, 5 Atl. 497.

23. U. S. Rev. Stat. (1872), § 5152.

24. Stedman v. Eveleth, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 114; Sayles v. Bates, 15 R. I. 342, 5 Atl. 497.

Trustee of national bank shares not liable where trust is expressed on the corporate books. Welles v. Larrabee, 36 Fed. 866, 2 L. R. A. 471.

25. Russell v. Bristol, 49 Conn. 251.

26. In re National Financial Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 791, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 895, 16 Wkly. Rep. 994; James v. May, L. R. 6 H. L. 328, 42 L. J. Ch. 802, 29 L. T. Rep. N. S. 217.

27. Nickoll's Case, 24 Beav. 639; Daniell's Case, 23 Beav. 568, 1 De G. & J. 372, 58 Eng. Ch. 289; Matter of St. Marylebone Banking Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 21. Further on this subject see and compare In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 3 Eq. 361; Cree v. Somervail, 4 App. Cas. 648; Matter of Waterloo L., etc., Assur. Co., 2 De G. J. & S. 101, 10 Jur. N. S. 246, 10 L. T. Rep. N. S. 3, 12 Wkly. Rep. 502, 67 Eng. Ch. 80; In re Munster Bank, L. R. 17 Ir. 341; In re Ennis, etc., R. Co., L. R. 3 Ir. 94.

28. McKim v. Glenn, 66 Md. 479, 8 Atl. 130; Ollesheimer v. Thompson Mfg. Co., 44 Mo. App. 172.

29. Matter of St. George's Steam Packet Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 191, 14 Jur. 826 [affirmed in 2 Hall & T. 395, 19 L. J. Ch. 353, 2 Macn. & G. 201]; Matter of St. George's Steam Packet Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 11, 13 Jur. 530, 672, 18 L. J. Ch. 259, 1 Macn. & G. 291, 47 Eng. Ch. 232.

30. Keyser v. Hitz, 133 U. S. 138, 10 S. Ct. 290, 33 L. ed. 531. Compare In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 3 Eq. 361; In re Glasgow Bank, 4 App. Cas. 547.

Nor will such a person be a "bona fide stockholder" within the meaning of a statute prescribing the qualification of corporate electors. Stewart v. Mahoney Min. Co., 54 Cal. 149.

31. Ker's Case, L. R. 4 H. L. Sc. 549; Buchan's Case, 4 App. Cas. 549; Mitchell's Case, 4 App. Cas. 548, 40 L. T. Rep. N. S. 758, 27 Wkly. Rep. 875.

32. In re Glasgow Bank, 4 App. Cas. 547.

33. Rutherfurd's Case, 4 App. Cas. 548.

the name of a fictitious trustee for the purpose of deceiving the public, a court of equity will discover the real beneficiary and hold him liable to creditors.[34]

h. Taking Shares in Name of Person Non Sui Juris. The same principle applies where a person, in order to evade liability as a shareholder while enjoying the benefits, takes shares in the name of a person incapable of contracting, as an infant[35] or a married woman.[36]

i. Cestui Que Trust Not Liable Provided Transaction Is "Out and Out," and Not a "Sham." According to English decisions if shares are taken by one in the name of another, in order that the former may escape the responsibilities while enjoying the benefits of a shareholder, and the latter authorizes, assents to, or ratifies this, he will be held to be a contributory and not the cestui, following the rule which looks only to the legal title; and this, although the trustee is insolvent, and the cestui is solvent.[37] That is to say, if the transaction although made with the design of escaping liability, and with a fraudulent intent as against the creditors of the corporation, is "out and out," and not a "sham," but not if it is not "out and out," as where the shares are held by a string which can be pulled if the tide turns and the venture becomes profitable.[38]

3. Assignees of Bankrupt or Insolvent Estates — a. In General. Assignees of insolvent estates, or of estates undergoing administration in a court of bankruptcy, a portion of whose assets consist of the shares of a corporation, do not become personally liable to the creditors of the corporation, unless they distinctly make themselves so by some act of their own, not required of them in the proper discharge of their official duties;[39] and it has been held that this is so, although the assignees attended the meetings of the corporation and acted as shareholders,[40] the rule being that assignees in bankruptcy are not bound to accept property of an onerous or unprofitable character.[41]

34. In re Hercules Ins. Co., L. R. 13 Eq. 566, 41 L. J. Ch. 580, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 274; Matter of Companies Act, 4 De G. J. & S. 53, 9 Jur. N. S. 1184, 33 L. J. Ch. 145, 9 L. T. Rep. N. S. 493, 3 New Rep. 97, 12 Wkly. Rep. 92, 69 Eng. Ch. 41.

35. In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 19 Eq. 588, 44 L. J. Ch. 252, 32 L. T. Rep. N. S. 18, 23 Wkly. Rep. 467.

But where a father applied for shares on the part of his infant son and paid the deposit, and the company refused to allow him to execute the deed on behalf of his son, and the father did no further act, he was held not liable as a contributory. Maxwell's Case, 24 Beav. 321.

36. In re Hercules Ins. Co., L. R. 13 Eq. 566, 41 L. J. Ch. 580, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 274.

37. In re East of England Banking Co., 2 Dr. & Sm. 452, 11 Jur. N. S. 616, 35 L. J. Ch. 43, 12 L. T. Rep. N. S. 696, 13 Wkly. Rep. 911. See also Wilson v. Keating, 27 Beav. 121 [affirmed in 4 De G. & J. 588, 61 Eng. Ch. 465]; Newry, etc., R. Co. v. Moss, 14 Beav. 64, 15 Jur. 437, 20 L. J. Ch. 633; Fenwick's Case, 1 De G. & Sm. 557, 13 Jur. 204, 18 L. J. Ch. 112.

38. In re Great Wheal Busy Min. Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 196, 40 L. J. Ch. 361, 24 L. T. Rep. N. S. 599, 19 Wkly. Rep. 549; In re Norwegian Charcoal Iron Co., L. R. 9 Eq. 363, 39 L. J. Ch. 199, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 811, 18 Wkly. Rep. 331; In re Humber Ironworks, etc., Co., 1 Ch. D. 576, 45 L. J. Ch. 48; Chinnock's Case, Johns. 714, 8 Wkly. Rep. 255. There are English decisions which make an exception to this rule in the case of actual fraud, committed as against the rights of the public, as will be seen in the following cases: Matter of Companies' Acts, 4 De G. J. & S. 53, 9 Jur. N. S. 1184, 33 L. J. Ch. 145, 9 L. T. Rep. N. S. 493, 3 New Rep. 97, 12 Wkly. Rep. 92, 69 Eng. Ch. 41. Compare In re Great Wheal Busy Min. Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 196, 40 L. J. Ch. 361, 24 L. T. Rep. N. S. 599, 19 Wkly. Rep. 549; In re Cobre Copper Min. Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 614, 39 L. J. Ch. 753, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 287, 18 Wkly. Rep. 957; In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 19 Eq. 588, 44 L. J. Ch. 252, 32 L. T. Rep. N. S. 18, 23 Wkly. Rep. 467; In re Hercules Ins. Co., L. R. 13 Eq. 566, 41 L. J. Ch. 580, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 274; In re London, etc., Bank, 18 Ch. D. 581, 50 L. J. Ch. 557, 45 L. T. Rep. N. S. 166, 30 Wkly. Rep. 118. See also Ex p. Scully, 6 Ir. Ch. 72.

39. Bangs v. Lincoln, 10 Gray (Mass.) 600; Gray v. Coffin, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 192.

40. Gray v. Coffin, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 192; American File Co. v. Garrett, 110 U. S. 288, 4 S. Ct. 90, 28 L. ed. 149.

41. Rugely v. Robinson, 19 Ala. 404; Streeter v. Sumner, 31 N. H. 542; Amory v. Lawrence, 1 Fed. Cas. No. 336, 3 Cliff. 523; In re Sneezum, 3 Ch. D. 463, 45 L. J. Bankr. 137, 35 L. T. Rep. N. S. 389, 25 Wkly. Rep. 49; In re East India Cotton Agency, 3 Ch. D. 264, 35 L. T. Rep. N. S. 53; South Staffordshire R. Co. v. Burnside, 5 Exch. 129.

b. Effect of Bankruptcy of Shareholder Upon Winding-Up Proceeding. According to English law if the company is wound up pending the bankruptcy of a shareholder, and whilst the assignee in bankruptcy is the legal holder of the shares, the assignee will be put on the list of contributories in his representative capacity;[42] which means that the calls made on the bankrupt shareholder in the proceeding to wind up the company must be proved by the receiver or liquidator of the company in the court of bankruptcy, where he takes his dividend with other creditors of the bankrupt[43] and subjects himself to the right of set-off the same as any other creditor of the bankrupt.[44]

4. Husband, When Liable For Wife. It has been laid down that where the common-law disabilities of married women have not been removed by statute, if a husband subscribes for shares in the name of his wife, and the corporation afterward becomes insolvent, he will be liable as a shareholder to its creditors, although she may have a separate estate, even where the husband purchased the shares for his wife under his statutory power as her trustee, and paid for them with moneys belonging to her separate estate, and caused certificates to be issued in her name, his name not appearing on the books of the corporation as owner of the shares, in trust or otherwise.[45]

N. Divesting Liability of Shareholder by Transferring His Shares — 1. Bona Fide Transfer of Shares Terminates Liability of Transferrer. The general rule is that a bona fide transfer of shares, whether they be paid or not, made in the prescribed manner on the books of the corporation, terminates the liability of the transferee either to the company or to its creditors.[46]

That the assigned estate is not liable was held under the operation of a particular statute in Kelton v. Phillips, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 61.

42. Matter of Kollmann's R. Locomotive, etc., Imp. Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 113.

43. Ex p. Pickering, L. R. 4 Ch. 58, 38 L. J. Bankr. 1, 19 L. T. Rep. N. S. 369, 17 Wkly. Rep. 38; Ex p. Cooper, L. R. 2 Ch. 578, 581, 36 L. J. Bankr. 28, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 580, 15 Wkly. Rep. 858 (per Lord Cairns, L. J.); Williams v. Harding, L. R. 1 H. L. 9, 12 Jur. N. S. 657, 35 L. J. Bankr. 25, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 139, 14 Wkly. Rep. 503; Ex p. Nicholas, 2 De G. M. & G. 271, 17 Jur. 6, 21 L. J. Bankr. 64, 51 Eng. Ch. 211.

44. Ex p. Pickering, L. R. 4 Ch. 58, 38 L. J. Ch. 233, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 93, 17 Wkly. Rep. 302; Ex p. Cooper, L. R. 2 Ch. 578, 581, 36 L. J. Bankr. 28, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 580, 15 Wkly. Rep. 858 (per Lord Cairns, L. J.); Williams v. Harding, L. R. 1 H. L. 9, 12 Jur. N. S. 657, 35 L. J. Bankr. 25, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 139, 14 Wkly. Rep. 503; Ex p. Nicholas, 2 De G. M. & G. 271, 17 Jur. 6, 21 L. J. Bankr. 28, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 580, 15 Wkly. Rep. 858.

Whether discharge in bankruptcy releases the bankrupt from his liability as a shareholder see and compare Kelton v. Phillips, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 61; In re General Estates Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 274, 38 L. J. Ch. 233, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 93, 17 Wkly. Rep. 302; Martin's Patent Anchor Co. v. Morton, L. R. 3 Q. B. 306, 9 B. & S. 183, 37 L. J. Q. B. 98; Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 426.

45. National Commercial Bank v. McDonnell, 92 Ala. 387, 9 So. 149, Clopton, J., dissenting. But compare In re London, etc., Bank, 18 Ch. D. 581, 50 L. J. Ch. 557, 45 L. T. Rep. N. S. 166, 30 Wkly. Rep. 118.

Upon the point of what will amount to consent on the part of the wife or to a ratification of the act of the husband in placing the shares in her name see Keyser v. Hitz, 133 U. S. 138, 10 S. Ct. 290, 33 L. ed. 531.

46. Alabama.—Allen v. Montgomery R. Co., 11 Ala. 437.

Connecticut.— Middletown Bank v. Magill, 5 Conn. 28.

Missouri.— Miller v. Great Republic Ins. Co., 50 Mo. 55; McClaren v. Franciscus, 43 Mo. 452; Chouteau Spring Co. v. Harris, 20 Mo. 382.

New York.— Tucker v. Gilman, 121 N. Y. 189, 24 N. E. 302, 30 N. Y. St. 689; Billings v. Robinson, 94 N. Y. 415 [affirming 28 Hun 122]; Johnson v. Underhill, 52 N. Y. 203; Cole v. Ryan, 52 Barb. 168; Savage v. Putnam, 32 Barb. 420; Cowles v. Cromwell, 25 Barb. 413.

Pennsylvania.— Merrimac Min. Co. v. Levy, 54 Pa. St. 227, 93 Am. Dec. 697; West Philadelphia Canal Co. v. Innes, 3 Whart. 198; In re Glen Iron Works, 13 Phila. 479, 34 Leg. Int. 346.

Tennessee.— Jackson v. Sligo, etc., Co., 1 Lea 210.

Washington.— Stewart v. Walla Walla Printing, etc., Co., 1 Wash. 521, 20 Pac. 605.

United States.— Johnson v. Laflin, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,393, 5 Dill. 65 [affirmed in 103 U. S. 800, 26 L. ed. 532].

England.— Grissell v. Bristowe, L. R. 3 C. P. 112; Matter of Pennant, etc., Consol. Lead Min. Co., 5 De G. M. & G. 837, 1 Jur. N. S. 566, 24 L. J. Ch. 353, 3 Wkly. Rep. 95, 54 Eng. Ch. 656; Matter of Oundle Union Brewery Co., 1 De G. M. & G. 600, 50 Eng.

2. TRANSFERRER LIABLE FOR DEBTS CONTRACTED DURING MEMBERSHIP AND PRIOR TO TRANSFERRING SHARES. The transferrer of shares does not by transferring them absolve himself from liability for debts of the corporation contracted while he held them, and before he transferred them, which is no more than saying that a shareholder is liable for debts of the corporation contracted while he held that relation.[47]

3. TRANSFEREE SUCCEEDS TO RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF TRANSFERRER. The transferee succeeds, not only to the rights, but also to the liabilities, of the transferrer;[48] he is bound to pay the unpaid purchase-money of the shares as it shall be called for by the directors;[49] he is answerable in an action of assumpsit, or under the codes of procedure in an action of the like nature, for unpaid instalments due thereon, the calls for which are made since the transfer;[50] and in the event of the insolvency of the corporation he is liable to contribute to the payment of its debts in like manner as if he were an original subscriber,[51] subject to exceptions in particular instances where the original subscribers are notwithstanding liable by charters or general statutory provisions.[52] The ground most usually taken by the courts in support of this conclusion is that when the transferee is accepted by the corporation, and the shares are transferred to him on its books, he comes into privity with the corporation, and with its consent takes the place and assumes the liabilities of the transferrer, so that there is a species of novation.[53]

Ch. 463; Matter of Australia Royal Bank, 3 De G. & Sm. 262, 14 Jur. 966; Huddersfield Canal Co. v. Buckley, 7 T. R. 36.

Compare Williams v. Hanna, 40 Ind. 535; Bond v. Appleton, 8 Mass. 472, 5 Am. Dec. 111; Moss v. Oakley, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 265.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 960.

47. Young v. Wempe, 46 Fed. 354 (referring to the statutory liability of a shareholder in a national bank); Sumner v. Marcy, 23 Fed. Cas. No. 13,609, 3 Woodb. & M. 105.

48. Connecticut.— Hartford, etc., R. Co. v. Boorman, 12 Conn. 530.

Maryland.— Hall v. U. S. Insurance Co., 5 Gill 484; Bend v. Susquehanna Bridge, etc., Co., 6 Harr. & J. 128, 14 Am. Dec. 261.

Michigan.— Merrimac Min. Co. v. Bagley, 14 Mich. 501.

Missouri.— Shickle v. Watts, 94 Mo. 410, 7 S. W. 274.

New York.— Cowles v. Cromwell, 25 Barb. 413; Mann v. Currie, 2 Barb. 294.

Pennsylvania.— Citizens', etc., Sav. Bank, etc., Co. v. Gillespie, 115 Pa. St. 564, 9 Atl. 73; Bell's Appeal, 115 Pa. St. 88, 8 Atl. 177, 2 Am. St. Rep. 532; Merrimac Min. Co. v. Levy, 54 Pa. St. 227, 93 Am. Dec. 697; West Philadelphia Canal Co. v. Innes, 3 Whart. 198.

49. Hartford, etc., R. Co. v. Boorman, 12 Conn. 530; Huddersfield Canal Co. v. Buckley, 7 T. R. 36. That the purchaser takes the shares cum onere see Campbell v. American Zylonite Co., 55 N. Y. Super. Ct. 562, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 822.

50. Connecticut.— Hartford, etc., R. Co. v. Boorman, 12 Conn. 530.

Maryland.— Bend v. Susquehanna Bridge, etc., Co., 6 Harr. & J. 128, 14 Am. Dec. 261.

Michigan.— Merrimac Min. Co. v. Bagley, 14 Mich. 501.

United States— Webster v. Upton, 91 U. S. 65, 23 L. ed. 384.

England.— Huddersfield Canal Co. v. Bickley, 7 T. R. 36.

51. Mann v. Currie, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 294; Bell's Appeal, 115 Pa. St. 88, 8 Atl. 177, 2 Am. St. Rep. 532; Webster v. Upton, 91 U. S. 65, 23 L. ed. 384; De Pass's Case, 4 De G. & J. 544; Cape's Case, 2 De G. M. & G. 562.

52. Bell's Appeal, 115 Pa. St. 88, 8 Atl. 177, 2 Am. St. Rep. 532.

53. Allen v. Montgomery R. Co., 11 Ala. 437, 451; Palmer v. Lawrence, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 161; Webster v. Upton, 91 U. S. 65, 23 L. ed. 384 (where the doctrine is clearly stated by Strong, J.). See also Cowles v. Cromwell, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 413; Stewart v. Walla Walla Printing, etc., Co., 1 Wash. 521, 20 Pac. 605; Upton v. Hansbrough, 28 Fed. Cas. No. 16,801, 3 Biss. 417. So it has been held that if the unpaid portion of the subscription has been secured by a mortgage, and the president and directors accept a new mortgage from the transferee, this releases the transferrer. Haynes v. Palmer, 13 La. Ann. 240. As hereafter stated (see infra, VIII, N, 5), there is an exceptional rule in Pennsylvania, but that court has applied the general rule of the above text in construing a Michigan statute (Merrimac Min. Co. v. Levy, 54 Pa. St. 227, 93 Am. Dec. 697 [distinguishing Palmer v. Ridge Min. Co., 34 Pa. St. 288, Delaware, etc., Canal Nav. v. Sansom, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 70]). In Franks Oil Co. v. McCleary, 63 Pa. St. 317, 319, it is remarked that Merrimac Min. Co. v. Levy, 54 Pa. St. 227, 93 Am. Dec. 697, was decided on a Michigan charter, and that the court considered itself bound by the decisions of the supreme court of that state. That is true; but the case nevertheless is sound in all its expositions of law.

4. Exception in Favor of Bona Fide Purchasers of Shares Which Purport to Be Paid Up. As already seen[54] an exception to the foregoing rules exists in favor of bona fide purchasers of shares which are issued by the company as having been fully paid. A transferee of shares which purport on their face to be paid up, who takes them for value in the ordinary course of business, without notice of the fact that they are subject to future calls, is not liable for any unpaid balance which may in fact be due upon them.[55]

5. Exceptional Charters and Statutes Under Which Shareholder Continues Liable, Even After He Has Transferred Shares. Many statutes and charters create an exception to the rule of the preceding text and make the shareholder liable for the debts of the corporation which were created while he was a shareholder, even after he has transferred his shares.[56] And in general if the constitution of the company provides that transferrers shall continue liable for obligations of the company accruing prior to their transfer, they continue liable accordingly, until the statute of limitations has run in their favor.[57]

6. Right of Shareholder to Divest His Liability by Transferring His Shares — a. In General. The general rule, subject to qualifications growing out of the peculiar nature of the property, and others founded on the governing statute or constitution of the company, is that a shareholder may freely transfer his shares to any other person capable of making or taking a contract, thus introducing the latter as a member of the corporation in his stead.[58]

54. See supra, VI, M, 3, a et seq.

55. Wintringham v. Rosenthal, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 580; West Nashville Planing-Mill Co. v. Nashville Sav. Bank, 86 Tenn. 252, 6 S. W. 340, 6 Am. St. Rep. 835; Johnson v. Laflin, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,393, 5 Dill. 65. Compare Ross v. Kelly, 36 Minn. 38, 29 N. W. 591, 31 N. W. 219.

56. Georgia.— Mason v. Force, 30 Ga. 99.

Illinois.— Hull v. Burtis, 90 Ill. 213, statute of double liability charging shareholders for debts of the corporation contracted during their membership and for three months after they had ceased to be shareholders.

Louisiana.— Vicksburg, etc., R. Co. v. McKeen, 14 La. Ann. 724, exempted from liability to the company only those who have transferred their share of stock after the payment of fifty per cent on each share.

New York.— Worrall v. Judson, 5 Barb. 210.

Pennsylvania.— Cass v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 80 Pa. St. 31; Hays v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 38 Pa. St. 81; Graff v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 31 Pa. St. 489; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Clarke, 29 Pa. St. 146, all of which were decided under a statute providing that no transfer should have the effect of discharging the liabilities incurred by the owners of shares.

57. In re Portsmouth Banking Co., L. R. 2 Eq. 167, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 47, 14 Wkly. Rep. 417.

Exceptional statutory rule in Ohio under which shareholders remain liable for debts contracted while they were shareholders, their transferees being liable also, but with the right to claim indemnity from their transferrers. Mason v. Alexander, 44 Ohio St. 318, 7 N. E. 435; Bonewitz v. Van Wert County Bank, 41 Ohio St. 78; Brown v. Hitchcock, 36 Ohio St. 667. In a subsequent case the following decision was formulated in the official syllabus: "A stockholder who has, in good faith, sold and assigned his stock to one who becomes insolvent, is liable to creditors of the corporation, for such portion only of the debts existing while he held the stock, and remaining due, (not in excess of the amount of stock assigned) as will be equal to the proportion which the capital stock assigned by him bears to the entire capital stock held by solvent stockholders, liable in respect of the same debts, who are within the jurisdiction, to be ascertained at the time judgment is rendered." Harpold v. Stobart, 46 Ohio St. 397, 406, 21 N. E. 637, 15 Am. St. Rep. 618.

Exceptional statutory rule in Virginia, under which both the transferrer and the transferee are liable, whether the instalments accrue before or after the assignment. Brinkley v. Hambleton, 67 Md. 169, 8 Atl. 904 (implied obligation of assignee to indemnify assignor extends only to calls made while the assignee holds the shares); McKim v. Glenn, 66 Md. 479, 8 Atl. 130 (broker purchasing and immediately assigning becomes so liable); Hamilton v. Glenn, 85 Va. 901, 9 S. E. 129; Hawkins v. Glenn, 131 U. S. 319, 9 S. Ct. 739, 33 L. ed. 184; Glenn v. Priest, 48 Fed. 19; Glenn v. Foote, 36 Fed. 824 (liability of assignor not a joint liability with assignee, and a release of one does not release the other).

Exception in case of a statutory liability for wages due to laborers see Jackson v. Meek, 87 Tenn. 69, 9 S. W. 225, 10 Am. St. Rep. 620.

58. Alabama.— Planters', etc., Bank v. Leavens, 4 Ala. 573.

Massachusetts.— Hutchins v. State Bank, 12 Metc. 421; Waltham Bank v. Waltham, 10 Metc. 334.

Missouri.— Bent v. Hart, 10 Mo. App. 143.

New York.— Rochester, etc., Land Co. v. Raymond, 158 N. Y. 576, 53 N. E. 507, 47

b. Right to Transfer Subject to Any Valid Lien of Corporation on Shares — (I) In General. The right of a shareholder to transfer his shares is subject to the right of the corporation to restrain such transfer, where the corporation holds a valid lien upon the shares, arising under the provisions of the charter, the governing statute, or the by-laws, assuming their validity.[59] Liens of this kind generally exist where the shareholder is indebted to the corporation.[60] But the law gives no such implied lien, but it must be expressly created by some governing instrument.[61]

(II) Statutes and Charters Creating Such Lien. And such a lien may of course be created by a provision in the charter[62] of the corporation, or in a general statute governing it. Such a lien for a general balance is created by a charter provision that no shareholder indebted to the corporation shall be permitted to make any transfer of his stock or receive any dividend until such debt is paid or secured.[63] Statutes which provide that no transfer of bank-stock shall be valid or effectual until it is registered in a book of the bank to be kept for that purpose, and that debts of the vendor due to the bank shall be first paid, are intended merely for the protection of the corporation, to give them such a lien and enable them to know to whom dividends are due.[64]

(III) Lien Created by Articles of Incorporation. Unless the governing statute expressly or impliedly prohibits the creation of such a lien and grants a free right of alienation, such a lien may be created by a reservation in the articles of incorporation.[65]

(IV) Effect and Extent of Such Lien — (A) In General. Such a lien has been held paramount to that acquired by the levy of an execution upon shares

L. R. A. 246, 248 [affirming 4 N. Y. App. Div. 600, 39 N. Y. Suppl. 145, in the absence of special provisions to the contrary either in the statutes or in the by-laws of the company]; Attica Bank v. Manufacturers', etc., Bank, 20 N. Y. 501; Nash v. Hall, 11 Misc. 468, 32 N. Y. Suppl. 701, 66 N. Y. St. 9 (shareholder will not be enjoined from disposing of his shares in any manner he may see fit); Denton v. Livingston, 9 Johns. 96, 6 Am. Dec. 264.

North Carolina.— Heart v. State Bank, 17 N. C. 111.

Ohio.— Johns v. Johns, 1 Ohio St. 350; State v. Franklin Bank, 10 Ohio 91.

Pennsylvania.— Slaymaker v. Gettysburg Bank, 10 Pa. St. 373; Gilpin v. Howell, 5 Pa. St. 41, 45 Am. Dec. 720.

Rhode Island.— Arnold v. Ruggles, 1 R. I. 165.

Tennessee.—Brightwell v. Mallory, 10 Yerg. 196; Union Bank v. State, 9 Yerg. 490.

Vermont.— Isham v. Bennington Iron Co., 19 Vt. 230; Wheelock v. Moulton, 15 Vt. 519.

For an illustrative case turning upon the question of this right see Bent v. Hart, 10 Mo. App. 143.

59. In re Coalport China Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 404, 64 L. J. Ch. 710, 73 L. T. Rep. N. S. 46, 2 Manson 532, 12 Reports 462, 44 Wkly. Rep. 38, holding that directors have power to refuse a transfer without giving any reason therefor — decision arising under a particular constating instrument.

60. Gibbs v. Long Island Bank, 83 Hun (N. Y.) 92, 31 N. Y. Suppl. 406, 63 N. Y. St. 854.

61. Farmers', etc., Bank v. Wasson, 48 Iowa 336, 30 Am. Rep. 398; Heart v. State Bank, 17 N. C. 111. Contra, Downer v. Zanesville Bank, Wright (Ohio) 477. That there is no such lien at common law see People v. Crockett, 9 Cal. 112; Driscoll v. West Bradley, etc., Mfg. Co., 59 N. Y. 96.

What knowledge of a transfer of shares in pledge will dispense with the statutory notice of such transfer in order to make it valid as against the lien of the company on the shares for subsequent liabilities of the president growing out of his embezzlements. Hotchkiss, etc., Co. v. Union Nat. Bank, 68 Fed. 76, 15 C. C. A. 264.

Circumstances where lien not enforceable. — Circumstances under which a corporation which issues shares in consideration of a transfer of the property of another corporation cannot enforce a lien upon such shares for a debt of such other corporation. Lanier Lumber Co. v. Rees, 103 Ala. 622, 16 So. 637, 49 Am. St. Rep. 57.

Actual notice to a corporation of an assignment of its stock is equivalent to statutory notice, for the purpose of preventing a lien on the stock for subsequent liabilities of the transferrer. Hotchkiss, etc., Co. v. Union Nat. Bank, 68 Fed. 76, 15 C. C. A. 264.

62. German Security Bank v. Jefferson, 10 Bush (Ky.) 326; Brent v. Bank of Washington, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 596, 9 L. ed. 547.

63. Kenton Ins. Co. v. Bowman, 84 Ky. 430, 1 S. W. 717.

64. Utica Bank v. Smalley, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 770, 14 Am. Dec. 526.

65. Leggett v. Sing Sing Bank, 24 N. Y. 283; Arnold v. Suffolk Bank, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 424.

by a judgment creditor of the shareholder, although the indebtedness of the shareholder to the corporation was evidenced by notes which had been renewed and which were not due at the time of the levy.[66] Such a lien is in the nature of a right of retainer, and extends to all the shares of the shareholder so long as he remains indebted to the corporation, although the debt be less than the value of the shares, the corporation not being obliged to appropriate a part and transfer the rest.[67] The assignee of the shares may tender to the corporation what is due, and then have an action against it for refusing to transfer.[68] But where the transferee gives the corporation no notice of the transfer, the lien extends to advances subsequently made by the corporation to the transferrer.[69] And this is so where the secretary of the corporation has actual knowledge of the transfer, provided he acquires that knowledge in a transaction in his private capacity, so that he is not interested in disclosing it to the corporation.[70]

(B) Effect Upon Rights of Indorsers and Sureties. In the case of a banking corporation which has discounted the notes of one of its shareholders, with the indorsement of a third person thereon, it operates in favor of the indorser, in the sense that he is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the bank.[71] Hence if the bank permits the shares to be sold, and the proceeds to be applied to discharge a debt due to the bank by the same debtor on a note of a subsequent date, the surety in the previous case will be thereby discharged.[72]

(V) Waiver of Lien by Corporation. Although this lien may have been created by express statute, yet it may be waived by the corporation through its proper officers, expressly or by a reasonable implication.[73] This is done where the corporation issues a certificate of shares which recites without qualification that the shares are transferable.[74] It is done where the corporation allows the transfer to be registered on its books; and if the shares are not fully paid up, and a call is subsequently made, the transferee cannot set up the defense to the payment of the same that the corporation had such a lien.[75] Such a lien is in the nature of an option on the part of the corporation to refuse to make a transfer, and is not perfected until the option is declared.[76]

c. Corporation Has No Power to Restrain Alienation of Its Shares. In the absence of a valid lien upon its shares under the conditions stated in the preceding paragraph, it follows that a corporation cannot restrain one of its members from transferring his shares, unless the legislature has given it power so to do, or unless the members themselves have clothed it with such power in the by-laws or other governing instrument; but such a transfer is good as between the parties, and the company cannot rightfully refuse to register it upon its books.[77] An attempt to restrain such a transfer is void as being in restraint of trade.[78] The

66. Sewall v. Lancaster Bank, 17 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 285.

67. Sewall v. Lancaster Bank, 17 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 285.

68. Pierson v. Washington Bank, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 11,155, 3 Cranch C. C. 363. Compare Conant v. Reed, 1 Ohio St. 298.

69. Jennings v. California Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233.

70. See for a good illustration Platt v. Birmingham Axle Co., 41 Conn. 255.

Circumstances under which a bank which had discounted the note of its shareholder had a right to assert its lien when the shareholder attempted to make a transfer of his shares on the last day of grace. Klopp v. Lebanon Bank, 46 Pa. St. 88.

71. Klopp v. Lebanon Bank, 46 Pa. St. 88.

72. Kuhns v. Westmoreland Bank, 2 Watts (Pa.) 136.

73. Cecil Nat. Bank v. Watsontown Bank, 105 U. S. 217, 26 L. ed. 1039.

74. Fitzhugh v. Shepherdsville Bank, 3 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 126, 16 Am. Dec. 90.

75. Hall v. U. S. Insurance Co., 5 Gill (Md.) 484.

76. Perrine v. Fireman's Ins. Co., 22 Ala. 575.

What evidence of the cashier of a bank was not sufficient to show that a loan to a shareholder had been made upon his personal credit alone, so as to waive the lien of the bank upon his shares. Jennings v. California Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233.

77. People v. Crockett, 9 Cal. 112.

78. Moore v. Bank of Commerce, 52 Mo. 377.

power to regulate transfer of shares conferred by the by-laws does not enable the corporation to restrain such transfers entirely, even to an insolvent.[79]

d. Validity of By-Law Attempting to Restrain Such Transfers. By-laws attempting to restrain or to impede the members in transferring their shares are therefore void, except so far as they are necessary to conserve the rights of the corporation.[80]

e. Restraining Transfers of Shares When Shareholder Is Indebted to Corporation — (I) In General. Every corporation possesses the power, within the limits prescribed by its charter and by the general law, to make regulations prohibiting the transfer of its shares by members who stand indebted to the corporation.[81]

(II) By-Laws Valid Which Prohibit Transfer of Shares While Transferrer Is Indebted to Corporation. Such by-laws are therefore in general valid;[82] but no absolute rule on this subject can be stated, which may not be influenced by the language of particular statutes or charters.[83]

(III) Such By-Laws Not Retroactive. On a principle already considered,[84] such a by-law cannot be made so as to operate to invalidate a transfer of shares made before its passage.[85]

79. Chonteau Spring Co. v. Harris, 20 Mo. 382; Driscoll v. West, etc., Mfg. Co., 36 N. Y. Super. Ct. 488. See also In re Smith, L. R. 4 Ch. 20.

80. Moore v. Bank of Commerce, 52 Mo. 377; In re Klaus, 67 Wis. 401, 29 N. W. 582. See also as to national banks Farmers', etc., Bank v. Wasson, 48 Iowa 336, 30 Am. Rep. 398; Feckheimer v. National Exch. Bank, 79 Va. 80.

Attempted distinction between a restraint upon the alienation of shares imposed by a by-law, and by the charter or governing statute of the corporation, with the conclusion that where the restraint is imposed by a by-law merely this is to be allowed to operate no further than is necessary to protect the rights of the corporation, leaving the transfer good as between the transferrer and the transferee; but that where it is prohibited by the charter or governing statute that prohibition renders the transfer void even as between the parties to it. O'Brien v. Cummings, 13 Mo. App. 197, 198.

How as to national banks.— That a national banking association can make a by-law restraining the transfer of its shares without the assent of the directors so long as the shareholder is indebted to the bank see Young v. Vough, 23 N. J. Eq. 325; Lockwood v. Mechanics' Nat. Bank, 9 R. I. 308, 11 Am. Rep. 253. That such a by-law is void as being in contravention of the statute which prohibits such banks from making loans on the security of their own shares see Feckheimer v. National Exch. Bank, 79 Va. 80.

81. Kahn v. St. Joseph Bank, 70 Mo. 262; Mechanics' Bank v. Merchants' Bank, 45 Mo. 513, 100 Am. Dec. 388; St. Louis Perpetual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149.

82. People v. Crockett, 9 Cal. 112 [as explained in Pendergast v. Stockton Bank, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 10,918, 2 Sawy. 108, 116]; Weston v. Bear River, etc., Min. Co., 5 Cal. 186, 63 Am. Dec. 117; Vansands v. Middlesex County Bank, 26 Conn. 144; McDowell v. Wilmington, etc., Bank, 1 Harr. (Del.) 27; Leggett v. Sing Sing Bank, 24 N. Y. 283. But the contrary view was taken in Attica Bank v. Manufacturers', etc., Bank, 20 N. Y. 501.

83. Child v. Hudson's Bay Co., 2 P. Wms. 207, holding that a by-law is good which provides that when any member becomes indebted to the company his stock shall be liable for the debt. In Morgan v. Bank of North America, 8 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 73, 89, 11 Am. Dec. 575, the court speak of the doctrine of this case as the recognized law. Other charter and statute provisions which have been held broad enough to authorize such by-laws may be discovered in the following cases: Cunningham v. Alabama L. Ins., etc., Co., 4 Ala. 652; St. Louis Perpetual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149.

Interpretation of such by-laws, charters, etc.— "Indebted" as including surety or indorser. St. Louis Perpetual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149, 154; Grant v. Mechanics' Bank, 15 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 140. See also Sewall v. Lancaster Bank, 17 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 285, construing a similar word in a statute. "All debts due." Leggett v. Sing Sing Bank, 24 N. Y. 283. That the word "indebted," standing alone, is not large enough to embrace an uncalled balance due by the shareholder upon his shares. Kahn v. St. Joseph Bank, 70 Mo. 262 [distinguishing Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Clarke, 29 Pa. St. 146]. The word "indebtedness" in such a statute provision includes general indebtedness, and is not confined to indebtedness in respect to shares. Rogers v. Huntingdon Bank, 12 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 77. The word "indebted" in such a statute includes a note discounted, but not due. Sewall v. Lancaster Bank, 17 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 285; Grant v. Mechanics' Bank, 15 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 140.

Such a lien is paramount even to claim of the United States. Brent v. Washington Bank, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 596, 9 L. ed. 547.

84. See supra, V, C, 8.

85. People v. Crockett, 9 Cal. 112.

(iv) When Purchaser of Shares Chargeable With Notice of Such By-Law. A purchaser of shares of an incorporated bank takes an equitable assignment, subject to the rights of the bank under its charter, of which the assignee is bound to take notice.[86] A purchaser of shares who takes with express notice of such an encumbrance, although in the form of a by-law (assuming the same to be valid), takes subject to the rights of the corporation thereunder.[87]

(v) Usage That Shares Are Not Transferable Where Holder Is Indebted to Company. Such a usage is valid as against a voluntary assignment,[88] and also where the certificate recites that the corporation has a lien on the shares for any indebtedness due by the shareholder to it.[89] But if a lien has been created in some other lawful mode, the fact that there was no usage from which such a lien on the shares in favor of the corporation could arise is no defense to its enforcement, where it does not appear that there was any usage against it.[90]

f. When Transfers of Shares Require Approval of Directors. Under the constitutions of English companies, which are mere private instruments, although drawn under the authorization of statutes, the transfers of shares in order to be valid require the approval of the directors;[91] but the reader is cautioned that these decisions are of little value under American law.

g. Power to Impose Restraint Upon Alienation of Shares by Recitals in Share Certificate. It has been doubtfully held that where a banking corporation issues such a certificate to an original taker of its shares, reciting thereon that no transfer will be made until all indebtedness to the bank by the person in whose name the shares stand on its books shall have been paid, he assents to that condition, and that one who purchases from him his shares evidenced by such a certificate also assents to it; so that if the bank refuses a transfer because the transferrer is indebted to it, the transferee cannot maintain an action against it for damages, and this although there was no by-law or custom of the bank restraining such a transfer.[92]

7. Fraudulent Transfers to Escape Liability — a. In General. The right of a shareholder to transfer his shares is subject to this limitation: That a fraudulent transfer, made with a view to avoid his liability to the company or to its creditors, is void and leaves him still liable;[93] and he will be chargeable as a

86. Farmers' Bank v. Iglehart, 6 Gill (Md.) 50.

87. State Sav. Assoc. v. Nixon-Jones Printing Co., 25 Mo. App. 642.

88. Morgan v. Bank of North America, 8 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 73, 11 Am. Dec. 575.

89. Vansands v. Middlesex County Bank, 26 Conn. 144.

90. Jennings v. California Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233.

91. In re Overend, L. R. 2 Eq. 554, 35 L. J. Ch. 826, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 32, 14 Wkly. Rep. 1008; Robinson v. Chartered Bank, L. R. 1 Eq. 32 (holding that the directors must not exercise this power unreasonably, and that they will be controlled in this respect by a court of equity). Effect of procuring the consent of the directors by fraud see Williams' Case, L. R. 9 Eq. 225 note; In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 9 Eq. 223; In re Coalport China Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 404, 64 L. J. Ch. 710, 73 L. T. Rep. N. S. 46, 2 Manson 532, 44 Wkly. Rep. 532.

Where the directors make no inquiry the transfer is void. In re Smith, L. R. 4 Ch. 20; Williams' Case, L. R. 9 Eq. 225 note; In re Humber Ironworks, etc., Co., 1 Ch. D. 576, 45 L. J. Ch. 48.

Where the directors possess full knowledge and accept an insolvent transferee this ends liability of the transferrer. In re Wheal Unity Wood Min. Co., 15 Ch. D. 13, 42 L. T. Rep. N. S. 636, 28 Wkly. Rep. 897.

That the transferee is described as "gentleman" when he is not entitled to be so called will not invalidate the transfer. In re Financial Ins. Co., L. R. 7 Ch. 296, note 3; In re European Bank, L. R. 7 Ch. 292, 41 L. J. Ch. 501, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 269, 20 Wkly. Rep. 499.

92. Jennings v. State Bank, 79 Cal. 323, 21 Pac. 852, 12 Am. St. Rep. 145, 5 L. R. A. 233.

93. Alabama.— Central Agricultural, etc., Assoc. v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 70 Ala. 120.

California.— Welch v. Sargent, 127 Cal. 72, 50 Pac. 319; National Carriage Mfg. Co. v. Story, etc., Commercial Co., 111 Cal. 531, 44 Pac. 157.

Connecticut.— Buck v. Ross, 68 Conn. 29, 35 Atl. 763, 57 Am. St. Rep. 60 (transfer of the shares to the corporation in exchange for good securities void); Paine v. Stewart, 33 Conn. 516.

Illinois.— Tuttle v. National Bank of Republic, 48 Ill. App. 481.

shareholder in a suit in equity by a receiver of the corporation,[94] in any other appropriate proceeding.[95]

b. English Distinction Between Real and Sham Transfers — (i) In General. After much consideration of this subject, the English courts have settled upon Kentucky.— Roman v. Fry, 5 J. J. Marsh. 634.

Louisiana.— Mandion v. Fireman's Ins. Co., 11 Rob. 177.

Massachusetts.— Marcy v. Clark, 17 Mass. 330.

Missouri.— Provident Sav. Inst. v. Jackson Place Skating, etc., Rink, 52 Mo. 557; Miller v. Great Republic Ins. Co., 50 Mo. 55; McClaren v. Franciscus, 43 Mo. 452.

New York.— Rochester, etc., Land Co. v. Raymond, 158 N. Y. 576, 53 N. E. 507, 47 L. R. A. 246 [affirming 4 N. Y. App. Div. 600, 39 N. Y. Suppl. 145]; In re Reciprocity Bank, 22 N. Y. 9; Sinclair v. Dwight, 9 N. Y. App. Div. 297, 41 N. Y. Suppl. 193, 75 N. Y. St. 641 (under New York Stock Corporation Law); Olney v. Baird, 7 N. Y. App. Div. 95, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 202, 74 N. Y. St. 765; Veiller v. Brown, 18 Hun 571; Christensen v. Quintard, 5 Silv. Supreme 226, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 400, 29 N. Y. St. 61; Nathan v. Whitlock, 9 Paige 152 [affirming 3 Edw. 215].

Ohio.— Wick Nat. Bank v. Union Nat. Bank, 62 Ohio St. 446, 57 N. E. 320, 78 Am. St. Rep. 734; Ford v. Lamson, 17 Ohio Cir. Ct. 539, 9 Ohio Cir. Dec. 374 (subscribers not released by a sale of their shares as fully paid to an insolvent); Wehrman v. Reakirt, 1 Cinc. Super. Ct. 230. In this state the following inexplicable decision has been made: An owner of stock in a corporation for profit, created under the laws of Ohio, may, in the absence of a by-law to the contrary, dispose of the same by sale or gift at his pleasure; and if the same is made in good faith and the shares sold or donated are transferred on the books of the corporation, the transferrer does not continue liable to assessment for the payment of future corporate debts, although at the time of the transfer both the corporation and the transferee are insolvent, and the transfer is made for the sole purpose of escaping liability for future debts. Peter v. Union Mfg. Co., 56 Ohio St. 181, 46 N. E. 894.

Pennsylvania.— Aultman's Appeal, 98 Pa. St. 505.

Texas.— In this state a shareholder who transfers his stock in good faith, with no intention to defraud, while the corporation is solvent, and has the transfer entered upon the books of the corporation, is not ordinarily liable either to the corporation or to its creditors for unpaid subscriptions on the stock. Cole v. Adams, 19 Tex. Civ. App. 507, 49 S. W. 1052.

Vermont.— Shrewsbury v. Brown, 25 Vt. 197.

United States.— Ward v. Joslin, 100 Fed. 676 (without consideration, in view of the anticipated insolvency of the corporation, and at a time when it was in fact insolvent, although still a going concern); Sykes v. Holloway, 81 Fed. 432; Foster v. Lincoln, 79 Fed. 170, 24 C. C. A. 470 (shareholder in national bank); Cox v. Montague, 78 Fed. 845, 24 C. C. A. 364 (transfer to an irresponsible person, although he still hopes that the corporation will pull through); Stuart v. Hayden, 72 Fed. 402, 18 C. C. A. 618; Re Bachman, 2 Fed. Cas. No. 707; Bowden v. Santos, 3 Fed. Cas. No. 1,716, 1 Hughes 158.

England.— In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 459 note; In re China Steamship, etc., Coal Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 458, 16 Wkly. Rep. 1002; Castellan v. Hobson, L. R. 10 Eq. 47, 39 L. J. Ch. 490, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 575, 18 Wkly. Rep. 731; Williams' Case, L. R. 9 Eq. 225 note; In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 9 Eq. 223; Eyre's Case, 31 Beav. 177; In re Mexican, etc., Min. Co., 27 Beav. 465, 5 Jur. N. S. 400, 28 L. J. Ch. 628, 7 Wkly. Rep. 333; Munt's Case, 22 Beav. 55; Daniell's Case, 22 Beav. 43; In re Cameron's Coalbrook, etc., R. Co., 18 Beav. 339; Matter of Ireland's Electric Tel. Co., 3 De G. F. & J. 297, 64 Eng. Ch. 234; Matter of Mexican, etc., Co., 2 De G. F. & J. 302, 6 Jur. N. S. 1270, 30 L. J. Ch. 113, 3 L. T. Rep. N. S. 421, 9 Wkly. Rep. 6, 63 Eng. Ch. 234; Matter of Companies' Act, 4 De G. J. & S. 53, 9 Jur. N. S. 1184, 33 L. J. Ch. 145, 9 L. T. Rep. N. S. 493, 3 New Rep. 97, 12 Wkly. Rep. 92, 69 Eng. Ch. 41; Chinnock's Case, Johns. 714, 8 Wkly. Rep. 255. Compare Maynard v. Eaton, L. R. 9 Ch. 414, 43 L. J. Ch. 641, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 241, 22 Wkly. Rep. 457; In re Financial Ins. Co., L. R. 7 Ch. 296, note 3; In re Smith, L. R. 7 Ch. 296, note 1; In re European Bank, L. R. 7 Ch. 292, 41 L. J. Ch. 501, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 269, 20 Wkly. Rep. 499; In re Hindustan, etc., Bank, L. R. 6 Ch. 286, 40 L. J. Ch. 333, 24 L. T. Rep. N. S. 691, 19 Wkly. Rep. 572; In re Great Wheal Busy Min. Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 196, 40 L. J. Ch. 361, 24 L. T. Rep. N. S. 599, 19 Wkly. Rep. 549; In re Norwegian Charcoal Iron Co., L. R. 9 Eq. 363, 39 L. J. Ch. 199, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 811, 18 Wkly. Rep. 331; Re Haford Lead Min. Co., 35 Beav. 391, 12 Jur. N. S. 242, 35 L. J. Ch. 304, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 95, 14 Wkly. Rep. 446; Matter of London, etc., Assur. Co., 2 De G. & J. 638, 59 Eng. Ch. 501.

94. Lesassier v. Kennedy, 36 La. Ann. 539; Bowden v. Johnson, 107 U. S. 251, 2 S. Ct. 246, 27 L. ed. 386; Davis v. Stevens, 7 Fed. Cas. No. 3,653, 17 Blatchf. 259.

95. Rider v. Fritchey, 49 Ohio St. 285, 30 N. E. 692, 15 L. R. A. 513. But in Kansas it seems that the question of the shareholder's liability cannot be tried in the summary proceeding consequent upon issuing an execution under a suit against the shareholder after an execution and return of nulla bona on a judgment against the corporation. Parkinson Sugar Co. v. Topeka Sugar Co., 8 Kan. App. 79, 54 Pac. 331.

the rule that a man may transfer his shares to a man of straw, at a time when the company is in a failing condition, for the sole purpose of escaping liability, and for a nominal consideration merely or as a mere gift; and that if the transfer is out and out, is not merely colorable — a sham — the transferee remaining a trustee for the transferrer, the device will be successful, the transferrer will escape liability as a contributory, and honest shareholders and creditors will suffer accordingly.[96] But if the transaction is merely colorable, if in fact the transferee is a mere nominee of the transferrer, so that as between themselves there has been no real transfer, but in the event of the company becoming prosperous the transferrer would participate in the profits, the transfer will be held for naught, and the transferrer will be put upon the list of contributories.[97]

(II) English Doctrine That Power to Transfer Ceases After Commencement of Winding-Up Proceedings. This doctrine, arising under the interpretation of a statute, is useful in America only by way of a remote analogy, as disclosed by the cases cited in the margin.[98] It has been held in this country that a transfer by a shareholder is as good after the insolvency of the corporation as before, and that it imposes on the transferee the liability of a shareholder in like manner as though made before.[99] After a national bank has become insolvent and closed its doors for business, the liability of its shareholders to its creditors becomes so fixed that any transfer of shares thereafter made must be held inoperative and void as against its creditors;[1] and this would simply be the rule applicable to other corporations.

c. American Doctrine That Transfers to Insolvent or Incapable Persons to Escape Liability Are Void, Although Out and Out — (I) In General. According to the American doctrine a transfer of shares in a failing corporation, made by the transferrer with the purpose of escaping his liability as a shareholder to a person who from any cause[2] is incapable of responding in respect of such liability

96. In re Financial Ins. Co., L. R. 7 Ch. 296, note 3; In re Smith, L. R. 7 Ch. 296, note 1; In re European Bank, L. R. 7 Ch. 292, 41 L. J. Ch. 501, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 269, 20 Wkly. Rep. 499; In re Hindustan, etc., Bank, L. R. 6 Ch. 286, 40 L. J. Ch. 333, 24 L. T. Rep. N. S. 691, 19 Wkly. Rep. 572; In re Great Wheal Busy Min. Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 196, 40 L. J. Ch. 361, 24 L. T. Rep. N. S. 599, 19 Wkly. Rep. 549; In re Smith, L. R. 4 Ch. 20; Re Hafod Lead Min. Co., 35 Beav. 391, 12 Jur. N. S. 242, 35 L. J. Ch. 304, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 95, 14 Wkly. Rep. 446; In re Taurine Co., 25 Ch. D. 118, 53 L. J. Ch. 271, 49 L. T. Rep. N. S. 514, 32 Wkly. Rep. 129; In re Humber Ironworks, etc., Co., 1 Ch. D. 576, 45 L. J. Ch. 48; Matter of Mexican, etc., Co., 4 De G. & J. 544, 5 Jur. N. S. 1191, 28 L. J. Ch. 769, 7 Wkly. Rep. 681, 61 Eng. Ch. 430; Matter of London, etc., Assur. Co., 2 De G. & J. 638, 59 Eng. Ch. 501; In re Phœnix L. Ins. Co., 8 Jur. N. S. 380, 31 L. J. Ch. 340, 6 L. T. Rep. N. S. 123, 10 Wkly. Rep. 313; In re Home Counties L. Assur. Co., 6 L. T. Rep. N. S. 374, 10 Wkly. Rep. 457. English cases, where the transfer was held good because out and out, are referred to in detail in Thompson Stockh. § 213. English cases, where the transfer was held void because a sham, are set out in detail in Thompson Stockh. § 214.

97. Re National Provincial Mar. Ins. Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 559, 18 Wkly. Rep. 938; In re Hindustan, etc., Bank, L. R. 5 Ch. 95, 39 L. J. Ch. 193, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 688, 18 Wkly. Rep. 197; In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 9 Eq. 223; Matter of Ireland Electric Tel. Co., 3 De G. F. & J. 297, 64 Eng. Ch. 234; Matter of Mexican, etc., Co., 2 De G. F. & J. 302, 6 Jur. N. S. 1270, 30 L. J. Ch. 113, 3 L. T. Rep. N. S. 421, 9 Wkly. Rep. 6, 63 Eng. Ch. 234; Matter of Mexican, etc., Co., 1 De G. F. & J. 75, 6 Jur. N. S. 181, 29 L. J. Ch. 243, 1 L. T. Rep. N. S. 115, 8 Wkly. Rep. 52, 62 Eng. Ch. 58; Chinnock's Case, Johns. 714, 8 Wkly. Rep. 255. Rule not displaced by the fact that the constitution of the company declares that trustees shall not be recognized, etc. Chinnock's Case, Johns. 714, 8 Wkly. Rep. 255.

98. In re Accidental Death Ins. Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 905 note; In re Accidental Death, etc., Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 902, 25 L. T. Rep. N. S. 438, 20 Wkly. Rep. 9 (Sir G. Mellish, L. J., dissenting); In re Accidental Death Ins. Co., L. R. 16 Eq. 449, 43 L. J. Ch. 116, 21 Wkly. Rep. 900 (before Lord Selborne, L. C.); In re Consols Ins. Assoc., L. R. 10 Eq. 479, 40 L. J. Ch. 35.

99. Robison v. Beall, 26 Ga. 17. Compare Morgan v. Brower, 77 Ga. 627; Lesassier v. Kennedy, 36 La. Ann. 539.

1. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 17 Fed. 308.

2. Transfers to persons who are non sui juris are separately considered in a succeeding subdivision. See infra, VIII, N, 8, a et seq.

is void as to creditors of the company and as to other shareholders, although as between the transferrer and the transferee the transfer may have been out and out.[3] The trust fund for creditors, of which the unpaid subscriptions consist, cannot thus be frittered away and dissipated, even with the consent of the directors, since the giving of such consent would be a breach of trust on their part.[4]

(II) Stress Laid by American Judges on Question of Intent—(A) In General. It will be observed, upon a reading of the American cases, that they lay the principal stress on the question of an intent on the part of the transferrer to escape liability.[5]

(B) How Fraudulent Intent Proved. This fraudulent intent is generally incapable of direct proof, but must be inferred from varying circumstances, as that the corporation or the transferee, or both, were at the time notoriously insolvent;[6] but that the shareholder knew of the insolvency of the corporation at the time of the transfer.[7]

(C) When Question of Intent Material. Where by the law of the corporation,[8] whether founded in an express statute or in a valid by-law, or, as in Pennsylvania, in judicial construction,[9] the original subscriber remains liable, notwithstanding he may have transferred his shares to another, and the transferee assumes no liability to the company for subsequent calls,[10] the question of the motive of the transferrer of course becomes immaterial; and the rule would necessarily be the same in Ohio[11] and in Virginia,[12] where the transferrer remains liable and the transferee also becomes so.[13]

d. Transfers Made With Consent of Directors, but Beyond Their Power. By the English doctrine transfers made to a nominee of the directors, in pursuance of arrangements between discontented members and the directors, whereby the former are permitted to retire from the company, have been treated

3. Marcy v. Clark, 17 Mass. 330; Provident Sav. Inst. v. Jackson Place Skating, etc., Rink, 52 Mo. 557; Miller v. Great Republic Ins. Co., 50 Mo. 55; McClaren v. Franciscus, 43 Mo. 452; Nathan v. Whitlock, 3 Edw. (N. Y.) 215 [affirmed in 9 Paige (N. Y.) 152].

4. Nathan v. Whitlock, 3 Edw. (N. Y.) 215 [affirmed in 9 Paige (N. Y.) 152].

5. Read for example the opinions in the following cases:

California.— Moore v. Boyd, 74 Cal. 167, 15 Pac. 670, per Hayne, C.

Louisiana.— Smith v. Saloy, 42 La. Ann. 183, 7 So. 450.

Massachusetts.— Marcy v. Clark, 17 Mass. 330, per Parker, C. J.

Missouri.— McClaren v. Franciscus, 43 Mo. 452, per Wagner, J. [quoted with approval in Provident Sav. Inst. v. Jackson Place Skating, etc., Rink, 52 Mo. 557].

United States.— Johnson v. Laflin, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,393, 5 Dill. 65, per Dillon, J.

6. Bowden v. Johnson, 107 U. S. 251, 2 S. Ct. 246, 27 L. ed. 386. That such testimony will overbear that of a single witness see Bowden v. Johnson, 107 U. S. 251, 2 S. Ct. 246, 27 L. ed. 386 [citing Clark v. Van Reimsdyk, 9 Cranch (U. S.) 153, 3 L. ed. 688].

7. Miller v. Great Republic Ins. Co., 50 Mo. 55.

Circumstances tending to overcome the presumption of fraudulent intent. Johnson v. Laflin, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,393, 5 Dill. 65 [affirmed in 103 U. S. 800, 26 L. ed. 532].

That the transferrer is not bound to know that the transferee is insolvent see Miller v. Great Republic Ins. Co., 50 Mo. 55.

Transfer to an insolvent while action is pending against corporation upon a demand in respect of which a shareholder would become individually liable, of no avail in discharging him from such liability. Rider v. Fritchey, 49 Ohio St. 285, 30 N. E. 692, 15 L. R. A. 513.

8. Borland v. Haven, 37 Fed. 394, 13 Sawy. 551.

9. The rule in Pennsylvania is that a subscription to the stock of a railroad company creates a debt against the subscriber, from which he cannot relieve himself by an assignment or transfer made without the sanction of the directors. Graff v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 31 Pa. St. 489; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Clarke, 29 Pa. St. 146.

10. Messersmith v. Sharon Sav. Bank, 96 Pa. St. 440; Franks Oil Co. v. McCleary, 63 Pa. St. 317; Palmer v. Ridge Min. Co., 34 Pa. St. 288; Delaware, etc., Canal Nav. Co. v. Sansom, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 70. Compare Merrimac Min. Co. v. Levy, 54 Pa. St. 227, 93 Am. Dec. 697, under a Michigan statute.

11. See supra, VIII, L, 3, o; VIII, N, 5, note 57.

12. See supra, VIII, N, 5, note 57.

13. Borland v. Haven, 37 Fed. 394, 13 Sawy. 551.

as involving acts inconsistent with the duty of the directors, and beyond their power, and such transferrers have been held liable as contributories.[14] For stronger reasons such transfers would be void under the American law, since it is beyond the power of the directors and a breach of their trust thus to give away that portion of the assets of the corporation of which the unpaid subscriptions, or even under some theories, the statutory liability of the shareholders, consists.[15]

e. Reorganization of Corporation For Purpose of Defrauding Its Creditors. If the formation of a new company is promoted by persons interested in an old one which is insolvent, for the purpose of relieving those interested in the old company and fastening its liabilities upon the members of the new, and the new company, after its formation, buys the property of the old and becomes liable to the creditors of the latter for the amount due them, such creditors are not affected by the fraud, and can compel the shareholders of the old company to pay their subscriptions.[16]

f. Rule Where Real Purchaser of Shares Takes Transfer in Name of Irresponsible Person to Avoid Liability. The rule is the same where the real purchaser of corporate shares, instead of perfecting the transfer in his own name, or, being a corporation, in its own name, causes the transfer to be registered in the name of an irresponsible third person, for the purpose of escaping the personal liability of a shareholder. In such a case the real, and not the colorable, transferee will be charged with the liability of a shareholder, and this notwithstanding what appears on the face of the books.[17]

8. Transfers to Persons Incapable of Contracting — a. In General. The general rule is that transfers to persons incapable of contracting are void as to creditors and non-assenting shareholders, and that the transferrer remains a contributory, as though no transfer had been made.[18]

b. Transfers to Infants — (I) In General. Under a well-understood rule a transfer of shares to an infant is not void, but is voidable in the sense that the transfer may be rejected by the directors, and avoided by the infant within a reasonable time after attaining his majority.[19]

(II) To Escape Liability to Creditors. A transfer to an infant, made with the purpose on the part of the transferrer of escaping liability to the creditors of the corporation stands on a different footing, which is that of a fraudulent conveyance considered in preceding paragraphs, and is ordinarily voidable at the

14. Nathan v. Whitlock, 3 Edw. (N. Y.) 215 [affirmed in 9 Paige (N. Y.) 152]; Matter of Cameron's Coalbrook Steam Coal, etc., Co., 5 De G. M. & G. 284, 24 L. J. Ch. 130, 2 Wkly. Rep. 448, 54 Eng. Ch. 226 [affirming 18 Beav. 339]; Matter of Vale of Neath, etc., Brewery Co., 1 De G. & Sm. 750.

15. See supra, VIII, B, 2, a et seq.

16. Jewell v. Rock River Paper Co., 101 Ill. 57. Compare Morgan v. Brower, 77 Ga. 627.

17. Germania Nat. Bank v. Case, 99 U. S. 628, 25 L. ed. 448. But this principle has been denied by the same court where the pledgee had the shares transferred in the first instance to an irresponsible trustee to avoid personal liability in respect of them. Anderson v. Philadelphia Warehouse Co., 111 U. S. 479, 4 S. Ct. 525, 28 L. ed. 478. The two decisions cannot be reconciled, and the latter is unsound. Opposed to the latter decision and following the former is Case v. Small, 10 Fed. 722, 4 Woods 78. Upon the question whether the original vendor in such a case is entitled to contribution from a fraudulent subvendee see the misdecided case of Lesassier v. Kennedy, 36 La. Ann. 539.

Transfers for the benefit of creditors of the transferrer see Peters v. Bain, 133 U. S. 670, 10 S. Ct. 354, 33 L. ed. 696.

18. United Soc. v. Eagle Bank, 7 Conn. 456; Marcy v. Clark, 17 Mass. 330; Veiller v. Brown, 18 Hun (N. Y.) 571.

19. In re Contract Corp., L. R. 7 Ch. 115, 41 L. J. Ch. 275, 25 L. T. Rep. N. S. 726, 20 Wkly. Rep. 169; Re Constantinople, etc., Hotels Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 302, 39 L. J. Ch. 679, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 424, 18 Wkly. Rep. 394; In re Blakely Ordnance Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 31, 17 Wkly. Rep. 65; In re Norwegian Charcoal Iron Co., L. R. 9 Eq. 199, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 811, 18 Wkly. Rep. 331; In re India, etc., Commercial Bank Corp., L. R. 8 Eq. 240; In re Alexandra Park Co., L. R. 6 Eq. 512, 38 L. J. Ch. 85, 16 Wkly. Rep. 1033; Matter of St. George's Steam Packet Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 31, 13 Jur. 673, 18 L. J. Ch. 256.

election of the corporation, its representative after insolvency, its shareholders, or its creditors.[20]

(III) Transfer Through Infant to Adult. The mere fact that a transfer of shares has been made through several infants to an adult, the conveyances having been attended with due formality, will not entitle the liquidator to put the name of the original transferrer on the list in place of the last transferee, although the company did not know that the intermediate conveyees were infants. The last shareholder being in all respects competent, the company was estopped from disputing his title to those shares. From the time they had a good shareholder on their register, in respect to whom they were bound, and who was bound in respect to them, they ceased to have any interest in the voidable character of the intermediate transfers.[21]

(IV) What if Company Is Wound Up During Minority of Transferee. Such a contract, however, is voidable by the company or by its representative until ratified by the infant after attaining his majority. Hence if the company is wound up before that time the person who has purchased the shares for the infant, executed the necessary conveyance, and entered into the necessary covenants for him, may be held as a contributory;[22] for it cannot be assumed in such a case that the infant, after attaining his majority, would ratify the transaction; and this was done even where the infant, having attained his majority after the winding-up, expressed by affidavit a desire to retain the shares, although he could not at that time pay the amount due on them.[23] Upon like grounds, where a father transfers his shares to an infant, and the company is wound up before the latter attains his majority, the transfer will be treated as void, and the transferrer held as a contributory.[24] But where a father applied for shares in the name of his infant son and paid the deposits thereon, and the company refused to allow him to execute the deed on behalf of his son, and he did no further act, he was not a contributory.[25]

(V) Ratification by Infant Transferee After Attaining Majority. What circumstances will amount to a ratification of a contract for the purchase is a question to be determined largely upon the facts of each case. The English courts have in several cases acted upon the principle that the fact that a person

20. Roman v. Fry, 5 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 634; Castleman v. Holmes, 4 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 1; Creed v. Lancaster Bank, 1 Ohio St. 1; In re Cohre Copper Min. Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 614, 39 L. J. Ch. 753, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 287, 18 Wkly. Rep. 957; In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 459 note; In re China Steamship, etc., Coal Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 458, 16 Wkly. Rep. 1002; In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 19 Eq. 588, 44 L. J. Ch. 252, 32 L. T. Rep. N. S. 18, 23 Wkly. Rep. 467.

21. In re Contract Corp., L. R. 8 Ch. 266, 42 L. J. Ch. 381, 28 L. T. Rep. N. S. 148, 21 Wkly. Rep. 181 [reversing L. R. 14 Eq. 454].

22. In re Asiatic Banking Corp., L. R. 5 Ch. 298, 39 L. J. Ch. 461, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 217, 18 Wkly. Rep. 366; In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 19 Eq. 588, 44 L. J. Ch. 252, 32 L. T. Rep. N. S. 18, 23 Wkly. Rep. 467; In re Continental Bank Corp., L. R. 8 Eq. 504; Reaveley's Case, 1 De G. & Sm. 550; In re North of England Joint-stock Banking Co., 1 Hall & T. 118, 13 Jur. 158, 18 L. J. Ch. 110.

23. In re Continental Bank Corp., L. R. 8 Eq. 504.

24. In re Cohre Copper Min. Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 614, 39 L. J. Ch. 753, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 287, 18 Wkly. Rep. 957; Reid's Case, 24 Beav. 318.

25. Maxwell's Case, 24 Beav. 321. In an early case in Kentucky, a corporator endeavored to escape liability to creditors by taking shares in the names of infants. This was treated as "a fraud on the community." Roman v. Fry, 5 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 634. Where, however, the shares were sold in open market and purchased by an infant, of which fact the transferrer had no knowledge, and the company, after discovering this fact, failed for more than two years — at the expiration of which time the company was wound up — to notify the transferrer of such fact, and that they had repudiated the transfer on account of it, the laches of the company precluded the right to put the name of the transferrer again on the register. In re European Cent. R. Co., L. R. 8 Eq. 656, 39 L. J. Ch. 64. Where a father purchased shares, and had them registered in the name of his infant son, whom he personated, upon winding up, the son's name was removed from the register and the father made a contributory in his stead. In re Imperial Mer-allows his name to remain for a length of time on the list of contributories of a company, without making any objection, does not raise an equity against his applying to have it removed, where no loss is sustained by the estate which would have been avoided if the application had been made earlier.[26] Some distinct act, they have held, must be shown to make him liable; and such an act was not discovered in the fact that his solicitor had attended, for himself and others, at a judge's chambers, to make opposition to a judicial order for a call.[27] Other of those courts have discovered an intention to ratify in failing to repudiate, for two years after majority, the company being a going concern.[28] And where the infant acquiesced for five months after majority, and transferred some of his shares, and did not object until four months after winding up, it was held that there was a ratification.[29] In another case acquiescence for more than a year was deemed sufficient, where the late infant had executed a transfer of his shares;[30] but the contrary was held of an acquiescence of three years without knowledge that his name was on the list.[31] And it seems that the infant will be held in any case, on the ground of fraud, where he procures the shares with the intention of keeping them if the company succeeds and repudiating them if it fails.[32]

c. Transfers to Married Women — (I) Validity of. A married woman has the legal capacity to receive a transfer of stock in a national banking corporation, although the consideration may have proceeded wholly from the husband.[33] We have seen that[34] by the principles of the common law the husband is liable for calls in respect of shares held by his wife. In a corporation created under the laws of a state where married women are under the common-law disability, he makes himself answerable to creditors in respect of them.[35] Where the condition of the local law is such that a married woman can enter into contracts as if sole so as to charge her separate estate, she can purchase shares in a corporation or joint-stock company on the credit of such an estate, so as to bind it and make her a contributory in respect of it;[36] and whether she does so contract and is understood as so contracting by the other contracting parties will be a question depending upon the facts and circumstances of each particular case.[37]

(II) Whether Husband or Wife Liable Where She Owns Shares Before Marriage. Where the status of a married woman remains as at common law, if she owned the stock before her coverture, after which time her husband reduced it into his possession, in the event of the insolvency of the corporation, he of course will be liable to creditors; but where he did not thus cantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 19 Eq. 588, 44 L. J. Ch. 252, 32 L. T. Rep. N. S. 18, 23 Wkly. Rep. 467.

26. In re Mexican, etc., Co., L. R. 2 Ch. 387; In re Alexandra Park Co., L. R. 6 Eq. 512, 38 L. J. Ch. 85, 16 Wkly. Rep. 1033.

27. In re India, etc., Commercial Bank Corp., L. R. 8 Eq. 240.

28. In re Norwegian Charcoal Iron Co., L. R. 9 Eq. 363, 39 L. J. Ch. 199, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 811, 18 Wkly. Rep. 331.

29. In re Blakely Ordnance Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 31, 17 Wkly. Rep. 65.

30. Re Constantinople, etc., Hotels Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 302, 39 L. J. Ch. 679, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 424, 18 Wkly. Rep. 394.

31. In re Contract Corp., L. R. 7 Ch. 115, 41 L. J. Ch. 275, 25 L. T. Rep. N. S. 726, 20 Wkly. Rep. 169.

32. Re Constantinople, etc., Hotels Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 302, 39 L. J. Ch. 679, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 424, 18 Wkly. Rep. 394.

33. Keyser v. Hitz, 133 U. S. 138, 10 S. Ct. 290, 33 L. ed. 531.

34. See supra, VI, G, 1.

35. National Commercial Bank v. McDonnell, 92 Ala. 387, 9 So. 149.

36. In re Leeds Banking Co., L. R. 3 Eq. 781, 36 L. J. Ch. 90, 15 L. T. Rep. N. S. 266, 15 Wkly. Rep. 146, and so in In re Northumberland, etc., Dist. Banking Co., 1 De G. F. & J. 533, 6 Jur. N. S. 331, 29 L. J. Ch. 269, 8 Wkly. Rep. 297. Power of married woman to transfer stock without consent of her husband. Howard v. Bank of England, L. R. 19 Eq. 295, 44 L. J. Ch. 329, 31 L. T. Rep. N. S. 871, 23 Wkly. Rep. 303. Mandamus awarded to compel registry of shares in the name of married woman. Reg. v. Carnatic R. Co., L. R. 8 Q. B. 299, 42 L. J. Q. B. 169, 28 L. T. Rep. N. S. 413, 21 Wkly. Rep. 621.

37. In re Leeds Banking Co., L. R. 3 Eq. 781, 36 L. J. Ch. 90, 15 L. T. Rep. N. S. 266, 15 Wkly. Rep. 146; Johnson v. Gallagher, 3 De G. F. & J. 494, 7 Jur. N. S. 273, 30 L. J. Ch. 298, 4 L. T. Rep. N. S. 72, 9 Wkly. Rep. 506, 64 Eng. Ch. 387. Special provisions in the constitution of an English company may prevent married women from holding its reduce the shares into his possession, but allowed the wife to receive the dividends, she was held responsible to the creditors of the corporation under a general statute making shareholders individually liable.[38] But the English cases hold that where a man marries a shareholder and allows the shares to remain in her name, he will be a contributory in respect to them;[39] but both husband and wife should be put on the list, since if she survives her liability will survive also.[40] But one who marries a female shareholder, without reducing her shares into his possession, is liable as a contributory only in respect of the liabilities of the company accruing or incurred during the coverture.[41]

(III) When Trustees For Feme Covert Shareholders Become Personally Liable. Upon grounds fully stated elsewhere,[42] if a married woman's shares are held by trustees for her, in the absence of statutes providing otherwise, they must respond as shareholders and look to her for indemnity.[43]

d. Transfers to Corporation Itself — (I) In General Void. The general rule is that unless the governing statute or constitution of a company authorizes it in express terms to purchase its own shares, such a purchase is ultra vires.[44] Where this rule prevails the selling shareholder will remain liable to creditors, unless he sells his shares innocently to one capable in law of purchasing and holding them, not knowing that such purchaser is using the funds of the corporation;[45] and not even in that case, according to the best theory.[46] The reason is, that he gets — without rendering a lawful consideration — a part of those assets which are a trust fund for the creditors; and the fact that he gets them innocently furnishes no reason whatever why he should not restore them.[47]

(II) Exceptions to, and Denial of, This Rule. Authority for stating some exceptions to this rule will be found in the American cases, and in others the rule is denied entirely.[48] Thus it has been held that a corporation may take its own stock in payment of debts owing to it, and may hold and sell stock thus acquired.[49] The directors have power to sell such stock and take notes for the price, under the general power which they possess of managing the corporate business.[50] So a bequest to a corporation of its own shares has been held valid.[51] But whilst stock thus taken by the corporation in payment or pledge does not merge so that it may be reissued,[52] it cannot be voted at corporate election; for it is not to be tolerated that the power shall thus be put into the hands of the officers of the corporation of securing themselves against the possibility of removal.[53] shares, such as appears to have controlled in Angas' Case, 1 De G. & Sm. 560, 13 Jur. 76.

38. In re Reciprocity Bank, 22 N. Y. 9.

39. White's Case, 3 De G. & Sm. 157, 14 Jur. 454, 19 L. J. Ch. 497; Matter of North of England Joint-stock Banking Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 36, 13 Jur. 674, 18 L. J. Ch. 251; Matter of North of England Joint-stock Banking Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 18.

40. Matter of North of England Joint-stock Banking Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 36, 13 Jur. 674, 18 L. J. Ch. 251.

41. Matter of Vale of Neath Brewery Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 210, 14 Jur. 898, 19 L. J. Ch. 385.

42. See supra, VIII, M, 2, h.

43. Butler v. Cumpston, L. R. 7 Eq. 16, 38 L. J. Ch. 35, 17 Wkly. Rep. 241.

44. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Overman Carriage Co., 17 Ohio Cir. Ct. 253.

45. Johnson v. Laflin, 103 U. S. 800, 26 L. ed. 532 [affirming 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,393, 5 Dill. 65].

46. Crandall v. Lincoln, 52 Conn. 73, 52 Am. Rep. 560.

47. Compare Alexander v. Rollins, 14 Mo. App. 109 [affirmed in 84 Mo. 657]. See also Bent v. Hart, 10 Mo. App. 143.

48. 3 Thompson Corp. § 3277.

49. Cooper v. Frederick, 9 Ala. 738; Columbus City Bank v. Bruce, 17 N. Y. 507; Barton v. Port Jackson, etc., Plank Road Co., 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 397; Taylor v. Miami Exporting Co., 5 Ohio 162, 22 Am. Dec. 785.

50. Williams v. Savage Mfg. Co., 3 Md. Ch. 418; Chillicothe Branch Ohio State Bank v. Fox, 5 Fed. Cas. No. 2,683, 3 Blatchf. 431. An agreement of a corporation to sell its own shares for less than their par value has been held valid, it not appearing how the company acquired the stock. Otter v. Brevoort Petroleum Co., 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 247.

51. Rivanna Nav. Co. v. Dawsons, 3 Gratt. (Va.) 19, 46 Am. Dec. 183.

52. Williams v. Savage Mfg. Co., 3 Md. Ch. 418.

53. Brewster v. Hartley, 37 Cal. 15, 99 Am. Dec. 237; Ex p. Holmes, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 426.

(III) Effect of Want of Knowledge on Part of Transferrer That Shares Are Being Purchased For Corporation. If a shareholder, in selling his shares, deals at arm's length with the company, and conveys them to a qualified person under circumstances which do not charge him with knowledge that the transferee is a mere trustee for the company, and he in point of fact has no such knowledge, the existence of such a fact will not avoid the transfer and make him a contributory.[54] The same rule has been applied where the shares were sold to a qualified person through a broker, the vendor having no knowledge of the fact that the transferee received them in trust for the company, or that they were purchased with the company's funds.[55]

e. Transfer of Shares to Non-Existent or Fictitious Person. It is not necessary to do more than state the proposition that a shareholder cannot escape the obligation of performing his contract of subscription by the device of transferring his shares to a fictitious or non-existent person, under the theory that he has thus abandoned his shares.[56]

9. Exoneration of Transferrer — a. General Rule That Who Is Transferrer Is Determined by Corporate Books — (I) Statement of Rule. The general rule already noticed,[57] then, is that every person whose name, by his authority, has been placed on the books of a corporation as a shareholder, is such, both as to the corporation[58] and to its creditors, so long as his name remains there.[59]

(II) Although He Holds as Trustee, Pledgee, Etc. He may hold the shares as trustee for others,[60] or for the company itself,[61] or as collateral security

Untenable decision upholding a resolution of a board of directors that any shareholder indebted to the company on stock notes might have the privilege of paying any part or all of such indebtedness in the capital stock of the company at a rate specified in the resolution. Columbus City Bank v. Bruce, 17 N. Y. 507.

That any manipulation which disperses the trust fund of which unpaid share subscriptions consist, or even converts it into common assets, is void as against creditors who have given credit on the faith of it see Sawyer v. Hoag, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 610, 21 L. ed. 731.

Validity of bona fide compromise by which a corporation receives its own shares in payment of a debt which it would have otherwise lost. Currier v. Lebanon Slate Co., 56 N. H. 262. English cases depending upon special circumstances, which are set out at length in Thompson Stockh. § 238, are: London, etc., Exch. Bank v. Henry, L. R. 7 Eq. 334; In re West Hartlepool Iron Co., 1 Ch. D. 664, 45 L. J. Ch. 342, 34 L. T. Rep. N. S. 164 24 Wkly. Rep. 508; Matter of Waterloo L., etc., Assur. Co., 2 De G. J. & S. 101, 10 Jur. N. S. 246, 10 L. T. Rep. N. S. 3, 12 Wkly. Rep. 502, 67 Eng. Ch. 80.

54. Matter of Joint-Stock Co.'s Winding-Up Acts, 1 De G. J. & S. 488, 9 Jur. N. S. 631, 32 L. J. Ch. 326, 8 L. T. Rep. N. S. 98, 11 Wkly. Rep. 385, 66 Eng. Ch. 379.

55. Johnson v. Laflin, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,393, 5 Dill. 65 [affirmed in 103 U. S. 800, 26 L. ed. 532]; Nicol's Case, 3 De G. & J. 387.

56. Muskingum Valley Turnpike Co. v. Ward, 13 Ohio 120, 42 Am. Dec. 191.

57. See supra, VIII, M, 1, a.

58. See supra, VII, D, 5, a, (I).

59. Connecticut.—State v. Ferris, 42 Conn. 560.

Georgia.— Force v. Dahlonega Tanning etc., Mfg. Co., 22 Ga. 86.

Maine.— Skowhegan Bank v. Cutler, 49 Me. 315; Fowler v. Ludwig, 34 Me. 455; Stanley v. Stanley, 26 Me. 191.

Massachusetts.— Holyoke Bank v. Burnham, 11 Cush. 183; Grew v. Breed, 10 Metc. 569; Crease v. Babcock, 10 Metc. 525.

Missouri.— A. Wight Co. v. Steinkemeyer, 6 Mo. App. 575.

New York.— U. S. Trust Co. v. U. S. Fire Ins. Co., 18 N. Y. 199, 6 Abb. Pr. 385; Worrall v. Judson, 5 Barb. 210.

Pennsylvania.— Bell's Appeal, 115 Pa. St. 88, 2 Am. St. Rep. 532.

United States.— Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S. 27, 7 S. Ct. 788, 30 L. ed. 864; Borland v. Haven, 37 Fed. 394, 13 Sawy. 551 (under California code); Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 27 Fed. 591.

60. Borland v. Haven, 37 Fed. 394, 13 Sawy. 551; In re International Contract Co., L. R. 7 Ch. 485, 41 L. J. Ch. 564, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 487, 20 Wkly. Rep. 430; In re Norwegian Charcoal Iron Co., L. R. 9 Eq. 363, 39 L. J. Ch. 199, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 811, 18 Wkly. Rep. 331; In re Independent Assur. Co., 1 Sim. N. S. 389, 40 Eng. Ch. 389. See also supra, VIII, M, 2, a et seq.

61. In re National Financial Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 791, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 895, 16 Wkly. Rep. 994; Hemming v. Maddick, L. R. 9 Eq. 175 [affirmed in L. R. 7 Ch. 395, 41 L. J. Ch. 522, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 565, 20 Wkly. Rep. 433]; In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 3 Eq. 361; Hoare's Case, 30 Beav. 225, 2 Johns. & H. 229. See also supra, VIII, M, 2, c.

for money loaned;[62] and yet he is personally liable as a shareholder, and if he suffers loss in consequence of his position he must seek indemnity from the equitable owner.[63] Nor will a private agreement between the transferrer and transferee that the former shall not be liable relieve him from such liability.[64]

(III) Holder Liable After Sale of Shares and Delivery of Certificate Until Name Removed From Corporate Books. So although he may have sold his shares to another and received pay for them, and delivered to the purchaser his certificate, yet until the transfer has been perfected by registering the transfer on the corporate books as required by the charter, statute, articles of association, or deed of settlement governing the company, the transfer, although valid as between him and the transferee,[65] does not divest his liability as a shareholder to the company[66] or to its creditors.[67]

62. Illinois.— Wheelock v. Kost, 77 Ill. 296.

Maryland.— Magruder v. Colston, 44 Md. 349, 22 Am. Rep. 47.

Massachusetts.— Holyoke Bank v. Burnham, 11 Cush. 183; Crease v. Babcock, 10 Metc. 525.

Missouri.— Simmons v. Hill, 96 Mo. 679, 10 S. W. 61, 2 L. R. A. 476.

New York.— U. S. Trust Co. v. U. S. Fire Ins. Co., 18 N. Y. 199; Rosevelt v. Brown, 11 N. Y. 148; Adderly v. Storm, 6 Hill 624.

United States.—Pullman v. Upton, 96 U. S. 328, 24 L. ed. 818.

And see supra, VIII, M, 1, b.

63. Stover v. Flack, 30 N. Y. 64; In re National Financial Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 791, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 895, 16 Wkly. Rep. 994; Hemming v. Maddick, L. R. 9 Eq. 175 [affirmed in L. R. 7 Ch. 395, 41 L. J. Ch. 522, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 565, 20 Wkly. Rep. 433].

64. Bell's Appeal, 115 Pa. St. 88, 8 Atl. 177, 2 Am. St. Rep. 532.

65. Alabama.— Duke v. Cahawba Nav. Co., 10 Ala. 82, 44 Am. Dec. 472.

Maryland.— Hall v. U. S. Insurance Co., 5 Gill 484.

Massachusetts.—Brigham v. Mead, 10 Allen 245; Sargent v. Essex Mar. R. Corp., 9 Pick. 202; Sargent v. Franklin Ins. Co., 8 Pick. 90, 19 Am. Dec. 306; Nesmith v. Washington Bank, 6 Pick. 324; Quiner v. Marblehead Social Ins. Co., 10 Mass. 476.

Missouri.— Moore v. Bank of Commerce, 52 Mo. 377; Chouteau Spring Co. v. Harris, 20 Mo. 382; St. Louis Perpetual Ins. Co. v. Goodfellow, 9 Mo. 149.

New York.—Johnson v. Underhill, 52 N. Y. 203; Gilbert v. Manchester Iron Mfg. Co., 11 Wend. 627; Utica Bank v. Smalley, 2 Cow. 770, 14 Am. Dec. 526.

England.— McEuen v. West London Wharves, etc., Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 655, 40 L. J. Ch. 471, 25 L. T. Rep. N. S. 143, 19 Wkly. Rep. 837; In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 2 Ch. 16, 36 L. J. Ch. 32, 15 L. T. Rep. N. S. 198, 15 Wkly. Rep. 117; Castellan v. Hobson, L. R. 10 Eq. 47, 39 L. J. Ch. 490, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 575, 18 Wkly. Rep. 731; Walker v. Bartlett, 18 C. B. 845, 2 Jur. N. S. 643, 25 L. J. C. P. 263, 4 Wkly. Rep. 681, 36 Eng. L. & Eq. 368, 86 E. C. L. 845; Shaw v. Rowley, 11 Jur. 911, 16 L. J. Exch. 180, 16 M. & W. 810, 5 R. & Can. Cas. 47; Sheffield, etc., R. Co. v. Woodcock, 11 L. J. Exch. 26, 7 M. & W. 574, 2 R. & Can. Cas. 522.

An assignment not made in conformity with the law governing the corporation will pass an equitable title which will bind all persons having notice of it. Black v. Zacharie, 3 How. (U. S.) 483, 11 L. ed. 690.

66. Marlborough Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 2 Conn. 579; Helm v. Swiggett, 12 Ind. 194; New Albany, etc., R. Co. v. McCormick, 10 Ind. 499, 71 Am. Dec. 337; Coleman v. Spencer, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 197.

67. California.— Visalia, etc., R. Co. v. Hyde, 110 Cal. 632, 43 Pac. 10, 52 Am. St. Rep. 136.

Iowa.— Perkins v. Lyons, 111 Iowa 192, 82 N. W. 486; White v. Green, 105 Iowa 176, 74 N. W. 928 [affirming 70 N. W. 182, under a comparison and construction of statutes].

Kansas.— Plumb v. Enterprise Bank, 48 Kan. 484, 29 Pac. 699, transferrer cannot complain that no by-law has been enacted prescribing the manner of making transfers, or claim exemption from individual liability on the stock sold on that ground.

Maine.— Dane v. Young, 61 Me. 160.

Minnesota.— Harper v. Carroll, 66 Minn. 487, 69 N. W. 610, 1069, assignor of corporate stock, whose transfer was not registered on the corporate books until after the corporation had made an assignment, when it was registered as a transfer to the corporation itself.

New York.— Shellington v. Howland, 53 N. Y. 371; Powers v. Knapp, 71 Hun 371, 25 N. Y. Suppl. 19, 55 N. Y. St. 23 (under a statute); Worrall v. Judson, 5 Barb. 210.

Ohio.— Herrick v. Wardwell, 58 Ohio St. 294, 50 N. E. 903 (unless the transfer is noted in the stock-book, or in the absence of such book on the stubs of the stock certificate, although an examination of the book as a whole would show a transfer of the stock); Wehrman v. Reakirt, 1 Cinc. Super. Ct. 230.

Pennsylvania.— Burt v. Real Estate Exch., 175 Pa. St. 619, 34 Atl. 923, 38 Wkly. Notes Cas. 277, 52 Am. St. Rep. 858.

United States.— Giesen v. London, etc., Mortg. Co., 102 Fed. 584, 42 C. C. A. 515.

England.— McEuen v. West London Wharves, etc., Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 655, 40 L. J. Ch. 471, 25 L. T. Rep. N. S. 143, 19 Wkly. Rep. 837; In re Imperial Mercantile Credit

(iv) Further Explanation of This Rule—(a) In General. The registration being intended in part for the protection of the public,[68] one who has parted with his shares, and yet suffers his name to remain on the register, remains a shareholder by conduct or estoppel, upon familiar grounds already discussed.[69] And where the governing statute provides that transfers can be made only by deed and by alteration of the register, and a shareholder transfers his shares in another way, although the company may recognize the transfer by receiving assessments from the transferee, this, it has been held in England, does not discharge the transferrer from liability to the company as a shareholder. If this were not so the wholesome requirement of the law might be entirely elnded; and any person who examined the register, whether a creditor who wished to know the names of the shareholders, or a shareholder who wished to know the names of his co-shareholders, would be entirely deceived.[70]

(b) English Rule on This Point Agrees With American Rule. In this respect the English rule coincides for the most part with the American rule, and where the constitution of a company requires that a transfer of shares be executed by both parties, and it is not executed by the transferee, the English courts will not, under sections 35 and 98 of the Companies Act of 1862, rectify the register, but will put the transferrer on the list of contributories, and leave the transferrer and transferee to their remedies against each other.[71]

(v) View That Transferrer Is Relieved Unless Guilty of Negligence in Seeing to Regulation of Transfer—(a) In General. In England, subject to the exception of one year's time in the Companies Act of 1862, the transferrer will not be liable as a contributory, unless his name was suffered to remain on the register through his negligence;[72] the rule being that where the transferrer has done all in his power to complete the formality of the transfer he is discharged from liability as a shareholder;[73] or that a transferrer who has negligently suffered his name to remain on the register will be held as a contributory,[74] but one whose name remains there notwithstanding he has been guilty of no laches will not;[75] and the corresponding rule in the courts of the United States is that

Assoc., L. R. 2 Ch. 596, 36 L. J. Ch. 468, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 368, 15 Wkly. Rep. 683; In re Anglo-Danubian Steam Nav., etc., Co., L. R. 6 Eq. 30, 37 L. J. Ch. 651, 16 Wkly. Rep. 749; In re Overend, L. R. 5 Eq. 193, 37 L. J. Ch. 161, 16 Wkly. Rep. 247.

Compare Efird v. Piedmont Land Imp., etc., Co., 55 S. C. 78, 32 S. E. 758 [rehearing denied in 55 S. C. 88, 32 S. E. 897], construction of statutes.

68. The rule is intended for the benefit of the company also (see supra, VII, D, 5, a, (II)); and hence as between the transferee and the company, unless his own transfer is made upon the books of the company, he is not a shareholder. The mere fact that he owns the certificate of stock does not make him a shareholder. Marlborough Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 2 Conn. 579; Helm v. Swiggett, 12 Ind. 194; New Albany, etc., R. Co. v. McCormick, 10 Ind. 499, 71 Am. Dec. 337; Coleman v. Spencer, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 197.

69. Plumb v. Enterprise Bank, 48 Kan. 484, 29 Pac. 699; In re Reciprocity Bank, 22 N. Y. 9. See also supra, VI, P, 7, a, (I).

70. McEuen v. West London Wharves, etc., Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 655, 40 L. J. Ch. 471, 25 L. T. Rep. N. S. 143, 19 Wkly. Rep. 837.

71. In re Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc., L. R. 2 Ch. 596, 36 L. J. Ch. 468, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 368, 15 Wkly. Rep. 683; In re Overend, L. R. 5 Eq. 193, 37 L. J. Ch. 161, 16 Wkly. Rep. 247.

72. In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 769, note 2; In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 768, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 151, 17 Wkly. Rep. 978; In re Overend, L. R. 4 Eq. 189; In re Contract Corp., L. R. 3 Eq. 84, 36 L. J. Ch. 121; In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 3 Eq. 77; In re London, etc., Exch. Bank, L. R. 2 Eq. 226; In re Newcastle-Upon-Tyne Mar. Ins. Co., 19 Beav. 107; Shortridge v. Bosanquet, 16 Beav. 84.

73. In re Contract Corp., L. R. 3 Eq. 84, 36 L. J. Ch. 121; In re London, etc., Exch. Bank, L. R. 2 Eq. 226; In re Newcastle-Upon-Tyne Mar. Ins. Co., 19 Beav. 107; Shortridge v. Bosanquet, 16 Beav. 84. But see Bosanquet v. Shortridge, 4 Exch. 699, 14 Jur. 71, 19 L. J. Exch. 221.

74. In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 2 Ch. 16, 36 L. J. Ch. 32, 15 L. T. Rep. N. S. 198, 15 Wkly. Rep. 117; In re Anglo-Danubian Steam Nav. Co., L. R. 6 Eq. 30, 37 L. J. Ch. 651, 16 Wkly. Rep. 749; In re Contract Corp., L. R. 3 Eq. 84, 36 L. J. Ch. 121.

75. Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S. 27, 7 S. Ct. 788, 30 L. ed. 864; In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 769, note 2; In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 768, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 151, 17 Wkly. Rep. 978; In re Overend, L. R. 4 Eq. 189; In re Joint where the shareholder in selling his shares does all that a careful and prudent business man should do to discharge himself from liability as a shareholder, he will not be held responsible for the neglect and carelessness of an officer of the corporation in failing to register the transfer.[76]

(B) Not Relieved Because There Is No By-Law Requiring Recording of Transfers. But while recognizing this principle it has been held that a shareholder who after a sale of his stock permits his name to remain on the books of the corporation as a shareholder and knows, or should know, the common usage of the corporation as to the recording of transfers cannot complain that no by-law has been enacted prescribing the manner of transfer, or claim exemption from individual liability on that ground because of his negligence.[77]

(C) Rule as to Negligence in Recording Transfer Where Transferrer Is Director. The rule which requires the transferrer to see to it that the name of the transferee is substituted for his on the books of the company seems to apply without exception where the transferrer is a director. He is in a very different position from that of an ordinary shareholder, for he has the means of seeing that all the formalities of transfer required by the constitution of the company are complied with, and he is therefore bound in transferring his shares to see to the regularity of the transfer. If he fails in this he remains a contributory.[78] The same principle has been applied where the auditor of a failing company transferred his shares to the managing director under circumstances of doubtful good faith, and where the requisite formalities were not attended to.[79]

b. Liability of Purchaser of Shares Which Are Not Formally Transferred on Books of Corporation. It is impossible to state a statutory rule on this subject. It has been held that a purchaser of corporate shares becomes liable to the creditors of the corporation, although the transfer was not recorded on the books of the company.[80]

Stock Discount Co., L. R. 3 Eq. 77 (holding that a delivery of the share certificate indorsed in blank to the president of the corporation, not as president, but as purchaser of the shares, did not discharge these as the transferrer, where the transfer was not in fact registered). For a further illustration of this doctrine see Chemical Nat. Bank v. Colwell, 132 N. Y. 250, 30 N. E. 644, 43 N. Y. St. 876 [reversing 16 Daly (N. Y.) 28, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 285, 29 N. Y. St. 726]. This doctrine is denied in Ohio, and a transferrer is liable to creditors until he gets his name off the corporate books, although he is unable to do it, and notwithstanding the corporation treats the transferee as the owner of the shares. Harpold v. Stohart, 46 Ohio St. 397, 21 N. E. 637, 15 Am. St. Rep. 618, transferrer not registered in consequence of the neglect of the company.

76. Whitney v. Butler, 118 U. S. 655, 7 S. Ct. 61, 30 L. ed. 266; Young v. McKay, 50 Fed. 394; Hayes v. Yawger, 39 Fed. 912; Hayes v. Shoemaker, 39 Fed. 319.

77. Plumb v. Enterprise Bank, 48 Kan. 484, 29 Pac. 699.

78. In re Newcastle-Upon-Tyne Mar. Ins. Co., 19 Beav. 97. There is one untenable decision to the contrary. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Colwell, 132 N. Y. 250, 30 N. E. 644, 43 N. Y. St. 876. See also Beals v. Buffalo Expanded Metal Constr. Co., 49 N. Y. App. Div. 589, 63 N. Y. Suppl. 635, transferrer was both a director and the president.

79. In re Newcastle-Upon-Tyne Mar. Ins. Co., 19 Beav. 107.

"Rectifying the register" under English Companies Act (1862), § 35. In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 769, note 2; In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 768, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 151, 17 Wkly. Rep. 978; In re Hercules Ins. Co., L. R. 9 Eq. 589, 39 L. J. Ch. 458, 18 Wkly. Rep. 370; In re Joint Stock Discount Co., L. R. 3 Eq. 77; In re London, etc., Exch. Bank, L. R. 2 Eq. 226; Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 61, 748, 755, 832, 834. Where name wrongly on register in first instance. In re Anglo-Danubian Steam Nav. Co., L. R. 6 Eq. 30, 37 L. J. Ch. 651, 16 Wkly. Rep. 749; In re Canadian Native Oil Co., L. R. 5 Eq. 118, 37 L. J. Ch. 257; In re European Assur. Soc. Arbitration Acts, 3 Ch. D. 21, 45 L. J. Ch. 801, 34 L. T. Rep. N. S. 929; In re European Assur. Soc. Arbitration Acts, 3 Ch. D. 10, 45 L. J. Ch. 804, 34 L. T. Rep. N. S. 926.

80. White v. Marquardt, 105 Iowa 145, 74 N. W. 930 [affirming (Iowa 1897) 70 N. W. 193, under the operation of statutes]; Bissell v. Heath, 98 Mich. 472, 57 N. W. 585 (where the transfer has been accepted by the corporation); Basting v. Northern Trust Co., 61 Minn. 307, 63 N. W. 721 (under the operation of a statute, purchaser at execution sale of stock of a corporation keeping no regular stock-book). But it has been held that a purchaser of stock in a national bank, who indorses his certificate to the cashier of the

c. Effect Upon Liability of Shareholders of Waiver by Corporation of Formal Transfer. This question need not be here considered, in so far as it affects the rights of the corporation itself. The rule which requires transfers to be registered on the books of the company is for the most part intended for the benefit of the company itself.[81] The company may therefore waive it and estop itself from suing the transferrer for future assessments,[82] and it will not be allowed to derive an advantage from its own negligence.[83] And this rule also estops a receiver of a corporation where the theory prevails that his rights are derivative from the corporation, and that he possesses no higher title than the corporation itself had.[84] In general the corporation becomes estopped from treating the transferrer as its shareholder after it has accepted the transferee as such, as by paying annual dividends to him for a number of years.

d. Liability to Creditors Where Consent of Directors to Transfer Is Necessary, but Has Not Been Obtained. If the constitution or governing statute of a joint-stock company exacts a condition precedent to a valid transfer of shares, as that the consent of the directors shall have been obtained or that the transferrer shall have paid all assessments,[85] a transfer without the performance of this condition, not being good between the transferrer and the company, leaves him of course liable to its creditors.[86]

e. Other Questions Relating to Divesting Liability of Transferrer. These will be briefly noted in the margin.[87]

O. Liability of Executors, Administrators, Heirs, and Legatees — 1. Corporate Shares Are Personal Property. Corporate shares are personal property and pass to the personal representative of the deceased shareholder and not to his heirs.[88] bank upon a sale to the latter individually, at a time when the bank is solvent, cannot be held liable upon such stock because of the failure of such cashier to perform the duty of transferring the stock upon the bank-books, especially where the bank has recognized the validity of the transfer by paying dividends to the cashier. Snyder v. Foster, 73 Fed. 136, 19 C. C. A. 406.

81. See supra, VII, D, 5, a, (I) et seq.

82. Isham v. Buckingham, 49 N. Y. 216; Bank of Commerce v. Newport Bank, 63 Fed. 896, 11 C. C. A. 484; Upton v. Burnham, 28 Fed. Cas. No. 16,798, 3 Biss. 431. See also Billings v. Robinson, 94 N. Y. 415 [affirming 28 Hun (N. Y.) 122].

83. Central Nat. Bank v. Williston, 138 Mass. 244; Robinson v. New Berne Nat. Bank, 95 N. Y. 637.

84. Cutting v. Damerel, 88 N. Y. 410, 411 [reversing 23 Hun (N. Y.) 339]; Earle v. Coyle, 97 Fed. 410, 38 C. C. A. 226 [affirming 95 Fed. 99].

85. Re National Provincial Mar. Ins. Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 559, 18 Wkly. Rep. 938.

86. In re Overend, L. R. 2 Eq. 554, 35 L. J. Ch. 826, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 32, 14 Wkly. Rep. 1008; Bosanquet v. Shortridge, 4 Exch. 699, 14 Jur. 71, 19 L. J. Exch. 221. But see Shortridge v. Bosanquet, 16 Beav. 84; Matter of North of England Joint-stock Banking Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 36, 13 Jur. 674, 18 L. J. Ch. 251; Matter of North of England Joint-stock Banking Co., 1 De G. M. & G. 576, 16 Jur. 435, 50 Eng. Ch. 444. But if this condition is exacted by the by-laws merely it may be waived by an established usage on the part of the company. Chambersburg Ins. Co. v. Smith, 11 Pa. St. 120.

87. Where the transfer was to the corporation itself — facts on which it was held that the transferrer remained a shareholder and liable as such. Merchants' Bank v. Cook, 4 Pick. (Mass.) 405. Rule where the transferrer owns and transfers all the shares — circumstances under which not liable to creditors. Morgan v. Brower, 77 Ga. 627. Statutory provisions requiring the giving of public notice of transfers of shares generally in newspapers — statute not complied with, transferrer remains liable. Mason v. Force, 30 Ga. 99; Force v. Dahlonega Tanning, etc., Mfg. Co., 22 Ga. 86. Compare Lane v. Morris, 8 Ga. 468. Statutory provision avoiding transfers unless made within a given time prior to the failure of the corporation. Lumpkin v. Jones, 1 Ga. 27. No liability of shareholder for rent accruing under lease after he ceased to be such by transferring his shares. Bordman v. Osborn, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 295.

88. Alabama.— Planters', etc., Bank v. Leavens, 4 Ala. 753.

Massachusetts.— Hutchins v. State Bank, 12 Metc. 421; Waltham Bank v. Waltham, 10 Metc. 334.

New York.— Denton v. Livingston, 9 Johns. 96, 6 Am. Dec. 264.

North Carolina.— Heart v. State Bank, 17 N. C. 111.

Ohio.— Johns v. Johns, 1 Ohio St. 350; State v. Franklin Bank, 10 Ohio 91.

Pennsylvania.— Slaymaker v. Gettysburg Bank, 10 Pa. St. 373; Gilpin v. Howell, 5 Pa. St. 41, 45 Am. Dec. 720.

2. Estate of Deceased Shareholder Liable, Not His Executor or Administrator — a. In General. Executors or administrators of deceased shareholders are liable as contributories, not on the same principle as other trustees, but in general only in respect of their trust estate.[89]

b. Doctrine That Estate Not Liable. The doctrine of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts that the estate of a deceased shareholder is not liable to creditors of the corporation is so far out of line with the current of authority and with ordinary conceptions of justice that it will not be discussed at length, but some of the decisions will be alluded to.[90]

c. General American Doctrine. The general American doctrine is that the liability of a shareholder whether merely to pay what is unpaid in respect of his shares,[91] to respond to a superadded liability imposed by statute,[92] or to answer in common with the other shareholders for the debts of the corporation, under the joint and several liability of partners,[93] does not die with him, but survives in respect of his estate in the hands of his executor or administrator.

d. Rule Confined to Cases Where Liability Is Contractual in Its Nature. The rule of survivorship does not extend to cases where the statutory liability is in the nature of a penalty or forfeiture, but it is confined to cases where the liability, although a superadded liability created by statute in excess of the liability which exists at common law, is in the nature of a contract, that is to say, a liability voluntarily assumed by the act of becoming a shareholder in the face of the statute.[94]

e. Whether Executor or Legatee a Contributory. Under a provision in the charter of a corporation that on the death of a shareholder his heirs or legal representatives might continue the relation, it was held that the right to continue the membership was in the heirs or devisees and not in the personal representative.[95]

Rhode Island.— Arnold v. Ruggles, 1 R. I. 165.

Tennessee.— Brightwell v. Mallony, 10 Yerg. 196; Union Bank v. State, 9 Yerg. 490.

Vermont.— Isham v. Bennington Iron Co., 19 Vt. 230; Wheelock v. Moulton, 15 Vt. 519.

For an early conception that corporate shares are real property see Welles v. Cowles, 2 Conn. 567; Howe v. Starkweather, 17 Mass. 240; Tippets v. Walker, 4 Mass. 595; In re Meason, 4 Watts (Pa.) 341.

89. Taylor v. Taylor, L. R. 10 Eq. 477, 39 L. J. Ch. 676, 18 Wkly. Rep. 1102; Houldsworth v. Evans, L. R. 3 H. L. 263, 37 L. J. Ch. 800, 19 L. T. Rep. N. S. 211, In re Herefordshire Banking Co., 33 Beav. 435; In re Northern Coal Min. Co., 13 Beav. 133, 19 L. J. Ch. 566 [affirmed in 16 Jur. 299, 3 Macn. & G. 726, 49 Eng. Ch. 558]; Matter of St. George's Steam Packet Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 279; Matter of North of England Joint-stock Banking Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 258; In re North of England Joint-stock Banking Co., 15 Jur. 137, 20 L. J. Ch. 188, 3 Macn. & G. 187, 49 Eng. Ch. 141. See also Grew v. Breed, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 569; New England Commercial Bank v. Newport Steam Factory, 6 R. I. 154, 75 Am. Dec. 688; Matter of Australia Royal Bank, 6 De G. M. & G. 572, 55 Eng. Ch. 445.

90. Ripley v. Sampson, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 371 (opinion by Shaw, C. J.); Child v. Coffin, 17 Mass. 64. See also Dane v. Dane Mfg. Co., 14 Gray (Mass.) 488; Gray v. Coffin, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 192, 199; Cutler v. Middlesex Factory Co., 14 Pick. (Mass.) 483; Andrews v. Callender, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 484.

91. Davidson v. Rankin, 34 Cal. 503; Manville v. Edgar, 8 Mo. App. 324; Bailey v. Hollister, 26 N. Y. 112. See also Matter of Australia Royal Bank, 6 De G. M. & G. 572, 55 Eng. Ch. 445; In re Northern Coal Min. Co., 16 Jur. 299, 3 Macn. & G. 726, 49 Eng. Ch. 558.

92. See supra, VIII, E, 8.

93. Chase v. Lord, 77 N. Y. 1, under the National Banking Act. So under the New York statutes. Cochran v. Weichers, 119 N. Y. 399, 23 N. E. 803, 29 N. Y. St. 388, 7 L. R. A. 553 [affirming 6 N. Y. Suppl. 304, 25 N. Y. St. 571]; Chase v. Lord, 77 N. Y. 1, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 258 [reversing 16 Hun (N. Y.) 369]; Diven v. Duncan, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 520.

94. Lowry v. Inman, 46 N. Y. 129 (per Allen, J.); Richmond v. Irons, 121 U. S. 27, 55, 56, 7 S. Ct. 788, 30 L. ed. 864. See also Wiles v. Suydam, 64 N. Y. 173; Bailey v. Hollister, 26 N. Y. 112, 116 (reasoning of Gould, J.); Flash v. Conn, 109 U. S. 371, 3 S. Ct. 263, 29 L. ed. 966; Hobart v. Johnson, 8 Fed. 493, 19 Blatchf. 359.

Liability where the charter has been extended and debts have been contracted by the corporation after the death of the shareholder. Bailey v. Hollister, 26 N. Y. 112.

95. Montgomery Mut. Bldg., etc., Assoc. v. Robinson, 69 Ala. 413. Compare Security Loan Assoc. v. Lake, 69 Ala. 456.

Under the English law, in some deeds of settlement, the consent of the directors was necessary to introduce a legatee as shareholder.[96]

3. Mode of Enforcing Contribution From Estate of Deceased Shareholder — a. By Proving Claim Against Estate — (I) In General. This depends in every case upon the state of the statute law with respect to the administration of the estates of deceased persons and with respect to insolvent corporations. Under many statutory systems the proper way would be to prove the demand against the estate in the probate court, after presenting it to the executor or administrator for allowance, or giving him the statutory notice.[97]

(II) Time Within Which Demand Against Estate of Deceased Shareholder Must Be Presented. This depends upon statutes which are local and special, and which are in the nature of special statutes of limitation. They will not therefore be considered in detail, but cases construing them will be cited in the margin.[98]

(III) Creditors Not to Be Delayed Until Settlement of Estate of Deceased Shareholder. It has been held by one of the appellate courts of Illinois that complainants in a suit in equity to enforce the liability of shareholders are not bound to wait for the settlement of claims for contribution between living shareholders and the estates or heirs of deceased shareholders, but that the adjustment of such controversies should be left to a suit or suits having that as the main and primary object in view.[99]

b. By Proceeding in Equity. It may be stated with confidence that an appropriate remedy to charge the estate of a deceased shareholder, even with a statutory liability, is a proceeding in equity, unless this remedy is excluded by the condition of the statute law.[1]

c. By Suing Executor or Administrator Without Proceeding in Probate Court. Under some systems the creditor is permitted to bring a direct action at law against the executor or administrator of the deceased shareholder without proving up his claim against the estate of the deceased in the probate court.[2]

96. Matter of Vale of Neath, etc., Brewery Co., 3 De G. M. & G. 272, 52 Eng. Ch. 213.

Right of executor to contribution as against residuary legatee.— For cases where the executor was compelled to pay in respect of the shares of his testator see Jervis v. Wolferstan, L. R. 18 Eq. 18, 43 L. J. Ch. 809, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 452; Whittaker v. Kershaw, 45 Ch. D. 320, 60 L. J. Ch. 9, 63 L. T. Rep. N. S. 203, 39 Wkly. Rep. 23.

Heirs assessable to the extent of assets received from ancestors, to make up deficiency after an estate fully administered. Payson v. Hadduck, 10 Fed. Cas. No. 10,862, 8 Biss. 300.

97. Nolan v. Hazen, 44 Minn. 478, 47 N. W. 155. A claim in favor of the creditors of a corporation against the estate of a deceased shareholder, before the assets of the corporation are fully administered, is a "contingent claim" within the meaning of Minn. Gen. Stat. c. 53, relating to claims against decedents' estates. Hospes v. Northwestern Mfg., etc., Co., 48 Minn. 174, 50 N. W. 1117, 31 Am. St. Rep. 637, 15 L. R. A. 470. In case of the death of one of the partners in a firm which holds shares in a corporation, a claim for his liability may be proved against his estate as if it were a joint and several liability, under a statute which provides that when two or more persons are indebted on a joint contract and either of them dies his estate shall be liable therefor as if the contract had been joint and several. Barton Nat. Bank v. Atkins, 72 Vt. 33, 47 Atl. 176.

98. Greenabaum v. Elliott, 60 Mo. 25; Burton v. Rutherford, 49 Mo. 255; Chambers v. Smith, 23 Mo. 174 (statute runs from time when the substantial right of recovery accrues); Miller v. Woodward, 8 Mo. 169; Garesche v. Lewis, 15 Mo. App. 565 [affirmed in 93 Mo. 197, 6 S. W. 54]; Larkin v. Willi, 12 Mo. App. 135; Hicks v. Jamison, 10 Mo. App. 35.

99. Wood v. Wood, 40 Ill. App. 182.

Liability of the estates of deceased nonresident shareholders see Grand Rapids Sav. Bank v. Warren, 52 Mich. 557, 18 N. W. 356.

1. Grew v. Breed, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 569; New England Commercial Bank v. Newport Steam Factory, 6 R. I. 154, 75 Am. Dec. 688; Turquand v. Kirby, L. R. 4 Eq. 123, 36 L. J. Ch. 570, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 260, 15 Wkly. Rep. 730. Compare Re Agriculturist Cattle Ins. Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 725, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 424, 18 Wkly. Rep. 1094, where this case is noticed.

2. Thompson v. Reno Sav. Bank, 19 Nev. 242, 9 Pac. 121, 3 Am. St. Rep. 883 [citing Gunter v. Janes, 9 Cal. 643; Hull v. Standard Coal, etc., Co., 7 Ohio S. & C. Pl. Dec. 527, 7 Ohio N. P. 157].

4. When Executor or Administrator Personally Liable — a. In General. If the executor or administrator invests the funds of the estate in corporate shares — in case of an executor, without authority so to do in the will — the shares are treated as belonging to him, and not to the estate; and he and not the estate is responsible as shareholder;[3] and if in consequence of so acting he suffers loss, he must seek indemnity out of the trust estate.[4] Such an acceptance of shares has been discovered in the act of an executor participating in the profits of the corporation, that is to say, in receiving dividends.[5]

b. Executor Liable For Breach of Trust. Outside of this principle an executor may make himself personally liable to contribute for the benefit of creditors, by committing a breach of trust in improperly disposing of the trust fund in his hands, out of which contribution is regularly sought, as where executors of a deceased shareholder, in a going and solvent company, commit a breach of trust in paying a legacy without providing for the liability attaching to the testator's estate at the time of his death in respect of such shares; so that in the event of the company afterward being wound up he must pay out of his own pocket the calls made upon him as a contributory.[6]

5. Liability of Estates of Deceased Shareholders in National Banks. By the National Banking Act "persons holding stock as executors, administrators, guardians, or trustees shall not be personally subject to any liabilities as stockholders; but the estates and funds in their hands shall be liable, in like manner and to the same extent as the testator, intestate, ward, or person interested in such trust funds would be if living and competent to act, and hold the stock in his own name."[7] Under this statute it has been held that an administrator is not personally liable to assessment on bank-stock which always remained in his hands in his representative capacity, and was never transferred to him on the books of the bank, although he is sole heir to the intestate.[8] Under this statute executors who accept shares in a national bank which were held by their testator, by including them in the inventory, become liable as shareholders, as executors, and in respect of the trust assets in their hands, but not in their individual liability.[9]

P. Conditions Precedent to Right to Proceed Against Shareholders — 1. Dissolution of Corporation — a. Contracts of Corporations With Third Parties Do Not Perpetuate Its Existence. Contracts entered into between a corpora-

3. Diven v. Lee, 36 N. Y. 302, 1 Transcr. App. (N. Y.) 54, 34 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 197; Spence's Case, 17 Beav. 203 (per Lord Romilly, M. R.). That an executor who carries on business of his testator makes himself personally liable see Alsop v. Mather, 8 Conn. 584, 21 Am. Dec. 703; Stedman v. Feidler, 20 N. Y. 437; Thompson v. Brown, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 619; Ex p. Richardson, Buck 202, 3 Madd. 138; Liverpool Borough Bank v. Walker, 4 De G. & J. 24, 61 Eng. Ch. 19; Labouchere v. Tupper, 11 Moore P. C. 198, 5 Wkly. Rep. 797, 14 Eng. Reprint 670; Wightman v. Townroe, 1 M. & S. 412, 14 Rev. Rep. 475; Ex p. Garland, 1 Smith K. B. 220, 10 Ves. Jr. 110, 7 Rev. Rep. 352.

4. In re Leeds Banking Co., L. R. 1 Ch. 231; Jackson v. Turquand, L. R. 4 H. L. 305, 39 L. J. Ch. 11; In re Cheshire Banking Co., 32 Ch. D. 301, 54 L. T. Rep. N. S. 558; Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 814.

5. Matter of North of England Joint-stock Banking Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 258. See also Matter of St. George's Steam Packet Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 279. Compare In re Herefordshire Banking Co., 33 Beav. 435, where the acceptance of dividends was held not to bind an executrix under the circumstances. See also Matter of St. George's Steam Packet Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 11, 13 Jur. 530, 672, 18 L. J. Ch. 259, where the acceptance was not held to bind the executor. It has been held that an executor who, pursuant to the provisions of the will, procures stock standing in his own name to be transferred to himself as executor, is, on the insolvency of the corporation, secondarily liable for the shareholder's statutory superadded liability, while the estate is primarily liable. Markell v. Ray, 75 Minn. 138, 77 N. W. 788, construing Minn. Gen. Stat. (1894), § 3419.

6. Taylor v. Taylor, L. R. 10 Eq. 477, 39 L. J. Ch. 676, 18 Wkly. Rep. 1102. For another illustration of the principle on which this case was decided see Knatchbull v. Fearnhead, 1 Jur. 687, 3 Myl. & C. 122, 14 Eng. Ch. 122.

7. U. S. Rev. Stat. (1872), § 5152.

8. Matter of Bingham, 10 N. Y. Suppl. 325, 32 N. Y. St. 782.

9. Parker v. Robinson, 71 Fed. 256, 18 C. C. A. 36.

tion and a third party cannot be invoked to endow the corporation with the perpetuity of existence contrary to the terms of its charter.[10]

b. Judgment Against Dead Corporation a Nullity. A judgment cannot be rendered against a dead corporation any more than against a dead person, but such a judgment is a nullity or at least subject to a reversal on error.[11]

c. Death of Corporation Does Not Impair Obligation of Its Contracts — (I) Statement of Rule. As in the case of a natural person, so the death of a corporation does not extinguish its contracts but they survive in the sense that they are capable of being enforced against any property of the corporation which has not passed into the hands of a bona fide purchaser without notice.[12]

(II) Consequences of This Principle — (A) What Statutes Providing For Administration of Assets of Dissolved Corporations Are Valid. It follows that a legislative act dissolving a corporation and transferring its franchises to another is not unconstitutional, since it does not impair the obligation of its contracts.[13] So it is a sound view that a man has no constitutional right not to pay his debts;[14] an act of the legislature compelling him so to do does not impair the obligation of his contracts with his creditors, but gives vitality to them; and hence a statute providing that when a judgment is entered against an incorporated bank, ousting it of its franchises, its debtors shall not thereby be released from their debts and liabilities, and prescribing a mode for collecting such debts and enforcing such liabilities is a valid exercise of legislative power.[15] A statute providing for a distribution among creditors of the property of corporations whose charters had become forfeited was likewise valid.[16] On the other hand a law distributing the property of an insolvent trading or banking corporation among its shareholders, giving it to strangers, or seizing it to the use of the state would as clearly impair the obligation of its contracts as a law giving to the heirs the personal effects of a deceased natural person would impair the obligation of its contracts.[17]

(B) When Equity Will Take Charge of and Wind Up Dissolved Corporation. It follows that a corporation cannot, by dissolving itself, defeat the rights of its creditors; but if its officers die, resign, or refuse to act, and its shareholders neglect or refuse to appoint others in their place, a court of equity, which never allows a trust to fail for want of a trustee, will interfere and appoint a receiver or manager ad interim, for the purpose of winding-up and putting an end to the concern.[18]

10. Mumma v. Potomac Co., 8 Pet. (U. S.) 281, 8 L. ed. 945, per Story, J.

11. Bonaffe v. Fowler, 7 Paige (N. Y.) 576; Mumma v. Potomac Co., 8 Pet. (U. S.) 281, 287, 8 L. ed. 945 (per Story, J.).

12. Georgia.— Hightower v. Thornton, 8 Ga. 486, 52 Am. Dec. 412.

Illinois.— Tarbell v. Page, 24 Ill. 46.

Mississippi.— Nevitt v. Port Gibson Bank, 6 Sm. & M. 513, opinion furnished by ex-Chancellor Kent as counsel [quoted with approval in Hightower v. Thornton, 8 Ga. 486, 52 Am. Dec. 412].

New York.— Tinkham v. Boist, 31 Barb. 407.

United States.— Bacon v. Robertson, 18 How. 480, 15 L. ed. 499; Curran v. Arkansas, 15 How. 304, 14 L. ed. 705; Mumma v. Potomac Co., 8 Pet. 281, 8 L. ed. 945.

In Alabama the supreme court held in 1847 that a shareholder of a dissolved corporation was not liable to be garnished by a creditor. Paschall v. Whitsett, 11 Ala. 472. The old rule of the common law that with the dissolution of a corporation both the debts due to it and from it are extinguished is now thoroughly exploded. See Curry v. Woodward, 53 Ala. 371. An isolated case is found in North Carolina holding that when the debts of a corporation become extinguished by the dissolution of its charter, the individual liability of the shareholders becomes extinct also. Malloy v. Mallett, 59 N. C. 345. A weak conception of the same kind crops out in Robinson v. Beall, 26 Ga. 17, and in Hopkins v. Whitesides, 1 Head (Tenn.) 31.

13. Mumma v. Potomac Co., 8 Pet. (U. S.) 281, 8 L. ed. 945.

14. Harris v. Glenn, 56 Ga. 94, 96; Sparger v. Cumpton, 54 Ga. 355.

15. Nevitt v. Port Gibson Bank, 6 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 513.

16. Mudge v. New Orleans Exch., etc., 10 Rob. (La.) 460.

17. Curran v. Arkansas, 15 How. (U. S.) 304, 312, 14 L. ed. 705, per Curtis, J.

18. Curry v. Woodward, 53 Ala. 371; Brown v. Union Ins. Co., 3 La. Ann. 177;

(c) Dissolution of Corporation Does Not Extinguish Liability of Shareholders. An application of the foregoing principle is that the dissolution of a corporation does not extinguish or affect the liability of its shareholders as toward its creditors.[19] Nor does it increase their liability as shareholders, or render them personally liable for the debts of the corporation except so far as the governing statute makes them so.[20]

(d) Dissolution Fixes Liability of Shareholder. But under a statute giving to creditors of an insolvent corporation direct remedies against its shareholders, it is said that the liability of the shareholder to the corporation, in respect of what is unpaid on its shares, becomes fixed by the insolvency and dissolution of the corporation, and then becomes a primary liability.[21]

(e) Excuses Creditor From Reducing His Demand to Judgment. Moreover, as we shall hereafter see,[22] a dissolution of the corporation, even a de facto dissolution, excuses the creditor from the vain proceeding of reducing his claim to judgment against the corporation before the proceeding to enforce against the shareholders those remedies which the statute on the general principles of law gives him.[23]

d. Statutes and Constitutional Provisions Making Liability of Shareholders Depend on Dissolution of Corporation. Statutes and constitutional provisions exist in many states, which, in various forms of expression, impose a liability upon shareholders to pay such debts of the corporation as may exist at the time of its dissolution. An examination of them will show that they generally predicate the right to proceed against the shareholders upon the fact that the corporation becomes dissolved leaving debts unpaid. The operation of such statutes is such that a dissolution of the corporation opens the door to an action by any creditor of the corporation against any of its shareholders, without first exhausting his remedies against the corporation by a judgment, execution, and return of nulla bona.[24]

e. What Constitutes Dissolution[25] Such as Lets in Remedies of Creditors Against Shareholders — (i) Not Necessary That Dissolution Should Have Been Judicially Declared. It is not necessary that the forfeiture and dissolution should have been declared by the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction.[26]

(ii) Expiration of Charter — Dissolution by Operation of Law. Such a dissolution may indeed take place under a statute when its charter expires by operation of law, and when an injunction restraining it from doing business has been made perpetual.[27]

(iii) Dissolution by Insolvency, Bankruptcy, Cesser of Business, Etc. — (a) In General. But an adjudication of bankruptcy[28] or a cessation of business by reason of utter insolvency will equally have this effect.[29]

Carlen v. Drury, 1 Ves. & B. 154, 12 Rev. Rep. 203. See also Knowlton v. Ackley, 8 Cush. (Mass.) 93.

19. Hyman v. Coleman, 82 Cal. 650, 23 Pac. 62, 16 Am. St. Rep. 178.

20. Tarbell v. Page, 24 Ill. 46.

21. Garesche v. Lewis, 98 Mo. 197, 6 S. W. 54.

22. See infra, VIII, P, 3, a et seq.

23. Shellington v. Howland, 53 N. Y. 371 [affirming 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 14]. With which compare Kincaid v. Dwinelle, 59 N. Y. 548 [affirming 37 N. Y. Super. Ct. 326].

24. Gibbs v. Davis, 27 Fla. 531, 8 So. 633. So under a similar statute of Alabama. McDonnell v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 85 Ala. 401, 5 So. 120. It has been held that a creditor of a corporation which has expired by the limitation of its charter may enforce his claim against a shareholder when liability of the shareholder became fixed under the statute prior to the dissolution of the corporation. Fox v. Atchison First Nat. Bank, 9 Kan. App. 18, 57 Pac. 241.

25. How fact of dissolution pleaded.— See Perry v. Turner, 55 Mo. 418; Poughkeepsie Bank v. Ibbotson, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 473; Blake v. Hinkle, 10 Yerg. (Tenn.) 218.

26. McDonnell v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 85 Ala. 401, 5 So. 120; Shickle v. Watts, 94 Mo. 410, 7 S. W. 274.

27. Dane v. Young, 61 Me. 160, opinion by Dickerson, J.

28. Tibballs v. Libby, 87 Ill. 142; State Sav. Assoc. v. Kellogg, 52 Mo. 583.

29. Penniman v. Briggs, Hopk. (N. Y.) 300 [affirmed in 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 387, 18 Am. Dec. 454].

(B) What Constitutes Insolvency For This Purpose. It has been ruled that a corporation whose property, at a fair valuation, is insufficient to pay its debts, including the amount paid in on the subscriptions to its stock, is insolvent, so as to allow creditors to enforce payment by shareholders of unpaid subscriptions.[30]

(IV) Dissolution by Doing or Suffering Acts Which Destroy End and Object For Which Corporation Created. A dissolution de facto within the meaning of statutes letting in the remedies of creditors against shareholders may take place whenever the corporation suffers acts to be done which destroy the end and object for which it was created.[31]

f. What Does Not Constitute Such Dissolution. On the other hand the rule seems to be well established that a mere neglect to comply with the requirements of the charter or by-laws in regard to the time of electing officers does not work a forfeiture of corporate rights and privileges.[32]

2. Necessity of Creditor Exhausting Remedy at Law Against Corporation Before Proceeding to Charge Shareholder — a. In General. The general rule, where the creditor seeks to charge the shareholder in respect of what remains

30. Goetz v. Knie, 103 Wis. 366, 79 N. W. 401 [citing Jackson v. Traer, 64 Iowa 469, 20 N. W. 764, 52 Am. Rep. 449; Minneapolis Paper Co. v. Swinburne Printing Co., 66 Minn. 378, 69 N. W. 144; Skrainka v. Allen, 76 Mo. 384; Scovill v. Thayer, 105 U. S. 143, 26 L. ed. 968; Sawyer v. Hoag, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 610, 21 L. ed. 731]. See also the following cases:

Alabama.— McDonnell v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 85 Ala. 401, 5 So. 120.

Florida.— Gibbs v. Davis, 27 Fla. 531, 8 So. 633.

Kentucky.— Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Griest, 85 Ky. 619, 4 S. W. 323, 9 Ky. L. Rep. 177.

Ohio.— Barrick v. Gifford, 47 Ohio St. 180, 24 N. E. 259, 21 Am. St. Rep. 798.

United States.— Mellen v. Moline Malleable Iron Works, 131 U. S. 352, 9 S. Ct. 781, 33 L. ed. 178.

So where the corporation becomes not only insolvent but a "nominal inert body." Central Agricultural, etc., Assoc. v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 70 Ala. 120.

31. Gibbs v. Davis, 27 Fla. 531, 8 So. 633; Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Griest, 85 Ky. 619, 4 S. W. 323, 9 Ky. L. Rep. 177; Perry v. Turner, 55 Mo. 418; State Sav. Assoc. v. Kellogg, 52 Mo. 583; Dryden v. Kellogg, 2 Mo. App. 87; Briggs v. Penniman, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 387, 18 Am. Dec. 454 [affirming Hopk. (N. Y.) 300]; Slee v. Bloom, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 456, 10 Am. Dec. 273. Of this nature are failing to elect trustees or to transact other business at a regular annual meeting, and the suffering of a sale of all the corporate property. Slee v. Bloom, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 456, 10 Am. Dec. 273.

Suspension of business for more than a year under Kansas statute.— A statute of Kansas (Kan. Gen. Stat. (1889), § 1200), provides that a corporation shall be deemed dissolved for the purpose of enabling its creditors to prosecute suits against its shareholders to enforce their individual liability, if it is shown that such corporation has suspended business for more than one year. Within the meaning of this statute, the business of a bank is suspended when the bank commissioners take possession of it to wind it up. Crocker v. Ball, 10 Kan. App. 364, 59 Pac. 691. A corporation is dissolved within the meaning of the statute when it has made an assignment of all its assets for more than one year before the commencement of an action against its shareholders. Krider v. Coley, 7 Kan. App. 349, 51 Pac. 919. Suspending business, within the meaning of the statute, is the ceasing to carry on the usual and ordinary business of the corporation and not by the officers performing the acts necessary to wind it up. Jones v. Edson, 10 Kan. App. 110, 62 Pac. 249. But such a suspension does not take place merely because the corporation has temporarily suspended a portion of its business while it continues to carry on the remainder, its place of business remaining open and occupied, and its officers being paid as usual. Mechanics' Sav. Bank v. Fidelity Ins., etc., Co., 91 Fed. 456. The suspension of business for more than a year has no other effect than to operate as a dissolution of the corporation for the purpose of enabling its creditors to pursue its shareholders. Jones v. Edson, 10 Kan. App. 110, 62 Pac. 249. It does not render a judgment void which has been entered against the corporation after the expiration of one year from the suspension of its business. Siceper v. Norris, 59 Kan. 555, 53 Pac. 757. The fact that a corporation organized to deal in land makes a single deed conveying land more than three years after its suspension of business is not such a revival of business as will toll the statute of limitations in favor of the right of its creditor to prosecute an action against its shareholders. Jones v. Edson, 10 Kan. App. 110, 62 Pac. 249.

Effect of dissolution.—Dissolution of a bank created by an expiration of charter a perpetual injunction against further prosecution of business. Dane v. Young, 61 Me. 160; Wiswell v. Starr, 48 Me. 401.

32. Knowlton v. Ackley, 8 Cush. (Mass.) 93; People v. Runkle, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 147; unpaid on his shares, and also where he seeks to enforce against him an individual statutory liability, is that he must first exhaust his remedy against the corporation.[33]

b. Ordinary Legal Remedies. It is not necessary to exhaust all remedies against the corporation before proceeding against its shareholders in equity, but only all remedies against it at law.[34] It will be generally sufficient for the creditor to show that he exhausted the ordinary processes of the law against the corporation; and this will ordinarily appear by a judgment, an execution, and a return of nulla bona.[35] On the other hand this may be shown as a fact; and in one case it was held proper to admit evidence that the corporation had no property in the hands of an assignee to whom it had made a voluntary assignment, which could be applied in satisfaction of plaintiff's claim.[36] A judgment creditor of a corporation is not obliged, as a condition precedent to a suit in equity, to enforce the liability of its shareholders to subject the corporation's equity of redemption in property to levy and sale, where the property is worth less than the debt secured by the mortgage thereon.[37]

c. Measure of Diligence Is Judgment, Fieri Facias, and Nulla Bona — (i) In General. Generally speaking no greater degree of diligence is required of the creditor in prosecuting his demand against the corporation, before he can proceed against the shareholder, than is implied in the recovery of a judgment against the corporation, the suing out of a writ of fieri facias against it, and a return of nulla bona thereon.[38] But in many jurisdictions[39] this measure of diligence is required.

(ii) This Means Return of Execution Unsatisfied in County of Home Office of Corporation. This return of nulla bona is the return of an execution against the corporation, unsatisfied, in the county of its home office; and this is sufficient to justify an action by the judgment creditor against a shareholder personally;[40] and this has been held to be true under a Michigan statute, Blake v. Hinkle, 10 Yerg. (Tenn.) 218. Compare Ward v. Sea Ins. Co., 7 Paige (N. Y.) 294.

33. Georgia.— Lane v. Harris, 16 Ga. 217; Thornton v. Lane, 11 Ga. 459.

Maine.— Drinkwater v. Portland Mar. R. Co., 18 Me. 35.

Massachusetts.— Chamberlin v. Huguenot Mfg. Co., 118 Mass. 532; Priest v. Essex Hat Mfg. Co., 115 Mass. 380; Cambridge Water Works v. Somerville Dyeing, etc., Co., 4 Allen 239.

Missouri.— McClaren v. Franciscus, 43 Mo. 452.

New York.— Handy v. Draper, 89 N. Y. 334; Cuykendall v. Corning, 88 N. Y. 129; Shellington v. Howland, 53 N. Y. 371 [affirming 67 Barb. 14]; Andrews v. Vanderbilt, 37 Hun 468; Birmingham Nat. Bank v. Mosser, 14 Hun 605; Richards v. Beach, 19 Abb. N. Cas. 84, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 574; Richards v. Coe, 19 Abb. N. Cas. 79; Lindsley v. Simonds, 2 Abb. Pr. N. S. 69.

Ohio.— Wehrman v. Reakirt, 1 Cinc. Super. Ct. 230.

Oregon.— Bush v. Cartwright, 7 Oreg. 329.

Rhode Island.— New England Commercial Bank v. Newport Steam Factory, 6 R. I. 154, 75 Am. Dec. 688.

Tennessee.— Jackson v. Meek, 87 Tenn. 69, 9 S. W. 225, 10 Am. St. Rep. 620; Blake v. Hinkle, 10 Yerg. 218.

Vermont.— Dauchy v. Brown, 24 Vt. 197.

United States.— Swan Land, etc., Co. v. Frank, 39 Fed. 456.

34. Masters v. Rossie Lead Min. Co., 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 301.

35. See infra, VIII, P, 2, c, (I) et seq.

36. Sleeper v. Goodwin, 67 Wis. 577, 31 N. W. 335.

37. Pickering v. Townsend, 118 Ala. 351, 23 So. 703.

38. Baines v. Story, (Cal. 1892) 30 Pac. 777; Baines v. Babcock, 95 Cal. 581, 27 Pac. 674, 30 Pac. 776, 29 Am. St. Rep. 158; Thornton v. Lane, 11 Ga. 459; U. S. Bank v. Dallam, 4 Dana (Ky.) 574.

39. Georgia.— Lamar v. Allison, 101 Ga. 270, 28 S. E. 686.

Nebraska.— Wehn v. Fall, 55 Nebr. 547, 76 N. W. 13, 70 Am. St. Rep. 397.

New York.— Walton v. Coe, 110 N. Y. 109, 17 N. E. 677, 16 N. Y. St. 866 (under the language of the New York Business Corporation Act of 1875); Berwind-White Coal Min. Co. v. Ewart, 90 Hun 60, 35 N. Y. Suppl. 573, 70 N. Y. St. 233 [affirming 11 Misc. 49, 32 N. Y. Suppl. 716, where the creditor released a levy on corporate property under an illegal agreement with the directors]; U. S. Glass Co. v. Levett, 24 Misc. 429, 53 N. Y. Suppl. 688 (although corporation is dissolved after commencement of creditors' action against it and the necessity is not obviated by a temporary order appointing a receiver of the corporation in a pending proceeding for a temporary dissolution, etc.).

Ohio.— Barrick v. Gifford, 47 Ohio St. 180, 24 N. E. 259, 21 Am. St. Rep. 798.

United States.— Swan Land, etc., Co. v. Frank, 39 Fed. 456.

40. Ripley v. Evans, 87 Mich. 217, 49 N. W. 504; Bagley v. Tyler, 43 Mo. App. 195.

although it may appear that the corporation had property or effects in another county in the state.[41]

(III) When This Requirement Dispensed With. In an action by the receiver of a foreign corporation to enforce the liability of a resident shareholder, the provisions of the statutes of the state where the action is brought, requiring judgment against the corporation, and the return of execution unsatisfied as a condition precedent to the action, will not be enforced, since service of process cannot be had.[42]

d. Whether Return of Nulla Bona Is Conclusive. On principle and the weight of authority, a nulla bona return of the execution against the corporation is conclusive of the fact that there are no legal assets of the corporation which can be made available to satisfy the demand of the judgment creditor.[43] Other courts have declined to hold that a return of nulla bona upon an execution against the corporation is conclusive against the shareholder, unless notice has been given to him of the issuing of the execution, to the end that he might point out corporate property.[44]

e. Rule Where Liability Is Said to Be Primary — (I) Doctrine That Remedy Against Corporation Must Be First Exhausted. Some courts hold that the rule which requires the creditor to exhaust his remedy against the corporation applies even where the liability of the shareholder is primary, like that of an original undertaker or partner.[45] The doctrine of these cases is something like this: Although here is a partnership, a creditor must first exhaust the partnership funds, or proceed till he finds none, before he can attach the separate property of the several members.[46] We find statutes under which the liability of the shareholder is declared to be primary, in the sense which distinguishes it from the liability of a surety or guarantor;[47] and also in the sense that the foundation of their liability consists in the original demand against the company, and not in the judgment which the creditor has obtained against it;[48] and in the further sense which makes them liable as original debtors at the instant when the 41. Ripley v. Evans, 87 Mich. 217, 49 N. W. 504.

42. Howarth v. Angle, 162 N. Y. 179, 56 N. E. 489, 30 N. Y. Civ. Proc. 306, 47 L. R. A. 725 [affirming 39 N. Y. App. Div. 151, 57 N. Y. Suppl. 187].

43. California.— Baines v. Babcock, 95 Cal. 531, 27 Pac. 674, 30 Pac. 776, 29 Am. St. Rep. 158.

Kansas.— Steffins v. Gurney, 61 Kan. 292, 59 Pac. 725; Thompson v. Pfeiffer, 60 Kan. 409, 56 Pac. 763, in the absence of fraud on the part of the levying officer.

Maine.— Chaffin v. Cummings, 37 Me. 76.

Michigan.— Ripley v. Evans, 87 Mich. 217, 49 N. W. 504.

United States.— Platt v. Larter, 94 Fed. 610, holding that the fact that there may be some assets in the hands of a receiver of an insolvent corporation is no defense to an action against a shareholder under Kansas statute, if execution against corporation returned unsatisfied.

For a statement of the governing principle see Jones v. Green, 1 Wall (U. S.) 330, 17 L. ed. 553. That this principle is applicable to creditors of corporations see Van Weel v. Winston, 115 U. S. 228, 6 S. Ct. 22, 29 L. ed. 384. For a long collection of decisions by Mr. Justice Cooley on the conclusiveness of a sheriff's return see Michels v. Stark, 52 Mich. 260, 17 N. W. 833, collected at length in 3 Thompson Corp. § 3362.

44. Lane v. Harris, 16 Ga. 217. But a plea that the corporation had assets, without specifying what they were, was deemed insufficient, in an action against a shareholder after a return of nulla bona. Lane v. Morris, 8 Ga. 468.

45. Stone v. Wiggin, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 316; Marcy v. Clark, 17 Mass. 330. Compare Stedman v. Eveleth, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 114; Leland v. Marsh, 16 Mass. 389; Perkins v. Church, 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 84.

46. Means' Appeal, 85 Pa. St. 75; Dauchy v. Brown, 24 Vt. 197. Numerous statutes exist affirming this principle, such as Mass. Stat. (1862), c. 218, §§ 3, 4; Mass. Stat. (1870), c. 224, §§ 40, 42; 8 & 9 Vict. c. 16 (Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845), § 36. See Peele v. Phillips, 8 Allen (Mass.) 86.

47. Hyman v. Coleman, 82 Cal. 650, 23 Pac. 62, 16 Am. St. Rep. 178; Young v. Rosenbaum, 39 Cal. 646; Mokelumne Hill Canal, etc., Min. Co. v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 265.

48. Such was the liability under a statute of New York relating to joint-stock companies. Witherhead v. Allen, 4 Abb. Dec. (N. Y.) 628, 3 Keyes (N. Y.) 562, 8 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 164, 33 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 620.

contract with the corporation is completed.[49] And yet in these cases the courts recognize the principle that the liability, in a remedial statute, is secondary to that of the corporation, that is, the creditor is not permitted in ordinary cases to ignore the corporation and proceed directly against the shareholder, but must proceed first against the corporation and exhaust his remedy there, and then proceed against the shareholder.

(II) Doctrine That It Need Not Be First Exhausted — (A) In General. The general, although not the universal, rule is, that where the member is liable as a partner or principal debtor it is not necessary, as a condition precedent to the right to proceed against him, that the creditor should have first exhausted his remedy against the corporation. In such cases the members are responsible to the same extent and in the same manner as though there were no act of incorporation, and no attempt to organize as a corporation under a general law;[50] for such a liability is primary and absolute, and attaches the moment the debt is created.[51]

(B) Statutes Under Which Exhaustion of Corporate Assets Must Be Judicially Ascertained — (1) In General. Statutes and constitutional provisions exist under which, before creditors of the corporation can proceed against its shareholders, the fact that the corporate assets have been exhausted must have been judicially ascertained.[52] When the assignee has settled, and the insolvency court has approved an account showing a complete administration of the assets of the corporation by their reduction to cash, and showing the net amount available for the payment of claims, then, if claims have been proved and allowed in excess of the net amount, the fact and amount of the default of the corporation, as to creditors at least, is ipso facto judicially determined, so as to entitle the assignee to sue the shareholders for the difference between the value of property taken in payment of stock and the agreed value.[53]

(2) Whether Simple Contract Creditor Can Sue. It is necessarily a part

49. Conklin v. Furman, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 484.

50. Coleman v. White, 14 Wis. 700, 80 Am. Dec. 797.

51. Alabama.— See McDonnell v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 85 Ala. 401, 5 So. 120 (holding that a statutory individual liability becomes primary and absolute as soon as the corporation is dissolved, and that creditors need not aver or prove the insolvency of the corporation); Central Agricultural, etc., Assoc. v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 70 Ala. 120 (where complainant, suing in behalf of himself and all the other creditors who might come in and make themselves parties, was not himself a judgment creditor); Spence v. Shapard, 57 Ala. 598.

California.— See Hyman v. Coleman, 82 Cal. 650, 23 Pac. 62, 16 Am. St. Rep. 178; Sonoma Valley Bank v. Hill, 59 Cal. 107; Young v. Rosenbaum, 39 Cal, 646; Mokelumne Hill Canal, etc., Min. Co., v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 265.

Connecticut.— Southmayd v. Russ, 3 Conn. 52, holding that scire facias on judgment against corporation would not lie against a shareholder, because his liability was primary.

Georgia.— Robinson v. Lane, 19 Ga. 337.

Massachusetts.— Stone v. Wiggin, 5 Metc. 316; Marcy v. Clark, 17 Mass. 330; Leland v. Marsh, 16 Mass. 389 (holding that no scire facias or other process against the shareholder is allowed under a statute, but that he is charged, at the peril of the creditor, on the same process which issued against the corporation).

New Hampshire.— Erickson v. Nesmith, 46 N. H. 371.

New York.— The following holdings more or less closely illustrate this theory: Moss v. Averell, 10 N. Y. 449; Corning v. McCullough, 1 N. Y. 47, 49 Am. Dec. 287; Abbott v. Aspinwall, 26 Barb. 202; Moss v. McCullough, 7 Barb. 279; Worrall v. Judson, 5 Barb. 210; Moss v. McCullough, 5 Hill 131; Moss v. Oakley, 2 Hill 265.

Rhode Island.— New England Commercial Bank v. Newport Steam Factory, 6 R. I. 154, 75 Am. Dec. 688.

Wisconsin.— Coleman v. White, 14 Wis. 700, 80 Am. Dec. 797.

52. Gillin v. Sawyer, 93 Me. 151, 44 Atl. 677 (where the liability is secondary and analogous to that of guarantor); Van Pelt v. Gardner, 54 Nebr. 701, 74 N. W. 1083, 75 N. W. 874 (amount justly due the creditors from the corporation is "judicially ascertained" by judgment, execution, and return of nulla bona); German Nat. Bank v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 54 Nebr. 593, 74 N. W. 1086 (meaning of the words "judicially ascertained").

53. Gillin v. Sawyer, 93 Me. 151, 44 Atl. 677.

of the doctrine of the last preceding paragraph that the claim of the creditor need not be reduced to judgment, the liability of the shareholder being original and primary; but that a simple contract creditor can sue.[54] Under principles of equity a simple contract creditor cannot proceed against a shareholder without first reducing his demand to a judgment at law.[55] But statutes exist dispensing with this requirement and enabling creditors to proceed against the corporation, when it becomes insolvent, by a bill in equity without first reducing their demands to judgment at law.[56]

f. Where Liability of Shareholder Is Secondary and Collateral Corporate Assets Must Be First Exhausted. Under most statutes creating or defining the liability of shareholders such liability is held to be secondary or collateral to that of the corporation, to be resorted to by creditors only in case of the insolvency of the corporation or where payment cannot be enforced by the ordinary legal process.[57]

g. When Judgment at Law Against Corporation Necessary to Let in Equitable Relief in Equity Against Shareholders — (i) In General. On a well-known rule of equity procedure, a creditor of a corporation cannot have equitable relief against its shareholders until he has prosecuted his demand to a judgment at law against a corporation, unless circumstances existed excusing him from doing so; and this rule is of special importance where his demand sounds in damages, since here the corporation is entitled to a trial by jury.[58] Nor will a mere de facto dissolution of a corporation, which is evidenced by its having distributed all its assets among its shareholders and ceased to make any use of its franchises, be such a dissolution as will dispense with the necessity of prosecuting such an action against it before attacking its shareholders.[59]

(ii) Facts Not Sufficient to Dispense With Necessity of Obtaining Such Judgment. No facts will be sufficient to excuse the creditor from obtaining a judgment at law against the corporation, except facts which are such as to make it impracticable for him to obtain such a judgment. The mere insolvency of the corporation;[60] the expiration of its charter by limitation, provided the governing statute does not allow this fact to prevent the obtaining of a judgment against it,[61] a mere de facto dissolution of the corporation, consisting of a permanent suspension of its business and an abandonment of its franchise by reason of insolvency,[62] do not have this effect. But a legal dissolution does, since a judgment cannot be recovered against a dead corporation any more than against a dead man.[63]

h. Assessment as Foundation of Action by Receiver. Generally speaking a valid assessment, either by the board of directors or by a receiver or other 54. McDonnell v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co., 85 Ala. 401, 5 So. 120; Spence v. Shapard, 57 Ala. 598.

55. Medberry v. Troutman, 94 Fed. 952.

56. Cohn v. Waters, 83 Ill. App. 387. See also Chase v. Horton Bank, 9 Kan. App. 186, 59 Pac. 39; De Camp v. Levoy, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 335, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 509.

57. Massachusetts.— Pratt v. Bacon, 10 Pick. 123.

Nebraska.— German Nat. Bank v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 54 Nebr. 593, 74 N. W. 1086, provision of the constitution of Nebraska to this effect applies to shareholders in banking corporations.

Pennsylvania.— Patterson v. Wyomissing Mfg. Co., 40 Pa. St. 117, holding that the court will apply the usual remedy against grantors.

Vermont.— Barton Nat. Bank v. Atkins, 72 Vt. 33, 47 Atl. 176; Dauchy v. Brown, 24 Vt. 197.

West Virginia.— Nimick v. Mingo Iron Works Co., 25 W. Va. 184.

58. Swan Land, etc., Co. v. Frank, 39 Fed. 456. See to the general doctrine Drinkwater v. Portland Mar. R. Co., 18 Me. 35; Cambridge Water Works v. Somerville Dyeing, etc., Co., 4 Allen (Mass.) 239.

59. Swan Land, etc., Co. v. Frank, 39 Fed. 456. On the general principle that the remedy at law must be exhausted before invoking the aid of equity see Van Weel v. Winston, 115 U. S. 228, 6 S. Ct. 22, 29 L. ed. 384; Jones v. Green, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 330, 17 L. ed. 553.

60. Trabell v. Page, 24 Ill. 46.

61. Andrews v. Vanderbilt, 37 Hun (N. Y.) 468.

62. Blake v. Hinkle, 10 Yerg. (Tenn.) 218.

63. Mumma v. Potomac Co., 8 Pet. (U. S.) 281, 8 L. ed. 945.

trustee acting under direction of a court, is necessary to enable the receiver to maintain actions at law against the several shareholders to recover what each one ought to contribute to make up the deficiency necessary for the satisfaction of creditors and the payment of the costs of the administration.[64] If the deficiency in the corporate assets is equal to the amount of the unpaid stock, in other words if all that is due from the shareholders is required, then no assessment is necessary to an action against a single shareholder.[65] An assessment does not preclude a shareholder from showing that he is not the holder of so large an amount of stock as is alleged, or that he has a claim against the corporation which he is entitled to set off against the assessment.[66]

3. WHAT WILL EXCUSE NECESSITY OF EXHAUSTING LEGAL REMEDIES AGAINST CORPORATION — a. De Jure Dissolution of Corporation. A de jure dissolution of the corporation, as by the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction,[67] renders it impossible to recover a judgment against it, since a valid judgment cannot be recovered against a dead corporation.[68]

b. De Facto Dissolution of Corporation — (I) IN GENERAL. Under many theories a de facto dissolution of the corporation has the same effect, not because it renders it impossible to recover a valid judgment against the corporation, but because it renders the recovery of such a judgment nugatory, and the law does not require a man to do a vain thing.[69]

(II) WHEN DE FACTO DISSOLUTION DOES NOT EXCUSE RECOVERY OF JUDGMENT AT LAW — (A) In General. But under many theories a mere de facto dissolution of the corporation will not excuse the creditor in failing to prosecute his demand to judgment at law against it before proceeding to charge the shareholders, but nothing less than a legal dissolution will have this effect.[70]

(B) De Facto Dissolution Not Sufficient Where Claim Sounds in Damages. A de facto dissolution does not dispense with the necessity of the creditor prosecuting his demand to a judgment at law, where it sounds in damages, since in such a case the corporation is entitled to a trial by jury.[71]

c. Appointment of Receiver — (I) IN GENERAL. The appointment of a receiver, in a proceeding to wind up the affairs of a corporation, will generally have the effect of preventing the prosecution by separate creditors of their statutory remedies against particular shareholders, the theory of many courts being that not only the indebtedness of the shareholder to the company in respect of any unpaid portion of his subscription for his shares, but also his superadded statutory liability, is in the nature of equitable assets of the corporation, which pass into the hand of the receiver for administration; and this necessarily excludes the right of creditors to prosecute separate suits against shareholders.[72]

64. Bennett v. Great Western Tel. Co., 53 Ill. App. 276 (court cannot assess equally); Gillin v. Sawyer, 93 Mo. 151, 44 Atl. 677.

65. Dunn v. Howe, 96 Fed. 160 [citing Potts v. Wallace, 146 U. S. 689, 13 S. Ct. 196, 36 L. ed. 1135].

66. Straw, etc., Mfg. Co. v. L. D. Kilbourne Boot, etc., Co., 80 Minn. 125, 83 N. W. 36.

Assessment is indebtedness "duly ascertained."— An assessment declared necessary by a vote of the board of directors of an insurance company to meet outstanding indebtedness is, as against such directors, an indebtedness duly ascertained and enforceable, in an action against them by a receiver of the corporation, to collect unpaid subscriptions for corporate stock. Wyman v. Williams, 52 Nebr. 833, 73 N. W. 285 [rehearing denied in 53 Nebr. 670, 74 N. W. Rep. 48].

67. As in Hardman v. Sage, 124 N. Y. 25, 26 N. E. 354, 35 N. Y. St. 54.

68. Hardman v. Sage, 124 N. Y. 25, 26 N. E. 354, 35 N. Y. St. 54; Arnot v. Sage, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 477; Mumma v. Potomac Co., 8 Pet. (U. S.) 281, 287, 8 L. ed. 945 (per Story, J.).

69. Shellington v. Howland, 53 N. Y. 371 [affirming 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 14, with which compare Kincaid v. Dwinelle, 59 N. Y. 548 (affirming 37 N. Y. Super. Ct. 326)]; Barrick v. Gifford, 47 Ohio St. 180, 24 N. E. 259, 21 Am. St. Rep. 798 [following Morgan v. Lewis, 46 Ohio St. 1, 17 N. E. 558].

70. Boston Glass Manufactory v. Langdon, 24 Pick. (Mass.) 49, 35 Am. Dec. 292; Swan Land, etc., Co. v. Frank, 39 Fed. 456, (opinion by Blodgett, J.).

71. Swan Land, etc., Co. v. Frank, 39 Fed. 456, opinion by Blodgett, J.

72. Paine v. Stewart, 33 Conn. 516; Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Northwestern Mfg., etc., Co., 48 Minn. 361, 51 N. W. 119; Showalter

(II) Does Not Prevent Recovery of Judgment Against Corporation. On the other hand the mere appointment of a receiver to wind up does not prevent the recovery of a judgment at law against the corporation until an injunction has been issued against the prosecution of actions against it,[73] although it may be necessary to present such judgment to the receiver to have it satisfied as a claim against the corporation. For instance a national bank does not, by passing into liquidation in the hands of a receiver, lose its capacity of suing and being sued.[74]

(III) Nor Does Fact of Corporation Being Adjudged Bankrupt. It has been held that the fact that the corporation has been adjudged a bankrupt and that its tangible assets have passed into the hands of an assignee in bankruptcy does not dispense with the necessity of the creditor prosecuting his demand to a judgment at law against the corporation before proceeding to enforce the statutry liability of a shareholder.[75]

(IV) When Appointment of Receiver Does Have This Effect—(A) In General. But where the assets of the corporation have been impounded by a court of equity, by means of a receiver, for the purposes of a general winding-up and distribution, especially if there is also an injunction against the further prosecution of judgments at law,[76] then the conclusion may be different.

(B) Rule Where Bankruptcy Law Restrains Prosecution of Judgments at Law. This is of course the rule where the terms of the bankruptcy statute restrains the prosecution of judgments at law against the bankrupt.[77]

d. Failure to Comply With Statutory Prerequisites to Incorporation. Where the supposed shareholders fail to comply with the statutory prerequisites to an incorporation the road is open to a creditor to a direct action against them as though they had never attempted to become incorporated, and they may be sued without the necessity of first exhausting the social assets,[78] on the principle of being liable as partners.

e. Either Corporation Must Be Insolvent Generally or Creditor Must Have Exhausted Legal Remedies Against It. The conclusion then is, that under any theory of law or equity, where the liability of the shareholder is not primary, as in the case of a mere partner or original undertaker, one of two things must supervene before a creditor of a corporation will be permitted to proceed against him: Either that the corporation has suspended business by reason of insolvency, and

v. Laredo Imp. Co., 83 Tex. 162, 18 S. W. 491.

73. Hardman v. Sage, 124 N. Y. 25, 26 N. E. 354, 35 N. Y. St. 54; Kincaid v. Dwinelle, 59 N. Y. 548 [affirming 37 N. Y. Super. Ct. 326]; Matter of Reformed Presbyterian Church, 7 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 476; People v. Manhattan Co., 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 351; Mickles v. Rochester City Bank, 11 Paige (N. Y.) 118, 42 Am. Dec. 103.

74. Hardman v. Sage, 124 N. Y. 25, 26 N. E. 354, 35 N. Y. St. 54; Arnot v. Sage, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 477; Baltimore Cent. Nat. Bank v. Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co., 104 U. S. 54, 26 L. ed. 693; Bethel First Nat. Bank v. National Pahquioque Bank, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 383, 20 L. ed. 840; Mumma v. Potomac Co., 8 Pet. (U. S.) 281, 287, 8 L. ed. 945 (per Story, J.).

75. New York City Fourth Nat. Bank v. Francklyn, 120 U. S. 747, 7 S. Ct. 757, 30 L. ed. 825.

76. Paine v. Stewart, 33 Conn. 516. See also infra, VIII, P, 3, c, (IV), (B).

77. As in Shellington v. Howland, 53 N. Y. 371 [with which compare Handy v. Draper, 98 N. Y. 334; Rocky Mountain Bank v. Bliss, 89 N. Y. 338; Birmingham Nat. Bank v. Mosser, 14 Hun (N. Y.) 695], and in Flash v. Conn, 109 U. S. 371, 3 S. Ct. 263, 27 L. ed. 966. Compare Cohen v. New York Mut. L. Ins. Co., 50 N. Y. 610, 10 Am. Rep. 522; Loomis v. Tifft, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 541; People v. Bartlett, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 570; Lovett v. Cornwell, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 369; New York City Fourth Nat. Bank v. Francklyn, 120 U. S. 747, 7 S. Ct. 757, 30 L. ed. 825; Semmes v. Hartford City F. Ins. Co., 13 Wall. (U. S.) 158, 20 L. ed. 490; Hanger v. Abbott, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 532, 18 L. ed. 939.

78. Marshall v. Harris, 55 Iowa 182, 7 N. W. 509.

Concurrent actions against corporation and shareholder.— When concurrent actions may be prosecuted against corporation and the shareholder see Walton v. Coe, 110 N. Y. 109, 17 N. E. 676, 16 N. Y. St. 866; Young v. Brice, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 123, 18 N. Y. St. 945.

suffered what is called a de facto dissolution;[79] or else, although the corporation may not be totally insolvent, and may continue to be what is called a "going concern," the creditor must have exhausted his legal remedies against it without procuring the satisfaction of his debt. Accordingly it is the rule in Ohio that where a corporation, possessed of property subject to levy and sale on execution, although not sufficient to pay all its debts, continues to transact its business, the right of a creditor to enforce the statutory liability of its shareholders does not accrue until an execution issued upon a judgment against it has been returned unsatisfied for want of goods whereon to levy; while, if there is such a de facto dissolution as is evidenced by a suspension of business by reason of general insolvency, this condition is dispensed with.[80]

4. Other Conditions Precedent[81] — a. Necessity of Proving Claim Before Receiver Before Resorting to Statutory Liability of Shareholders. There is authority for the proposition that if the assets of the corporation are undergoing administration in the hands of a receiver, a creditor must first prove his claim before the receiver and take his dividends there, thus exhausting the corporate assets before he can resort to the statutory liability of shareholders.[82]

b. Whether Necessary to Exhaust Equitable Assets of Corporation Before Resorting to Statutory Liability. This question is ordinarily answered in the negative, the rule being as already seen[83] that it is sufficient to exhaust the legal assets of the corporation, the ordinary evidence of which is a judgment against it and execution thereon and a return of nulla bona. Therefore in a proceeding against a shareholder a plea which alleges the existence of choses in action, not subject to garnishment, in the hands of a receiver of the corporation, of equitable assets, and of an uncalled subscription for stock in the hands of shareholders is bad on demurrer.[84]

c. Exhausting Remedy Against Other Judgment Debtors of Corporation. Where plaintiff's judgment not only runs against the corporation, but also against others impleaded with the corporation, he cannot maintain a proceeding against a shareholder to sequester what is due by him to the corporation, in respect of his unpaid subscription, without first exhausting his remedy against his judgment debtors other than the corporation.[85]

d. Not Necessary to Exhaust Individual Liability Before Subjecting What Is Due on Share Subscriptions. The creditor can proceed against the shareholder in equity to subject to the payment of his debt what is due from the shareholder as unpaid on his share subscription, without having proceeded to charge the shares holders in respect of their superadded statutory liability, that is to say, to exhaust his legal remedies against them.[86]

e. When Demand on Corporation Dispensed With Before Proceeding Against Shareholders — (I) In General. A general suspension by a banking corporation, and its failure to pay its billholders generally, was held sufficient to enable a

79. Hospes v. Northwestern Mfg., etc., Co., 48 Minn. 174, 50 N. W. 1117, 31 Am. St. Rep. 637, 15 L. R. A. 470.

80. Barrick v. Gifford, 47 Ohio St. 180, 24 N. E. 259, 21 Am. St. Rep. 798.

81. Other statutory conditions precedent. — Exhausting deposits made with the state. Toucey v. Bowen, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14,107, 1 Biss. 81. Notifying shareholder of the proceeding against the corporation under Massachusetts statute. Mason v. Cheshire Iron Works, 4 Allen (Mass.) 398; Handraham v. Cheshire Iron Works 4 Allen (Mass.) 396; Robbins v. Suffolk County Super. Ct., 12 Gray (Mass.) 225; Farnum v. Ballard Vale Mach. Shop, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 507; Holyoke Bank v. Goodman Paper Mfg. Co., 9 Cush. (Mass.) 576. The necessity of commencing action against the corporation within a given time after contracting the debt, generally one year. Shellington v. Howland, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 14 [affirmed in 53 N. Y. 371].

82. Grew v. Breed, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 569.

83. See supra, VIII, P, 2, b.

84. Thornton v. Lane, 11 Ga. 459. But compare Stewart v. Lay, 45 Iowa 604; In re Reciprocity Bank, 22 N. Y. 9.

85. Burch v. Glover, 1 Wash. 250, 24 Pac. 439; Burch v. Moore, 1 Wash. 249, 24 Pac. 439; Burch v. Taylor, 1 Wash. 245, 24 Pac. 438.

86. Baines v. Babcock, 95 Cal. 581, 27 Pac. 674, 30 Pac. 776, 29 Am. St. Rep. 158; Potter v. Dear, 95 Cal. 578, 30 Pac. 777.

billholder to sue a shareholder without making a special demand of payment.[87] And so, where a bank had failed and closed its doors, it was held that the holder of one of its certificates of deposit might bring an action under a statute against one of its shareholders, without first going through the vain formality of making a demand upon the bank.[88]

(II) What Necessary to Good Demand Upon Corporation Where Statute Requires It. As statutes requiring a demand to be made upon the corporation before bringing suit against its shareholders are unfrequent, it is thought to be sufficient merely to cite the cases in the margin upon the question what constitutes a good demand for such a purpose.[89]

f. Call by Directors Not Necessary to Right of Action by Creditor. Where the creditor is proceeding with respect to the liability of the shareholder upon his unpaid subscription, and his subscription is by its terms payable upon call, the creditor need not, as a prerequisite to his right of action, have tried to induce the corporation to make a call.[90]

g. Assessing Shareholders After Insolvency of Corporation — (I) In General. After the insolvency of the corporation the assessment must ordinarily be made by the court or by some officer authorized by statute to make it. For instance in the winding-up of a national bank it is ordered by the comptroller of the currency, under a provision of the National Currency Act.[91]

(II) Court, and Not Receiver, Must Determine Amount to Be Assessed — (A) In General. In the absence of a statute authorizing a receiver to make it it cannot be made by him; but it is for the court to determine the amount of the indebtedness of the corporation, and to fix the percentage which will be assessed against each share.[92]

(B) To This End an Account Should Be Taken and Stated. To this end it is necessary, according to the ordinary practice of chancery, that an account should be taken of the assets and debts of the corporation, of the aggregate amount unpaid by the shareholders or otherwise assessable against them, and of the amount unpaid or otherwise assessable against each particular shareholder, in order that a just and ratable assessment may be made upon them; and this necessarily requires a proceeding in equity, or under the codes a proceeding of that nature.[93] Until such an account has been taken, and an order of the court made, in the nature of a call upon the shareholders, the receiver cannot maintain an action against them;[94] and the same rule is applicable where the assets of the insolvent corporation are being administered by an assignee under a state insolvent law.[95]

(III) Rule Under This Head Restated. In such a case the rule, after careful consideration, has been said to be this: That where the total amount which is due and payable from all the shareholders is not more than sufficient to pay the debts of the corporation, no previous assessment, either by the directors or by a court of equity, is necessary as a prerequisite to the bringing of an action at law

87. Lane v. Morris, 8 Ga. 468.

88. Hodgson v. Cheever, 8 Mo. App. 318.

89. Barre First Nat. Bank v. Hingham Mfg. Co., 127 Mass. 563 (demand at usual place of business of corporation and evidence sufficient to prove what that place of business is); Connecticut River Sav. Bank v. Fiske, 60 N. H. 363 (circumstances under which demand by letter good); Harvey v. Chase, 38 N. H. 272 (setting out in detail the elements of a good demand for such a purpose); Haynes v. Brown, 36 N. H. 545 (must be personally made by someone authorized to receive payment).

90. Thompson v. Reno Sav. Bank, 19 Nev. 171, 7 Pac. 870, 3 Am. St. Rep. 881. See also Samainego v. Stiles, (Ariz. 1889) 20 Pac. 607. But if the directors refuse to make the call or if the circumstances are such that they have no legal right to make it the court will make it by its own receiver or other trustee. Hawkins v. Glenn, 131 U. S. 319, 9 S. Ct. 739, 33 L. ed. 184.

91. Kennedy v. Gibson, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 498, 19 L. ed. 476. See also dictum in Sanger v. Upton, 91 U. S. 56, 23 L. ed. 220.

92. Chandler v. Keith, 42 Iowa 99.

93. Mann v. Pentz, 3 N. Y. 415.

94. Chandler v. Keith, 42 Iowa 99; Mann v. Pentz, 3 N. Y. 415.

95. Boeppler v. Menown, 17 Mo. App. 447.

by the assignee of the corporation against a shareholder for his unpaid balance. But where the total amount due by the shareholders will if collected be much more than sufficient to pay the corporate debts, either an assessment by the directors of the necessary amount, or an order of a court of equity as a substitute for such assessment, is necessary as a preliminary to the right to sue at law.[96]

h. Notifying Shareholder of Default of Corporation. It is held to be necessary under the general principles of the law for the creditor, before he can bring his action against a shareholder, to notify the shareholder of the default of the corporation,[97] the position of the shareholder being analogous to that of a guarantor.[98]

Q. Conclusiveness and Effect of Judgment Against Corporation — 1. Conclusive Upon Shareholder — a. In General. In any proceeding to charge a shareholder the judgment against the corporation establishing the demand of the creditor is conclusive unless impeached for fraud or want of jurisdiction.[99] And this although the shareholder may not have been served with process, and would have had notice of the proceeding against the corporation, the doctrine being that he is bound by representation through the corporation.[1] The shareholder cannot hence dispute the validity of the appointment of a receiver in an action brought by the receiver against the shareholder for unpaid subscriptions to the capital stock, although the shareholder was not a party to the proceeding in which the receiver was appointed.[2]

96. Boeppler v. Menown, 17 Mo. App. 447. To the same effect see Citizens', etc., Sav. Bank, etc., Co. v. Gillespie, 115 Pa. St. 564, 9 Atl. 73.

97. Hicks v. Burns, 38 N. H. 141.

98. Compare Ingalls v. Cole, 47 Me. 530.

99. California.— Baines v. Story, (Cal. 1892) 30 Pac. 777; Baines v. Babcock, 95 Cal. 581, 30 Pac. 776, 29 Am. St. Rep. 158.

Georgia.— Howard v. Glenn, 85 Ga. 238, 11 S. E. 610, 21 Am. St. Rep. 156.

Illinois.— Cleveland Rolling Mill Co. v. Crawford, 9 R. & Corp. L. J. 171.

Iowa.— Corse v. Sanford, 14 Iowa 235; Donworth v. Coolbaugh, 5 Iowa 300; Hampson v. Weare, 4 Iowa 13, 66 Am. Dec. 116.

Kansas.— Grund v. Tucker, 5 Kan. 70.

Maine.— Barron v. Paine, 83 Me. 312, 22 Atl. 218; Milliken v. Whitehouse, 49 Me. 527; Came v. Brigham, 39 Me. 35; Merrill v. Suffolk Bank, 31 Me. 57, 50 Am. Dec. 649.

Massachusetts.— Thayer v. New England Lithographic Steam Printing Co., 108 Mass. 523; Gaskill v. Dudley, 6 Metc. 546, 39 Am. Dec. 750.

Minnesota.— Hinckley v. Kettle River R. Co., 80 Minn. 32, 82 N. W. 1088.

New York.— Miller v. White, 57 Barb. 504, 6 Abb. Pr. N. S. 46; Belmont v. Coleman, 1 Bosw. 188; Corklin v. Furman, 8 Abb. Pr. N. S. 161; Moss v. Oakley, 2 Hill 265; Slee v. Bloom, 20 Johns. 669. Contra, McMahon v. Macy, 51 N. Y. 155; Miller v. White, 50 N. Y. 137; Belmont v. Coleman, 21 N. Y. 96, 1 Bosw. 188; Moss v. Averell, 10 N. Y. 449; Lawyer v. Rosebrook, 48 Hun 453, 1 N. Y. Suppl. 594, 16 N. Y. St. 316; Strong v. Wheaton, 38 Barb. 616; Moss v. McCullough, 5 Hill 131.

North Carolina.— Heggie v. People's Bldg., etc., Assoc., 107 N. C. 581, 12 S. E. 275, in principle.

Pennsylvania.— Wilson v. Pittsburgh, etc., Coal Co., 43 Pa. St. 424.

United States.— Glenn v. Liggett, 135 U. S. 533, 10 S. Ct. 876, 34 L. ed. 262; Chicago, etc., Bridge Co. v. Anglo-American Packing, etc., Co., 46 Fed. 584; Stutz v. Handley, 41 Fed. 531.

England.— Peddell v. Gwyn, 1 H. & N. 590, 3 Jur. N. S. 188, 26 L. J. Exch. 199, 5 Wkly. Rep. 283; Bradley v. Eyre, 1 D. & L. 260, 12 L. J. Exch. 450, 11 M. & W. 432; Fowler v. Rickerby, 9 Dowl. P. C. 682, 10 L. J. C. P. 149, 2 M. & G. 760, 3 Scott N. R. 138, 40 E. C. L. 843.

1. Mason v. Force, 30 Ga. 99; Powell v. Oregonian R. Co., 38 Fed. 187, 13 Sawy. 543, 3 L. R. A. 201; Glenn v. Springs, 26 Fed. 494.

2. Fish v. Smith, 73 Conn. 377, 47 Atl. 711. See also infra, VIII, Q, 3.

Such a judgment is conclusive of the existence of the corporation, and, whether founded upon a demand arising ex contractu or ex delicto, is an indebtedness for which the shareholder is liable. Powell v. Oregonian R. Co., 38 Fed. 187, 13 Sawy. 543, 3 L. R. A. 201. That such a judgment is presumptive evidence of corporate existence see Schaeffer v. Missouri Home Ins. Co., 46 Mo. 248.

Conflicting decisions on this subject in New York may be discovered by one who has the patience and the curiosity to examine them in McMahon v. Macy, 51 N. Y. 155, where the cases are reviewed by Gray, Com. See also Miller v. White, 50 N. Y. 137 [reversing 59 Barb. (N. Y.) 434, 10 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 385]; Belmont v. Coleman, 21 N. Y. 96; Atcherson v. Troy, etc., R. Co., 1 Abb. Dec. (N. Y.) 13, 6 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 329; Lawyer v. Rosebrook, 48 Hun (N. Y.) 453, 1 N. Y. Suppl. 594, 16 N. Y. St. 316; Wheeler v. Miller, 24 Hun (N. Y.) 541; Strong v. Wheaton, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 616; Conant v. Van Schaick, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 87; Moss v. McCullough, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 279; Moss v. McCullough, 5

b. Where Action Is Against Directors or Trustees to Enforce Personal Liability For Official Defaults. Judgments against the corporation are not deemed conclusive against the shareholders, where the proceeding is penal in its nature, and hence to be strictly construed and pursued, as where it is brought under a statute to charge shareholders with personal liability for the debts of the corporation because of defaults in the officers of the corporation in failing to file reports of the capital and debts of the corporation, as required by the statute law, in which case the proceeding against the corporation is deemed with respect to shareholders to be res inter alios acta.[3]

c. Doctrine That Judgment Against Corporation Is Prima Facie Evidence of Debt in Proceeding Against Its Shareholder. This doctrine, which exists chiefly in New York and under former statutes, is peculiar and hence no more will be done here than to cite a collection of cases expounding and illustrating it.[4]

d. Subject to Be Impeached For Fraud or Collusion. All judgments are subject to be impeached in equity by a direct proceeding to that end, or by way of an equitable defense by a shareholder where the rules of the jurisdiction admit of the setting up of equitable defense for fraud or collusion in their concoction.[5]

e. Going Behind Judgment Where Shareholder Is Liable Only For Particular Class of Debts. If the shareholder is made liable only for a particular class of debts, or only for debts due to a particular class of persons, then it is necessary under either of the foregoing rules to go behind the judgment so far as to prove that the debt then recovered upon belonged to the class embraced in the statute or constitution.[6] It has been so held under a statute making the shareholders of a railway company jointly and severally liable for moneys due by the corporation to their servants for their wages.[7] So where the statute made the shareholder liable for all debts except loans, the shareholder could, after judgment against the company, contest his liability, on the ground that the debt recovered upon was for money loaned.[8] So where the shareholder is liable only for debts of the corporation contracted at a given period,[9] and the record of the judgment against the corporation does not show at what period the debt therein recovered upon was contracted, evidence aliunde is necessary to fix such date; and without such evi-

Hill (N. Y.) 131; Jackson v. Griswold, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 522; Moss v. Oakley, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 265; Slee v. Bloom, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 669. Compare Jones v. Barlow, 62 N. Y. 202; Strong v. Wheaton, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 616. The New York rule differs with respect to the liability for unpaid shares, making judgment against the corporation prima facie evidence against the shareholder. Hastings v. Drew, 76 N. Y. 9.

Judgment by default is just as conclusive as judgment in the defended action. Green v. Nixon, 23 Beav. 530, 3 Jur. N. S. 993, 27 L. J. Ch. 819, 5 Wkly. Rep. 433. See also In re South Essex Estuary Co., L. R. 11 Eq. 157, 40 L. J. Ch. 153, 19 Wkly. Rep. 430. But see Doak v. Stahlman, (Tenn. Ch. App. 1899) 58 S. W. 741, where a decree pro confesso against the corporation was held not to be conclusive against the shareholder where none of the officers of the corporation can or will defend its interests.

3. Whitney Arms Co. v. Barlow, 63 N. Y. 62, 72, 20 Am. Rep. 504 (per Allen, J.); Chase v. Curtis, 113 U. S. 452, 5 S. Ct. 554, 28 L. ed. 1038.

4. Corse v. Sanford, 14 Iowa 235; Grund v. Tucker, 5 Kan. 70; Schaeffer v. Missouri Home Ins. Co., 46 Mo. 248; Stephens v. Fox, 83 N. Y. 313 [affirming 17 Hun (N. Y.) 435]; Hastings v. Drew, 76 N. Y. 9; Belmont v. Coleman, 21 N. Y. 96 [affirming 1 Bosw. (N. Y.) 188]; Moss v. Averell, 10 N. Y. 449; Hoagland v. Bell, 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 57; Moss v. McCullough, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 279; Squires v. Brown, 22 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 35.

5. See for an example of this Bissit v. Kentucky River Nav. Co., 15 Fed. 353, where a judgment thus obtained against a corporation for a large amount was made the foundation of an action against a county to recover an unpaid subscription by the county to the shares of the corporation, and it was held that the county could be heard upon the question of the amount of the true indebtedness of the corporation to plaintiff, notwithstanding the judgment; and also that plaintiff being himself a shareholder must as such contribute to the payment of the debt of the corporation to him.

6. Ward v. Joslin, 100 Fed. 676 [affirmed in 105 Fed. 224, 44 C. C. A. 456].

7. Conant v. Van Schaick, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 87, holding that in such a case the burden is on the creditor to prove that the debt was one for which the shareholder is liable.

8. Wilson v. Pittsburgh, etc., Coal Co., 43 Pa. St. 424.

9. See supra, VIII, H, 7.

dence the judgment is not effective to charge a shareholder.[10] Again, where the action against the corporation is for a tort, the cause of action is not so far merged in the judgment recovered by plaintiff that the judgment becomes a debt of the corporation, within the meaning thus put upon such a statute; but a court will look behind the judgment, and inquire into the nature of the demand in which it was founded, and evidence aliunde is admissible for this purpose.[11]

2. JUDGMENT AGAINST CORPORATION AFTER DISSOLUTION NOT EVIDENCE TO CHARGE SHAREHOLDER — a. Rule Stated. Although the assets of a defunct corporation are subject to be collected and administered by a court of equity for the benefit of its creditors, yet a judgment at law cannot be rendered against a dead corporation any more than against a dead man.[12] A reasonable deduction from this rule is that a judgment recovered against a corporation after it has been dissolved is not even prima facie evidence of a debt due from the corporation at the time of its dissolution, for the purpose of charging those who were then its shareholders.[13]

b. Does Not Prevent Action Against Shareholders Where Liability Is That of Partners or Original Undertakers. But the operation of this principle does not prevent a creditor from suing a shareholder and recovering his debt from him where the shareholder is liable as an original undertaker, as in New York.[14]

3. DECREE ASSESSING SHAREHOLDERS IN WINDING-UP PROCEEDING CONCLUSIVE WITHOUT PERSONAL SERVICE. Where a corporation has suspended business by reason of insolvency, and a receiver or trustee has been appointed by a court of equity, in a proceeding instituted by or on behalf of its creditors to wind up its affairs and administer its assets, the court will, according to the usual course of practice in chancery cases, take and state an account of the assets and liabilities of the corporation, and of what is due from its shareholders in the aggregate, and from each of them respectively; and will, upon the basis thus furnished, make an interlocutory decree ordering an assessment upon the shareholders to raise money to liquidate its debts and to pay the costs of the proceeding. This interlocutory decree will be conclusive upon all shareholders, resident and non-resident, whether they were served with process, or made parties to the winding-up proceeding or not. The theory is that the corporation is still in a sense their agent, and that they are parties to the proceeding by representation.[15]

10. Larrabee v. Baldwin, 35 Cal. 155.

11. Bohn v. Brown, 33 Mich. 257. A judgment against a corporation will for the purpose of enforcing the liability of shareholders be deemed founded upon contract to the extent that it allowed plaintiff's claim for the value of coal, taken from his land by defendant, although such taking was in connection with a trespass upon the realty for damages to which a separate allowance is made. Devin v. Walsh, 108 Iowa 428, 79 N. W. 133.

Under the law of Kansas, as established by decisions that a corporation which has received the benefit of a contract is estopped to contest it on the ground that it was ultra vires, a judgment against a corporation is not conclusive upon a shareholder in an action to charge him with individual liability in such sense as to preclude him from showing the nature of the original claim, and that the contract sued on was ultra vires and hence not of the class for which he is liable. Ward v. Joslin, 105 Fed. 224, 44 C. C. A. 456 [affirming 100 Fed. 676].

12. Merrill v. Suffolk Bank, 31 Me. 57, 1 Am. Rep. 649; Mumma v. Potomac Co., 8 Pet. (U. S.) 281, 8 L. ed. 945.

13. Bonaffe v. Fowler, 7 Paige (N. Y.) 576. And see the reasoning in Kincaid v. Dwinelle, 59 N. Y. 548, and repeated in Hardman v. Sage, 124 N. Y. 25, 26 N. E. 354, 35 N. Y. St. 54. Compare Schrader v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 133 U. S. 67, 10 S. Ct. 238, 33 L. ed. 564, judgment recovered against a national bank in an action commenced three years after it went into liquidation not conclusive as against the shareholders, but they are entitled to recontest the merits.

14. Bonaffe v. Fowler, 7 Paige (N. Y.) 576.

15. Alabama.— Glenn v. Semple, 80 Ala. 159, 60 Am. Rep. 92.

Georgia.— Howard v. Glenn, 85 Ga. 238, 11 S. E. 610, 21 Am. St. Rep. 156.

Maryland.— Glenn v. Williams, 60 Md. 93, especially the observations of Alvey, J., at p. 115, as to the propriety and necessity of this rule.

Virginia.— Hamilton v. Glenn, 85 Va. 901, 9 S. E. 129; Vanderwerken v. Glenn, 85 Va. 9, 6 S. E. 806; Lewis v. Glenn, 84 Va. 947, 6 S. E. 866.

United States.— Glenn v. Liggett, 135 U. S. 533, 10 S. Ct. 867, 34 L. ed. 262; Hawkins v. Glenn, 131 U. S. 319, 9 S. Ct. 739, 33 L. ed.

4. WHETHER SUIT AGAINST SHAREHOLDER IS UPON JUDGMENT AGAINST CORPORATION OR UPON ORIGINAL DEMAND. In New York, where the rule is that the liability of a shareholder is, in a qualified sense, that of a partner,[16] it has been held that, although the statute requires that a judgment shall have been obtained against the company before an action can be prosecuted against a shareholder, yet the action against the shareholder is on the original demand, and not on the judgment.[17] The uniform practice in that state seems to have conformed to this view,[18] and under the rulings in that state that the judgment is not even prima facie evidence of the existence of a debt of the corporation this is necessarily so.[19]

5. RIGHT OF SHAREHOLDER TO APPEAL OR PROSECUTE ERROR FROM JUDGMENT AGAINST CORPORATION. Where this right exists, it exists under very special rules of procedure and not in conformity with the general law.[20]

IX. DIRECTORS.

A. Right to, and Tenure of, Office of Director — 1. QUALIFICATIONS FOR OFFICE OF DIRECTOR — a. In General. A corporation which has the general power to make by-laws may make a by-law declaring that no person who is an attorney in a suit against the corporation shall be eligible as a director.[21] A director can 184; Morgan County v. Allen, 103 U. S. 498, 26 L. ed. 498; Sanger v. Upton, 91 U. S. 56, 23 L. ed. 220.

That shareholders will not be permitted to intervene and defend in the winding-up proceeding was held in Hamilton v. Glenn, 85 Va. 901, 9 S. E. 129. That they are not proper parties in the winding-up proceedings was said by Alvey, J., in Glenn v. Williams, 60 Md. 93, 116.

The decree in the winding-up proceeding is deemed to be necessarily binding upon the members of the corporation in the absence of fraud, and that this is involved in their contract on becoming shareholders. Hawkins v. Glenn, 131 U. S. 319, 9 S. Ct. 739, 33 L. ed. 184 [quoted and reaffirmed in Glenn v. Liggett, 135 U. S. 533, 10 S. Ct. 867, 34 L. ed. 262].

16. See supra, VIII, H, 5; VIII, Q, 1, a, note 2.

17. Bailey v. Bancker, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 188, 38 Am. Dec. 625.

18. Belmont v. Coleman, 21 N. Y. 96; Moss v. Averell, 10 N. Y. 449; Conant v. Van Schaick, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 87; Moss v. McCullough, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 131.

19. See supra, VIII, Q, 1, a, note 2.

For early and exceptional cases in support of this view see Southmayd v. Russ, 3 Conn. 52 (therefore no scire facias could be maintained against them on a judgment against the corporation); Hume v. Winyaw, etc., Canal Co., 1 Car. L. J. 217; Salmon v. Hamborough Co., 1 Ch. Cas. 204, 1 Kyd Corp. 273.

20. Dennis v. Table Mountain Water Co., 10 Cal. 369; Came v. Brigham, 39 Me. 35; Rankin v. Sherwood, 33 Me. 509.

When a shareholder may proceed by a process called "illegality" in Georgia see Thompson Stockh. § 333; Lowry v. Parsons, 52 Ga. 356; Heard v. Sibley, 52 Ga. 310.

Recitals in judgment or decree against corporation not evidence against shareholder not party to action.— Chestnut v. Pennell, 92 Ill. 55.

Judgment against shareholders in actions against the corporation under very special conceptions of procedure. Comanche Min. Co. v. Rumley, 1 Mont. 201; Gillig v. Lake Bigler Road Co., 2 Nev. 214.

Conclusiveness of judgment against corporation in supplementary proceeding thereunder against shareholder.— Hampson v. Weare, 4 Iowa 13, 66 Am. Dec. 116.

As to the former practice in England of suggesting on the record of the judgment against the corporation the liability of a member similar to that allowed by motion in Missouri see Bartlett v. Pentland, 1 B. & Ad. 704, 20 E. C. L. 657; Sainter v. Fergusson, 8 C. B. 619, 7 D. & L. 301, 65 E. C. L. 619.

A decree on a creditor's bill against a corporation which merely gives complainants the right to avoid a conveyance by the corporation as fraudulent, or in the alternative to subject the proceeds to the payment of their debts is res judicata as against the claim of one of the complainants to a personal decree against the shareholders to charge them in respect to their statutory liability. Vance v. McNabb Coal, etc., Co., (Tenn. Ch. App. 1897) 48 S. W. 235.

Where a "garnishment bill" is brought against an insolvent corporation and against a shareholder thereof to recover a subscription due from him to the insolvent corporation, it has been held that a pro confesso judgment against the corporation is not conclusive against the shareholder, where none of the officers of the corporation can or will defend its interests. Doak v. Stahlman, (Tenn. Ch. App. 1899) 58 S. W. 741.

21. Cross v. West Virginia Cent., etc., R. Co., 37 W. Va. 342, 16 S. E. 587, 18 L. R. A. 582.

A by-law which would render a class of persons eligible to office who by the charter are ineligible is bad. Rex v. Bumstead, 2 B. & Ad. 699, 9 L. J. K. B. O. S. 321, 22 E. C. L. 292; Rex v. Spencer, 3 Burr. 1827.

not be regarded as disqualified for the office, and his election consequently invalid, by reason of anything which he may contemplate doing when he gets into office.[22] Unless there is a prohibition in the governing statute, in the charter, or in some valid by-law or other governing instrument, any person who can be the business agent of another can be a director in a corporation, whether or not he or she is a person who in the language of the civil law would be called sui juris. An infant may therefore, it is assumed, be a director; and it has been held that a married woman may be a trustee in a corporation.[23] No reason exists why an alien who is a resident of the place of the corporation should be deemed ineligible as a director, unless made so by the charter, governing statute, or other valid governing instrument;[24] and for similar reasons non-residence does not seem to render a shareholder ineligible for the office of director, unless it is so declared, although there are statutes, as in Kansas,[25] declaring that a certain proportion of the directors in every corporation must be residents of the state; and such a statute has been held mandatory.[26]

b. In Respect of Being Shareholder — (i) In General. As directors are merely business agents, incapable of performing constituent acts, in the absence of a contrary provision in the governing statute, or in a valid by-law or other governing instrument, it is not an insuperable disqualification of a director that he is not a shareholder.[27] But statutes and charters generally annex to the office of director the qualification that he must be a shareholder in the corporation;[28] and in the absence of such a statute provision this is the implication of the common law, founded on grounds of public policy in the case of railway companies.[29] This means a real and not a sham shareholder;[30] but if he is a real shareholder, it makes no difference how he acquired his shares, whether by gift or purchase.[31] He must be the actual, beneficial owner, and not merely the ostensible owner according to the registry.[32] According to one view he does not "own" shares within the meaning of a statute, where he holds them merely as trustee for another, although the legal title is in him;[33] but the other and better view is that eligibility follows the legal ownership, irrespective of the trusts under which the

22. Railway Co. v. State, 49 Ohio St. 668, 32 N. E. 933.

23. People v. Webster, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 554.

A provision in a bank charter requiring a certain portion of the directors to be practical mechanics has been held not to require that they should be in actual practice as mechanics at the time of their election. Sargent v. Webster, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 497, 46 Am. Dec. 743.

The treasurer of a corporation may well be a director, since the two offices are not incompatible. Gray v. Mechanics' Bank, 10 Fed. Cas. No. 5,723, 2 Cranch C. C. 51, but the cashier of a bank could not in Massachusetts, because it was so provided by statute.

24. Com. v. Hemmingway, 131 Pa. St. 614, 18 Atl. 990, 992, 7 L. R. A. 357, 360.

25. Kan. Gen. Stat. (1889), § 1190.

26. Horton v. Wilder, 48 Kan. 222, 29 Pac. 566. Under a statute permitting a minority of the directors of corporations constructing railroads, canals, or flumes, etc., to reside out of the state, a court declined to inquire into the length, extent, or magnitude of the railroad or canal, in order to ascertain whether a non-resident of the state was qualified to be a director in a certain company. State v. Smith, 15 Oreg. 98, 14 Pac. 814, 15 Pac. 137, 386.

27. Wight v. Springfield, etc., R. Co., 117 Mass. 226, 19 Am. Rep. 412 [criticizing Penobscot R. Co. v. Dummer, 40 Me. 172, 63 Am. Dec. 654; Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 11, 10 Am. Rep. 684]; State v. McDaniel, 22 Ohio St. 354.

28. See for example Ark. Dig. Stat. (1884), § 964.

Where there is a statute or by-law requiring directors to be the owners of a certain number of shares, the fact that a person serves as director furnishes evidence to charge him as a shareholder in favor of creditors to the extent of the shares necessary to qualify him for the office of director. Ex p. Stock, 33 L. J. Ch. 731.

29. Durkee v. People, 155 Ill. 354, 40 N. E. 626, 46 Am. St. Rep. 340 [affirming 53 Ill. App. 369].

30. Bartholomew v. Bentley, 1 Ohio St. 37.

31. Especially this must be so held where the rights of third persons, e. g., creditors of the corporation, are involved. Burden v. Burden, 8 N. Y. App. Div. 160, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 499.

32. Bainbridge v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 462, 60 L. T. Rep. N. S. 879, 37 Wkly. Rep. 594, Lindley, L. J., dissenting.

33. In re Elias, 17 Misc. (N. Y.) 718, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 910.

shares may be held.[34] Upon the question who is the beneficial owner within this principle there is no difficulty in concluding that the giving to a third person does not divest him of the title so as to render him ineligible to vote thereon at a corporate election.[35] And so, where the shares have been mortgaged, the mortgagor may still be deemed not to have lost his qualification to serve as a director.[36] A by-law providing that any person chosen as a director shall cease to be such when he ceases to be a proprietor renders by reasonable implication any one who is not a proprietor ineligible to the office of director.[37] Where the statute requires that the members of the board must be holders of at least a given number of shares, a director who assigns all his shares to another ipso facto divests himself of his title to the office,[38] although a different rule has been declared in case of a director removing out of the country.[39] A statutory provision[40] prescribing that a director must be a holder of a given number of shares is not dispensed with by the mere fact that the corporation has ceased to be a going concern, its franchises being extended merely for the purpose of liquidation.[41] It has been held by one court that the election of a person as trustee of a corporation is not cured by a subse-

34. Schmidt v. Mitchell, 101 Ky. 570, 41 S. W. 929, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 763, 72 Am. St. Rep. 427.

35. In re Newcomb, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 16, 42 N. Y. St. 442.

36. Cumming v. Prescott, 2 Y. & C. Exch. 488.

37. Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203.

38. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Colwell, 132 N. Y. 250, 30 N. E. 644, 43 N. Y. St. 876 [reversing 16 Daly (N. Y.) 28, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 285, 29 N. Y. St. 726]. Compare Beardsley v. Johnson, 121 N. Y. 224, 24 N. E. 380, 30 N. Y. St. 691. That unless the person elected possesses this statutory qualification he does not become even a director de facto see In re Newcomb, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 16, 42 N. Y. St. 442.

39. Com. v. Detwiller, 131 Pa. St. 614, 18 Atl. 990, 992, 7 L. R. A. 357, 360. And compare Nathan v. Tompkins, 82 Ala. 437, 2 So. 747.

40. U. S. Rev. Stat. (1872), § 5146.

41. Richards v. Attleborough Nat. Bank, 148 Mass. 187, 19 N. E. 353, 1 L. R. A. 781.

Ownership of preferred stock as qualification.— The power of the directors of a railroad company to issue preferred stock to contractors for the purpose of completing the road, and to make the holding of a certain number of shares of such stock a necessary qualification of a majority of the directors, was upheld under circumstances of acquiescence and estoppel on the part of the shareholders. Haslehurst v. Savannah, etc., R. Co., 43 Ga. 13.

Statute of Connecticut providing that any one of the directors, etc., of a corporation owning stock in another corporation may be a director in the latter not repealed. Chase v. Tuttle, 55 Conn. 455, 12 Atl. 874, 3 Am. St. Rep. 64.

That one of two cotrustees of the stock of a manufacturing corporation cannot be elected a director by the votes of the remaining shareholders, where he has disfranchised the stock held by them by persisting in voting for himself against the protest of his cotrustees, see In re Elias, 17 Misc. (N. Y.) 718, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 910.

The requirement of General Corporation Law, § 16, that the directors of a corporation shall be shareholders therein does not apply to the first directors of a consolidated corporation named in the consolidation certificate. Camden Safe-Deposit, etc., Co. v. Burlington Carpet Co., (N. J. Ch. 1895) 33 Atl. 479, holding that shareholders in the constituent corporation, who are obviously entitled to shares in the consolidated corporation, are in effect shareholders in the latter, although no certificates have been issued to them.

A board of directors organized under W. Va. Act, Feb. 28, 1877, known as the "Boom law," must be composed of shareholders, but they need not be residents of the state. Hulings v. Hulings Lumber Co., 38 W. Va. 351, 18 S. E. 620.

Holders of one share of stock in a corporation may serve as directors, although parties to an outstanding executory contract by which they agreed at the option of a purchaser to sell such share at a nominal price, so long as such option has not been exercised. Kuhn v. Woolson Spice Co., 13 Ohio Cir. Ct. 547.

What is a sufficient holding of shares to qualify one as director see Richards v. Attleborough Nat. Bank, 148 Mass. 187, 19 N. E. 353, 1 L. R. A. 781; Chemical Nat. Bank v. Colwell, 132 N. Y. 250, 30 N. E. 644, 43 N. Y. St. 876; State v. Smith, 15 Oreg. 98, 14 Pac. 814, 15 Pac. 137, 386.

When holding of shares is unnecessary see Wight v. Springfield, etc., R. Co., 117 Mass. 226, 19 Am. Rep. 412; State v. McDaniel, 22 Ohio St. 354.

Eligibility of husband where shares were purchased by his wife and the certificate was by mistake made out to him, and he afterward concluded to retain the shares. In re St. Lawrence Steamboat Co., 44 N. J. L. 529.

Construction of statute under which a person who "holds" shares of stock, issued in his name, is to be recognized as a shareholder quent gift of shares to him, although he retains them;[42] but the better and prevailing opinion is that he need not be the holder of any shares at the date of his election, but that it will be sufficient if he qualifies himself by becoming the holder of the requisite number of shares before he enters upon the office of director.[43]

(II) Whether Must Be Registered Shareholder. Presumptively the stock register is to be looked to for the purpose of determining who is qualified to be a director by reason of being a shareholder; and this is especially true where there is a statute, in affirmation of the rule of the common law, making the stock register prima facie evidence as to who are shareholders. And it has been held that this prima facie qualification can be impeached only by showing that the shares were put in the name of the person colorably, with the view to qualifying him as a director in furtherance of some dishonest or fraudulent scheme touching the organization or control of the company.[44] Clearly a person is prima facie eligible to the office of a director who holds, according to the stock register of the corporation, the requisite number of shares, unless the register distinctly shows that he does not hold them in his own right, but that he holds them as a naked or dry trustee for another.[45] As already seen[46] the inspectors of election cannot decide the question of eligibility, but in case of a contest it can only be decided by the court.[47]

2. Right to Vote For Director. The right to vote for director in a corporation does not continue with respect to a shareholder after he has transferred the entire beneficial interest in his shares. Nor can an irrevocable power of attorney to direct the vote of corporate shares be vested in a person who has no interest in such shares, and who does not represent persons who are interested in them. When therefore certain shares of corporate stock were placed in the hands of a trustee, upon an agreement that they were to be divided on a certain date, and that a certain person was to have the right to direct the vote of them until such division, it was held that the agreement did not give to such person the right to direct the vote of them after he had transferred his interest in them.[48] as well as one who "owns" them. State v. Leete, 16 Nev. 242.

42. Rozecrans Gold Min. Co. v. Morey, 111 Cal. 114, 43 Pac. 585.

43. Stetson v. Northern Invest. Co., 104 Iowa 393, 73 N. W. 869; Greenough v. Alabama, etc., R. Co., 64 Fed. 22. Therefore a notice given at a meeting of shareholders for the election of directors that one of the candidates held no stock in his own name is not such a notice of the candidate's ineligibility as to discredit the votes cast for him and give the election to a candidate having a minority of votes. Schmidt v. Mitchell, 101 Ky. 570, 41 S. W. 929, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 763, 72 Am. St. Rep. 427 [citing People v. Clute, 50 N. Y. 451, 10 Am. Rep. 508; Reg. v. Tewkesbury, L. R. 3 Q. B. 629, 37 L. J. Q. B. 288].

44. In re Leslie, 58 N. J. L. 609, 33 Atl. 954.

45. In re Argus Printing Co., 1 N. D. 434, 48 N. W. 347, 26 Am. St. Rep. 639, 12 L. R. A. 781. And where the governing statute, like the English Companies Act of 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 89, § 30), provides that no notice of any trust shall be entered upon the register, the conclusion would seem to be very cogent that he is to be deemed a shareholder in his own right, for the purpose of being eligible as a director, who holds the requisite number of shares according to the register of the company. Such was the view of that eminent equity judge, Sir George Jessel, M. R. (Pulbrook v. Richmond Consol. Min. Co., 9 Ch. D. 610, 48 L. J. Ch. 65, 27 Wkly. Rep. 377) overruled on doubtful grounds by the court of appeal, with one dissenting judge, as stated in the preceding section (Bainbridge v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 462, 60 L. T. Rep. N. S. 879, 37 Wkly. Rep. 594, Lindley, L. J., dissenting). So an American court has held that although the by-laws of a corporation provide that transfers of stock shall be made only on the corporate books, and that the transfer-book shall be closed for ten days previous to the day of the annual meeting of the shareholders, a bona fide owner of shares of stock is eligible as a director, although the transfer of his shares to him has not been registered, and although he might for that reason be refused permission to vote or to receive dividends. State v. Smith, 15 Oreg. 98, 15 Pac. 137, 386, 14 Pac. 814.

46. See supra, IV, G, 2, a et seq.

47. In re St. Lawrence Steamboat Co., 44 N. J. L. 529.

Where a person has a right to vote on stock as a shareholder he is also eligible to any office to which a shareholder is eligible. State v. Ferris, 42 Conn. 560.

48. State v. Oftedal, 72 Minn. 498, 75 N. W. 692; Clowes v. Miller, 60 N. J. Eq. 179, 47 Atl. 345; Chapman v. Bates, 60 N. J.

3. Status of Directors Named in Certificate of Incorporation. There is no presumption that a person named as director for the first year in the original certificate of an incorporation holds over after the expiration of his term, so as to make him liable as such.[49]

4. Acceptance of Office Necessary. Whatever the rule may be with regard to strictly public offices, it is clear that no one can be compelled to serve as a director in a private corporation against his will. It is not enough therefore that one is elected to the office of director in a private corporation; there must also be an acceptance of the office by him which must be formally expressed or fairly implied from his conduct.[50] If he declines to accept the office, it is not necessary to treat him as a director thereafter, or to notify him of meetings of the board, in order to the regularity of the proceedings which take place thereat.[51]

5. Qualification by Taking Official Oath. Where the governing statute prescribes an oath of office to be taken by directors, one chosen as a director who fails to take this oath is not a director de jure.[52]

6. When Take Office. In case of an amendment of the corporate by-laws, whereby the membership of the board is increased, those who are chosen to fill out the increased board take office immediately and not at the next annual election.[53]

7. Directors Holding Over. By the principles of the common law the failure to elect officers of a corporation, public or private, does not dissolve the corporation, but the old officers hold over until their successors are chosen and qualify;[54] and this principle has been frequently declared by statute out of abundant caution.[55]

Eq. 17, 46 Atl. 591 [affirmed in 61 N. J. L. 658, 47 Atl. 638, 88 Am. St. Rep. 459]; Com. v. Park, 14 Pa. Co. Ct. 481 (holding that the right to vote acquired by giving money to a charitable corporation expires with the death of the donor).

Election not illegal because cumulative system of voting was not employed, where no shareholder was deprived of his right to vote cumulatively. Schmidt v. Mitchell, 101 Ky. 570, 41 S. W. 929, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 763, 72 Am. St. Rep. 427.

Statute under which shareholders not authorized to cumulate their votes. State v. Halloway, 1 Ohio Cir. Ct. 157, 1 Ohio Cir. Dec. 90.

Procedure for contesting corporate elections under New Jersey statute applicable to all corporations having a capital stock the shares of which are held by individuals as private property. Rankin v. Newark Library Assoc., 64 N. J. L. 265, 45 Atl. 622.

49. Metropolis Bank v. Faber, 38 N. Y. App. Div. 159, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 542.

Increasing the number of trustees under N. Y. Laws (1878), c. 316, § 2. Formal meeting of board of trustees not necessary for the purpose. Burden v. Burden, 159 N. Y. 287, 54 N. E. 17 [affirming 8 N. Y. App. Div. 160, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 499].

50. United Growers Co. v. Eisner, 22 N. Y. App. Div. 1, 47 N. Y. Suppl. 906.

51. Whittaker v. Amwell Nat. Bank, 52 N. J. Eq. 400, 29 Atl. 203.

That one elected a director is presumed to have accepted the office see Halpin v. Mutual Brew. Co., 20 N. Y. App. Div. 583, 47 N. Y. Suppl. 412.

52. Schwab v. Frisco Min., etc., Co., 21 Utah 258, 60 Pac. 940.

53. In re A. A. Griffing Iron Co., 63 N. J. L. 168, 41 Atl. 931 [affirmed in 63 N. J. L. 357, 46 Atl. 1097].

54. Connecticut.— Bethany Congr. Soc. v. Sperry, 10 Conn. 200; McCall v. Byram Mfg. Co., 6 Conn. 428.

Delaware.—Sparks v. Farmers' Bank, 3 Del. Ch. 274.

Maine.— South Bay Meadow Dam Co. v. Gray, 30 Me. 547.

Mississippi.— Smith v. Natchez Steamboat Co., 1 How. 479.

Tennessee.— Nashville Bank v. Petway, 3 Humphr. 522.

England.— Foot v. Prowse, 1 Str. 625.

When right to hold over ceases.— That the title of a person receiving the necessary votes to elect him to a certain office is complete the moment the vote is declared, so that the right of the former incumbent to hold over ceases, see Booker v. Young, 12 Gratt. (Va.) 303. That where a charter speaks of "years," with reference to an office, years of office, and not calendar years, are intended, see Rex v. Swyer, 10 B. & C. 486, 8 L. J. K. B. O. S. 221, 21 E. C. L. 209. For an analogy, with the conclusion that the prior incumbent holds over until his successor is not only chosen, but sworn in, see Williams v. Lunenburg School Dist., 21 Pick. (Mass.) 75, 32 Am. Dec. 243. By-law under which a person reëlected to the office of clerk continues to hold over under his first election until he is qualified under the second, see Hastings v. Blue Hill Turnpike Corp., 9 Pick. (Mass.) 80.

55. People v. Vail, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 12; People v. Jones, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 81. Some of these statutes are: Ark. Dig. Stat. (1884), §§ 965, 5432; Deering Code Cal. pt. 4, § 306; Minn. Rev. Stat. (1881), § 404; Nebr. Comp.

Somewhat opposed to the foregoing, it has been held that where a power exists to fill a vacancy in the board by the directors already elected, or by holding a new election by the shareholders, the failure legally to elect a full board at a meeting of shareholders will not authorize the old board to hold over.[56] And clearly an existing board cannot against the will of the shareholders enlarge their term of office as fixed by the charter, by changing the time of holding the annual election, by a by-law or otherwise.[57]

8. Resignation of Office of Director. Whatever doubt there may be with respect to the right of the incumbents of public offices to resign[58] there is no doubt that a director in a private corporation has the unqualified right so to do.[59] The analogies of the common law show that the resignation of the office of director need not be by deed, but may be by parol;[60] although statutes and charters exist requiring written notice, in which case a simple communication to the proper officer of the corporation tendering a resignation of the office is effectual.[61] Moreover an intent to resign may be inferred from an acceptance of an incompatible office.[62]

9. Vacation of Office Otherwise Than by Resignation. By the analogies of the common law, the office of director may be vacated by many acts which do not take the form of a direct resignation of it, such as by accepting an incompatible office[63] or by losing the qualification required by the statute or other governing Stat. (1887), c. 16, § 38; Tenn. Code (1884), § 1705; Sayle Stat. Tex. (1888), arts. 583, 4125.

56. Schmidt v. Mitchell, 101 Ky. 570, 41 S. W. 929, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 763, 72 Am. St. Rep. 427 [citing People v. Fleming, 59 Hun (N. Y.) 518, 13 N. Y. Suppl. 715, 37 N. Y. St. 157].

57. State v. McCullough, 3 Nev. 202; Elkins v. Camden, etc., R. Co., 36 N. J. Eq. 467.

Presumption as to holding over.—Presumption that one named for director for the first year in certificate of incorporation under the New York Manufacturers Act of 1848, and prior to the statute of 1892, holds over after his term, in an action to hold him liable as a director for failing to file a statutory report for the subsequent year. Metropolis Bank v. Faber, 38 N. Y. App. Div. 159, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 542.

58. See State v. Ferguson, 31 N. J. L. 107.

59. Fearing v. Glenn, 73 Fed. 116, 19 C. C. A. 388.

60. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662; Rex v. Bedford Level Corp., 6 East 356, 2 Smith K. B. 535.

Language which was held, under the circumstances, not to amount to a resignation of the office of director. Union Nat. Bank v. Scott, 53 N. Y. App. Div. 65, 66 N. Y. Suppl. 145.

Language which was held effectual to resigning the office of secretary and treasurer of a corporation. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Colwell, 132 N. Y. 250, 30 N. E. 644, 43 N. Y. St. 876 [reversing 16 Daly (N. Y.) 28, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 285, 29 N. Y. St. 726].

Circumstances under which participating in a new election by a director does not amount to a resignation of his office. Berry v. Cross, 3 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 1; Rex v. Sandwich, 2 Keb. 92.

That directors are under no obligation to resign because they are small shareholders see Bayles v. Vanderveer, 11 Misc. (N. Y.) 207, 32 N. Y. Suppl. 1117, 66 N. Y. St. 572.

61. Lewis v. Oliver, 4 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 121.

62. Rex v. Goodwin, Dougl. 382, note 22; Verrior v. Sandwich, 1 Sid. 305; Milward v. Thatcher, 2 T. R. 81, 1 Rev. Rep. 431. Compare Staniland v. Hopkins, 9 M. & W. 178; Rex v. Pateman, 2 T. R. 777, 1 Rev. Rep. 621.

63. Astley v. Tivoli, [1899] 1 Ch. 151, 68 L. J. Ch. 90, 79 L. T. Rep. N. S. 541, 6 Manson 64, 47 Wkly. Rep. 326 (construction of the words "place of profit," with the conclusion that the trusteeship of a deed covering or securing the debentures, the trustees of which are appointed and paid, although not removable by the company, is a "place of profit" under the company, within the meaning of the articles of incorporation, vacating the office of a director who accepts or holds any other "place of profit" under the company); Rex v. Goodwin, Dougl. 382, note 22; Staniland v. Hopkins, 9 M. & W. 178; Verrior v. Sandwich, 1 Sid. 305; Rex v. Pateman, 2 T. R. 777, 1 Rev. Rep. 621; Milward v. Thatcher, 2 T. R. 81, 1 Rev. Rep. 431.

Informalities for which elections will not be disturbed on a summary hearing under the New Jersey statute. In re A. A. Griffing Iron Co., 63 N. J. L. 357, 26 Atl. 1097 [affirming 63 N. J. L. 168, 41 Atl. 931]. That a library association having both stock and shareholders is within the meaning of this statute providing a summary proceeding to investigate the election of directors see In re Newark Library Assoc., 64 N. J. L. 217, 43 Atl. 435.

Certificate of judges of election not conclusive where there is proof of fraud, although the by-laws provide that the decision instrument, such as the possession of a stated number of shares of the stock of the corporation.[64]

10. Removal of Directors — a. In General. With respect to the power of a corporation to remove its officers, a distinction exists between those offices which imply a franchise and those which consist of the mere employment. The power of removal in case of the former is restricted; in case of the latter the power of removal exists and may be exercised as fully as by a private person with respect to a private employment.[65] Whatever doubts may have existed on this question in early times, when nearly all corporations were organized for public purposes,[66] there is much modern authority tending to the conclusion that every corporation has an implied power, incident to its existence as a corporation, and independent of charter or statutory provisions, to remove an officer for cause.[67] But this has been denied with respect to modern joint-stock corporations; and it has been held that neither such a corporation in its aggregate capacity nor its board of directors of such judges as to the qualification of voters and the sufficiency of proxies shall be final and conclusive in all cases. Triesler v. Wilson, 89 Md. 169, 42 Atl. 926.

That the adverse parties must be served with notice of an intended application for an order directing a new election of directors, under the Delaware statute, but not necessarily, on the return-day, to procure a rule to show cause why the prayer of the petition should not be granted before a hearing on the petition see Petition of Vernon, 1 Pennew. (Del.) 202, 40 Atl. 60.

64. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Colwell, 132 N. Y. 250, 30 N. E. 644, 43 N. Y. St. 876; Fearing v. Glenn, 73 Fed. 116, 19 C. C. A. 388. As where the director made an assignment of all his property for the benefit of creditors, and then left the state. Wright v. First Nat. Bank, 52 N. J. Eq. 392, 28 Atl. 719. Compare Nathan v. Tompkins, 82 Ala. 437, 2 So. 747; Bainbridge v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 462, 60 L. T. Rep. N. S. 879, 37 Wkly. Rep. 594 (under the English Company Law).

That a director thus disqualified may continue to be such de facto and his acts hence valid see Dawson v. African Consol. Land, etc., Co., [1898] 1 Ch. 6, 67 L. J. Ch. 47, 77 L. T. Rep. N. S. 392, 46 Wkly. Rep. 132.

That disqualification is no ground upon which a corporate officer can refuse to deliver the books and papers of the office to his successor see Crawford v. Powel, 2 Burr. 1013, 1 W. Bl. 229.

Director never having requisite number of shares.— That the provision of the articles of association that the office of director shall be vacated if the incumbent ceases to hold the requisite qualification shares contemplates that the director has held the shares and lost them and does not apply where he never held them see Salton v. New Beeston Cycle Co., [1899] 1 Ch. 775, 68 L. J. Ch. 370, 80 L. T. Rep. N. S. 521, 6 Manson 238, 47 Wkly. Rep. 462.

65. See on this subject the language of Daly, F. J., in White v. Brownell, 4 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 162, 192 [citing Fuller v. School Trustees, 6 Conn. 532; People v. Medical Soc., 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 570; Evans v. Philadelphia Club, 50 Pa. St. 107; Com. v. St. Patrick's Benev. Soc., 2 Binn. (Pa.) 441, 4 Am. Dec. 453; Earle's Case, Carth. 173; Bagg's Case, 11 Coke 93*b*]. See also Willcock Corp. 270.

66. It was said in one case in the king's bench that there are authorities [citing 11 Coke 99; Palm 451, 1 Roll. Rep. 224; Stiles 477] that the power of amotion is not inherent in a corporation, but that such a power must exist by charter or prescription in order to its exercise. Rex v. Doncaster, Barn. 264, 2 Ld. Raym. 1564.

67. District of Columbia.— Adamantine Brick Co. v. Woodruff, MacArthur & M. 318.

Illinois.— People v. Higgins, 15 Ill. 110.

Indiana.— State v. Vincennes University, 5 Ind. 77.

New York.— Fawcett v. Charles, 13 Wend. 473; Auburn Academy v. Strong, Hopk. 278.

Pennsylvania.— Statement of doctrine by Woodward, C. J., at nisi prius in Evans v. Philadelphia Club, 50 Pa. St. 107, 117 [affirmed by an equal division of the supreme court, in 50 Pa. St. 127].

Virginia.— Burr v. McDonald, 3 Gratt. 215.

England.— Rex v. Doncaster, Barn. 264, 2 Ld. Raym. 1564; Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 517, 2 Ld. Ken. 85; Bruce's Case, 2 Str. 819; Haddock's Case, T. Raym. 435.

Effect of by-laws.—Therefore a by-law authorizing the removal of corporate officers for cause may be good, although no power of removal is expressly given by charter or is possessed by prescription. Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 517, 2 Ld. Ken. 85. On the other hand a by-law undertaking to restrict this inherent power would be bad. Reg. v. Darlington Free Grammar School, 6 Q. B. 682, 14 L. J. Q. B. 67, 51 E. C. L. 682.

It has been held that this power resides in the corporation alone, and cannot be exercised by the judicial courts. Neall v. Hill, 16 Cal. 145, 76 Am. Dec. 508. But this cannot be affirmed with any confidence. The better view is that directors, being trustees, are like other trustees removable by a court of equity for breaches of their trust, at the suit of shareholders who have exhausted their remedy within the corporation, and that a receiver may be appointed in their stead; but that this will not be done for mere errors of judgment, can remove a member of its board of directors, except in conformity with the provisions of statute, or of some valid by-law, or other constating instrument.[68]

b. Directors Cannot Remove Each Other, but Constituent Body Only Can Remove. It may be stated with confidence, on the analogies of the common law, that the removal of the directors or trustees of a corporation is a constituent act which can be performed only by the constituent body, that is to say, in joint-stock corporations by the shareholders only; and that, in the absence of express statutory authorization thereto, directors cannot remove each other,[69] although there are statutes changing this rule and conferring the power of removal upon the board of directors, generally to be exercised by a two-thirds vote.[70] Nor can a board of directors create a vacancy in their board by ousting a director whom they may regard as ineligible; although it seems that they may decide and settle the actual fact of the existence of a vacancy for the purpose of filling it, and that this is the extent of their power.[71]

c. Grounds For Which Directors May Be Removed. The analogies of the common law point to the following as grounds upon which directors may be removed: "1st, Such as have no immediate relation to his office, but are in themselves of so infamous a nature, as to render the offender unfit to execute any public franchise. 2d, Such as are only against his oath, and the duty of his office as a corporator; and amount to breaches of the tacit condition annexed to his franchise or office. 3d, . . . [Such as are] of a mixed nature; as being an offence not only against the duty of his office, but also a matter indictable at common law."[72] Obvi-or for anything less than abuses of trust amounting to misconduct in office. Ward v. Davidson, 89 Mo. 445. Circumstances where the court refused to remove the trustees in charge of the liquidation and appoint a receiver after an assignment for the equal benefit of creditors. State Bank v. Ruff, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 448. That the shareholders of a corporation who do not vote against the reëlection of directors may be deemed to acquiesce by such omission in acts of such directors done prior to the reëlection, and of which shareholders had information sufficient to put them on inquiry, and are not entitled afterward to have those directors suspended on the ground of misconduct previous to the reëlection see Ramsey v. Erie R. Co., 7 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 156, 38 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 193.

Construction of a statute (2 N. Y. Rev. Stat. (1st ed.) 426) conferring on the chancellor jurisdiction to suspend trustees or officers of corporations, with the conclusion that this power would not be exercised for the cause of their having made improper expenditures touching the business of the corporation, nor on charges of personal immorality. Ramsey v. Erie R. Co., 7 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 156, 190, 38 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 193.

68. Nathan v. Timpkins, 82 Ala. 437, 2 So. 747.

That a director of an English joint-stock company, appointed for a definite period, cannot be removed before the expiration of that period by virtue of any inherent power in the company see Imperial Hydropathic Hotel Co. v. Hampson, 23 Ch. D. 1, 49 L. T. Rep. N. S. 147, 31 Wkly. Rep. 330.

That the board of directors of a corporation cannot create a vacancy for the purpose of filling it, although if the member resigns, they may act on his resignation and supply the vacancy see Com. v. Detwiller, 131 Pa. St. 614, 18 Atl. 990, 992, 7 L. R. A. 357, 360.

69. Fuller v. School Trustees, 6 Conn. 532; Rex v. Lyme Regis, 1 Dougl. (3d ed.) 149. But see State v. Vincennes University, 5 Ind. 77.

It has been held that the directors of a national bank have power to remove the president, both under the National Banking Act, and under the articles of association of the particular bank, where such articles give the directors express power to remove. Taylor v. Hutton, 43 Barb. (N. Y.) 195, 18 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 16.

70. 1 Ballinger Anno. Codes & Stat. Wash. § 4255.

"By two thirds of the stockholders," which is held to mean two thirds in value of the shareholders, that is to say, two thirds of the stock. State v. Horan, 22 Wash. 197, 60 Pac. 135.

71. Com. v. Detwiller, 131 Pa. St. 614, 18 Atl. 990, 992, 7 L. R. A. 357, 360.

72. Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 517, 2 Ld. Ken. 85, where Lord Mansfield discussed the whole subject at great length and with great learning. The same grounds of amotion were restated by Lord Mansfield in Rex v. Liverpool, 2 Burr. 723, 732, 2 Ld. Ken. 391. Lord Mansfield's statement has been approved in numerous American cases. Evans v. Philadelphia Club, 50 Pa. St. 107, 114 (per Woodward, C. J.); Com. v. Guardians of Poor, 6 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 469; Com. v. St. Patrick's Benev. Soc., 2 Binn. (Pa.) 441, 4 Am. Dec. 453; State v. Chamber of Commerce, 20 Wis. 63. In these and other American cases it has been applied to the subject of the expulsion of members. But the right to expel members

ously before a director can be expelled for having committed an infamous crime there must have been a previous trial and conviction, "as in cases of general perjury, forgery, libelling, etc." [73] But in the second and third cases above mentioned by Lord Mansfield, where the matter concerns the relation of the officer of the corporation to the corporation itself it is not necessary, in order to the power of amotion, that there should have first been an indictment and conviction in the ordinary course of law; because in respect of these offenses the corporation possesses the power of trial as well as the power of amotion.[74] Even the misemployment of the money of a corporation has been held not sufficient ground for removing an officer, where it does not amount to a breach of trust.[75] But bribing a corporator to vote for a particular candidate at a corporate election [76] and receiving a bribe in the case of a common councilman, under a charter conferring power to remove for disorderly conduct,[77] have been held sufficient to warrant an amotion. Ancient authority warrants the conclusion that misconduct, excluding cases of convictions for infamous crimes, on the part of a director, when furnishing a ground of removal at common law, must be specially connected with the execution of the office, and also the result of improper motives.[78] Alteration of the corporate records with a fraudulent intent has been held sufficient ground of removal; but the fraudulent intent is essential and must be averred.[79] But the refusal to deliver over the corporate books intrusted to his custody as the proper officer, to a person applying for them with an order from the corporation, has been held not sufficient.[80] The analogies of the common law indicate that directors or trustees are removable for a prolonged and obstinate non-attendance at corporate meetings, although not for a single or casual non-attendance,[81] unless the duties of the office are such as to require their constant presence.[82] The analogies of the common law also point to the conclusion that the cause for which alone a director can be removed must be something which has arisen subsequently to his election and admission into the office, and that the power of removal cannot be exercised for a defect in his original qualification.[83] Bankruptcy, it has been held, does not disqualify a person from being a member of the common council of a municipal corporation, since it does not disable him from discharging the duties of his office;[84] but it seems that it might disqualify one from holding the or shareholders does not exist in joint-stock companies.

73. Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 517, 2 Ld. Ken. 85.

74. Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 517, 2 Ld. Ken. 85 [overruling on this point the dicta in Bagg's Case, 11 Coke 93*b*].

75. Com. v. Guardians of Poor, 6 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 469; Rex v. Wilton, 1 Ld. Raym. 225, 5 Mod. 257, 2 Salk. 428.

76. Rex v. Tiverton, 8 Mod. 186.

77. State v. Jersey City, 25 N. J. L. 536.

78. Reg. v. Newbury, 1 Q. B. 751, 1 G. & D. 388, 6 Jur. 385, 10 L. J. Q. B. 250, 41 E. C. L. 751; Bagg's Case, 11 Coke 93*b*.

The ancient books of the law teem with analogies more or less supporting this statement, but they are only analogous since they related either to municipal corporations or to incorporated guilds or societies, and not to joint-stock companies. See for example Rex v. Doncaster, Barn. 264, 2 Ld. Raym. 1564; Rex v. Derby, Cas. t. Hardw. 153; Innes v. Wylie, 1 C. & K. 257, 47 E. C. L. 257; Bagg's Case, 11 Coke 93*b*; Clerk's Case, Cro. Jac. 506; Reg. v. Rogers, 2 Ld. Raym. 777; Rex v. London, 2 Lev. 200; Rex v. Guilford, 1 Lev. 162; Haddock's Case, T. Raym. 435; Clark's Case, Ventr. 327.

That a trustee cannot be removed for uttering disrespectful or defamatory language concerning his associates see Com. v. German Soc., 15 Pa. St. 251. As where he calls them "rascals, scoundrels and Turks." Fuller v. School Trustees, 6 Conn. 532.

79. Wigon v. Pilkington, 1 Keb. 597; Rex v. Wilton, 1 Ld. Raym. 225, 5 Mod. 257, 2 Salk. 428.

80. Anonymous, Barn. 402; Reg. v. Ipswich, 2 Ld. Raym. 1232, 2 Salk. 434; Rex v. Ingram, 1 W. Bl. 50.

81. Fuller v. School Trustees, 6 Conn. 532; Murdock v. Phillips Academy, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 244 (professor in a theological seminary); Reg. v. Pomfret, 10 Mod. 107.

82. Rex v. Wells, 4 Burr. 1999.

83. Rex v. Lyme Regis, 1 Dougl. (3d ed.) 149.

Other grounds of removal applied in cases of officers of municipal and eleemosynary corporations are stated in 1 Thompson Corp. § 815.

84. Rex v. Liverpool, 2 Burr. 723, 2 Ld. Ken. 391.

Provisions in the articles of an English banking company that if any person chosen to act as the public registered officer of the company should become bankrupt he should be office of director in a private joint-stock corporation, since it would necessarily operate as an assignment of the shares necessary to qualify him for the office. But the individual bankruptcy of a director or other officer of a corporation does not ipso facto vacate his office.[85]

d. Statutory or Charter Power. Although the inherent power to remove its directors may exist in a corporation, yet where the charter or governing statute prescribes the terms or conditions under which the power must be exercised they must be pursued.[86]

e. How Power to Remove Exercised — (i) In General. Some corporate action is of course necessary to remove a corporate officer — something that distinctly signifies the corporate will that he shall no longer be an officer.[87] In those cases where the office is in the nature of a franchise, the officer cannot be removed without the agency of a tribunal competent to investigate the cause and pronounce the sentence of the loss of right. The office is not ipso facto vacated by neglect or abuse; wrongs do not thus execute their own punishment; but an act done or the exercise of power is requisite to work the forfeiture and determine the title to the office.[88] The analogies of the common law point to the conclusion that the power to remove a director can be exercised only by the constituent body, unless otherwise provided by statute or charter, and then only in a corporate meeting duly assembled in pursuance of notice as in other cases of special meeting;[89] and then only by a vote of a majority of the assembled quorum, counting the one on trial, who has the right to be counted and to vote.[90] Nor can such a removal take place without notice and a judicial inquiry analogous to that which satisfies the expression "due process of law."[91] It may be collected from analogous holdings that principles on which the judicial courts proceed in reviewing sentences of amotion require them to disregard mere irregularities with respect to what has taken place before the judicatory, and to set aside such a sentence for illegality only.[92] To render the proceeding legal, there should be: (1) A monition or citation directed to the offending person, to appear at the appointed meeting for trial; (2) a charge given to him to which he is required to make answer; (3) a compe-disqualified and his office become vacant have been construed to mean that his office was to become vacant at the election of the company; but if after the bankruptcy they treated and held him out to the world as their public registered officer they might sue and be sued in his name. Steward v. Dunn, 12 M. & W. 655, 1 D. & L. 642, 8 Jur. 218, 13 L. J. Exch. 324.

85. Atlas Nat. Bank v. F. B. Gardner Co., 2 Fed. Cas. No. 635, 8 Biss. 537; Phelps v. Lyle, 10 A. & E. 113, 3 Jur. 479, 2 P. & D. 314, 37 E. C. L. 82.

86. State v. Vincennes University, 5 Ind. 77. That where the governing statute prescribes the cause for which an officer may be removed he cannot be removed for any other cause see Shaw v. Macon, 19 Ga. 468. That the charter power of removal does not authorize a suspension see State v. Jersey City, 25 N. J. L. 536. That a provision in a governing statute or in the foundation of a private charity that the visitors shall and may remove officers for specified causes may be read "must" see Atty.-Gen. v. Lock, 3 Atk. 164, 26 Eng. Reprint 897.

87. Indiana.— State v. Vincennes University, 5 Ind. 77.

Massachusetts.— Murdock v. Phillips Academy, 12 Pick. 244.

New Jersey.— Doremus v. English Neighborhood Dutch Reformed Church, 3 N. J. Eq. 332.

Pennsylvania.— Com. v. Pennsylvania Beneficial Inst., 2 Serg. & R. 141.

England.— Rex v. Ponsonby, 2 Bro. P. C. 311, 1 Ld. Ken. 1, 1 Ves. Jr. 1, 1 Eng. Reprint 965; Rex v. Heaven, 2 T. R. 772.

88. State v. Vincennes University, 5 Ind. 77.

89. Rex v. Taylor, 3 Salk. 231.

90. Reg. v. Sutton, 10 Mod. 74.

91. Jarvis v. New York, 2 N. Y. Leg. Obs. 396; Rex v. Doncaster, 2 Burr. 738, 2 Ld. Ken. 391; Rex v. Liverpool, 2 Burr. 723, 2 Ld. Ken. 391; Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 517, 2 Ld. Ken. 85.

Courts of equity proceed upon the same principles; so that where a removal rests in the discretion of the trustees, in the due execution of the powers and trusts reposed in them, so that it is under the control of a court of chancery, a removal upon an ex parte hearing without giving the officer an opportunity of making defense will be set aside. Willis v. Childe, 13 Beav. 117, 20 L. J. Ch. 113.

92. Fuller v. Plainfield Academic School, 6 Conn. 532; Murdock v. Phillips Academy, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 244; Murdock's Appeal, 7 tent time assigned for proofs and answers; (4) liberty of counsel to defend him, and to except to proofs and witnesses; and (5) a solemn sentence after a hearing of proofs and answers.[93] He is entitled to what has been called a particular summons, to attend and answer a particular charge laid against him.[94] He is entitled to have the offense with which he is charged "fully and plainly, substantially and formally, described to him."[95] The notice or citation being in the nature of an indictment, it has been held that if he is tried and removed upon a charge, the variance will be fatal and he will be restored by mandamus.[96] Although the summons be defective in so far as it sets forth the time when the person cited should appear, yet as in other cases if he does appear and submit to trial without objection this will be a waiver of the informality.[97]

(II) Whether Under Seal or by Resolution Merely. Under the conception of the old law an officer appointed under the common seal of a corporation could only be discharged by an instrument authenticated in the like manner.[98] But as we shall see hereafter the necessity of a corporate seal as an evidence of a corporate act is no longer required by the modern law, except in those cases where an individual acting in the same way would be required to act under seal.[99] Even under old conceptions it was not necessary that the removal of a mere ministerial officer should be made by the corporation under its common seal.[1] An officer appointed by resolution only, and holding during pleasure, might be removed by a mere resolution rescinding the former one.[2] If the officer be liable to removal at the pleasure of the corporation, the choosing of another person to fill the office is a declaration of such pleasure.[3]

(III) When Resolution of Removal Takes Effect so as to Terminate Liability of Sureties. A resolution of a corporation suspending or removing an officer in a place at a distance is not regarded as taking effect so as to terminate the liability of his sureties, until the necessary time for communicating knowledge of the resolution to him has elapsed.[4]

f. Notice Not Required in Case of Continued Desertion and Non-Residence. By the analogies of the common law a notice is not required in the case of a continued desertion and non-residence on the part of the director, such as prevents the giving of notice,[5] although of course this rule would not apply in the case of a mere temporary absence.[6]

g. Assembling Meeting For Trial — Notifying Members. In the absence of a governing statute or by-law it seems that it will be sufficient if the meeting is assembled in the mode which has been the customary method employed by the corporation, as by mailing a postal card to each member notifying him of the time

Pick. (Mass.) 303; Osgood v. Nelson, L. R. 5 H. L. 636, 41 L. J. Q. B. 329; Rex v. Axbridge, Cowp. 523; Rex v. Bristol, 1 D. & R. 389, 16 E. C. L. 43; s. c. sub nom. Rex v. Griffiths, 5 B. & Ald. 731, 7 E. C. L. 398; Rex v. London, 2 T. R. 177.

93. Murdock v. Phillips Academy, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 244.

94. Delacy v. Neuse Nav. Co., 8 N. C. 274, 9 Am. Dec. 636; Black, etc., Soc. v. Vandyke, 2 Whart. (Pa.) 309, 30 Am. Dec. 263; Com. v. Pennsylvania Beneficial Inst., 2 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 141; Bagg's Case, 11 Coke 93*b*; Exeter v. Glide, 4 Mod. 33.

95. Murdock v. Phillips Academy, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 244; In re Murdock, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 303.

96. Reg. v. Ipswich, 2 Ld. Raym. 1232, 2 Salk. 434.

97. Reg. v. Ipswich, 2 Ld. Raym. 1232, 2 Salk. 434; Rex v. Wilton, 1 Ld. Raym. 225, 5 Mod. 257, 2 Salk. 428.

98. Rex v. Rippon, 1 Ld. Raym. 563, 2 Salk. 433; Rex v. Wilton, 1 Ld. Raym. 225, 5 Mod. 257, 2 Salk. 428.

99. See infra, XII, D, 1, g, (I) et seq.

1. Dighton v. Stratford on Avon, 2 Keb. 641.

2. Reg. v. Thomas, 8 A. & E. 183, 2 Jur. 347, 7 L. J. Q. B. 141, 3 N. & P. 288, 35 E. C. L. 543; Rex v. Wilton, 1 Ld. Raym. 225, 5 Mod. 257, 2 Salk. 428.

3. Atty.-Gen. v. Poole, 8 Beav. 75, 9 Jur. 318, 14 L. J. Ch. 101; Rex v. Canterbury, 11 Mod. 403, 1 Str. 674.

4. McGill v. U. S. Bank, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 511, 6 L. ed. 711.

5. Rex v. Leicester, 4 Burr. 2087.

6. Reg. v. Truebody, Holt K. B. 449, 2 Ld. Raym. 1275, 11 Mod. 75.

The analogies of the modern law would require the giving of such notice to the directors as might be practicable under all the circumstances.

and place of the meeting, in which case it will be presumed that the cards so mailed have been received.[7]

h. Conduct of Trial — Evidence. It does not follow from the preceding that the trial is to be conducted with the same formality as a trial in a court of law. It need not be conducted with open doors, no more than one witness need be admitted at a time, nor need the triers admit the declarations of the accused, in explanation of his conduct, although they may do so if they think proper.[8] It is not necessary that the evidence should be of such a character as would be necessary to its admission in a judicial trial; it is sufficient if it be of that character of which men ordinarily act in their private affairs, so that nothing takes place which violates the principle of natural justice already stated. Unless the rules of the society or the statute law otherwise provide, the witnesses need not be examined under oath.[9]

i. Remedies to Restore Expelled Director — (i) Certiorari. Analogies exist which point to the use of the writ of certiorari, which as is well known was a writ issuing out of the court of king's bench, and running to inferior bodies not of record, to bring up their record in a given proceeding — such was the solecism — and have the proceeding quashed where the body acted outside of its jurisdiction.[10] And for this purpose what would be mere error in a court of record would be regarded as an excess of jurisdiction in an inferior body.[11]

(ii) Extent of Relief in Equity. A court of equity has not, unless thereto empowered by statute, any superintendence over the officers of a corporation, beyond holding them answerable and restraining them in cases of frauds and breaches of trust, and compelling them to account as trustees.[12] The jurisdiction of equity has been refused to reinstate directors who have been removed by vote of the shareholders.[13] But where, under the statute or other instrument which governs the execution of a trust, the trustees have the power of removing an officer at will, an officer removed by them will be reinstated by a court of equity, if it appear that they have exercised their power of removal dishonestly or corruptly; otherwise not.[14] If the power of removal is discretionary in the trustees of the corporation, their discretion will it seems be subject to the control of a court of chancery.[15]

(iii) Mandamus. Mandamus is the ancient common-law writ constantly used for the purpose of restoring an officer or member of a public corporation, who has

7. People v. Albany Medical College, 26 Hun (N. Y.) 348 [reversing 10 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 122, 62 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 220].

8. In re Murdock, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 303.

9. People v. New York Commercial Assoc., 18 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 271; Ex p. Ramshay, 18 Q. B. 173, 16 Jur. 684, 21 L. J. Q. B. 238, 83 E. C. L. 173. It is hence no objection that a witness was not properly sworn. Pitcher v. Chicago Bd. of Trade, 121 Ill. 412, 13 N. E. 187.

Copious analogies upon this subject will be found in a discussion relating to the expulsion of members, and especially pertaining to municipal corporations and societies, but not to joint-stock companies, in 1 Thompson Corp. § 846 et seq.

10. See, generally, as to the office of this writ Jordan v. Hayne, 36 Iowa 9; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Young, 96 Mo. 39, 8 S. W. 776; State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 89 Mo. 523, 14 S. W. 522; House v. Clinton County Ct., 67 Mo. 522; Hannibal, etc., R. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization, 64 Mo. 294. See also Certiorari, 6 Cyc. 73*a*.

11. The statutory writ of certiorari is used in New York for the purpose of reviewing the proceedings of such inferior bodies as municipal boards, police commissioners, tax commissioners, and the like. People v. Board of Police Com'rs, 93 N. Y. 97; People v. Board of Fire Com'rs, 82 N. Y. 358; People v. Board of Police, 69 N. Y. 408; People v. Police Com'rs, 23 Hun (N. Y.) 351; People v. Police Com'rs, 20 Hun (N. Y.) 402. No precedent has come to the attention of the writer which justifies the use of the writ of certiorari for the purpose of reviewing the proceedings of the judicatories of strictly private corporations and societies in removing their officers or in expelling their members.

12. Griffin v. St. Louis Vine, etc., Growers' Assoc., 4 Mo. App. 596.

13. Inderwick v. Snell, 2 Hall & T. 412, 14 Jur. 727, 19 L. J. Ch. 542, 2 Macn. & G. 216, 48 Eng. Ch. 167.

14. Hayman v. Rugby School, L. R. 18 Eq. 28, 43 L. J. Ch. 834, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 217, 22 Wkly. Rep. 587. See also Dummer v. Chippenham, 14 Ves. Jr. 245.

15. Willis v. Childe, 13 Beav. 117, 15 Jur. 303, 20 L. J. Ch. 113.

been disfranchised of his membership.[16] But as used in England this writ proceeds only on grounds of public right, and is consequently not used to restore an officer or member of a strictly private corporation or company.[17] In the United States, as is well known, this writ is sometimes used in cases of a private nature, where there is a clear right, founded on the principles of the common law, or given by the constitutional or statutory law. In one American case the idea has been put forward that the right to the remedy by mandamus rests on clear ground where the office from which the relator has been removed is not attended with pecuniary profit, the reason being that having sustained no pecuniary loss he cannot have redress of the injury which has been put upon him by an action for damages.[18]

11. Contesting Election of Directors — a. Inadequacy of Remedy by Certiorari. In a state where the remedy by certiorari had been frequently resorted to

16. Fuller v. Plainfield Academic School, 6 Conn. 532.

17. Vaughan v. London Gun-Makers Co., 2 Ld. Raym. 989, 6 Mod. 82. Compare Hurst's Case, 1 Keb. 349; 1 Thompson Corp. § 829 et seq. (where there is a long note embodying much of the musty learning on this subject).

18. Fuller v. Plainfield Academic School, 6 Conn. 532. Compare Rex v. Barker, 3 Burr. 1265, 1 W. Bl. 300.

Several writs where there are several officers. Rex v. Chester, Comb. 307; Andover's Case, Holt K. B. 441, 2 Salk. 433.

Allegations of the writ. Fuller v. Plainfield Academic School, 6 Conn. 532.

What if directed to the individuals by name and not to the corporation. Fuller v. Plainfield Academic School, 6 Conn. 532; In re Abingdon Town Case, Carth. 499, 1 Ld. Raym. 559, 2 Salk. 431, 699 [overruling Holt's Case, 7 Jones 51]; Rex v. Rippon, 1 Ld. Raym. 563, 2 Salk. 433.

Office and scope of the return to the writ under the old law. Rex v. Griffiths, 5 B. & Ald. 731, 7 E. C. L. 398; Rex v. Lyme Regis, 1 Dougl. (3d ed.) 149; Green v. Pope, 1 Ld. Raym. 125; Audly's Case, Latch. 123; Anonymous, 2 Salk. 428. Compare Rex v. Liverpool, 2 Burr. 723, 2 Ld. Ken. 391; In re Abingdon Town Case, Carth. 499, 1 Ld. Raym. 559, 2 Salk. 431, 699 (per Lord Holt, C. J.); Buckley v. Palmer, 2 Salk. 430; Rex v. Morpeth, 1 Str. 58. That the remedy was an action for a false return and not to traverse the return see In re Abingdon Town Case, Carth. 499, 1 Ld. Raym. 559, 2 Salk. 431, 699 (per Lord Holt, C. J.); Buckley v. Palmer, 2 Salk. 430. If return bad for repugnancy, peremptory writ granted. Reg. v. Norwich, Holt K. B. 444, 2 Salk. 432. Return that the prosecutor has resigned his office. Rex v. Rippon, 1 Ld. Raym. 563, 2 Salk. 433. Return of non fuit electus. Reg. v. Cornwall, 11 Mod. 174; Reg. v. Twitty, 7 Mod. 83. And see Reg. v. Aldborough, 10 Mod. 100. Return of subsequent disqualification. Weber v. Zimmerman, 23 Md. 45. Return embodying a negative pregnant. Rex v. York, 5 T. R. 66. Rule that return should traverse the facts and not the conclusions. Rex v. York, 5 T. R. 66. When necessary for return to set up the manner of election, in order to support the statement that the relator was not duly elected. Rex v. Stafford, 2 Keb. 264. When not a good return to describe the constitution in other terms than that employed in the writ, and to show a compliance with it as thus described. Rex v. Malden, 1 Ld. Raym. 481, 2 Salk. 431. When necessary that the existence of a custom should be alleged in positive terms. Rex v. Coventry, 1 Ld. Raym. 391, 2 Salk. 430. Return may show any number of causes, provided they are consistent with each other (Wright v. Fawcett, 4 Burr. 2041; Reg. v. Norwich, 2 Ld. Raym. 1244, 2 Salk. 436), but not where they are repugnant to each other (Rex v. Cambridge, 2 T. R. 456). Illustration of such a repugnancy, peremptory writ granted. Reg. v. Norwich, 2 Ld. Raym. 1244, 2 Salk. 436. When the court may quash the bad causes returned, and send the good ones to the prosecutor to plead to them. Rex v. Cambridge, 2 T. R. 456. Compare Rex v. York, 5 T. R. 66. Other ancient returns, good, bad, and indifferent. Rex v. Taunton, Cowp. 413; Rex v. York, 5 T. R. 66 [explained in 1 Thompson Corp. § 834]; Rex v. Cambridge, 2 T. R. 456. When not necessary to aver in the return the power of removal. Rex v. Lyme Regis, 1 Dougl. (3d ed.) 149. Instances of good returns in such cases. 1 Thompson Corp. § 836; Lambert's Case, Carth. 170; Rex v. Lyme Regis, 1 Dougl. (3d ed.) 149; Rex v. Colchester, 2 Keb. 188; Rex v. Rippon, 2 Keb. 15; Rex v. Mills, 1 Keb. 623; Wigon v. Pilkington, 1 Keb. 597. Sufficient if return made by proper officer until falsified. In re Abingdon Town Case, Carth. 499, 1 Ld. Raym. 559, 2 Salk. 431, 699; Rex v. Norwich, Holt K. B. 444, 2 Salk. 432. Not necessary that the return should be under the corporate seal. Lidleston v. Exeter, Comb. 422; Rex v. Colchester, Comb. 324; Rex v. St. John's College, Comb. 279; Powell v. Price, Comb. 41.

Doctrine that court will not interfere by mandamus where there has been such evidence before the proper corporate judicatory as would justify a court in leaving the question of the inability or neglect of duty of the officer to a jury. Osgood v. Nelson, L. R. 5 H. L. 636, 41 L. J. Q. B. 329.

in case of the illegal election or appointment of public officers,[19] it was pointed out that an information in the nature of a quo warranto is specially adapted to such cases, and is the peculiarly appropriate remedy to try the right to the office and to give the full measure of redress in case of success.[20]

b. Remedy by Mandamus. By the common law of England, the writ of mandamus was constantly used to compel the induction into public offices of persons duly elected thereto or unlawfully expelled therefrom.[21] In England the writ of mandamus was never used to vindicate merely private rights; it was therefore denied when applied for to restore officers of merely private corporations;[22] but an authoritative court in this country has held, after a review of the precedents, that a writ of mandamus may be used where a manufacturing corporation is in fact and theory the petitioner to compel a board of usurping corporate officers, elected by the casting of illegal votes, to surrender their offices to those having the highest number of legal votes.[23] Some courts have on the other hand denied the remedy by mandamus, on the ground that the appropriate remedy is an information in the nature of a quo warranto;[24] and clearly this is the appropriate remedy.[25] Even where a mandamus is deemed an appropriate remedy, it would not be granted to restore a director, unless he was such de jure. And this also where he has served as secretary, which office could be filled only by a director under the acquiescence of the other directors, they being of the impression that his election was valid.[26]

c. Inadequacy of Remedy in Equity. Courts of equity proceed on the three grounds of fraud, trust, and account. Speaking generally they have no jurisdiction over contests for the possession of corporate offices.[27] Their writ of injunction has been refused to reinstate directors who have been removed by a vote of the shareholders[28] and will not go to restrain directors from exercising the functions of their offices on the ground that they have been illegally chosen.[29]

19. As to the use of this remedy in such cases see People v. Van Slyck, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 297; Wildy v. Washburn, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 49; Wood v. Peake, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 69; Lawton v. Highway Com'rs, 2 Cai. (N. Y.) 179.

20. People v. Seaman, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 409.

21. Instances of this use of the writ, where it was granted or refused, may be collected from the following among many other cases: Roe's Case, Comb. 145; Parkinson's Case, Comb. 143; Anonymous, Comb. 105; Rex v. Knapton, 2 Keb. 445; King's Case, 1 Keb. 517; Audly's Case, Latch. 123; Appleford's Case, 1 Mod. 82.

22. Anonymous, Comb. 133; Anonymous, Comb. 41; In re Rex, etc., Case, 1 Keb. 625.

23. American Railway-Frog Co. v. Haven, 101 Mass. 398, 3 Am. Rep. 377.

24. People v. Matteson, 17 Ill. 167; St. Louis County Ct. v. Sparks, 10 Mo. 117, 45 Am. Dec. 355.

In this country mandamus has been used to compel the trustees of a religious corporation to induct a pastor (People v. Steele, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 397. But see People v. Dikeman, 7 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 124); to compel a board of examiners to give a certificate of the election of the relator to a public office (In re Strong, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 484); and to compel a judge to receive a bond, if found to be good and sufficient, tendered to him by the claimant of the office of clerk of his court (State v. Wear, 37 Mo. App. 325).

25. People v. Seaman, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 409.

Therefore an election to fill an alleged vacancy will not be enjoined, but should be allowed to proceed so that the person entitled may contest his right and that of his opponent in quo warranto proceeding. Hooe v. Hall, 4 Ohio Cir. Dec. 547.

26. People v. New York Infant Asylum, 122 N. Y. 190, 25 N. E. 241, 33 N. Y. St. 296, 10 L. R. A. 381.

27. Griffin v. St. Louis Vine, etc., Growers' Assoc., 4 Mo. App. 596.

28. Hughes v. Parker, 20 N. H. 58; Inderwick v. Snell, 2 Hall & T. 412, 14 Jur. 727, 19 L. J. Ch. 542, 2 Macn. & G. 216, 48 Eng. Ch. 167.

29. Hartt v. Harvey, 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 55, 10 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 321, 19 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 245. See for analogies Hardenburgh v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 3 N. J. Eq. 68; Updegraff v. Crans, 47 Pa. St. 103. But it has been held that if the question of the validity of a corporate election necessarily arises in a suit properly cognizable by a court of equity, such court will determine it, as it would any other question of law or fact necessary to be decided to settle the rights of the parties. Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. H. C. Burnet Mfg. Co., 32 N. J. Eq. 236. Another decision out of line with the current of authority is to the effect that equity will step in and give relief where there are grave charges of a breach of trust. Dart v. Houston, 22 Ga. 506.

d. Nature of This Use of Information in Nature of Quo Warranto — (I) In General. By the ancient common law the writ of quo warranto was the regular remedy resorted to on behalf of the crown to oust an intruder from a public office. In the place of the ancient writ the more flexible remedy of an information in the nature of a quo warranto was substituted, and this remedy is in ordinary use in the United States[30] with few exceptions.[31] By analogy to the use of this remedy in the case of public offices it is very generally held that the same remedy exists to oust persons who have usurped or intruded into the offices of either public or private corporations.[32] This proceeding is the proper remedy to oust bank directors who have come into their offices through the forms of law, and are hence de facto officers, if they have been in fact illegally elected.[33]

(II) Is a Civil Proceeding. An information in the nature of a writ of quo warranto as thus used to test the right to an office in a corporate directorate is distinguishable from the same remedy as used to oust usurpers of a corporate or public franchise. As here used it is regarded as a civil proceeding.[34] Although partaking of the character of a criminal proceeding in its origin and form, the information, answer, and reply are generally subject to rules corresponding to those which obtain in strictly civil cases[35] — the information answering to the declaration or complaint in an ordinary civil suit.[36] The action is one of legal, not of equitable, cognizance, and the issues are strictly legal issues.[37]

e. Burden of Proof — When Relator Bound to Show Title. According to the ancient conception and use of the remedy by quo warranto, it was a writ of right, whereby the king demanded to know by what authority the respondent presumed to exercise a certain office or franchise.[38] The burden to show that authority, or to disclaim the exercise of the office or franchise, lay upon the respondent. He was bound either to disclaim or to justify. If he disclaimed the king had judgment. If he justified he was bound to show his title specially, and all particulars upon which it was founded; and this became the rule under the remedy of an information in the nature of a quo warranto.[39] This conception of the remedy

30. Arkansas.—State v. Evans, 3 Ark. 585, 36 Am. Dec. 468.

California.— People v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 43; People v. Scannell, 7 Cal. 432.

Illinois.— People v. Matteson, 17 Ill. 167; People v. Forquer, 1 Ill. 104.

Massachusetts.— Sudbury First Parish v. Stearns, 21 Pick. 148; Com. v. Fowler, 10 Mass. 290.

Mississippi.— Lindsey v. Atty.-Gen., 33 Miss. 508.

Missouri.— St. Louis County Ct. v. Sparks, 10 Mo. 117, 45 Am. Dec. 355; Ex p. Bellows, 1 Mo. 115.

New York.— New York v. Conover, 5 Abb. Pr. 171; Lewis v. Oliver, 4 Abb. Pr. 121; People v. Van Slyck, 4 Cow. 297.

Pennsylvania.— Clark v. Com., 29 Pa. St. 129; Com. v. Cullen, 13 Pa. St. 133, 53 Am. Dec. 450; Respublica v. Wray, 3 Dall. 490, 1 L. ed. 692.

South Carolina.— State v. Deliesseline, 1 McCord 52. Compare State v. Wadkins, 1 Rich. 42.

31. Terry v. Stauffer, 17 La. Ann. 306.

32. State v. Coffee, 59 Mo. 59; People v. Kip, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 382 note; People v. Tibbets, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 358; State v. Buchanan, Wright (Ohio) 233.

33. State v. Harris, 3 Ark. 570, 36 Am. Dec. 460; State v. Ashley, 1 Ark. 513; Smith v. State Bank, 18 Ind. 327.

Some holdings restrain the use of this remedy to cases of persons claiming to exercise some public office or authority. Com. v. Dearborn, 15 Mass. 125.

In England a quo warranto will be granted to oust a usurping corporate officer after a proper corporate judicatory has passed a sentence of amotion. Rex v. Truro, 3 B. & Ald. 590, 5 E. C. L. 340, 2 Chit. 257, 18 E. C. L. 621; Rex v. Ponsonby, 2 Bro. P. C. 311, 1 Ld. Ken. 1, 1 Ves. Jr. 1, 1 Eng. Reprint 965; Rex v. Heaven, 2 T. R. 772.

34. State v. Kupferle, 44 Mo. 154, 100 Am. Dec. 265; State v. Lawrence, 38 Mo. 535; State v. Stewart, 32 Mo. 379; State v. Lingo, 26 Mo. 496.

35. People v. Albany, etc., R. Co., 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 308, 55 Barb. (N. Y.) 344, 7 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 265, 38 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 228.

36. State v. Kupferle, 44 Mo. 154, 100 Am. Dec. 265.

37. People v. Albany, etc., R. Co., 57 N. Y. 161.

38. 3 Bl. Comm. 362; People v. Thacher, 55 N. Y. 525, 14 Am. Rep. 312.

39. People v. Thacher, 55 N. Y. 525, 14 Am. Rep. 312; People v. Pease, 27 N. Y. 63; People v. Thompson, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 235 [reversed in 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 537]; People v. Utica Ins. Co., 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 358, 8 Am. Dec. 243; Cole Quo. War. 221; Kyd Corp. 399.

has come down into some American jurisdictions even with respect to contests for the possession of a private corporate office.[40] In one such jurisdiction, where a writ of quo warranto — not an information in the nature of quo warranto — was directed against defendant as director of a banking corporation, it was held that his plea must allege that he was a shareholder in the corporation; and that the election under which he claimed to have been chosen was held under and in pursuance of an ordinance or direction of the board of directors, fixing a time and place where the same should be held, agreeably to the provisions and requirements of the charter.[41] But according to the modern conception of an information in the nature of a writ of quo warranto, where it is used merely in a contest between private individuals for the possession of a corporate office, the burden of proof is on the relator to show that the respondent is exercising the functions of the office without authority of law. The reason is that in such a case the respondent, in possession of the office and exercising its functions de facto, is presumed to be regularly and lawfully there until the contrary appears, and it is for the relator to overcome this presumption by evidence.[42] The burden of proof is none the less on the relator because the form of the issue requires defendant to show cause.[43] The reason of the rule is that the ordinary presumption of right-acting applies to the acts of corporations as well as to those of individuals.[44] This is especially so where the respondent holds a certificate of election or appointment to the office which is in the nature of a muniment of title, constituting prima facie a right thereto.[45] If a statute, by-law, or other governing instrument has annexed a qualification to the office, he must prove that he possesses that qualification.[46] If a body of men sue as directors they must show that they are directors; and if the name of one who was also a director is omitted as plaintiff they must show that his character of director has legally ended.[47]

f. Who May Be Plaintiff or Relator. Although an information in the nature of a quo warranto to oust usurpers of corporate franchises or of public offices can be prosecuted by the state only through its proper law officer, yet the information for the purpose of contesting a corporate election may be brought by a private person, and it seems by any person who has an interest in the matter.[48] While the plaintiff or relator is usually the person claiming the right to the office, and while, in one jurisdiction, the proceeding can be prosecuted only by the corporation or by a shareholder,[49] yet in New York, where the legislative policy permits the attorney-general to intervene in many matters respecting private corporations, that officer may it seems institute and carry on the proceeding.[50] The 40. People v. Thacher, 55 N. Y. 525, 14 Am. Rep. 312, under New York statutes, enlarging the ancient remedy.

41. State v. Ashley, 1 Ark. 513. And see People v. Utica Ins. Co., 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 358, 8 Am. Dec. 243.

42. State v. Kupferle, 44 Mo. 154, 100 Am. Dec. 265.

43. State v. Hunton, 28 Vt. 594.

44. State v. Kupferle, 44 Mo. 154, 100 Am. Dec. 265; McDaniels v. Flower Brook Mfg. Co., 22 Vt. 274.

45. Kerr v. Trego, 47 Pa. St. 292.

46. Tufton v. Nevinson, 2 Ld. Raym. 1354.

47. Phelps v. Lyle, 10 A. & E. 113, 3 Jur. 479, 2 P. & D. 314, 37 E. C. L. 82.

48. Com. v. Union F. & M. Ins. Co., 5 Mass. 230, 4 Am. Dec. 50. Compare Com. v. Fowler, 10 Mass. 290. See also State v. Patterson, etc., Turnpike Co., 21 N. J. L. 9; Com. v. Cluley, 56 Pa. St. 270, 94 Am. Dec. 75; Com. v. Jones, 12 Pa. St. 365; State v. Orvis, 20 Wis. 235.

49. Baggot v. Turner, 21 Wash. 339, 58 Pac. 212.

50. People v. Albany, etc., R. Co., 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 308, 55 Barb. (N. Y.) 344, 7 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 265, 38 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 228 [affirmed in 57 N. Y. 161].

What the information must allege.— See for a alogy Lavalle v. People, 68 Ill. 252. An information to oust an officer of a private corporation, alleging that he was elected at an illegal meeting, and that he deceived the relators as to the time of such meeting, need not allege that the relator would have voted against him if present. Armington v. State, 95 Ind. 421.

What the plea must set up.— Where the remedy is used as at common law the plea must allege specifically the facts which go to show the right of the respondent to hold the office. State v. Ashley, 1 Ark. 513.

In case of judgment by default the court will merely give judgment of ouster, but will not determine the right of the relator to hold proceeding may be brought by a director whose title to the office is not questioned, for the purpose of questioning the title of the other directors, on the ground that the votes of the relator as a shareholder were not properly counted.[51]

g. Extent of Remedy by Quo Warranto — (i) Does Not Extend to Mere Irregularities, Mistakes, Etc. A remedy by quo warranto to contest the title of one holding a corporate office does not extend to cases where there have been mere irregularities in the election not affecting substantial right, and where there has been no bad faith, whereby the result of the election has been affected,[52] such as holding the election on the wrong day, by a common mistake.[53]

(ii) Does Not Extend to Municipal Officers, Servants, or Employees Removable at Pleasure. The remedy by an information in the nature of a writ of quo warranto does not extend so far as to enable a mere municipal officer, employee, or servant of a corporation, who has been removed, to contest the lawfulness of his removal by this means.[54] The power to set aside a corporate election has been denied, even in case of an election of directors of a banking corporation, on the same ground, namely, that such an officer may be removed at the pleasure of the corporation;[55] and another court has supported this theory by the office. People v. Connor, 13 Mich. 238. But where the remedy exists in its modern and more enlarged form, the relator must not only show that the respondent has entered into the office without lawful warrant, but he must show his own title to the office. Miller v. English, 21 N. J. L. 317.

Where the information proceeds upon the loss by the respondent of the qualifications necessary to hold the office, the plea must set out the continuance of every qualification down to the filing of the information. State v. Beecher, 15 Ohio 723. Where the qualification for the office is the holding of real estate, the respondent must in his plea of justification describe the real estate of which he is the owner and his title thereto. State v. Harris, 3 Ark. 570, 36 Am. Dec. 460. Strictness required where the ownership of stock is a requisite to holding the office. State v. Harris, 3 Ark. 570, 36 Am. Dec. 460. Strictness required in describing the election by which the respondent was chosen. State v. Harris, 3 Ark. 570, 36 Am. Dec. 460. Not necessary to state that the electors by whom the respondent was elected were possessed of the proper qualifications. State v. Harris, 3 Ark. 570, 36 Am. Dec. 460.

Misjoinder of parties in quo warranto proceedings.— Parties claiming different offices cannot join as relators. People v. De Mill, 15 Mich. 164. Several informations against several persons having distinct offices will not be consolidated. Rex v. Warlow, 2 M. & S. 75, 14 Rev. Rep. 592. But this rule against misjoinder did not apply in a quo warranto proceeding against three to show why they held the office of bank directors, where one disclaimed and the other two pleaded to an issue. Com. v. Sparks, 6 Whart. (Pa.) 416.

Leave to file information discretionary with court.— Where the information is brought to oust a person alleged to be usurping an office under a private corporation, leave to allow the information to be filed must be sought from the court, and the granting of it is discretionary with the court. State v. Lawrence, 38 Mo. 535; People v. Kip, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 382 note; People v. Tibbets, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 358; Com. v. Arrison, 15 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 127, 16 Am. Dec. 531; Gunton v. Ingle, 11 Fed. Cas. No. 5,870, 4 Cranch C. C. 438. For theories on the subject of the necessity of obtaining leave to file an information in the nature of a quo warranto see 5 Thompson Corp. § 6783. For circumstances under which such leave was denied see 5 Thompson Corp. § 6784. Issuing a rule to show cause why an information should not be filed. 5 Thompson Corp. § 6785. Affidavits against the rule. 5 Thompson Corp. § 6786. Dismissing the information upon cause shown against its being filed. 5 Thompson Corp. § 6787.

51. Com. v. Stevens, 168 Pa. St. 582, 32 Atl. 111.

In California shareholders whose stock has been sold to satisfy an assessment thereon, to carry into effect an illegal contract made by a board of directors illegally elected, may maintain an action to review the illegal election and oust them from office, and to have the illegal contract set aside. Whitehead v. Sweet, 126 Cal. 67, 58 Pac. 376.

52. Reg. v. Ward, L. R. 8 Q. B. 210, 42 L. J. Q. B. 126, 28 L. T. Rep. N. S. 118, 21 Wkly. Rep. 632.

53. State v. Tolan, 33 N. J. L. 195.

That a court will not set aside a corporate election without substantial grounds, founded on proper and sufficient evidence, see Conant v. Millaudon, 5 La. Ann. 542.

Nor will an injunction be granted to prevent the instalment of the officers elected, unless it appear that the election was entirely without authority and void. Hardenburgh v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 3 N. J. Eq. 68.

54. People v. Hills, 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 202. And see State v. Curtis, 35 Conn. 374, 95 Am. Dec. 263; Dighton v. Stratford on Avon, 2 Keb. 641. Contra, State v. Kupferle, 44 Mo. 154, 100 Am. Dec. 265, case of the secretary of an insurance company.

55. In re Dansville Bank, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 370.

holding that the shareholders in a modern joint-stock corporation, in which the general public has no interest, may remove the officers without notice or trial.[56]

(III) EXISTS ONLY AGAINST PARTY IN POSSESSION. This remedy can be exercised only against a person in actual possession of the office. It is not sufficient that he has been merely elected to it and has tendered himself to be sworn in.[57]

h. Matters of Evidence in Such Proceeding. Proof of user of the office may be made by any witness who has knowledge of the fact.[58] It is competent to prove who were elected directors by the oral evidence of persons present at the meeting, where no record of the fact was kept.[59] But where a record is kept in unambiguous language, parol evidence will not be heard to vary it.[60]

i. Court Will Decide All Questions Properly Arising. The court will decide all questions properly arising in the controversy involved in the final result, including constitutional questions.[61]

j. Rule of Decision Where Legal Votes Have Been Rejected or Illegal Votes Received. Persons receiving no more than a minority of the votes cast for directors cannot, in this proceeding, even where it is enlarged to the scope of a civil action to contest an election, be declared elected, although it is made to appear that the judges improperly rejected enough legal votes offered to give them a majority.[62] It is no objection that illegal votes were received, unless such votes were sufficient in number to change the result; the mere fact that illegal votes were cast will not avoid such an election.[63] But where the persons for whom the votes wrongfully rejected were tendered would with such votes have had the votes of a majority of all the shares, the court will set aside the election and order the admission of those persons who would have been elected if such votes had been received.[64] It has been reasoned that the mere assertion in such case that the votes may be illegal is not sufficient to put the officers elected on proof of their legality. The hypothesis presented assumes a fraud upon the charter; and fraud is not to be presumed.[65] The court also reasoned that one who contests an election on the ground that votes given by an elector acting as trustee were for the benefit of other shareholders, who had already voted up to the limit allowed by the charter must show it affirmatively. The bare possibility that the votes were held for such persons is not to be regarded. The contingency is too remote to deserve notice as a legal presumption.[66] Where it is sought to overthrow such an election on the ground that the stock has been unlawfully increased, and that additional shares have been unlawfully voted, the effort will fail if it appear that the directors received, not only a majority of the stock as 56. Adamantine Brick Co. v. Woodward, McArthur & M. (D. C.) 318.

57. Rex v. Whitwell, 5 T. R. 85, 2 Rev. Rep. 545.

58. Facey v. Fuller, 13 Mich. 527.

59. Partridge v. Badger, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 146. See also Old Town v. Dooley, 81 Ill. 255.

The official character of persons who acted as defendant's officers may be proved by parol, without producing the records of the corporation. Pusey v. New Jersey West Line R. Co., 14 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 434.

60. Peterborough R. Co. v. Wood, 61 N. H. 418. That warnings and proceedings of a corporation which has a clerk are not provable by parol see Stevens v. Eden Meeting-House Soc., 12 Vt. 688.

Circumstances under which evidence of conversations had prior to the election is admissible. Com. v. Woelper, 3 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 29, 8 Am. Dec. 628.

61. Taggart v. Perkins, 73 Mich. 303, 41 N. W. 426; Atty.-Gen. v. Amos, 60 Mich. 372, 27 N. W. 571; People v. Holihan, 29 Mich. 116; People v. Maynard, 15 Mich. 463; People v. Jackson, etc., Plank Road Co., 9 Mich. 285. Compare People v. Whitcomb, 55 Ill. 172.

62. In re St. Lawrence Steamboat Co., 44 N. J. L. 529; Downing v. Potts, 23 N. J. L. 66; In re Long Island R. Co., 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 37, 32 Am. Dec. 429; State v. McDaniel, 22 Ohio St. 354.

63. Sudbury First Parish v. Stearns, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 148; Downing v. Potts, 23 N. J. L. 66; Ex p. Murphy, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 153.

64. In re Cape May, etc., Nav. Co., 51 N. J. L. 78, 16 Atl. 191; In re St. Lawrence Steamboat Co., 44 N. J. L. 529. But see In re Long Island R. Co., 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 37, 32 Am. Dec. 429.

65. Conant v. Millaudon, 5 La. Ann. 542.

66. Conant v. Millaudon, 5 La. Ann. 542.

increased, but also a majority of the stock as it stood prior to the increase.[67] The governing principle is that the election will not be held invalid if those entitled to vote have had a full and fair opportunity of expressing their choice, and if the officers chosen are the choice of a majority of the persons voting.[68]

k. Party Receiving Next Highest Number of Votes, Where Successful Candidate Disqualified. Where the successful candidate is for any reason disqualified from holding the office, this fact does not, it has been held, give the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes such an interest as entitles him to maintain a quo warranto to contest the election; since as he received no more than a minority of the votes cast, if the fee were ousted he could not be inducted into the office. He therefore according to this view has no more right to make the contest than any other member of the public, and the question can be raised only by the attorney-general.[69]

l. Validity of Election Where Whole Number Not Elected. It seems that an election of directors of a corporation is not rendered invalid by the mere fact that the whole number prescribed by the governing statute are not elected, if enough are elected to constitute such a quorum as the statute requires.[70]

m. Judgment Where Term of Office Has Expired. If the term of office has expired before the court can proceed to judgment, and if it be found that the relator was entitled to the office, a general judgment will be entered in his favor for costs.[71]

n. Quo Warranto Against Disqualified Incumbent. It seems that this remedy extends to ousting an incumbent who does not possess the legal qualifications for the office, and is not restricted to an inquiry into the lawfulness of the election by which he obtained the office.[72]

o. Estoppel to Raise Objection to Legality of Corporate Election by Quo Warranto. A corporator who, with full knowledge of the objections to the legality of a certain class of votes, attends a meeting of the corporation, participates in its deliberations, and acquiesces in its decisions, by canvassing and voting in the election of officers, cannot question the title of the officers elected, on the ground that such class of votes was illegal.[73] So where a member who had knowledge of

67. Byers v. Rollins, 13 Colo. 22, 21 Pac. 894.

68. Philips v. Wickham, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 590.

What if two factions organize and hold two meetings.— Matter of Pioneer Paper Co., 36 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 111.

69. Com. v. Cluley, 56 Pa. St. 270, 94 Am. Dec. 75. See also Reg. v. Hiorns, 7 A. & E. 960, 2 Jur. 108, 1 N. & P. 148, 34 E. C. L. 496; Rex v. Bridge, 1 M. & S. 76, 14 Rev. Rep. 395; Cole Quo War. 141, 142. Compare Rex v. Parry, 14 East 549; Rex v. Hawkins, 10 East 211. And see Com. v. Cluley, 56 Pa. St. 270, 94 Am. Dec. 75, where the foregoing cases are compared and distinguished.

But a minority candidate may acquire a sufficient title and interest, at a subsequent election, to enable him to dispute the title of the opposing candidate in this way. Com. v. Small, 26 Pa. St. 31.

70. In re Union Ins. Co., 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 591. See also Wright v. Com., 109 Pa. St. 560, 2 Atl. 794.

Rule where the statute is silent as to the number to be chosen, but where a majority of the number actually chosen were recognized as a competent board by the legislature. Dart v. Houston, 22 Ga. 506.

Electing a reduced number after passage of statute authorizing the reduction, but before any corporate action thereunder. In re Excelsior Ins. Co., 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 297.

71. People v. Seaman, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 409; People v. Loomis, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 396, 24 Am. Dec. 33.

Effect on leave to file information.— That the court will refuse the attorney-general leave to file an information in the nature of a quo warranto, where it is apparent that the term of office will have expired before the court can proceed to judgment, leaving the party to any other remedy which he may have, see People v. Sweeting, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 184. See also Morris v. Underwood, 19 Ga. 559; State v. Jacobs, 17 Ohio 143. That leave to file such an information will not be refused on this ground see People v. Tibbets, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 358.

Effect of dispute on legality of subsequent election.— The fact that the election was disputed during the term of office by quo warranto does not affect the legality of the next election, on the ground of illegality in the first, provided the incumbents acted as officers de facto. Com. v. Smith, 45 Pa. St. 59.

72. State v. Gastinel, 18 La. Ann. 517, 20 La. Ann. 114.

73. State v. Lehre, 7 Rich. (S. C.) 234.

defects in the preliminaries of the organization of the corporation nevertheless took part in an election for directors, and the directors so elected acted and contracted as such in behalf of the corporation, the member was thereafter estopped to file an information in the nature of a quo warranto against them.[74] Nor can the right of one to hold the office of director be impeached for fraud by one who concurred in his election.[75] Plainly a person regularly elected and inducted into the office of director of a corporation is such de facto for the protection of the rights of third persons, so long as he is permitted by those having the right to oust him to exercise the functions of the office; but this is not so where he does not accept the office, exercise its functions, or hold himself out as being such director, and where he finally repudiates it.[76]

p. Presumptions in Favor of Regularity of Corporate Elections. Every reasonable intendment is to be made in favor of the regularity of the proceedings of a private corporation in their corporate acts.[77] This rule applies to corporate meetings and corporate elections and also to the meetings of directors.[78] A corporate meeting, or a meeting of corporate directors, will be presumed to be regular unless the contrary appears.[79]

B. Directors and Other Officers De Facto — 1. General Statement of Doctrine. The acts of those who publicly exercise the functions of directors and other officers[80] of private corporations are upheld on the same principle which upholds the acts of de facto public officers and of de facto corporations.[81] As a general rule they are deemed valid in respect of third persons,[82] in respect of the corporation,[83] in respect of its shareholders,[84] and in respect of the directors themselves.[85] The more general statement of the doctrine is that persons acting publicly as the officers of a corporation are presumed to be rightfully in the possession of their offices, and that their acts are binding on the corporation so far as is necessary to uphold the rights of third persons.[86] The particular officer may be

74. Cole v. Dyer, 29 Ga. 434. But that such an estoppel does not arise in the case of ignorance of some fact making the election invalid see Wiltz v. Peters, 4 La. Ann. 339; and for analogies see Rex v. Clarke, 1 East 38, 5 Rev. Rep. 505.

75. In re Leslie, 58 N. J. L. 609, 33 Atl. 954.

76. Rozecrans Gold Min. Co. v. Morey, 111 Cal. 114, 43 Pac. 585. There is an unsound holding to the effect that a person elected director in violation of the governing statute cannot be a director de facto. In re Newcomb, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 16, 42 N. Y. St. 442. But this displays no conception of what an officer de facto is.

77. McDaniels v. Flower Brook Mfg. Co., 22 Vt. 274.

78. Lane v. Brainerd, 30 Conn. 565; State v. Kupferle, 44 Mo. 154, 100 Am. Dec. 265; McDaniels v. Flower Brook Mfg. Co., 22 Vt. 274.

79. Sargent v. Webster, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 497, 46 Am. Dec. 743; People v. Batchelor, 22 N. Y. 128; Lockwood v. Mechanics' Nat. Bank, 9 R. I. 308, 11 Am. Rep. 253. Compare Atlantic Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Fitzpatrick, 2 Gray (Mass.) 279.

80. For example a general manager. Hamm v. Drew, 83 Tex. 77, 18 S. W. 434.

81. See supra, I, O, I, a et seq.

82. It is perhaps better to say that their acts are binding on the corporation to the extent of protecting the rights of third persons. Scanlan v. Snow, 2 App. Cas. (D. C.) 137, 22 Wash. L. Rep. 62; Hall v. Carey, 5 Ga. 239; Hamilton Trust Co. v. Clemes, 17 N. Y. App. Div. 152, 45 N. Y. Suppl. 141.

83. Charter Gas Engine Co. v. Charter, 47 Ill. App. 36; Cahill v. Kalamazoo Mut. Ins. Co., 2 Dougl. (Mich.) 124, 43 Am. Dec. 457; Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203; Burr v. McDonald, 3 Gratt. (Va.) 215.

84. Rockville, etc., Turnpike Road v. Van Ness, 20 Fed. Cas. No. 11,986, 2 Cranch C. C. 449.

85. 3 Thompson Corp. § 3893.

86. Georgia.— Hall v. Carey, 5 Ga. 239.

Illinois.— Merrill v. Farris, 22 Ill. 303; Schofield v. Watkins, 22 Ill. 66.

Indiana.— By statute in Indiana no act of any board of directors done shall be invalid by reason of any informality or irregularity in time, place, and manner of their election. 2 Ind. Rev. Stat. (1888), § 3021.

Maryland.— Susquehanna Bridge, etc., Co. v. General Ins. Co., 3 Md. 305, 56 Am. Dec. 740; Smith v. Erb, 4 Gill 437.

Michigan.— Facey v. Fuller, 13 Mich. 527.

New Hampshire.— Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203.

New York.— Lovett v. German Reformed Church, 12 Barh. 67; In re Mohawk, etc., R. Co., 19 Wend. 135.

Pennsylvania.—McGargell v. Hazleton Coal Co., 4 Watts & S. 424; Kingsbury v. Ledyard, 2 Watts & S. 37; York County v. Small, 1 ineligible;[87] he may have been elected by a less number of votes than the charter requires;[88] he may be in office under a judicial decision subsequently reversed;[89] or he may have been otherwise elected irregularly or illegally.[90] Although this subtitle is devoted especially to the subject of directors, yet the principle under discussion applies equally to other corporate officers, such as the president[91] and the treasurer.[92] The rule validates, so far as third persons are concerned, the acts of a person not qualified for the office of director, but who has nevertheless been elected such and permitted to act as such.[93] It is a necessary consequence of this doctrine that the appointment and powers of corporate officers may be inferred from the continued acquiescence of the corporation in their official acts, for instance in the case of an insurance company, the recognition by the company of the fact that a certain person has openly and notoriously transacted its business as its secretary, has had the custody of its books, and has borrowed money and entered accounts of it therein.[94]

2. WHO ARE DIRECTORS DE FACTO. Persons publicly exercising the functions of directors of private corporations have been held to be directors within the foregoing principle, where they were elected for a fixed term and were holding over after its expiration,[95] and it should be added that such directors are directors de jure;[96] where the election at which they were chosen was held outside the limits of the state by which the charter was granted;[97] where a judicial decision had been rendered removing them from their offices, but, on the same day and before the judgment had been filed and recorded, they had met and executed a note for the company;[98] or where the election was held by the proper body, but by a less number than the charter required.[99] So of persons elected directors of a railroad corporation under authority of an act of the legislature subsequently declared unconstitutional;[1] of trustees elected to fill vacancies on the board by all the available members thereof, who are less than a majority thereof, but who thereby Watts & S. 315; Riddle v. Bedford County, 7 Serg. & R. 386.

South Carolina.—St. Luke's Church v. Mathews, 4 Desauss. 578, 6 Am. Dec. 619.

Vermont.— Lemington v. Blodgett, 37 Vt. 210; State v. Williams, 27 Vt. 755.

Virginia.—Burr v. McDonald, 3 Gratt. 215; Durkin v. Exchange Bank, 2 Patt. & H. 277.

England.— Definition of officers de facto. Rex v. Bedford Level, 6 East 356, 2 Smith K. B. 535.

87. Knight v. Wells, Lutw. 508.

88. Baird v. Washington Bank, 11 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 411.

89. Ebaugh v. German Reformed Church, 3 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 60.

90. Baird v. Washington Bank, 11 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 411. See also the following cases:

Indiana.— Smith v. State Bank, 18 Ind. 327.

Maine.— Penobscot, etc., R. Co. v. Dunn, 39 Me. 587; Sampson v. Bowdoinham Steam Mill Corp., 36 Me. 78.

Massachusetts.— Blanford School Dist. No. 3 v. Gibbs, 2 Cush. 39.

Nevada.— State v. Cronan, 23 Nev. 437, 49 Pac. 41.

Pennsylvania.— Jenkins v. Baxter, 160 Pa. St. 199, 28 Atl. 682, 34 Wkly. Notes Cas. 114; Delaware, etc., Canal Co. v. Pennsylvania Coal Co., 21 Pa. St. 131.

91. Cahill v. Kalamazoo Mut. Ins. Co., 2 Dougl. (Mich.) 124, 43 Am. Dec. 457.

92. All Saints Church v. Lovett, 1 Hall (N. Y.) 213; Vernon Society v. Hills, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 23, 16 Am. Dec. 429; Spokane v. Amsterdamsch Trustees Kantoor, 22 Wash. 172, 60 Pac. 141.

For the analogous rule as to officers of municipal corporations see Tucker v. Aiken, 7 N. H. 113.

For the analogous rule as to proof of agency by the agent holding himself out as authorized, with the knowledge and consent of the principals, see among hundreds of other cases Beard v. Kirk, 11 N. H. 397; Davis v. Lane, 10 N. H. 156. See also 4 Thompson Corp. § 4881, and cases there cited.

93. Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203.

94. Talladega Ins. Co. v. Peacock, 67 Ala. 253. The act of the proper officer in making an appointment to an office has been said to be in the nature of a judicial act which is not to be questioned in any collateral action between individuals. People v. Seaman, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 409; Widdy v. Washburn, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 49; Wood v. Peake, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 69.

95. Thorington v. Gould, 59 Ala. 461.

96. See supra, IV, A, 3, b; IX, A, 7.

97. Ohio, etc., R. Co. v. McPherson, 35 Mo. 13, 86 Am. Dec. 128.

98. Mahoney Min. Co. v. Anglo-Californian Bank, 104 U. S. 192, 26 L. ed. 707.

99. Baird v. Washington Bank, 11 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 411.

1. Bradford v. Frankfort, etc., R. Co., 142 Ind. 383, 40 N. E. 741, 41 N. E. 819.

secure peaceable possession of office;[2] of a person elected a director by the body in which the right to elect was invested, but by a less number than the charter required;[3] of persons ineligible to the office, who have nevertheless been elected to it;[4] of a person who has ceased to be a shareholder during the term for which he was elected a director, but who continues to act as director, no judgment of ouster being rendered against him;[5] and of persons who are ineligible by reason of not being citizens of the state.[6]

3. Who Are Not Directors De Facto. But this implies that the officers are in the apparent possession of the office, and in the apparent exercise of its functions, since otherwise they are not officers in fact. It must therefore follow that one who is neither qualified for the office of a director in a corporation, and who, although elected to the office, has never accepted it, nor exercised its functions, nor held himself out as being such a director in any way, is not to be regarded as a de facto director.[7] A board of directors, not such de jure, cannot be regarded as such de facto when not in possession of the office of the corporation, or of its seal, records, or property, and where their title to the office is disputed.[8] The rule does not extend so far as to validate, even in respect of third persons, the acts of naked trespassers or intruders.[9] Thus it has been held that where an action has been commenced in the name of a corporation, by direction of its officers de facto, no other persons claiming a right to act as the officers of the corporation, defendant cannot be permitted to show for the purpose of defeating the action that the officers were illegally elected.[10] Where trustees and shareholders of a business corporation have sold out all the shares to others, and the trustees have closed their accounts and have done no further act as trustees until after a lapse of three years, when they meet and assume to allow an account against the corporation, and to draw a check upon its funds in favor of one who knows the facts, their act will be held invalid on the ground that they are neither trustees de jure nor de facto.[11]

4. Title to Office of Directors De Facto Cannot Be Impeached Collaterally. It is a part of this doctrine that the title to the office of a director de facto cannot be impeached collaterally, but can be impeached only in a direct proceeding by the state, or by a person having an interest in calling it in question as already

2. Baggot v. Turner, 21 Wash. 339, 58 Pac. 212.

3. Baird v. Washington Bank, 11 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 411.

4. Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203; Re Newcomb, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 16, 42 N. Y. St. 442. Especially in a case where the corporation itself endeavors to impeach the act of a director whom it has held out as such, on the ground of his ineligibility. Beard v. Kirk, 11 N. H. 397; Davis v. Lane, 10 N. H. 156. The principle applies in a case where a creditor of the corporation is contesting a mortgage of corporate property as against the mortgagee. Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203.

5. San Jose Sav. Bank v. Sierra Lumber Co., 63 Cal. 179.

6. Delaware, etc., Canal Co. v. Pennsylvania Coal Co., 21 Pa. St. 131.

7. Rozecrans Gold Min. Co. v. Morey, 111 Cal. 114, 43 Pac. 585.

8. Stated more carefully there was a meeting of directors on the day after an illegal election, but not at the office of the company; at this meeting a quorum of de jure directors was present; the meeting was held without notice to those who were not present, and who had a right to such notice; those who thus met did not acquire possession of the corporate seal, records, and property; their authority was disputed by the de jure directors; it was disputed by those who up to that date had been president, vice-president, and secretary of the corporation; it was disputed by the majority of the executive committee of the corporation. It was held that those who thus met and were not directors de jure were not such de facto. Waterman v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 139 Ill. 658, 29 N. E. 689, 32 Am. St. Rep. 228, 15 L. R. A. 418.

9. A bare swearing-in and acting does not make an officer de facto. There must be at least the form of an election, although the election may be subsequently set aside. Rex v. Lisle, 2 Str. 1090.

10. Middle Parish Charitable Assoc. v. Baldwin, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 359, opinion by Dewey, J.

11. Orr Water Ditch Co. v. Reno Water Co., 17 Nev. 166, 30 Pac. 695. See also where the lapse of time of the abandonment had been sixteen years. Bartholomew v. Bentley, 1 Ohio St. 37.

stated.[12] For example the title of de facto directors cannot be impeached by showing an irregularity in their election, in an action on a note executed by the corporation pursuant to their resolution.[13] Conflicting claims to a corporate office cannot be determined in an action of ejectment, brought in the name of the corporation by persons claiming to be its legal trustees;[14] in an action of replevin for personalty of the corporation;[15] upon a habeas corpus granted to a party who has been arrested on a warrant issued by such officer;[16] upon a motion to vacate judicial proceedings as irregular, where summons was served on persons claiming to be corporate officers, who were not in possession of the offices, although the court would vacate the proceedings, because they were not officers de facto;[17] on the ground of the invalidity of their election, so as to invalidate a resolution adopted by them, substituting a new trustee under a deed of trust made for the benefit of the corporation;[18] in a suit in equity by a shareholder to restrain the directors of a corporation from exercising the functions of their offices upon the ground of the illegality of their election;[19] in an action to try the title of their appointee to a corporate office;[20] in an action brought by the corporation on the ground that its trustees, who were the corporation, were not regularly elected, without showing a judgment of ouster;[21] or in an action by the board of directors in possession of the franchises of the corporation, against persons claiming to be the board, for a trespass respecting the corporate property.[22]

C. Powers of Directors — 1. Nature of Office in General. Generally speaking the directors of a joint-stock corporation are trustees in the control of its property and in the direction and management of its business affairs.[23] As hereafter seen shareholders have not as a general rule any direct voice in the management of the business affairs of the corporation, but their voice can be heard only when speaking through the directors, who are deemed in a qualified sense their agents, but are really mandataries.[24] There are three different views with refer-

12. See supra, IX, A, 11, f.

13. Barrell v. Lake View Land Co., 122 Cal. 129, 54 Pac. 594.

14. Bellport Parish v. Tooker, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 256.

15. Desmond v. McCarthy, 17 Iowa 525.

16. Ex p. Strahl, 16 Iowa 369.

17. Berrian v. New York Methodist Soc., 4 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 424.

18. Balfour-Guthrie Invest. Co. v. Woodworth, 124 Cal. 169, 56 Pac. 891.

19. Hughes v. Parker, 20 N. H. 58.

20. People v. Hills, 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 202, the office being that of secretary and treasurer of a railroad company.

21. Vernon Soc. v. Hills, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 23, 16 Am. Dec. 429.

22. Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Johnson, 70 N. C. 348. Compare Walker v. Flemming, 70 N. C. 483. But see to the contrary where the action was forcible entry and detainer People v. Runkle, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 147. And note that the celebrated Dartmouth College decision began in an action of trover by one set of the trustees suing as a corporation, against one claiming the office of secretary and treasurer, under the statutes of New Hampshire, to recover the records of the college. Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 518, 4 L. ed. 629.

Contrary to the trend of the foregoing text it has been held that where, under the articles of incorporation, an assessment by directors duly elected and qualified under the statute is essential to create a liability upon shareholders, the validity of the acts of a board of directors de facto, and their authority as such may be called in question by any shareholder who has not acquiesced therein, whenever such acts are detrimental to his interests, affect his property rights, or impose a liability upon him, and the rights of third parties do not intervene. Schwab v. Frisco Min., etc., Co., 21 Utah 258, 60 Pac. 940. Similarly it has been held that the election of a new set of officers of a corporation dependent on the vote of a director illegally chosen cannot be upheld on the ground that he was a de facto director, in a direct proceeding between two sets of officers to try the title to the officers of the company. Schmidt v. Mitchell, 101 Ky. 570, 41 S. W. 929, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 763, 72 Am. St. Rep. 427.

23. Montgomery Light Co. v. Lahey, 121 Ala. 131, 25 So. 1006; Parker v. Nickerson, 112 Mass. 195; Bent v. Priest, 86 Mo. 475; Butts v. Wood, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 181; Abbott v. American Hard Rubber Co., 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 578.

In some statutory schemes of incorporation the word "director" is defined to embrace all persons having by law the direction or management of the affairs of any such corporation, by whatever name they may be described in its charter or known in law. 2 N. Y. Rev. Stat. (Banks & Bros. (6th ed.) 1876), p. 303, § 56; Utah Comp. Laws (1876), p. 637, § 333. So in Cal. Pen. Code, § 572.

24. See infra, IX, C, 5.

ence to the duties and powers of directors: (1) That they are the body which has been incorporated, and hence the corporation itself. This is true in some cases.[25] (2) That they are general agents of the shareholders.[26] (3) That they are special agents of the shareholders in the sense that the public are bound to take notice of the limits of their authority.[27] But plainly, they are not agents in the strict sense; but an examination of their powers will lead to the conclusion that in most cases they derive their authority partly from the voice of the shareholders expressed in general meeting duly convened, partly from the charter, partly from applicatory statutes, partly from by-laws duly enacted and (in some cases) partly from other governing instruments.[28]

25. Burrill v. Nahant Bank, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 163, 35 Am. Dec. 395. See also Maynard v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co., 34 Cal. 48, 91 Am. Dec. 672. See also supra, I, A, 6.

26. Judicial theory in America greatly preponderates in the doctrine that in so far as directors can be treated as agents of the shareholders they are to be considered as general or managing agents.

Alabama.— Spyker v. Spence, 8 Ala. 333; Mobile Branch State Bank v. Collins, 7 Ala. 95.

Connecticut.— Goodwin v. U. S. Annuity, etc., Ins. Co., 24 Conn. 591.

Illinois.— Chetlain v. Republic L. Ins. Co., 86 Ill. 220.

Indiana.— Wright v. Bundy, 11 Ind. 398.

Maine.— Lincoln, etc., Bank v. Richardson, 1 Me. 79, 10 Am. Dec. 34.

New Jersey.— Brokaw v. New Jersey R., etc., Co., 32 N. J. L. 328, 90 Am. Dec. 659.

New York.—Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599; Leavitt v. Yeates, 4 Edw. 134.

Ohio.— Dayton, etc., R. Co. v. Hatch, 1 Disn. 84, 12 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 501.

Pennsylvania.— Simons v. Vulcan Oil, etc., Co., 61 Pa. St. 202, 100 Am. Dec. 628; Bedford R. Co. v. Bowser, 48 Pa. St. 29; Dana v. U. S. Bank, 5 Watts & S. 223; Kentucky Bank v. Schuylkill Bank, 1 Pars. Eq. Cas. 180.

Vermont.— State v. Smith, 48 Vt. 266; Stark Bank v. U. S. Pottery Co., 34 Vt. 144; Middlebury Bank v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 30 Vt. 159.

27. This seems to be the English doctrine. Lindley Partn. (4th ed.) 249; Thompson v. Wesleyan Newspaper Assoc., 8 C. B. 849, 19 L. J. C. P. 114, 65 E. C. L. 849; Burmester v. Norris, 6 Exch. 796, 21 L. J. Exch. 43, 8 Eng. L. & Eq. 487; Ernest v. Nicholls, 6 H. L. Cas. 401, 3 Jur. N. S. 919, 6 Wkly. Rep. 24. See also Fountaine v. Carmarthen R. Co., L. R. 5 Eq. 316, 37 L. J. Ch. 429, 16 Wkly. Rep. 476. Occasionally, however, a more liberal interpretation of granted powers and a less rigid construction of deeds of settlement prevails. In re Ireland Land Credit Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 460, 39 L. J. Ch. 27, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 641, 17 Wkly. Rep. 689; Waterlow v. Sharp, L. R. 8 Eq. 501, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 902. See Peirce v. Jersey Waterworks Co., L. R. 5 Exch. 209, 39 L. J. Exch. 156, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 519, 18 Wkly. Rep. 838; Webb v. Herne Bay, L. R. 5 Q. B. 642, 39 L. J. Q. B. 221, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 745, 19 Wkly. Rep. 241; Hill v. Manchester, etc., Waterworks Co., 5 B. & Ad. 866, 3 L. J. K. B. 19, 2 N. & M. 573, 27 E. C. L. 364; Clarke v. Imperial Gas Light, etc., Co., 4 B. & Ad. 315, 2 L. J. K. B. 30, 1 N. & M. 206, 24 E. C. L. 143; Smith v. Hull Glass Co., 11 C. B. 897, 16 Jur. 595, 21 L. J. C. P. 106, 7 R. & Can. Cas. 287, 73 E. C. L. 897; Prince of Wales Assur. Soc. v. Athenæum Assur. Soc., 3 C. B. N. S. 756 note, 91 E. C. L. 756; Agar v. Athenæum L. Assur. Soc., 3 C. B. N. S. 725, 4 Jur. N. S. 211, 27 L. J. C. P. 95, 6 Wkly. Rep. 277, 91 E. C. L. 725; Anglo-Australian Ins. Co. v. British Provident Ins. Soc., 4 De G. F. & J. 341, 8 Jur. N. S. 628, 6 L. T. Rep. N. S. 517, 10 Wkly. Rep. 588, 65 Eng. Ch. 264 [reversed in 3 Giff. 521, 8 Jur. N. S. 299, 1 L. T. Rep. N. S. 126, 6 L. T. Rep. N. S. 68]; Royal British Bank v. Turquand, 5 E. & B. 248, 85 E. C. L. 248 [affirmed in 6 E. & B. 327, 1 Jur. N. S. 1086, 24 L. J. Q. B. 327]; Prince of Wales L., etc., Assur. Co. v. Harding, E. B. & E. 183, 4 Jur. N. S. 851, 27 L. J. Q. B. 297, 96 E. C. L. 183; In re Joint-Stock Co.'s Winding-up Acts, 4 Jur. N. S. 1140, 4 Kay & J. 549, 27 L. J. Ch. 829, 6 Wkly. Rep. 779.

28. An examination of Pierce v. Jersey Waterworks Co., L. R. 5 Exch. 209, will show that the English courts generally regard what is there called a company as a numerous partnership; from which it follows that the directors, in so far as they can be regarded as agents are agents of the partners or shareholders. But in the United States where, pursuing the subtlety of Chief Justice Marshall in the Dartmouth College case (Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 518, 4 L. ed. 629. See also supra, I, A, 3), a corporation is deemed an invisible and intangible entity, and a person, in law, distinct from its shareholders, its directors, in so far as they can be regarded as agents, are the agents of this intangible, invisible, ideal body, the corporation. Since they can bind the corporation by acts done outside the state of its creation, they are necessarily agents; for the corporation itself cannot migrate. Wright v. Bundy, 11 Ind. 398; Augusta Bank v. Earle, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 519, 10 L. ed. 274. See, however, Miller v. Ewer, 27 Me. 509, 46 Am. Dec. 619. Compare McCall v. Byram Mfg. Co., 6 Conn. 428. That directors are agents of the shareholders in a sense is discovered in the doctrine that the shareholders'

2. DOCTRINE THAT DIRECTORS MAY DO WHATEVER CORPORATION MAY DO — a. Statement of Doctrine. Loose expressions are found in judicial opinions to the effect that the board of directors or trustees practically constitute the corporation, and in general may act as the corporation, and unless specially restricted exercise the corporate powers.[29] But this in strictness is only true of those corporations in which the board of trustees or directors are themselves incorporated and are the corporation, which we have already seen[30] is often the case. In ordinary business corporations the powers of the board of directors, as we shall presently see, fall far short of being coequal with the powers of the corporation. It is hence better said that "the directors, in the absence of restrictions in the charter or by-laws, have all the authority of the corporation itself in the conduct of its ordinary business."[31]

b. Directors Cannot Act in Excess of Powers Granted to Corporation. This principle is obvious, and it is not necessary to enlarge upon it.[32]

3. EFFECT OF BY-LAWS LIMITING THEIR POWERS. As we have seen when treating of by-laws[33] it is competent for the body of shareholders (or where they possess the power by virtue of an express grant), for the directors themselves to establish by-laws restricting the powers of the directors so as to make them less than the powers which they might exercise under the charter or governing statute.[34]

4. DIRECTORS CANNOT ENLARGE THEIR POWERS BY ESTABLISHING BY-LAWS. Where an express power has been conferred upon the directors of a corporation to enact by-laws, it seems that they cannot so exercise the power as to enlarge their own powers, and to that extent encroach upon the powers of the shareholders.[35] Nor can they, through the instrumentality of a by-law, seize to themselves a power, such as that of assessing the shareholders, which has been vested in the shareholders by statute.[36] Nor will a by-law established by the directors under the authority of a statute be so construed as to override the law of the land.[37]

5. SHAREHOLDERS CANNOT ACT FOR CORPORATION. Speaking generally, in the absence of statutory authority, the shareholders cannot act for the corporation, either individually or collectively. By virtue of being shareholders they have no agency for the corporation, and cannot bind it, either by their acts, declarations, or admissions.[38] The directors as already seen[39] are not in a strict sense agents may validate their unauthorized acts under the principle of ratification or estoppel.

29. Burrill v. Nahant Bank, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 163, 35 Am. Dec. 395; Union Turnpike Road Co. v. Jenkins, 1 Cai. (N. Y.) 381; Leavitt v. Oxford, etc., Silver Min. Co., 3 Utah 265, 1 Pac. 356; Whitwell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425.

30. See supra, I, A, 6.

31. Middlebury Bank v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 30 Vt. 159, 169, per Redfield, C. J. See also Royalton v. Royalton, etc., Turnpike Co., 14 Vt. 311; Stevens v. Davison, 18 Gratt. (Va.) 819, 98 Am. Dec. 692.

32. Salem Bank v. Gloucester Bank, 17 Mass. 1, 29, 9 Am. Dec. 111; Wyman v. Hallowell, etc., Bank, 14 Mass. 58, 63, 7 Am. Dec. 194; Head v. Providence Ins. Co., 2 Cranch (U. S.) 127, 2 L. ed. 229.

33. See supra, V.

34. A pertinent illustration of this statement will be found in Union Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Kerser, 32 N. H. 313, 64 Am. Dec. 375. See to the same effect Sullivan v. Triunfo Gold, etc., Min. Co., 29 Cal. 585; Campbell v. Merchants', etc., Mut. F. Ins. Co., 37 N. H. 35, 41, 72 Am. Dec. 324.

35. Curtis v. McCullough, 3 Nev. 202.

36. Ex p. Winsor, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,884, 3 Story 411. See also Marlborough Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 2 Conn. 579.

37. For example a by-law of a banking corporation touching discounts will not be so construed as to override a statute against usury. Seneca County Bank v. Lamb, 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 595.

38. California.— Shay v. Tuolumne Water Co., 6 Cal. 73.

Colorado.— Union Gold Min. Co. v. Rocky Mountain Nat. Bank, 2 Colo. 565.

Indiana.— Harris v. Muskingum Mfg. Co., 4 Blackf. 267, 29 Am. Dec. 372.

Louisiana.— German Evangelical Congregation v. Pressler, 14 La. Ann. 799.

Michigan.— Finley Shoe, etc., Co. v. Kurtz, 34 Mich. 89.

New York.— McCullough v. Moss, 5 Den. 567; Union Turnpike Road Co. v. Jenkins, 1 Cai. 381.

Pennsylvania.— Ridgway v. Farmers' Bank, 12 Serg. & R. 256, 14 Am. Dec. 681; Com. v. St. Mary's Church Roman Catholic Soc., 6 Serg. & R. 508.

United States.— U. S. Bank v. Dandridge, 12 Wheat. 64, 6 L. ed. 552.

39. See supra, IX, C, 1.

of the shareholders; the shareholders cannot therefore instruct or direct the directors with regard to any course of ordinary business action.[40] They cannot join another person to the board of directors and compel the directors to act in conjunction with one who is not a member of their board.[41] Where the charter and by-laws vest the power to borrow in the directors, if the shareholders vote to purchase certain property and rights, and to issue bonds therefor, the directors may refuse to carry out the arrangement.[42] Exceptions have been admitted to this rule, founded on the obvious conception that the shareholders of a corporation are the ultimate constituency, in other words the corporation itself. Thus where the inspectors appointed by the directors at a corporate election refused to act, it was held that an emergency had arisen which authorized the shareholders to appoint inspectors to act in their places.[43] Formal action is often dispensed with, even in the most important matters, where all the members of the corporation, including the shareholders and directors, are present and concur, although there is no formal vote either of the shareholders or of the directors. Such an informal concurrence has been held to validate a mortgage of the property of the corporation.[44] And so it has been held that a formal resolution at a shareholders' meeting, authorizing the president of the corporation to execute a deed conveying all the property of the corporation, is sufficient authority for such a conveyance.[45] So a ratification may take place by the acquiescence of the whole body of shareholders, validating an unlawful act of the directors or other corporate agents.[46] On the one hand we find a learned opinion in which it is held that the shareholders of a corporation have no power as such to authorize the sale of the corporate property, or to sell the same, either when collectively assembled in a shareholders' meeting or when acting individually; but that the power to sell and convey can be conferred only by the board of directors or trustees when assembled and acting as a board.[47] On the other hand we find holdings to the effect that the power to alien the property of the corporation, excluding sales made in the ordinary course of its business, lies in the shareholders and not in the directors.[48]

40. See the remarks of Kennedy, J., in Dana v. U. S. Bank, 5 Watts & S. (Pa.) 223, 246. See also State v. State Bank, 6 La. 745; Conro v. Port Henry Iron Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 27; Dayton, etc., R. Co. v. Hatch, 1 Disn. (Ohio) 84, 12 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 501; Kentucky Bank v. Schuylkill Bank, 1 Pars. Eq. Cas. (Pa.) 180. But see Scott v. Eagle Fire Co., 7 Paige (N. Y.) 198.

41. Charlestown Boot, etc., Co. v. Dunsmore, 60 N. H. 85.

42. Cann v. Eakins, 23 Nova Scotia 475.

43. Matter of Wheeler, 2 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 361, 364, per Mason, J. So it was held that a majority of the shareholders of a turnpike company assembled in shareholders' meeting might authorize directors to execute a promissory note of the company; and consequently if a note had been executed by the directors without such authority a subsequent resolution adopted by a majority of the shareholders, levying an assessment to pay the note, was a ratification, and made it the note of the company. Forbes v. San Rafael Turnpike Co., 50 Cal. 340.

44. Eureka Iron, etc., Works v. Bresnahan, 60 Mich. 332, 27 N. W. 524.

45. But it is to be noted that no board of directors had been elected for three years. Burr v. McDonald, 3 Gratt. (Va.) 215.

46. For a striking example see Union Pac. R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 163 U. S. 564, 16 S. Ct. 1173, 41 L. ed. 265, 51 Fed. 309, 2 C. C. A. 174 [affirming 47 Fed. 15]. And see infra, XV, B, 7, a, (I) et seq.

47. Gashwiler v. Willis, 33 Cal. 11, 91 Am. Dec. 607. That the power to sell real estate is vested in the directors and not in the shareholders, and that the directors may delegate the power, see Texas Consol. Compress, etc., Assoc. v. Dublin Compress, etc., Co., (Tex. Civ. App. 1896) 38 S. W. 404.

48. See infra, IX, C, 13, a et seq.

Acts deemed effective.— It has been held that a conveyance authorized at a meeting at which all the shareholders are present and sign a written consent to the proceedings on the record, pursuant to a statute, is as effective as if authorized by the directors, there being in fact but one beneficial shareholder and no board of directors. Manhattan Brass Co. v. Webster Glass, etc., Co., 37 Mo. App. 145, where the sole shareholder transferred one share of stock each to two dummies to make up the three shareholders required to constitute a joint-stock corporation under the statutes of Missouri. That an assignment of insurance policies by the president of a corporation after a loss, made to secure a debt, was valid, where there were no shareholders except those who were directors, and they assented to the assignment, although it was not formally authorized, see Lemars Shoe Co. v. Lemars Shoe Mfg. Co., 89 Ill. App. 245. Cir-

6. DIRECTORS HAVE NO COMMON-LAW POWERS. Except in those cases where, either by the terms of the statute under which the incorporation has taken place or in judicial theory, the directors are the body that is incorporated, and hence the corporation itself, and with other possible exceptions, it may be said that they have no common-law powers, but are in theory of law the agents of the corporation and the trustees of the shareholders, and can only act for and bind the corporation within such limits and in such modes as the charter or other governing statute or valid by-laws or the acts of the members, expressed in pursuance of statutory authority, authorizes it to do.[49] They are not therefore to be deemed special agents, but as already seen the American conception is that their office is generally that of general or managing agents.[50] Nor does this theory exclude the conclusion that they possess certain implied powers, that is to say, powers implied from the nature of their offices, and the usages of business, upon the possession of which the public may safely act, in the absence of notice to the contrary.

7. DIRECTORS CANNOT PERFORM CONSTITUENT ACTS. The directors are merely the managers of the property and business of the corporation, and cannot therefore perform constituent acts, by which expression is meant acts which involve fundamental changes in the constitution of the corporation.[51] They can make no change with reference to the nominal capital of the company[52] or to membership, without the consent of the shareholders; for this would have the effect of making the shareholders members of a different corporation from that which they had consented to join. It would be a breach of the organic compact which the members have made with each other. "It would change the relative influence, control and profit of each member. If the directors alone could do it, they could always perpetuate their own power. Their agency does not extend to such an act unless so expressed in the charter."[53] The fact that the charter in terms allows the corporation at its pleasure to increase its capital stock from time to time, and vests all the powers of the corporation in the board of directors has been held not to change this rule.[54] For the same reasons the directors have no power to reduce the capital of the corporation of which they are the governing body.[55] But according to some opinions they may, in the absence of statutory provision, direct a purchase by the corporation of its own stock, and may hold it unextinguished and reissue the same.[56] Neither can they, in corporations organized under a principle other than that of having a joint stock, admit new members, unless the power to do so is expressly conferred.[57] So in those corporations where the offices involve a franchise, the directors or trustees have no power of amotion. That resides alone in the corporation.[58] Unless thereto authorized by cumstances under which the directors of a railroad corporation can extend the funds of the company in the construction of a passenger station in a state other than that in which the railroad company was created. Nashua, etc., R. Corp. v. Boston, etc., R. Corp., 136 U. S. 356, 10 S. Ct. 1004, 34 L. ed. 363.

49. Salem Bank v. Gloucester Bank, 17 Mass. 1, 9 Am. Dec. 111; Kentucky Bank v. Schuylkill Bank, 1 Pars. Eq. Cas. (Pa.) 180; Royalton v. Royalton, etc., Turnpike Co., 14 Vt. 311; Ridley v. Plymouth, etc., Grinding, etc., Co., 2 Exch. 711, 12 Jur. 542, 17 L. J. Exch. 252.

50. See supra, IX, C, 1.

51. Stark v. Burke, 9 La. Ann. 341.

52. See supra, VII, A, 2, a.

53. Gill v. Balis, 72 Mo. 424, 434; Chicago City R. Co. v. Allerton, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 233, 21 L. ed. 902.

54. Chicago City R. Co. v. Allerton, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 233, 21 L. ed. 902. See also Heath v. Erie R. Co., 11 Fed. Cas. No. 6,306, 8 Blatchf. 347.

55. Hartridge v. Rockwell, R. M. Charlt. (Ga.) 260; Percy v. Millaudon, 3 La. 568.

56. Columbus City Bank v. Bruce, 17 N. Y. 507; Taylor v. Miami Exporting Co., 6 Ohio 176.

57. Thus under the fourth and fifth sections of the act incorporating the Philadelphia Savings Institution, the directors had not the power to elect members, but only to provide for their election. Com. v. Gill, 3 Whart. (Pa.) 228.

58. Power of amotion (including that of suspension) cannot be delegated to a board of directors. State v. Chamber of Commerce, 20 Wis. 68.

Power to issue preferred stock when authorized by legislature.— That the directors thereto authorized by the legislature, by an act which the shareholders have accepted, may issue preferred stock notwithstanding the legislature, the directors of a corporation have no authority to apply to the legislature for an enlargement of the powers conferred upon the company by its charter.[59]

8. What Directors Cannot Do With Respect to Capital Stock of Company. This subject is more fully considered elsewhere,[60] but it may be stated here that directors have no power to cancel any part of a subscription to the capital stock of the company without the consent of the shareholders;[61] to make certificates purporting to represent shares of the capital stock which have not in fact been subscribed for, and put on the market as stock, and to sell them below par;[62] or, as a part of a fraudulent device to increase the capital stock in pretended pursuance of statutory authority, to issue bonds of the corporation convertible into stock.[63]

9. Directors Cannot Make, Alter, or Amend By-Laws. The directors of a corporation cannot make, alter, or amend its by-laws, unless thereto empowered by charter or statute; although as we have seen[64] numerous statutes have been enacted conferring upon them that power.[65] But if the governing statute gives them that power they may exercise it, although it is not conferred by the articles of incorporation.[66]

10. A Few Things Which Directors Cannot Do. A partial list of things which directors of private corporations cannot do is as follows: Consent to the act of an officer in converting funds of the corporation to his own use;[67] issue accommodation paper;[68] execute a lease which practically divests the corporation of all its the opposition of individual shareholders see Curry v. Scott, 54 Pa. St. 270.

59. Marlborough Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 2 Conn. 579; State v. Adams, 44 Mo. 570; Zabriskie v. Hackensack, etc., R. Co., 18 N. J. Eq. 178, 90 Am. Dec. 617. Hence it has been held that a resolve of the legislature upon an application of the directors, made without authority from the company, giving power to the company to raise an additional assessment on the shareholders, for the purpose of paying the debts of the company, is inoperative. Marlborough Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 2 Conn. 579. So the president and directors of a corporation cannot accept an amended charter, the effect of which would be to deprive certain shareholders of their rights as such. Boisdere v. Citizens' Bank, 9 La. 506, 29 Am. Dec. 453. But see Dayton, etc., R. Co. v. Hatch, 1 Disn. (Ohio) 84, 12 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 501. Nor can the directors accomplish such results by indirect means, having no power to accomplish them directly. State v. McCullough, 3 Nev. 202. They cannot for example force an increase of the capital stock of the company by an agreement with an employee to pay for his services in stock, when none remains unissued. Finley Shoe, etc., Co. v. Kurtz, 34 Mich. 89.

60. See supra, VI, L, 2, c, (I) et seq.

61. Gathright v. Oil City Land, etc., Co., 56 S. W. 163, 21 Ky. L. Rep. 1657.

62. Fisk v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 53 Barb. 513, 36 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 20. See also Sturges v. Stetson, 3 Phila. (Pa.) 304, 15 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 404.

63. Belmont v. Erie R. Co., 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 637. See also N. Y. Sess. Laws (1850), c. 140, § 28, subs. 10; Sturges v. Stetson, 3 Phila. (Pa.) 304, 15 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 404.

64. See supra, V, B, 3, b.

65. North Milwaukee Town Site Co. No. 2 v. Bishop, 103 Wis. 492, 79 N. W. 785, 45 L. R. A. 174.

66. Houdeck v. Merchants', etc., Ins. Co., 102 Iowa 303, 71 N. W. 354.

By-laws enacted by the directors or trustees, acting within the scope of the powers conferred upon them by the charter, become the law of the corporation, and bind the shareholders and the trustees themselves. Burden v. Burden, 159 N. Y. 287, 54 N. E. 17 [affirming 8 N. Y. App. Div. 160, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 499].

A charter power to make such by-laws as shall appear needful and proper in regard to the management and disposition of the stock, property, estate, and effects of the corporation does not authorize the passage of a by-law fixing the time for the annual meeting of the shareholders for the election of directors; but the power to pass such a by-law resides in the shareholders only. Busby v. Montreal Bank, N. Brunsw. Eq. 62.

Where the directors have the power to make and enforce a particular rule or regulation, such a regulation is not of course invalid from the mere circumstance that it is called a by-law, and that no power to make by-laws has been expressly given by the charter. It was so held where the directors of a merchants' exchange established a by-law regulating the use of the exchange rooms. Albers v. Merchants' Exchange, 39 Mo. App. 583, where the court considered the validity of a by-law of an incorporated merchants' exchange, declaring the rooms open for business during certain hours daily, and prohibiting smoking therein during such hours.

67. I. X. L. Pressed-Brick Co. v. Schoeneich, 65 Mo. App. 283.

68. Hutchinson v. Sutton Mfg. Co., 57 Fed. 998.

property;[69] or delegate all their powers of management to an executive committee of their number.[70]

11. WHAT ACTS REQUIRE VOTE OF DIRECTORS. The following acts have been held of such solemnity and importance as to require, in order to their validity, a vote of the directors: A mortgage of the property of the corporation as security for a loan;[71] an assignment of all the property of the corporation for the benefit of its creditors;[72] and the giving of notice of the termination of a contract entered into by the corporation whereby it agreed to pay royalties for the right to manufacture under a patent.[73]

12. WHAT ACTS DO NOT REQUIRE VOTE OF DIRECTORS. The following acts are not of sufficient solemnity or importance to require a vote of the directors: The making, by a mercantile or manufacturing corporation, of ordinary contracts — those made by correspondence by the proper agent or manager,[74] or by its regular corresponding secretary;[75] the assignment of an account by its secretary and general manager;[76] the borrowing of money by the corporation, no resolution being entered on the minutes;[77] the institution of a proceeding to enforce a statutory lien against a shareholder for a past-due indebtedness to the corporation;[78] the chartering of vessels necessary to carry on the ordinary business of a steamship company in transporting passengers and freight;[79] and the institution of a proceeding to condemn lands by a water-supply company.[80]

13. DIRECTORS CANNOT SELL OUT CORPORATE ASSETS AND BUSINESS — a. In General. The directors of a corporation cannot, unless thereto authorized by the shareholders, put an end to its business and defeat the objects of its creation by selling out en masse all its property and good-will,[81] or any portion of its real estate necessary

69. Mercantile Library Hall Co. v. Pittsburgh Library Assoc., 173 Pa. St. 30, 33 Atl. 744, 37 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 533.

70. Tempel v. Dodge, 89 Tex. 69, 32 S. W. 514 [rehearing denied in 33 S. W. 222].

As to the powers of executive committees see infra, IX, D, 5, a et seq.

Directors of a public corporation cannot maintain a suit to contest the validity of a lien made by the corporation upon property vested in it for public use, the right of action, if any, being in the state. Smith v. Cornelius, 41 W. Va. 59, 23 S. E. 599, 30 L. R. A. 747.

71. St. Joseph State Nat. Bank v. Union Nat. Bank, 168 Ill. 519, 48 N. E. 82 [affirming 68 Ill. App. 25, where the power is conceded to the president of a corporation to secure its debts by making a mortgage upon some of its property; but where he professes to act in pursuance of a resolution of the board of directors, the resolution must be valid, or his act will not be good as against creditors]; Currie v. Bowman, 25 Oreg. 364, 35 Pac. 848.

72. Norton v. Alabama Nat. Bank, 102 Ala. 420, 14 So. 872; Webb v. Midway Lumber Co., 68 Mo. App. 546.

73. Skinner v. Walter A. Wood Mowing, etc., Mach. Co., 20 N. Y. Suppl. 251, 47 N. Y. St. 506.

An assignment for creditors by a corporation, in pursuance of an order of three of the six directors, is invalid, where the statute requires a majority of the whole board to make a quorum. Webb v. Midway Lumber Co., 68 Mo. App. 546.

A resolution adopted by less than two thirds of the directors of a corporation, confirming a mortgage previously executed in pursuance of a resolution which was invalid under Ill. Rev. Stat. c. 32, § 20, because the meeting of the board was held outside the state without the authority of two thirds of the directors, or authorizing a new mortgage, does not effect an attachment lien acquired upon the property in the meantime, and such lien takes precedence of the mortgage. St. Joseph State Nat. Bank v. Union Nat. Bank, 168 Ill. 519, 48 N. E. 82 [affirming 68 Ill. App. 25, and citing Trumbull v. Union Trust Co., 33 Ill. App. 319; Stein v. La Dow, 13 Minn. 412; McKeag v. Collins, 87 Mo. 164; Holland v. Drake, 29 Ohio St. 441; Coleman v. Darling, 66 Wis. 155, 28 N. W. 367, 57 Am. Rep. 253].

74. Scofield v. Parlin, etc., Co., 61 Fed. 804, 10 C. C. A. 83.

75. Hall v. Herter, 90 Hun (N. Y.) 280, 35 N. Y. Suppl. 769, 70 N. Y. St. 273.

76. Tuller v. Arnold, 98 Cal. 522, 33 Pac. 445. See also Greig v. Riordan, 99 Cal. 316, 33 Pac. 913.

77. Yolo Bank v. Weaver, (Cal. 1892) 31 Pac. 160.

78. Elliott v. Sibley, 101 Ala. 344, 13 So. 500.

79. Prentice v. U. S., etc., Steamship Co., 58 Fed. 702.

80. Kountze v. Morris Aqueduct, 58 N. J. L. 303, 33 Atl. 252 [affirmed in 58 N. J. L. 695, 34 Atl. 1099].

81. Rollins v. Cray, 33 Me. 132; Abbott v. American Hard Rubber Co., 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 578, 21 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 193; Chicago City R. Co. v. Allerton, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 233, 21 L. ed. 902; Colman v. Eastern Counties R. Co., 10 Beav. 1.

for the transaction of its customary business;[82] lease its entire property for a period of nine hundred and ninety-nine years;[83] or grant an option to purchase its entire works at any time within twenty years.[84] But they may, it has been held, do this in order to raise money to pay the debts of the corporation where its affairs are so desperate that it cannot continue its business;[85] or they may it seems transfer all its property to another corporation, with the assent of a large majority of the shareholders, in order to prevent a total loss.[86] And of course they have the power to alien the entire property of the corporation where the power is conferred upon them by the charter or governing statute, in express language or by necessary implication.[87]

b. May Transfer Corporate Property in Ordinary Course of Business. But they may transfer corporate property in the ordinary course of business, and may appoint agents for that purpose, even one of their own number, as to assign or transfer a note belonging to the corporation.[88]

c. May Alien Corporate Real Estate in Course of Business. But this is not at all incompatible with the implication of power in the directors of a corporation to alien the real estate of the corporation in the ordinary course of its business.[89] For example the directors of a mining corporation, organized with power to acquire and hold mining lands and other real property, and to mine and dispose of mineral and other products thereof, may lease its property for a fixed rental for a period of five years.[90] If under the charter the directors possess all the powers which the corporation itself possesses, not incompatible with the by-laws, they may mortgage its lands to secure its bonds, where the by-laws permit this to be done.[91]

d. May Pledge, Mortgage, and Convey Corporate Property to Secure Debts. In general it may be stated that as an incident to the authority of the directors to contract debts and obligations in the course of the ordinary business of the corporation, they have authority to pledge and convey the real or personal estate of the corporation as security for the payment of the same.[92]

82. Rollins v. Cray, 33 Me. 132.

83. Metropolitan El. R. Co. v. Manhattan El. R. Co., 11 Daly (N. Y.) 373, 14 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 103.

84. Clay v. Rufford, 5 De G. & S. 768, 19 Eng. L. & Eq. 350.

85. Ashurst's Appeal, 60 Pa. St. 290. See also Sheldon Hat Blocking Co. v. Eickmeyer Hat Blocking Co., 56 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 70.

86. People v. Ballard, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 845.

87. As was the case with the charter of the St. Louis Gaslight Company. St. Louis v. St. Louis Gaslight Co., 70 Mo. 69.

88. Cooper v. Curtis, 30 Me. 488; Stevens v. Hill, 29 Me. 133; Merrick v. Metropolis Bank, 8 Gill (Md.) 59; Northampton Bank v. Pepoon, 11 Mass. 288; Spear v. Ladd, 11 Mass. 94.

Might execute a release, under the old rule, and qualify an interested witness. Lewis v. Eastern Bank, 32 Me. 90.

When the assent of a banking corporation that a note may be sued on in its corporate name may be inferred from the acts of its officers, without a formal vote of its directors. Lime Rock Bank v. Macomber, 29 Me. 564.

89. See a valuable note on this subject in 59 Am. Rep. 466.

90. Hennessy v. Muhleman, 40 N. Y. App. Div. 175, 57 N. Y. Suppl. 854 [reversing 27 Misc. (N. Y.) 232, 57 N. Y. Suppl. 114].

Statutory power which authorizes the directors of a railroad company to sell a portion of its right of way in satisfaction of a mortgage debt. Donner v. Dayton, etc., R. Co., 1 Cinc. Super. Ct. 130.

91. Hendee v. Pinkerton, 14 Allen (Mass.) 381. Compare Tyrrell v. Washburn, 6 Allen (Mass.) 466. But it has been held that authority given to a single director to make contracts for the sale of the lands of the corporation does not authorize him to convey them. Green v. Hugo, 81 Tex. 452, 17 S. W. 79, 26 Am. St. Rep. 824.

92. Maine.—Augusta Bank v. Hamblet, 35 Me. 491.

Massachusetts.— Hendee v. Pinkerton, 14 Allen 381; Sargent v. Webster, 13 Metc. 497, 46 Am. Dec. 743; Burrill v. Nahant Bank, 2 Metc. 163, 35 Am. Dec. 395.

Michigan.— Commissioners Bank v. Brest Bank, Harr. Ch. 106.

New Hampshire.— Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203.

New York.— Hoyt v. Thompson, 19 N. Y. 207; Jackson v. Brown, 5 Wend. 590.

Pennsylvania.— Gordon v. Preston, 1 Watts 385, 26 Am. Dec. 75.

Tennessee.— In re New Memphis Gaslight Co., 105 Tenn. 268, 60 S. W. 206.

Vermont.— Miller v. Rutland, etc., Co., 36 Vt. 452.

e. May Assign All Assets of Corporation For Benefit of Its Creditors. There is much authority for the conclusion that the directors of an insolvent corporation may, without the consent of its shareholders, make an assignment in good faith of all the assets of the corporation to a trustee for the payment of its debts;[93] and it has been held that they may do this without the assent, or against the expressed dissent, of the shareholders.[94] But as the exercise of this power generally has the effect of putting an end to the corporation, its existence in the directors is denied by some courts.[95] This is especially true where the governing statute provides a different mode for winding up an insolvent corporation and liquidating its debts, the statutory mode being exclusive;[96] and it has been so held in view of a statute providing for the voluntary dissolution of the corporation by the action of its shareholders.[97]

14. May Borrow Money For Ordinary Corporate Purposes — a. In General. The directors of a corporation may, according to the American view of their powers,[98] borrow money to be used in carrying on the ordinary business of the corporation, and may make or indorse the necessary instruments to that end.[99] Where a general power on the part of the directors to borrow for the corporation thus exists, one who lends money to it, upon their application, in good faith, will not be charged with knowledge of, or responsibility for, any breach of trust on their part in the application of it to the use of the corporation.[1] Nor will the corporation be allowed, while keeping the money, to set up a want of power on the part of its directors to borrow it, or that it was after being borrowed put to unauthorized uses.[2]

b. Power to Borrow Includes Power to Secure Debt. A general power in the directors to borrow money for the use of the corporation includes the power to secure the debt thus created, in any appropriate mode, as by assigning bonds and mortgages owned by the corporation[3] or by mortgaging the corporate property.[4]

93. Maryland.— Merrick v. Metropolis Bank, 8 Gill 59.

Michigan.— Boynton v. Roe, 114 Mich. 401, 72 N. W. 257.

Pennsylvania.— Dana v. Bank U. S., 5 Watts & S. 223.

South Dakota.— Wright v. Lee, 2 S. D. 596, 51 N. W. 706.

Wisconsin.— Goetz v. Knie, 103 Wis. 366, 79 N. W. 401.

94. Hutchinson v. Green, 91 Mo. 367, 1 S. W. 853. But see De Camp v. Alward, 52 Ind. 468; Boynton v. Roe, 114 Mich. 401, 72 N. W. 257; Commissioners Bank v. Brest, Bank, Harr. Ch. (Mich.) 106.

95. Gibson v. Goldthwaite, 7 Ala. 281, 42 Am. Dec. 592.

96. Commissioners Bank v. Brest Bank, Harr. Ch. (Mich.) 106.

97. Kyle v. Wagner, 45 W. Va. 349, 32 S. E. 213.

Whether directors may assign corporate property to other trustees for lawful purposes.— There is a holding to the effect that they can. Ashhurst's Appeal, 60 Pa. St. 290. There is another holding conceding the power but holding that the exercise of it will be subjected to a rigid scrutiny. Ogden v. Murray, 39 N. Y. 202. The clear view would seem to be that they have no such power unless the statute or other governing instrument gives it.

98. The English rule is the contrary. Chambers v. Manchester, etc., R. Co., 5 B. & S. 588, 10 Jur. N. S. 700, 33 L. J. Q. B. 268, 117 E. C. L. 588; Burmester v. Norris, 6 Exch. 796, 21 L. J. Exch. 43, 8 Eng. L. & Eq. 487.

99. Merrick v. Metropolis Bank, 8 Gill (Md.) 59; Ridgway v. Farmers' Bank, 12 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 256, 14 Am. Dec. 681; Fleckner v. U. S. Bank, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 338, 5 L. ed. 631.

They may do this notwithstanding a resolution of the shareholders that "no further assessments shall be made except by direction." Shickell v. Berryville Land, etc., Co., 99 Va. 88, 3 Va. Supreme Ct. 45, 37 S. E. 813.

1. North Hudson Mut. Bldg., etc., Assoc. v. Hudson First Nat. Bank, 79 Wis. 31, 47 N. W. 300, 11 L. R. A. 845; Borland v. Haven, 37 Fed. 394, 13 Sawy. 551.

2. North Hudson Mut. Bldg., etc., Assoc. v. Hudson First Nat. Bank, 79 Wis. 31, 47 N. W. 300, 11 L. R. A. 845.

There are statutes requiring the assent of shareholders of a given value. 5 Thompson Corp. § 6172 et seq. And see infra, XVIII, B, 1, n, (IV), (A) et seq.

As to the mode in which this power is exercised by the directors see also 5 Thompson Corp. § 6175; and infra, XVIII, B, 2, a, (I) et seq.

As to this power under the general banking law of New York see Leavitt v. Yates, 4 Edw. (N. Y.) 134.

3 North Hudson Mut. Bldg., etc., Assoc. v. Hudson First Nat. Bank, 79 Wis. 31, 47 N. W. 300, 11 L. R. A. 845.

4. That the power to borrow money car-

15. May Make and Transfer Negotiable Paper. According to the American doctrine the directors of any business corporation have the power to make, accept, or assign negotiable paper, in the course of the ordinary business of the corporation;[5] and this power has been conceded to the trustees of other corporations, such as a society for the erection of a monument;[6] and of course it belongs to the directors of banking corporations.[7]

16. May Employ Ministerial Agents. It is manifestly a part of the mere business powers of the directors of a business corporation to employ mere ministerial agents and servants to transact the business and perform the work of the corporation. But they cannot appoint corporate officers in perpetuity, at a stated salary, as for example a vice-president.[8] Nor can they employ a general manager for a fixed period, for example by the year, under by-laws which hold that all officers of the corporation shall hold office during the pleasure of the board of directors.[9]

17. May Pay Wages in Advance. The directors of a manufacturing corporation have the power, in the absence of some express restraint, to make an advance in the payment of wages to an agent of the corporation; and for this purpose they may empower the agent to use the credit of the company.[10]

18. May Fix Salaries of Corporate Officers. In the absence of any prohibition in charter, statute, or by-law, the directors may fix the salaries of ministerial officers of the corporation.[11]

19. Cannot Dispose of Shares of Corporation Below Par. Unless thereto authorized by statute or charter, the directors of a corporation cannot dispose of the shares of its corporate stock at less than par; nor can they accomplish such a result indirectly by executing a bond to a stock-broker for a sum largely in excess of the consideration for which it was executed, and by permitting the obligee in the bond to convert it into stock of the nominal value of the sum named in the bond.[12]

20. Cannot Levy Assessments Until Whole Number of Shares Subscribed. Unless the governing statute, or some other valid governing instrument otherwise provides,[13] the general doctrine is, that until all the capital which it is intended to raise is subscribed for, the corporation is merely inchoate,[14] and the subscriptions of ries with it a power on the part of the corporation to mortgage its property to secure the debt see infra, XVIII, B, 1, a.

5. Tripp v. Swanzey Paper Co., 13 Pick. (Mass.) 291. Here again the English is contrary to the American law. Dickinson v. Valpy, 10 B. & C. 128, 8 L. J. K. B. O. S. 51, 5 M. & R. 126, 21 E. C. L. 63; Harmer v. Steele, 4 Exch. 1, 19 L. J. Exch. 34. Compare Thompson v. Wesleyan Newspaper Assoc., 8 C. B. 849, 19 L. J. C. P. 114, 65 E. C. L. 849.

6. Hayward v. Pilgrim Soc., 21 Pick. (Mass.) 270. See also First Baptist Church v. Caughey, 85 Pa. St. 271.

7. Stevens v. Hill, 29 Me. 133. See also Northampton Bank v. Pepoon, 11 Mass. 288.

Single director no such power without special authority. Lawrence v. Gebhard, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 575.

Power of directors to guarantee bonds of another company. Zabriskie v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 23 How. (U. S.) 381, 16 L. ed. 488.

When they assume the debt of a third person.— Stark Bank v. U. S. Pottery Co., 34 Vt. 144.

8. West v. Camden, 135 U. S. 507, 10 S. Ct. 838, 34 L. ed. 254.

9. Fowler v. Great Southern Telephone, etc., Co., 104 La. 751, 29 So. 271.

10. Tripp v. Swanzey Paper Co., 13 Pick. (Mass.) 291.

11. Waite v. Windham County Min. Co., 37 Vt. 608.

12. Sturges v. Stetson, 23 Fed. Cas. No. 13,568, 3 Phila. 304, 1 Biss. 246. See also Fisk v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 513, 36 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 20. That directors of a joint-stock corporation have no authority under the Manitoba Joint-Stock Companies Incorporation Act to issue paid-up stock below par without the authority of a special general meeting of shareholders see North-West Electric Co. v. Walsh, 29 Can. Supreme Ct. 33.

13. Hamilton, etc., Plank Road Co. v. Rice, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 157.

14. California.— Santa Cruz R. Co. v. Schwartz, 53 Cal. 106.

Illinois.— People v. National Sav. Bank, 129 Ill. 618, 22 N. E. 288; Allman v. Havana, etc., R. Co., 88 Ill. 521.

Maine.—Rockland, etc., Steamboat Co. v. Sewall, 78 Me. 167, 3 Atl. 181.

Massachusetts.—People's Ferry Co. v. Balch, 8 Gray 303.

Minnesota.— Masonic Temple Assoc. v. Channell, 43 Minn. 353, 45 N. W. 716.

the shareholders are conditional merely, a mere proposition to contribute a certain amount to make up the total sum agreed to be raised.[15] Where this doctrine prevails, unless the charter, governing statute, or some other valid instrument provides that the corporate life shall be deemed to be in existence before this stated amount of capital has been subscribed for, and authorizes it to commence business before this event, the directors have no power to launch it upon the business for which it was created, or to make contracts or incur liabilities in furtherance of the corporate enterprise;[16] and hence no power to levy an assessment upon the shares.[17]

21. Cannot Give Away Assets of Corporation. Directors have no power, by giving away the assets of the corporation, to deprive it of the means of accomplishing the purpose for which it was created.[18] But they may do the next thing to giving away the corporate assets by ratifying a debt of the corporation which has been barred by the statute of limitations.[19]

22. Cannot Use Funds of Corporation in Purchasing Its Own Shares. They cannot use the funds of the corporation in purchasing the shares of its members, thereby distributing its tangible assets among its members and advancing its insolvency and dissolution.[20]

23. Cannot Release Shareholders — a. In General. For the same reason they cannot release subscribers to the capital stock of the corporation, unless the corporation received an adequate consideration therefor.[21]

b. But May Make Bona Fide Compromises. But may make in the exercise of their best judgment and acting in good faith bona fide compromises of disputed claims, and may settle pending actions.[22]

24. May Conduct Corporate but Not Private Litigation at Corporate Expense. The directors of a corporation may, unless restrained by some governing instrument, prosecute or defend any litigation of the corporation at the corporate expense; but they cannot fritter away its funds in litigation in respect to their own individual rights in the corporation.[23] To prosecute and defend actions for the corporation is not only a power but a duty of the directors; and if they fail or refuse to perform it, the shareholders will be allowed in equity to do so, under conditions hereafter stated.[24]

Missouri.— Haskell v. Worthington, 94 Mo. 560, 7 S. W. 481.

New Hampshire.— Contoocook Valley R. Co. v. Barker, 32 N. H. 363.

New York.— Bray v. Farwell, 81 N. Y. 600 [overruling it seems Rensselaer, etc., Plank Road Co. v. Wetzel, 21 Barb. 56].

15. Temple v. Lemon, 112 Ill. 51; Hale v. Sanborn, 16 Nehr. 1, 20 N. W. 97. Compare Penobscot R. Co. v. White, 41 Me. 512, 66 Am. Dec. 257; Boston, etc., R. Corp. v. Midland R. Co., 1 Gray (Mass.) 340.

The general statutes of Minnesota abrogate this rule.— Masonic Temple Assoc. v. Channell, 43 Minn. 353, 45 N. W. 716.

16. Allman v. Havana, etc., R. Co., 88 Ill. 521; Salem Mill Dam Corp. v. Ropes, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 23.

17. Allman v. Havana, etc., R. Co., 88 Ill. 521; Stoneham Branch R. Co. v. Gould, 2 Gray (Mass.) 277; Worcester, etc., R. Co. v. Hinds, 8 Cush. (Mass.) 110; Cabot, etc., Bridge v. Chapin, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 50; Lexington, etc., R. Co. v. Chandler, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 311; Central Turnpike Corp. v. Valentine, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 142; Salem Mill Dam Corp. v. Ropes, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 23; New Hampshire Cent. R. Co. v. Johnson, 30 N. H. 390, 64 Am. Dec. 300. See also supra, VI, H, 14, a.

18. Frankfort Bank v. Johnson, 24 Me. 490; Bedford R. Co. v. Bowser, 48 Pa. St. 29. Cannot therefore issue its shares at less than par. Sturges v. Stetson, 23 Fed. Cas. No. 13,568, 3 Phila. (Pa.) 304, 1 Biss. 246.

19. Leavitt v. Oxford, etc., Silver Min. Co., 3 Utah 265, 1 Pac. 356.

20. Bedford R. Co. v. Bowser, 48 Pa. St. 29. See also Penobscot, etc., R. Co. v. Dunn, 39 Me. 587; Matter of Cameron's Coalbrook Steam Coal, etc., Co., 5 De G. M. & G. 284, 24 L. J. Ch. 130, 2 Wkly. Rep. 448, 54 Eng. Ch. 226.

21. Braddock Electric R. Co. v. Bily, 11 Pa. Super. Ct. 144.

22. Donahoe v. Mariposa Land, etc., Co., 66 Cal. 317, 5 Pac. 495.

23. Harbison v. Hartford First Presb. Soc., 46 Conn. 529, 33 Am. Rep. 34.

24. See infra, IX, N, 1, a.

A contumacious resignation by officers of a company cannot prevent the company from filing a petition in bankruptcy, it has been held, if a majority of shareholders authorize it to be done. Davis v. Railroad Co., 7 Fed. Cas. No. 3,638, 1 Woods 661.

25. May Not Express Corporate Willingness to Become a Bankrupt. Where the governing statute provides that a petition for the commencement of insolvency proceedings may be signed by an officer duly authorized by a majority of directors present and voting at a meeting called for that purpose, the directors have no power by virtue of their general authority to manage and conduct the business of the corporation to express the corporate willingness to become a bankrupt.[25]

26. Effect of Ultra Vires Acts of Directors. The law on this subject cannot be stated in a paragraph, and it is therefore reserved for treatment in a subsequent section.[26] If the thing done by the directors is not only ultra vires, but prohibited by positive law, no one participating in it with knowledge can acquire any rights in respect of it. Thus one who with knowledge advances money to the directors of a mining company to enable them to declare a fictitious dividend in the face of a prohibitory statute can have no remedy against the company for such advance.[27] Acts of directors of corporations which are ultra vires in the sense of being beyond the power delegated to or by the directors, but not in the sense of being beyond the power of the corporation by reason of positive illegality, are often made good by ratification or cured by estoppel, when necessary to preserve the rights of third parties, as will appear later.[28]

27. When May Act in Another State. While the directors of a corporation cannot, unless thereto empowered by charter or statute, meet in another state for the purpose of performing constituent acts, yet they may act in another state in or about any matter which pertains to their powers as agents of the corporation in the conduct of its business, such as to give notes and mortgages to secure the same.[29] In the absence of statutory or other restraint, it is within the scope of their powers to extend the business of the corporation into another state.[30]

28. Their Power as to Dividends. The discretionary power of declaring and paying dividends generally resides, in the case of business corporations, with the directors; and as we shall hereafter see[31] statutes exist making them liable to creditors for declaring and paying unlawful dividends; and in the absence of such statutes judicial decisions are not wanting holding them so liable.[32] Where the charter provides that dividends may be declared "after the close of the fiscal year," the directors cannot declare dividends on the common stock before the close of the fiscal year.[33]

29. May Lease Corporate Property. The directors of a mining company may lease the property of the company for a period of five years at a fixed rental,[34] and the trustees of a secret society may lease its lodge room to another society for one night in each week.[35]

25. In re Bates Mach. Co., 91 Fed. 625.

26. See infra, XVII, F, 1, a.

27. Davis v. Flagstaff Silver Min. Co., 2 Utah 74. In so far as the case of Colman v. Eastern Counties R. Co., 10 Beav. 1, is opposed to this proposition it is unsound and ought not to be followed.

Loss of power by loss of time.—It seems that an express power conferred on the governing body of a corporation to do an act is not lost by the mere lapse of time, at least within the period of the statute of limitations. Hayward v. Pilgrim Soc., 21 Pick. (Mass.) 270.

28. See infra, XV; XIV.

29. Reichwald v. Commercial Hotel Co., 106 Ill. 439.

30. Lewis v. American Sav., etc., Assoc., 98 Wis. 203, 73 N. W. 793, 39 L. R. A. 559.

31. See infra, IX, P, 9, a et seq.

32. Evans v. Coventry, 2 Jur. N. S. 557, 25 L. J. Ch. 489, 4 Wkly. Rep. 466 [on appeal, 8 De G. M. & G. 835, 57 Eng. Ch. 645]. See also In re National Funds Assur. Co., 10 Ch. D. 118, 48 L. J. Ch. 163, 39 L. T. Rep. N. S. 420, 27 Wkly. Rep. 302. Compare Hallett v. Dowdall, 18 Q. B. 2, 16 Jur. 462, 21 L. J. Q. B. 98, 83 E. C. L. 2; In re Mercantile Trading Co., L. R. 4 Ch. 475, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 502, 17 Wkly. Rep. 654.

33. Marquand v. Federal Steel Co., 95 Fed. 725.

Statutory provision under which the directors cannot select the days upon which dividends upon preferred stock shall be declared and paid. Marquand v. Federal Steel Co., 95 Fed. 725.

34. Hennessy v. Muhleman, 40 N. Y. App. Div. 175, 57 N. Y. Suppl. 854 [reversing 27 Misc. (N. Y.) 232, 57 N. Y. Suppl. 114].

35. Philip v. Aurora Lodge, 87 Ind. 505.

May authorize the shareholders to pay

30. MAY CREATE NEW DEBTS TO PAY OFF OLD ONES. It is obviously within the scope of the ordinary business powers of the directors of a corporation to create a new corporate debt to pay off an old one, whenever in their opinion it becomes necessary or expedient so to do.[36]

31. NEED NOT SIGN THEIR NAMES TO CORPORATE CONTRACTS. The directors of a corporation, in executing the corporate contracts, need not sign their names thereto, although to do so will not vitiate the contract.[37] As seen hereafter[38] the customary and proper way is, in cases where the nature of proposed contract is such as to require this solemnity, for the directors to pass a resolution directing the proper ministerial officers of the corporation, usually the president and secretary, to execute the required contract.

32. THEIR POWERS UNDER SHAREHOLDERS' RESOLUTION PLACING CONTROL AND MANAGEMENT IN THEIR HANDS. A shareholders' resolution that "it is not deemed necessary at this meeting to adopt by-laws, for the reason that the articles of incorporation provide that the control and management of the corporation shall be in the hands of the board of directors" has been held to leave the entire control of the corporate business with the directory.[39]

33. THEIR POWERS UNDER OTHER INSTRUMENTS. Where the shareholders authorize the issue of bonds to retire a former bond issue, to pay a debt for betterments, and to construct further improvements, and provide by resolution that such bonds shall be subject to the control of the board of directors, to be used for the purposes specified, the directors may pledge such bonds as security for existing and future indebtedness for the purposes contemplated in the resolution.[40]

34. THEIR CONTRACTS NOT VOIDABLE BECAUSE OF MERE ERRORS OF JUDGMENT. The contracts of directors and other officers of corporations will not be set aside in equity, as being in breach of their official trust, because of mere errors of judgment.[41]

35. RIGHT OF DIRECTORS TO INSPECT BOOKS AND RECORDS. Every director has a right to inspect the books and records of the corporation, in order to ascertain what the corporation is doing, and the majority of the board cannot lawfully exclude a minority from this right.[42]

D. Delegation of Their Powers by Directors — 1. GENERAL RULE THAT DIRECTORS CANNOT DELEGATE DISCRETIONARY POWERS. The directors of a corporation cannot as a general rule delegate their discretionary powers to one or more of their number, unless (1) the charter, governing statute, by-law, or other valid governing custom empowers them so to do; or (2) there is an instrument permitting them so to do of such public notoriety that persons contracting with the corporation may be presumed to have knowledge of it.[43] debts due from the directors to the corporation by transferring to the creditors shares held by the directors in the corporation. Taylor v. Miami Exporting Co., 6 Ohio 176.

36. Hayward v. Pilgrim Soc., 21 Pick. (Mass.) 270.

37. Clark v. Farmers' Woolen Mfg. Co., 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 256. See also McDonough v. Templeman, 1 Harr. & J. (Md.) 156, 2 Am. Dec. 510.

38. See infra, XII, A, 2.

39. Reichwald v. Commercial Hotel Co., 106 Ill. 439, 447.

Instruments under which three directors had power to draw checks and apply the money thereby raised. Ex p. Johnson, 31 Eng. L. & Eq. 430.

40. In re New Memphis Gaslight Co. Cases, 105 Tenn. 268, 60 S. W. 206.

41. Arapahoe Cattle, etc., Co. v. Stevens, 13 Colo. 534, 22 Pac. 823 (agreement to pay a third party five thousand dollars in shares of the stock of the corporation for procuring for it a loan of fifteen thousand dollars to help it through an emergency); Jesup v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 43 Fed. 483 (excessive rent agreed to be paid).

42. Stone v. Kellogg, 62 Ill. App. 444.

43. Among the cases affirming the general doctrine that directors cannot delegate their discretionary powers are the following:

Maine.— Female Orphan Asylum v. Johnson, 43 Me. 180; York, etc., R. Co. v. Ritchie, 40 Me. 425.

Massachusetts.— Emerson v. Providence Hat Mfg. Co., 12 Mass. 237, 7 Am. Dec. 66; Tippets v. Walker, 4 Mass. 595.

New Hampshire.— Manchester, etc., R. Co. v. Fisk, 33 N. H. 297; Gillis v. Bailey, 21 N. H. 149; Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203.

New York.— Caldwell v. Mutual Reserve

2. Rule Where Directors Are Deemed to Be Corporation. Under some systems the directors or trustees and not the shareholders or members are deemed to be the body that is incorporated, that is to say, the corporation. Where this theory prevails, the directors or trustees are the original possessors of the powers of the corporation; and consequently it has been held that they may delegate such power to others without violating the maxim, Delegata potestas non potest delegari. Under this theory it has been held, but in opposition to other judicial authority, that a board of bank directors may delegate an authority to a committee of their own members to alien or mortgage real estate of the corporation, and that such an authority necessarily implies the further authority to execute suitable instruments, using the corporate seal for that purpose.[44]

3. What Powers May Not Be Delegated by Directors. The general rule is that the power to alien the real property of a corporation in any manner except in the ordinary course of business, whether by sale, mortgage, or lease, is a discretionary power which the directors of the corporation cannot delegate to another;[45] and this is so of the power to allot the unsubscribed shares of the corporation, which power has been delegated in the board of directors; and so of the power of making assessments upon shares of the capital stock.[46]

4. May Delegate Ministerial Duties — a. In General. Directors may, however, delegate to one or more of their number, or to particular ministerial officers of the corporation, or to agents other than such officers, the power to perform acts which are ministerial in their nature;[47] and where, in the exercise of their discretionary powers, directors have determined upon a particular course of action they may delegate the performance of the act to other officers of the corporation, or to agents, such as the ministerial duty of conducting a sale of corporate property which has been authorized by the shareholders.[48]

Fund L. Assoc., 53 N. Y. App. Div. 245, 65 N. Y. Suppl. 826; Lyon v. Jerome, 26 Wend. 485, 37 Am. Dec. 271.

England.— In re County Palatine Loan, etc., Co., L. R. 9 Ch. 691, 43 L. J. Ch. 588, 31 L. T. Rep. N. S. 52, 22 Wkly. Rep. 697; In re London, etc., Bank, L. R. 3 Ch. 651, 37 L. J. Ch. 905, 19 L. T. Rep. N. S. 193, 16 Wkly. Rep. 1003; Ex p. Howard, L. R. 1 Ch. 561, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 742, 14 Wkly. Rep. 992; Rex v. Gravesend, 2 B. & C. 602, 4 D. & R. 117, 2 L. J. K. B. O. S. 94, 9 E. C. L. 264; Cook v. Ward, 2 C. P. D. 255, 36 L. T. Rep. N. S. 893, 25 Wkly. Rep. 593.

44. Burrill v. Nahant Bank, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 163, 35 Am. Dec. 395. See also Ex p. Conway, 4 Ark. 302; Whitney v. Union Trust Co., 65 N. Y. 576; Dana v. U. S. Bank, 5 Watts & S. (Pa.) 223; Burr v. McDonald, 3 Gratt. (Va.) 215.

45. Gillis v. Bailey, 21 N. H. 149.

46. Pike v. Bangor, etc., R. Co., 68 Me. 445; Silver Hook Road v. Greene, 12 R. I. 164.

Cases are found which ignore or attempt to evade this principle, such as Hays v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 38 Pa. St. 81; Rutland, etc., R. Co. v. Thrall, 35 Vt. 536; In re County Palatine Loan, etc., Co., L. R. 9 Ch. 691, 43 L. J. Ch. 588, 31 L. T. Rep. N. S. 52, 22 Wkly. Rep. 697; In re London, etc., Bank, L. R. 3 Ch. 651, 37 L. J. Ch. 905, 19 L. T. Rep. N. S. 193, 16 Wkly. Rep. 1003; Ex p. Howard, L. R. 1 Ch. 561, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 742, 14 Wkly. Rep. 992; Cook v. Ward, 2 C. P. D. 255, 36 L. T. Rep. N. S. 893, 25 Wkly. Rep. 593.

The power to delegate the power of making assessments is often conferred by statute, as in England under the Companies Act of 1862 (In re Taurine Co., 25 Ch. D. 118, 53 L. J. Ch. 271, 49 L. T. Rep. N. S. 514, 32 Wkly. Rep. 129), and under the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 8 & 9 Vict. c. 16 (see Totterdell v. Fareham Blue Brick, etc., Co., L. R. 1 C. P. 674, 12 Jur. N. S. 901, 35 L. J. C. P. 278, 14 Wkly. Rep. 919; D'Arcy v. Tamar, etc., R. Co., L. R. 2 Exch. 158, 4 H. & C. 463, 21 Jur. N. S. 548, 36 L. J. Exch. 37, 14 Wkly. Rep. 968), and where the power of delegation exists its exercise will under particular circumstances be presumed (In re Barned's Banking Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 105, 37 L. J. Ch. 81, 17 L. T. Rep. N. S. 269, 16 Wkly. Rep. 193; Totterdell v. Fareham Blue Brick, etc., Co., L. R. 1 C. P. 674, 12 Jur. N. S. 901, 35 L. J. C. P. 278, 14 Wkly. Rep. 919; In re Tavistock Ironworks Co., L. R. 4 Eq. 233, 36 L. J. Ch. 616, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 824, 15 Wkly. Rep. 1007; Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 156, 329, 338).

47. Stevens v. Hill, 29 Me. 133; Folger v. Chase, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 63; Northampton Bank v. Pepoon, 11 Mass. 288; Spear v. Ladd, 11 Mass. 94; Ridgway v. Farmers' Bank, 12 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 256, 14 Am. Dec. 681; Fleckner v. U. S. Bank, 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 338, 5 L. ed. 631.

48. Patterson v. Portland Smelting Works, 35 Oreg. 96, 56 Pac. 407.

b. May Appoint Subordinate Agents to Perform Ministerial Acts. Directors may of course appoint subordinate agents and clothe them with power to perform ministerial acts so as to bind the corporation.[49] They may constitute one of their own number an agent of the corporation for the transaction of a particular piece of business, or for the performance of a particular ministerial act, so as to bind the corporation by the act of such agent done within the scope of the authority thus conferred upon him.[50]

5. May Exercise What Powers Through an Executive Committee — a. In General. It must be concluded from the foregoing that the directors of a corporation can vest the performance of merely ministerial duties in a committee of their own members, usually called the executive committee.[51] The executive committee of the directors of a boom company may, however, exercise the powers of the directors in fixing the tolls to be exacted from owners of logs for driving them down a river, that being a matter of ordinary business, like the price to be asked for any commodity or service which a corporation may have for sale.[52] The executive committee of a corporation, which is authorized by the board of directors to "make the necessary arrangements" for securing the transfer of a certain patent right, may bind the corporation by a contract for such transfer, without further action by the board.[53] A committee empowered by the directors of a corporation to negotiate for purchasers and to sell an issue of bonds have power to employ a broker for such sale; but they cannot in the absence of special authority authorize a broker to secure a purchaser at less than par.[54] On the other hand the general rule being that the directors cannot delegate their discretionary powers to an executive committee of their members,[55] it seems plain that such a committee may not mortgage the land of the company to raise money to pay current expenses.[56] In like manner a duty which is imposed by statute upon the president and directors such as, in the case of a railroad company, the duty of locating the line of the railroad, cannot be delegated to a committee of their number.[57] The power of an

Whether bank directors may delegate the power to make discounts see Percy v. Millaudon, 3 La. 568, 3 Mart. N. S. (La.) 68. See also Bank Com'rs v. Buffalo Bank, 6 Paige (N. Y.) 497; Manderson v. Commercial Bank, 28 Pa. St. 379.

49. See supra, IX, D, 4, a; Branch Bank v. Collins, 7 Ala. 95.

50. Merrick v. Reynolds Engine, etc., Co., 101 Mass. 381.

51. Berks, etc., Turnpike Road v. Myers, 6 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 12, 9 Am. Dec. 402. But a decision to the effect that an executive committee of a railroad company had the power to grant to another railroad company a right to a joint use of its bridge across an interstate river for a period of nine hundred and ninety-nine years (Union Pac. R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 51 Fed. 309, 2 C. C. A. 174) seems to be an untenable and extravagant application of this doctrine.

Statutes, such as the New York Banking Law of 1838, authorize banking associations to divide their business into several departments in charge of separate committees of directors (3 Thompson Corp. § 3952, note 2; Leavitt v. Blatchford, 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; Palmer v. Yates, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 137. But see Leavitt v. Palmer, 3 N. Y. 19, 51 Am. Dec. 333), but banking corporations lie outside of the scope of this article.

52. Black River Imp. Co. v. Holway, 85 Wis. 344, 55 N. W. 418.

53. Andres v. Fry, 113 Cal. 124, 45 Pac. 534.

54. East Cleveland R. Co. v. Everett, 15 Ohio Cir. Ct. 181, 8 Ohio Cir. Dec. 210.

55. Tempel v. Dodge, 89 Tex. 69, 32 S. W. 514 [rehearing denied in 33 S. W. 222].

56. The superior court of Cincinnati have held that a provision of the constitution of a corporation for the appointment of an executive committee of the board of directors, to have charge of the management and business affairs of the company, with power to make investments and generally to discharge the duties of the board, but not to incur debts except for current expenses unless especially authorized, does not empower such committee to mortgage the realty of the company to pay current expenses. Ohio Valley Nat. Bank v. Walton Architectural Iron Co., 11 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 904, 30 Cinc. L. Bul. 382.

57. Weidenfeld v. Sugar Run R. Co., 48 Fed. 615.

Presumption as to power of directors.— There is a decision to the effect that the power of the directors of a corporation, in the particular case a turnpike company, to enter into a contract, will not be presumed, but that it must appear that the corporation had conferred upon them such power of delegation (Tippets v. Walker, 4 Mass. 595); but this case cannot be regarded as stating a general principle of law.

Power of committee to allot shares.— An executive committee of a board of directors to make contracts binding upon the corporation would seem to depend upon two considerations: (1) The nature of the contract, whether it is a contract of such a nature that the board of directors could delegate the power to make it; (2) whether they have delegated such power to the executive committee.[58]

b. Power of Committee of Directors With Respect to Litigation. A committee consisting of a president, secretary, and treasurer, duly authorized to collect all outstanding amounts due the corporation, may institute a suit for this purpose in the name of the corporation, without further authority from the board of directors.[59]

c. Quorum of Such Committee, Which Is Necessary to Validate Action. It is not clear that there is any settled rule of law as to whether all of the committee of directors in whose hands a particular matter has been placed must join in order to give valid action with reference to it[60] or whether a majority may decide and act, provided that all meet and consult.[61] The solution of the question would seem to depend somewhat upon the nature of the act. If it is purely ministerial, executive committee of directors cannot, at least without the authorization or ratification of the whole board, allot the shares of the company so as to admit to the rights of a shareholder therein one who was not a purchaser in good faith and for full value. Ryder v. Bushwick R. Co., 134 N. Y. 83, 31 N. E. 251, 45 N. Y. St. 388.

58. It has been held that a contract within the powers of a corporation, signed and attested by the proper officers, approved by the executive committee vested ad interim with all the powers of the board, under authority of a delegation of such powers from the directors, to make which they were empowered by by-laws authorized by the charter and approved by two thirds of all the shareholders being all present at a regular meeting, is fully authorized, duly executed, and binding. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 47 Fed. 15. It has been held that a power to manage ad interim and "to do all the acts necessary for the prosperity of the society in the intervals of the meeting of the board" does not empower such a committee of the trustees of an agricultural society to purchase real estate. Tracy v. Guthrie County Agricultural Soc., 47 Iowa 27.

Misleading analogies.— The analogy of the contracting powers of New England town committees should be dismissed as misleading. For cases showing those powers see Simonds v. Heard, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 120, 34 Am. Dec. 41. And see Damon v. Granby, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 345. But see Hayward v. Pilgrim Soc., 21 Pick. (Mass.) 270; Kupfer v. South Parish, 12 Mass. 185. The same may be said of the analogy drawn from the powers of building committees of church societies who are selected from the members and not necessarily from the board of trustees, as to which see Damon v. Granby, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 345; Sawyer v. Methodist Episcopal Soc., 18 Vt. 405.

Banking corporations.— That the president and cashier of a bank and the "financial committee" of its board of directors have no power to mortgage its real estate see Leggett v. New Jersey Mfg., etc., Co., 1 N. J. Eq. 541, 23 Am. Dec. 728. A decision of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts, voiced by the eminent Chief Justice Shaw, to the effect that the directors of a banking corporation are the corporation and do not exercise powers conferred by delegation of the shareholders, but powers derived from the law, and that they can consequently delegate to a committee of themselves the power to mortgage the real estate of the corporation to secure its debts (Burrill v. Nahant Bank, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 163, 35 Am. Dec. 395) is anomalous and untenable. That if the directors have the power thus to delegate to a committee of their number the power to convey real estate of the corporation, this delegation will carry with it the power to execute a suitable instrument of conveyance, and to affix the corporate seal thereto. Burrill v. Nahant Bank, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 163, 35 Am. Dec. 395. The reason is that a delegation of the power to do a thing necessarily delegates the power to employ the means by which that thing is to be done. See for example Merchants' Bank v. Central Bank, 1 Ga. 418, 44 Am. Dec. 665. The execution of the necessary written instruments to effectuate the powers thus possessed by the committee of directors being a mere ministerial act, the performance of the act may without doubt be delegated by the committee to an attorney in fact or subagent. E. g., to indorse certain negotiable paper. Sheridan Electric Light Co. v. Chatham Nat. Bank, 52 Hun (N. Y.) 575, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 529, 24 N. Y. St. 622.

Articles of incorporation under which such a committee had no power to purchase real estate see Tracy v. Guthrie County Agricultural Soc., 47 Iowa 27.

59. St. Louis Domicile, etc., Assoc. v. Augustin, 2 Mo. App. 123.

Their authority to submit a controversy to the decision of referees was conclusively presumed in Fryeburg Canal v. Frye, 5 Me. 38.

Standing committee to act as arbitrators of disputes between the members, award valid, although rendered orally. Murdock v. Blesdell, 106 Mass. 370.

60. That all must join see Corn Exch. Bank v. Cumberland Coal Co., 1 Bosw. (N. Y.) 436.

61. Leonard v. Darlington, 6 Cal. 123.

a mere business detail, then practical convenience and general usage unite in supporting the conclusion that a majority may act and bind the corporation,[62] although clearly no valid act can be done by a minority.[63]

d. Ultra Vires Acts of Committee Made Good by Ratification or Estoppel. Ultra vires acts of committees of corporations may be made good by ratification or estoppel as in other cases.[64]

e. Corporation Bound by Acts of Such Committee Within Their Apparent Authority. As in case of other agents, a secret or unknown limitation upon the authority of a committee of the directors of the corporation, imposed by the shareholders, will not control an apparent authority given by the board of directors, within the scope of their general authority.[65]

f. Personal Liability of Members of Such Committees. Members of the executive committee of corporations are personally liable, on the footing of directors and trustees, for losses happening through their mismanagement.[66]

g. Power of Executive Committee to Confer Permanent and Supreme Control Upon Single Officer. Such an executive committee cannot confer permanent and supreme control of the corporation upon a single officer.[67]

E. Mode of Action of Directors — 1. Directors Must Act Together as a Board — a. In General. We may settle down with confidence upon this principle, that in all matters involving the exercise of what might be termed a legislative or judicial discretion, and which the directors cannot therefore delegate to others, as elsewhere shown,[68] they can bind the corporation only by acting together as a board.[69] A majority of them cannot undertake to act in their individual names

62. State v. Jersey City, 27 N. J. L. 493. And see Junkins v. Doughty Falls Union School Dist., 39 Me. 220; Union Bridge Co. v. Troy, etc., R. Co., 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 240.

63. McNeil v. Boston Chamber of Commerce, 154 Mass. 277, 28 N. E. 245, 13 L. R. A. 559.

64. That this ratification may be made by the shareholders without formal action of the directors see Union Pac. R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 163 U. S. 564, 16 S. Ct. 1173, 41 L. ed. 265 [affirming 51 Fed. 309, 2 C. C. A. 174 (affirming 47 Fed. 15)]. Status of government directors of Union Pacific R. Co. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 163 U. S. 564, 16 S. Ct. 1173, 41 L. ed. 265. See also infra, XV, B, 7, a, (I) et seq.

When this ratification is predicated upon acquiescence in what has been done by such a committee, the ratifying body must as in other cases have had knowledge of the essential facts. McNeil v. Boston Chamber of Commerce, 154 Mass. 277, 28 N. E. 245, 13 L. R. A. 559.

When a contract of an executive committee may be repudiated by the corporation upon discovering that the officers who negotiated it had a secret interest in it notwithstanding the lapse of a long time. Wardell v. Union Pac. R. Co., 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,164, 4 Dill. 330. That the corporation cannot disaffirm the unauthorized acts of such a committee and at the same time keep the benefit it has derived from it see Sheridan Electric Light Co. v. Chatham Nat. Bank, 52 Hun (N. Y.) 575, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 529, 24 N. Y. St. 622.

That a ratification by the corporation of the acts of such a committee is equivalent to a precedent authorization and cures defects in the original appointment of the committee see Madison Ave. Baptist Church v. Oliver St. Baptist Church, 2 Alb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 254, 32 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 335.

65. McNeil v. Boston Chamber of Commerce, 154 Mass. 277, 28 N. E. 245, 13 L. R. A. 559.

66. Williams v. McKay, 46 N. J. Eq. 25, 18 Atl. 824.

67. See in confirmation and illustration of this proposition Queen v. Second Ave. R. Co., 35 N. Y. Super. Ct. 154, 44 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 281. See also Auburn Academy v. Strong, 1 Hopk. (N. Y.) 278; Flagstaff Silver Min. Co. v. Patrick, 2 Utah 304.

68. See supra, IX, D, 1.

69. Indiana.— Junction R. Co. v. Reeve, 15 Ind. 236.

Iowa.— Herrington v. Liston Dist. Tp., 47 Iowa 11.

Kansas.— Mincer v. Reno County School Dist. No. 31, 27 Kan. 253; Aikman v. Butler County School Dist. No. 16, 27 Kan. 129; Anderson County Com'rs v. Paola, etc., R. Co., 20 Kan. 534; Paola, etc., R. Co. v. Anderson County Com'rs, 16 Kan. 302.

New Hampshire.— Edgerly v. Emerson, 23 N. H. 555, 55 Am. Dec. 207. It has been held competent evidence, that is, sufficient presumptive proof, for a stranger, of the concurrence of a quorum of a board of directors of a corporation, to show that they assented separately. Tenney v. East Warren Lumber Co., 43 N. H. 343.

New Jersey.— Hightstown First Nat. Bank v. Christopher, 40 N. J. L. 435, 29 Am. Rep. 262; Schumm v. Seymour, 24 N. J. Eq. 143.

New York.— Keeler v. Frost, 22 Barb. 400.

Ohio.— McCortle v. Bates, 29 Ohio St. 419, 23 Am. Rep. 758.

for the board itself, and no act can be done affecting the ownership of property, except by a resolution of the board when regularly constituted and sitting in consultation.[70]

b. Individual Directors Have No Authority as Such — (I) In General. The board of directors to whom the authority to bind the corporation is committed is not the individual directors scattered here and there, whose assent to a given act may be collected by a diligent canvasser, but it is the board sitting and consulting together as a body.[71] Individual directors, or any number of them less than a quorum, have no authority as directors to bind the corporation.[72] And this is equally the rule, although the director who assumes to do so may own a majority of the shares.[73]

(II) But May Be Agents by Special Appointment. But this is entirely compatible with the conclusion that a single director may, with the knowledge of the board of directors, and independently of his duties as director, act as agent of the corporation, so that it will be bound by his acts in the course of the business conducted by him.[74]

c. Separate Assent of Majority Not Binding. The separate assent of a majority of the board, obtained when they are not regularly convened and acting Pennsylvania.— Stoystown, etc., Turnpike Road Co. v. Craver, 45 Pa. St. 386.

England.— In re Marseilles Extension R. Co., L. R. 7 Ch. 161, 41 L. J. Ch. 345, 25 L. T. Rep. N. S. 858, 20 Wkly. Rep. 254.

70. Ross v. Crockett, 14 La. Ann. 811; Constant v. St. Albans Church, 4 Daly (N. Y.) 305; Cammeyer v. United German Lutheran Churches, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 186. It has been held that a deed signed by every member of a board of directors, but not in pursuance of any resolution of the signers as a board, will not pass the legal title of the corporation. Baldwin v. Canfield, 26 Minn. 43, 1 N. W. 261. Nor can an act, invalid as against the corporation, be ratified "by individual consent of a majority of the board." Ft. Scott First Nat. Bank v. Drake, 35 Kan. 564, 11 Pac. 445, 57 Am. Rep. 193.

71. Georgia.— Spinks v. Athens Sav. Bank, 108 Ga. 376, 33 S. E. 1003.

Indiana.— Allemong v. Simmons, 124 Ind. 199, 23 N. E. 768.

Missouri.— Barcus v. Hannibal, etc., Plank-road Co., 26 Mo. 102.

New York.— Filon v. Miller Brewing Co., 15 N. Y. Suppl. 57, 38 N. Y. St. 602.

Pennsylvania.— Gaynor v. Williamsport, etc., R. Co., 189 Pa. St. 5, 41 Atl. 978, 43 Wkly. Notes Cas. 321.

Vermont.—Waite v. Windham County Min. Co., 36 Vt. 18. Compare Woodbury Granite Co. v. Mulliken, 66 Vt. 465, 30 Atl. 28.

Washington.— Cascade F. & M. Ins. Co. v. Journal Pub. Co., 1 Wash. 452, 25 Pac. 331.

West Virginia.— Limer v. Traders Co., 44 W. Va. 175, 28 S. E. 730.

Wisconsin.— Milwaukee Brick, etc., Co. v. Schoknecbt, 108 Wis. 457, 84 N. W. 838.

United States.— Addison v. Pacific Coast Milling Co., 79 Fed. 459.

72. California.— Healdsburg Bank v. Bailhache, 65 Cal. 327, 4 Pac. 106.

Connecticut.— Hartford Bank v. Hart, 3 Day 491, 3 Am. Dec. 274.

Massachusetts.— Kupfer v. Augusta South Parish, 12 Mass. 185.

Michigan.— Lockwood v. Thunder Day River Boom Co., 42 Mich. 536, 4 N. W. 292; Doyle v. Mizmer, 42 Mich. 332, 3 N. W. 968.

Minnesota.— Browning v. Hinkle, 48 Minn. 544, 51 N. W. 605, 31 Am. St. Rep. 691.

Mississippi.— Shackleford v. New Orleans, etc., R. Co., 37 Miss. 202; Harper v. Calhoun, 7 How. 203.

New York.— National Bank v. Norton, 1 Hill 572.

Tennessee.— Deaderick v. Wilson, 8 Baxt. 108.

Wisconsin.— Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. James, 22 Wis. 194.

Illustrations.— Thus a trustee of an insurance company is not, unless specially charged by the board of trustees with the duty of communicating to a policy-holder its decision as to whether the company proposes to pay a loss, authorized to bind the company by his declaration in that regard. Cascade F. & M. Ins. Co. v. Journal Pub. Co., 1 Wash. 452, 25 Pac. 331. And a single director cannot bind the corporation by his declarations, or put a construction on its contracts. Hartford Bridge Co. v. Granger, 4 Conn. 142.

73. Allemong v. Simmons, 124 Ind. 199, 23 N. E. 768.

As to the power of individual shareholders to bind the corporation by their acts see Gordon v. Swan, 43 Cal. 564; Donoghue v. Indiana, etc., R. Co., 87 Mich. 13, 49 N. W. 512; American Preservers' Trust v. Taylor Mfg. Co., 46 Fed. 152; Fitzgerald v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 45 Fed. 812. That the declarations of individual shareholders do not bind the corporation see Mitchell v. Rome R. Co., 17 Ga. 574; Canal Bank v. Holland, 5 La. Ann. 363.

74. National Security Bank v. Cushman, 121 Mass. 490; Holmes v. Kansas City Bd. of Trade, 81 Mo. 137; Goodwin v. Union Screw Co., 34 N. H. 378.

together as a board, is not binding on the corporation, in the absence of a subsequent ratification; since when they are not consulting as a board they are regarded as acting privately and unofficially.[75]

2. DIRECTORS CANNOT VOTE BY PROXY. A director cannot delegate the performance of his discretionary duties, which imply trust and confidence, to a proxy, but he must attend the meetings of the board and act in person. For stronger reasons a proxy to vote at a shareholders' meeting will confer no authority to vote at a directors' meeting.[76]

3. QUORUM OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS — a. Majority of All Directors Constitutes Quorum. The rule of the common law is that in the execution of a power or trust which is private in its nature, such as one created by a deed or a will, all the persons upon whom the power or trust is conferred must join in executing it; but in the case of the execution of a power or trust which is public in its nature then, in order to prevent injury to the public, one may act without the other; for instance, if the other be deaf, interested, or absent.[77] The power or trust committed to the directors or trustees of corporations, whether public or private, is deemed to be of a public nature, within the meaning of this rule. The rule of the common law is that whereas, in the case of an indefinite body, such as a municipal corporation, a majority of those who assemble for a given purpose, e. g., at a corporate election, is competent to act so as to bind the whole,[78] yet, in case of a body composed of a definite number of persons, such as the directorate of a corporation, a majority of all is necessary to constitute a quorum that can act so as to bind the corporation, in the absence of a different rule prescribed by charter, statute, by-law, or other governing instrument.[79]

75. Butler v. Cornwall Iron Co., 22 Conn. 335; Hamlin v. Union Brass Co., 68 N. H. 292, 44 Atl. 385; Woodbury Granite Co. v. Mulliken, 66 Vt. 465, 30 Atl. 28; D'Arcy v. Tamar, etc., R. Co., L. R. 2 Exch. 158, 4 H. & C. 463, 21 Jur. N. S. 548, 36 L. J. Exch. 37, 14 Wkly. Rep. 968. See also Bosanquet v. Shortridge, 4 Exch. 699, 14 Jur. 71, 19 L. J. Exch. 221. Compare Monroe Mercantile Co. v. Arnold, 108 Ga. 449, 34 S. E. 176; Peirce v. Morse-Oliver Bldg. Co., 94 Me. 406, 47 Atl. 914; In re County L. Assur. Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 288, 39 L. J. Ch. 471, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 537, 18 Wkly. Rep. 390; In re Bonelli's Tel. Co., L. R. 12 Eq. 246, 40 L. J. Ch. 567, 25 L. T. Rep. N. S. 526, 19 Wkly. Rep. 1022. So the individual declarations of four of the five directors were held not to estop the corporation. Cannon River Manufacturers' Assoc. v. Rogers, 51 Minn. 388, 53 N. W. 759.

76. Craig Medicine Co. v. Merchants' Bank, 59 Hun (N. Y.) 561, 14 N. Y. Suppl. 16, 36 N. Y. St. 923.

77. Downing v. Rugar, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 178, 34 Am. Dec. 223; In re Chad's Ford Turnpike Road, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 481, 485 (opinion by Tilghman, C. J.); Coke Litt. 181*b*.

78. Ex p. Willcocks, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 402, 17 Am. Dec. 525; Rex v. Varlo, Cowp. 248, 5 Dane Abr. 150.

79. Maine.— Cram v. Bangor House Proprietary, 12 Me. 354.

Massachusetts.— Atty.-Gen. v. Abbott, 154 Mass. 323, 28 N. E. 346, 13 L. R. A. 251.

Missouri.— St. Louis Colonization Assoc. v. Hennessy, 11 Mo. App. 555. Compare Calumet Paper Co. v. Haskell Show Printing Co., 144 Mo. 331, 45 S. W. 1115, 66 Am. St. Rep. 425 [overruling Eppright v. Nickerson, 78 Mo. 482, and citing Price v. Grand Rapids, etc., R. Co., 13 Ind. 58]; Hax v. R. T. Davis Mill Co., 39 Mo. App. 453.

New Hampshire.— Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203. Compare Edgerly v. Emerson, 23 N. H. 555, 55 Am. Dec. 207, assessment by majority of board valid.

New Jersey.— Wells v. Rahway White Rubber Co., 19 N. J. Eq. 402.

Virginia.— Booker v. Young, 12 Gratt. 303. Compare Broughton v. Jones, 120 Mich. 462, 79 N. W. 691; Ex p. Willcocks, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 402, 17 Am. Dec. 525 [followed in People v. Walker, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 304, 2 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 421].

That a majority constitutes a quorum in the absence of a statute or valid regulation providing otherwise see Cram v. Bangor House Proprietary, 12 Me. 354; St. Louis Colonization Assoc. v. Hennessy, 11 Mo. App. 555; Edgerly v. Emerson, 23 N. H. 555, 55 Am. Dec. 207. Therefore a special meeting of the directors of a bank having five directors, at which there are present but two directors and another person whose resignation as director has been accepted at a previous regular meeting of the board, was without authority to act as the board of directors. Wickersham v. Crittenden, 93 Cal. 17, 28 Pac. 788. A statute which declares that at all regular meetings of the directors a majority of those present shall be competent to decide on all business does not authorize a minority to act. A majority of all is necessary to constitute a regular meeting. Ex p. Willcocks, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 402, 17 Am. Dec. 525.

By statute in Pennsylvania a majority of

b. This Means a Quorum of Qualified Directors. This means a quorum of directors who are qualified to act upon the business which comes before the meeting. If one director, whose presence is necessary to constitute the quorum, or whose vote is necessary to constitute a majority of the quorum upon a given resolution, is disqualified by reason of his personal interest therein, then the act done is invalid.[80]

c. Acts at Board Meeting Without Quorum Voidable Unless Ratified, Etc. It follows that resolutions taken at a meeting of directors at which a legal quorum is not present are voidable at the election of the corporation, or of any one entitled to represent it, in the absence of a ratification or of circumstances of estoppel.[81] Even if it is admitted that the directors may bind the corporation where they act separately,[82] yet the consent of several members of a board of directors, acting the whole number of directors is necessary to constitute a quorum. A by-law which fixes the number of directors at six, and provides that three of them shall constitute a quorum, is hence invalid. Curry v. Claysville Cemetery Assoc., 5 Pa. Super. Ct. 289, 40 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 536.

Effect of change in number constituting quorum.— An amendment to a by-law of a corporation, merely changing the number necessary to constitute a quorum of the board of directors, does not alter another by-law requiring a vote of two thirds of the directors to remove or suspend an officer of the company. Stockton v. Harmon, 32 Fla. 312, 13 So. 833.

Where the exercise of corporate acts is vested in a select body, an act done by the persons composing that body, in a meeting of all the corporators, or in union with other like bodies, parts of the corporation, is not a valid corporate act. Cammeyer v. United German Lutheran Churches, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 186; Leonard v. Lent, 43 Wis. 83; Sun Prairie M. E. Church v. Sherman, 36 Wis. 404.

Majority of each integral part.— If a corporation consists of several definite integral parts, for example the two houses of the common council of a municipal corporation, there must be present a majority of each integral part, in order to constitute a quorum and to bind the whole. Ex p. Rogers, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 526 and note; In re St. Mary's Church, 7 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 517; Rex v. Devonshire, 1 B. & C. 609, 3 D. & R. 83, 25 Rev. Rep. 523, 8 E. C. L. 257; Rex v. Buller, 8 East 389; Rex v. Thornton, 4 East 294; Rex v. Morris, 4 East 17; Rex v. Miller, 6 T. R. 268, 3 Rev. Rep. 172; Rex v. Bellringer, 4 T. R. 810. Later American cases do not, however, adhere so strictly to the English rule. See Beck v. Hanscom, 29 N. H. 213; People v. Whiteside, 23 Wend. 9 [reversed in 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 634]; Ex p. Humphrey, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 612. In Christ Church v. Pope, 8 Gray (Mass.) 140, the vestry of a religious society was held entitled to transact business in the absence of both wardens, a majority of all their members being present, although it had been voted at several annual meetings that one warden and four vestrymen constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

Effect of interest of one director necessary to quorum.— Where the statute declares that a majority of the directors shall constitute a quorum, the passage of a resolution ratifying the payment of compensation to one of the directors for services outside his duty as a director was not invalidated by the fact that he was present when the vote was taken, although his presence was necessary to constitute the quorum, where the resolution was passed without his vote. Bassett v. Fairchild, (Cal. 1900) 61 Pac. 791 [affirmed in 132 Cal. 637, 64 Pac. 1082, citing San Diego, etc., R. Co. v. Pacific Beach Co., 112 Cal. 53, 44 Pac. 333, 33 L. R. A. 788; Wickersham v. Crittenden, 110 Cal. 332, 42 Pac. 893; Underhill v. Santa Barbara Land, etc., Co., 93 Cal. 300, 28 Pac. 1049; Buell v. Buckingham, 16 Iowa 284, 85 Am. Dec. 516; Foster v. Mullanphy Planing-Mill Co., 92 Mo. 79, 4 S. W. 260, and distinguishing Miner v. Belle Isle Ice Co., 93 Mich. 97, 53 N. W. 218, 17 L. R. A. 412].

This means a "visible quorum," that is to say, a quorum of the directors actually present, and not merely a quorum of those who vote. Mercantile Library Hall Co. v. Pittsburgh Library Assoc., 25 Pittsb. Leg. J. N. S. 345.

Quorum under peculiar articles of association where the shareholders were divided into classes. Hemans v. Hotchkiss Ordnance Co., [1899] 1 Ch. 115, 68 L. J. Ch. 99, 79 L. T. Rep. N. S. 681, 6 Manson 52, 47 Wkly. Rep. 276.

80. Curtin v. Salmon River Hydraulic Gold Min., etc., Co., 130 Cal. 345, 62 Pac. 552, 80 Am. St. Rep. 132 (mortgage on corporate property made to one who constituted one of the quorum); Wheelwright v. St. Louis, etc., Canal Transp. Co., 56 Fed. 164. Contrary to this there is a holding to the effect that where by force of statute two directors were ineligible by reason of not being shareholders, a resolution passed at a directors' meeting at which only two of the three remaining directors who were qualified were present was valid because authorized by a majority of those who were legal directors. Silsby v. Strong, 38 Oreg. 36, 62 Pac. 633.

81. Coryell v. New Hope Delaware Bridge Co., 9 N. J. Eq. 457; Ex p. Morrison, 1 De Gex 539, 11 Jur. 719, 16 L. J. Bankr. 11, 5 R. & Can. Cas. 224.

82. See infra, IX, F, 7.

separately, and not shown to constitute a quorum, will not constitute a valid acceptance of a proposal made to the company, so as to render it a complete contract and binding upon the party making the offer.[83] Nor can a contract made by the board be changed by less than a quorum of the board.[84]

d. Effect of Disqualification of Director Necessary to Make Up Quorum. On principle and authority, the fact that one of the directors whose presence is necessary to make up the quorum has become disqualified, but nevertheless participates in the business of the meeting, will not render the resolutions passed or acts done or authorized at the meeting invalid, unless the disqualification has been adjudged or declared, so as to exclude him from the directorate; since otherwise he is still a director de facto. For example he may be related to the member whose expulsion is under consideration, in case of a social club;[85] he may be an alien, and hence under the charter of a city disqualified for membership in its board of aldermen;[86] he may be a non-resident of the state in which the corporation was organized, and may have gone into such state, and removed there for only a brief period, to attend a meeting at which a resolution to mortgage the property of the company was passed;[87] or he may have ceased to be a holder of shares in a joint-stock corporation, thereby becoming disqualified for the office of director.[88] But the acts done by a quorum to the completion of which his presence was necessary will nevertheless be valid; and this is especially so where the rights of an innocent third person, e. g., a mortgagee of the corporation are concerned.[89]

e. Rule in Case of Unfilled Vacancies. It seems that if there be unfilled vacancies in the board, the quorum is a majority of the entire board, as it would be constituted if all the vacancies were filled, and not a majority of the board as it remains with the vacancies unfilled.[90]

f. Quorum Where Directorate Has Been Enlarged by Consolidation With Another Corporation. Where a consolidation between two corporations takes place by one of them absorbing the other,[91] the quorum of directors is the quorum required by the law of the dominant corporation.[92]

g. By-Law Fixing Quorum at Less Than Majority. Under a charter enacting that the powers of the corporation should be exercised by a board of twenty-three directors, it was held that a by-law established by the board of directors fixing the quorum of directors at five, or in the absence of the president at seven, was a good by-law, so as to make a pledge or assignment of the principal part of the assets of the corporation to a creditor by a quorum consisting of less than a majority of the board valid.[93]

h. Whether Ex-Officio Directors Form Part of Quorum. Persons who are members of the board of directors by virtue of holding some other office are directors, and directors de jure, and not mere ornaments or figure-heads; they are therefore to be counted in determining the number to make up a quorum.[94]

83. Junction R. Co. v. Reeve, 15 Ind. 236.

84. Tennessee, etc., R. Co. v. East Alabama R. Co., 73 Ala. 426.

85. Loubat v. Le Roy, 15 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 1.

86. Satterlee v. San Francisco, 23 Cal. 314.

87. San Antonio St. R. Co. v. Adams, 87 Tex. 125, 26 S. W. 1040 [reversing (Tex. Civ. App. 1894) 25 S. W. 639].

88. Kuser v. Wright, 52 N. J. Eq. 825, 31 Atl. 397.

89. Kuser v. Wright, 52 N. J. Eq. 825, 31 Atl. 397. But under a statute providing that "the directors shall not be less than three in number, if a board be constituted of three directors, and one of them ceases to be a director for any reason whatever, the two remaining cannot authorize a mortgage on property of the corporation, such as will give a priority over general creditors. The reason is not that there is not a quorum, but that there is not a lawfully constituted board from which a quorum can be made. Wright v. Trenton First Nat. Bank, 52 N. J. Eq. 392, 28 Atl. 719.

90. See in support of this Rex v. Devonshire, 1 B. & C. 609, 3 D. & R. 83, 25 Rev. Rep. 523, 8 E. C. L. 257.

91. See supra, III, E, 3.

92. Lane v. Brainerd, 30 Conn. 565.

93. Hoyt v. Thompson, 5 N. Y. 320, a doubtful holding.

94. Kent County Agricultural Soc. v. Houseman, 81 Mich. 609, 46 N. W. 15. Contra, that ex-officio directors are not necessarily a part of the quorum see Miller v. Chance, 3 Edw. (N. Y.) 399.

i. Majority of Assembled Quorum Can Act. When this quorum is lawfully assembled, a majority of its members may act, so as to bind the corporation, unless the charter, the governing statute, or other valid governing instrument prescribes a different rule.[95]

4. Number That Can Act in Merely Ministerial Matters. A less number of directors than a quorum of the board can act by delegation in matters which are merely ministerial.[96] In such a case, if the resolution making the delegation does not prescribe what shall be a quorum of the committee, it has been held that, although unanimity of all the members may not be necessary to the validity of their action, yet they must all be present at the meeting at which the action is taken, and that they have no power to appoint other members of the committee, either in addition to, or to fill a vacancy in, the committee.[97] According to American opinion the power delegated to the committee must be executed by a majority; since to permit it to be executed by less than a majority would be tantamount to a delegation of authority which the law does not permit.[98]

95. Connecticut.— Wadhams v. Litchfield, etc., Turnpike Co., 10 Conn. 416; New Haven Sav. Bank v. Davis, 8 Conn. 191.

Iowa.— Buell v. Buckingham, 16 Iowa 284, 85 Am. Dec. 516.

Maine.— Adams v. Hill, 16 Me. 215; Cram v. Bangor House Proprietary, 12 Me. 354; Trott v. Warren, 11 Me. 227; Pejepscot Proprietors v. Cushman, 2 Me. 94.

Massachusetts.— Sargent v. Webster, 13 Metc. 497, 46 Am. Dec. 743; Damon v. Granby, 2 Pick. 345; Kupfer v. Augusta South Parish, 12 Mass. 185.

Michigan.— Cahill v. Kalamazoo Mut. Ins. Co., 2 Dougl. 124, 43 Am. Dec. 457.

Missouri.— Foster v. Mullanphy Planing-Mill Co., 92 Mo. 79, 4 S. W. 260; Hax v. R. T. Davis Mill Co., 39 Mo. App. 453.

New Hampshire.— Keyser v. Sunapee Dist. No. 8, 35 N. H. 477; Edgerly v. Emerson, 23 N. H. 555, 55 Am. Dec. 207; Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203.

New Jersey.— Wells v. Rahway White Rubber Co., 19 N. J. Eq. 402.

New York.— In re Union Ins. Co., 22 Wend. 591.

Virginia.— Booker v. Young, 12 Gratt. 303.

England.— Atty.-Gen. v. Davy, 2 Atk. 212, West t. Hardw. 121, 26 Eng. Reprint 531; Blacket v. Blizard, 9 B. & C. 851, 8 L. J. K. B. O. S. 103, 4 M. & R. 641, 17 E. C. L. 377; Rex v. Whitaker, 9 B. & C. 648, 7 L. J. K. B. O. S. 332, 17 E. C. L. 291; Cortis v. Kent Water Works Co., 7 B. & C. 314, 5 L. J. M. C. O. S. 106, 14 E. C. L. 145; Rex v. Bower, 1 B. & C. 492, 2 D. & R. 761, 1 L. J. K. B. O. S. 174, 8 E. C. L. 209; Cook v. Loveland, 2 B. & P. 31, 5 Rev. Rep. 533; Grindley v. Barker, 1 B. & P. 229, 4 Rev. Rep. 787; Rex v. Monday, Cowp. 530; Withnell v. Gartham, 1 Esp. 322, 6 T. R. 388, 3 Rev. Rep. 218; Howbeach Coal Co. v. Teague, 5 H. & N. 151, 29 L. J. Exch. 137; Rex v. Miller, 6 T. R. 268, 3 Rev. Rep. 172; Rex v. Bellringer, 4 T. R. 810; Rex v. Beeston, 3 T. R. 592.

In English law it seems that where the governing instrument prescribes the minimum number of directors by which the business of the company shall be conducted, the language is mandatory, so that less than that minimum number cannot perform an act to which the concurrence of the directors is essential. In re Alma Spinning Co., 16 Ch. D. 681, 50 L. J. Ch. 167, 43 L. T. Rep. N. S. 620, 29 Wkly. Rep. 133, where the articles of a company provided that "the business of the company shall be conducted by not less than" a specific number of directors, and it was held that a forfeiture of shares declared by a less number was invalid. Compare Kirk v. Bell, 16 Q. B. 290, 71 E. C. L. 290; Thames-Haven Dock, etc., Co. v. Rose, 2 Dowl. N. S. 104, 4 M. & G. 552, 12 L. J. C. P. 90, 3 R. & Can. Cas. 177, 5 Scott N. R. 524, 43 E. C. L. 287. Sir Nathaniel Lindley states the English rule to be that "if the affairs of a company are intrusted to the management of not less than a fixed number of directors it is prima facie not bound by the acts of a fewer number." 1 Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 155 [citing Kirk v. Bell, 16 Q. B. 290, 71 E. C. L. 290; In re Marseilles Extension R. Co., L. R. 7 Ch. 161, 41 L. J. Ch. 345, 25 L. T. Rep. N. S. 858, 20 Wkly. Rep. 254; In re London, etc., Bank, L. R. 3 Ch. 651, 37 L. J. Ch. 905, 19 L. T. Rep. N. S. 193, 16 Wkly. Rep. 1003; Ex p. Howard, L. R. 1 Ch. 561, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 742, 14 Wkly. Rep. 992; Holt's Case, 22 Beav. 48; Moody v. London, etc., R. Co., 1 B. & S. 290, 31 L. J. Q. B. 54, 9 Wkly. Rep. 780, 101 E. C. L. 290; Card v. Garr, 1 C. B. N. S. 197, 26 L. J. C. P. 113, 87 E. C. L. 197; Matter of Royal British Bank, 3 De G. & J. 387, 5 Jur. N. S. 205, 28 L. J. Ch. 257, 7 Wkly. Rep. 217, 60 Eng. Ch. 301; Ridley v. Plymouth, etc., Grinding, etc., Co., 2 Exch. 711, 12 Jur. 542, 17 L. J. Exch. 252; Brown v. Andrew, 13 Jur. 938, 18 L. J. Q. B. 153].

96. See supra, IX, D, 4, a.

97. In re Liverpool Household Stores Assoc., 59 L. J. Ch. 616, 62 L. T. Rep. N. S. 873, 2 Meg. 217.

98. Howard v. Marine Industrial School, 78 Me. 230, 3 Atl. 657; Curtis v. Portland, 59 Me. 483; Portland Female Orphan Asylum v. Johnson, 43 Me. 180; Hanson v. Dexter, 36 Me. 516; Adams v. Hill, 16 Me. 215; Damon

5. Acts of Directorate Composed of Excessive Number. The action of the directorate of a corporate body composed of a greater number than that allowed by the charter is none the less valid and binding, if the shareholders do not complain, but acquiesce.[99]

6. Directors No Power to Exclude Some of Their Number. The shareholders have the right to have the business of the corporation controlled by the whole board of directors which they have lawfully elected; hence it is not competent for a majority of the board to exclude from its sittings a minority, or even a single member;[1] and we have seen that directors cannot remove each other.[2]

7. Presumption in Favor of Regular Action of Board. The general presumption of right-acting which attends public officers and public bodies extends to the action of boards of directors of private corporations, so that the regularity of the action of such bodies is presumed until the contrary is made to appear. This principle carries with it the presumption, in the absence of proof to the contrary, that a particular act is the act of a majority of the board;[3] that a particular director who was present at the time when a resolution was adopted assented to it;[4] that the meeting of the board at which a given resolution was passed was regularly convened;[5] that due notice of the meeting at which the action was taken was given, for example, when a quorum was present; that a proper notice was sent to all,[6] especially where the minutes of the corporation recited that notice was given, but did not state in what manner it was given;[7] that an officer of a corporation was chosen by ballot, where that mode of election was required, and the record did not specify by what mode he was chosen;[8] that, where unanimity was required to make an order, which was entered of record, such unanimity existed, although the fact did not appear of record;[9] that where the charter required that two thirds should be assembled for the transaction of business, two thirds did assemble, the record being silent on the subject, and it not having been the custom to state in the record the number that did assemble;[10] that, in the silence of the record, the meeting was held at the place prescribed by the by-laws;[11] that the first meeting of a corporation had been regularly called, the question arising after a lapse of twenty years, where it did not appear how it was called;[12] and that the clerk of a corporation who was present when a vote approving his election was passed, and who himself recorded the vote, accepted the office.[13]

8. Acts Done by Less Than Quorum Made Good by Ratification. Acts done by less than a quorum of the directors may be made good by a ratification by the quorum,[14] by estoppel after a performance,[15] or by an affirmation by the corpo-

v. Granby, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 345; Kupfer v. Augusta South Parish, 12 Mass. 185.

99. Hax v. R. F. Davis Mill Co., 39 Mo. App. 453.

1. State v. Ohio, etc., R. Co., 6 Ohio Cir. Ct. 412.

2. See supra, IX, A, 10, b.

3. Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203, per Parker, C. J.

4. Mowrey v. Indianapolis, etc., R. Co., 17 Fed. Cas. No. 9,891, 4 Biss. 78, although if it be constituent, such as a proposition for a consolidation with another corporation which requires the assent of the shareholders, the assent of the particular director, as a director, does not estop him from dissenting as a shareholder.

5. Chase v. Tuttle, 55 Conn. 455, 12 Atl. 874, 3 Am. St. Rep. 64; Sargent v. Webster, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 497, 46 Am. Dec. 743; Chouteau Ins. Co. v. Holmes, 68 Mo. 601, 30 Am. Rep. 807.

6. Wells v. Rodgers, 60 Mich. 525, 27 N. W. 671.

7. Granger v. Original Empire Mill, etc., Co., 59 Cal. 678. Compare Harding v. Vandewater, 40 Cal. 77.

8. Blanchard v. Dow, 32 Me. 557.

9. Lexington v. Headley, 5 Bush (Ky.) 508.

10. Com. v. Woelper, 3 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 29, 8 Am. Dec. 628.

11. McDaniels v. Flower Brook Mfg. Co., 22 Vt. 274.

12. Society of Middlesex Husbandmen, etc., Soc. v. Davis, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 133.

13. Delano v. Smith Charities, 138 Mass. 63.

14. Hanson v. Dexter, 36 Me. 516; Atlantic Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Sanders, 36 N. H. 252. Contra, Price v. Grand Rapids, etc., R. Co., 13 Ind. 58.

15. Samuel v. Holladay, 21 Fed. Cas. No. 12,288, Woolw. 400, opinion by Mr. Justice Miller.

ration, as by bringing an action to enforce it.[16] But as a body which has no power to act has no power to ratify, if action is taken at a quorum, one of whose members is a party in interest, it is not ratified at a subsequent meeting, where the same quorum is present, by the passage of a mere motion approving the minutes.[17]

9. POWER OF QUORUM TO CONTRACT WITH THEIR OWN MEMBERS. While it is clear that a member of a corporation is not incapacitated by the circumstance of being a member from entering into valid contracts with the corporate body,[18] yet where a bare quorum is assembled, no contract can be made with a member of that quorum, because such a contract requires his concurrence, and he cannot be on both sides of the same contract. As to that contract he is not a director, but is a stranger; and when he steps out of the bare quorum and assumes the attitude of a stranger the quorum is broken.[19] Where on the other hand a majority of the directors vote in favor of a resolution in which one member of the board has a personal interest, the resolution is not invalid by reason of that personal interest.[20]

10. PLACE OF PRESIDENT IN QUORUM. As already seen, persons who are members of the directorate ex officio, that is to say, by virtue of holding some other office in the corporation, are directors de jure, and are to be counted as such in making up the quorum.[21] This principle applies where the president is under the charter entitled to all the powers and privileges of a director.[22] But while this is true, it is not necessary that the president of the corporation should be present at a meeting of the board of directors at which a given resolution is passed, in order for it to be valid, and this, although the board is designated as "the president and directors."[23]

11. WHEN DIRECTORS TAKE SENSE OF SHAREHOLDERS. Many constituent acts, such as increasing or reducing the capital stock, essentially changing the purposes for which the corporation has been formed, putting an end to its existence as a corporation, or, in the case of a railroad company, leasing its road and properties;[24] or aliening the property necessary to its continued existence as a corporation,[25] require the assent of the shareholders, lawfully expressed in a corporate meeting. But this is not so where the trustees, and not the members, are the body which has been incorporated, in which latter case action taken at a meeting of the members will not be regarded as a corporate act.[26]

12. MAJORITY CAN ACT ONLY AT MEETING DULY ASSEMBLED. This majority which constitutes the quorum can act only at a meeting regularly assembled; that is to

16. Sutton First Parish v. Cole, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 232.

17. R. T. Davis Mill Co. v. Bennett, 39 Mo. App. 460.

18. Gilmore v. Pope, 5 Mass. 491; Worcester Turnpike Corp. v. Willard, 5 Mass. 80, 4 Am. Dec. 39; Gordon v. Preston, 1 Watts (Pa.) 385, 26 Am. Dec. 75 (per Gibson, C. J.); Berks, etc., Turnpike Road v. Myers, 6 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 12, 9 Am. Dec. 402; Angell & A. Corp. § 233; 1 Kyd Corp. 180.

19. See upon this subject Miner v. Belle Isle Ice Co., 93 Mich. 97, 53 N. W. 218, 17 L. R. A. 412; Van Hook v. Somerville Mfg. Co., 5 N. J. Eq. 137.

For a case not within the rule, where six disinterested directors out of a board of eleven, voted for a resolution preferring four members of the board as creditors of the corporation see Foster v. Mullanphy Planing-Mill Co., 92 Mo. 79, 4 S. W. 260. For another case where the by-laws provided that the president and two directors should constitute a quorum, and a sale to the president of the property of the corporation at a meeting at which only the president and two directors were present was held valid, see Buell v. Buckingham, 16 Iowa 284, 85 Am. Dec. 516. These last decisions rest upon doubtful grounds, since incapacitated directors ought not to be counted in making up a quorum quoad a particular transaction, any more than a mere stranger ought to be. See supra, IX, E, 3, b.

20. Porter v. Lassen County Land, etc., Co., 127 Cal. 261, 59 Pac. 563.

21. See supra, IX, E, 3, h.

22. State Bank v. Ruff, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 448; Glens Falls Paper Co. v. White, 18 Hun (N. Y.) 214.

23. Sargent v. Webster, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 497, 46 Am. Dec. 743.

24. Martin v. Continental Pass. R. Co., 14 Phila. (Pa.) 10, 37 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 132.

25. See supra, IX, C, 13, a et seq.

26. It was so held, although a majority of the trustees were present and concurred. Cammeyer v. United German Lutheran Churches, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 186.

say, if it is a stated meeting, or if it is a special meeting, upon due notice.[27] In general the mere accidental assembling of a majority of persons who are directors of a corporation does not constitute a legal board;[28] and the acts of directors at a meeting irregularly called, as where notice of the meeting is not given to some of the directors, is not binding upon the corporation unless ratified.[29] A majority must have been duly assembled, and then a majority of those who are assembled can act for the whole.[30]

13. When Record Need Not Affirmatively Show Notice to All Members. On a principle already considered[31] it has been held that where a quorum are present at a meeting of directors the presumption is that the proper notice was sent to all.[32]

F. Meetings of Directors — 1. Principles Governing This Subject. The principles governing the meetings of directors are in general the same as those governing corporate meetings generally, which have already been specially considered.[33] The governing principle is that no valid corporate action can be taken by the board of directors at a special meeting unless it has been duly assembled, in the absence of unanimous consent, or of a subsequent ratification.[34] If therefore a majority of the directors meet at an unusual time and place without notifying all the members of the board, the acts which take place at the meeting will be void.[35] The rule yields to the further principle that where there is a custom of the directors to hold meetings for the transaction of business at a certain time and place, special notice of such meetings is not necessary in order to validate such business transacted thereat.[36] It yields to the further principle that where

27. Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203. Compare Edgerly v. Emerson, 23 N. H. 555, 55 Am. Dec. 207.

28. Hillyer v. Overman Silver Min. Co., 6 Nev. 51; Hoyt v. Bridgewater Copper Min. Co., 6 N. J. Eq. 253; Cammeyer v. United German Lutheran Churches, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 186, 229. Contra, Barcus v. Hannibal, etc., Plankroad Co., 26 Mo. 102; State v. Smith, 48 Vt. 266; Waite v. Windham County Min. Co., 37 Vt. 608; Middlebury Bank v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 30 Vt. 159.

29. Stow v. Wyse, 7 Conn. 214, 18 Am. Dec. 99; Gordon v. Preston, 1 Watts (Pa.) 385, 26 Am. Dec. 75.

30. Lockwood v. Mechanics' Nat. Bank, 9 R. I. 308, 11 Am. Rep. 253. See also Sargent v. Webster, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 497, 46 Am. Dec. 743; Cahill v. Kalamazoo Mut. Ins. Co., 2 Dougl. (Mich.) 124, 43 Am. Dec. 457. For a case where it was held that a mortgage was void for want of compliance with the principle of the above text see Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203.

That "a majority vote of the directors" means a majority of a quorum duly assembled see Foster v. Mullanphy Planing-Mill Co., 92 Mo. 79, 4 S. W. 260.

Effect of director changing his mind.—That a majority of three directors ought not to proceed to execute a deed of trust preferring certain creditors, although the other director who owned a majority of the stock has voted for its execution, where they have reason to believe that he has changed his mind and is opposed to such action, see State v. Manhattan Rubber Mfg. Co., 149 Mo. 181, 50 S. W. 321.

31. See supra, IX, E, 7.

32. Wells v. Rodgers, 60 Mich. 525, 27 N. W. 671. There is a seemingly unsound decision to the effect that where a quorum of the directors of a bank meet and unite in any determination, the corporation is bound, whether the absent directors were notified or not. Sargent v. Webster, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 497, 46 Am. Dec. 743; Edgerly v. Emerson, 23 N. H. 555, 55 Am. Dec. 207. To the same effect see Chase v. Tuttle, 55 Conn. 455, 12 Atl. 874, 3 Am. St. Rep. 64.

Effect of a provision in the articles of incorporation that no objection shall be made to the validity of any vote, except at the meeting at which such vote shall be tendered, or at an adjourned meeting, etc., upon the question of impeaching a resolution to wind up. Wall v. London, etc., Assets Corp., [1899] 1 Ch. 550, 68 L. J. Ch. 248, 80 L. T. Rep. N. S. 70, 6 Manson 312.

33. See supra, IV.

34. Smith v. Dorn, 96 Cal. 73, 30 Pac. 1024; Thompson v. Williams, 76 Cal. 153, 18 Pac. 153, 9 Am. St. Rep. 187; San Buenaventura Commercial Min., etc., Co. v. Vassault, 50 Cal. 534 (general meeting); Reilly v. Oglebay, 25 W. Va. 36. For instance if the governing statute provides that the meeting shall be called by the president if there be one, and if not, by two directors, then if there is a president two directors cannot call a meeting. Nor will the refusal of the president to make the call take such a case out of the rule, at least unless an abuse of such discretion is shown. Smith v. Dorn, 96 Cal. 73, 30 Pac. 1024.

35. Springfield First Nat. Bank v. Asheville Furniture, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 827, 21 S. E. 948.

36. For example a regular custom pursued for a number of years, for the directors of a bank to hold a meeting at the banking-house a meeting is regularly assembled, but adjourns to a future time and place, special notice of the adjourned meeting is not necessary, since the fact and record of the adjournment give such notice.[37]

2. PLACE OF HOLDING MEETINGS OF DIRECTORS. In the absence of statutory authorization for a different course, no valid meeting of directors can be held outside the state under whose legislation the corporation has been created.[38] But statutes exist changing this rule, and authorizing directors to hold meetings beyond the limits of the state.[39] With respect to this question a sound distinction exists between corporate meetings for the performance of constituent acts which, in the absence of a statutory authorization, can be held only within the state under whose legislation the corporation has been created, and mere acts of business or ministerial acts, with respect to which the directors are deemed to be mere agents of the corporation. As a corporation can perform such acts in a state other than that of its creation, there is no sound reason why its directors cannot go into such state for the purpose of performing them.[40] They may for example meet in another state to appoint a secretary,[41] or to confer power upon an agent to execute a deed;[42] and in such cases their minutes may be used as evidence of their acts, even though their meeting may have been held outside of the chartering state.[43] With regard to the proper place for holding meetings of directors inside the state, it has been held that the office of the president or secretary will be presumed to be a proper place when the corporation has no other regular place of business.[44] The principal office of the corporation is clearly such a place, and this is where its shareholders and directors usually meet, where it elects its officers, and where it conducts its financial operations.[45] If the charter fails to designate the place of the chief office of the corporation, and no place has been designated by vote of the shareholders or by resolution of the directors, then the place can be implied and established from the acts of the shareholders and directors.[46] A during business hours whenever a sufficient number are present, is notice to each director of a meeting to be held within the business hours of the bank whenever a sufficient number assemble, and enables those assembled, the same being a quorum, to proceed, in the absence of some restraining provision in some statute or governing instrument. American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Spokane Falls First Nat. Bank, 82 Fed. 961, 27 C. C. A. 274 [citing Paola, etc., R. Co. v. Anderson County Com'rs, 16 Kan. 302; Edgerly v. Emerson, 23 N. H. 555, 55 Am. Dec. 207; Waite v. Windham County Min. Co., 37 Vt. 608; Middlebury Bank v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 30 Vt. 159].

37. Western Imp. Co. v. Des Moines Nat. Bank, 103 Iowa 455, 72 N. W. 657. But unless the meeting at which the adjournment took place had been properly notified, the adjourned meeting is irregular and the acts performed thereat are not valid. Whitehead v. Hamilton Rubber Co., 52 N. J. Eq. 78, 27 Atl. 897, holding that an assignment of the accounts of a corporation to its president as collateral security for his indorsement upon its notes cannot be made at an adjourned meeting, where no notice is given to the directors that such business would be transacted, either in the call for the meeting which was adjourned, or at such adjourned meeting, if one of the directors is absent.

38. St. Joseph State Nat. Bank v. Union Nat. Bank, 168 Ill. 519, 48 N. E. 82 [affirming 68 Ill. App. 43; and citing McKeag v. Collins, 87 Mo. 164; Hoyt v. Thompson, 5 N. Y. 320; Springfield First Nat. Bank v. Asheville Furniture, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 827, 21 S. E. 948]; Place v. People, 87 Ill. App. 527.

39. Colo. Anno. Stat. 493; Singer v. Salt Lake City Copper Mfg. Co., 17 Utah 143, 53 Pac. 1024, 70 Am. St. Rep. 773.

40. Ohio, etc., R. Co. v. McPherson, 35 Mo. 13, 86 Am. Dec. 128.

41. McCall v. Byram Mfg. Co., 6 Conn. 428.

42. Arms v. Conant, 36 Vt. 744.

43. Wood Hydraulic Hose Min. Co. v. King, 45 Ga. 34.

When shareholder estopped from objecting that the meeting was held outside the proper jurisdiction, by reason of having attended previous meetings in the same place without objection. Wood v. Boney, (N. J. 1891) 21 Atl. 574.

44. Troy Min. Co. v. White, 10 S. D. 475, 74 N. W. 236, 42 L. R. A. 549.

45. Frick Co. v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 86 Fed. 725, 32 C. C. A. 31.

Power to change principal office.—The general officers of a railroad company, who find it convenient for the despatch of business to change their offices to some other point on the line, cannot thereby change the principal office of the company from the place at which it has been established by the shareholders and directors. Frick Co. v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 86 Fed. 725, 32 C. C. A. 31.

46. Frick Co. v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 86 Fed. 725, 32 C. C. A. 31 [citing Jossey v. Georgia, etc., R. Co., 102 Ga. 706, 28 S. E.

by-law requiring the regular meetings of the directors to be held at the general office of the corporation does not prevent the holding of special meetings at any place which would be lawful in the absence of such a restriction.[47]

3. NOTICE OF MEETINGS OF DIRECTORS — a. In General. The rule applicable to corporate meetings generally[48] is applicable to directors' meetings, that where the meeting is a stated or annual meeting,[49] the time and place of which is fixed by some by-law or other governing instrument, no special notice of it to the directors is necessary, but that where it is a special or called meeting all the members must be invited to it.[50] It should be added that, with reference to the notice to be given of shareholders' and directors' meetings, the provisions of the by-laws[51] and articles of incorporation[52] must yield to the governing statute where they conflict, as in other cases. This rule yields to the exception that in case of regular or stated meetings which are required by the governing statute, articles, or by-laws, to be held at a stated time and place, no special notice is required, since the law of the corporation is notice,[53] always provided that the law of the corporation, namely, its charter, governing statute, by-laws, or settled usage, does not require the giving of notice, even in a case of regular or stated meetings.[54] The right of all the directors to notice is founded on the right of being present for the purpose of consultation, of which 273; Dade Coal Co. v. Haslett, 83 Ga. 549, 10 S. E. 435].

47. Ashley Wire Co. v. Illinois Steel Co., 164 Ill. 149, 45 N. E. 410, 56 Am. St. Rep. 187 [affirming 60 Ill. App. 179].

Void statute.— Statute under which the election of president of an Illinois corporation held at a directors' meeting in Arizona was void. Starr & C. Stat. Ill. (1896), c. 73, § 6; Place v. People, 87 Ill. App. 527.

48. Merritt v. Farris, 22 Ill. 303; People v. Batchelor, 22 N. Y. 128; State v. Bonnell, 35 Ohio St. 10; Warner v. Mower, 11 Vt. 385. See also supra, IV, D, 2.

49. In some states notice of stated or annual meetings is required. San Buenaventura Commercial Min., etc., Co. v. Vassault, 50 Cal. 534.

50. Vaught v. Ohio County Fair Co., 49 S. W. 426, 20 Ky. L. Rep. 1471; Whitehead v. Hamilton Rubber Co., 52 N. J. Eq. 78, 27 Atl. 897.

Waiver of right to notice.— It is almost needless to suggest that a minority of directors cannot waive this right. Hill v. Rich Hill Coal Min. Co., 119 Mo. 9, 24 S. W. 223; Springfield First Nat. Bank v. Asheville Furniture, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 827, 21 S. E. 948. And see 3 Am. St. Rep. 69 note, and the following cases there cited:

California.— Harding v. Vandewater, 40 Cal. 77.

Michigan.— Doyle v. Mizner, 42 Mich. 332, 3 N. W. 968.

New Jersey.—State v. Ferguson, 31 N. J. L. 107.

Pennsylvania.— Pike County v. Rowland, 94 Pa. St. 238; Kersey Oil Co. v. Oil Creek, etc., R. Co., 12 Phila. 374, 34 Leg. Int. 362.

United States.— Farwell v. Houghton Copper Works, 8 Fed. 66.

England.— D'Arcy v. Tamar, etc., R. Co., L. R. 2 Exch. 158, 4 H. & C. 463, 21 Jur. N. S. 548, 36 L. J. Exch. 37, 13 L. T. Rep. N. S. 626, 14 Wkly. Rep. 968.

That it is competent for the directors to disregard a by-law established by themselves, prescribing the mode of assembling meetings of directors, so far as third persons are concerned, so that the corporation cannot set up such an irregularity as against third person, see Samuel v. Holladay, 21 Fed. Cas. No. 12,288, Woolw. 400.

51. Singer v. Salt Lake City Copper Mfg. Co., 17 Utah 143, 53 Pac. 1024, 70 Am. St. Rep. 773 [citing Little Rock Bank v. McCarthy, 55 Ark. 473, 18 S. W. 759, 29 Am. St. Rep. 60; Simon v. Sevier Assoc., 54 Ark. 58, 14 S. W. 1101; Harding v. Vandewater, 40 Cal. 77; Stow v. Wyse, 7 Conn. 214, 18 Am. Dec. 99; Paola, etc., R. Co. v. Anderson County Com'rs, 16 Kan. 302; Wiggin v. First Freewill Baptist Church, 8 Metc. (Mass.) 301; Doyle v. Mizner, 42 Mich. 332, 3 N. W. 968, and disapproving Edgerly v. Emerson, 23 N. H. 555, 55 Am. Dec. 207; Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Pomeroy Flour Co., 41 Ohio St. 552; Doernbecher v. Columbia City Lumber Co., 21 Oreg. 573, 28 Pac. 899, 28 Am. St. Rep. 766; Farwell v. Houghton Copper Works, 8 Fed. 66].

52. Charter Gas Engine Co. v. Charter, 47 Ill. App. 36.

53. Republican Mountain Silver Mines v. Brown, 58 Fed. 644, 7 C. C. A. 412, 24 L. R. A. 776.

54. See supra, note 49.

Emergency excuses notice.— It has been held that the fact that the minority of the directors of a corporation were not notified of a meeting at which a resolution authorizing the publishing of a letter declaring insolvency and a willingness to become bankrupt was passed will not render the act invalid, if the meeting was held at the usual place and in the usual manner, and for a long time past the absent directors had neglected to attend meetings and were promoting suits against the corporation in another state. In re Marine Mach., etc., Co., 91 Fed. 630.

right a minority cannot be arbitrarily deprived by a majority.[55] But while all the members must be notified, in order to the validity of the transactions had at the meeting, it is not necessary that all should be present, but it will be sufficient if a quorum assemble.[56] It follows that proceedings at a special meeting held by a bare majority of the members of a board, without notice to the other members, are void, although all those present voted in favor of the action taken, and the result would have been the same had the other members been present.[57] But all this proceeds upon the assumption that it is practicable to give notice; and it has accordingly been held that the action of the majority is not invalidated because absent directors, out of the state, failed to receive notice of the meeting.[58]

b. Certainty in Stating Object of Meeting. Where the meeting is convened for a special object, that object must be stated, and with reasonable certainty, and the transaction of business which does not come within the description will be voidable.[59] Where the meeting is special, and the notice does not specify the business to be transacted, it will be a good meeting for the transaction of ordinary business.[60] On the other hand a general notice of a directors' meeting, not specifying the business to be transacted, is all that is necessary to establish the transaction of the ordinary business affairs of the corporation.[61] Nor does the rule requiring the purposes of the meeting to be stated in the notice apply to an adjourned meeting, to be held at the call of the president, to hear the report of a committee appointed upon the business for which the original meeting was called.[62]

c. Time Which Must Be Allowed Between Notice and Meeting. It has been held that in the absence of a by-law or custom to the contrary, at least one full 55. Com. v. Cullen, 13 Pa. St. 133, 53 Am. Dec. 450.

56. Story v. Furman, 25 N. Y. 214.

57. Doernbecher v. Columbia City Lumber Co., 21 Oreg. 573, 28 Pac. 899, 28 Am. St. Rep. 766.

58. Chase v. Tuttle, 55 Conn. 455, 12 Atl. 874, 3 Am. St. Rep. 64. See also Halifax Sugar Refining Co. v. Francklyn, 59 L. J. Ch. 591, 62 L. T. Rep. N. S. 563.

Personal notice necessary.— There is a holding to the effect that in the absence of a statute, by-law, or other governing instrument prescribing the manner in which notice shall be given personal notice is necessary, and that it will not be sufficient to leave a copy of a written notice at the usual place of residence of a director. Little Rock Bank v. McCarthy, 55 Ark. 473, 18 S. W. 759, 29 Am. St. Rep. 60.

59. Hill v. Rich Hill Min. Co., 119 Mo. 9, 24 S. W. 223; Mercantile Library Hall Co. v. Pittsburgh Library Assoc., 173 Pa. St. 30, 33 Atl. 744, 37 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 533. The necessity of stating in the notice the business to be transacted at the meeting may, under some governing statutes, arise even in the case of meetings for the election of directors, as where it is attempted to amend by-laws at such a meeting. Mutual F. Ins. Co. v. Farquhar, 86 Md. 668, 39 Atl. 527 [citing Kent v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159; Com. v. Lancaster, 5 Watts (Pa.) 152]. For an illustration of this see Tiessen v. Henderson, [1899] 1 Ch. 861, 68 L. J. Ch. 353, 80 L. T. Rep. N. S. 483, 6 Manson 340, 47 Wkly. Rep. 459.

Additional notice of meeting, and of another meeting to be held afterward, when not bad. Alexander v. Simpson, 43 Ch. D. 139, 59 L. J. Ch. 137, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 708, 1 Meg. 457, 38 Wkly. Rep. 161 [distinguished in Tiessen v. Henderson, [1899] 1 Ch. 861, 68 L. J. Ch. 353, 80 L. T. Rep. N. S. 483, 6 Manson 340, 47 Wkly. Rep. 459].

Notice of an intention to adopt a by-law, when necessary to the validity of the by-law. Mutual F. Ins. Co. v. Farquhar, 86 Md. 668, 39 Atl. 527.

60. New Haven Sav. Bank v. Davis, 8 Conn. 191, doubtfully holding that the giving of a mortgage on real estate of the corporation to secure a debt is an ordinary transaction.

61. In re Argus, 138 N. Y. 557, 34 N. E. 388, 53 N. Y. St. 270.

That the execution of a mortgage is not such extraordinary business as is required to be stated in a notice of a meeting of the directors convened for that purpose was held in Ashley Wire Co. v. Illinois Steel Co., 60 Ill. App. 179 [affirmed in 164 Ill. 149, 45 N. E. 410, 56 Am. St. Rep. 187].

62. Ashley Wire Co. v. Illinois Steel Co., 164 Ill. 149, 45 N. E. 410, 56 Am. St. Rep. 187 [affirming 60 Ill. App. 179].

In England the directors of a company can, at any meeting of the board, deal with all affairs of the company then requiring attention, whether ordinary or not; and previous notice of the special business to be transacted is not a necessary condition of the proceedings being valid. They can for instance appoint a director, appoint solicitors and bankers, and accept an offer for the use of offices. La Compagnie de Mayville v. Whitley, [1896] 1 Ch. 788, 74 L. T. Rep. N. S. 441.

day's notice should be given of a directors' meeting. Therefore a notice for a special meeting of the board of managers of a corporation is prima facie insufficient in time, where it calls for a meeting at four o'clock of the day succeeding that upon which it is mailed to the members, and there is no evidence that any director received the notice until the morning of the day appointed for the meeting.[63]

d. Notice of Adjourned Meetings Must Be Given. Adjourned meetings are special meetings, and members not present when the adjournment took place must be notified. Where a regular meeting of the directors of a corporation, from which some of the members are absent, is adjourned to a future day, the hour of which is not fixed, the meeting, held on the day to which the adjournment was had, is a special meeting, of which notice is required to be given to the absentees at the regular meeting; and when no such notice is given, no act requiring the concurrence of a majority of the quorum can be done in such a case. An assessment levied at the adjourned meeting, in the absence of the former absentees, is a nullity.[64]

4. Informalities in Assembling Meeting Cured. As in the case of general meetings of corporations,[65] so in the case of meetings of directors, the want of notice or of other formalities or requisities to the assembling of a valid meeting is cured where all the directors meet and without dissent proceed to act upon the business which is brought before the meeting.[66]

5. Conduct of Meeting. It has been held that a shareholder who has never been elected a director of the corporation cannot act as president pro tempore at a directors' meeting.[67]

6. Presumption That Directors' Meetings Were Regularly Called. Where meetings of a legally constituted board of directors have been held, at which business has been transacted pursuant to the purposes for which the corporation was organized, it will be presumed that such meetings were regularly called and

63. Mercantile Library Hall Co. v. Pittsburg Library Assoc., 173 Pa. St. 30, 33 Atl. 744, 37 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 533.

64. Thompson v. Williams, 76 Cal. 153, 18 Pac. 153, 9 Am. St. Rep. 187.

Power of minority to adjourn.—It has been held that a minority of the directors of a railroad company, although legally assembled, pursuant to call, cannot lawfully adjourn the meeting to a place fifty miles distant. State v. Smith, 48 Vt. 266.

As to adjourned meetings see supra, IV, C, 3.

65. See supra, IV, D, 9.

So held under a statute which, although mandatory, had no negative words, in Troy Min. Co. v. White, 10 S. D. 475, 74 N. W. 236, 42 L. R. A. 549. See also Jones v. Milton, etc., Turnpike Co., 7 Ind. 547; Lord v. Anoka, 36 Minn. 176, 30 N. W. 550; State v. Smith, 22 Minn. 218.

Action taken at a meeting of trustees, where all are present, valid, although not formally expressed. Whitehead v. O'Sullivan, 12 Misc. (N. Y.) 577, 33 N. Y. Suppl. 1098, 67 N. Y. St. 801.

66. National City Bank v. Johnston, 133 Cal. 185, 60 Pac. 776. See Stobo v. Davis Provision Co., 54 Ill. App. 440; Broughton v. Jones, 120 Mich. 462, 79 N. W. 691; Minneapolis Times Co. v. Nimocks, 53 Minn. 381, 55 N. W. 546. See also Jordan v. Collins, 107 Ala. 572, 18 So. 137; United Growers Co. v. Eisner, 22 N. Y. App. Div. 1, 47 N. Y. Suppl. 906 [citing Leavitt v. Yates, 4 Edw. (N. Y.) 134].

When promissory note authorized at meeting assembled without notice is invalid in hands of one not a bona fide holder. Close v. Potter, 5 Misc. (N. Y.) 543, 25 N. Y. Suppl. 972. But this is not so where two of the three directors composing the board went into the presence of the third, who was sick, and forced a meeting upon him, although there was a by-law authorizing the holding of a meeting without notice when the three directors were present. State v. Manhattan Rubber Mfg. Co., 149 Mo. 181, 50 S. W. 321. Compare, however, Stobo v. Davis Provision Co., 54 Ill. App. 440.

Notice good, although signed with a rubber stamp.—Ashley Wire Co. v. Illinois Steel Co., 164 Ill. 149, 45 N. E. 410, 56 Am. St. Rep. 187 [affirming 60 Ill. App. 179].

Notice may be sent by mail, when. Stockton Combined Harvester, etc., Works v. Houser, 109 Cal. 1, 10, 41 Pac. 809.

67. Benson v. Keller, 37 Oreg. 120, 60 Pac. 918.

At a general meeting of an English company, the chairman, supported by a vote of the majority, can stop the debate after the resolutions have been reasonably discussed. Wall v. London, etc., Assets Corp., [1898] 2 Ch. D. 469, 67 L. J. Ch. 596, 79 L. T. Rep. N. S. 249, 47 Wkly. Rep. 219.

held for the transaction of such business, and the burden of proof rests upon one who maintains the contrary.[68]

7. These Principles Varied by Corporate Usage. The foregoing rules, like many other rules respecting the mode of corporate action, may be overcome by proof of a contrary habit or usage of acting on the part of the directors. Thus if the directors adopt a practice of giving their separate assent to the execution of contracts by their agents it will have the same force as if done by a regular meeting of the board; otherwise the public could not deal with the corporation in safety.[69] So it has been held that where the articles of association of a company do not prescribe the number of directors required to constitute a quorum, the number who usually act in conducting the business of the company will constitute a quorum.[70] So where it was proved that claims against a corporation were approved by a majority of the board of directors, in accordance with the customary usage of the board in such cases, this was held sufficient proof of approval, in the absence of a law or by-law restricting the directors to a different mode.[71]

G. Obligations of Directors as Fiduciaries — 1. Directors Are Trustees For Shareholders. The directors of a corporation occupy a fiduciary relation toward the shareholders and are treated by courts of equity as trustees for them.[72]

2. Bound to Act With Utmost Good Faith. Directors are bound to exercise nothing short of the uberrima fides of the civil law. They must not in any degree allow their official conduct to be swayed by their private interest, unless that interest is the interest which they have in the good of the company in com-

68. Singer v. Salt Lake Copper Mfg. Co., 17 Utah 143, 53 Pac. 1024, 70 Am. St. Rep. 773.

There is no presumption that the meeting was a special one, or that the directors were not duly notified of it. Barrell v. Lake View Land Co., 122 Cal. 129, 54 Pac. 594.

69. Bank of Middlebury v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 30 Vt. 159. A later case in Vermont advances the untenable proposition that a formal meeting of the directors of a corporation is not necessary in order to enable them to do any act which is within their corporate powers. Waite v. Eindham County Min. Co., 37 Vt. 608.

70. Lane v. Brainerd, 30 Conn. 565; In re Tavistock Ironworks Co., L. R. 4 Eq. 233, 36 L. J. Ch. 616, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 824, 15 Wkly. Rep. 1007. So where the words of a charter are doubtful. Rex v. Varlo, Cowp. 248.

71. Longmont Supply Ditch Co. v. Coffman, 11 Colo. 551, 19 Pac. 508.

72. California.— Bradbury v. Barnes, 19 Cal. 120.

Kansas.— Hale v. Republican River Bridge Co., 8 Kan. 466.

Missouri.— Chouteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290.

New York.— Bliss v. Matteson, 45 N. Y. 22, 52 Barb. 335; Robertson v. Bullions, 11 N. Y. 243; Butts v. Wood, 38 Barb. 181 [affirmed in 37 N. Y. 317]; Karnes v. Rochester, etc., R. Co., 4 Abb. Pr. N. S. 107; Cunningham v. Pell, 5 Paige 607; Robinson v. Smith, 3 Paige 222, 24 Am. Dec. 212; Verplanck v. Mercantile Ins. Co., 2 Paige 438, 1 Edw. 84; Atty.-Gen. v. Utica Ins. Co., 2 Johns. Ch. 371; Scott v. Depeyster, 1 Edw. 513.

Pennsylvania.— Simons v. Vulcan Oil, etc., Co., 61 Pa. St. 202, 100 Am. Dec. 628.

Tennessee.— Lane v. West Tennessee Bank, 9 Heisk. 419.

Wisconsin.— Cook v. Berlin Woolen Mill Co., 43 Wis. 433.

United States.— Koehler v. Black River Falls Iron Co., 2 Black 715, 17 L. ed. 339; Corbett v. Woodward, 6 Fed. Cas. No. 3,223, 5 Sawy. 403.

England.— Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc. v. Coleman, L. R. 6 H. L. 189, 42 L. J. Ch. 644, 29 L. T. Rep. N. S. 1, 21 Wkly. Rep. 696; In re Anglo-Greek Steam Nav., etc., Co., 35 Beav. 399, 12 Jur. 323, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 120, 14 Wkly. Rep. 624; Great Luxembourg R. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav. 586, 4 Jur. N. S. 839, 6 Wkly. Rep. 711; Williams v. Page, 24 Beav. 654, 4 Jur. N. S. 102, 27 L. J. Ch. 425; In re Cameron's Coalbrook, etc., R. Co., 18 Beav. 339; York, etc., R. Co. v. Hudson, 16 Beav. 485, 22 L. J. Ch. 529, 1 Wkly. Rep. 187, 510, 19 Eng. L. & Eq. 361; Albion Steel, etc., Co. v. Martin, 1 Ch. D. 580, 45 L. J. Ch. 173, 33 L. T. Rep. N. S. 660, 24 Wkly. Rep. 134; Ernest v. Croysdill, 2 De G. F. & J. 175, 63 Eng. Ch. 137; Matter of Cameron's Coalbrook Steam Coal, etc., Co., 5 De G. M. & G. 284, 24 L. J. Ch. 130, 2 Wkly. Rep. 448, 54 Eng. Ch. 226; Aberdeen R. Co. v. Blakie, 2 Eq. 1281, 1 Macq. 461, 1 Paterson Sc. App. 391, 1 Paton App. Cas. 119, 26 Sc. Jur. 628; Benson v. Heathorn, 1 Y. & Coll. Ch. 326, 20 Eng. Ch. 326.

See also Cumberland Coal, etc., Co. v. Parish, 42 Md. 598 (where it is said that they are agents for the shareholders); Parsons v. Hayes, 14 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 419

mon with all the other shareholders. This principle is asserted and illustrated by judicial decisions almost without number.[73] This duty results from the nature of their employment, and without any stipulation to that effect.[74] Their private interest must yield to their official duty whenever those interests are conflicting.[75] They must neither exercise their trust for their own private exclusive benefit, nor for the benefit of third persons. They cannot on the one hand give away the property of the corporation[76] or release its securities[77] or, on the other, take to themselves advantages not common to all the shareholders. And any arrangement by them with a contractor with the corporation by which they are to share in the profits of the contract must be confirmed by the shareholders.[78] And where a director, by means of his power as such, secures to himself any advantage over other shareholders or creditors, equity will treat the transaction as void or charge him as trustee for the benefit of the injured parties; nor can such director, as to such parties, claim to have acted in ignorance of what it was his duty to know concerning the conduct and condition of the affairs of the corporation.[79] And an agreement of a director to use his vote and influence to the disadvantage of the corporation, and in the interest and for the benefit of third persons, is an immoral and corrupt agreement and will not be enforced.[80] Being the agents of the corporation, if they exercise their functions for the purpose of injuring its interests and alienating its property, they are personally liable for the loss occasioned thereby;[81] and, being trustees of the corporate assets for its shareholders, whenever they have to divide those assets among the shareholders they must give to each his proportionate share.[82]

3. In What Sense Trustees For Creditors of Corporation. Until insolvency exists or is foreseen, the directors of a corporation sustain no fiduciary relation to creditors, but are merely the agents of the corporation, acting for their own principal.[83] They can be regarded as trustees for the creditors of the corporation only to the extent that the assets of a corporation are a trust fund for its creditors, under principles elsewhere considered.[84] To the extent to which the assets of a corporation may be regarded as a trust fund for its creditors,[85] the directors are undoubtedly the trustees of those assets for the creditors of the corporation.[86]

(where it is said that they are trustees for the corporation).

As to the sense in which they may be regarded as agents see supra, IX, C, 1.

President of corporation to whom the shareholders intrusts their shares for sale is bound to account for secret profits as a quasi-trustee. Mulvane v. O'Brien, 58 Kan. 463, 49 Pac. 607.

73. Alabama.— Perry v. Tuskaloosa Cotton-Seed Oil Mill Co., 93 Ala. 364, 9 So. 217.

Illinois.— Bestor v. Wathen, 60 Ill. 138.

Iowa.—Blair Town Lot, etc., Co. v. Walker, 50 Iowa 376.

New York.— Blake v. Buffalo Creek R. Co., 56 N. Y. 485; Leavitt v. Yates, 4 Edw. 134.

United States.— Koehler v. Black River Falls Iron Co., 2 Black 715, 17 L. ed. 339.

74. Cumberland Coal, etc., Co. v. Parish, 42 Md. 598; Benson v. Heathorn, 1 Y. & Coll. Ch. 326, 20 Eng. Ch. 326.

75. In re Cameron's Coalbrook, etc., R. Co., 18 Beav. 339.

76. Union Bank v. Jones, 4 La. Ann. 236.

77. Gallery v. National Exch. Bank, 41 Mich. 169, 2 N. W. 193, 32 Am. Rep. 149.

78. Paine v. Lake Erie, etc., R. Co., 31 Ind. 283.

79. Corbett v. Woodward, 6 Fed. Cas. No. 3,223, 5 Sawy. 403.

80. Attaway v. St. Louis Third Nat. Bank, 93 Mo. 485, 5 S. W. 16.

81. Atty.-Gen. v. Wilson, Cr. & Ph. 1, 4 Jur. 1174, 10 L. J. Ch. 53.

82. Hale v. Republican River Bridge Co., 8 Kan. 466. Therefore a resolution of the shareholders, placing certain shares at the disposal of the directors, does not mean at their disposal for their personal benefit, but for the benefit of the company; and they must account as trustees for the disposition which they may have made of them. York, etc., R. Co. v. Hudson, 16 Beav. 485, 22 L. J. Ch. 529, 1 Wkly. Rep. 187, 510, 19 Eng. L. & Eq. 361.

83. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662.

84. See supra, VIII, B, 1 et seq.

85. See for a treatment of this subject in entiro 2 Thompson Corp. § 2951 et seq.

86. Richards v. New Hampshire Ins. Co., 43 N. H. 263; Bliss v. Matteson, 45 N. Y. 22; Conro v. Port Henry Iron Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 27; Cunningham v. Pell, 5 Paige (N. Y.) 607; Jackson v. Ludeling, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 616, 22 L. ed. 492. That the president of a gravel-road company borrowing money on duly authorized assessments against abutting lands, who collects the assessments on the faith of which the loans were obtained, Modern judicial statements tend to qualify this doctrine, but the directors are said to be trustees of the creditors "to a considerable degree,"[87] or "in a certain sense."[88] It is also said, speaking of bank directors, that they are not trustees in a technical sense, but that their relation to the corporation is rather that of an agent to his principal, when viewed with reference to the rights of creditors.[89] The so-called "trust-fund doctrine" does not seem to have found a foothold in England with respect to business corporations, but in one case in that country it was distinctly denied.[90] The modern tendency is to restrain the doctrine to the case of insolvent corporations; and the difficulty of holding directors to the contrary relations of agents for the corporation and fiduciaries of its creditors at once suggests itself to the mind.[91] Excluding such corporations as savings-banks, mutual insurance companies, and mutual benefit societies, the general view unquestionably is that in the absence of statutes making a different rule the directors of a corporation are not personally liable to its creditors.[92]

4. To What Extent Trustees For General Public. The directors of corporations created for the performance of public duties, such as railway companies, are also in a qualified sense trustees of their powers for the general public as well as for their shareholders; and hence a contract by which they are to receive a private gain for the exercise of their powers, in a matter wherein the public have an interest, such as the matter of locating a line of railroad or a railway station, is contrary to public policy, and is essentially immoral and corrupt in its tendencies; and consequently no such contract can be enforced in a court of justice.[93]

5. Bound to Exercise Their Powers For Benefit of Corporation Only — a. In General. Directors of a corporation are bound to the exercise of the utmost good faith to the end of conserving its property and furthering its interests and the objects for which it was created. Any action on their part tending to the impairment of corporate rights, the sacrifice of corporate interests, the retardation of the objects of the corporation, and a fortiori the destruction of the corporation itself, will be regarded as a flagrant breach of trust on the part of the directors engaged therein.[94] holds the funds as a trustee for the lenders, and is personally responsible to them for any diversion thereof, see Pugh v. Miller, 126 Ind. 189, 25 N. E. 1040.

87. Jackson v. Ludeling, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 616, 22 L. ed. 492.

88. Bliss v. Matteson, 45 N. Y. 22.

89. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662.

90. In re Wincham Shipbuilding, etc., Co., 9 Ch. D. 322, 48 L. J. Ch. 48, 38 L. T. Rep. N. S. 659, 26 Wkly. Rep. 823.

The American doctrine appears to have been adopted from the English doctrine that the property of a charitable corporation is a trust fund, and that the court of chancery has jurisdiction over its custodians as trustees. See Green's Brice's Ultra Vires (2d ed.) 50, and the American note; also Atty.-Gen. v. Aspinall, 1 Jur. 812, 7 L. J. Ch. 51, 2 Myl. & C. 613, 14 Eng. Ch. 613. The doctrine was first announced in this country by Story, J., in a case at circuit, in 1824. Wood v. Dummer, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,944, 3 Mason 308. He professes to found it on the doctrine of an earlier English chancery case (Curson v. African Co., 1 Vern. 121), but an examination of that case will show that it discloses no adequate basis for the doctrine.

91. Smith v. Hurd, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 371, 46 Am. Dec. 690.

92. Smith v. Poor, 40 Me. 415, 63 Am. Dec. 672; Fusz v. Spaunhorst, 67 Mo. 256; Winter v. Baker, 34 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 183; Zinn v. Mendel, 9 W. Va. 580.

93. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Mathers, 71 Ill. 592, 22 Am. Rep. 122; Linder v. Carpenter, 62 Ill. 309; Bestor v. Wathen, 60 Ill. 138; Fuller v. Dame, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 472; Holladay v. Patterson, 5 Oreg. 177; Woodstock Iron Co. v. Richmond, etc., Extension Co., 129 U. S. 643, 9 S. Ct. 402, 32 L. ed. 819.

94. California.— Wright v. Oroville Gold, etc., Min. Co., 40 Cal. 20.

Louisiana.— State v. Citizens' Sav. Bank, 31 La. Ann. 836.

Massachusetts.— Peabody v. Flint, 6 Allen 52.

Michigan.— Hart v. Brockway, 57 Mich. 189; Bank Com'rs v. Brest Bank, Harr. Ch. 106.

New Jersey.— Hilles v. Parrish, 14 N. J. Eq. 380.

New York.— Taylor v. Earle, 8 Hun 1; Frothingham v. Barney, 6 Hun 366; Gray v. New York, etc., Steamship Co., 3 Hun 383; Copeland v. Citizens' Gas Light Co., 61 Barb. 60; Abbot v. American Hard Rubber Co., 33 Barb. 578; Conro v. Port Henry Iron Co., 12 Barb. 27; Gross v. Sackett, 2 Bosw. 617; Brouwer v. Hill, 1 Sandf. 629;

b. Cannot Deal at Once For Themselves and For Corporation. Directors will not be allowed to assume double relations, dealing for themselves and for the corporation at the same time; but they will be compelled to account to the corporation or to its legal representative for any secret profits which they may have made by such dealing.[95]

c. Cannot Create Any Relation Making Their Personal Interests Antagonistic to Those of Corporation. Directors will not be permitted to create any relation between themselves and the corporation, or its property, which will make their personal interests antagonistic to that of the corporation.[96]

d. Cannot Vote Upon Questions Affecting Their Private Interest. A director cannot with propriety vote in the board of directors upon a matter affecting his own private interest any more than a judge can sit in his own case; and any resolution passed at a meeting of the directors at which a director having a personal interest in the matter voted will be voidable at the instance of the corporation or the shareholders, without regard to its fairness, provided the vote of such director was necessary to the result.[97] Thus as we shall hereafter see[98] if the directors of a company vote themselves a salary or compensation for managing its affairs, they may be compelled to account in equity for the money so misappropriated, although a resolution passed with the aid of such a disqualified vote is good as respects the rights of third persons dealing with the corporation in good faith;[99] and it seems that it is good as against all parties, until challenged and set aside, and that it will not be set aside by reason of the disqualified vote alone, in the absence of any allegation or proof of bad faith.[1]

Brouwer v. Appleby, 1 Sandf. 158; Smith v. New York Consol. Stage Co., 18 Abb. Pr. 419; Paine v. Irwin, 59 How. Pr. 316; Sheldon Hat Blocking Co. v. Eickmeyer Hat Blocking Co., 56 How. Pr. 70; Ward v. Sea Ins. Co., 7 Paige 294.

Pennsylvania.— Bedford R. Co. v. Bowser, 48 Pa. St. 29.

South Carolina.— Smith v. Smith, 3 Desauss. 557.

Vermont.— Stevens v. Willard, 43 Vt. 692.

United States.— In re Lady Bryan Min. Co., 14 Fed. Cas. No. 7,978, 1 Sawy. 349.

England.— Ward v. Attornies Soc., 1 Coll. 370, 28 Eng. Ch. 370.

95. Ward v. Davidson, 89 Mo. 445, 1 S. W. 846 (per Black, J.); Wardell v. Union Pac. R. Co., 103 U. S. 651, 26 L. ed. 509. It has been held that they will not be allowed to set off the indebtedness of the corporation to them for their fees or compensation, against their liability as subscribers for its shares, and thereby get rid of their liability as shareholders. In re European Cent. R. Co., L. R. 13 Eq. 255, 41 Eng. Ch. 251, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 92.

96. Attaway v. St. Louis Third Nat. Bank, 93 Mo. 485 [reversing 15 Mo. App. 578]; Brewster v. Stratman, 4 Mo. App. 41. As to the effect of directors becoming interested adversely to the corporation see Cook v. Sherman, 20 Fed. 167, 4 McCrary 20, where there is an extensive note. See further as to the governing principle Van Horne v. Fonda, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 388; Keller v. Leib, 1 Penr. & W. (Pa.) 220; Galbraith v. Elder, 8 Watts (Pa.) 81; Walley v. Whalley, 1 Vern. 484. A director must therefore refund to the company commissions and brokerage fees which he receives as ship's husband in dealing with the company. Benson v. Heathorn, 1 Y. & Coll. Ch. 326, 20 Eng. Ch. 326. And the treasurer of the corporation will not be allowed to buy up a claim against it, and use it as a basis of enforcing the statutory liability of a director. Hill v. Frazier, 22 Pa. St. 320.

Illustrations of this principle, showing when and when it does not apply.— Keokuk Northern Line Packet Co. v. Davidson, 95 Mo. 467, 8 S. W. 545; Jackson v. Ludeling, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 616, 22 L. ed. 492; Drury v. Milwaukee, etc., R. Co., 7 Wall. (U. S.) 299, 19 L. ed. 40. The fact that one is president of a corporation, and therefore a director, does not prevent him from doing that which the corporation has lost its ability to do, even if continued in existence. Murray v. Vanderbilt, 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 140. And see Hannerty v. Standard Theatre Co., 109 Mo. 297, 19 S. W. 82.

97. Graves v. Mono Lake Hydraulic Min. Co., 81 Cal. 303, 22 Pac. 665; Smith v. Los Angeles Immigration, etc., Assoc., 78 Cal. 289, 20 Pac. 677, 12 Am. St. Rep. 53; Chamberlain v. Pacific Wool-Growing Co., 54 Cal. 103.

98. See infra, IX, Q, 7.

99. Baird v. Washington Bank, 11 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 411.

1. Leavitt v. Oxford, etc., Silver Min. Co., 3 Utah 265, 1 Pac. 356. Moreover directors who are themselves wrong-doers or the partisans of the wrong-doer are disqualified from acting as the representatives of the corporation, in any litigation for the correction of the wrong which they are alleged to have committed or approved. Knoop v. Bohmrich, 49 N. J. Eq. 82, 23 Atl. 118.

e. Cannot Act For Corporation and For Opposing Interest. Contracts made by directors who at the same time represent an opposing interest, generally where the other contracting party is a corporation in which they are also directors,[2] are not void ab initio, but are voidable in a proper proceeding taken for that purpose, by the corporation, its shareholders, or its creditors.[3] They will not be specifically performed against the objection of the injured corporation, or of any other party having a standing to object, so long as they remain in fieri.[4] Any proceeding to rescind such a contract must be taken in time, and before the rights of innocent third parties have supervened.[5] It seems that while a court of equity will scrutinize such contracts and set them aside on the least appearance of unfairness, yet this will not be done upon the mere fact being shown that the directors of the corporation were so situated with reference to the action which their votes in the directorate caused to be taken that the transaction inured to their personal benefit, where it was also shown to be plainly beneficial to the corporation.[6]

6. Cannot Secure to Themselves an Advantage Not Common to All Shareholders. Directors, who are also creditors of the corporation, will not be permitted to raise money by a mortgage of the property of the corporation, to pay off debts due by the corporation to themselves, without providing for the discharge of other debts, thus securing to themselves an advantage not common to all the shareholders.[7]

7. Engagements Contrary to Duty Voidable. An engagement by a person who is a director or other officer of a corporation, by which he agrees to do a thing which is or may become injurious to the shareholders or to a majority of them, is an agreement contrary to the duty involved in his trust, and is voidable.[8]

8. Not Allowed to Make Profit Out of Their Trust — a. In General. Such being the position of directors, equity will not allow them to make a profit out

2. As to which see infra, IX, J, 1, a et seq.

3. See infra, IX, J, 6 et seq.

4. Charter Gas Engine, etc., Co. v. Charter, 47 Ill. App. 36; Davis Provision Co. v. Fowler, 20 N. Y. App. Div. 626, 47 N. Y. Suppl. 205. As where the president of a corporation assumes to make a contract for it, for the purchase of goods from another corporation, of which he is also president. Michigan Slate Co. v. Iron Range, etc., R. Co., 101 Mich. 14, 59 N. W. 646.

5. Genesee Valley, etc., R. Co. v. Retsof Min. Co., 15 Misc. (N. Y.) 187, 36 N. Y. Suppl. 896, 72 N. Y. St. 231.

6. Of this a good illustration is afforded by Bucksport, etc., R. Co. v. Edinburgh, etc., Redwood Co., 68 Fed. 972, 16 C. C. A. 74.

7. Koehler v. Black River Falls Iron Co., 2 Black (U. S.) 715, 17 L. ed. 339. See also Farmers', etc., Bank v. Downey, 53 Cal. 466, 31 Am. Rep. 62; Stratton v. Allen, 16 N. J. Eq. 229; Van Hook v. Somerville Mfg. Co., 5 N. J. Eq. 137; Matter of Cameron's Coalbrook Steam Coal, etc., Co., 5 De G. M. & G. 284, 24 L. J. Ch. 130, 2 Wkly. Rep. 448, 54 Eng. Ch. 226. Compare Buell v. Buckingham, 16 Iowa 284, 85 Am. Dec. 516; Smith v. Lansing, 22 N. Y. 520.

8. Maryland.— Davis v. Gemmell, 70 Md. 356, 17 Atl. 259.

Massachusetts.— Woodruff v. Wentworth, 133 Mass. 309; Guernsey v. Cook, 120 Mass. 501; Fuller v. Dame, 18 Pick. 472.

Missouri.— Attaway v. St. Louis Third Nat. Bank, 93 Mo. 485, 5 S. W. 16.

New York.— Bliss v. Matteson, 45 N. Y. 22.

United States.— Woodstock Iron Co. v. Richmond, etc., Extension Co., 129 U. S. 643, 9 S. Ct. 402, 32 L. ed. 819; Wardell v. Union Pac. R. Co., 103 U. S. 651, 26 L. ed. 509.

Illustrations of this principle.— This principle condemned an agreement by which a corporation, on purchasing the business of a partnership, bribed one of the partners, by entering into a personal contract with him to retain him as vice-president of the new corporation, organized to take over the business, at a salary of five thousand dollars a year. West v. Camden, 135 U. S. 507, 10 S. Ct. 838, 34 L. ed. 254. It condemned an agreement made by a majority of the directors of a corporation among themselves, privately and unofficially, that they should be paid a percentage upon all the money raised upon the credit of a bond of indemnity, signed by them, against the future indebtedness of the corporation. Butler v. Cornwall Iron Co., 22 Conn. 335. It prevented a director who had given an ordinary bond and mortgage to the corporation as security for a loan made by it to him from setting up, as a defense to the foreclosure of the mortgage, that, by a secret parol agreement between him and the other directors, the loan had been repaid by reason of his shares of stock in the corporation having been fully paid up. Pangborn v. Citizens' Bldg. Assoc., 35 N. J. Eq. 341.

of their trust; and equity will, at the suit of the corporation or of the shareholders, relieve against any arrangement by which they attempt so to do.[9]

b. Must Account to Corporation For Secret Profits Acquired Through Breach of Trust. As in the case of other trustees,[10] directors of corporations must account to their corporation, or to its lawful representative, for all profits which they have secretly made through breaches of their official trust.[11] This principle

9. Maine.— European, etc., Co. v. Poor, 59 Me. 277.

Massachusetts.— Parker v. Nickerson, 112 Mass. 195.

Missouri.— Keokuk Northern Line Packet Co. v. Davidson, 95 Mo. 467, 8 S. W. 545.

New Jersey.— Redmond v. Dickerson, 9 N. J. Eq. 507, 59 Am. Dec. 418.

New York.— Blake v. Buffalo Creek R. Co., 56 N. Y. 485; Bain v. Brown, 56 N. Y. 285; Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317; Cumberland Coal, etc., Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb. 553.

Oregon.— Schetter v. Southern Oregon Co., 19 Oreg. 192, 24 Pac. 25.

Pennsylvania.— Keystone Surgical Supply Mfg. Co. v. Bate, 187 Pa. St. 460, 41 Atl. 299.

Rhode Island.— Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312, 53 Am. Dec. 624.

United States.— West Virginia Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. 587, 23 L. ed. 328; Koehler v. Black River Falls Iron Co., 2 Black 715, 17 L. ed. 339.

England.— Parker v. McKenna, L. R. 10 Ch. 96, 44 L. J. Ch. 425, 31 L. T. Rep. N. S. 739, 23 Wkly. Rep. 271; In re International Contract Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 525; Madrid Bank v. Pelly, L. R. 7 Eq. 442, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 13; Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc. v. Coleman, L. R. 6 H. L. 189, 42 L. J. Ch. 644, 29 L. T. Rep. N. S. 1, 21 Wkly. Rep. 696 [reversing L. R. 6 Ch. 558, 40 L. J. Ch. 262, 24 L. T. Rep. N. S. 290, 19 Wkly. Rep. 481]; Gaskell v. Chambers, 26 Beav. 360, 5 Jur. N. S. 52, 28 L. J. Ch. 385; Great Luxembourg R. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav. 586, 4 Jur. N. S. 839, 6 Wkly. Rep. 711; In re Cameron's Coalbrook, etc., R. Co., 18 Beav. 339; York, etc., R. Co. v. Hudson, 16 Beav. 485, 22 L. J. Ch. 529, 1 Wkly. Rep. 187, 510, 19 Eng. L. & Eq. 361.

Procuring corporate contract and reletting it at a higher price.— In the application of this doctrine, it is well held to be a fraudulent breach of trust for a director and a member of a building committee of a corporation to secure a contract for the construction of a building for the corporation at a price greater than a third person had offered to take it, and to sublet it to the latter without revealing the transaction to the corporation; and the corporation has the election to rescind, or to waive the right to rescind, and pay the actual cost of the work to be performed. Keystone Surgical Supply Mfg. Co. v. Bate, 187 Pa. St. 460, 41 Atl. 299.

The rule as applicable to trustees generally is stated and illustrated in the following cases: Michoud v. Girod, 4 How. (U. S.) 503, 11 L. ed. 1076; Kimber v. Barber, L. R. 8 Ch. 56, 27 L. T. Rep. N. S. 526, 21 Wkly. Rep. 65; Tennant v. Trenchard, L. R. 4 Ch. 537, 38 L. J. Ch. 169, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 856; Bentley v. Craven, 18 Beav. 75; Gillett v. Peppercorne, 3 Beav. 78, 43 Eng. Ch. 78; Hamilton v. Wright, 9 Cl. & F. 111, 8 Eng. Reprint 357; Blisset v. Daniel, 1 Eq. 484, 10 Hare 493, 18 Jur. 122, 1 Wkly. Rep. 529, 44 Eng. Ch. 478; Tyrrell v. London Bank, 10 H. L. Cas. 26, 8 Jur. N. S. 849, 31 L. J. Ch. 369, 6 L. T. Rep. N. S. 1, 10 Wkly. Rep. 359 [affirming 27 Beav. 273]; Bowes v. Toronto, 11 Moore P. C. 463, 14 Eng. Reprint 770; Fawcett v. Whitehouse, 4 L. J. Ch. O. S. 64, 8 L. J. Ch. O. S. 50, 1 Russ. & M. 132, 5 Eng. Ch. 132; Hichens v. Congreve, 1 Russ. & M. 150 note, 5 Eng. Ch. 150; Ex p. James, 8 Ves. Jr. 327, 7 Rev. Rep. 76. This is an application of the general principle that an agent cannot speculate out of his agency, and that what he gains by such speculation belongs to his principal, and in the case of a trustee to the trust fund. Tobey v. Robinson, 99 Ill. 222; Atlee v. Fink, 75 Mo. 100, 42 Am. Rep. 385; Jacobus v. Munn, 37 N. J. Eq. 48; Bliss v. Matteson, 45 N. Y. 22. See also in affirmation of the principle Fuller v. Dame, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 472; Spinks v. Davis, 32 Miss. 152.

10. Perry Trusts, § 427 et seq.; Michoud v. Girod, 4 How. (U. S.) 503, 11 L. ed. 1076; Kimber v. Barber, L. R. 8 Ch. 56, 27 L. T. Rep. N. S. 526, 21 Wkly. Rep. 65; Tennant v. Trenchard, L. R. 4 Ch. 537, 38 L. J. Ch. 169, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 856; Bentley v. Craven, 18 Beav. 75; Gillett v. Peppercorne, 3 Beav. 78, 43 Eng. Ch. 78; Hamilton v. Wright, 9 Cl. & F. 111, 8 Eng. Reprint 357; Blisset v. Daniel, 1 Eq. 484, 10 Hare 493, 18 Jur. 122, 1 Wkly. Rep. 529, 44 Eng. Ch. 478; Fawcett v. Whitehouse, 4 L. J. Ch. O. S. 64, 8 L. J. Ch. O. S. 50, 1 Russ. & M. 132, 5 Eng. Ch. 132; Hichens v. Congreve, 1 Russ. & M. 150 note, 5 Eng. Ch. 150; Ex p. James, 8 Ves. Jr. 337, 7 Rev. Rep. 76.

11. Alabama.— Perry v. Tuskaloosa Cotton-Seed Oil-Mill Co., 93 Ala. 364, 9 So. 217.

Kansas.— Thomas v. Sweet, 37 Kan. 183, 14 Pac. 545.

Maine.— European, etc., R. Co. v. Poor, 59 Me. 277.

Massachusetts.— Parker v. Nickerson, 112 Mass. 195.

Missouri.— Keokuk Northern Line Packet Co. v. Davidson, 95 Mo. 467, 8 S. W. 545; Ward v. Davidson, 89 Mo. 445, 1 S. W. 846.

New Jersey.— Redmond v. Dickerson, 9 N. J. Eq. 507, 59 Am. Dec. 418.

New York.— Redhead v. Parkway Driving Club, 148 N. Y. 471, 42 N. E. 1047 [affirming 7 Misc. 275, 27 N. Y. Suppl. 887, 58 N. Y. St. 534]; Barnes v. Brown, 80 N. Y. 527; requires the contracting officers of the corporation to account to the corporation for any commissions which they have received from the other contracting party;[12] or for any rebate which he may have received from the purchase-price of property sold to the corporation, as a member of the purchasing committee of the corporation, although he is also a member of a firm of real-estate brokers, and may be accountable to his firm for such rebate as commissions;[13] or for indemnification money paid to him by the promoter of the corporation to secure him against loss in purchasing the shares necessary to qualify him as a director thereof — which money belongs to the corporation.[14] Nor do the vermiculations by which the unfaithful officer endeavors to conceal the real nature of the transaction have any other effect than to show his guilty scienter, and thus furnish evidence against him.[15]

c. Such Contracts Inure to Benefit of Corporation or May Be Repudiated by It. A contract by which a director uses his official power and influence to his own personal advantage, or to the advantage of third persons, and to the disadvantage of the corporation, is immoral and corrupt, in the sense that it will not be judicially enforced;[16] but it will be relieved against, at the suit of the corporation or of its shareholders, under principles hereafter explained; or it will, at the election of Blake v. Buffalo Creek R. Co., 56 N. Y. 485; Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317; Cumberland Coal, etc., Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb. 553.

Pennsylvania.— Bird Coal, etc., Co. v. Humes, 157 Pa. St. 278, 27 Atl. 750, 33 Wkly. Notes Cas. 174, 37 Am. St. Rep. 727.

Rhode Island.— Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312, 53 Am. Dec. 624, 3 R. I. 9.

England.— Parker v. McKenna, L. R. 10 Ch. 96, 44 L. J. Ch. 425, 31 L. T. Rep. N. S. 739, 23 Wkly. Rep. 271; In re International Contract Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 525; Madrid Bank v. Pelly, L. R. 7 Eq. 442, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 13; Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc. v. Coleman, L. R. 6 H. L. 189, 42 L. J. Ch. 644, 29 L. T. Rep. N. S. 1, 21 Wkly. Rep. 696 [reversing L. R. 6 Ch. 558, 40 L. J. Ch. 262, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 357, 24 L. T. Rep. N. S. 290, 18 Wkly. Rep. 570, 19 Wkly. Rep. 481]; Great Luxembourg R. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav. 586, 4 Jur. N. S. 839, 6 Wkly. Rep. 711; York, etc., R. Co. v. Hudson, 16 Beav. 485, 22 L. J. Ch. 529, 1 Wkly. Rep. 187, 510, 19 Eng. L. & Eq. 361; In re Cameron's Coalbrook, etc., R. Co., 10 Beav. 339.

Illustrations of the doctrine of the above text may be found in the following among many other cases:

California.—Farmers', etc., Bank v. Downey, 53 Cal. 466, 31 Am. Rep. 62.

Kentucky.— Widrig v. Newport St. R. Co., 82 Ky. 511.

Missouri.— Keokuk Northern Line Packet Co. v. Davidson, 95 Mo. 467, 8 S. W. 545; Ward v. Davidson, 89 Mo. 445, 1 S. W. 846.

New Jersey.— Redmond v. Dickerson, 9 N. J. Eq. 507, 59 Am. Dec. 418.

New York.— Rudd v. Robinson, 126 N. Y. 113, 26 N. E. 1046, 36 N. Y. St. 500, 22 Am. St. Rep. 816, 12 L. R. A. 473 [reversing 54 Hun 339, 7 N. Y. Suppl. 535, 27 N. Y. St. 98]; St. James's Church v. Church of Redeemer, 45 Barb. 356.

Pennsylvania.— Simons v. Vulcan Oil, etc., Min. Co., 61 Pa. St. 202, 100 Am. Dec. 628; McElhenny's Appeal, 61 Pa. St. 188; Beeson v. Beeson, 9 Pa. St. 279.

South Carolina.— Palmetto Lumber Co. v. Risley, 25 S. C. 309.

England.— Madrid Bank v. Pelly, L. R. 7 Eq. 442, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 13; Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc. v. Coleman, L. R. 6 H. L. 189, 42 L. J. Ch. 644, 29 L. T. Rep. N. S. 1, 21 Wkly. Rep. 696; Gaskell v. Chambers, 26 Beav. 360, 5 Jur. N. S. 52, 28 L. J. Ch. 385; York, etc., R. Co. v. Hudson, 16 Beav. 485, 22 L. J. Ch. 529, 1 Wkly. Rep. 187, 510, 19 Eng. L. & Eq. 361; In re Brighton Brewery Co., 37 L. J. Ch. 278, 16 Wkly. Rep. 472; Ex p. Hill, 32 L. J. Ch. 154, 7 L. T. Rep. N. S. 656, 1 New Rep. 148; Bowes v. Toronto, 11 Moore P. C. 463, 14 Eng. Reprint 770. See also Benson v. Heathorn, 1 Y. & Coll. Ch. 326, 20 Eng. Ch. 326.

12. Jameson v. Coldwell, 25 Oreg. 199, 35 Pac. 245.

13. Redhead v. Parkway Driving Club, 148 N. Y. 471, 42 N. E. 1047 [affirming 7 Misc. (N. Y.) 275, 27 N. Y. Suppl. 887, 58 N. Y. St. 887].

14. In re North Australian Territory Co., [1892] 1 Ch. 322, 61 L. J. Ch. 129, 65 L. T. Rep. N. S. 800, 40 Wkly. Rep. 212 [following In re Canadian Oil Works Corp., L. R. 10 Ch. 593, 44 L. J. Ch. 721, 33 L. T. Rep. N. S. 466, 24 Wkly. Rep. 191; In re Caerphilly Colliery Co., 5 Ch. D. 336, 46 L. J. Ch. 339, 25 Wkly. Rep. 618, and distinguishing Cavendish Bentinck v. Fenn, 12 App. Cas. 652, 57 L. J. Ch. 552, 57 L. T. Rep. N. S. 773, 36 Wkly. Rep. 441].

15. See for illustration Rutland Electric Light Co. v. Bates, 68 Vt. 579, 35 Atl. 480, 54 Am. St. Rep. 904.

16. Attaway v. St. Louis Third Nat. Bank, 93 Mo. 485, 5 S. W. 16. If a director opposes a transaction pending between his corporation and third persons, and the latter buy him off and give their note to him as the price of his treachery, he cannot on grounds of public policy recover on the note. Kauffman v. Keiper, 5 Pa. Dist. 620, 18 Pa. Co. Ct. 181.

the corporation, inure to its benefit.[17] It is therefore said to be either void, or to inure to the benefit of the corporation.[18] If therefore a director acting for himself proposes to the corporation a contract, from the execution of which the director will derive a secret profit, that profit belongs to the company at its election.[19]

d. Directors Have Power to Enter Into Open and Fair Contracts With Corporation. Directors are not disabled from entering into contracts with the corporation, provided there be enough directors on the other side of the contract to make a quorum, and provided the contract is open, fair, and honest. The rule under consideration prohibits a director from acquiring secret profits through contracts made with or for the corporation, but does not prohibit contracts with the corporation, where there has been a full and fair disclosure of his interest in the contract.[20] For example it has been held that the shareholders and directors of a manufacturing corporation, who, with their own money and on their own credit and risk, erect new works, may make a profit thereon upon the sale to such corporation of such works, and are not accountable therefor, especially where the transaction is advantageous to the corporation, has been ratified by a unanimous vote at a shareholders' meeting, and an opportunity is given the shareholders to rescind, with full knowledge of all the facts; and where opportunity was also given to the corporation to erect such works before their construction was undertaken by the directors.[21]

e. Rule Applies to Secret and Not to Open Profits. Such contracts will be scrutinized in equity, and will be set aside if not made in the utmost fairness and good faith.[22] So far from being void ab initio, such contracts are good as against third persons, who are not in a position to set up the rights of the corporation by way of defense against them.[23] The rule is specially applicable where, although the director received a profit out of the transaction, the contract was made in good faith, was not improvident, had been performed, and the corporation had received the benefit of its performance, under which circumstances it has been

17. Sargent v. Kansas Midland R. Co., 48 Kan. 672, 29 Pac. 1063.

18. Sargent v. Kansas Midland R. Co., 48 Kan. 672, 29 Pac. 1063.

19. Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc. v. Coleman, L. R. 6 H. L. 189, 42 L. J. Ch. 644, 29 L. T. Rep. N. S. 1, 21 Wkly. Rep. 696. Obviously a director receiving from his company shares of stock for which he has paid nothing will be compelled to account to the company for his profits on the sale thereof. Parker v. McKenna, L. R. 10 Ch. 96, 44 L. J. Ch. 425, 31 L. T. Rep. N. S. 739, 23 Wkly. Rep. 271; York, etc., R. Co. v. Hudson, 16 Beav. 485, 22 L. J. Ch. 529, 1 Wkly. Rep. 187, 510, 19 Eng. L. & Eq. 361. Or he will be compelled to pay the value of the shares, if retained by him, as where qualification shares are allotted to a director at the expense of the company. In re Canadian Oil Works Corp., L. R. 10 Ch. 593, 44 L. J. Ch. 721, 33 L. T. Rep. N. S. 466, 24 Wkly. Rep. 191; In re Western of Canada Oil, etc., Co., L. R. 20 Eq. 580; In re Diamond Fuel Co., 13 Ch. D. 169, 49 L. J. Ch. 301, 41 L. T. Rep. 717, 28 Wkly. Rep. 309. The directors of a company secretly receiving a bonus for the performance of their duties will be compelled to yield it up to their company. General Exch. Bank v. Horner, L. R. 9 Eq. 480, 39 L. J. Ch. 393, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 693, 18 Wkly. Rep. 414; Madrid Bank v. Pelly, L. R. 7 Eq. 442, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 13; Gaskell v. Chambers, 26 Beav. 360, 5 Jur. N. S. 52, 28 L. J. Ch. 385. See also Maxwell v. Port Tennant Patent Steam Fuel, etc., Co., 24 Beav. 495.

The same rule has been applied to the solicitor and engineer of a corporation, acting as its contracting agents. Hedges v. Paquett, 3 Oreg. 77; Mann v. Edinburgh Northern Tramways Co., [1893] A. C. 69, 57 J. P. 245, 62 L. J. P. C. 74, 68 L. T. Rep. N. S. 96, 1 Reports 86.

20. See Cavendish Bentinck v. Fenn, 12 App. Cas. 652, 57 L. J. Ch. 552, 57 L. T. Rep. N. S. 773, 36 Wkly. Rep. 441. Compare Hedges v. Paquett, 3 Oreg. 77; Robison v. McCracken, 52 Fed. 726 [affirmed in 57 Fed. 375, 6 C. C. A. 400]; Kaye v. Croydon Tramways Co., [1898] 1 Ch. 358, 67 L. J. Ch. 222, 78 L. T. Rep. N. S. 237, 46 Wkly. Rep. 405.

21. Broughton v. Jones, 120 Mich. 462, 79 N. W. 691; Barr v. Pittsburgh Plate-Glass Co., 57 Fed. 86, 6 C. C. A. 260 [affirming 51 Fed. 33]. Compare U. S. Rolling Stock Co. v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 34 Ohio St. 450, 32 Am. Rep. 380; Browne v. U. S. Board, etc., Co., 20 Ohio Cir. Ct. 351, 11 Ohio Cir. Dec. 102 [reversing 6 Ohio N. P. 254].

22. Singer v. Salt Lake Copper Mfg. Co., 17 Utah 143, 53 Pac. 1024, 70 Am. St. Rep. 773.

23. Klein v. Funk, 82 Minn. 3, 84 N. W. 460.

held that it could not be undone by a receiver subsequently appointed for the corporation.[24]

f. Such Contracts May Be Made Good by Ratification. A corporation may waive the breach of trust and make good the contract by ratification or adoption as in other cases.[25] But as in other cases it must ratify it as a whole, and cannot ratify it in part and reject it in part.[26] Such a ratification may be a ratification by all the shareholders other than the director, between whom and the corporation the contract was made.[27]

g. Rule Subject to Maxim That He Who Seeks Equity Must Do Equity. The rule under consideration does not extend so far as to work an entire confiscation of the property of the unfaithful director, which he may have attempted to sell to his corporation at an advance over its cost to him, so as to derive a secret profit therefrom; but in the accounting which takes place under the principle the director will be compelled to yield to the corporation the secret profit, but will be allowed a credit for the property sold to the corporation at its real value.[28] But it is said to be a general rule of equity that fraud or any gross misconduct on the part of the salvors in connection with the property saved will work forfeiture of the salvage. Applying this principle, where a director advanced money to redeem the bonds of the company from a pledge, and charged the money to the company and received its notes therefor, and then attempted to levy upon and sell the bonds, and himself become the purchaser of them at a nominal sum, thus gaining an unconscionable advantage over the other bondholders, it was held that no allowance should be made to him for the money thus advanced by him.[29]

h. Must Account For Bribes Given to Influence Their Official Action. Gifts, gratuities, or bribes given to a director or to influence his official action must be accounted for by him and surrendered to the company.[30] If the directors of a 24. Ft. Payne Rolling Mill v. Hill, 174 Mass. 224, 54 N. E. 532.

An illustration of the doctrine of the text may be found in Wright v. Knoxville Livery, etc., Co., (Tenn. Ch. App. 1900) 59 S. W. 677. The presumption of invalidity of a note of a corporation, made by an officer thereof to himself as payee, is overcome by evidence that it was not made for the personal use of the officer, but for the exclusive benefit of the corporation. Africa v. Duluth News-Tribune Co., 82 Minn. 283, 84 N. W. 1019, 83 Am. St. Rep. 424. A contract between a director of a railroad and one who has undertaken to construct the road for its bonds, entered into after the construction contract has become binding and the bonds are delivered, by which the director is to share in the profits of the undertaking, does not make him a purchaser of the bonds of the railroad, within the meaning of a statute making a sale of railroad bonds, either directly or indirectly, to its directors for less than par void. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Continental Trust Co., 95 Fed. 497, 36 C. C. A. 155 [rehearing denied in 96 Fed. 784, 37 C. C. A. 587 (modifying 82 Fed. 642, 86 Fed. 929)].

25. Hannerty v. Standard Theater Co., 109 Mo. 297, 19 S. W. 82; Larwill v. Burke, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 513, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 605; Great Luxembourg R. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav. 586, 4 Jur. N. S. 839, 6 Wkly. Rep. 711. See also Trapp v. Fidelity Nat. Bank, 101 Ky. 485, 41 S. W. 577, 43 S. W. 470, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 1114.

26. Great Luxembourg R. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav. 586, 4 Jur. N. S. 839, 6 Wkly. Rep. 711.

27. For example leases made by a corporation to a director holding all but one per cent of its capital stock, ratified by the other shareholders, who were all directors, would not be set aside at the instance of a receiver appointed in foreclosure proceedings, not representing creditors. Tyler v. Hamilton, 62 Fed. 187.

Rights of a director whose executory contract with the corporation has been adopted by its receiver under the direction of the court appointing him, and afterward by order of the court abandoned and abrogated because unfair and burdensome. Griffith v. Blackwater Boom, etc., Co., 46 W. Va. 56, 33 S. E. 125.

28. Great Luxembourg R. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav. 586, 4 Jur. N. S. 839, 6 Wkly. Rep. 711, per Sir John Romilly, M. R.

For an application of the principle that he who seeks equity must do equity, in an analogous case, where a contract had been for the building of a railroad, between the railroad company and a construction company, in which two of the contractors of the railroad company were shareholders, see Thomas v. Brownville, etc., R. Co., 109 U. S. 522, 3 S. Ct. 315, 27 L. ed. 1018 [reversing on this point 2 Fed. 877, 1 McCrary 392]. The same principle was applied in Wardell v. Union Pac. R. Co., 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,164, 4 Dill. 330 [affirmed in 103 U. S. 651, 26 L. ed. 509].

29. Washburn v. Green, 133 U. S. 30, 10 S. Ct. 280, 33 L. ed. 516.

30. Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 5 Ex. D. 319, 43 L. T. Rep. N. S. 676, 29 Wkly. Rep. 373, and other cases cited below.

corporation receive a sum of money as a bribe for the doing of a certain act which may or may not be prejudicial to their company, they are trustees in equity of the fund so corruptly received, and the company may also proceed against them for the damages it has thereby suffered. Although such an agreement is voidable,[31] there is no doubt that both remedies are open to it. The corporation may proceed against them at law or in equity for damages for the breach of trust.[32]

9. Not Chargeable With Profits Made by Third Party Out of Their Trust Relation. It has been held, however, that this rule does not extend so far as to charge the unfaithful director with profits which a third party, in the particular case, his partner in another business, has been able to make out of his trust relation;[33] but the better opinion seems to be that he is chargeable with all that he himself made, and with all that another person received through him in consequence of his breach of trust.

10. Cannot Buy Shares From Company and Resell at Profit Without Surrendering Profit to Company. Upon the principle that the same person cannot be both buyer and seller, and that a trustee cannot purchase at his own sale, it has been held that a director will not be permitted, even with the consent of the body of the corporation, to buy in the shares of the corporation from an allottee of them who is unable to perform his contract of purchase, and then resell them at an advance and retain the profit thus made, but that he must surrender the profit to the company.[34]

11. But May Purchase Shares of Another Shareholder. A director in a corporation does not sustain such a trust relation to an individual shareholder as will prevent him, in the absence of actual fraud, such as a combination to depress the price of the shares for the purpose of buying them in, from purchasing the shares of another shareholder in the corporation.[35]

12. Cannot Employ Funds of Company to Buy in Its Own Shares. As a corporation has no power to buy in its own shares, and thereby distribute its capital among its shareholders in advance of its creditors, and to the possible prejudice of future creditors,[36] a fortiori if the directors of the company expend the funds of the company in this way, they are guilty of a breach of trust, and a court of equity will compel them to make good the moneys so expended;[37] and in the

31. Bliss v. Matteson, 45 N. Y. 22, opinion by Grover, J.

32. Simons v. Vulcan Oil, etc., Co., 61 Pa. St. 202, 100 Am. Dec. 628.

Apt illustrations of this principle will also be found in the following cases: Bent v. Priest, 10 Mo. App. 543 [affirmed in 86 Mo. 475]; Eden v. Ridsdales Railway Lamp, etc., Co., 23 Q. B. D. 368, 58 L. J. Q. B. 579, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 444, 38 Wkly. Rep. 55; In re West Jewel Tin Min. Co., 10 Ch. D. 579, 48 L. J. Ch. 425, 40 L. T. Rep. N. S. 43, 27 Wkly. Rep. 310; Gaskell v. Chambers, 26 Beav. 360, 5 Jur. N. S. 52, 28 L. J. Ch. 385; Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 5 Ex. D. 319, 43 L. T. Rep. N. S. 676, 29 Wkly. Rep. 373. Compare Bent v. Lewis, 15 Mo. App. 40, 578. This last case was reversed by the supreme court in 88 Mo. 462, but the principles upon which the intermediate appellate court proceeded, and which were announced in Bent v. Priest, 10 Mo. App. 543, were adhered to.

33. Bent v. Priest, 10 Mo. App. 543 [affirmed in 86 Mo. 475].

34. Parker v. McKenna, L. R. 10 Ch. 96, 44 L. J. Ch. 425, 31 L. T. Rep. N. S. 739, 23 Wkly. Rep. 271.

35. Tippecanoe County v. Reynolds, 44 Ind. 509, 15 Am. Rep. 245; Carpenter v. Danforth, 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 581; Stark v. Soule, 9 N. Y. St. 555; Deaderick v. Wilson, 8 Baxt. (Tenn.) 108.

Necessity of purchasing director disclosing facts affecting value.— There is a seemingly unsound and unjust decision to the effect that the directors of a corporation may purchase the shares of other shareholders without disclosing to them facts within the peculiar knowledge of the directors, which have come to their knowledge in their official capacities, which facts affect the value of the shares. Tippecanoe County v. Reynolds, 44 Ind. 509, 15 Am. Rep. 245, Downey, C. J., dissenting. As to the principle which requires a disclosure of the facts by the purchaser to the seller in such case see Walsham v. Stainton, 1 De G. J. & S. 678, 9 Jur. N. S. 1261, 33 L. J. Ch. 68, 9 L. T. Rep. N. S. 357, 3 New Rep. 56, 12 Wkly. Rep. 63, 66 Eng. Ch. 527. That this principle would not apply in a case where the seller of the shares is himself a director and consequently has the same means of knowledge as the purchaser see Perry v. Pearson, 135 Ill. 218, 25 N. E. 636.

36. See supra, VI, L, 2, e.

37. Hodgkinson v. National Live Stock Ins. Co., 26 Beav. 473.

event of the insolvency of the company they will be so chargeable at the suit of the creditors.[38]

13. Selling Their Own Property to Company — a. In General. If a director who is the concealed owner of property sells it to the company, he will be compelled in equity to account to the company or to its representative for the profits which have accrued to him.[39]

b. Buying Property For Themselves, and Selling It to Corporation at Profit. On the same principle if directors buy property for themselves and then resell it to the corporation at a profit, in other words buy it of themselves in their character of directors for the company, they will be compelled to account to the company for that profit.[40]

14. Defrauding Corporation by Colluding With Its Promoters. It would be impracticable to trace in an article where brevity must be kept in view, the various and ingenious schemes of fraud disclosed by the cases under this head. A common form of fraud has been for the promoters of a corporation to procure a number of gentlemen of standing in the community, who agree to act as directors, provided they are indemnified against any responsibility as shareholders. For this purpose the requisite number of "qualification shares" is issued to each of these gentlemen, and they thereby become the pliant and superserviceable tools of the promoters, who through them sell to the corporation property which the promoters have acquired, at a great advance over its value; or who issue shares of the corporation to the promoters in exchange for property transferred by them to it, at a gross undervaluation of the shares or overvaluation of the property which shares the promoters unload upon the innocent public, pocket the gains, and, when the bubble bursts, leave their dupes in the lurch. Courts of equity untangle such transactions as best they can. One of their methods is to put the unfaithful directors upon the list of contributories, and to compel them to pay for the qualification shares which have been placed in their names, and which they hold themselves out to the public as really owning, precisely as though the promoters had not paid for those shares.[41]

38. Evans v. Coventry, 2 Jur. N. S. 557, 25 L. J. Ch. 489, 4 Wkly. Rep. 466, 8 De G. M. & G. 835, 57 Eng. Ch. 645.

39. Great Luxembourg R. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav. 586, 4 Jur. N. S. 839, 6 Wkly. Rep. 711. Compare Ladywell Min. Co. v. Brookes, 35 Ch. D. 400, 56 L. J. Ch. 684, 56 L. T. Rep. N. S. 677, 35 Wkly. Rep. 785. If the owners of property who organize a corporation to work it and convey it to the corporation are personally indebted for the purchase of it by means of promissory notes which are not secured by any lien upon the property, and one of the owners afterward takes up the notes, he cannot make the money so expended a claim against the corporation. Ruby Chief Min., etc., Co. v. Gurley, 17 Colo. 199, 29 Pac. 668.

40. Illinois.— Higgins v. Lansingh, 154 Ill. 301, 40 N. E. 362.

Massachusetts.— Parker v. Nickerson, 112 Mass. 195.

New York.— East New York, etc., R. Co. v. Elmore, 53 N. Y. 624, treasurer buying shares of the company at a discount, and attempting to offset them at par against his liability to the company for moneys of the company in his hands.

Oregon.— Stanley v. Luse, 36 Oreg. 25, 58 Pac. 75, holding that a purchase of property for a corporation by its directors is voidable in toto if any part of the transaction is attended with fraud, either express or constructive, by reason of the personal interest of the directors in the property and their failure to disclose it.

Pennsylvania.— Danville, etc., R. Co. v. Kase, (1898) 39 Atl. 301, 41 Wkly. Notes Cas. 411.

Wisconsin.— Spaulding v. North Milwaukee Town Site Co., 106 Wis. 481, 81 N. W. 1064.

England.—Benson v. Heathorn, 1 Y. & Coll. Ch. 326, 20 Eng. Ch. 326.

But there is a seemingly untenable decision that a sale of real property by a director to the corporation will not be set aside on the ground of fraud, although the valuation placed on the premises by the vendor was known by him to be excessive, when opportunity for inquiry was afforded, and the contract was not made solely upon the representations of the vendor director. Stetson v. Northern Invest. Co., 104 Iowa 393, 73 N. W. 869. Plainly, in view of the extreme good faith demanded of a director, it is not enough that the other party to the transaction had an opportunity for inquiry; the corporation had a right to rely absolutely upon its representatives, even though there may have been other inducements.

41. In re Western of Canada Oil, etc., Co., L. R. 20 Eq. 580, is an excellent illustration. See also Eden v. Ridsdales Railway Lamp, 15. Buying Up Claims Against Company at Discount, and Proving Them Against Company For Full Amount — a. In General. There is a questionable decision to the effect that trustees or directors of a corporation, while it continues to be a going concern, are not by virtue of their offices precluded from buying its bonds or other lawful obligations at a discount, with the right to enforce them against the company for their full amount.[42] The vice of this decision is that it allows directors to assume positions antagonistic to their company, which as already seen is contrary to the rule of equity.[43] Clearly this will not be allowed by an officer of the corporation, who at the time is in practical control of it, and who therefore is substantially both buyer and seller, and who conceals the intended sale from the board of managers.[44] And beyond question a director of an insolvent corporation will not be allowed to buy up its debentures at a discount, and prove them against the corporation as a creditor for their face value.[45] The directors buying up the securities of the corporation for such a purpose are chargeable with knowledge of the circumstances under which they were issued.[46] In such a case the director has no claim against the company beyond the amount expended by him in making the purchase;[47] and he must account in equity to the shareholders for the profits which he thus makes out of the transaction.[48] The rule has no application to a case where the trust relation of the directors has wholly terminated, etc., Co., 23 Q. B. D. 368, 58 L. J. Q. B. 579, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 444, 38 Wkly. Rep. 55.

Incorporating a partnership, and turning over to a director partnership money in payment of a debt to director, when not permitted. Rudd v. Robinson, 126 N. Y. 113, 26 N. E. 1046, 36 N. Y. St. 500, 22 Am. St. Rep. 816 [reversed in 54 Hun (N. Y.) 339, 7 N. Y. Suppl. 535, 27 N. Y. St. 98].

For other such schemes where the directors have been charged in equity on the ground of breach of trust see In re Canadian Oil Works Corp., L. R. 10 Ch. 593, 44 L. J. Ch. 721, 33 L. T. Rep. N. S. 466, 24 Wkly. Rep. 191; In re Disdri, L. R. 11 Eq. 242, 40 L. J. Ch. 246, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 694, 19 Wkly. Rep. 175; In re Englefield Colliery Co., 8 Ch. D. 388, 38 L. T. Rep. N. S. 112; In re Caerphilly Colliery Co., 5 Ch. D. 336, 46 L. J. Ch. 339, 25 Wkly. Rep. 618; In re British Provident L., etc., Assoc., 5 Ch. D. 306, 46 L. J. Ch. 360, 36 L. T. Rep. N. S. 329, 25 Wkly. Rep. 476; In re Nowak Consols Tin Min. Co., 2 Ch. D. 1, 45 L. J. Ch. 148, 33 L. T. Rep. N. S. 517, 24 Wkly. Rep. 49. Compare In re Anglo-Noravian Hungarian Junction R. Co., L. R. 8 Ch. 768, 42 L. J. Ch. 857; In re La Maucha Irr., etc., Co., L. R. 8 Ch. 548, 42 L. J. Ch. 465, 28 L. T. Rep. N. S. 652, 21 Wkly. Rep. 518; In re Australian Direct Steam Nav. Co., 3 Ch. D. 661 [affirmed in 5 Ch. D. 70].

42. Seymour v. Spring Forest Cemetery Assoc., 144 N. Y. 333, 39 N. E. 365, 63 N. Y. St. 672, 26 L. R. A. 859.

43. See supra, IX, G, 5, c.

44. Higgins v. Lansingh, 154 Ill. 301, 40 N. E. 362.

45. Bulkley v. Whitcomb, 121 N. Y. 107, 24 N. E. 13, 30 N. Y. St. 569; In re Imperial Land Co., 4 Ch. D. 566, 46 L. J. Ch. 235.

46. In re Imperial Land Co., 4 Ch. D. 566, 46 L. J. Ch. 235.

47. Bulkley v. Whitcomb, 121 N. Y. 107, 24 N. E. 13.

48. Thomas v. Sweet, 37 Kan. 183, 14 Pac. 545; Chouteau Ins. Co. v. Floyd, 74 Mo. 286. See also Lingle v. National Ins. Co., 45 Mo. 109.

Execution in favor of officer enjoined.— So where the president of a corporation bought up a small claim against it, and took valuable property of the company in part payment, it was held that he should be enjoined from levying an execution for the balance. Brewster v. Stratman, 4 Mo. App. 41.

It has been laid down that the officers of a corporation cannot purchase any claim against, or interest in, the company, except in trust for the shareholders, after a resolution has been adopted by themselves, as managers, directing one of their company to purchase for the benefit of the company. Kimmell v. Geeting, 2 Grant (Pa.) 125.

Doctrine that director may buy notes of corporation and mortgage thereby secured.— According to one holding an officer and director of a corporation may buy and assert against it its valid promissory notes and mortgages, given by it, upon its property, as liens in their full integrity. Forest Glen Brick, etc., Co. v. Gade, 55 Ill. App. 181.

Transferring claims against the corporation to a stranger.— If an officer of a corporation has a valid claim against it, his official relation to it does not prevent him from dealing with his claim as any other person might deal with the same species of property. He may transfer it to a stranger; and he is not restrained from doing this by a statute which declares that it shall not be lawful for a corporation to assign or transfer its property to one of its officers or shareholders in payment of debts, or make any transfer in contemplation of insolvency, and make such acts void. Jefferson County Nat. Bank v. Townley, 159 N. Y. 490, 54 N. E. 74 [reversing 92 Hun (N. Y.) 172, 38 N. Y. Suppl. 584, 74 N. Y. St. 212].

as where there has been an assignment of the assets of the corporation for the benefit of its creditors and a sale of the entire assets.[49]

b. View That They May Recover Amount Expended in Such Purchases. It seems that equity relieves against such transactions only to the extent of forfeiting the profit which the unfaithful directors have made, and does not confiscate the securities which the directors have thus bought up.[50]

16. Cannot Deal For Themselves With Corporate Property — a. In General. In general a director cannot deal in his own behalf in respect of the corporate property, or in respect of any matters involving the exercise of his duties as a director.[51] He cannot purchase the property for himself at an unfair valuation, and take a conveyance for his own benefit; and what he cannot in this respect do for himself he cannot do for another.[52] A quorum of directors therefore cannot engage in a scheme to sell the entire property of the corporation (except its real estate) and transfer to the purchasers the whole business of the corporation, without and against the consent of the other directors and the shareholders.[53]

b. Cannot Pay or Secure Individual Debts With Corporate Property or Credit. For the directors or contracting officers of a corporation to divert its property, or

49. Hammond's Appeal, 123 Pa. St. 503, 16 Atl. 419, 23 Wkly. Notes Cas. 59.

50. See for illustration Kitchen v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 69 Mo. 224; Lingle v. National Ins. Co., 45 Mo. 109. Compare Bulkley v. Whitcomb, 121 N. Y. 107, 24 N. E. 13, 30 N. Y. St. 569.

51. Connecticut.—Alford v. Miller, 32 Conn. 543.

Indiana.— Port v. Russell, 36 Ind. 60, 10 Am. Rep. 5; Paine v. Lake Erie, etc., R. Co., 31 Ind. 283.

Maine.— European, etc., R. Co. v. Poor, 59 Me. 277.

Massachusetts.— Fuller v. Dame, 18 Pick. 472.

Michigan.— Flint, etc., R. Co. v. Dewey, 14 Mich. 477.

New Jersey.— Redmond v. Dickerson, 9 N. J. Eq. 507, 59 Am. Dec. 418.

New York.— Hoyle v. Plattsburgh, etc., R. Co., 54 N. Y. 314, 13 Am. Rep. 595; Coleman v. Second Ave. R. Co., 38 N. Y. 201, 48 Barb. 371; Western R. Co. v. Bayne, 11 Hun 166; Gray v. New York, etc., Steamship Co., 3 Hun 383; Risley v. Indianapolis, etc., R. Co., 1 Hun 202; Barton v. Port Jackson, etc., R. Co., 17 Barb. 397; Blatchford v. Ross, 5 Abb. Pr. N. S. 434.

Pennsylvania.— Kimmell v. Geeting, 2 Grant 125.

Wisconsin.—Pickett v. Wiota School Dist., 25 Wis. 551, 3 Am. Rep. 105.

Compare Stark Bank v. U. S. Pottery Co., 34 Vt. 144.

52. Murray v. Vanderbilt, 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 140; Cumberland Coal, etc., Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 553; New York Cent. Ins. Co. v. National Protection Ins. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 468. Compare Smith v. Lansing, 22 N. Y. 520.

53. Abbot v. American Hard Rubber Co., 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 578, 21 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 193 [affirming 11 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 204, 20 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 199]. See also Rollins v. Clay, 33 Me. 132; Bank Com'rs v. Brest Bank, Harr. Ch. (Mich.) 106; Kean v. Johnson, 9 N. J. Eq. 401; Conro v. Port Henry Iron Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 27; Hartford, etc., R. Co. v. Croswell, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 383, 40 Am. Dec. 354; Ward v. Sea Ins. Co., 17 Paige (N. Y.) 294. See also San Francisco, etc., R. Co. v. Bee, 48 Cal. 398; San Diego v. San Diego, etc., R. Co., 44 Cal. 106; Hoffman Steam Coal Co. v. Cumberland Coal, etc., Co., 16 Md. 456, 77 Am. Dec. 311; St. James's Church v. Church of the Redeemer, 45 Barb. (N. Y.) 356; Atty.-Gen. v. Utica Ins. Co., 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 371; Cook v. Berlin Woolen Mill Co., 43 Wis. 433.

Illustrations of the above principle would exhibit many devices and twistifications of fraud, but would scarcely make the rule plainer. See especially Davis v. Rock Creek Lumber, etc., Co., 55 Cal. 359, 36 Am. Rep. 40 (president of corporation purchased its debts, caused them to be assigned to a partnership of which he was a member, and then, as president of the corporation, executed a mortgage to the partnership to secure the debts); Abbot v. American Hard Rubber Co., 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 578, 11 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 204, 20 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 199, 21 How. Pr. 193 (where four directors transferred the properties and rights of the corporation to a partnership, who immediately transferred them to a new company, of which three of the directors thus named were directors). For further illustrations see the following cases:

California.— Wilbur v. Lynde, 49 Cal. 290, 19 Am. Rep. 645.

Connecticut.— Alford v. Miller, 32 Conn. 543.

New Jersey.— Raleigh v. Fitzpatrick, 43 N. J. Eq. 501, 11 Atl. 1.

Wisconsin.— Pickett v. Wiota School Dist., 25 Wis. 551, 3 Am. Rep. 105, case of school directors.

United States.— Mahoney Min. Co. v. Bennett, 16 Fed. Cas. No. 8,969, 5 Sawy. 141.

pledge its credit to the payment or securing of their individual debts, is a fraud and breach of trust toward the corporation and its shareholders,[54] and a fraud as to its creditors.[55] Such transactions will be annulled in any appropriate proceeding, without regard to the form which they may have taken, saving of course the rights of innocent third persons.[56] The principle extends so far as to prevent an officer of a corporation from paying a debt owing him by the corporation out of property to him by the directors for any purpose.[57] Nor does it make any difference that the debt for which the money was thus raised by the officer was due by him to the corporation, since it is equally the payment of his own debt out of the corporate funds.[58] Such a misappropriation of the corporate funds stands, as regards its creditors, on the footing of a fraudulent conveyance, and is subject to the rule that if a part of the consideration of the transaction was fraudulent and corrupt, the whole will be treated as void.[59] But it seems that such a contract ought to be enforced against the corporation in so far as the corporation has received the benefit of it.[60] Nor is it any excuse for such a diversion of corporate assets that the purpose of the transaction was to keep alive and going a firm composed of members of the corporation, and that it was to the advantage of the corporation to have the firm remain in existence.[61] It is not a violation of this principle for the directors of a corporation to authorize the execution of a mortgage of property of the corporation at the instance and demand of a creditor, upon the assets of the corporation, to secure a bona fide indebtedness of the corporation, 54. Colorado.— Nix v. Miller, 26 Colo. 203, 57 Pac. 1084.

Kentucky.— Main Jellico Mountain Coal Co. v. Lotspeich, 20 S. W. 377, 14 Ky. L. Rep. 595.

New York.— Close v. Potter, 5 Misc. 543, 25 N. Y. Suppl. 972.

Ohio.— Greenville Gas Co. v. Reis, 54 Ohio St. 549, 44 N. E. 271.

Wyoming.— Durlacher v. Frazer, 8 Wyo. 58, 55 Pac. 306.

United States.— Germania Safety-Vault, etc., Co. v. Boynton, 71 Fed. 797, 19 C. C. A. 118.

55. National Tube Works Co. v. Ring Refrigerating, etc., Co., 118 Mo. 365, 22 S. W. 947; Nevitt v. Albany First Nat. Bank, 91 Hun (N. Y.) 43, 36 N. Y. Suppl. 294, 71 N. Y. St. 376; Greenville Gas Co. v. Reis, 54 Ohio St. 549, 44 N. E. 271.

56. Circumstances under which the taker of the bond of a corporation issued to secure the individual debts of its officers was not deemed an innocent purchaser. Germania Safety-Vault, etc., Co. v. Boynton, 71 Fed. 797, 19 C. C. A. 118.

57. Thus where the directors indorsed to the president a bond of the corporation to sell for its benefit, and he converted it to his own use, in payment of a debt due him from the corporation, a suit in equity by a shareholder was sustained to compel him, and a purchaser of it with notice, to surrender it for cancellation. Greenville Gas Co. v. Reis, 54 Ohio St. 549, 44 N. E. 271.

58. Thus a mortgage given by a corporation to secure money borrowed by one of its officers to pay a debt due it from him is fraudulent as to its creditors, although such money was actually paid to the corporation. National Tube Works Co. v. Ring Refrigerating, etc., Co., 118 Mo. 365, 22 S. W. 947.

59. Thus if a part of an indebtedness secured by the mortgage of a corporation is the individual indebtedness of one of its officers, the entire mortgage is fraudulent as between the corporation and its creditors. National Tube Works Co. v. Ring Refrigerating, etc., Co., 118 Mo. 365, 22 S. W. 947.

60. Thus where a shareholder caused a note of the corporation secured by a mortgage of its property to be executed in part security for his own debt and in part for a debt due from the corporation, it was held the mortgage should stand as an equitable charge against the corporation to the extent of its own debt. Hatch v. Johnson Loan, etc., Co., 79 Fed. 828, holding further that a corporation, in an accounting with a bank, is not entitled to credit for an amount deposited in such a bank by an officer and director who owed the bank more than the amount of the deposit.

61. Germania Safety-Vault, etc., Co. v. Boynton, 71 Fed. 797, 19 C. C. A. 118. For stronger reasons a transaction by which assets of a corporation are appropriated to purposes of a single director is invalid, when his own vote in the directorate is necessary to carry a resolution to authorize or to ratify it. Gildersleeve v. Lester, 68 Hun (N. Y.) 532, 22 N. Y. Suppl. 1026, 52 N. Y. St. 559.

Whether capable of ratification.— According to one view such a giving away of the assets of a corporation is ultra vires in the sense of being unlawful as against the public, and hence incapable of ratification by the acquiescence of the shareholders. Germania Safety-Vault, etc., Co. v. Boynton, 71 Fed. 797, 19 C. C. A. 118. But this does not seem to be a sound view, since the public have no greater interest in the conservation of the assets of a trading corporation than of a trading partnership.

although the directors have previously given their individual notes for such indebtedness.[62]

c. Cannot Conduct Private Litigation at Corporate Expense. Directors cannot rightfully pay out the money of the corporation as an attorney's fee for their own defense against the suit of certain shareholders, which they are apprehensive will be brought to test the validity of their acts[63] or maintain at the corporate expense actions ostensibly brought for the protection of the corporation, but really for the purpose of requiring its officers to settle out of the corporate funds the individual liability of the directors.[64]

17. Directors Personally Liable For Breaches of Their Trust — a. In General. Directors of corporations are personally liable to surrender profits which have accrued to them, or to make good losses which have been inflicted upon the corporation through breaches of their trust, to the corporation itself;[65] or where the corporation will not sue, to its shareholders;[66] and in some cases to creditors and strangers.[67]

b. Measure of Liability. The general rule is that equity aims at compensation to those who are beneficially interested in the trust fund, the corporation, the shareholders, or the creditors; and that the court will hence mold its decree so as to reach this result, according to the varying circumstances of each case;[68] but that where the cashier of a bank converts the circulating notes of a bank to his own use, he is liable for their full nominal amount, and cannot avail himself of their depreciation.[69]

c. All Directors Liable Who Fraudulently Conspire Against Corporation. If the directors of a corporation conspire together for the conversion of its assets, each of the conspirators becomes liable, on a well-understood principle, for any act done by any one of them in furtherance of the common design.[70]

18. Rights of Third Persons in Cases of Breaches of Trust by Directors. Where third persons have actual notice that a corporate officer is assuming to deal in his own name with the corporate property, they of course deal with him with respect to such property at their peril.[71]

62. Milledgeville Banking Co. v. McIntyre Alliance Store, 98 Ga. 503, 25 S. E. 567.

63. Percy v. Millaudon, 3 La. 568, 8 Mart. N. S. (La.) 68.

64. Erie R. Co. v. Vanderbilt, 5 Hun (N. Y.) 123, holding that it is no defense to an action brought by the corporation against the directors for such a fraudulent dissipation of its property that the corporation is in pari delicto.

65. See infra, IX, N, 1, a et seq.

66. Perry v. Tuskaloosa Cotton-Seed Oil-Mill Co., 93 Ala. 364, 9 So. 217. See also infra, XI, B, 7.

67. See infra, IX, O, 5.

According to one theory, when directors transcend the scope of their powers they cease to act as directors and act as trustees of the corporate property and are liable as such. Larwill v. Burke, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 513, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 605.

Directors assenting to, or authorizing a mortgage of corporate property, chargeable with knowledge of its solvency or insolvency. Lowry Banking Co. v. Empire Lumber Co., 91 Ga. 624, 17 S. E. 968.

Director dealing with corporate property on his own account, chargeable with notice of action of the board as to such property, whether present or not at the meeting. Greenville Gas Co. v. Reis, 54 Ohio St. 549, 44 N. E. 271.

68. It has been held that a director of an insolvent corporation, who purchases its property upon execution sale for less than its value, is chargeable with the property or its value, and with the profits or interest accruing therefrom, as a trust fund for the benefit of the corporation, its creditors and shareholders (Tobin Canning Co. v. Fraser, 81 Tex. 407, 17 S. W. 25) and that directors of a corporation who sell to themselves its stock at one third of its par value are liable to the company and its creditors for the full value of the stock (Freeman v. Stine, 15 Phila. (Pa.) 37, 38 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 268). For another illustration in the case of a person employed to buy in stock of the corporation, for the purpose of consummating a sale of the corporate property, who buys it in his own name, see Young v. Toledo, etc., R. Co., 76 Mich. 485, 43 N. W. 632.

69. Pendleton v. State Bank, 1 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 171. For a doubtful decision to the effect that where an officer of a bank fraudulently abstracts its funds and invests them in his own name a court of equity cannot declare him a trustee and indemnify the bank out of the investment see Pascoag Bank v. Hunt, 3 Edw. (N. Y.) 583.

70. Wayne Pike Co. v. Hammons, 129 Ind. 368, 27 N. E. 487.

71. Davis v. Gemmell, 70 Md. 356, 17 Atl. 259.

19. DIRECTORS MAY ENTER INTO PERSONAL COVENANTS NOT TO ENGAGE IN COMPETING BUSINESS. The directors of a manufacturing corporation may, pending negotiations for its consolidation with another corporation, enter into personal covenants, for a fair consideration, not to engage in the same manufacture for a stated period.[72]

20. DIRECTOR-CREDITOR MAY ENFORCE CONSTITUTIONAL OR STATUTORY LIABILITY OF SHAREHOLDER. The fact that a creditor of a corporation is a director therein does not disbar him of the right to enforce the liability of a shareholder to creditors, created by a constitutional provision or statute; but it is said that in such cases the creditors must be held to strict proof of their debts and of their own good faith in the premises; for if their debts were the result of their own wrong or negligence, they cannot be permitted to impose a liability therefor upon innocent shareholders.[73]

21. AGREEMENTS AMONG DIRECTORS FOR DISTRIBUTION OF CORPORATE PROPERTY. The validity of arrangements by which the directors of a corporation distribute its assets among themselves will depend upon the circumstances of each case. If they are the only shareholders, and if there are no creditors, then no one has any standing to set aside what they have agreed to do with their own.[74] But if the directors thus dividing the property of the corporation among themselves do not comprise all the shareholders, and if there are no creditors, then the corporation can maintain a suitable action to set aside the deeds by which the arrangement has been consummated and to restore its right to the property. Such an arrangement is also voidable at the suit of individual shareholders where the corporation will not sue to set it aside.[75]

72. Bristol v. Scranton, 57 Fed. 70.

73. Janney v. Minneapolis Industrial Exposition, 79 Minn. 488, 82 N. W. 984, 50 L. R. A. 273.

74. White v. Boreing, 45 S. W. 242, 20 Ky. L. Rep. 210.

Condition of facts under which the official liquidator of a company recovered from the directors a capital sum distributed among the shareholders and the directors were held entitled to recover the sum back from the shareholders. Moxham v. Grant, [1900] 1 Q. B. 88, 69 L. J. Q. B. 97, 81 L. T. Rep. N. S. 431, 7 Manson 65, 48 Wkly. Rep. 130.

75. Barnes v. Lynch, 9 Okla. 11, 59 Pac. 995 [affirmed in 9 Okla. 156, 59 Pac. 999].

Various other breaches of trust against which relief has been granted.— Relief has been granted against breaches of trust committed by directors and other officers of corporations under the following circumstances: Where, in order to retain control of the majority of the shares, the directors issued new shares, and sold them to their relatives and friends for a small proportion of their par value, without giving the old shareholders an opportunity to subscribe therefor, the conclusion being that the issue was fraudulent and void as to the old shareholders, and that an injunction would go to restrain the new shareholders from voting with respect to such shares at the election of officers. Way v. American Grease Co., 60 N. J. Eq. 263, 47 Atl. 44. Where the president and others made defendants in a bill of equity unlawfully caused to be issued to themselves shares of stock of the corporation in excess of the legal issue of the capital stock entitled to vote at shareholders' meetings, with intent to appropriate the property of the corporation to their own use, and the corporation received no consideration for such shares, and defendants refused to deliver them up. Reno Oil Co. v. Culver, 33 Misc. (N. Y.) 717, 68 N. Y. Suppl. 303 [reversed in 60 N. Y. App. Div. 129, 69 N. Y. Suppl. 969]. Where the directors sold shares of the stock of the corporation at less than par, and used it to embark the corporation in business outside that specified in the articles of agreement, and this, although the shares had been transferred to the corporation by its promoters as a gift. Kimball v. New England Roller Grate Co., 69 N. H. 485, 45 Atl. 253. Where the directors of a company have no power to issue shares at a discount, but nevertheless do allow a discount upon shares issued, because of a stipulated service, which shares are subsequently sold by the allottee to bona fide purchasers for profit, with the conclusion that the directors are liable to the company for the discount allowed upon the shares, but not liable beyond the discount in the absence of a fraud against the company, or other damage resulting to it. Hirsche v. Sims, [1894] A. C. 654, 64 L. J. P. C. 1, 71 L. T. Rep. N. S. 357, 11 Reports 303. A statute preventing corporations from interposing the defense of usury will not prevent a corporation or its shareholders from obtaining relief against an equitable and usurious contract, where one of its managers, voting to make the contract, has a personal interest therein. Higgins v. Lansingh, 154 Ill. 301, 40 N. E. 362.

Circumstances under which directors have not been held liable for breaches of trust.—

H. Directors Preferring Themselves as Creditors — 1. Cannot Prefer Themselves as Creditors — a. In General. The assets of an insolvent corporation being a trust fund for creditors, which necessarily means for all the creditors, the directors in charge of such assets stand in the position of trustees for the creditors,[76] and cannot so deal with them as to prefer themselves as creditors, for any past indebtedness of the corporation in favor of such directors, unless at the time when such past indebtedness was created it was agreed that they should be so preferred.[77]

Where the directors of a de facto corporation who are guilty of negligence or bad faith fail to set up as a defense against the foreclosure of a mortgage the illegality of the company. Farmers' Loan, etc., Co. v. Toledo, etc., R. Co., 67 Fed. 49. Where a contract was drafted by the counsel of a corporation for purchase of property by it, but before it was presented to the directors for adoption the consideration named therein was increased, and this in the absence of counsel, by the officers and the other contracting party, this of itself not showing that the fraud was perpetrated on the corporation. Sutton v. Dudley, 193 Pa. St. 194, 44 Atl. 438.

76. Kittel v. Augusta, etc., R. Co., 65 Fed. 859.

77. Alabama.— Anderson v. Bullock County Bank, 122 Ala. 275, 25 So. 523; Berney Nat. Bank v. Guyon, 111 Ala. 491, 20 So. 520; Goodyear Rubber Co. v. George D. Scott Co., 96 Ala. 439, 11 So. 370.

Georgia.— Lowry Banking Co. v. Empire Lumber Co., 91 Ga. 624, 17 S. E. 968.

Illinois.— Illinois Steel Co. v. O'Donnell, 156 Ill. 624, 41 N. E. 185, 47 Am. St. Rep. 245, 31 L. R. A. 265 [affirming 53 Ill. App. 314, ingenious scheme to prefer the president, who resigns and takes a mortgage upon all the assets of a corporation — kind of relief pointed out]; Gottlieb v. Miller, 154 Ill. 44, 39 N. E. 992 [reversing in part 47 Ill. App. 588]; Mayr v. Hodge, etc., Co., 78 Ill. App. 556; Atwater v. American Exch. Nat. Bank, 40 Ill. App. 501; Neufeld v. Moll, 37 Ill. App. 535 (director obtaining such a preference required to pro rata with other creditors).

Louisiana.— Brashear v. Alexandria Cooperage Co., 50 La. Ann. 587, 23 So. 540.

Minnesota.— Taylor v. Mitchell, 80 Minn. 492, 83 N. W. 418.

Mississippi.— Love Mfg. Co. v. Queen City Mfg. Co., 74 Miss. 290, 20 So. 146.

Nebraska.— Reynolds v. Smith, 60 Nebr. 197, 82 N. W. 627 (cannot prefer a creditor of one of its officers and shareholders); M. A. Seeds Dry-Plate Co. v. Heyn Photo-Supply Co., 57 Nebr. 214, 77 N. W. 660 (holding that a preference cannot be given by an insolvent corporation to one who is its director, secretary, and treasurer); Stough v. Ponca Mill Co., 54 Nebr. 500, 74 N. W. 868; Wyman v. Williams, 52 Nebr. 833, 73 N. W. 285 [rehearing denied in 53 Nebr. 670, 74 N. W. 48, rendering void an agreement by the directors of an insolvent insurance company, at the time an assessment is levied for the payment of its debts, that sums loaned the corporation by members of the board of directors shall be applied to cancel their assessments]; Ingwersen v. Edgecombe, 42 Nebr. 740, 60 N. W. 1032.

New Jersey.— Gray v. Taylor, (Err. & App. 1899) 44 Atl. 668 [affirming (Ch. 1897) 38 Atl. 951]; Savage v. Miller, 56 N. J. Eq. 437, 39 Atl. 665 [reversing 56 N. J. Eq. 432, 36 Atl. 578]; Montgomery v. Phillips, 53 N. J. Eq. 203, 31 Atl. 622.

New York.— Queen v. Weaver, 38 N. Y. App. Div. 628, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 998.

North Carolina.— Hill v. Pioneer Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107, 37 Am. St. Rep. 621, 21 L. R. A. 560.

Ohio.— Ford v. Lamson, 17 Ohio Cir. Ct. 539, 9 Ohio Cir. Dec. 374.

Oregon.— Craig v. California Vineyard Co., 30 Oreg. 43, 46 Pac. 421.

Pennsylvania.— Hill v. Standard Tel. Mfg. Co., 198 Pa. St. 446, 48 Atl. 432; Finch Mfg. Co. v. Stirling Co., 187 Pa. St. 596, 41 Atl. 294, 43 Wkly. Notes Cas. 113 (although the president and director thus preferred owned with his son nine tenths of the stock of the debtor corporation, and did not vote to accept the proposition of the latter); Moller v. Keystone Fibre Co., 187 Pa. St. 553, 41 Atl. 478; Hill v. Standard Telephone Mfg. Co., 9 Pa. Dist. 445, 24 Pa. Co. Ct. 278, 16 Montg. Co. Rep. 203 (director of an insolvent corporation cannot obtain a preference over other creditors, unless he shows special circumstances indicating that such a preference is just and equitable); Charles Beck Paper Co. v. Bates Paper Co., 7 Pa. Dist. 477; Chester Twist Drill, etc., Co. v. Wetherill, 7 Del. Co. Rep. 390.

Tennessee.— Levins v. W. O. Peeples Grocery Co., (Ch. App. 1896) 38 S. W. 733, transfer by the officers and directors to the principal shareholder, president, and active manager, of all the cash and available assets of real and personal property owned by him, but not in condition for use, to enable him to use the corporate assets to pay his individual debts to the corporation, or the debts of those whom it suits his purpose to prefer, is fraudulent.

Utah.— W. P. Noble Mercantile Co. v. Mt. Pleasant Equitable Co-operative Inst., 12 Utah 213, 42 Pac. 869.

West Virginia.— Weigand v. Alliance Supply Co., 44 W. Va. 133, 28 S. E. 803, assignment of notes and accounts to directors and shareholders to secure an indebtedness to them presumptively invalid, and will be set

b. But May Make Present or Future Advances to Corporation and Take Security Therefor. The directors of a corporation may lend money to the corporation, and may take a present security for bona fide advances made by them to it, aside as fraudulent, in the absence of proof that it was not only free from fraud, but at a fair and reasonable price.

Wisconsin.— Rowe v. Leuthold, 101 Wis. 242, 77 N. W. 153 (corporate officer cannot so prefer himself by executing to his wife, without consideration, a mortgage of corporate property); Hinz v. Van Dusen, 95 Wis. 503, 70 N. W. 657.

United States.— Kittel v. Augusta, etc., R. Co., 78 Fed. 855 (director selling corporate property under execution, upon a judgment in his own favor, required to divide the nroceeds of the sale ratably with another creditor); Sutton Mfg. Co. v. Hutchinson, 63 Fed. 496, 11 C. C. A. 320.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 2170.

The directors of an insolvent corporation cannot, by making a deed of assignment, prefer the claim of one shareholder of the corporation over that of another. W. P. Noble Mercantile Co. v. Mt. Pleasant Equitable Co-operative Inst., 12 Utah 213, 42 Pac. 869.

Preferring creditor who has loaned money to an officer of the corporation.— A preference by the directors of an insolvent corporation, of one not himself a creditor of the corporation, but who had loaned money to one of its officers, who had in turn loaned it to the corporation, is fraudulent and avoids the whole assignment. W. P. Noble Mercantile Co. v. Mt. Pleasant Equitable Co-operative Inst., 12 Utah 213, 42 Pac. 869.

Schemes of preference which have been avoided.—The following schemes of preference have been avoided: An agreement between the directors of a bank, which had caused another corporation to be formed to operate a cotton mill belonging to the bank, which cotton mill had been transferred to the new corporation, that the amount subscribed by the directors of the bank to the shares of the new corporation should be first repaid from the proceeds of the sale of the mill, which sale was to be made by the new company. Butler v. Cockrill, 73 Fed. 945, 20 C. C. A. 122. A claim of preference by the directors of a corporation over a creditor who had secured the retention of the assets of the corporation, by representing to the creditor that a claim upon which the directors were liable would not be allowed to have a preference over the claim of such creditor. Rickerson Roller Mill Co. v. Farrell Foundry, etc., Co., 75 Fed. 554, 23 C. C. A. 302. An arrangement whereby the charter members of a corporation turned over a policy of insurance on the property of the company, after a loss had occurred, and after the corporation had become insolvent, as collateral security, to creditors of a firm, whose assets were transferred to the corporation in exchange for its capital stock and bonds, because it had promised its creditors at the time of pledging some of the bonds as security for the debt that it would insure the property of the corporation to protect the bonds, where the promise was not executed, but the insurance was taken out for the benefit of the corporation. Bristol, Bank, etc., Co. v. Jonesboro Banking Trust Co., 101 Tenn. 545, 48 S. W. 228. A mortgage given to secure a previously executed note of the corporation, in which it was stipulated that the payee should be protected in the event of the failure of the corporation, where the contract was not made through the duly authorized body of the corporation empowered to make such negotiations. Monroe Mercantile Co. v. Arnold, 108 Ga. 449, 34 S. E. 176. An agreement to apply assessments made upon the unpaid subscriptions to the capital stock of an insurance company, which assessment was authorized by a vote of the board of directors to the amounts advanced by such directors individually, for the settlement of losses sustained, and for which they held the notes of the corporation. Wyman v. Williams, 52 Nebr. 833, 73 N. W. 285 [rehearing denied in 53 Nebr. 670, 74 N. W. 48]. A preference given by the directors of an insolvent corporation to a person to whom a note made by the corporation in favor of one of its directors had been transferred without any new consideration. Savage v. Miller, 56 N. J. Eq. 437, 39 Atl. 665 [reversing 56 N. J. Eq. 432, 36 Atl. 578].

Construction of a New York statute prohibiting corporations from preferring creditors.— A statute in New York (N. Y. Laws (1890), c. 564, § 48) prohibits a corporation from making assignments of its property to its officers. For a construction of this statute see Worthington v. Pfister Bookbinding Co., 3 Misc. (N. Y.) 418, 23 N. Y. Suppl. 295, 52 N. Y. St. 448. Another statute of the same state (N. Y. Laws (1892), c. 688, § 48) prohibits an insolvent corporation or any of its officers from conveying its property to its members, except for its full value in cash, and from making any assignment of its property preferring creditors. For construction of this statute see O'Brien v. East River Bridge Co., 161 N. Y. 539, 56 N. E. 74, 48 L. R. A. 122 [reversing 36 N. Y. App. Div. 171, 55 N. Y. Suppl. 206, holding that a director in a bank who is also a director in another corporation, which kept its account with the bank, might convey to such other corporation information of the impending insolvency of the bank, and that such corporation might, without violating the statute, draw out its deposits, although on the same day that the bank closed]; Munzinger v. United Press, 52 N. Y. App. Div. 338, 65 N. Y. Suppl. 194 (holding that certain indebtedness of the corporation was not an obligation within the meaning of the statute and that an assignment of all its property by the corporation to a director with no preference except labor claims was not within the statute); Linderwhich will have the result of giving them a priority over other creditors.[78] Turning the proposition around, a corporation, while solvent, may borrow money of an officer or director, and give a mortgage on its property to secure the payment thereof, and the transaction, although viewed with suspicion by a court of equity, will be upheld if it is fair and free from fraud.[79]

2. Contrary Doctrine That Directors May Prefer Themselves as Creditors of Corporation. In two or three American jurisdictions the contrary and regrettable doctrine obtains that the directors may use the knowledge which they possess of its impending insolvency, so as to prefer or secure themselves as its creditors, to the disadvantage and postponement of its general creditors.[80]

3. Middle Doctrine That Directors May Prefer Themselves as Creditors Where Transaction Is Fair, Etc. Some decisions have put forward the doctrine that such a preference is prima facie fraudulent and void and will be so declared unless it be shown that the preference was not only free from fraud, but was in itself under the circumstances both fair and reasonable.[81] man v. Hastings Card, etc., Co., 38 N. Y. App. Div. 488, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 456 (holding that an assignment to a director for the benefit of creditors is not within the statute).

78. Colorado.— St. Joe, etc., Min. Co. v. Aspen First Nat. Bank, 10 Colo. App. 339, 50 Pac. 1055 [motion to dismiss appeal denied in 24 Colo. 537, 52 Pac. 678].

Illinois.— Illinois Steel Co. v. O'Donnell, 156 Ill. 624, 41 N. E. 185, 47 Am. St. Rep. 245, 31 L. R. A. 265 [affirming 53 Ill. App. 314, may give valid securities to its directors, where it is a going concern and doing a large business, for money loaned in good faith to enable it to carry out the purposes of incorporation, although in fact insolvent at the time]; Mullanphy Sav. Bank v. Schott, 135 Ill. 665, 26 N. E. 640, 25 Am. St. Rep. 401; Beach v. Miller, 130 Ill. 162, 22 N. E. 464, 17 Am. St. Rep. 291.

Iowa.— Hallam v. Indianola Hotel Co., 56 Iowa 178, 9 N. W. 111.

Kentucky.— Osborne v. Marks, 21 S. W. 101, 14 Ky. L. Rep. 606.

Michigan.— Ten Eyck v. Pontiac, etc., R. Co., 34 Mich. 226, 41 N. W. 905, 16 Am. St. Rep. 633, 3 L. R. A. 378.

New York.— Converse v. Sharpe, 161 N. Y. 571, 56 N. E. 69 [affirming 37 N. Y. App. Div. 399, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 1080]; New York Bank Com'rs v. St. Lawrence Bank, 8 Barb. 436.

United States.— Sanford Fork, etc., Co. v. Howe, etc., Co., 157 U. S. 312, 15 S. Ct. 621, 39 L. ed. 713; Washburn v. Green, 133 U. S. 30, 10 S. Ct. 280, 33 L. ed. 516; Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. 587, 23 L. ed. 328.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 1367.

79. Jones v. Hale, 32 Oreg. 465, 52 Pac. 311.

80. Alabama.— Corey v. Wadsworth, 118 Ala. 488, 25 So. 503, 44 L. R. A. 766.

Arkansas.— Worthen v. Griffith, 59 Ark. 562, 28 S. W. 286, 43 Am. St. Rep. 50.

Connecticut.— Smith v. Skeary, 47 Conn. 47.

Iowa.— Garrett v. Burlington Plow Co., 70 Iowa 697, 29 N. W. 395, 59 Am. Rep. 461; Buell v. Buckingham, 16 Iowa 284, 85 Am. Dec. 516.

Michigan.— Lucas v. Friant, 111 Mich. 426, 69 N. W. 735; Keeney v. Converse, 99 Mich. 316, 58 N. W. 325 (case where an unsuccessful attack was made by a shareholder upon a mortgage of corporate property made to a director); Doyle v. Leitelt, 97 Mich. 298, 56 N. W. 553; Montreal Bank v. J. E. Potts Salt, etc., Co., 90 Mich. 345, 51 N. W. 512.

Missouri.— State v. Manhattan Rubber Mfg. Co., 149 Mo. 181, 50 S. W. 321; Schufeldt v. Smith, 131 Mo. 280, 31 S. W. 1039, 52 Am. St. Rep. 628, 29 L. R. A. 830.

South Carolina.— Central R., etc., Co. v. Claghorn, Speers Eq. 545.

Utah.— Wells v. Scott, 18 Utah 127, 55 Pac. 81, where the indebtedness arose from a loan of money to the corporation, which received the benefit of every dollar thereof.

Vermont.— Whitewell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425.

Wisconsin.— South Bend Chilled Plow Co. v. George C. Cribb Co., 97 Wis. 230, 72 N. W. 749, out of line it seems with the other Wisconsin cases.

United States.— Childs v. N. B. Carlstein Co., 76 Fed. 86; Brown v. Grand Rapids Parlor Furniture Co., 58 Fed. 286, 7 C. C. A. 225, 22 L. R. A. 817; Gould v. Little Rock, etc., R. Co., 52 Fed. 680.

England.— In re Wincham Shipbuilding, etc., Co., 9 Ch. D. 329, 47 L. J. Ch. 868, 38 L. T. Rep. N. S. 660, 26 Wkly. Rep. 824.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 2170.

81. Illinois Steel Co. v. O'Donnell, 156 Ill. 624, 41 N. E. 185, 47 Am. St. Rep. 245, 31 L. R. A. 265 [affirming 53 Ill. App. 314]; Schufeldt v. Smith, 131 Mo. 280, 31 S. W. 1039, 52 Am. St. Rep. 628, 29 L. R. A. 830 (must show that all their secured claims are honest and justly due to them); Hulings v. Hulings Lumber Co., 38 W. Va. 351, 18 S. E. 620.

A mortgage executed by an insolvent corporation to secure creditors is not invalid because of the influence of one of the directors

4. May Prefer Creditors of Corporation, Although Such Preference May Inure to Benefit of Directors Who Are Liable as Sureties, Guarantors, Etc. Another class of holdings is to the effect that the directors of a corporation may use or charge its assets in preferring particular creditors of the corporation, although the directors themselves, or some of them, or some of the other officers of the corporation, may be collaterally liable as sureties or guarantors of the corporation, in favor of the creditors so preferred, so that the operation of the preference may be to exonerate such directors or officers.[82]

5. May Not Prefer Creditors Where Making of Such Preferences Would Inure to Benefit of Directors Who Are Liable as Guarantors, Sureties, Etc. The directors of a corporation which is insolvent, or at the point of insolvency, cannot employ or charge its assets in any manner, for the purpose of indemnifying its directors against liability as a surety for it, any more than it could give them a direct preference in the case of an actual antecedent indebtedness from it to them.[83] The directors of a corporation cannot indemnify, against an existing liability, a cosurety of a fellow-director; since the indemnity of one surety inures by operation of law to the benefit of the others; and hence this violates the principle that directors cannot prefer themselves as creditors out of the corporate assets.[84]

6. Remedies Against Directors Obtaining Unlawful Preferences Over Other Creditors. A director who obtains an unlawful preference over other creditors of the corporation will be held to account in equity as a trustee, of the money or property which he has received, for all the creditors of the company.[85] But the fact that he has obtained such a preference will not be a defense to his action against the corporation, on a contract authorized by the directors, but is only who voted therefor, and whose wife's debt was secured thereby. Miller v. Savage, 60 N. J. Eq. 204, 46 Atl. 632.

82. Georgia.—Rylander v. Sheffield, 108 Ga. 111, 34 S. E. 348 (directors who are guarantors of the payment of a note of the corporation given for borrowed money, secured by a mortgage on its property, owe no duty to the shareholders, when the loan matures, to enter into an agreement with the lender to extend the loan on terms requiring such directors to be bound as guarantors); Atlas Tack Co. v. Macon Hardware Co., 101 Ga. 391, 29 S. E. 27 (assignment of chose in action made in good faith to secure creditors, and not for the purpose of saving a director, liable as surety, from loss, not void).

Illinois.— Rockford Wholesale Grocery Co. v. Standard Grocery, etc., Co., 175 Ill. 89, 51 N. E. 642, 67 Am. St. Rep. 205 [affirming 74 Ill. App. 317].

Indiana.— Levering v. Bimel, 146 Ind. 545, 45 N. E. 775; Henderson v. Indiana Trust Co., 143 Ind. 561, 40 N. E. 516.

New Jersey.— Savage v. Miller, 56 N. J. Eq. 437, 39 Atl. 665 [reversing 56 N. J. Eq. 432, 36 Atl. 578].

North Carolina.— Washington First Nat. Bank v. Eureka Lumber Co., 123 N. C. 24, 31 S. E. 348.

Pennsylvania.— Creighton v. Scranton Lace Curtain Mfg. Co., 191 Pa. St. 231, 43 Atl. 134, 44 Wkly. Notes Cas. 233, pledge of goods by a corporation for contemporaneous or future advances valid, although pledgee was a director.

Utah.— Wells v. Scott, 18 Utah 127, 55 Pac. 81.

United States.— Sanford Fork, etc., Co. v. Howe, etc., Co., 157 U. S. 312, 15 S. Ct. 621, 39 L. ed. 713; In re Freights of The Kate, 63 Fed. 707 (especially where the original transaction was not for the personal benefit of the officers); Gould v. Little Rock, etc., R. Co., 52 Fed. 680.

The fact that the creditor is related to one or more of the directors or officers will not make any difference if the circumstances are such that a valid security may lawfully be given as a preference to a creditor of an insolvent corporation. Illinois Steel Co. v. O'Donnell, 156 Ill. 624, 41 N. E. 185, 47 Am. St. Rep. 245, 31 L. R. A. 265 [affirming 53 Ill. App. 314].

Estoppel of shareholder to object.—A shareholder who, in his character of director, had voted at a regular meeting of directors at which a majority were present, in favor of a resolution to mortgage the property of the corporation, was estopped from complaining that the resolution was not regularly adopted, because one of the other directors who voted in favor of it was indorser upon paper secured by the mortgage, and because two other directors so voting had indemnified the former from liability as indorser. Lucas v. Friant, 111 Mich. 426, 69 N. W. 735.

83. Tillson v. Downing, 45 Nebr. 549, 63 N. W. 836; Gray v. Taylor (N. J. Ch. 1897) 38 Atl. 951 [affirmed in (N. J. Err. & App. 1899) 44 Atl. 668].

84. Lowry Banking Co. v. Empire Lumber Co., 91 Ga. 624, 17 S. E. 968.

85. Hill v. Standard Telephone Mfg. Co., 9 Pa. Dist. 445, 24 Pa. Co. Ct. 278, 16 Montg. Co. Rep. 203.

available to defeat an execution of judgment in such an action, by the satisfaction of which a preference would be acquired by him.[86]

7. Directors Gain Priority by Action or by Attachment. Under a conception that the assets of a corporation are not a trust fund for its creditors so long as it continues to be a going concern, although in fact it is insolvent in a general sense, it has been held that while it continues to be a going concern directors may avail themselves of their superior knowledge of its actual condition, so as to secure a preference over other creditors by suing it and attaching its property.[87] A son who has succeeded his father as director of a corporation and who was also administrator of his father's estate, to which the corporation was indebted, may properly, upon learning that the corporation has been sued by a creditor, institute suit against it as administrator, and the judgment recovered will not be postponed to the claims of other creditors, where the administrator took no advantage of his position as director to obtain a preference.[88]

8. Directors May Share With Other Creditors in Distribution of Corporate Assets. There being nothing per se in the relation of a director to his corporation which prevents him from becoming a creditor of the corporation, it follows that if the company is indebted to him for money which he has advanced to it in good faith, he may, upon its becoming insolvent, share in the distribution of its assets with the other creditors.[89]

I. Contracts Between Directors and Corporation — 1. Directors May Contract With Corporation in Good Faith. There is no sound principle of law or equity which prohibits one or more of the directors of a corporation from entering into contracts and dealings with the corporation, provided they act in good faith, and provided there be a quorum of other directors on the other side of the contract, so that the vote of the interested director is not necessary to the adoption of the measure; and even in the latter case the contract is good at law. In theory of law there are still two contracting parties, the corporation on the one hand and the individuals who formed the opposite party to the contract on the other. In other words a director is not debarred, by reason of his office, from entering into a contract with the corporation, but the contract is subject to the principle that where he appears on both sides of it, it will be closely scrutinized in equity, and set aside unless made in that entire good faith which the law demands of this species of fiduciary.[90] Even where the majority of the share-

86. Welling v. Ivoryd Mfg. Co., 162 N. Y. 599, 57 N. E. 1128 [affirming 15 N. Y. App. Div. 116, 44 N. Y. Suppl. 374].

87. A. B. Frank Co. v. Berwind, (Tex. Civ. App. 1898) 47 S. W. 68). Much to the same effect see Hill v. Knickerbocker Electric Light, etc., Co., 18 N. Y. Suppl. 813, 45 N. Y. St. 761.

88. Nebraska Nat. Bank v. Clark, 58 Nebr. 183, 78 N. W. 527.

Postponement of directors who permit corporation to become indebted in excess of limit prescribed by articles of incorporation.— Directors who permitted the corporation to become indebted in excess of the limit prescribed by its articles were postponed to other creditors, who had no notice of the financial condition of the corporation at the time when their debts were created. Gunther v. Baskett Coal Co., 107 Ky. 44, 52 S. W. 931, 21 Ky. L. Rep. 655.

State of the evidence under which claims of the directors will not be disallowed upon distribution of the assets of the corporation under an assignment for the benefit of creditors, upon the ground that they permitted an indebtedness in excess of the amount of the capital stock paid in, and never paid in such excess. In re Trevose Model Brick Mfg. Co.'s Assigned Estate, 159 Pa. St. 496, 28 Atl. 1023.

89. Hooven Mercantile Co. v. Evans Min. Co., 193 Pa. St. 28, 44 Atl. 277. When a person whose name appeared on the books as director of an insolvent corporation, but who never "lifted" his share certificate, which had been given to him as collateral security, and never knew that he was elected a director, would not be charged with the unpaid value of his shares, but participated as a general creditor in the distribution of the proceeds of the corporate assets on execution. Vallee v. Elizabethtown Electric Light Co., 18 Lanc. L. Rev. 65.

90. Cases which uphold the principle that directors may contract with the corporation if fairly done are as follows:

California.— Kellerman v. Maier, 116 Cal. 416, 48 Pac. 377; Fudickar v. East Riverside Irr. Dist., 109 Cal. 29, 41 Pac. 1024.

Connecticut.— Smith v. Skeary, 47 Conn. 47.

holders are personally interested in a contract which they have authorized on behalf of the corporation, this does not render the contract void per se; it is still good at law, although voidable in equity in case of any fraud or unfairness at the suit of the corporation, or of shareholders suing in its behalf.[91] And so where a mortgaged deed of trust is executed by a corporation it is not a valid objection to it that it is made to a director in the corporation, since it is made to secure bonds which are purchased by others, and the director is the nominal, and not the beneficiary, grantee. Such a case, it is said, does not fall within the principle sometimes declared that a deed executed by the grantee as agent for the grantor is void as to all the world.[92] There are authorities which go to the length of holding that a contract in which some of the directors are interested on both sides is void in such a sense that it will not be enforced in a court of justice.[93] But the weight of authority probably is that such contracts are merely presumptively invalid, and that the burden of showing that they are entirely fair is upon those claiming under them; and that they will be subjected by courts of equity to the severest scrutiny and set aside unless all appearance of bad faith is removed by the evidence.[94]

2. View That Director Cannot Contract With Company. Some of the courts, however, take the broad and unqualified view that a director cannot be allowed Illinois.— Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Carson, 51 Ill. App. 552; Matson v. Alley, 41 Ill. App. 72 [affirmed on other grounds in 141 Ill. 284, 31 N. E. 419].

Massachusetts.— Nye v. Storer, 168 Mass. 53, 46 N. E. 402; Warren v. Para Rubber Shoe Co., 166 Mass. 97, 44 N. E. 112.

Michigan.— German-American Seminary v. Kiefer, 43 Mich. 105, 4 N. W. 636.

Missouri.— Foster v. Belcher's Sugar Refining Co., 118 Mo. 238, 24 S. W. 63.

Nevada.— Bassett v. Monte Cristo Gold, etc., Min. Co., 15 Nev. 293.

New York.— Barr v. New York, etc., R. Co., 125 N. Y. 263, 26 N. E. 145, 34 N. Y. St. 743; Barnes v. Brown, 80 N. Y. 527 [reversing 11 Hun 315]; Nathan v. Whitehill, 67 Hun 398, 22 N. Y. Suppl. 63, 51 N. Y. St. 457; Kearns v. New York, etc., Ferry Co., 17 Misc. 272, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 366 [affirmed in 19 Misc. 19, 42 N. Y. Suppl. 771]; Strobel v. Brownell, 16 Misc. 657, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 702; Wile, etc., Co. v. Rochester, etc., Land Co., 4 Misc. 570, 25 N. Y. Suppl. 794. See also Duncomb v. New York, etc., R. Co., 22 Hun 133.

Utah.— Armstrong v. Cache Valley Land, etc., Co., 14 Utah 450, 48 Pac. 690.

United States.— Leavenworth County v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 134 U. S. 688, 10 S. Ct. 708, 33 L. ed. 1064; Illinois Pneumatic Gas Co. v. Berry, 113 U. S. 322, 5 S. Ct. 525, 28 L. ed. 1003; Barr v. Pittsburgh Plate-Glass Co., 57 Fed. 86, 6 C. C. A. 260 [affirming 51 Fed. 33]; Symmes v. Union Trust Co., 60 Fed. 830; Jesup v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 43 Fed. 483.

Cases asserting the principle that a corporation may contract with its own shareholders are the following: Union Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Frear Stone Mfg. Co., 97 Ill. 537, 37 Am. Rep. 129; Hennighausen v. Tischer, 50 Md. 583.

An agent of a corporation may deal with it fairly of course when it is represented in the transaction by other agents. Matson v. Alley, 41 Ill. App. 72 [affirmed on other grounds in 141 Ill. 284, 31 N. E. 419].

91. Bassett v. Monte Cristo Gold, etc., Min. Co., 15 Nev. 293.

92. Bassett v. Monte Cristo Gold, etc., Min. Co., 15 Nev. 293.

93. See for instance Thomas v. Brownville, etc., R. Co., 2 Fed. 877, 1 McCrary 392, and note that this decision was affirmed on this point, although reversed in another, in 109 U. S. 522, 3 S. Ct. 315, 27 L. ed. 1018. See also Miner v. Belle Isle Ice Co., 93 Mich. 97, 53 N. W. 218, 17 L. R. A. 412; Jackson v. McLean, 36 Fed. 213.

94. Gardner v. Butler, 30 N. J. Eq. 702; Skinner v. Smith, 134 N. Y. 240, 31 N. E. 911, 47 N. Y. St. 528 [affirming 56 Hun (N. Y.) 437, 10 N. Y. Suppl. 81, 31 N. Y. St. 448]; Barr v. New York, etc., R. Co., 125 N. Y. 263, 26 N. E. 145, 34 N. Y. St. 743; Welch v. Importers', etc., Bank, 122 N. Y. 177, 25 N. E. 269, 33 N. Y. St. 452; Munson v. Syracuse, etc., R. Co., 103 N. Y. 58, 8 N. E. 355; Barnes v. Brown, 80 N. Y. 527 [reversing 11 Hun (N. Y.) 315]; Risley v. Indianapolis, etc., R. Co., 62 N. Y. 240 [reversing 1 Hun (N. Y.) 202, 4 Thomps. & C. (N. Y.) 13]; McGourkey v. Toledo, etc., R. Co., 146 U. S. 536, 13 S. Ct. 170, 36 L. ed. 1079; Wardell v. Union Pac. R. Co., 103 U. S. 651, 26 L. ed. 509 [affirming 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,164, 4 Dill. 339]; Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. 587, 23 L. ed. 328; Jesup v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 43 Fed. 483. That unfaithful trustees who have appropriated all the profits of the enterprise to themselves will subject the company — it being a mere trading corporation — to a winding-up in equity see Fougeray v. Cord, 50 N. J. Eq. 185, 24 Atl. 499; and compare 4 Thompson Corp. § 4443. That an officer of a corporation cannot as against its creditor have a remedy on a corrupt contract see Cole v. Mullerton Iron Co., 59 Hun (N. Y.) 217, 13 N. Y. Suppl. 851, 38 N. Y. St. 34.

to make and take contracts with the company of which he is a director.[95] The reason is that already stated, that the relation between the director and the corporation is that of trustee and cestui que trust,[96] and the law will not allow a trustee for his own private advantage to do that which may place him in a position in which his interest is antagonistic to that of the beneficiaries in the trust.[97] Under this rule no question can be raised as to the fairness or unfairness of the transaction, and the director so acting will not be heard if he attempts to show that it was fair and advantageous to the corporation.[98]

3. SECOND VIEW THAT SUCH CONTRACTS ARE NOT VOID BUT VOIDABLE. Another and perhaps a more practicable view, and the one which generally prevails in the American courts, is that a contract between a corporation and its officers is not void per se, but is merely voidable at the option of the corporation or its representative, provided the option is exercised within a reasonable time under all the circumstances of the case.[99] But perhaps there is no essential difference between

95. Indiana.— Port v. Russell, 36 Ind. 60, 10 Am. Rep. 5.

New York.—Coleman v. Second Ave. R. Co., 38 N. Y. 201; Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317; Gardner v. Ogden, 22 N. Y. 327, 78 Am. Dec. 192.

Wisconsin.— Haywood v. Lincoln Lumber Co., 64 Wis. 639, 26 N. W. 184.

United States.— Thomas v. Brownsville, etc., R. Co., 2 Fed. 877, 1 McCrary 392 [reversed in 109 U. S. 522, 3 S. Ct. 315, 27 L. ed. 1018].

England.— Aberdeen R. Co. v. Blakie, 2 Eq. 1281, 1 Macq. 461, 1 Paterson Sc. App. 391, 1 Paton App. Cas. 119, 26 Sc. Jur. 628.

96. Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317.

97. California.— Wilbur v. Lynde, 49 Cal. 290, 19 Am. Rep. 645; Andrews v. Pratt, 44 Cal. 309; San Diego v. San Diego, etc., R. Co., 44 Cal. 106.

Maryland.— Hoffman Steam Coal Co. v. Cumberland Coal, etc., Co., 16 Md. 456, 77 Am. Dec. 311.

New York.— Cumberland Coal, etc., Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb. 553.

Wisconsin.— Pickett v. Wiota School Dist., 25 Wis. 551, 3 Am. Rep. 105.

United States.— Michoud v. Girod, 4 How. 503, 11 L. ed. 1076.

England.— Aberdeen R. Co. v. Blakie, 2 Eq. 1281, 1 Macq. 461, 1 Paterson Sc. App. 391, 1 Paton App. Cas. 119, 26 Sc. Jur. 628, per Lord Cranworth.

The principle may be tersely stated to be that one who undertakes in a given matter to act for another cannot in the same matter act for himself. Dutton v. Willner, 52 N. Y. 312; Forbes v. Halsey, 26 N. Y. 53. The leading American case on the subject is Gardner v. Ogden, 22 N. Y. 327, 78 Am. Dec. 192, where the subject is discussed with great learning by Davies, J. The rule applies to all persons standing in relations of trust which involve duties inconsistent with such persons dealing with the trust property as their own. Ten Eyck v. Craig, 62 N. Y. 406; Wager v. Reid, 3 Thomps. & C. (N. Y.) 332. See Lingke v. Wilkinson, 57 N. Y. 445; Rockford, etc., R. Co. v. Boody, 56 N. Y. 456.

98. Aberdeen R. Co. v. Blakie, 2 Eq. 1281, 1 Macq. 461, 1 Paterson Sc. App. 391, 1 Paton App. Cas. 119, 26 Sc. Jur. 628. This decision did not turn upon the construction of any act of parliament, but was based upon the general principles applied by courts of equity to the relations of trustee and cestui que trust. See also Flanagan v. Great Western R. Co., L. R. 7 Eq. 116, 38 L. J. Ch. 117. Similar observations will be found in Cumberland Coal, etc., Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 553, opinion by Davies, J. [quoted with approbation in Pickett v. Wiota School Dist., 25 Wis. 551, 3 Am. Rep. 105. See also Whichcote v. Lawrence, 3 Ves. Jr. 740].

In conformity with this principle it has been held that a note made by a corporation to its trustees is against public policy and void. Wilbur v. Lynde, 49 Cal. 290, 19 Am. Rep. 645. Nor can the directors and officers of a corporation make a mortgage to themselves. Haywood v. Lincoln Lumber Co., 64 Wis. 639, 26 N. W. 184. The court cited in support of the general doctrine European, etc., R. Co. v. Poor, 59 Me. 277; Butts v. Wood, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 181; Scott v. Depeyster, 1 Edw. (N. Y.) 513; Verplanck v. Mercantile Ins. Co., 1 Edw. (N. Y.) 84; Cook v. Berlin Woolen Mill Co., 43 Wis. 433; In re Taylor Orphan Asylum, 36 Wis. 534; Pickett v. Wiota School Dist. No. 1, 25 Wis. 551, 3 Am. Rep. 105; Koehler v. Black River Falls Iron Co., 2 Black (U. S.) 715, 17 L. ed. 339; Corbett v. Woodward, 6 Fed. Cas. No. 3,223, 5 Sawy. 403; Great Luxembourg R. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav. 586, 4 Jur. N. S. 839, 6 Wkly. Rep. 711; York, etc., R. Co. v. Hudson, 16 Beav. 485, 22 L. J. Ch. 529, 1 Wkly. Rep. 187, 510, 19 Eng. L. & Eq. 361.

99. Stewart v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 38 N. J. L. 505; Munson v. Syracuse, etc., R. Co., 103 N. Y. 58, 8 N. E. 355; Budd v. Walla Walla Printing, etc., Co., 2 Wash. Terr. 347, 7 Pac. 896; Leavenworth County v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 134 U. S. 688, 10 S. Ct. 708, 33 L. ed. 1064; Pneumatic Gas Co. v. Berry, 113 U. S. 322, 5 S. Ct. 525, 23 L. ed. 1003; Thomas v. Brownville, etc., Pac. R. Co., 109 U. S. 522, 3 S. Ct. 315, 27 L. ed. 1018 [reversing 2 Fed. 877, 1 McCreary 392]; West Virginia Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91

this view and the former; for under this view it is considered that no consideration of its apparent or intrinsic fairness will induce a court either of law or equity to enforce it against the resisting cestui que trust. Such a contract is, however, valid and enforceable as to others.[1] But it may be repudiated by the company at the instance of a shareholder.[2]

4. Such Contracts Presumptively Valid and Burden on Challenging Party. The rule seems to be that such contracts are presumptively valid, and will stand until overthrown in a proper proceeding by the corporation, its shareholders, or its creditors, and that the burden of showing their unfairness rests upon the challenging party.[3] "If, therefore, nothing is done in avoidance, the transaction remains. If knowledge and opportunity concur, whereupon to move, delay, if unreasonable, or attended by retention and enjoyment of the results of the transaction, may be deemed equivalent to an adoption and ratification of that which before was the subject for action, in repudiation of any obligation."[4]

5. Third View That Validity of Such Contracts Depends Upon Their Nature and Terms. A third view is that the validity of such a contract depends very much upon its nature and terms and the circumstances under which it is made,[5] and that it will be enforced when shown to have been made for the benefit of the corporation, and when it is just; although it will be more closely scrutinized than ordinary contracts.[6]

6. Such Contracts Closely Scrutinized. Those courts which concede that a valid contract may be made between a director and his corporation nevertheless unite on the principle, founded on grounds too obvious to require statement, that such contracts will always be regarded with great jealousy and suspicion, and will be subject to the closest scrutiny.[7] Such transactions, it has been said, are viewed with greater odium than a dealing between an ordinary trustee and his beneficiary.[8]

U. S. 587, 23 L. ed. 328; Jesup v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 43 Fed. 483; Meeker v. Winthrop Iron Co., 17 Fed. 48.

1. Stewart v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 38 N. J. L. 505.

2. Gardner v. Butler, 30 N. J. Eq. 702.

3. This seems to be a reasonable deduction from Genesee Valley, etc., R. Co. v. Retsof Min. Co., 15 Misc. (N. Y.) 187, 36 N. Y. Suppl. 896, 72 N. Y. St. 231.

4. Barr v. New York, etc., R. Co., 125 N. Y. 263, 275, 34 N. E. 743, per Gray, J.

For cases where such contracts have been avoided see Hill v. Rich Hill Coal Min. Co., 119 Mo. 9, 24 S. W. 223 (specific performance refused); Gerry v. Bismarck Bank, 19 Mont. 191, 47 Pac. 810 (transaction steeped in fraud); Sage v. Culver, 147 N. Y. 241, 41 N. E. 513 [affirming 71 Hun (N. Y.) 42, 24 N. Y. Suppl. 514, 54 N. Y. St. 297, where the case was presented by a demurrer to a petition in equity]; Munson v. Syracuse, etc., R. Co., 103 N. Y. 58, 8 N. E. 355; Gildersleeve v. Lester, 68 Hun (N. Y.) 532, 22 N. Y. Suppl. 1026, 52 N. Y. St. 559 (transfer of corporate property to a trustee voidable at suit of creditor); Doe v. Northwestern Coal, etc., Co., 78 Fed. 62 (director voting himself back pay).

5. Kansas.— Thomas v. Sweet, 37 Kan. 183, 14 Pac. 545.

Pennsylvania.—Hammond's Appeal, 123 Pa. St. 503, 16 Atl. 419; Gordon v. Preston, 1 Watts 385, 26 Am. Dec. 75.

South Carolina.— Georgia Cent. R., etc., Co. v. Claghorn, 1 Speers Eq. 545.

Vermont.— Rogers v. Danby Universalist Soc., 19 Vt. 187.

United States.— Hubbard v. New York, etc., Invest. Co., 14 Fed. 675.

6. Hallam v. Indianola Hotel Co., 56 Iowa 178, 9 N. W. 111; Combination Trust Co. v. Weed, 2 Fed. 24. See also Garrett v. Burlington Plow Co., 70 Iowa 697, 29 N. W. 395, 59 Am. Rep. 461. Under this rule it has been held that a deed by a manufacturing corporation to secure the individual indebtedness of its president is not ultra vires where the corporation was itself indebted to him in like amount. Bank v. Pomeroy Flour Co., 41 Ohio St. 552. Other cases in which such transactions have been upheld. Hancock v. Holbrook, 40 La. Ann. 53, 3 So. 351; Stewart v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 41 Fed. 736. On the other hand an agreement between a corporation by its board of directors on the one hand, and one or more of such directors on the other, will be set aside if injurious and oppressive to the company, even though the company was represented by a majority of disinterested directors. Higgins v. Lansingh, 154 Ill. 301, 40 N. E. 362.

7. Couyngham's Appeal, 57 Pa. St. 474; Trust Co. v. Weed, 14 Phila. (Pa.) 422, 37 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 166.

8. Chouteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290, 338, per Sherwood, C. J., where, in view of this rule, the directors of a railroad company having

7. Such Contracts Upheld in Equity When Fair and Honest. Such contracts will be upheld in equity when fair and honest.[9] For instance a director who has in good faith loaned his money to the corporation to assist it in accomplishing its proper and necessary corporate purposes has a valid claim against the corporation for reimbursement.[10] So a contract between a trustee of a corporation and the board of which he is a member, fixing his salary, is not void, but voidable only at the election of the corporation.[11] So the trustees of a corporation may employ any of their number to perform proper and necessary services for the corporation, outside the duties of his office, and may bind the corporation by an agreement in advance to pay him a reasonable compensation for such services.[12] So a corporation cannot defend an action brought by its president to recover the salary agreed to be paid him as president, on the ground that as a member of the board of directors he voted for the resolution fixing his salary, where his vote was not necessary to pass the resolution, and where the services were actually performed under the contract for six months with full knowledge of the corporation.[13]

8. Such Contracts Valid as to Innocent Third Persons. Such contracts are valid as to third parties who acquire rights under them; nor can they be repudiated by the corporation after the rights of innocent third parties have supervened.[14]

9. Such Contracts Valid When Made With Unanimous Consent. On a principle which runs through this whole subject, such contracts are valid when made by unanimous consent, that is, where all the members of the corporation consent to it;[15] and a subsequent ratification will be equivalent to a prior or contemporaneous consent.[16]

10. Voidable When Majority of Directors Constitute Other Contracting Party. Where the directors who assume to make a contract between the corporation and themselves as individuals constitute a majority of the board the contract will not be binding upon the corporation.[17] The principle is that a disinterested majority of the directors is necessary to a contract with a corporation, through the action of the board, and that a contract is invalid if the vote of an interested member of the board was necessary to make it, whether the directors acted in good faith or not.[18]

11. Such Contracts Validated by Ratification. Such a contract is capable of being ratified by the lawful action of the board of directors expressed by a vote taken by a disinterested quorum.[19] So too it may be ratified by the body of the pledged to each other nearly a million dollars in the bonds of the company, to secure an indebtedness of less than four per cent of their nominal value, the court had no difficulty in holding the transaction to be an actual fraud upon the corporation and its shareholders.

9. Strobel v. Brownell, 16 Misc. (N. Y.) 657, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 702; Barr v. Pittsburgh Plate-Glass Co., 57 Fed. 86, 6 C. C. A. 260.

10. Foster v. Belcher's Sugar Refining Co., 118 Mo. 238, 24 S. W. 63.

11. Kearns v. New York, etc., Ferry Co., 19 Misc. (N. Y.) 19, 42 N. Y. Suppl. 771 [affirming 17 Misc. (N. Y.) 272, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 366].

12. Symmes v. Union Trust Co., 60 Fed. 830.

13. Kearns v. New York, etc., Ferry Co., 17 Misc. (N. Y.) 272, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 366 [affirmed in 19 Misc. (N. Y.) 19, 42 N. Y. Suppl. 771].

14. Wile, etc., Co. v. Rochester, etc., Land Co., 4 Misc. (N. Y.) 570, 25 N. Y. Suppl. 794.

15. Batelle v. Northwestern Cement, etc., Co., 37 Minn. 89, 33 N. W. 327. See for illustration Welch v. Importers', etc., Nat. Bank, 122 N. Y. 177, 33 N. Y. St. 452, 25 N. E. 269.

16. See infra, XV, D, 1.

In illustration of this principle it has been held that where there was no deception or fraud practised, a sale by a director of property to a corporation, which is formally approved by the board of directors and ratified by all the shareholders, will not be held invalid because the sale was made for a sum greatly in excess of the cost of the property to the director. Stewart v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 41 Fed. 736. Another illustration of the principle, where the property of a failing corporation was sold to some of its trustees, will be found in Skinner v. Smith, 134 N. Y. 240, 31 N. E. 911, 47 N. Y. St. 528 [affirming 56 Hun (N. Y.) 437, 10 N. Y. Suppl. 81, 31 N. Y. St. 448].

17. Coleman v. Second Ave. R. Co., 38 N. Y. 201.

18. Higgins v. Lansingh, 154 Ill. 301, 40 N. E. 362.

19. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Carson, 51 Ill. App. 552.

shareholders;[20] but as in the case of other voidable contracts[21] it cannot be ratified in part and rejected in part.[22]

12. Director Cannot Be Secret Partner With Third Person, in Contract Between Third Person and Corporation. Moreover a director cannot make, on behalf of the corporation, a contract with a third party, and through a secret understanding between himself and such third party be a partner in the contract with such third party or otherwise derive a profit from it. This follows from the rule already stated,[23] which prevents a director from acquiring an interest adverse to the corporation.[24] A director can neither make a contract on behalf of the company in which he reserves a private interest, nor can he subseqnently become interested in its execution with a view to participate in the profits of the contract. Either act will render the contract void, at the election of the cestui que trust.[25] Statutes have been enacted in several of the states prohibiting corporate officers from being interested in corporate contracts.[26]

13. Director May Recover at Law on Contract With Corporation. So far from a contract between the director and the corporation being void ab initio, the law is that in the absence of fraud such a contract is enforceable in an action at law. Thus if a director enters into a contract with his corporation, whereby he is to do something for the corporation for a reward, and executes the contract, he is entitled to sue the corporation on the contract, and recover the agreed price.[27] Nor is any reason perceived why a director should not be allowed to recover on an implied assumpsit, and to the extent of any value which he may fairly have rendered the company outside of his duties as director. Thus it has been held that where a corporation uses a patented invention belonging to one of its directors, the director is not precluded from claiming compensation therefor, by reason of the mere fact that he is a director.[28]

14. General Doctrine That Directors May Lend to Corporation and Take Security. The only just and practicable doctrine is that the director of a corporation may advance money to it, may become its creditor, may take from it a mortgage or other security, and may enforce the same like any other creditor, but always subject to severe scrutiny, and under the obligation of acting in the utmost good faith.[29] So where advances are made by a director on an agreement that they

20. Nye v. Storer, 168 Mass. 53, 46 N. E. 402; Steinway v. Steinway, 2 N. Y. App. Div. 301, 37 N. Y. Suppl. 742, 73 N. Y. St. 418.

21. See infra, XV, A, 5.

22. Armstrong v. Cache Valley Land, etc., Co., 14 Utah 450, 48 Pac. 690.

23. See supra, IX, G, 5, c.

24. European, etc., R. Co. v. Poor, 59 Me. 277 (opinion by Appleton, J.); Thomas v. Brownsville, etc., R. Co., 2 Fed. 877, 1 McCrary 392; Wardell v. Union Pac. R. Co., 28 Fed. Cas. No. 17,164, 4 Dill. 330; In re West Jewel Tin Min. Co., 10 Ch. D. 579, 48 L. J. Ch. 425, 40 L. T. Rep. N. S. 43, 27 Wkly. Rep. 310.

25. Gilman, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly, 77 Ill. 426.

Other applications of this principle will be found in Port v. Russell, 36 Ind. 60, 10 Am. Rep. 5; Flint, etc., R. Co. v. Dewey, 14 Mich. 477; Great Luxemburg R. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav. 586, 4 Jur. N. S. 839, 6 Wkly. Rep. 711; York, etc., R. Co. v. Hudson, 16 Beav. 199, 22 L. J. Ch. 529, 1 Wkly. Rep. 187, 510, 19 Eng. L. & Eq. 361.

26. 2 N. Y. Rev. Stat. (Banks & Bros. (6th ed.) 1876), p. 400, § 9; Brightly Purd. Dig. Pa. (1873), p. 334, § 95; Wyo. Laws (1889), p. 256, § 58. So in England. 8 & 9 Vict. c. 16, construed in Re Waterloo L., etc., Assur. Co., 33 Beav. 204.

Waiver of statutory provision.—It has been held that neither the directors nor the shareholders of a corporation can waive the provisions of a statute forbidding the directors from participating in the benefits of a contract for building a railroad. Barton v. Port Jackson, etc., Plank Road Co., 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 397. See also Bartlett v. Athenæum L. Soc., 37 Eng. L. & Eq. 187. But this is doubtful.

27. Ward v. Polk, 70 Ind. 309.

28. Deane v. Hodge, 35 Minn. 146, 27 N. W. 917, 59 Am. Rep. 321.

29. California.— Farmers', etc., Bank v. Downey, 53 Cal. 466, 31 Am. Rep. 62.

Illinois.— Mullanphy Sav. Bank v. Schott, 135 Ill. 655, 26 N. E. 640, 25 Am. St. Rep. 401; Beach v. Miller, 130 Ill. 162, 22 N. E. 464, 17 Am. St. Rep. 291; Merrick v. Peru Coal Co., 61 Ill. 472; Rokker v. J. W. Butter Paper Co., 88 Ill. App. 278.

Iowa.— Hallam v. Indianola Hotel Co., 56 Iowa 178, 9 N. W. 111.

Kansas.— Baker v. Harpster, 42 Kan. 511, 22 Pac. 415.

shall be secured, the other directors may carry out the agreement by causing the proper instrument to be executed;[30] and a court of equity will give effect to such an agreement under proper conditions.[31] So it has been held that in order to enable a manufacturing corporation to pay its debts and thus continue its business, its directors may guarantee payment of its note made to its own order, and take as security for their liability its mortgage of all its property.[32] But in such a case it has been well observed that the obligation of the director who lends the money and takes the security to candor and fair dealing is increased in the precise degree that his representative character has given him power and control, derived from the confidence reposed in him.[33] And all such arrangements are jealously scrutinized in equity, and are summarily set aside where fraud supervenes.[34] Nor will such an agreement be enforced beyond what is right. As to an excessive interest stipulated for, and as to an amount included therein beyond what was actually parted with, it will not be enforced.[35]

15. Are Entitled to Indemnity Against Bona Fide Expenses and Advances. As in the case of other trustees, if the directors of a corporation bona fide and necessarily advance their own money to save the properties of the corporation, they will be entitled to indemnity therefor out of the funds of the company,[36] and in preference to the right to dividends of the holders of preferred stock.[37] Nor can moneys so refunded by the corporation to directors in repayment of their bona fide advances be recovered by a creditor of the corporation whose debt was not due and payable at the time.[38]

16. May Purchase From Corporation — a. In General. The principle which upholds contracts when fairly made, between a corporation and its directors or other officers, allows them under like conditions to purchase property from the Kentucky.— McMurtry v. Montgomery Masonic Temple Co., 86 Ky. 206, 5 S. W. 570, 9 Ky. L. Rep. 541.

Massachusetts.— Ward v. Salem St. R. Co., 108 Mass. 332; Hayward v. Pilgrim Soc., 21 Pick. 270.

Missouri.— Johnson v. Cottingham Ironing Mach. Co., 8 Mo. App. 575.

Nebraska.— Gorder v. Plattsmouth Canning Co., 36 Nebr. 548, 54 N. W. 830.

New Jersey.— Stratton v. Allen, 16 N. J. Eq. 229.

New York.— Duncomb v. New York, etc., R. Co., 88 N. Y. 1; Bank Com'rs v. St. Lawrence Bank, 7 N. Y. 513 [reversing 8 Barb. 436]; Kinsman v. Fisk, 83 Hun 494, 31 N. Y. Suppl. 1045, 65 N. Y. St. 75; Rider v. Union India Rubber Co., 5 Bosw. 85.

Tennessee.— In re New Memphis Gas Light Co. Cases, 105 Tenn. 268, 60 S. W. 206, 80 Am. St. Rep. 880.

Vermont.— Sawyer v. Royalton M. E. Soc., 18 Vt. 405; Geer v. Richmond Tenth School Dist., 6 Vt. 76.

United States.— Borland v. Haven, 37 Fed. 394, 13 Sawy. 551.

England.— Bluck v. Mallalue, 27 Beav. 398, 5 Jur. N. S. 1018, 7 Wkly. Rep. 303.

There is a valuable note on this subject in 19 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 121, and another in 17 Am. St. Rep. 291.

30. Baker v. Harpster, 42 Kan. 511, 22 Pac. 415.

31. Wasatch Min. Co. v. Jennings, 5 Utah 243, 15 Pac. 65.

32. Hopson v. Ætna Axle, etc., Co., 50 Conn. 597. That directors may become guarantors for the corporation see Taylor County Ct. v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 35 Fed. 161.

33. Addison v. Lewis, 75 Va. 701.

34. Graves v. Mono Lake Hydraulic Min. Co., 81 Cal. 303, 22 Pac. 665; Duncomb v. New York, etc., R. Co., 22 Hun (N. Y.) 133; Washburn v. Green, 133 U. S. 30, 10 S. Ct. 280, 33 L. ed. 516.

35. Sutter St. R. Co. v. Baum, 66 Cal. 44, 4 Pac. 916.

Circumstances under which a director attempting an unconscionable advantage over other bondholders will not be entitled to equitable salvage. Washburn v. Green, 133 U. S. 30, 10 S. Ct. 280, 33 L. ed. 516.

Circumstances under which a director who is a prior mortgagee does not waive his priority of lien by accepting payment in advance, and does not satisfy or release his prior lien by reason of accepting bonds of the corporation and returning them, when he finds that he is unable to sell them for the corporation. Mullanphy Sav. Bank v. Schott, 135 Ill. 655, 26 N. E. 640, 25 Am. St. Rep. 401.

36. Matter of Joint-Stock Co.'s Winding-up Act, 4 De G. M. & G. 19, 27 Eng. L. & Eq. 158, 53 Eng. Ch. 16. Compare Hutchinson v. Sidney, 28 Eng. L. & Eq. 472.

37. Brown v. Mechanics', etc., Nat. Bank, 12 N. Y. Suppl. 861, 35 N. Y. St. 665, circumstances under which the president of the corporation is entitled to be protected against deficiency after the foreclosure of the mortgage.

38. Holt v. Bennett, 146 Mass. 437, 16 N. E. 5.

corporation.[39] Such purchases are not void at law,[40] but are voidable in equity,[41] under a rule which casts upon the director the burden of sustaining the transaction by showing that it was proper, fair, made in good faith, and for an adequate consideration.[42] Or to express it differently it must be shown that the sale was necessary, that the property was bought by the purchasing director in open market, at a fair price, in good faith, and without any undue advantage over the corporation.[43] If the purchasing director is not guilty of any fraud or concealment, and pays full value for the property, and if it is the intention of the other directors to sell it to him, equity will uphold the sale.[44] As such a sale is good at law, in the absence of fraud, the validity of it cannot be questioned by the attaching creditor, and it is not invalid where it has been subsequently ratified and confirmed by the entire board.[45]

b. Circumstances Under Which Corporation or Shareholders Are Entitled to Avoid Such Purchases. According to one theory a purchase of corporate property by directors is voidable by the corporation, or by its legal representative, at mere option.[46] But the sound view does not seem to go further than to hold that the presumption of law is against the validity of such a purchase and that when it is challenged, the purchasing directors have the burden of defending it and of showing its fairness affirmatively.[47]

c. Circumstances Under Which Such Purchases Are Not Voidable. A director is guilty of no breach of trust or violation of duty, by reason of advancing his own money to the corporation, on the best terms it can get from other people, as for example where the corporation has put its debentures on the market and sold them at a discount, because they will not bring par, and a director purchases them at market rates.[48]

d. May Enforce Such Security Like Any Other Creditor. Such a security being valid, the director who has taken it may enforce it in like manner as any other creditor might.[49]

17. Cannot in General Purchase Corporate Property at Judicial Sales — a. Statement of Rule. A director cannot in general be upheld in purchasing the

39. Hartridge v. Rockwell, R. M. Charlt. (Ga.) 260; Beach v. Miller, 23 Ill. App. 151.

40. Ryan v. Williams, 100 Fed. 172.

41. Little Rock, etc., R. Co. v. Page, 35 Ark. 304.

42. Ryan v. Williams, 100 Fed. 172.

43. Crescent City Brewing Co. v. Flanner, 44 La. Ann. 22, 10 So. 384.

Necessity of the sale must not have been created by the mismanagement of the board, otherwise the sale will be set aside. Crescent City Brewing Co. v. Flanner, 44 La. Ann. 22, 10 So. 384.

44. Buell v. Buckingham, 16 Iowa 284, 85 Am. Dec. 516.

45. Crymble v. Mulvaney, 21 Colo. 203, 40 Pac. 499.

Circumstances under which a director of an insolvent corporation cannot impeach the validity of the sale of corporate property to himself. Clapp v. Allen, 20 Ind. App. 263, 50 N. E. 587.

46. Cook v. Berlin Woolen Mill Co., 43 Wis. 433.

47. Ashurst's Appeal, 60 Pa. St. 290. See also Reilly v. Oglebay, 25 W. Va. 36; Cook v. Berlin Woolen Mill Co., 43 Wis. 433.

48. In re Compagnie Générale De Bellegarde, 4 Ch. D. 470, 35 L. T. Rep. N. S. 900, 25 Wkly. Rep. 299. For a questionable case, upholding an assignment to a director of a corporation, of an option held by the corporation, for the purchase of property of which the corporation had a sale, by means of which option the director was enabled to purchase the fee, see Hannerty v. Standard Theatre Co., 109 Mo. 297, 19 S. W. 82. For circumstances under which a director of a railroad company purchased from its contractor certain ties which had been cut by the company, and which were deposited at the place agreed upon, and an instalment by the company paid thereon, and the ties could not be taken in execution by a creditor of the company, because the legal title had passed to the company from the director, see Cornell v. Clark, 104 N. Y. 451, 10 N. E. 888.

49. For example the directors of a private corporation who, with the knowledge and assent of the shareholders, become guarantors of a debt created by the corporation for a loan secured by mortgage on the property of the corporation, and who pay the debt at maturity and take the transfer of the mortgage, may enforce the mortgage by foreclosure and sale of the mortgaged property to secure the amount of the debt paid by them, notwithstanding the corporation is solvent, and able, if granted indulgence, to finally pay off the debt from its income, and that the value of the property is largely in excess of the debt, and that the directors oc-property of the corporation at a public or other judicial sale;[50] since the effect of this is to draw him into a position antagonistic to that of the company, which as already seen[51] is not allowed. If he purchases its property upon an execution sale for less than its value he may be charged with the property or its value, and with the profits accruing from the purchase, as a trust fund for the benefit of the corporation, its creditors, and its shareholders.[52] The extent of the rule is that a director purchases subject to the right of the corporation to disaffirm and demand a resale, and that in order to have the sale disaffirmed the corporation need not show actual fraud or prejudice.[53] On the one hand, such a transaction is presumptively not bona fide; on the other, it is voidable only at the election and instance of a party in interest.[54] Whenever such a purchase is drawn in question in a direct proceeding in equity, the presumption of law is against its validity, and it devolves upon the purchasing director to establish its good faith and show that the sale produced the full value of the property.[55] One reason assigned for the rule is that for a director to appear as a bidder at a judicial sale of the property of the company would naturally have the effect to prevent bidding.[56]

b. Such Purchases Not Void, but Voidable. Such purchases are not wholly void. They are good in law, and operate to pass the legal title;[57] but they are voidable in equity on the least appearance of unfairness.[58]

c. Director Purchasing Corporate Property For Himself Holds It as Trustee For Company. The directors or other officers of a corporation who thus become the purchasers of its property hold it as trustees for the corporation.[59] cupy fiduciary relations to the shareholders. Rylander v. Sheffield, 108 Ga. 111, 34 S. E. 348.

50. Covington, etc., R. Co. v. Bowler, 9 Bush (Ky.) 468; Williams v. McKay, 46 N. J. Eq. 25, 18 Atl. 824; Cumberland Coal, etc., Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 553; Re Iron Clay Brick Mfg. Co., 19 Ont. 113.

Under Cal. Civ. Code, § 2228, which requires the highest good faith from a trustee toward his beneficiary, and under section 2230, which prohibits the trustee from taking part in any transaction adverse to the beneficiary, the secretary of a corporation, who is also its general manager, and to whom all its affairs are committed, is guilty of a fraud against the corporation in secretly purchasing its property in his own name at execution and tax-sales. San Francisco Water Co. v. Pattee, 86 Cal. 623, 25 Pac. 135.

51. See supra, IX, G, 5, c.

52. Sebring v. Joanna Heights Assoc., 2 Pa. Dist. 629; Tobin Canning Co. v. Fraser, 81 Tex. 407, 17 S. W. 25; Victor Gold, etc., Min. Co. v. National Bank of Republic, 15 Utah 391, 49 Pac. 826; Re Iron Clay Brick Mfg. Co., 19 Ont. 113, 120. Property of the corporation thus purchased by a director at less than its value may be applied to the discharge of a claim held by him against the corporation. Tobin Canning Co. v. Fraser, 81 Tex. 407, 17 S. W. 25.

Sale set aside.— Circumstances under which a sale of all the assets of a corporation on foreclosure of a mortgage to its directors will be set aside. Goddard v. Fishel-Schlichten Importing Co., 9 Colo. App. 306, 48 Pac. 279. Compare the following cases:

Alabama.— Pickett v. Pipkin, 64 Ala. 520.

Georgia.— Ellis v. Pullman, 95 Ga. 445, 22 S. E. 568; Atlanta Real Estate Co. v. Atlanta Nat. Bank, 75 Ga. 40.

Illinois.—Atlas Nat. Bank v. More, 152 Ill. 528, 38 N. E. 684, 43 Am. St. Rep. 274.

Michigan.— Sweet v. Converse, 88 Mich. 1, 49 N. W. 899.

New York.— Decker v. Decker, 108 N. Y. 128, 15 N. E. 307.

West Virginia.— Sweeny v. Wheeling Grape Sugar Refining Co., 30 W. Va. 443, 4 S. E. 431, 8 Am. St. Rep. 88.

53. Hoyle v. Plattsburgh, etc., R. Co., 54 N. Y. 314, 13 Am. Rep. 595. See also European, etc., R. Co. v. Poor, 59 Me. 277, where the rule and the reasons for it are stated at length by Appleton, C. J.

54. Jones v. Arkansas Mechanical, etc., Co., 38 Ark. 17, under the facts of which case a creditor successfully challenged it.

55. Wilkinson v. Bauerle, 41 N. J. Eq. 635, 7 Atl. 514.

56. Re Iron Clay Brick Mfg. Co., 19 Ont. 113.

That a secret purchase by the secretary and general manager of a corporation of corporate property at judicial sale is a fraud on the corporation, under Cal. Civ. Code, §§ 2228, 2230, see San Francisco Water Co. v. Pattee, 86 Cal. 623, 25 Pac. 135.

57. Saltmarsh v. Spaulding, 147 Mass. 224, 17 N. E. 316.

58. Hannerty v. Standard Theatre Co., 109 Mo. 297, 19 S. W. 82.

59. Illinois.— Hoffman v. Reichert, 31 Ill. App. 558, but he can recover what he expended upon it.

Missouri.— McAllen v. Woodcock, 60 Mo. 174; Brewster v. Stratman, 4 Mo. App. 41 (detailing the proceedings to be had against him).

d. When May Purchase Corporate Property at Judicial Sale. In order to avail himself of the security which he may have taken for bona fide advances made to the corporation, a director may purchase its property at a sale under the deed of trust, by which he is secured, or other judicial or public sale.[60] So a director who has interests to protect may purchase corporate property at a public sale made by an assignee or receiver, under an order of court and subject to its approval.[61] Thus a judgment creditor of a corporation has the right to sell its property under his execution, although he may be a director.[62] Another view is that such purchases are presumptively invalid, but that they will be sustained where the officer

New Jersey.— Raleigh v. Fitzpatrick, 43 N. J. Eq. 501, 11 Atl. 1.

New York.— Robinson v. Jewett, 116 N. Y. 40, 22 N. E. 224, 26 N. Y. St. 384 (same doctrine in case where a director purchases for himself property not belonging to the company, but which it is his duty to acquire for the company); Buffalo, etc., R. Co. v. Lampson, 47 Barb. 533 (in case a director purchases with the corporate money and takes title in his own name a trust instantly results in favor of the corporation).

South Carolina.— Palmetto Lumber Co. v. Risley, 25 S. C. 309.

For further illustration see a case where certain directors acquired for themselves certain patent rights, which they ought to have acquired for the company. Averill v. Barber, 2 Silv. Supreme (N. Y.) 40, 6 N. Y. Suppl. 255, 25 N. Y. St. 194. For other circumstances under which such purchases have been held voidable see the following cases:

California.— San Francisco Water Co. v. Pattee, 86 Cal. 623, 25 Pac. 135.

Kentucky.— Covington, etc., R. Co. v. Bowler, 9 Bush 468.

Louisiana.— Crescent City Brewing Co. v. Flanner, 44 La. Ann. 22, 10 So. 384.

New Jersey.— Williams v. McKay, 46 N. J. Eq. 25, 18 Atl. 824.

New York.— Welch v. Woodruff, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 622, 20 N. Y. St. 840.

Texas.— Green v. Hugo, 81 Tex. 452, 17 S. W. 79, 26 Am. St. Rep. 824.

60. Arkansas.— Searcy v. Yarnell, 47 Ark. 269, 1 S. W. 319, several directors of a railroad corporation selling its property to one who has been a director, but who resigns in order to make the purchase — transaction sustained.

New York.— Hoyle v. Plattsburgh, etc., R. Co., 54 N. Y. 314, 13 Am. Rep. 595; Preston v. Loughran, 58 Hun 210, 12 N. Y. Suppl. 313, 34 N. Y. St. 391.

Oregon.— Patterson v. Portland Smelting Works, 35 Oreg. 96, 56 Pac. 407.

Pennsylvania.— Watts' Appeal, 78 Pa. St. 370, directors of land company purchasing corporate lands at fair prices and paying in corporate bonds — transaction sustained.

Tennessee.— In re New Memphis Gaslight Co. Cases, 105 Tenn. 268, 60 S. W. 206, 80 Am. St. Rep. 88.

Texas.— College Park Electric Belt Line v. Ide, 15 Tex. Civ. App. 273, 40 S. W. 64.

United States.— West Virginia Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. 587, 23 L. ed. 328.

England.— Weir v. Barnett, 3 Ex. D. 32, 26 Wkly. Rep. 147.

61. Janney v. Minneapolis Industrial Exposition, 79 Minn. 488, 82 N. W. 984, 50 L. R. A. 273.

62. Hoyle v. Plattsburgh, etc., R. Co., 54 N. Y. 314, 13 Am. Rep. 595.

The leading case on this subject is West Virginia Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. 587, 23 L. ed. 328, where it appeared that certain directors advanced money to rescue the corporation from hopeless embarrassment, taking the mortgage as their security, which mortgage they foreclosed and bought the property at foreclosure sale, and reorganized the corporation and put it on its feet, and the other shareholders who had stood aloof were not allowed to maintain a bill to redeem or to be admitted to a share in the new company. Another very apt illustration is furnished by the case of Harts v. Brown, 97 Ill. 226, where a corporation being insolvent and without means to discharge an indebtedness for which its property was sold under a judicial sale or to redeem the property so sold, its directors, after giving all the shareholders an opportunity of making advances to relieve the company from embarrassment, which opportunity they refused to embrace, purchased the indebtedness and then acquired title to the corporate property by selling it under a deed of trust given to secure such indebtedness — the conclusion being that the other shareholders had no right to complain.

A mere shareholder may so purchase.— Shareholders, being ordinarily not in a fiduciary relation with the corporation but entitled to deal with it at arm's length (Culbertson v. Wabash Nav. Co., 6 Fed. Cas. No. 3,464, 4 McLean 544, 547. See also Gilmore v. Pope, 5 Mass. 491; Willoughby v. Comstock, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 389; Ely v. Sprague, Clarke (N. Y.) 351; Berks, etc., Turnpike R. Co. v. Myers, 6 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 12, 9 Am. Dec. 402), may purchase the property of the corporation at a judicial sale, and if there is no fraud in the sale will not be obliged to account to the other shareholders for the profits, although the purchase may have been made at much less than the value of the property (Mickles v. Rochester City Bank, 11 Paige (N. Y.) 118, 42 Am. Dec. 103).

making them shows that he has paid full value for the property purchased by him at such sale.[63]

18. Such Contracts Voidable at Election of Shareholders. The right to avoid such a contract is ordinarily a right of the corporation; but it is also the right of its shareholders, or a minority of them, where the corporation upon request refuses to act.[64]

19. When Such Contracts Voidable at Suit of Creditors or Their Representative. It cannot be doubted that circumstances may arise where it will also be the right of its creditors, to be exercised through a receiver, assignee, or other trustee appointed to administer the corporate assets for their benefit.[65] Where the president of a corporation, authorized by the vote of its directors to make an assignment of its property for the benefit of its creditors, executed the assignment to himself as assignee, it was held that the assignment was voidable at the election of the corporation, but not on the application of creditors to remove him and appoint a suitable assignee in his stead.[66]

20. Principles on Which Courts of Equity Grant Relief Against Such Purchases. Unless the director thus purchasing the property of the corporation has acted with such turpitude as to put him in the category of a trustee ex maleficio, on the contract being rescinded, he will be allowed to keep, or will have restored to him, what he has actually expended.[67] Expressed differently the property will be restored to the corporation on condition of putting the purchaser in statu quo.[68]

21. When Equity Will Wind Up Corporation. Contrary to the general rule that equity has no jurisdiction to dissolve and wind up a corporation, exceptional decisions are noted in the case of manufacturing and trading companies where, on account of the company falling irretrievably under the control of directors bent on swindling their coadventurers, courts of equity have laid the ax at the root of the tree and granted relief to the minority shareholders in the form of winding up the company, stating an account against the unfaithful directors or managers, paying its debts, and distributing its assets.[69]

63. Horbach v. Marsh, 37 Nebr. 22, 55 N. W. 286.

That an officer so purchasing is guilty of constructive fraud merely and will not be compelled to surrender the property except upon reimbursement see Sebring v. Joanna Heights Assoc., 2 Pa. Dist. 629.

That such a purchase will be upheld when made in perfect good faith see Osborne v. Monks, 21 S. W. 101, 14 Ky. L. Rep. 606.

That such a sale will not be set aside at the instance of the corporation after acquiescence and recognition see Rutgers Female College v. Tallman, 2 Misc. (N. Y.) 561, 24 N. Y. Suppl. 771; In re New Memphis Gaslight Co. Cases, 105 Tenn. 268, 60 S. W. 206, 80 Am. St. Rep. 88 (such purchase not set aside, since if shareholders thereby injured, purchasing directors become personally liable to them).

64. Fudickar v. East Riverside Irr. Dist., 109 Cal. 29, 41 Pac. 1024.

65. "The vote cast by him did not render the proceedings void, but merely voidable at the instance of the corporation, its directors, stockholders or creditors." Van Wyck, C. J., in Keans v. New York, etc., Ferry Co., 17 Misc. (N. Y.) 272, 273, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 366.

66. Rogers v. Pell, 154 N. Y. 518, 49 N. E. 75 [reversing 89 Hun (N. Y.) 159, 35 N. Y. Suppl. 17, 69 N. Y. St. 213].

67. See for instance San Francisco Water Co. v. Pattee, 86 Cal. 623, 25 Pac. 135.

68. Covington, etc., R. Co. v. Bowler, 9 Bush (Ky.) 468. In one case a director of a joint-stock company who at a judicial sale purchased property belonging to the company to satisfy his own liens against it was required to account for the price realized by him on a subsequent sale, although he paid its full value at the time of the purchase. Re Iron Clay Brick Mfg. Co., 19 Ont. 113. See also Averill v. Barber, 2 Silv. Supreme (N. Y.) 40, 6 N. Y. Suppl. 255, 25 N. Y. St. 194; Tobin Canning Co. v. Fraser, 81 Tex. 407, 17 S. W. 25 (property purchased by director at execution sale, at less than its value, applied in the discharge of a claim held by him against the corporation, at its true value, and he accountable for the balance). Where the secretary of a corporation, who was also its general manager, had secretly procured an adverse title to the company's property, by purchasing it in his own name at a judicial sale, he was decreed to make restitution on payment of his expenditures being made to him, and it was held that he was not entitled to have his unpaid salary paid to him prior to such restitution, but that in respect of that he stood on a common level with other creditors. San Francisco Water Co. v. Pattee, 86 Cal. 623, 25 Pac. 135.

69. Miner v. Belle Isle Ice Co., 93 Mich. 97, 53 N. W. 218, 17 L. R. A. 412; Fougeray v. Cord, 50 N. J. Eq. 185, 27 Atl. 499.

That this doctrine does not apply after the

J. Contracts Between Corporations Having Common Directors — 1. Such Contracts Not Absolutely Void — a. In General. The mere fact that some, a majority or all of the directors or contracting officers of two corporations are common to both does not make a contract between the two corporations absolutely void or incapable of ratification.[70]

b. Such Contracts Good at Law. Such contracts are valid at law,[71] the reason being that in theory of law the contracting parties are the artificial persons and not the directors.

c. Such Contracts Subject to Scrutiny. The most that can be said, upon the current of modern authority, against such contracts is that they will be subjected to a severe judicial scrutiny when properly challenged in a court of equity, and will be set aside on the least appearance of unfairness.[72] On the other hand if, upon such scrutiny, it appears that there has been no abuse of the trust relations, but that the contract is fair, it will stand.[73]

2. Rule Where All or Majority of Directors of One Corporation Are Directors in Other. One view of this subject is that where all or a majority of the directors of either corporation are directors in the other the contract made between the two corporations will be presumptively invalid in equity, on the theory of a want of contracting parties, so that it may be avoided by either corporation at the company has gone into liquidation, for then the trust relation has ceased, see Re Mabou Coal, etc., Co., 27 Nova Scotia 305 [following In re Alexandra Hall Co., [1867] Wkly. Notes 67]. So held in Chatham Nat. Bank v. McKeen, 24 Can. Supreme Ct. 348.

70. California.— Smith v. Ferries, etc., R. Co., (1897) 51 Pac. 710 (not void as against public policy, but capable of ratification by the shareholders); San Diego, etc., R. Co. v. Pacific Beach Co., 112 Cal. 53, 44 Pac. 333, 33 L. R. A. 788; San Diego Water Co. v. San Diego Flume Co., 108 Cal. 549, 41 Pac. 495, 29 L. R. A. 839 (the fact of one officer of each corporation being appointed a trustee to carry out an arrangement between them does not make the contract ultra vires); Pauly v. Pauly, 107 Cal. 8, 40 Pac. 29, 48 Am. St. Rep. 98.

Indiana.— Evansville Public Hall Co. v. Bank of Commerce, 144 Ind. 34, 42 N. E. 1097.

Louisiana.— Leathers v. Janney, 41 La. Ann. 1120, 6 So. 884, 6 L. R. A. 661.

New York.— Hart v. Ogdensburg, etc., R. Co., 89 Hun 316, 35 N. Y. Suppl. 566, 70 N. Y. St. 226; Langan v. Francklyn, 20 N. Y. Suppl. 404.

Ohio.— Larwill v. Burke, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 449, will not be set aside after years of acquiescence.

Pennsylvania.— Mercantile Library Hall Co. v. Pittsburg Library Assoc., 173 Pa. St. 30, 33 Atl. 744, 37 Wkly. Notes Cas. 533.

Tennessee.— In re New Memphis Gaslight Co. Cases, 105 Tenn. 268, 60 S. W. 206, 80 Am. St. Rep. 88, not void, in the absence of fraud, because a director in one corporation is an officer in the other.

Wisconsin.— Pratt v. Oshkosh Match Co., 89 Wis. 406, 62 N. W. 84, contract between a firm and a corporation not invalid because a member of the firm was a promoter of, and superintendent in, the corporation, which succeeded the firm.

United States.— Nashua, etc., Corp. v. Boston, etc., Corp., 136 U. S. 356, 34 L. ed. 363; Gasquet v. Fidelity Trust, etc., Co., 75 Fed. 343, 21 C. C. A. 382; Coe v. East, etc., R. Co., 52 Fed. 531.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," §§ 1363, 1364.

That such a contract, like others of the same nature, is validated by the unanimous consent of the shareholders of the two contracting corporations see Barr v. New York, etc., R. Co., 125 N. Y. 263, 34 N. Y. St. 743, 26 N. E. 145. And that although voidable it may be ratified by them see Coe v. East, etc., R. Co., 52 Fed. 531.

The principle of the text is illustrated in the case where the members of a partnership firm incorporate themselves and their business, and as individuals convey to the corporation the property which they hold as a partnership, the same persons being thus on both sides of the contract. Such transactions, which take place every day, are always upheld when not in fraud of future shareholders or of creditors. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Tiernan, 37 Kan. 606, 633, 15 Pac. 544.

The doctrine of the above text also carries with it the conclusion that the fact that the same person is president of two corporations does not of itself invalidate dealings between them (Leathers v. Janney, 41 La. Ann. 1120, 6 So. 884, 6 L. R. A. 661), especially as to a third party to the contract (McComb v. Barcelona Apartment Assoc., 134 N. Y. 598, 31 N. E. 613, 45 N. Y. St. 784).

71. Combs v. New Albany Nat. Bank, 68 Ill. App. 483; Alpha Mills v. Watertown Steam-Engine Co., 116 N. C. 797, 21 S. E. 917.

72. Cases where they were so challenged and set aside.— Bear River Valley Orchard Co. v. Hanley, 15 Utah 506, 50 Pac. 611; Hutchinson v. Sutton Mfg. Co., 57 Fed. 998.

73. Pauly v. Pauly, 107 Cal. 8, 40 Pac. 29, 48 Am. St. Rep. 98.

instance of a shareholder of either, without regard to the question whether it is detrimental to either, and no matter how open and seemingly fair it may be.[74] But as this doctrine operates wholly to disable two corporations from contracting with each other, when the power to do so might be highly beneficial, or even necessary to either or both of them, it will be found that it has not been generally adopted, but that judicial opinion favors the view that such contracts are not void unless shown to be unfair, although as already stated they will be subject to close scrutiny.[75]

3. Such Contracts Presumptively Invalid — Burden of Proof. Another view is that a contract between two corporations, effected by the votes of directors who are common to both, is presumptively invalid and can only be sustained by an affirmative showing of fairness and good faith.[76]

4. Rule Where There Is Quorum in Each Directorate Who Are Not Members of Other — a. In General. Upon the foregoing premises a contract is not presumptively invalid or voidable without proof of fraud, from the mere fact that some of the persons assisting to make it, and taking part in the performance of its conditions, and in the acceptance of performance, are officers in both corporations, and represent both to the extent of their respective powers.[77] No presumption of illegality or unfairness in transactions between two corporations arises from the mere fact that a portion less than a quorum of the board of directors in the one constituted a part of the board of directors in the other at the same time, and participated in the dealings between the two; but it is only when their dealings are shown to be affected with fraud or with breach of trust, or are prejudicial to one or the other of them, that they will be set aside.[78] Stated in another way, if a contract is entered into between two corporations, some of the directors of one of which are also directors of the other, the contract will not be voidable, in the absence of fraud or breach of trust, if there is a quorum of directors in both corporations who are not rendered incompetent to act by reason of being directors in both.[79]

b. View That Such Contracts Are Voidable For That Reason Alone. An opposing view is that contracts entered into between two corporations in which some, although not a majority, of the directors are common to both, are voidable for that reason alone, even in the absence of a showing of fraud or bad faith, since the consenting directors should be able to consult with the full board, whose allegiance to their own corporation is clear and undivided.[80] Accordingly it has been held that a contract between a railroad company and a construction company is void in the sense that it cannot be made the foundation for equitable relief, when any of the directors of the railroad company are members of the

74. O'Conner Min., etc., Co. v. Coosa Furnace Co., 95 Ala. 614, 10 So. 290, 36 Am. St. Rep. 251 note. And see extended note to Beach v. Miller, 130 Ill. 162, 22 N. E. 464, 17 Am. St. Rep. 291.

75. Schumacher v. Edward P. Allis Co., 70 Ill. App. 556; Doe v. Northwestern Coal, etc., Co., 78 Fed. 62 (promissory note, issued for salary of president for previous five years, void where his own vote was necessary to the making of the contract). That a director cannot cast a necessary vote for himself for an office, or to pay himself his salary as an officer, see Martin v. Santa Cruz Water-Storage Co., (Ariz. 1894) 36 Pac. 36. See also Gerry v. Bismarck Bank, 19 Mont. 191, 47 Pac. 810, corporation induced to buy a mine owned by its president and another where the transaction was steeped in fraud and was set aside.

76. German Nat. Bank v. Hastings First Nat. Bank, 55 Nebr. 86, 75 N. W. 531. See also Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, etc., Constr. Co., 44 Nebr. 463, 62 N. W. 899.

77. Griffin v. Inman, 57 Ga. 370.

78. Booth v. Robinson, 55 Md. 419. See also Coleman v. Second Ave. R. Co., 38 N. Y. 201; Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317; U. S. Rolling Stock Co. v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 34 Ohio St. 450, 32 Am. Rep. 380; Flagg v. Manhattan R. Co., 10 Fed. 413.

79. U. S. Rolling Stock Co. v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 34 Ohio St. 450, 32 Am. Rep. 380. See also Booth v. Robinson, 55 Md. 419; Flagg v. Manhattan R. Co., 10 Fed. 413, 20 Blatchf. 142.

80. Metropolitan El. R. Co. v. Manhattan El. R. Co., 11 Daly (N. Y.) 373, 14 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 103; Bill v. Western Union Tel. Co., 16 Fed. 14.

construction company; and that the fact of long acquiescence on the part of the shareholders of the railroad company makes no difference.[81]

5. Such Contracts Validated by Acquiescence and Ratification. Such contracts being valid at law, and only voidable in equity, even where a majority of the directors of both companies are affected by this dual relation, may become valid by acquiescence and lapse of time, on the theory of a ratification; since the majority of the corporation, seeking to disaffirm, possess implied power to restrain and control the action of the minority, and if the contract is voidable at the option of the company, the majority have full power to express the company's election if they see fit so to do.[82]

6. Such Transaction Voidable at Suit of Shareholders. Where a majority of the directors of the contracting corporations are the same in both corporations, on clear grounds, the transaction, if unfair, may be set aside at the suit of the non-consenting shareholders of either of the corporations, provided the directors of the corporation whose non-consenting shareholders complain will not after request institute the proper proceeding to this end.[83]

7. Whether Such Contracts Voidable by Creditors. It has been held that the transfer of the property of a corporation to one of its trustees, under a resolution passed and ratified by his own vote, is voidable at the instance of the corporation or its creditors.[84] But as to creditors it seems to stand on the footing of a fraudulent conveyance; so that although the transaction took place between corporations represented by the same persons as directors, yet if accepted by each corpo-

81. Thomas v. Brownville, etc., R. Co., 109 U. S. 522, 3 S. Ct. 315, 27 L. ed. 1018 [affirming on this point 2 Fed. 887, 1 McCrary 392, where it appeared that the directors of the railroad company received a pecuniary consideration for the contract]. See also Barr v. New York, etc., R. Co., 52 Hun (N. Y.) 555, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 623 (where one of these "Credit Mobilier" arrangements was set aside); Bunnel v. Empire Laundry Machinery Co., 1 Silv. Supreme (N. Y.) 511, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 591, 24 N. Y. St. 675.

Contract voidable where sole contracting agent is officer in both corporations.— Following out the principle that an agent cannot act in a double and antagonistic capacity, in which his personal interests are opposed to that of his principal (Stevenson v. Bay City, 26 Mich. 44, 46), it has been well held that where a note is made by the directors of one corporation as individuals, and transferred to another corporation, but one of the makers who figures as payee and indorser is the president of both corporations, the latter cannot consent to any arrangement releasing or impairing the individual liability of himself or his co-directors (Gallery v. National Exch. Bank, 41 Mich. 169, 2 N. W. 193, 32 Am. Rep. 149).

Contract made by corporate agent employed by the other contracting party — When valid.— Illustrated by the case of an insurance policy (Northrup v. Germania F. Ins. Co., 48 Wis. 420, 4 N. W. 350, 33 Am. Rep. 815) or corporate director or officer made trustee in a corporate mortgage (Ellis v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 107 Mass. 1), although he joined in executing the deed (Bassett v. Monte Cristo Gold, etc., Min. Co., 15 Nev. 293).

No objection that constituent members were same in both corporations.— Corporations may also contract with each other, although the constituent members, that is, the shareholders, are the same in both corporations. Canal Bridge v. Gordon, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 297, 11 Am. Dec. 170.

That a corporation and a shareholder may contract with each other as strangers see Hill v. Manchester, etc., Waterworks Co., 5 B. & Ad. 866, 3 L. J. K. B. 19, 2 N. & M. 573, 27 E. C. L. 364. Compare Longley v. Longley Stage Line Co., 23 Me. 39; American Bank v. Baker, 4 Metc. (Mass.) 164.

82. U. S. Rolling Stock Co. v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 34 Ohio St. 450, 32 Am. Rep. 380. To this principle see Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. 587, 23 L. ed. 328.

That such contracts may be ratified by the shareholders see Leavenworth County v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 134 U. S. 688, 10 S. Ct. 708, 33 L. ed. 1064 [affirming 25 Fed. 219]; Illinois Pneumatic Gas Co. v. Berry, 113 U. S. 322, 5 S. Ct. 525, 28 L. ed. 1003; Coe v. Alabama East, etc., R. Co., 52 Fed. 531. Compare Thomas v. Brownville, etc., R. Co., 109 U. S. 522, 3 S. Ct. 315, 27 L. ed. 1018 [affirming in part 2 Fed. 877, 1 McCrary 392]. And see infra, XV, B, 7, a, (II), (F), (1).

83. Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, etc., Constr. Co., 44 Nebr. 463, 62 N. W. 899. That an executory contract between corporations having common directors is voidable by either corporation, but not at the instance of an individual shareholder (Burden v. Burden, 159 N. Y. 287, 54 N. E. 17 [affirming 8 N. Y. App. Div. 160, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 499]), is a proposition that cannot be affirmed on principle.

84. Gildersleeve v. Lester, 68 Hun (N. Y.) 532, 22 N. Y. Suppl. 1026, 52 N. Y. St. 559.

ration, and by the shareholders of each, it cannot be set aside by creditors, without showing fraud or unfair dealing.[85]

K. Ratification by Corporation of Breaches of Trust by Directors — 1. Ratification by Shareholders. The true principle is that, unless such a transaction falls within the prohibition of a statute or of a rule of common law, so that the act done is malum prohibitum, or against public policy, in which case it cannot be ratified,[86] it is voidable, either at the election of the corporation acting through its directors[87] and officers, or at the election of shareholders, under principles hereafter considered.[88] With this exception it is capable either of disaffirmance or of ratification.[89] In dealing with this subject it must be kept in mind that what the corporation itself cannot do it cannot ratify.[90]

2. What Will Amount to Such Ratification. If the corporation or the shareholders wish to disaffirm the transaction, this must be done within a reasonable time, accompanied ordinarily by an offer to put the trustee or trustees in statu quo.[91] The meaning is that laches, that is to say, an unreasonable delay in disaffirming after knowledge, especially where new rights have been acquired, will be tantamount to a ratification.[92] On the principle that an acceptance of the benefits accruing from an illegal transaction, with knowledge of the nature of the transaction, is tantamount to a ratification,[93] shareholders who have assented to an illegal employment of the corporate funds by receiving their shares of the profits

85. O'Conner Min., etc., Co. v. Coosa Furnace Co., 95 Ala. 614, 10 So. 290, 36 Am. St. Rep. 251.

86. Barton v. Port Jackson, etc., Plank Road Co., 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 397; Bartlett v. Athenæum L. Soc., 37 Eng. L. & Eq. 187.

87. Buell v. Buckingham, 16 Iowa 284, 85 Am. Dec. 516; Chouteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290; Hoyle v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 54 N. Y. 314, 13 Am. Rep. 595. But see Wilbur v. Lynde, 49 Cal. 290, 19 Am. Rep. 645; San Diego v. San Diego, etc., R. Co., 44 Cal. 106.

88. See infra, XV, B, 7, a, (II), (F), (1).

89. See infra, XV, A, 1, a.

90. Durkee v. People, 155 Ill. 354, 40 N. E. 626, 46 Am. St. Rep. 340 [affirming 53 Ill. App. 396]. As for example a purchase of its own shares. Bundy v. Jackson, 24 Fed. 628.

91. Veasey v. Graham, 17 Ga. 99, 63 Am. Dec. 228; U. S. Rolling Stock Co. v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 34 Ohio St. 450, 32 Am. Rep. 380; Ashurst's Appeal, 60 Pa. St. 290; Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. 587, 23 L. ed. 328. See also the following cases:

Kentucky.— Vaught v. Ohio County Fair Co., 49 S. W. 426, 20 Ky. L. Rep. 1471.

Missouri.— Mayer v. Old, 57 Mo. App. 639.

Nebraska.— German Nat. Bank v. Hastings First Nat. Bank, 59 Nebr. 7, 80 N. W. 48.

Pennsylvania.— Nicholas v. Putnam Mach. Co., 7 Northam. Co. Rep. 137.

England.— Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, [1899] 2 Ch. 392, 68 L. J. Ch. 699, 81 L. T. Rep. N. S. 334, 48 Wkly. Rep. 74.

Illustrations.— Unauthorized contract entered into by president of corporation, validated by evidence that he reported it to the board and that they took no action, but permitted the parties to proceed with its execution. Henry v. Colorado Land, etc., Co., 10 Colo. App. 14, 51 Pac. 90. Irregular assignment for benefit of creditors ratified by trustees therein taking possession and holding for thirteen months, without dissent by the corporation or its directors. Silsby v. Strong, 38 Oreg. 36, 62 Pac. 633. That one purchasing stock in a corporation, after mismanagement by its officers has been long acquiesced in by the shareholders, has no standing in court to complain thereof see Erny v. G. W. Schmidt Co., 197 Pa. St. 475, 47 Atl. 877. Corporation cannot repudiate transaction whereby the directors, authorized to negotiate loan, secretly advance the money themselves, and have such loan canceled and discharged, without refunding the money actually received under it and expended for its benefit. Bensiek v. Thomas, 66 Fed. 104, 13 C. C. A. 457.

92. Alexander v. Culbertson Irr., etc., Co., 61 Nebr. 333, 85 N. W. 283; Johnston v. Milwaukee, etc., Inv. Co., 49 Nebr. 68, 68 N. W. 383; Rich v. Lincoln State Nat. Bank, 7 Nebr. 201, 29 Am. Rep. 382; Jenkins v. John Good Cordage, etc., Co., 56 N. Y. App. Div. 573, 68 N. Y. Suppl. 239; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Keokuk, etc., Bridge Co., 131 U. S. 371, 9 S. Ct. 770, 33 L. ed. 157. For another instance of ratification by acquiescence and non-action see Moller v. Keystone Fibre Co., 187 Pa. St. 553, 41 Atl. 478.

93. See infra, XV, C, 2, e.

Illustrations.— Thus a pledge of corporate property is ratified by the corporation receiving and using for the corporate benefit the loan secured thereby. Prentiss Tool, etc., Co. v. Godchaux, 66 Fed. 234, 13 C. C. A. 420. A lease with power to confess judgment is ratified by directors authorizing the payment of a year's rent in advance. Independent Brewing Assoc. v. Powers, 80 Ill. App. 471.

Ratification complete when all the shareholders execute a full, complete, and perfect act of ratification. Robinson Mineral Spring Co. v. De Bautte, 50 La. Ann. 1281, 23 So. 865.

accruing therefrom, cannot charge the directors personally with a loss resulting from such investment.[94]

3. What Acts Will Not Amount to Such Ratification. Speaking briefly the following acts do not amount to such a ratification: The act of a board of directors who have conspired to defraud the corporation by bartering away its assets for their private gain, in assuming to accept on behalf of the corporation an equivalent for such assets, this not concluding the shareholders or their representative from showing that no equivalent was actually received;[95] the additional concurrence of a third officer, in the particular case the cashier of a bank, in a transaction whereby two other officers — the president and a director — had conspired to defraud the corporation;[96] the action of a meeting of shareholders at which no one is present but the de facto officer by whom the illegal act was done, the other shareholders being absent in consequence of the issuance of an injunction against holding the election, which was the chief object of the meeting;[97] an attempted ratification, by resolution or otherwise, of a sale of property of an insolvent corporation to another corporation, where two of the four directors of the selling corporation, present and acting, are likewise directors of the purchasing corporation;[98] and the act of shareholders of a street railway company, who have been induced by fraud to agree to consolidate their road with another, in consideration of stock and business in the new road, in attending meetings of the new corporation and voting thereat without knowledge of the fraud, or in agreeing to the issuance of receiver's certificates to protect the property while in charge of the court.[99]

4. Ratification by Formal Action of Directors. It is not at all necessary to a ratification, even by the board of directors, that there should have been a formal Presumption of ratification arises from slight circumstances, where the act was clearly beneficial to the corporation. Pierce City Nat. Bank v. Hughlett, 84 Mo. App. 268.

94. Scott v. Depeyster, 1 Edw. (N. Y.) 513. But see Barr v. New York, etc., R. Co., 52 Hun (N. Y.) 555, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 623; Henry v. Jackson, 37 Vt. 431. When a knowledge of the transaction for the purposes of ratification by the corporation will be conclusively presumed. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Gilmer, 85 Ala. 422, 5 So. 138.

Ratification by non-action of the shareholders on the theory of concurrent consent. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Credit Mobilier, 135 Mass. 367.

For circumstances which were held to amount to a confirmation or ratification, by the shareholders of a corporation, of a sale made by its directors, see Cumberland Coal, etc., Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 553. See also Great Western Turnpike Co. v. Shafer, 57 N. Y. App. Div. 331, 68 N. Y. Suppl. 5, ratification by corporation observing the terms of the contract for years.

Ratification by a mortgage authorized by less than a quorum of directors.—A mortgage was executed by a corporation when the number of its directors was reduced by a vacancy to less than that required by law. Subsequently, at meetings of full boards, the mortgagee was required to make further advances on the security of the mortgage, and a second mortgage was directed, by a resolution expressly recognizing the validity of the previous one. It was held sufficient to constitute a ratification of the previous mortgage. Porter v. Lassen County Land, etc., Co., 127 Cal. 261, 59 Pac. 563.

95. Guild v. Parker, 43 N. J. L. 430.

96. Rhodes v. Webb, 24 Minn. 292.

97. Morris v. Stevens, 178 Pa. St. 563, 36 Atl. 151, 39 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 370.

98. German Nat. Bank v. Hastings First Nat. Bank, 55 Nebr. 86, 75 N. W. 531.

99. Old Colony Trust Co. v. Dubuque Light, etc., Co., 89 Fed. 794.

Other instances where there was no ratification are to be found in the following cases:

California.— Curtin v. Salmon River Hydraulic Gold Min., etc., Co., 130 Cal. 345, 62 Pac. 552, 80 Am. St. Rep. 132, holding, under statutes, that the action of two thirds of the shareholders in signing what purported to be a ratifying instrument of a mortgage did not render it valid.

Missouri.— Calumet Paper Co. v. Haskell Show Printing Co., 144 Mo. 331, 45 S. W. 1115, 66 Am. St. Rep. 425, holding that an assignment for creditors, void because executed without authority by a minority of the directors, cannot be ratified by the board acting severally.

New Jersey.— Kelsey v. New England St. R. Co., 60 N. J. Eq. 230, 46 Atl. 1059, circumstances under which a sale of corporate stock subject to ratification was not deemed to have been ratified.

New York.— Caldwell v. Mutual Reserve Fund L. Assoc., 53 N. Y. App. Div. 245, 65 N. Y. Suppl. 826, circumstances under which no ratification of the invalid act of the president was shown.

Ohio.— East Cleveland R. Co. v. Everett, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 205, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 493, holding that knowledge of two of the directors does not bring home knowledge to the board or work a ratification by the board.

resolution;[1] but it may arise in consequence of the acquiescence of other directors and shareholders.[2] But there must be a body competent to ratify, and a ratification evidenced in some sufficient manner. A meeting of a board of directors, held without notice to one of its members, at which there is not a quorum of qualified directors present, cannot, it has been held, ratify an unauthorized act of one of the officers of the corporation.[3] Where a mortgage was authorized by less than a lawful quorum of the board, by reason of a vacancy in the board, but the vacancy being filled, the mortgage was ratified by the whole board, it was held that it thereby became valid.[4] While as already seen[5] a director cannot vote in a board meeting upon a proposition in which he is interested in a different way from the shareholders in general, yet it has been held that if a contract is made with him by the directors, and a meeting of the shareholders is called to consider the question of ratifying it, he may vote at such meeting of the shareholders.[6]

5. Corporation Cannot Condone Fraud of Director Without Unanimous Consent of Shareholders. The corporation cannot condone the fraud of a director or officer, by which the assets of the corporation have been misappropriated, except by unanimous consent of the shareholders; otherwise a majority, or a director who might control a majority vote in the corporation, might rob and despoil it with impunity.[7] On the contrary the shareholders have a standing in equity to undo such transactions and to restore to the corporation or to its representative what it has lost thereby.[8]

L. General View of Liability of Directors Outside of Statutes — 1. Status of Directors at Law. At law the directors of a corporation are regarded as the agents of the corporate body merely, which corporate body is an artificial, intangible body, distinct from the aggregate body of the shareholders.[9] The shareholders, not being in privity with them in theory of courts of law, can enforce no remedies against them, either individually or collectively, except such remedies as may be given by statute.[10] From this statement it is apparent that in courts of law a corporation may in general enforce against its unfaithful directors those

1. Henry v. Colorado Land, etc., Co., 10 Colo. App. 14, 51 Pac. 90 (board informed of the transaction while sitting as a board, and took no action to interfere with the execution of the contract); Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Carson, 151 Ill. 444, 38 N. E. 140; Simmons v. Shaw, 172 Mass. 516, 52 N. E. 1087. Thus where the board, after full knowledge of the facts of a sale of property belonging to the corporation, agreed to receive payment of interest on a note which had been received in part settlement of the purchase-price, and extended the note, this effected a ratification of the sale as made. Poche v. New Orleans Home Invest. Co., 52 La. Ann. 1287, 27 So. 797.

2. Miller v. Matthews, 87 Md. 464, 40 Atl. 176, de facto board, all of whom had resigned except one.

3. Cupit v. Park City Bank, 20 Utah 292, 58 Pac. 839, decision doubtful if there was a de facto board.

4. Porter v. Lassen County Land, etc., Co., 127 Cal. 261, 59 Pac. 563.

5. See supra, IX, E, 3, d.

6. North-West Transp. Co. v. Beatty, 12 App. Cas. 589, 56 L. J. P. C. 102, 57 L. T. Rep. N. S. 426, 36 Wkly. Rep. 647.

7. Hazard v. Durant, 11 R. I. 195 [quoted with approval in Ft. Scott First Nat. Bank v. Drake, 29 Kan. 311, 44 Am. Rep. 646].

That no majority of the shareholders, however large, can sanction a plain misappropriation of the funds of the corporation, but that the dissenting voice of a single shareholder will frustrate it, see Bagshaw v. Eastern Union R. Co., 7 Hare 114, 13 Jur. 602, 18 L. J. Ch. 193, 6 R. & Can. Cas. 152, 27 Eng. Ch. 114. See also Kent v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159. Compare supra, I, K, 2, h.

8. For example a shareholder of a corporation has the right to disavow and have annulled a purchase by the directors for the corporation of property in which they are personally interested, where their relation to the property was not disclosed at or before the purchase, notwithstanding that there was no actual fraud and that the price was not excessive. Stanley v. Luse, 36 Oreg. 25, 58 Pac. 75. See further as to the standing of shareholders, or of a single shareholder, in equity, to undo such transactions. Kitchen v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 69 Mo. 224; Stewart v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 38 N. J. L. 505; Gardner v. Butler, 30 N. J. Eq. 702; Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. 587, 23 L. ed. 328.

9. Augusta Bank v. Earle, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 519, 10 L. ed. 274; Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 518, 4 L. ed. 629; Head v. Providence Ins. Co., 2 Cranch (U. S.) 127, 2 L. ed. 229.

10. Smith v. Hurd, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 371, 46 Am. Dec. 690.

remedies which a natural principal might in a court of law enforce against his unfaithful agents.[11]

2. STATUS OF DIRECTORS IN EQUITY. In courts of equity directors are viewed as trustees, either of the corporation looked at as an artificial body, or of the aggregate body of the shareholders.[12]

3. THEIR TWOFOLD LIABILITY FOR NONFEASANCE AND MISFEASANCE. Directors like other agents are liable to their principal, the corporation, or to its legal representative, for nonfeasance, or for the non-execution of the duties of their agency. They are also liable to strangers for misfeasance or positive wrong, and they may be so liable jointly with the corporation.[13]

4. JOINT LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS AND CORPORATION. It is familiar doctrine in the law of agency that for acts of misfeasance, that is, for wrongs or frauds committed by an agent in the course of his agency, to the injury of a third person, such person may maintain an action jointly against the agent and his principal, or he may proceed severally against either.[14] This doctrine applies in case of frauds committed by directors of corporations, in which case the person injured by the fraud may maintain a suit in equity to undo the wrong, making both the corporation and the director parties.[15] If on the other hand an officer of a corporation directs or authorizes a tort to be committed by a servant of the corporation he will be liable equally with the corporation therefor.[16] In case of an act to which the law ascribes the character of a tort, jointly committed by the directors and the corporation, if the party aggrieved waives the tort by accepting the corporation as his debtor, he thereby waives it as to the directors, so as to release them from liability.[17]

5. NOT IN GENERAL LIABLE TO CREDITORS FOR MERE NONFEASANCE. The directors of a corporation are not in general, in the absence of statutes making a different rule, liable to creditors of the corporation for squandering the assets through breaches of their trust; since this is regarded as nonfeasance and primarily as a wrong to the corporation merely.[18]

6. EXCEPTIONAL CASES WHERE DIRECTORS HAVE BEEN HELD LIABLE, OUTSIDE OF STATUTES, TO CREDITORS FOR BREACHES OF THEIR TRUST. A tendency is discovered in modern decisions to enlarge the doctrine of the preceding paragraph, although

11. See infra, IX, N, 1, a et seq.

12. Gaskell v. Chambers, 26 Beav. 360, 5 Jur. N. S. 52, 28 L. J. Ch. 385; Great Luxembourg R. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav. 586, 4 Jur. N. S. 839, 6 Wkly. Rep. 711.

13. Salmon v. Richardson, 30 Conn. 360, 79 Am. Dec. 255; Bruff v. Mali, 36 N. Y. 200; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30; Phelps v. Wait, 30 N. Y. 78; Suydam v. Moore, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 358.

14. Hewett v. Swift, 3 Allen (Mass.) 420; Phelps v. Wait, 30 N. Y. 78; Montfort v. Hughes, 3 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 591; Suydam v. Moore, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 358; Wright v. Wilcox, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 343, 32 Am. Dec. 507. Some cases which make seeming exceptions to this rule were those in which the duty, the violation of which was laid as the foundation of the action, was owed by the agent to his principal and not to the plaintiff. Campbell v. Portland Sugar Co., 62 Me. 552, 16 Am. Rep. 503. Parsons v. Winchell, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 592, 52 Am. Dec. 745, denies the doctrine which is laid down in the above text.

15. In re Imperial Land Co., L. R. 10 Eq. 298, 39 L. J. Ch. 331, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 598, 18 Wkly. Rep. 661. It has been supposed that such an action would be in the nature of an action ex contractu, on the theory that an action for deceit does not lie against a corporation. Scotland Western Bank v. Addie, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 145; New Brunswick, etc., R., etc., Co. v. Conybeare, 9 H. L. Cas. 711, 8 Jur. N. S. 575, 31 L. J. Ch. 297, 6 L. T. Rep. N. S. 109. But modern conceptions make this view doubtful.

16. Peck v. Cooper, 112 Ill. 192, 54 Am. Rep. 231.

17. Birdsell Mfg. Co. v. Oglevee, 187 Ill. 149, 58 N. E. 231 [affirming 87 Ill. App. 351, and citing Terry v. Munger, 121 N. Y. 161, 24 N. E. 272, 30 N. Y. St. 746, 18 Am. St. Rep. 803, 8 L. R. A. 216; Buckland v. Johnson, 15 C. B. 145, 2 C. L. R. 704, 18 Jur. 775, 23 L. J. C. P. 204, 2 Wkly. Rep. 565, 80 E. C. L. 145].

For analogies of the principle that directors are liable not only to the corporation for nonfeasance but to strangers for misfeasance see Harriman v. Stowe, 57 Mo. 93; Phelps v. Wait, 30 N. Y. 78; Montfort v. Hughes, 3 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 591; Suydam v. Moore, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 358; Lane v. Cotton, 1 Ld. Raym. 646, 12 Mod. 472, 4 Taunt. 628; Cary v. Webster, 1 Str. 480.

18. Kelley v. Collier, 11 Tex. Civ. App. 353, 32 S. W. 428.

sometimes with reluctance on the part of the judges.[19] On the theory that the assets of a corporation are a trust fund for its creditors,[20] it has been held that the creditors may hold a director of the debtor corporation liable for wasting assets which are intended to satisfy their claims, on the ground that he is guilty of a misapplication of trust funds, although his conduct has been approved by all the other shareholders and directors.[21]

7. Not Liable at Law to Shareholders Distributively. The general rule is that a shareholder suing for himself alone cannot maintain an action at law against a director to recover damages for malfeasance or misfeasance in the performance of his duties, in managing the corporate business, since the wrong done is in theory of law a wrong to the corporation, and not to the shareholders distributively.[22] Exceptions to this rule exist under some systems and theories. Thus it has been held that a shareholder is entitled to sue the directors for a misappropriation of funds, although he is not strictly a creditor of the corporation, since the liability of the directors to account exists independently of the statutes giving such actions to creditors.[23] So directors of a corporation have been held personally liable to a shareholder for the loss of the amount invested by him where the corporation has been rendered insolvent by their mismanagement.[24]

8. Liable to Shareholders For Wrongs Done to Them Personally. Shareholders being strangers to directors, in theory of law — and whether they are to be so regarded or not — it is clear that for direct wrongs in the nature of misfeasance the directors may be held accountable to the shareholders who have suffered thereby. If a shareholder pledges his shares as collateral security for a debt owing by him to a director, and thereafter the directors enter into a conspiracy to depreciate the price of the shares by using their power as directors, so as to be able to buy them in for less than their value, this is an individual wrong to the shareholder, and not merely a wrong to the corporation; and the shareholder is entitled to have the wrong redressed in a proper action.[25]

9. Innocent Directors Not Liable For Misprisions of Co-Directors — a. In General. Innocent directors are not liable for the misprisions of their co-directors, except where they were under the duty of finding out and knowing and preventing such misprisions;[26] and unless under evidence they are to be regarded as having assented to such misprisions.

b. Evidence of Assent to Such Misprisions. A director who was an original party to an unlawful scheme, whereby the funds of the company were dissipated, did not discharge himself from liability by showing that he afterward went in and 19. The decision of Romer, J., in Elkington v. Hürter, [1892] 2 Ch. 452, 61 L. J. Ch. 514, 66 L. T. Rep. N. S. 764, is submitted as a vindication of this statement. So is Plattsburgh First Nat. Bank v. Sowles, 46 Fed. 731. Bank directors not liable for erroneous representations as to solvency of bank made in good faith. Foster v. Gibson, 38 S. W. 144, 18 Ky. L. Rep. 716.

20. See supra, VIII, B, 1 et seq.

21. In re Brockway Mfg. Co., 89 Me. 121, 35 Atl. 1012, 56 Am. St. Rep. 401.

When directors liable to third persons for rendering shares of the corporation worthless.— It has been held that if the directors of a corporation personally enter into a contract with third persons for the rendering of services to the corporation, and the directors afterward render the shares worthless by placing a mortgage upon the property of the corporation and causing it to be sold out thereunder, they will be personally liable to the other contracting parties for the depreciation of the shares thereby produced. Kelly v. Collier, 11 Tex. Civ. App. 353, 32 S. W. 428.

22. Ackerman v. Halsey, 5 N. J. L. J. 154.

23. Cunningham v. Wechselberg, 105 Wis. 359, 81 N. W. 414.

24. Landis v. Sea Isle City Hotel Co., (N. J. Ch. 1895) 31 Atl. 755 [affirmed in 53 N. J. Eq. 654, 33 Atl. 964].

That in New York directors will not be suspended from office at the suit of a shareholder, but only at the suit of the attorney-general, see Whitman v. Holmes Pub. Co., 33 Misc. (N. Y.) 47, 68 N. Y. Suppl. 167.

25. Ritchie v. McMullen, 79 Fed. 522, 25 C. C. A. 50 [citing Spear v. Grant, 16 Mass. 9; Vose v. Grant, 15 Mass. 505; Bartholomew v. Bentley, 15 Ohio 659, 45 Am. Dec. 596; Walshan v. Stainton, 1 De G. J. & S. 678, 9 Jur. N. S. 1261, 33 L. J. Ch. 68, 9 L. T. Rep. N. S. 357, 3 New Rep. 56, 12 Wkly. Rep. 63, 66 Eng. Ch. 527; Harman v. Tappenden, 1 East 555, 3 Esp. 278, 6 Rev. 340].

26. Fox v. Hale, etc., Silver Min. Co., 108 Cal. 369, 41 Pac. 308.

protested against it, and did nothing more. He should have called his colleagues together, laid before them his protest in a formal manner, and demanded action upon it; and if necessary he should have filed a bill to restrain the illegal action. Where a director was not an original party to an unlawful scheme, but signed a check whereby the moneys of the company were disbursed in pursuance of it, he was held liable on the ground that he would not be heard to say that the signing of the check was a mere ministerial act. He ought to have known of the scheme, and his negligent ignorance fixed him with liability the same as actual knowledge. Mere passive negligence and ignorance have been held insufficient to charge a director, except for costs;[27] yet where a director presided as chairman at a meeting at which an ultra vires investment was ordered, and made a statement indicating that he took an active part in the transaction, he was held personally liable.[28]

10. What Knowledge Imputable to Directors and Officers. The directors of a corporation are conclusively chargeable with knowledge of the statute under which the corporation is organized and from which it derives its powers;[29] and indeed all persons who join a corporation are presumed to acquaint themselves with its constitution and by-laws.[30] Clearly an officer and shareholder of a corporation is by reason of his position prima facie chargeable with knowledge of the customs and usages of the corporation;[31] although it has been held that a director, and for stronger reasons a mere shareholder, is not chargeable, as matter of law, with actual knowledge of the business transactions of the corporation, or of the contents of its books and papers.[32] It seems to be a principle of the law that where several persons act jointly, whether in respect of their own business, or as agents for another, the knowledge acquired by one of them while so acting, with reference to the subject-matter of their joint action, will be imputed to all.[33]

11. Liability Several as Well as Joint. In cases of this kind where the liability arises from the wrongful act of the parties, each is liable for all the consequences; there is no right of contribution among them,[34] although the case against each is distinct, depending upon the evidence against him. It is not therefore necessary to make all the directors parties who may have more or less joined in the act complained of.[35]

12. Directors Not Necessarily Liable For Frauds of Subordinate Agents Appointed by Themselves. The reason supporting this principle is that the agent

27. Joint Stock Discount Co. v. Brown, L. R. 8 Eq. 381.

28. In re Lands Allotment Co., [1894] 1 Ch. 616.

Other cases illustrating this question of what acquiescence will charge a director for the misprisions of his fellows are: Watson v. Crandall, 7 Mo. App. 233 [affirmed in 78 Mo. 583]; Hornblower v. Crandall, 7 Mo. App. 220 [affirmed in 78 Mo. 581]; Arthur v. Griswold, 55 N. Y. 400; Ireland Land Credit Co. v. Fermoy, L. R. 5 Ch. 763, 39 L. J. Ch. 477, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 439, 18 Wkly. Rep. 1089 [reversing L. R. 8 Eq. 7, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 293, 17 Wkly. Rep. 562].

29. Van Etten v. Eaton, 19 Mich. 187, holding that therefore their failure to make and publish a report required by such statute is presumed to have been intentional.

30. Belleville Mut. Ins. Co. v. Van Winkle, 12 N. J. Eq. 333.

31. Fraylor v. Sonora Min. Co., 17 Cal. 594.

32. Rudd v. Robinson, 126 N. Y. 113, 26 N. E. 1046, 36 N. Y. St. 500, 22 Am. St. Rep. 816, 12 L. R. A. 473; Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662. See supra, VI, F, 8; infra, XIII, A, 10.

It has been held that notice to a corporation is notice to its officers in respect to defects in the title to promissory notes transferred by the corporation to them. Nelson v. Wellington, 5 Bosw. (N. Y.) 178.

33. Lyman v. U. S. Bank, 12 How. (U. S.) 225, 13 L. ed. 965 [affirming 2 Fed. Cas. No. 924, 1 Blatchf. 297], where certain directors made a joint purchase, and the knowledge of some was imputed to all. Compare Perry v. Simpson Waterproof Mfg. Co., 37 Conn. 520.

34. Peck v. Ellis, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 131; Spalding v. Oakes, 42 Vt. 343; Oakes v. Spaulding, 40 Vt. 347, 94 Am. Dec. 404; Merryweather v. Nixan, 8 T. R. 186, 16 Rev. Rep. 810. Unless the act which rendered the directors liable was not in itself illegal but merely ultra vires. Ashhurst v. Mason, L. R. 20 Eq. 225, 44 L. J. Ch. 337, 23 Wkly. Rep. 506.

As to contribution where the liability is statutory see infra, IX, P. 13, a.

35. Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Jenkins, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 130; Ireland Land Credit Co.

directly committing the wrong is the agent of the common principal, the corporation, and not the agent of the directors by whom he is appointed; and hence that the doctrine of respondeat superior does not in such cases apply to the director. This doctrine has been applied where the intermediate agent was a steward or manager of mines,[36] the president,[37] the general agent[38] of the corporation, the selectman of a town,[39] and the captain of a vessel.[40] But where the directors personally and knowingly derive a benefit from the fraud of the subagent they may be held liable on the ground that he thereby became in a sense their agent.[41]

13. Not Liable to Shareholders For Failing to Declare Dividends. In the absence of fraud directors are not liable to shareholders for failing to declare a dividend, this being a matter committed to their discretion, which when honestly and intelligently exercised will not be supervised by the courts.[42]

14. Not Liable For Honest Mistakes as to Extent of Their Powers. It seems to be the general rule that the directors of a corporation are not personally liable for taking a particular course of action in consequence of an honest mistake as to their powers,[43] as where a corporation organized to manufacture woodenware is engaged by its directors in the manufacture of sewing-machines.[44]

15. Not in General Liable For Acts of Corporation. The rule which exonerates an agent for responsibility for the acts done in behalf of his principal operates in favor of the directors of corporations.[45] But this as already seen leaves directors liable for trespasses and other affirmative torts committed by them against third persons, whether acting within or without the scope of their authority as directors.[46]

16. Not Personally Liable For Infringement of Patent. It has been held that a director of a corporation is not liable for its infringement of a patent from the mere fact that he assented to it; but he is so liable where the act was done by ministerial officers or agents of the corporation in obedience to his vote as director.[47]

v. Fermoy, L. R. 5 Ch. 763, 39 L. J. Ch. 477, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 439, 18 Wkly. Rep. 1089; Charitable Corp. v. Sutton, 2 Atk. 400, 9 Mod. 349, 26 Eng. Reprint 642; Atty.-Gen. v. Wilson, Cr. & Ph. 1, 10 L. J. Ch. 53, 4 Jur. 1174, 18 Eng. Ch. 1, 1 Jur. 890, 7 L. J. Ch. 76, 9 Sim. 30, 16 Eng. Ch. 30. Compare Consett v. Bell, 6 Jur. 869, 11 L. J. Ch. 401, 1 Y. & Coll. Ch. 569, 20 Eng. Ch. 569; Beadles v. Burch, 4 Jur. 189, 9 L. J. Ch. 57, 10 Sim. 332, 16 Eng. Ch. 332.

36. Stone v. Cartwright, 6 T. R. 411.

37. Hewitt v. Swift, 3 Allen (Mass.) 420.

38. Bath v. Caton, 37 Mich. 199.

39. Bacheller v. Pinkham, 68 Me. 253.

40. Nicholson v. Mouncey, 15 East 384, 13 Rev. Rep. 501. See also Wier v. Barnett, 3 Ex. D. 32, 26 Wkly. Rep. 147 [affirmed in 3 Ex. D. 238], directors not liable for fraudulent prospectus issued by brokers employed by the directors as agents of the company, to sell for account of the company certain of its debentures.

For an analogy in support of the doctrine that an intermediate agent is not liable for the torts of a subagent appointed by him, not directly authorized by the intermediate agent, see Hewett v. Swift, 3 Allen (Mass.) 420.

41. Weir v. Barnett, 3 Ex. D. 32, 26 Wkly. Rep. 147 [affirmed in 3 Ex. D. 238].

42. Zellerbach v. Allenberg, 99 Cal. 57, 33 Pac. 786; Excelsior Water, etc., Min. Co. v. Pierce, 90 Cal. 131, 27 Pac. 44.

43. Watts' Appeal, 78 Pa. St. 370; Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 3 R. I. 9; Seymour v. Spring Forest Cemetery Assoc., 4 N. Y. App. Div. 359, 38 N. Y. Suppl. 726, 74 N. Y. St. 245; In re Kingston Cotton Mill Co., [1896] 1 Ch. 331, 65 L. J. Ch. 290, 73 L. T. Rep. N. S. 745, 44 Wkly. Rep. 363 [reversed in [1896] 2 Ch. 279].

The doctrine is qualified and unsettled and some of the decisions seem to be contradictory, as will appear when discussing it in the liability of directors for negligence. See infra, IX, M, 1 et seq.

Carrying out the same idea it is held that "official misconduct" in a statute means something more than a mere misconception of rights by a trustee in a corporation, but that malfeasance is necessary, which means action with a corrupt intent. Stokes v. Stokes, 23 N. Y. App. Div. 552, 48 N. Y. Suppl. 722.

44. Bond v. Poe, 12 Ohio Cir. Ct. 281, 4 Ohio Cir. Dec. 10.

45. Fanning v. Osborne, 102 N. Y. 441, 7 N. E. 307; Nunnelly v. Southern Iron Co., 94 Tenn. 397, 29 S. W. 361, 28 L. R. A. 421; Davenport v. Newton, 71 Vt. 11, 42 Atl. 1087; Greenberg v. Whitcomb Lumber Co., 90 Wis. 225, 63 N. W. 93, 48 Am. St. Rep. 911, 23 L. R. A. 439.

46. See supra, IX, L, 3.

47. National Cash-Register Co. v. Leland, 94 Fed. 502, 37 C. C. A. 372.

17. Not in General Liable on Contracts of Corporation. As in the case of other agents, directors are not in general liable to make good the obligations assumed by contract with the corporation, unless they themselves have assumed such obligations by special promises founded on a good consideration.[48]

18. Liable For Debts Contracted Before Corporate Organization Completed. Men who contract debts, professing to act in behalf of a corporation which does not exist, or the organization of which is not advanced to the stage of a de facto corporation, are liable personally for those debts, on the theory of breach of warranty of agency, or on whatever other theory you like;[49] and there are statutes in affirmation of this rule.[50]

19. Directors of Foreign Corporation Not Individually Liable For Its Debts. Unless the local statute law makes a different rule, the directors of a foreign corporation doing business within the domestic state are clothed with the same immunity from personal liability for its debts as attends them in the state of the creation of the corporation; and this, although the domestic statutes do not give express permission for the foreign corporation to do business within the domestic state, since that permission is given by state comity. Nor does it make any difference that the directors sought to be made liable reside in the domestic state, or that the foreign corporation might have migrated, so to speak, and settled there for the purpose of its business.[51]

M. Liability of Directors For Negligence — 1. Directors May Be Liable For Negligence. Subject to the qualifications hereafter stated, the directors of a corporation are bound to administer its affairs according to the terms of its charter or governing statute, with diligence and in good faith; and if they fail in either respect they are liable to the party in interest who is injured by it, for a breach of trust, and may be made to account with him in a court of chancery.[52] It has been said that if they neglect to perform the acts which are within their authority, and which they ought to perform, neither a court of law nor of equity will allow them afterward to take advantage of their own neglect.[53] They are therefore liable affirmatively or negatively, to some extent at least, for losses happening through their negligence. Statutes have been enacted in confirmation of this principle.[54] Where they are so liable, even to creditors directly, for acts which reach the grade of positive misfeasance, it is no defense that their services were performed gratuitously.[55]

48. Drew v. Longwell, 81 Hun (N. Y.) 144, 30 N. Y. Suppl. 733, 62 N. Y. St. 697, not liable for services of an attorney employed in pursuance of a resolution of their board to conduct proceedings for dissolution.

Not liable because contracts with the corporation are informally made and because the business of the corporation is loosely done. Linkauf v. Lombard, 137 N. Y. 417, 33 N. E. 472, 51 N. Y. St. 63, 33 Am. St. Rep. 743, 20 L. R. A. 48.

49. Forbes v. Whittemore, 62 Ark. 229, 35 S. W. 223.

50. Loverin v. McLaughlin, 161 Ill. 417, 44 N. E. 99 [affirming 46 Ill. App. 373]; Greene v. Masten, 66 Ill. App. 345. Under Ill. Acts (1874), c. 32, §§ 4, 18, the directors of a corporation are liable to pay the debts contracted in behalf of the corporation where they assume to exercise corporate power without complying with the provisions of the statute as to the mode of organizing the corporation, or do so before all stock named is subscribed; and either of the delinquencies will make them liable. Loverin v. McLaughlin, 161 Ill. 417, 44 N. E. 99 [affirming 46 Ill. App. 373]. See also Rutherford v. Hill, 22 Oreg. 218, 29 Pac. 546, 29 Am. St. Rep. 596, 17 L. R. A. 549, and an extensive note.

The fact that a concurrence of a majority of the directors was not by formal resolution does not make such directors the less liable for materials purchased before the corporation came into existence. Edwards v. Armour Packing Co., 90 Ill. App. 333 [affirmed in 190 Ill. 467, 60 N. E. 807].

51. Boyington v. Van Etten, 62 Ark. 63, 35 S. W. 622.

52. St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566; Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312, 53 Am. Dec. 624. Compare Winter v. Baker, 34 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 183; Patterson v. Baker, 34 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 180.

53. Bargate v. Shortridge, 5 H. L. Cas. 297, 24 L. J. Ch. 457.

54. See for example Ohio Rev. Stat. (1880), § 3314.

55. Michleson v. Pierce, 107 Wis. 85, 82 N. W. 707.

2. Distinction With Respect to Liability For Negligence Between Discretionary and Ministerial Acts. This distinction, which is strongly drawn with respect to the liability of public officers, applies perhaps with equal force with respect to the liability of directors. The meaning is that directors are not liable for damages accruing from acts done by them which rest in their sound discretion, unless they have exercised their discretionary powers with wilfulness or malice.[56] The two leading rules of this subject are: (1) Where directors are clothed with a discretion they are not responsible to the corporation for damages flowing from an exercise of this discretion, however erroneous their exercise of it may have been. (2) In respect to their ministerial duties they are not responsible to the corporation for anything short of gross negligence, non-attendance, and fraud, whereby frauds have been perpetrated or the property of the corporation embezzled or wasted.[57]

3. Not Liable For Mistakes of Judgment. As the directors impliedly stipulate with the shareholders to give no more than good faith and ordinary or reasonable care,[58] it follows that they are not liable for losses happening through mere mistakes of judgment, whether in respect of discretionary or of ministerial matters.[59] It has been said that they are not liable for mistakes of judgment, although so gross as to appear absurd, if honest and within the scope of their powers, especially when acting under the advice of counsel.[60] It has also been said that to render them liable the acts must be so grossly wrong as to warrant the imputation of fraud, or the want of the necessary knowledge for the performance of the duties assumed by them on accepting the agency.[61] Therefore no recovery can be had against the directors of a bank for losses sustained by mere errors of judgment in purchasing, under execution and foreclosure sales, in an attempt to save debts due the bank.[62] Nor can directors of a national bank be made liable for the debts of the bank, for an error or misstatement innocently made by him in a report of the condition of the bank;[63] for losses to the bank caused by declaring dividends based on an error of judgment as to the value of assets; for losses on loans and discounts made in good faith but resulting in loss;[64] for making investments on doubtful or insufficient security;[65] for the failure of a bank in which they deposited

56. Drew v. Coulton, 1 East 563 note; Harman v. Tappenden, 1 East 555, 3 Esp. 278, 6 Rev. Rep. 340 (involving the franchises of a member, where Lord Kenyon based his reasoning on the analogy of the non-liability of judges of elections for discretionary acts). On the same ground the insurance commissioner of a state is not personally liable for refusing to grant a company a license to do business, unless he acts corruptly, his action being judicial. State v. Thomas, 88 Tenn. 491, 12 S. W. 1034.

57. The leading case establishing this doctrine is Colt v. Woollaston, 2 P. Wms. 154, 24 Eng. Reprint 679, an able exposition of which is also found in Percy v. Millaudon, 8 Mart. N. S. (La.) 68, which is a case of high authority. It is quoted with approval in The Steamboat New World v. King, 16 How. (U. S.) 469, 14 L. ed. 1019; Story Bailm. § 173*a*; Wharton Negl. § 510. Henry v. Jackson, 37 Vt. 431, is also a good illustration of the rule stated in the text. To the same effect see Smith v. Prattville Mfg. Co., 29 Ala. 503; Neall v. Hill, 16 Cal. 145, 76 Am. Dec. 508.

58. See infra, IX, M, 4.

59. Alabama.— Smith v. Prattville Mfg. Co., 29 Ala. 503; Godbold v. Mobile Branch Bank, 11 Ala. 191, 46 Am. Dec. 211.

Pennsylvania.— Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 11, 10 Am. Rep. 684.

Rhode Island.— Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312, 53 Am. Dec. 624, 3 R. I. 9.

Tennessee.— Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625.

United States.— Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662; Witters v. Sowles, 31 Fed. 1.

England.— Overend, etc., Co. v. Gibb, L. R. 5 H. L. 480, 42 L. J. Ch. 67 [affirming L. R. 4 Ch. 701, 39 L. J. Ch. 45, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 73]; Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, [1899] 2 Ch. 392, 68 L. J. Ch. 699, 81 L. T. Rep. N. S. 334, 48 Wkly. Rep. 74; In re New Mashonaland Exploration Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 577.

60. Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 11, 10 Am. Rep. 684.

61. Godbold v. Mobile Branch Bank, 11 Ala. 191, 46 Am. Dec. 211.

62. Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625.

63. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662.

64. Witters v. Sowles, 31 Fed. 1.

65. Williams v. Halliard, 38 N. J. Eq.

funds of the corporation in good faith and which was in good credit at the time;[66] or for failing to require their president to furnish a bond to secure the faithful discharge of his official duties.[67]

4. Bound to Exercise Ordinary Diligence. The measure of care, skill, and diligence which the law demands on the part of directors of corporations is, stated generally, the deligens patrisfamilias of the civil law, which means good business diligence, or such diligence as a reasonably prudent, careful, and skilful man exercises in the conduct of his own affairs, which care, skill, and diligence are generally designated by the use of the words "ordinary and reasonable care."[68] While as hereafter seen a class of decisions places the liability of directors under this head on a ground more favorable to them, by restraining it to cases of gross and habitual negligence, non-attendance, and inattention to their duties,[69] yet none of the decisions exacts more than reasonable business knowledge and skill, strict good faith, and a reasonable measure of care and diligence under the circumstances of the particular case.[70] This care is analogous to the care which the law demands from an ordinary bailee for hire.[71]

5. Such Negligence Judged by Standard of Good Business Diligence. Obviously the question of negligence or of due care in a board of directors of a corporation ought not to be judged by the cautious and hesitating standard of the legal schedule on the judicial bench; but it is a question depending in an imminent degree upon the facts and conditions of each particular case,[72] and it ought, if the course of the court will permit, to be submitted to a jury.[73]

373; Williams v. McDonald, 37 N. J. Eq. 409; North Hudson Mut. Bldg., etc., Assoc. v. Childs, 82 Wis. 460, 52 N. W. 600, 33 Am. St. Rep. 57.

66. Stewart v. Lee Mut. F. Ins. Assoc., 64 Miss. 499, 1 So. 743.

67. Williams v. Halliard, 38 N. J. Eq. 373.

68. Illinois.— Delano v. Case, 121 Ill. 247, 12 N. E. 676, 2 Am. St. Rep. 81 [affirming 17 Ill. App. 531].

Kentucky.— Louisville Sav. Bank v. Caperton, 87 Ky. 306, 8 S. W. 885, 12 Am. St. Rep. 488.

Maine.— Mutual Redemption Bank v. Hill, 56 Me. 385, 96 Am. Dec. 470.

New Jersey.— Williams v. McKay, 40 N. J. Eq. 189, 53 Am. Rep. 775.

New York.— Brinckerhoff v. Bostwick, 88 N. Y. 52; Hun v. Cary, 82 N. Y. 65, 37 Am. Rep. 546; Scott v. Depeyster, 1 Edw. 513.

Tennessee.— Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625.

Virginia.— Marshall v. Farmers', etc., Sav. Bank, 85 Va. 676, 8 S. E. 586, 17 Am. St. Rep. 84, 2 L. R. A. 534.

Wisconsin.— Killen v. Barnes, 106 Wis. 546, 82 N. W. 536.

United States.— Corbett v. Woodward, 6 Fed. Cas. No. 3,223, 5 Sawy. 403.

England.— Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, [1899] 2 Ch. 392, 68 L. J. Ch. 699, 81 L. T. Rep. N. S. 334, 48 Wkly. Rep. 74, good faith and such care as may be reasonably expected from them.

69. See infra, IX, M, 6.

70. Smith v. Prattville Mfg. Co., 29 Ala. 503; Godbold v. Mobile Branch Bank, 11 Ala. 191, 46 Am. Dec. 211; Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 11, 10 Am. Rep. 684; Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312, 53 Am. Dec. 624, 3 R. I. 9; Killen v. Barnes, 106 Wis. 546, 82 N. W. 536. Compare United Shakers Soc. v. Underwood, 9 Bush (Ky.) 609, 15 Am. Rep. 731.

71. Such is the measure of liability imposed upon the secretary of a building association (Mowbray v. Antrim, 123 Ind. 24, 20 N. E. 858); upon an executor or administrator in respect to the investment of the estate (Norwood v. Harness, 98 Ind. 134, 49 Am. Rep. 739, and many cases there cited); upon the guardian of the estate of an infant (Slauter v. Favorite, 107 Ind. 291, 4 N. E. 880, 57 Am. Rep. 106; State v. Greensdale, 106 Ind. 364, 6 N. E. 926, 55 Am. Rep. 753); upon an attorney in respect of the custody of money collected for his client (Naltner v. Dolan, 108 Ind. 500, 8 N. E. 289, 58 Am. Rep. 61); and upon the directors of a bank (Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662).

It demands a reasonable conformity to the customs and methods in vogue among prudent bankers. Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625. That bank directors are trustees for the depositors as well as for the shareholders and are liable to the depositors for the non-exercise of ordinary care and diligence see Delano v. Case, 121 Ill. 247, 12 N. E. 676, 2 Am. St. Rep. 81.

72. Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625.

That it ought to be judged by the standard of business and financial men see the observations of Lord Hatherley, L. C., in Overend, etc., Co. v. Gibb, L. R. 5 H. L. 480, 494, 42 L. J. Ch. 67, explaining his judgment in a previous case, Turquand v. Marshall, L. R. 4 Ch. 376, 38 L. J. Ch. 639, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 766, 17 Wkly. Rep. 935.

73. This was done in Hedges v. Paquett, 3 Oreg. 77.

6. RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSSES HAPPENING THROUGH GROSS AND HABITUAL NEGLIGENCE, NON-ATTENDANCE, ETC. The directors of a corporation are personally liable to the corporation or to its representative for suffering the corporate funds or property to be wasted or lost by gross negligence or non-attention to their duties.[74] This makes them liable for losses happening through their want of a reasonable supervision of the affairs of the corporation, through their gross neglect of corporate duties, through their habitual non-attendance of meetings of the board, in other words for that gross and habitual negligence and non-attendance which is tantamount to the crassa negligentia of the civil law, and which is justly held to be a breach of the trust which they have assumed.[75]

7. LIABILITY FOR ACTS OF THEIR SUBORDINATES. As already seen[76] directors are not liable for the acts of the subordinate ministerial agents whom they appoint under the rule of respondeat superior; but it seems that where they delegate their discretionary duties to an agent of the corporation they make themselves liable for his negligence, as where the directors of a bank delegate to the cashier the exclusive charge of the matter of loans and discounts.[77] On the other hand, and it is assumed that this and what follows will apply mutatis mutandis to any species of business corporations, if the directors of a bank leave the custody, control, and management of its securities and property to a single officer, no matter how high may be his character and reputation, for a long space of time, without supervision, examination, or inquiry, they are guilty of negligence in the performance of their duty.[78] And although it is said to be proper for the managers of a savings-bank to define the duties of the bank officers, and, in order to

74. Nix v. Miller, 26 Colo. 203, 57 Pac. 1084 (director guilty of gross neglect or inattention whereby other directors wrongfully divert or misapply the corporate assets is accountable to a judgment creditor of the corporation as much as though he himself had participated in such wrongful acts); Horn Silver Min. Co. v. Ryan, 42 Minn. 196, 44 N. W. 56; Hun v. Cary, 59 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 426 [affirmed in 82 N. Y. 65, 37 Am. Rep. 546]; Miesse v. Loren, 5 Ohio N. P. 307. Compare Delano v. Case, 121 Ill. 247, 12 N. E. 676, 2 Am. St. Rep. 81; Williams v. McKay, 40 N. J. Eq. 189, 53 Am. Rep. 775; Ackerman v. Halsey, 37 N. J. Eq. 356; Brinckerhoff v. Bostwick, 105 N. Y. 567, 12 N. E. 58; Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 11, 10 Am. Rep. 684.

75. Charitable Corp. v. Sutton, 2 Atk. 400, 9 Mod. 349, 26 Eng. Reprint 642, the leading case. See also Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625; Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662; Overend, etc., Co. v. Gibb, L. R. 5 H. L. 480, 42 L. J. Ch. 67; Evans v. Coventry, 8 De G. M. & G. 835, 2 Jur. N. S. 557, 25 L. J. Ch. 489, 4 Wkly. Rep. 466, 57 Eng. Ch. 645.

The rule seems to be the same under section 165 of the English Companies Act of 1862, which makes directors liable on the winding-up of a company, if it appears that they have been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the directors not being chargeable, under this statute, for negligence unless it reaches the grade of crassa negligentia, resulting in loss. In re Liverpool Household Stores Assoc., 59 L. J. Ch. 616, 62 L. T. Rep. N. S. 873, 2 Meg. 217. Other cases decided under this statute are: In re British Guardian L. Assur. Co., 14 Ch. D. 335, 49 L. J. Ch. 446, 28 Wkly. Rep. 945 (directors held liable for breach of trust); In re Forest of Dean Coal Min. Co., 10 Ch. D. 450, 40 L. T. Rep. N. S. 287, 27 Wkly. Rep. 594 (directors not liable on the ground of wilful default or misfeasance for failing to take steps to recover promotion money improperly paid); In re National Assur. Co., 10 Ch. D. 118, 48 L. J. Ch. 163, 39 L. T. Rep. N. S. 420, 27 Wkly. Rep. 302 (directors held liable for making payments to the shareholders out of the capital, the act being ultra vires and in breach of their trust). In one case the directors of an English company were held personally liable for losses owing to their negligence in not causing the business of the company to be stopped pursuant to a provision to that effect in the articles. Scotland Western Bank v. Baird [cited in Turquand v. Marshall, L. R. 4 Ch. 376, 381; Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 373]. But where under similar circumstances the shareholders had sanctioned a continuance of the business, the directors were exonerated. Turquand v. Marshall, L. R. 4 Ch. 376, 38 L. J. Ch. 639, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 766, 17 Wkly. Rep. 935 [reversing L. R. 6 Eq. 112, 37 L. J. Ch. 582, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 385, 16 Wkly. Rep. 719]. See also Lethbridge v. Adams, L. R. 13 Eq. 547, 41 L. J. Ch. 710, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 147, 20 Wkly. Rep. 352.

76. See supra, IX, L, 12.

77. Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625.

78. Ouderkirk v. Central Nat. Bank, 119 N. Y. 263, 23 N. E. 875, 29 N. Y. St. 573, where the question was as to the liability of a bank for the loss of bonds deposited with it.

facilitate the transaction of business, to appoint small committees[79] to superintend such officers and dispose of ordinary routine work, they are not authorized to relax vigilance and rely entirely upon such officers and committees.[80] In judging of their liability, it must be kept in mind that they are not expected to devote all their time to the management of the corporation, but that the customary method in regard to such associations is to commit the active management and responsibility to the custody of the cashier and other agents to whom salaries are paid, and whose entire time is demanded in the discharge of their duties, the office of the directors being, in their character of part proprietors and mandataries, to superintend, direct, and control; and that the ground of their liability under the head of negligence and nonfeasance consists in their failure to exercise due diligence in this work of supervision and control; the question being judged according to the circumstances of each particular case.[81]

8. Liability For Negligent Ignorance. Where there is a duty of finding out and knowing, negligent ignorance has the same effect in law as actual knowledge.[82] While the directors of a corporation may and must commit the details of its business to inferior officers this does not absolve them from the duty of maintaining a reasonable supervision; and if such inferior officers waste the assets of the corporation it is conceded that the directors cannot escape liability on the ground that they did not know of the wrong-doing, provided that it appear that their ignorance was the result of a want of that care which ordinarily prudent and diligent men would exercise under similar circumstances.[83] The true rule, disregard-

79. Compare supra, IX, D, 5, a, note 51.

80. Williams v. McKay, 46 N. J. Eq. 52, 18 Atl. 824.

81. Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625.

Instances of non-liability under the foregoing rules: For overdrafts allowed by the cashier without knowledge of directors and in violation of instructions. Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625. For insolvency through discounting paper not properly secured, although indorsed by a wealthy director. Movius v. Lee, 30 Fed. 298 [affirmed sub nom. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662]. For losses through frauds and forgeries of the secretary continued two or three years. Scott v. Depeyster, 1 Edw. (N. Y.) 513. For paying an excessive price for work done for the corporation in an emergency. Ward v. Davidson, 89 Mo. 445, 1 S. W. 846. For voting compensation to another director for extra services. Godbold v. Mobile Branch Bank, 11 Ala. 191, 46 Am. Dec. 211. For allowing debts due the corporation to become barred by the statute of limitations. Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625. For allowing the president of the corporation, it being a bank, to remain in its exclusive charge and management. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662. For not making any investigation for ninety days after becoming directors. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662. For failing to keep the property of the corporation insured. Charlestown Boot & Shoe Co. v. Dunsmore, 60 N. H. 85. For mistakes of judgment and mismanagement in making investments of the company's funds on doubtful and insufficient security, under the temptation of realizing for the company large profits at usurious rates of interest. Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 11, 10 Am. Rep. 684. For failing to take a new bond from their secretary upon his being reëlected, under the erroneous supposition that his old bond would continue good, and this although they took no legal advice. Vance v. Phœnix Ins. Co., 4 Lea (Tenn.) 385. For subscribing, in the name of the corporation, for shares of stock of another corporation. Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312, 53 Am. Dec. 624, 3 R. I. 9. For failing to detect fraudulent entries made by the cashier, although extending over a period of nine years, and for allowing the same person to act as cashier, bookkeeper, and teller. Louisville Sav. Bank v. Caperton, 87 Ky. 306, 8 S. W. 885, 12 Am. St. Rep. 488, where the case arose, upon the merging of one bank into another, which permitted the president of the new bank to use the books of the old firm in making the transfer to a new set of books, the president being a defaulter, but unknown to the directors. For making a single purchase of United States bonds to enable the corporation to avoid taxation. McNab v. McNab, etc., Mfg. Co., 62 Hun (N. Y.) 18, 16 N. Y. Suppl. 448, 41 N. Y. St. 906.

82. Thompson Neg. (2d ed.) § 8.

83. Illinois.— Delano v. Case, 121 Ill. 247, 12 N. E. 676, 2 Am. St. Rep. 81 [affirming 17 Ill. App. 531].

Maine.— Mutual Redemption Bank v. Hill, 56 Me. 385, 96 Am. Dec. 470.

New Jersey.— Williams v. McKay, 40 N. J. Eq. 189, 53 Am. Rep. 775; Ackerman v. Halsey, 37 N. J. Eq. 356.

New York.— Brinckerhoff v. Bostwick, 88 N. Y. 52; Hun v. Cary, 82 N. Y. 65, 37 Am. Rep. 546.

ing casuistic distinctions as to degrees of care and negligence, holds directors liable for being ignorant of what they might have discovered by exercise of that good business diligence which the law imposes upon them.[84] Under this rule directors who by their negligence fail to discover false entries on the books, and fictitious mortgages, running through many years, have been held liable for the money secretly withdrawn and covered thereby; nor did the fact that managers of a savings-bank had no time or ability to perform their duties, or that they had no knowledge of unlawful loans and investments, relieve them of such liability.[85]

9. Whether Liable For Negligent Acts Which Are Ultra Vires — a. In General. The rule already adverted to,[86] which exonerates directors from responsibility for losses happening through mistakes of judgment and honest errors in exercising the discretionary power committed to them, applies in general only where they act within the scope of their powers. Where they assume to act outside the powers conferred upon the corporation, or outside the powers which the by-laws or other governing instruments have conferred upon them, then, for any losses happening in consequence of such action, their liability rests upon a higher ground than mere negligence; it rests upon the ground of an affirmative breach of trust.[87] While, as stated hereafter, there may be in many cases ground for exonerating them in consequence of mistakes of law, yet where the governing statute or the by-laws have made the rule of their duty plain, and they step outside of that rule and loss results, they are liable to make it good.[88] But the difficulty of knowing the law and being certain about its application to given cases is so great that the better view is that the rule that directors and other managing officers of corporations are not liable for losses happening through mistakes of judgment[89] extends to mistakes of law as well as to mistakes of fact.[90] If therefore the directors of a corporation, having acted in good faith and upon their best judgment for the interests of the corporation, do an act beyond the scope of their powers which has resulted in loss to the company,[91] as if they have invested its funds in a manner not authorized by the charter, they are not personally liable to the shareholders therefor.[92]

b. Cases Where Directors Have Been Held Liable For Negligent Ultra Vires Acts. In seeming opposition to what is stated in the preceding paragraph, it has Tennessee.— Vance v. Phœnix Ins. Co., 4 Lea 385.

United States.— Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662; Mutual Bldg. Fund, etc., Bank v. Bosseiux, 3 Fed. 817, 4 Hughes 387; Corbett v. Woodward, 6 Fed. Cas. No. 3,223, 5 Sawy. 403.

84. Shea v. Mabry, 1 Lea (Tenn.) 319.

85. Williams v. McKay, 46 N. J. Eq. 25, 18 Atl. 824.

Decisions which fail to hold directors liable for negligent ignorance.— Regrettable decisions are met with, even in courts of the highest reputation and authority, which sanction principles which exonerate directors from personal responsibility for their negligent ignorance. Murray v. Nelson Lumber Co., 143 Mass. 250, 9 N. E. 634 (holding it error to instruct a jury that "all directors of a corporation are presumed to know what it is their duty to know, what they are able to know," etc.); Swentzel v. Penn Bank, 147 Pa. St. 140, 23 Atl. 405, 30 Am. St. Rep. 718, 15 L. R. A. 305 (holding that the directors of a bank were not responsible for not knowing that the president, to the knowledge of the cashier, and with the coöperation of one or more clerks and subordinates, was engaged in gutting the bank in an oil speculation); Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625 (holding that directors are not personally liable for not knowing of overdrafts made by people of character and business integrity, some of them no doubt judges); Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662 (holding that a knowledge of all the affairs of the bank, or of what its books and papers would show, cannot be imputed to a director for the purpose of charging him with liability).

86. See supra, IX, M, 3.

87. Bargate v. Shortridge, 5 H. L. Cas. 297, 24 L. J. Ch. 457.

88. Williams v. McKay, 40 N. J. Eq. 189, 53 Am. Rep. 775; Citizens' Loan Assoc. v. Lyon, 29 N. J. Eq. 110; Brinckerhoff v. Bostwick, 88 N. Y. 52; Hun v. Cary, 82 N. Y. 65, 37 Am. Rep. 546; Moses v. Ocoee Bank, 1 Lea (Tenn.) 398.

89. See supra, IX, M, 3.

90. Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 3 R. I. 9.

91. Watts' Appeal, 78 Pa. St. 370.

92. Scott v. Depeyster, 1 Edw. (N. Y.) 513.

been held that an erroneous belief by the managers of a savings-bank, not arising from misconstruction of the charter, as to the legality of certain unlawful investments and loans, does not relieve them from liability for resulting losses.[93] In line with this, it has been held that a director and member of the finance committee of a savings-bank, who acts with the president in investing its funds in mortgages on land not worth twice the amount, contrary to a prohibition in the bank's charter, is chargeable with the loss on the investment, even though he did not act fraudulently, and derived no benefit from the loan, the error not being a mere error of judgment or mistake in estimating the value of the property.[94] So the directors of a corporation incur a personal liability to it by voting for a resolution which they have no power, express or implied, to pass, authorizing the issue and negotiation of notes of the corporation, which are in effect void, where such notes are issued and come into the hands of bona fide purchasers for value.[95] But where an ultra vires act was the act of other directors or officers, and the directors sought to be charged did not participate in it, and were not guilty of negligence within the doctrine of a preceding section,[96] they are not liable for the losses so occasioned.[97]

10. Effect of Acquiescence on Part of Shareholders. Although the shareholders in a corporation are not bound to look into the management, and will not be held to have notice of everything which has been done by the directors, who may be assumed by the shareholders to have done their duty,[98] yet if they do know how that the directors are managing its affairs, and that they are overstepping their granted powers, and if they stand by, look on, and make no objection, they will be held to have acquiesced in the same, and will be precluded from holding the directors,[99] and more especially a subordinate ministerial officer,[1] to a personal liability; and under similar facts it has been held that the state cannot maintain a statutory action to dissolve the corporation.[2] The rule is of course stronger where the shareholders affirmatively authorize the doing of the act which results in loss. Thus it has been held that the directors of a corporation are not chargeable with any loss which the cessation of business and a liquidation of the affairs of the corporation, in furtherance of a vote of a majority of the shareholders, may entail upon the minority of the shareholders.[3]

11. Liability of Directors For Each Other's Acts. The rule of diligence already spoken of would seem, on principle, to impose upon directors the obligation of keeping a reasonable watch upon each other as well as upon the subordinate ministerial officers of the corporation. Contrary to this it has been held that the directors of a bank, which had become insolvent by reason of the losses caused by the discounting from time to time of paper not properly secured, but indorsed by a director who was a man of wealth and the largest shareholder in the bank, and in whom the other directors had reason to place confidence, are not liable for the mere failure to discover the illegal transaction and to prevent the offending director from continuing therein.[4] So it has been held that the directors of such

93. Williams v. McKay, 46 N. J. Eq. 25, 18 Atl. 824; Dodd v. Wilkinson, 42 N. J. Eq. 647, 9 Atl. 685.

94. Williams v. McDonald, 42 N. J. Eq. 392, 7 Atl. 866 [reversing 37 N. J. Eq. 409].

95. Metropolitan El. R. Co. v. Kneeland, 120 N. Y. 134, 24 N. E. 381, 30 N. Y. St. 782, 17 Am. St. Rep. 619, 8 L. R. A. 253.

The advice of able counsel does not exonerate them. Pierson v. Cronk, 26 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 25, 13 N. Y. Suppl. 845.

96. See supra, IX, M, 6.

97. Movius v. Lee, 30 Fed. 298 [affirmed sub nom. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662].

98. In re Agriculturist Cattle Ins. Co., L. R. 1 Ch. 161, 12 Jur. N. S. 79, 35 L. J. Ch. 296, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 468, 14 Wkly. Rep. 266.

99. Watts' Appeal, 78 Pa. St. 370; Henry v. Jackson, 37 Vt. 431. In such a case a by-law which the directors have overstepped is waived. Underhill v. Santa Barbara Land, etc., Co., 93 Cal. 300, 28 Pac. 1049.

1. Holmes v. Willard, 125 N. Y. 75, 25 N. E. 1083, 34 N. Y. St. 455, 11 L. R. A. 170.

2. People v. Ballard, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 845.

3. Trisconi v. Winship, 43 La. Ann. 45, 9 So. 29, 26 Am. St. Rep. 175.

4. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662 [affirming Movius v. Lee, 30 Fed. 298, 24 Blatchf. 291].

a bank do not incur a common-law liability for inattention to their official duties in not preventing a hazardous, imprudent, and disastrous loan, if the loan was made by their associates without their knowledge, connivance, or participation.[5]

12. LIABILITY TO STRANGERS FOR PERSONAL INJURIES THROUGH THEIR NEGLIGENCE. As in the case of any other agent, the fact of their agency or official character does not shield the directors of a corporation from personal liability for damages visited upon third persons through their negligence, although the tort may also be a tort of the corporation; and the same rule applies with respect to liability for nuisances dangerous to the public.[6] But it would seem that where they act in violation of a positive statute they ought to be held to the liability of quasi-insurers. The opinion is also valuable in so far as it develops the principle that non-execution by directors of their duties toward the corporation may of itself amount to malfeasance as toward strangers.[7] Contrary to the foregoing is a holding to the effect that the regents of the University of California are not individually liable on the footing of negligence for an injury arising from the poles and wires of a telegraph and telephone line maintained by the corporation, because they are expressly declared by statute to be deemed public officers.[8]

N. Remedies of Corporation or Its Representative Against Unfaithful Directors — 1. CORPORATION MAY SUE ITS DIRECTORS EITHER AT LAW OR IN EQUITY — a. In General. A corporation may sue its directors to redress, or to recover damages for, wrongs inflicted by the directors upon the corporation[9] either at law[10] or in equity.[11] Where the ground of action is misfeasance or culpable

5. Witters v. Sowles, 31 Fed. 1, 24 Blatchf. 332. The writer submits that the foregoing decisions are unsound.

That a knowledge of and participation in prior illegal acts, such as the act which resulted in the loss, is admissible as an evidentiary fact to show that the directors sought to be charged had knowledge of the illegal act which resulted in the loss in the present case see Dodd v. Wilkinson, 42 N. J. Eq. 647, 9 Atl. 685.

Non-liability of ex-officio directors for each other's acts.— Not liable, in the absence of evidence of a joint participation in the illegal act, which is not to be presumed, but must be proved. North Hudson Mut. Bldg., etc., Assoc. v. Childs, 82 Wis. 460, 52 N. W. 600, 33 Am. St. Rep. 57.

Application of these principles to banking corporations see Delano v. Case, 121 Ill. 247, 12 N. E. 676, 2 Am. St. Rep. 81; Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662; Welles v. Graves, 41 Fed. 459.

Indictment of directors for negligent failure to perform their official duties, with the conclusion that a director is not liable who has not personally participated in the production of the events — failing to change the mode of heating railway cars and that a foreign corporation cannot be indicted, although its directors who participated in its unlawful acts may be. People v. Clark, 14 N. Y. Suppl. 642.

6. This principle was affirmed in the case of an injury accruing from the storing of giant powder in violation of law. Cameron v. Kenyon-Connell Commercial Co., 22 Mont. 312, 56 Pac. 358, 74 Am. St. Rep. 602, 44 L. R. A. 508 [citing Mayer v. Thompson-Hutchinson Bldg. Co., 104 Ala. 611, 16 So. 620, 53 Am. St. Rep. 88, 28 L. R. A. 433; Salmon v. Richardson, 30 Conn. 360, 79 Am. Dec. 255; Baird v. Shipman, 132 Ill. 16, 23 N. E. 384, 22 Am. St. Rep. 504, 7 L. R. A. 128; Delaney v. Rochereau, 34 La. Ann. 1123, 44 Am. Rep. 456; Atchison County Bank v. Byers, 139 Mo. 627, 41 S. W. 325; Jenne v. Sutton, 43 N. J. L. 257, 39 Am. Rep. 578; Nunnelly v. Southern Iron Co., 94 Tenn. 397, 29 S. W. 361, 28 L. R. A. 421], where the court held that it is the duty of the directors of a corporation dealing in explosives to exercise such reasonable supervision over the management of their company's business as will result in the observance of the utmost care on the part of the subordinates who direct or handle the explosives.

7. Cameron v. Kenyon-Connell Commercial Co., 22 Mont. 312, 56 Pac. 358, 74 Am. St. Rep. 602, 44 L. R. A. 508.

That a director who knows nothing of such a nuisance, and who would not have acquired knowledge of it by the exercise of reasonable care, and who has performed his duty of taking care, is not personally liable for the injury proceeding therefrom was held in the same case. Cameron v. Kenyon-Connell Commercial Co., 22 Mont. 312, 56 Pac. 358, 74 Am. St. Rep. 602, 44 L. R. A. 508.

8. Lundy v. Delmas, 104 Cal. 655, 38 Pac. 445, 26 L. R. A. 651.

Further as to personal liability of directors for negligence see note to Warner v. Penoyer, 91 Fed. 587, 33 C. C. A. 222, 44 L. R. A. 761; also note to Robinson v. Hall, 62 Fed. 222, 12 C. C. A. 674.

9. Ryan v. Leavenworth, etc., R. Co., 21 Kan. 365; Cross v. Sackett, 16 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 62; Denny v. Manhattan Co., 2 Den. (N. Y.) 115.

10. Mobile State Branch Bank v. Collins, 7 Ala. 95; Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Jenkins, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 130; Simons v. Vulcan Oil, etc., Co., 61 Pa. St. 202.

11. Indeed the corporation is in general negligence, the corporation and not the shareholders is the proper party plaintiff,[12] although under some remedial systems the shareholders,[13] and often a creditor,[14] may maintain an action at law; and where the corporation is still under the control of the unfaithful directors, so that redress of grievances cannot be had by an action in its name, a shareholder may maintain a proceeding in equity, suing for himself and all the other shareholders, to protect the rights of the corporation, as trustee for its shareholders and creditors.[15]

b. Action Whether Legal or Equitable. Where legal and equitable remedies are blended into one system under the modern codes, the form of action by the corporation against its directors for misfeasance or culpable negligence may be legal or equitable according to the particular circumstances.[16] The proper remedy is said to be an action at law for damages, and not a bill in equity, where no accounting of the financial condition of the corporation is necessary to determine the extent of their liability.[17] The jurisdiction of courts of equity to compel unfaithful directors to account to the corporation or to its representative for frauds and breaches of trust has been well established since the time of Lord Hardwicke;[18] and unquestionably this is the proper forum in nearly all such cases,[19] although this statement does not exclude the jurisdiction of courts of law in cases appropriate for the exercise of that jurisdiction, the two remedies being often concurrent.[20]

2. Right of Action in Receiver, and Whether He Can Impeach Corporate Acts. The receiver of a corporation succeeds to the title of the corporation;[21] and whatever rights it might have asserted against its unfaithful directors he may assert against them.[22] A receiver of an insolvent national banking association for instance may enforce, for the benefit of shareholders, creditors, or depositors, any the only party that can sue to redress injuries done to it, neither the shareholders nor the creditors having any right of action except under principles considered in another title. See infra, XI, B, 1, a et seq. See also the following cases:

Connecticut.— Allen v. Curtis, 26 Conn. 456.

Kentucky.— Jones v. Johnson, 10 Bush 649.

Maine.— Hodsdon v. Copeland, 16 Me. 314.

Massachusetts.— Smith v. Hurd, 12 Metc. 371, 46 Am. Dec. 690.

New Jersey.— Landis v. Sea Isle City Hotel Co., (Ch. 1895) 31 Atl. 755 [affirmed in 53 N. J. Eq. 654, 33 Atl. 964].

Texas.— Evans v. Brandon, 53 Tex. 56.

12. Connecticut.—Allen v. Curtis, 26 Conn. 456.

Massachusetts.— Peabody v. Flint, 6 Allen 52; Smith v. Hurd, 12 Metc. 371, 46 Am. Dec. 690.

Minnesota.— Horn Silver Min. Co. v. Ryan, 42 Minn. 196, 44 N. W. 56.

Texas.— Evans v. Brandon, 53 Tex. 56.

England.— Atty.-Gen. v. Wilson, Cr. & Ph. 1, 4 Jur. 1174, 10 L. J. Ch. 53, 18 Eng. Ch. 1.

13. 3 Thompson Corp. § 4325, and statutes and cases cited.

14. United Shakers Soc. v. Underwood, 9 Bush (Ky.) 609, 15 Am. Rep. 731; Marshall v. Farmers', etc., Sav. Bank, 85 Va. 676, 8 S. E. 586, 17 Am. St. Rep. 84, 2 L. R. A. 534. Compare Litchfield v. White, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 545; Mutual Bldg. Fund, etc., Bank v. Bosseiux, 3 Fed. 817, 4 Hughes 387.

That directors are liable to strangers for direct frauds and torts practised against them, such as issuing false prospectuses, making false representations, etc., will be shown infra, IX, O.

15. Craig v. Gregg, 83 Pa. St. 19; Evans v. Brandon, 53 Tex. 56. See also infra, XI, B, 1, a et seq.

16. Horn Silver Min. Co. v. Ryan, 42 Minn. 196, 44 N. W. 56.

17. Thompson v. Greeley, 107 Mo. 577, 17 S. W. 962; Stephens v. Overstolz, 43 Fed. 771.

An action against the president and treasurer of a corporation, seeking to charge them as ex-officio members of the board of directors for having usurped the powers of the board, etc., was treated in a code state as a suit in equity, and it was held error to treat it as an action at law, although both parties seem to have so understood it. North Hudson Mut. Bldg., etc., Assoc. v. Childs, 82 Wis. 460, 52 N. W. 600, 33 Am. St. Rep. 57.

18. Bayless v. Orne, Freem. (Miss.) 161; Citizens' Loan Assoc. v. Lyon, 29 N. J. Eq. 110; Charitable Corp. v. Sutton, 2 Atk. 400, 9 Mod. 349, 26 Eng. Reprint 642; Atty.-Gen. v. Utica Ins. Co., 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 371; Atty.-Gen. v. Wilson, Cr. Eng. Ch. 1.

19. Ellsworth Woolen Mfg. Co. v. Faunce, 79 Me. 440, 10 Atl. 250.

20. Mobile State Branch Bank v. Collins, 7 Ala. 95; Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Jenkins, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 130; Simons v. Vulcan Oil, etc., Co., 61 Pa. St. 202, 100 Am. Dec. 628.

21. White v. Haight, 16 N. Y. 310; Curtis v. Leavitt, 15 N. Y. 9; Osgood v. Laytin, 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 463; Brouwer v. Hill, 1 Sandf. (N. Y.) 629; High Receivers, § 316.

22. That the receiver has refused to sue cannot be inferred from his opposition to an liability of its directors for non-performance or negligent performance of their duties.[23] Doubt has arisen upon the question whether he can impeach corporate acts, or whether, his title being derivative, he can do anything except what his assignor, the corporation, could have done. The answer to this is that he is not in a strict sense the assignee of the corporation, but is the officer of a court of equity appointed to impound the assets of the corporation, and to administer them for the benefit of all parties interested in them; the United States or the state first to whom the corporation may be indebted for taxes or other public dues; next the lien or preferred creditors; next the general creditors; and finally the shareholders; standing, not as the representative of the corporation exclusively, but as the representative of all parties interested in its assets.[24] The better opinion is that like an assignee in bankruptcy,[25] he may disaffirm acts done by or in the name of the corporation which are illegal and in violation of the rights of its creditors. He may for example maintain an action to set aside illegal transfers made by the corporation of securities belonging to it.[26] He may maintain an action against the president of the corporation,[27] or against a director,[28] to recover corporate funds or securities which the latter has fraudulently abstracted.

3. Right of Action in Assignee For Creditors. The right of action against unfaithful directors for damages to the corporation, occasioned by their fraudulent misconduct, for example by their selling to the corporation its own stock, passes to an assignee appointed for the benefit of its creditors.[29]

4. Right of Action by Assignees or Trustees in Bankruptcy. An action against the directors of a corporation for losses happening to the corporation in consequence of their gross negligence and habitual inattention to their duties may be brought by an assignee or trustee in bankruptcy of the corporation, and is properly brought in equity;[30] and he may as the representative of the creditors contest the validity of the acts of the bankrupt corporation.[31] order of court directing him to sue. Taylor v. Mitchell, 80 Minn. 492, 83 N. W. 418; Gifford v. Clapp, 44 N. Y. App. Div. 192, 60 N. Y. Suppl. 856.

23. Howe v. Barney, 45 Fed. 668; Movius v. Lee, 30 Fed. 298. Accordingly he may maintain an action at law against the directors of a national banking association to recover damages for making an excessive loan. Stephens v. Overstolz, 43 Fed. 771.

24. Talmage v. Pell, 7 N. Y. 328; Gillet v. Moody, 3 N. Y. 479; Libby v. Rosekrans, 55 Barb. (N. Y.) 202.

25. See infra, IX, N, 4.

26. Gillet v. Moody, 3 N. Y. 479.

27. Butterworth v. O'Brien, 24 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 438.

28. Gillet v. Phillips, 13 N. Y. 114; Hayes v. Kenyon, 7 R. I. 136. But in Maine, unless the rule has been recently changed, the trustees appointed to wind up an insolvent corporation cannot sue for wrongs done by the officers to the injury of creditors; but such an action must be brought by the creditors themselves. Piscataqua F. & M. Ins. Co. v. Hill, 60 Me. 178. The general doctrine of the foregoing text has an analogy in the case of the official liquidator under the English Companies Acts, who can proceed against the directors for breaches of trust. See Madrid Bank v. Bayley, L. R. 2 Q. B. 37, 8 B. & S. 29, 36 L. J. Q. B. 15, 15 L. T. Rep. N. S. 292, 15 Wkly. Rep. 159; In re East of England Bank, L. R. 1 Eq. 219; In re Cardiff Sav. Bank, 45 Ch. D. 537, 59 L. J. Ch. 450, 62 L. T. Rep. N. S. 628, 2 Meg. 136, 38 Wkly. Rep. 571; In re National Funds Assur. Co., 10 Ch. D. 118, 48 L. J. Ch. 163, 39 L. T. Rep. N. S. 420, 27 Wkly. Rep. 302.

29. Hequembourg v. Edwards, 155 Mo. 514, 56 S. W. 490 [reversing (Mo. 1899) 50 S. W. 908]; Shultz v. Christman, 6 Mo. App. 338; Grocers' Nat. Bank v. Clark, 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 26.

Pendency of action by creditors prevents subsequent action by assignee.— The pendency of a suit in equity by creditors against the directors of an insolvent corporation, proceeding on the ground of negligence and mismanagement, will prevent such an assignee from maintaining a subsequent action at law in the name of the corporation against the directors for the same cause. Warner v. Hopkins, 111 Pa. St. 328, 2 Atl. 83, 56 Am. Rep. 266.

30. Mutual Bldg. Fund, etc., Bank v. Bosseiux, 3 Fed. 817, 4 Hughes 387.

31. Clerk's Office v. Cape Fear Bank, 66 N. C. 214, 8 Am. Rep. 506; Sawyer v. Hoag, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 610, 21 L. ed. 731; Bradshaw v. Klein, 3 Fed. Cas. No. 1,790, 2 Biss. 20; Foster v. Hackley, 9 Fed. Cas. No. 4,971; In re Jaycox, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,237, 12 Blatchf. 209, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,238, 13 Blatchf. 70; In re Leland, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,234, 10 Blatchf. 503; McLean v. Lafayette Bank, 16 Fed. Cas. No. 8,885, 3 McLean 185 [affirmed in 13 How. (U. S.) 151, 14 L. ed. 91]; In re Metzger, 17 Fed. Cas. No. 9,510; Upton v. Hansborough, 28 Fed. Cas. No.

5. WHETHER DIRECTORS LIABLE JOINTLY OR SEVERALLY. It has been held that in an action in equity by a receiver of a corporation against its directors to recover moneys fraudulently appropriated by them a decree may be entered against them jointly.[32] So under the modern codes an action in the nature of an action at law may be maintained against directors of a corporation jointly and severally, for the amount of losses resulting from their suffering the corporate funds or property to be wasted or lost by gross negligence or inattention to their duties.[33]

6. PLEADINGS IN SUCH ACTIONS. If the action is grounded on negligence, it is not a misjoinder of causes of action to allege several distinct acts of negligence; nor need such a complaint negative knowledge or acquiescence on the part of the shareholders.[34]

O. Liability of Directors, Outside of Statutes, to Strangers and to Creditors of Corporation — 1. NOT LIABLE AS PARTNERS OR ORIGINAL UNDERTAKERS. The general rule, subject to exceptions hereafter pointed out, is that the directors

16,801, 3 Biss. 417. He may for example impeach a simulated payment for shares of stock of the corporation, made by the device of exchanging checks, with the view of changing the character of the transaction from a share subscription to an ordinary debt. Sawyer v. Hoag, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 610, 21 L. ed. 731. But where a corporation entered into the business of discounting commercial paper without authority of law, its assignee in bankruptcy could not recover the money which it had so parted with, by reason of the equitable estoppel which arose in favor of the other party. In re Jaycox, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,238, 13 Blatchf. 70. Neither could the assignee of a bankrupt corporation assert the rights of its creditors against its directors, under a statute making them liable for certain official defaults; since this liability was not in the nature of corporate assets. Bristol v. Sanford, 4 Fed. Cas. No. 1,893, 12 Blatchf. 341. But see Piscataqua F. & M. Ins. Co. v. Hill, 60 Me. 178; Gunkle's Appeal, 48 Pa. St. 13.

32. McCarty's Appeal, 110 Pa. St. 379, 4 Atl. 925.

33. Horn Silver Min. Co. v. Ryan, 42 Minn. 196, 44 N. W. 56.

State of facts and theory under which a joint action at law could not be maintained against four directors, they constituting a minority of the board, and their liability being several. Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Jenkins, 3 Wend. (N. Y. 130.

34. Horn Silver Min. Co. v. Ryan, 42 Minn. 196, 44 N. W. 56.

For an example of a bill in equity brought by the assignees of a foreign corporation against resident directors for unlawfully misappropriating the funds of the corporation which was held not demurrable see Gindrat v. Dane, 10 Fed. Cas. No. 5,455, 4 Cliff. 260.

For a declaration, under the common-law system of pleading, against directors for losses through lending the corporate funds on insufficient security, which was bad on demurrer for not sufficiently specifying time, place, and circumstances, see Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Jenkins, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 130.

Certain defenses to such actions considered.— Delay on the part of the liquidator of the corporation no defense. Masonic, etc., Assur. Co. v. Sharpe, 10 R. & Corp. L. J. 292 [affirmed in [1892] 1 Ch. 154, 61 L. J. Ch. 193, 65 L. T. Rep. N. S. 806, 40 Wkly. Rep. 241]. Discharge in bankruptcy, the action being to recover unliquidated damages for a tort, no defense. Hun v. Cary, 59 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 426. Directors when so sued estopped to set up the defense that the money paid to them for the property was obtained by the corporation as the proceeds of an unlawful issue of its shares. Pittsburg Min. Co. v. Spooner, 74 Wis. 307, 42 N. W. 259, 17 Am. St. Rep. 149. Defense of the statute of limitations, with the conclusion that the statute begins to run against the officer of the corporation only from the time when the receiver acquires knowledge of the corrupt transaction. Bent v. Priest, 86 Mo. 475 [affirming 10 Mo. App. 543]. That the statute of limitations is available as defense to such actions see Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 11, 10 Am. Rep. 684. Compare Chouteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290; Keeton v. Keeton, 20 Mo. 530; Williams v. Halliard, 38 N. J. Eq. 373; Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625. That the statute of limitations does not run against a suit in equity by a receiver of a corporation to hold its directors liable for a misappropriation of its assets was held in Ellis v. Ward, 137 Ill. 509, 25 N. E. 530. And this seems to be the correct view if the premise is correct that the statute of limitations does not run in case of an express or direct trust, for such is clearly the status of directors.

California.— Farmers', etc., Bank v. Downey, 53 Cal. 466, 31 Am. Rep. 62.

Maine.— Mutual Redemption Bank v. Hill, 56 Me. 385, 96 Am. Dec. 470.

Maryland.— Hoffman Steam Coal Co. v. Cumberland Coal, etc., Co., 16 Md. 456, 77 Am. Dec. 311.

New Hampshire.— Pearson v. Concord R. Corp., 62 N. H. 537, 13 Am. St. Rep. 590.

Pennsylvania.— Simons v. Vulcan Oil, etc., Co., 61 Pa. St. 202, 100 Am. Dec. 628; Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. v. Cowell, 28 Pa. St. 329, 70 Am. Dec. 128.

West Virginia.— Sweeny v. Grape Sugar Refining Co., 30 W. Va. 443, 4 S. E. 431, 8 Am. St. Rep. 88, 89, and note.

of a corporation are not liable for its debts and undertakings although contracted or undertaken through their instrumentality.[35] This principle applies where the corporation exists de facto, although there may have been some defect or irregularity in its organization,[36] but not where there has been a failure to perform those conditions precedent which are necessary to bring the corporation into existence at all, such as the raising of the minimum amount of capital stock prescribed by charter before the corporation is entitled to commence business.[37] If the directors of an inchoate corporation enter upon the business for which the company is projected, and incur liabilities, and for any reason the company is never incorporated, such liabilities will be deemed their personal obligations, and they will be obliged to answer for them.[38]

2. Personally Liable Where Contract Does Not Show That It Was Made For Company. As more fully shown hereafter[39] directors of a corporation are held to be personally liable upon written obligations written or assumed by them unless the writing by its terms, or by necessary implication thereto, affirm that the corporation and not the directors was the party which it was intended to bind; and this rule has been held to apply where the stranger has dealt with the covenantor as trustee for the corporation.[40] But where the contract is dubious upon the question whether it was intended to bind the corporation or the directors the tendency of modern conceptions is to let in parol evidence to show what the fact really was.[41]

3. Personally Liable For Acts in Excess of Their Authority — a. In General. The rule which exonerates the director from personal liability for the contractual obligations of the corporation created through his instrumentality assumes that in creating them he was acting within the scope of his authority as its contracting officer or agent; for in that case it is what it was intended to be, the contract of the corporation.[42] If it is outside the scope of his authority then, according to a rule of the common law, he becomes personally liable not on the contract — but for damages for a breach of an implied warranty of authority to make it.[43]

Compare St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Tiernan, 37 Kan. 606, 15 Pac. 544, and many other cases.

35. Beeson v. Lang, 85 Pa. St. 197; Snyder v. Wiley, 59 Tex. 448.

36. Bartholomew v. Bentley, 1 Ohio St. 37. See also supra, I, L, 3, c, (II); VIII, C, 2, a et seq.

37. Farmers' Co-operative Trust Co. v. Floyd, 47 Ohio St. 525, 26 N. E. 110, 21 Am. St. Rep. 846, 12 L. R. A. 346.

38. Doubleday v. Muskett, 7 Bing. 110, 9 L. J. C. P. O. S. 35, 4 M. & P. 750, 20 E. C. L. 58.

Under peculiar circumstances the contracting officer or agent of the corporation may not be personally liable, yet the trustees may be. Thus the president of an incorporated social club was held not liable, individually, for debts of the club, although incurred by him as president. Sieger v. Culyer, 2 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 347 [affirmed in 67 N. Y. 601]. Liability of the trustees of a church to an innocent materialman. Tull v. South Kinston M. E. Church, 75 N. C. 424.

39. See infra, XII, H, 1 et seq.

40. In re International Contract Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 525.

41. See infra, XII, H, 9, a et seq.

Seemingly opposed to the doctrine of the text, it has been held that directors cannot be held liable upon a lease executed in the name of the corporation, by its president and cashier, under the rule that persons executing a written instrument describing themselves as agents may be held liable as though they had executed the instrument in their own names, rejecting the references to their agencies as a false description, where they had no power thus to bind the principal. McCormick v. Seeberger, 73 Ill. App. 87.

42. Taylor v. Williams, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 489.

43. Frost Mfg. Co. v. Foster, 76 Iowa 535, 41 N. W. 212 (officer of corporation signing a subscription paper in the name of the corporation but without authority and without giving information of his want of authority, becomes personally liable to contribute to others signing and incurring expenses on the faith of his subscription); Weeks v. Propert, L. R. 8 C. P. 427, 42 L. J. C. P. 129, 21 Wkly. Rep. 676 (the same conclusion where the borrowing powers of the company had been exhausted); Cherry v. Australasia Colonial Bank, L. R. 3 P. C. 24, 38 L. J. C. P. 49, 21 L. T. Rep. N. S. 356, 6 Moore P. C. N. S. 235, 17 Wkly. Rep. 1031, 16 Eng. Reprint 714; Richardson v. Williamson, L. R. 6 Q. B. 276, 40 L. J. Q. B. 145 (directors personally liable for a loan made for the corporation where they had no borrowing powers); Collen v. Wright, 7 E. & B. 301, 3 Jur. N. S. 363, 26 L. J. Q. B. 147, 90 E. C. L. 301 [affirmed in 8 E. & B. 647, 27 L. J. Q. B. 215, 92 E. C. L. 647].

b. Exception to This Rule Where Question of Authority Is Mere Question of Law. Other decisions make an exception to this rule where the question of the authority of the directors is a mere question of law, although they represent to the other contract party that they have authority, since in the absence of fraud an action for damages does not lie for the giving of a mistake in opinion upon a question of law.[44] Thus if a corporation through its directors purchases its own shares, which it has no power to do, and afterward avoids the purchase, the directors do not become liable to the vendor.[45]

4. Not Liable to Creditors For Nonfeasance, Negligence, Mismanagement, Breach of Duty to Corporation, Etc. Upon a principle already stated,[46] the fact that the directors and officers of a corporation have mismanaged its business, thereby visiting loss or damage upon its creditors, does not render them liable to the creditors, unless they are made liable by the provisions of charter or statute, the reason being that this, in theory of law, is a breach of duty to the corporation and not to its creditors.[47]

In plain opposition to the principle of the text it has been held that if a bank, through its directors, issues notes in excess of the authority given by the law of its incorporation, the directors will not be personally liable to redeem the notes. Sandford v. McArthur, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 411. So the fact that the directors have contracted an indebtedness in excess of the limit prescribed by its charter and the published notice of incorporation does not render them liable to creditors of the corporation, unless made so by the provisions of the charter or some general statute; and it is immaterial that the creditors allege that credit was extended in reliance on the business character and responsibility of the directors. Frost Mfg. Co. v. Foster, 76 Iowa 535, 41 N. W. 212.

44. Rashdall v. Ford, L. R. 2 Eq. 750, 35 L. J. Ch. 769, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 790, 14 Wkly. Rep. 950. See the judgment of Lord Justice Mellish in Beattie v. Ebury, L. R. 7 Ch. 777, 798, 41 L. J. Ch. 804, 27 L. T. Rep. N. S. 398, 20 Wkly. Rep. 994.

45. Abeles v. Cochran, 22 Kan. 405, 31 Am. Rep. 194.

46. See supra, IX, L, 3.

That creditors of a firm, whose members were directors of a corporation, have no standing in equity to impeach the conduct of the company, its directors, and officers in making preferences see Gottlieb v. Miller, 154 Ill. 44, 39 N. E. 992.

47. Frost Mfg. Co. v. Foster, 76 Iowa 535, 41 N. W. 212; Priest v. White, 89 Mo. 609, 1 S. W. 361; Branch v. Roberts, 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 435; Winter v. Baker, 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 432, 34 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 183; Baltimore Nat. Exch. Bank v. Peters, 44 Fed. 13.

Illustrations.— Bank directors not so liable to billholders. Branch v. Roberts, 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 435. National bank directors not so liable to creditors (Baltimore Nat. Exch. Bank v. Peters, 44 Fed. 13) or to depositors (Zinn v. Mendel, 9 W. Va. 580). But bank directors may become liable to members of the public for fraudulent representations causing loss or damage. Leffman v. Flanigan, 5 Phila. (Pa.) 155, 20 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 148; Maisch v. Seamen's Sav. Fund Soc., 5 Phila. (Pa.) 30, 19 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 140; Zinn v. Mendel, 9 W. Va. 580, 595 (per Haymond, P.).

A noted case departs from this doctrine by holding that the directors of a bank, by impliedly inviting the public to deal with the bank, impliedly agree with those who do so deal to use reasonable diligence in their behalf, and may accordingly become personally liable for failing to use such diligence, whereby a special deposit has been converted by the ministerial officers of the corporation. United Shakers Soc. v. Underwood, 9 Bush (Ky.) 609, 15 Am. Rep. 731. This case is not generally regarded as being sound. See Judge Redfield's criticism on this case in 13 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 218, and the doubt expressed by Haymond, P., in Zinn v. Mendel, 9 W. Va. 580. Another court has held that the directors of a savings-bank are liable to depositors for gross negligence and inattention, whereby the assets of the bank have been wasted. Marshall v. Farmers', etc., Sav. Bank, 85 Va. 676, 8 S. E. 586, 17 Am. St. Rep. 84, 2 L. R. A. 534. Compare Litchfield v. White, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 545; Mutual Bldg. Fund, etc., Bank v. Bosseiux, 3 Fed. 817, 4 Hughes 387.

Liable directly to creditors under statutes. — Numerous statutes, however, exist imposing liability of this nature upon directors. See infra, IX, P, 6, a et seq.

Liability under Wis. Rev. Stat. §§ 3237, 3239, directly to creditors for restoration of what the directors have lost or wasted through violations of their duty. Gores v. Day, 99 Wis. 276, 74 N. W. 787. Under this statute any creditor may maintain an action in equity to redress wrongs to the corporation growing out of the misconduct of its officers resulting in loss of corporate assets. Killen v. Barnes, 106 Wis. 546, 82 N. W. 536.

When liable to subsequent creditors.— In Colorado subsequent creditors of a corporation may question an alleged wrongful diversion and misapplication of the corporate assets by the directors, where the acts complained of necessarily operated as a fraud upon subsequent creditors. Nix v. Miller, 26 Colo. 203, 57 Pac. 1084 [distinguishing Graham v. La Crosse, etc., R. Co., 102 U. S. 148, 26 L. ed. 106].

Limitation and laches in actions by credit-

5. Liable to Strangers For Malfeasance. Directors may make themselves liable to customers of the corporation and to other strangers for positive acts of malfeasance to the injury of such third persons, such as selling collaterals pledged to a bank to secure an indebtedness;[48] receiving from the officers of another bank money of the bank, knowing that such officer has no authority to disburse it;[49] infringing the patented invention of a third person, in which act directors become personally liable with the corporation;[50] or for a personal injury to a third person proceeding from negligence, or for maintaining a nuisance, although this is also a nonfeasance as toward the corporation.[51]

6. Personally Liable For Making Fraudulent Overissues of Shares of Corporation. In conformity with this principle, if the officers of a corporation issue its stock in excess of the limit allowed by its charter and make other fraudulent issues of its stock so that the purchaser of such shares cannot be admitted to the rights of a shareholder, they are liable to the purchaser of such shares, and to other shareholders, under principles already gone over.[52]

7. Or For Fraudulently Issuing Second-Mortgage Bonds of Corporation as "First-Mortgage Bonds." If the directors of a corporation issue a series of corporate bonds, and cause to be printed across the face of them the words "First-Mortgage Bonds," and there is in fact a prior mortgage upon the property to secure an indebtedness, the directors will be liable for damages in an action for deceit to any one who, on the faith of such statement, bought the bonds on the market.[53]

8. Not Liable For Overdrafts Allowed Their Corporation Upon Checks. Directors who sign checks for their corporation in the manner in which its checks, drawn upon its banker, are usually signed, do not thereby make themselves personally liable to the bank in case the corporation becomes insolvent, for the reason that the understanding of both parties is that the advance is made to the corporation and not to the directors personally.[54] ors.— The cause of action arises from the date of passage by the directors of the unlawful resolution whereby the assets of the corporation are diverted from its creditors, and this although the creditors were in ignorance of the facts. Link v. McLeod, 194 Pa. St. 566, 45 Atl. 340.

48. Hempfling v. Burr, 59 Mich. 294, 26 N. W. 496.

49. American Nat. Bank v. Wheelock, 45 N. Y. Super. Ct. 205.

50. Cahoone Barnet Mfg. Co. v. Rubber, etc., Harness Co., 45 Fed. 582; Iowa Barb Steel Wire Co. v. Southern Barbed Wire Co., 30 Fed. 123; National Car-brake Shoe Co. v. Terre Haute Car Mfg. Co., 19 Fed. 514; Goodyear v. Phelps, 10 Fed. Cas. No. 5,581, 3 Blatchf. 91; Poppenhusen v. Faulke, 19 Fed. Cas. No. 11,279, 4 Blatchf. 495. Conceded in Lightner v. Kimball, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,345, 1 Lowell 211, and in Lightner v. Brooks, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,344, 2 Cliff. 287. But see to the contrary United Nickel Co. v. Worthington, 13 Fed. 392. For a case where the chairman of the board of directors authorized by them to make a contract made a contract which involved the infringement of a patented invention of a third person, and where he was exonerated from personal liability, see Lightner v. Brooks, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,344, 2 Cliff. 287.

51. Cameron v. Kenyon-Connell Commercial Co., 22 Mont. 312, 56 Pac. 358, 74 Am. St. Rep. 602, 44 L. R. A. 508.

The directors of a corporation publishing a newspaper are not personally liable for a libel published therein unless they personally aided or advised its publication, or unless their official duties were such as to charge them with knowledge of it prior to the fact. Belo v. Fuller, 84 Tex. 450, 19 S. W. 616, 31 Am. St. Rep. 75.

52. Bruff v. Mali, 36 N. Y. 200; Shotwell v. Mali, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 445; Cazeaux v. Mali, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 578. That directors of a corporation who put on the market false securities in the name of the corporation are individually liable in an action of deceit to purchasers of such securities who are thereby injured see Clark v. Edgar, 12 Mo. App. 345 [affirmed in 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84]; Shotwell v. Mali, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 445.

53. Clark v. Edgar, 12 Mo. App. 345 [affirmed in 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84]. Compare Mullanphy Sav. Bank v. Schott, 135 Ill. 655, 26 N. E. 640, 25 Am. St. Rep. 401, holding that an implied covenant against encumbrances is not a fraudulent representation affecting the rights of a director.

Defense that the title was of record and that the state of it might have been ascertained by an examination. Clark v. Edgar, 12 Mo. App. 345 [affirmed in 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84, opinion by Black, J.].

54. Beattie v. Ebury, L. R. 7 H. L. 102, 44 L. J. Ch. 20, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 581, 22 Wkly. Rep. 897 [modifying L. R. 7 Ch. 777,

9. Liable For Issuing False Prospectuses, Making False Representations, Etc., Whereby Public Are Deceived. Acts of this kind fall within the category of acts of malfeasance already considered,[55] for which acts the directors participating therein are personally liable, notwithstanding the fact that the corporation may also be liable.[56]

10. When Liable For Negative Concealment. Promoters, directors, or officers of corporations setting forth such statements are bound not only to abstain from stating as facts that which is not true, but to omit no fact within their knowledge, the existence of which might affect the advantages held out as inducements.[57] They are personally liable to a shareholder for a loss of money which they induce him to loan to the corporation by false representations made fraudulently, or in ignorance of matters which it was their official duty to know.[58]

11. Responsible For Fraudulent Misrepresentations Whereby Persons Are Induced to Purchase Shares of Company — a. In General. The directors of a corporation who have put forth false and fraudulent prospectuses, advertisements, circulars, or other fraudulent misrepresentations concerning the corporation whereby members of the public are induced to purchase its shares to their damage make themselves liable to the persons thereby deceived and defrauded, either in an action at law for deceit,[59] or in an action at law in the nature of assumpsit, for money had and received by defendant to plaintiff's use.[60] In order that such a third person should be enabled to maintain any proceeding at law or in equity against the directors on such a ground he must show some direct connection between them and himself in the issuing of the prospectus, and its influence on 41 L. J. Ch. 804, 27 L. T. Rep. N. S. 398, 20 Wkly. Rep. 994, and reversing L. R. 7 Ch. 788 note].

55. See supra, IX, O, 5.

56. Hubbard v. Weare, 79 Iowa 678, 44 N. W. 915; Westervelt v. Demarest, 46 N. J. L. 37, 50 Am. Rep. 400; Kinkler v. Junica, 84 Tex. 116, 19 S. W. 359; Arnison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 348, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 63, 1 Meg. 338, 37 Wkly. Rep. 739. To the contrary Mabey v. Adams, 3 Bosw. (N. Y.) 346. See also Bolz v. Ridder, 12 Daly (N. Y.) 329. That equity will afford relief in such cases has already been shown see Stainbank v. Fernley, 3 Jur. 262, 8 L. J. Ch. 142, 9 Sim. 556, 16 Eng. Ch. 556. There is a learned note on the subject in 8 Am. St. Rep. 604. That a broker who, relying upon the false statements of a company as to the genuineness of one of its stock certificates, guarantees it on a sale and pays over the proceeds to his principal can recover from the company the amount paid by him in making good his guaranty of said certificate of stock see Jarvis v. Manhattan Beach Co., 53 Hun (N. Y.) 362, 6 N. Y. Suppl. 703, 25 N. Y. St. 1.

Illustrations of the doctrine of the text may be found in the following cases:

Connecticut.— Salmon v. Richardson, 30 Conn. 360, 79 Am. Dec. 255.

Georgia.— Burns v. Beck, 83 Ga. 471, 10 S. E. 121.

Illinois.— Delano v. Case, 121 Ill. 247, 12 N. E. 676, 2 Am. St. Rep. 81.

Iowa.— Hubbard v. Weare, 79 Iowa 678, 44 N. W. 915.

New Jersey.— Westervelt v. Demarest, 46 N. J. L. 37, 50 Am. Rep. 400.

New York.— Brewster v. Hatch, 122 N. Y. 349, 25 N. E. 505, 33 N. Y. St. 527, 19 Am. St. Rep. 498.

Texas.— Jefferson Nat. Bank v. Texas Invest. Co., 74 Tex. 421, 12 S. W. 101.

United States.— South Covington, etc., R. Co. v. Gest, 34 Fed. 628.

57. Hubbard v. Weare, 79 Iowa 678, 44 N. W. 915.

58. Kinkler v. Junica, 84 Tex. 116, 19 S. W. 359.

59. Morgan v. Skiddy, 62 N. Y. 319; Cazeaux v. Mali, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 578; Nelson v. Luling, 36 N. Y. Super. Ct. 544 [affirmed in 62 N. Y. 645]; Cross v. Sackett, 2 Bosw. (N. Y.) 617; Paddock v. Fletcher, 42 Vt. 389; Jarrett v. Kennedy, 6 C. B. 319, 60 E. C. L. 319; Wontner v. Shairp, 4 C. B. 404, 56 E. C. L. 404; Clarke v. Dickson, 6 C. B. N. S. 453, 5 Jur. N. S. 1027, 28 L. J. C. P. 225, 7 Wkly. Rep. 443, 95 E. C. L. 453; Gerhard v. Bates, 2 E. & B. 476, 20 Eng. L. & Eq. 129, 75 E. C. L. 476; Bale v. Cleland, 4 F. & F. 117; Bedford v. Bagshaw, 4 H. & N. 538, 29 L. J. Exch. 59; Davidson v. Tulloch, 6 Jur. N. S. 543, 3 Macq. 783, 2 L. T. Rep. N. S. 97, 8 Wkly. Rep. 309; Scott v. Dixon, 29 L. J. Exch. 62, note 3.

If directors of a corporation knowingly issue spurious stock and obtain a loan on it they are personally liable. The corporation need not first be sued, nor is its corporate existence in issue. Augusta Nat. Exch. Bank v. Sibley, 71 Ga. 726. For a useful note on this subject see 16 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 414.

60. Nelson v. Luling, 36 N. Y. Super. Ct. 544; Paddock v. Fletcher, 43 Vt. 389; Jarrett v. Kennedy, 6 C. B. 319, 60 E. C. L. 319; Wontner v. Shairp, 4 C. B. 404, 56 E. C. L. 404.

his conduct in becoming an allottee.[61] If the action is to recover damages for deceit it is necessary to show fraudulent intent on the part of defendant and an actual knowledge of the falsehood of the representation must be brought home to him;[62] or else it must be made to appear that defendant made the representations with a fraudulent mind and motive, intending thereby to deceive and defraud, and indifferent as to whether the representations were true or not.[63]

b. Gist of Action Is Deceit — (i) In General. The gist of this species of action at common law is what is called a scienter, that is to say a fraudulent intent to deceive; for which reason it is held, although the holding has been challenged, that the action will not lie where the representation has been put forth through mere carelessness or inattention.[64] This is not incompatible with the principle upon which courts of equity proceed in these cases, that the promoters, directors, or officers of corporations putting forth false statements concerning the condition of their corporation are as much bound to refrain from stating as true what they do not know to be true, as from stating to be true what they know to be false, since in both cases there is a guilty scienter.[65] For the reason that a guilty scienter, or what is equivalent thereto, is the gist of the action, it will not lie against the corporation itself, since a fraudulent intent is not imputable to an artificial body; nor in case of joint-stock companies will the fraudulent intent of the directors and agents be transferred by intendment from them to the body of shareholders.[66] This does not in any manner impugn the rule that a corporation is answerable civiliter for the frauds of its agents. This rule is well established[67] and proceeds upon the ground that a corporation will not any more than a natural person be permitted to retain an advantage which

61. Perry v. Hale, 143 Mass. 540, 10 N. E. 174 (holding that the defrauded shareholder cannot maintain an action against the other shareholders, because of the fraud of a promoter, without connecting them with the fraud); Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377, 43 L. J. Ch. 19, 22 Wkly. Rep. 29 [affirming L. R. 13 Eq. 79, overruling Bagshaw v. Seymour, 18 C. B. 903, 29 L. J. Exch. 62, note 2; Bedford v. Bagshaw, 4 H. & N. 538, 29 L. J. Exch. 59, and adopting Gerhard v. Bates, 2 E. & B. 476, 20 Eng. L. & Eq. 129, 75 E. C. L. 476; Scott v. Dixon, 29 L. J. Exch. 62, note 3].

62. Fusz v. Spaunhorst, 67 Mo. 256; Arthur v. Griswold, 55 N. Y. 400; Wakeman v. Dalley, 51 N. Y. 27; Nelson v. Luling, 36 N. Y. Super. Ct. 544; Addington v. Allen, 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 374.

63. Leffman v. Flanigan, 5 Phila. (Pa.) 155, 20 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 148; Taylor v. Ashton, 7 Jur. 978, 12 L. J. Exch. 363, 11 M. & W. 401; Shrewsbury v. Blount, 2 M. & G. 475, 2 Scott N. R. 588, 40 E. C. L. 700.

As to what will be a sufficient allegation of an intent to deceive see Matthews v. Stanford, 17 Ga. 543 [sub nom. Sisson v. Matthews, 20 Ga. 848]; Miner v. Medbury, 6 Wis. 295; Warner v. Daniels, 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,181, 1 Woodh. & M. 90; Evans v. Collins, 5 Q. B. 804, Dav. & M. 72, 7 Jur. 743, 12 L. J. Q. B. 339, 48 E. C. L. 804; Rawlings v. Bell, 1 C. B. 951, 9 Jur. 973, 14 L. J. C. P. 265, 50 E. C. L. 951; Gerhard v. Bates, 2 E. & B. 476, 20 Eng. L. & Eq. 129, 75 E. C. L. 476.

64. Hubbard v. Weare, 79 Iowa 678, 44 N. W. 715; Cowley v. Smyth, 46 N. J. L. 380, 50 Am. Rep. 432; Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, 54 J. P. 148, 58 L. J. Ch. 864, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 265, 1 Meg. 292, 38 Wkly. Rep. 33 [reversing 37 Ch. D. 541]; Haycraft v. Creasy, 2 East 92, 6 Rev. Rep. 380; Weir v. Bell, 3 Ex. D. 238, 47 L. J. Exch. 704, 38 L. T. Rep. N. S. 929, 26 Wkly. Rep. 746; Pasley v. Freeman, 3 T. R. 51, 1 Rev. Rep. 634. Compare Taylor v. Ashton, 7 Jur. 978, 12 L. J. Exch. 363, 11 M. & W. 401. Note again that in consequence of the decision in Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, 54 J. P. 148, 58 L. J. Ch. 864, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 265, 1 Meg. 292, 38 Wkly. Rep. 33, the rule was fixed in England by a statute known as the "Directors Liability Act," 53 & 54 Vict. c. 64.

65. See for instance Hubbard v. Weare, 79 Iowa 678, 44 N. W. 915, where both of these propositions were asserted.

66. Scotland Western Bank v. Addie, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 145; New Brunswick, etc., R., etc., Co. v. Conybeare, 9 H. L. Cas. 711, 8 Jur. N. S. 575, 31 L. J. Ch. 297, 6 L. T. Rep. N. S. 109.

67. Scotland Western Bank v. Addie, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 145; Mackay v. New Brunswick Commercial Bank, L. R. 5 P. C. 394, 43 L. J. P. C. 31, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 180, 22 Wkly. Rep. 473; Re England L. Assoc., 34 Beav. 639, 11 Jur. N. S. 359, 34 L. J. Ch. 278, 12 L. T. Rep. N. S. 43, 13 Wkly. Rep. 486; Ayre's Case, 25 Beav. 513, 4 Jur. N. S. 596, 27 L. J. Ch. 579; Re Royal British Bank, 4 Drew. 205, 3 Jur. N. S. 879, 26 L. J. Ch. 855, 5 Wkly. Rep. 858; New Brunswick, etc., R., etc., Co. v. Conybeare, 9 H. L. Cas. 711, 8 Jur. N. S. 575, 31 L. J. Ch. 297, 6 L. T. Rep. N. S. 109; Ranger v. Great Western R. Co., 5 H. L. Cas. 72; Glasgow Nat. Exch. Co. v.

comes to it through the fraud of its agent.[68] But an action at law for damages, the gist of which is fraudulent intent, can obviously be maintained only against him who has been guilty of the fraudulent intent.[69] It is said that the representations must not only be false in fact, but they must have been made with an intent to deceive. This intent may be inferred from evidence showing that the party making them knew of their falsity at the time, or at least professed knowledge of their truth, when in point of fact he was conscious he had none. But in either case falsehood uttered with intent to deceive is essential to this liability on the part of directors.[70]

(II) Not Liable For False Representations Made Under Reasonable and Well-Grounded Belief of Their Truth. Such an action will not lie where the representations, although untrue, were made bona fide and under a reasonable and well-grounded belief that they were true.[71]

(III) Director Must Have Affirmatively Participated in Fraud — Lending His Name Not Sufficient. Quite consistently with this view it has been held that the mere fact that a person has allowed his name to be used for the purpose of floating the stock of the corporation which afterward turns out

Drew, 2 Macq. 103; Ex p. Ginger, 5 Ir. Ch. 174.

68. Rives v. Montgomery South Plank-Road Co., 30 Ala. 92; Henderson v. San Antonio, etc., R. Co., 17 Tex. 560, 67 Am. Dec. 675; Lord Chelmsford, in Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 325, 36 L. J. Ch. 949, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 808, 15 Wkly. Rep. 1201; Scotland Western Bank v. Addie, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 145. See on the general principle Atwood v. Wright, 29 Ala. 346; Bowers v. Johnson, 10 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 169; Meadows v. Smith, 42 N. C. 7; Harris v. Delamar, 38 N. C. 219; Bridgman v. Green, 2 Ves. 627, 28 Eng. Reprint 399; Huguenin v. Beaseley, 14 Ves. Jr. 273, 9 Rev. Rep. 148, 276, 2 White & T. Lead. Cas. 597.

69. Arthur v. Griswold, 55 N. Y. 400.

70. Wakeman v. Dalley, 51 N. Y. 27, 10 Am. Rep. 551; Cazeaux v. Mali, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 578; Nelson v. Luling, 36 N. Y. Super. Ct. 544 [affirmed in 62 N. Y. 645]. To the same general principle see Evans v. Collins, 5 Q. B. 804, Dav. & M. 72, 7 Jur. 743, 12 L. J. Q. B. 339, 48 E. C. L. 804.

Operation of the statute of limitations upon such actions. Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377, 43 L. J. Ch. 19, 22 Wkly. Rep. 29.

71. Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, 54 J. P. 148, 58 L. J. Ch. 864, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 265, 1 Meg. 292, 38 Wkly. Rep. 33 [reversing 37 Ch. D. 541]. So previously held in Shrewsbury v. Blount, 2 M. & G. 475, 2 Scott N. R. 588, 40 E. C. L. 700. See also In re Wales Nat. Bank, [1899] 2 Ch. 629, 68 L. J. Ch. 634, 81 L. T. Rep. N. S. 363, 48 Wkly. Rep. 99. The decision of the house of lords in the celebrated case of Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, 54 J. P. 148, 58 L. J. Ch. 864, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 265, 1 Meg. 292, 38 Wkly. Rep. 33, which allowed directors to substitute their own belief in the place of their knowledge in putting forth prospectuses concerning their company, and escape liability to their dupes, although their belief was ill-founded, provided it was bona fide, tended to let down the commercial morality of England to a deplorable extent, and was met with a storm of dissent on the part of the profession and the public. It was severely criticised by Sir Frederick Pollock, in the Law Quarterly Review, of October, 1889; and unfavorable professional comments upon it will be found in 5 Law Quart. Rev. 410; 6 Law Quart. Rev. 72; 6 Law Quart. Rev. 112; 7 Law Quart. Rev. 106. But the rule which it established was subsequently abrogated by act of parliament. Directors Liability Act 1890; L. J. Stat. 403, L. R. Stat. 516, set out in full in 2 Thompson Corp. § 1466. For a construction and application of this statute see Drincqbier v. Wood, [1899] 1 Ch. 393, 68 L. J. Ch. 181, 79 L. T. Rep. N. S. 548, 6 Manson 76, 47 Wkly. Rep. 252, holding it too late for a shareholder to repudiate prospectus after an action has been commenced to enforce his liability. Compare In re Moore, [1899] 1 Ch. 627, 68 L. J. Ch. 302, 80 L. T. Rep. N. S. 104, 6 Manson 290, 47 Wkly. Rep. 401 [reversing 67 L. J. Ch. 677, 79 L. T. Rep. N. S. 70, 5 Manson 243]. The rule in Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, 54 J. P. 148, 58 L. J. Ch. 864, 61 L. T. Rep. N. S. 265, 1 Meg. 292, 38 Wkly. Rep. 33, was apparently the rule established in English courts of the common law. Shrewsbury v. Blount, 2 M. & G. 475, 2 Scott N. R. 588, 40 E. C. L. 700. But this rule was opposed to earlier decisions in the English court of chancery. Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377, 43 L. J. Ch. 19, 22 Wkly. Rep. 29; Eaglesfield v. Londonderry, 4 Ch. D. 693, 35 L. T. Rep. N. S. 822, 25 Wkly. Rep. 190; Slim v. Croucher, 1 De G. F. & J. 518, 6 Jur. N. S. 437, 29 L. J. Ch. 273, 8 Wkly. Rep. 347, 62 Eng. Ch. 401; Burrowes v. Lock, 10 Ves. Jr. 470, 8 Rev. Rep. 33, 856. Although even in the court of chancery decisions are found supporting it. Ship v. Crosskill, L. R. 10 Eq. 73, 39 L. J. Ch. 550, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 315, 18 Wkly. Rep. 618; Burrowes v. Lock, 10 Ves. Jr. 470, 8 Rev. Rep. 33, 856. Compare Slim v. Croucher, 1 De G. F. & J. 518, 6 Jur. N. S. 437, 29 L. J. Ch. 273, 8 Wkly. Rep. 347, 62 Eng. Ch. 401.

to be worthless, will not make him liable, in the absence of proof that he participated in the publishing of the false representations.[72]

c. Actions For Deceit Distinguishable From Actions For Rescission or Compensation. Actions at common law for such deceits must be carefully distinguished from actions, either at law or in equity, to effect rescission[73] of the contract or to recover what plaintiff parted with to defendant by reason of the fraud, as so much money had and received by defendant to the use of plaintiff — this latter being often called an equitable action.

d. Whether Necessary That Plaintiff, in Order to Maintain Action Against Directors For Deceit, Should Have Been Immediate Purchaser of Shares From Corporation. According to the English doctrine it is so necessary; so that if, in the atmosphere of delusion produced by the fraudulent misrepresentations of the directors, the original subscribers to the shares succeed in unloading them upon other purchasers, such purchasers can have no redress, either at law or in equity, against the directors for the deceit which has really resulted in their damage.[74] The American doctrine, founded on a better conception of morality and justice is otherwise. Here it will be sufficient if the misrepresentations were contained in circulars, prospectuses, or other advertisements, with the view of influencing the public at large, or any member of the public who might chance to fall into the trap so baited, and purchase the shares; and that plaintiff saw the circulars, etc., and was by the misrepresentations contained in them, induced to become a purchaser of the shares.[75] Under this doctrine, supported by some of the overruled cases in England,[76] it is not at all necessary that the representations should have been communicated directly to the persons thereby induced to purchase the shares, nor is it necessary that they should have been concocted with the view of deceiving any person whom the deception might catch and impose upon.[77]

72. Morgan v. Skiddy, 62 N. Y. 319. It was so held where plaintiff, instead of purchasing shares, loaned money to the corporation. Arthur v. Griswold, 55 N. Y. 400.

73. See for illustration Reese River Silver Min. Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 64, 39 L. J. Ch. 849, 17 Wkly. Rep. 1024.

74. Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377, 43 L. J. Ch. 19, 22 Wkly. Rep. 29 [affirming L. R. 13 Eq. 79, overruling Bagshaw v. Seymour, 18 C. B. 903, 29 L. J. Exch. 62, note 2, 86 E. C. L. 903, and Bedford v. Bagshaw, 4 H. & N. 538, 29 L. J. Exch. 59, and adopting Gerhard v. Bates, 2 E. & B. 476, 20 Eng. L. & Eq. 129, 75 E. C. L. 476, and Scott v. Dixon, 29 L. J. Exch. 62, note 3]. The English doctrine, drawn from a celebrated case (Langridge v. Levy, 6 L. J. Exch. 137, 2 M. & W. 519), is that where a person other than the immediate person to whom the false representations were made, has been damnified thereby and seeks to recover damages therefor, he must make it appear that the false representation was made with intent that it should be acted upon by him in such a manner as has been the cause of his loss. Barry v. Croskey, 2 Johns. & H. 1, not the American law.

75. Morgan v. Skiddy, 62 N. Y. 319; Cazeaux v. Mali, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 578; Cross v. Sackett, 2 Bosw. (N. Y.) 617; Bartholomew v. Bentley, 15 Ohio 659, 45 Am. Dec. 596; Clarke v. Dickson, 6 C. B. N. S. 453, 5 Jur. N. S. 1027, 28 L. J. C. P. 225, 7 Wkly. Rep. 443, 95 E. C. L. 453. See also Davidson v. Tulloch, 6 Jur. N. S. 543, 3 Macq. 783, 2 L. T. Rep. N. S. 97, 8 Wkly. Rep. 309; and supra, VI, K, 5, e, (I) et seq.

76. Clarke v. Dickson, 6 C. B. N. S. 453, 5 Jur. N. S. 1027, 28 L. J. C. P. 225, 7 Wkly. Rep. 443, 95 E. C. L. 453; Bedford v. Bagshaw, 4 H. & N. 538, 29 L. J. Exch. 59.

77. Watson v. Crandall, 7 Mo. App. 233 [affirmed in 78 Mo. 583]. See also Bruff v. Mali, 36 N. Y. 200; Shotwell v. Mali, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 445; Cazeaux v. Mali, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 578. The Missouri court cited with approval the following observation of Lord Hatherly, then vice-chancellor, in Barry v. Croskey, 2 Johns. & H. 1, quoted by Lord Cairns in Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377, 413, 43 L. J. Ch. 19, 22 Wkly. Rep. 29: "Every man must be held responsible for the consequences of a false representation made by him to another, upon which a third person acts, and so acting, is injured or damnified, provided it appear that such false representation was made with the intent that it should be acted upon by such third person in the manner that occasions the injury or loss." Compare Langridge v. Levy, 6 L. J. Exch. 137, 2 M. & W. 519. A useful review of the decisions on this question was contributed to a legal publication called The Advocate, by Dr. Bailey, of North Carolina. 1 Adv. 389 et seq.

Illustrations of the American doctrine and of the overruled English doctrine may be collected from the following cases: Baker v. Crandall, 7 Mo. App. 564 [affirmed in 78 Mo. 584, 47 Am. Rep. 126]; Watson v. Crandall, 7 Mo. App. 233 [affirmed in 78 Mo. 583];

e. Liability of Directors, Promoters, and Managers For Each Other's Frauds. Where several persons engage in business jointly, and to facilitate such business use a corporate name and issue stock, and in the promotion of the scheme false representations are made by those holding themselves out as promoters and managers of the business as to the material facts of inducement and as to matters peculiarly within the knowledge of all the associates or their agents, all those engaged in the promotion of the business as associates of those making the false representations are liable to those who, relying upon such representations, purchase stock to their hurt.[78]

f. Liability of Directors For Frauds of Agents Employed by Them. In such a case as that stated in the last preceding section all the coadventurers will be liable, on the principle of respondeat superior, in damages for the consequences of the fraud of the common agent whom they have employed to effect the sale of the shares, without reference to the question of their own moral guilt or innocence. "The rule is, as it ought to be, that he who has put his trust in the wrongdoer, and held him out to the world as a person to be dealt with, shall bear the burden of his acts."[79] In such a case the negligence or confessed ignorance of one of the directors as to the fraudulent representations used and the fraudulent means employed by the common agent will not avail to exonerate him.[80]

g. The Fraudulent Misrepresentations Must Have Been a Material Inducement to the Contract—(i) In General. Moreover the fraudulent misrepresentations must have been a material inducement to the act of plaintiff in purchasing the shares. It must have been a misrepresentation or concealment dans locum contractui, giving occasion to the contract.[81] It must have been a proximate or immediate cause of inducement to the purchase of the shares, although it will be immaterial that other influences at the same time may have been at work.[82] The fraudulent representations or concealment need not have been the sole inducement to the act of plaintiff in purchasing the shares;[83] the meaning is that plaintiff must have been in fact deceived by the representations which defendant made.[84]

(ii) If Purchaser Relied Upon Misrepresentations, Immaterial That He Made Other Inquiries. In such a case, if it is found as a fact upon evidence that the purchaser relied upon the misrepresentations of the promoters or directors, it is not an objection to his right to recover of them on the ground of deceit that he made inquiries in other directions, provided that it may be fairly Hornblower v. Crandall, 7 Mo. App. 220 [affirmed in 78 Mo. 581]; Bedford v. Bagshaw, 4 H. & N. 538, 29 L. J. Exch. 59.

78. Hornblower v. Crandall, 7 Mo. App. 220 [affirmed in 78 Mo. 581].

79. For cases affirming this principle see White v. Sawyer, 16 Gray (Mass.) 586; Locke v. Stearns, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 560, 35 Am. Dec. 382; St. Aubyn v. Smart, L. R. 5 Eq. 183, 17 L. T. Rep. N. S. 439, 16 Wkly. Rep. 394; Barwick v. English Joint Stock Bank, L. R. 2 Exch. 259, 36 L. J. Exch. 147; Mackay v. New Brunswick Commercial Bank, L. R. 5 P. C. 394, 43 L. J. P. C. 31, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 180, 22 Wkly. Rep. 473; Swift v. Jewsbury, L. R. 9 Q. B. 301, 43 L. J. Q. B. 56, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 31, 22 Wkly. Rep. 319.

80. Hornblower v. Crandall, 7 Mo. App. 220, opinion by Hayden, J. [affirmed in 78 Mo. 581]. To the last point the learned judge who wrote the opinion of the intermediate court cited the following cases: Vreeland v. New Jersey Stone Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 188; Chester v. Dickerson, 54 N. Y. 1, 13 Am. Rep. 550; Simons v. Vulcan Oil, etc., Co., 61 Pa. St. 202, 100 Am. Dec. 628; Castle v. Bullard, 23 How. (U. S.) 172, 16 L. ed. 424.

81. Pulsford v. Richards, 17 Beav. 87, 17 Jur. 865, 22 L. J. Ch. 559, 1 Wkly. Rep. 295, 19 Eng. L. & Eq. 387.

Statements in articles of association.—Directors not liable to one who has purchased his shares on the faith of false statements contained in the articles of association, because these necessarily preceded, in the order of time, the organization of the board of directors. Mabey v. Adams, 3 Bosw. (N. Y.) 346.

82. Lord Carnsworth, in Matter of Royal British Bank, 3 De G. & J. 387, 420, 5 Jur. N. S. 205, 28 L. J. Ch. 257, 7 Wkly. Rep. 217, 60 Eng. Ch. 301.

83. Morgan v. Skiddy, 62 N. Y. 319 [affirming 36 N. Y. Super. Ct. 152]. This is a general principle in the law of fraud. Arthur v. Griswold, 55 N. Y. 400.

84. Priest v. White, 89 Mo. 609, 1 S. W.

inferred that his main and substantial reliance was upon what these defendants said and did.[85]

(III) Opinions Mingling With Fraudulent Representations. Nor is it material that with the fraudulent representations as to matters of fact many expressions of opinion were mingled which would have afforded no ground of action.[86]

(IV) Right of Purchaser to Rely Upon Representations. Persons investing in stocks under circumstances like the present[87] have a right to confide in those who hold themselves out as the promoters and managers of a business which they are carrying on, so far as concerns representations made by such promoters, or under their authority, as to material facts of inducement peculiarly within the knowledge of the associates or their agents.[88]

h. Liability Where Memorandum of Association Creates Company With Wider Powers Than Those Named in Prospectus. Where the memorandum of association, under the English law, which would be the articles of association, or the articles of incorporation under the American law, creates a company with wider powers than those named in the prospectus which the directors have issued to induce the public to subscribe for its shares, this mere fact in the absence of actual fraud will not avail one who on the faith of the prospectus subscribes for shares and advances money therefor, to recover the same from the directors in case the company is wound up.[89]

12. Effect of Statute of Frauds. A clause of the statute of frauds, as enacted in most of the states, provides that no action "shall be brought to charge any person upon, or by reason of any representation or assurance made concerning the character, conduct, credit, ability, trade, or dealings of any other person, unless such representation or assurance be made in writing, and subscribed by the party to be charged thereby, or by some persons thereunto by him lawfully authorized."[90] One court has placed a construction upon this statute which shields the directors of a corporation from personal responsibility for oral representations concerning 361; Eaglesfield v. Londonderry, 4 Ch. D. 693, 35 L. T. Rep. N. S. 822, 25 Wkly. Rep. 190. See also supra, VI, K, 2, a.

85. Hornblower v. Crandall, 7 Mo. App. 220 [affirmed in 78 Mo. 581].

86. Hornblower v. Crandall, 7 Mo. App. 220 [affirmed in 78 Mo. 581].

87. The investers were residents of a distant state. See 2 Thompson Corp. § 1370 et seq.

88. Hornblower v. Crandall, 7 Mo. 220, opinion by Hayden, J. [affirmed in 78 Mo. 581].

Upon this question of offsetting negligence, and over-confidence induced by the fraud of the party making the misrepresentations, it has been held on the one hand that a party contracting with a corporation, who is at the time in a position where by ordinary business diligence he could readily discover the existing condition of the affairs of the corporation, he being at the time a director and having access to its books, will not be relieved on the ground of fraudulent representations made by other officers of the corporation. Powell v. Adams, 98 Mo. 598, 12 S. W. 295. Yet on the other hand the originator and promoter of an enterprise, who is also the business manager, and fully conversant with every fact of its past history and present condition, and who by false representations as to the value of the stock of the company induces a stranger to the enterprise to trade valuable property for stock upon which the former places an exhorbitant valuation, is not relieved from liability for damages because the purchaser of the stock did not make diligent inquiry as to the truth or falsity of the representations. Cottrill v. Crum, 100 Mo. 397, 13 S. W. 753, 18 Am. St. Rep. 549.

89. Ship v. Crosskill, L. R. 10 Eq. 73, 39 L. J. Ch. 550, 22 L. T. Rep. N. S. 315, 18 Wkly. Rep. 618.

90. Mass. Rev. Stat. c. 74, § 3; Mass. Pub. Stat. c. 78, § 4. Similarly see How. Stat. Mich. § 6188; Mo. Rev. Stat. § 2515, drawn from 4 Geo. IV, c. 14, § 6. This statute is regarded as a part of the statute of frauds, but has not been adopted in the American jurisdictions. In construing it it is held that if written representations are the substantial inducements a recovery can be had, although some reliance may have been placed upon oral assurances. Clark v. Edgar, 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84; Tatton v. Wade, 18 C. B. 371, 86 E. C. L. 371. That is to say, if the oral representations are merely incidental, or stated in furtherance of the main ground of the complaint, they will not bring the case within the statute. Clark v. Edgar, 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84. See construing the statute Devaux v. Steinkeller, 6 Bing. N. Cas. 84, 8 Dowl. P. C. 33, 3 Jur. 1053, 9 L. J. C. P. 30, 8 Scott 202, 37 E. C. L. 521, and the other cases below cited.

its condition, whereby the corporation has procured credit.[91] Another court, on the contrary, holds that such a statute has no application to conspiracies of frauds where the representation is made to enable the party making it to profit by it; and consequently that it has no application to a case where the fraudulent representations are made as to an alleged corporation which has no legal existence and where the pretense of the legal existence of the corporation is itself a fraud; because in such a case the representation is not a representation as to the character or credit of another person.[92]

13. ACTION BY SURETIES OF CORPORATE OFFICERS AGAINST TRUSTEES FOR FRAUDULENT REPRESENTATIONS. Sureties who have been induced to sign the bond of a bank treasurer by oral statements as to the soundness of the bank, made by trustees of the bank as individuals, to third persons, not intended to get to the knowledge of the sureties or to induce them to sign, cannot maintain an action against such trustees for damages which they have sustained in so becoming sureties, predicated on the fact of such representations being false and fraudulent.[93]

14. JURISDICTION OF LAW AND EQUITY CONCURRENT. In these cases the fact that the person defrauded has a remedy at law does not oust the jurisdiction at equity to afford him suitable relief; since such cases proceed upon the ground of fraud, the jurisdiction of law and that of equity are concurrent.[94]

15. ADVANTAGE OF RESORTING TO EQUITY. The only advantage of going into equity with such a suit seems to be to obtain a more ample remedy. In an action at law for deceit, plaintiff can recover only the damages he has suffered. But in equity he may claim (1) a cancellation of his subscription; (2) a decree against the directors jointly and severally for the repayment to him of all the moneys paid for the shares; and (3) an injunction against future calls. To such a suit of course the corporation is a party.[95]

91. Hunnewell v. Duxbury, 157 Mass. 1, 31 N. E. 700.

Analogous holdings by the same court, under the same statute, will be found in McKinney v. Whiting, 8 Allen (Mass.) 207; Mann v. Blanchard, 2 Allen (Mass.) 386; Wells v. Prince, 15 Gray (Mass.) 562; Kimball v. Comstock, 14 Gray (Mass.) 508; Norton v. Huxley, 13 Gray (Mass.) 285; Medbury v. Watson, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 246, 39 Am. Dec. 726.

92. Hess v. Culver, 77 Mich. 598, 43 N. W. 994, 18 Am. St. Rep. 421, 6 L. R. A. 498. It was no defense to an action to charge directors with a personal liability to one who had purchased second-mortgage bonds of the corporation, fraudulently stamped by them as first-mortgage bonds. Clark v. Edgar, 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84.

93. Ashuelot Sav. Bank v. Albee, 63 N. H. 152, 56 Am. Rep. 501 [denying Graves v. Lebanon Nat. Bank, 10 Bush (Ky.) 23, 19 Am. Rep. 50]..

94. Leffman v. Flanigan, 5 Phila. (Pa.) 155, 20 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 148; Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377, 43 L. J. Ch. 19, 22 Wkly. Rep. 29; Barry v. Croskey, 2 Johns. & H. 1; Seddon v. Connell, 8 L. J. Ch. 341, 10 Sim. 58, 16 Eng. Ch. 58; Stainbank v. Fernley, 3 Jur. 262, 8 L. J. Ch. 142, 9 Sim. 556, 16 Eng. Ch. 556.

The remedy in equity may be availed of by a director who, when he finds himself liable to become involved in actions for damages by reason of such fraudulent prospectuses, may have an injunction to restrain the unauthorized use of his name. Routh v. Webster, 10 Beav. 561, 11 Jur. 701. That the creditors are not obliged to go into equity but may proceed at law see Rock Valley State Bank v. Andrews, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 167.

95. Connecticut.— Ashmead v. Colby, 26 Conn. 287.

Tennessee.— State v. Jefferson Turnpike Co., 3 Humphr. 305.

Texas.— Henderson v. San Antonio, etc., R. Co., 17 Tex. 560, 67 Am. Dec. 675.

Wisconsin.— Waldo v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 14 Wis. 575.

England.— In re Ruby Consol. Min. Co., L. R. 9 Ch. 664, 43 L. J. Ch. 633, 31 L. T. Rep. N. S. 55, 22 Wkly. Rep. 833; Ross v. Estates Invest. Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 682, 37 L. J. Ch. 873, 19 L. T. Rep. N. S. 61, 16 Wkly. Rep. 1151 [affirming L. R. 3 Eq. 122]; Henderson v. Lacon, L. R. 5 Eq. 249, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 527, 16 Wkly. Rep. 328; Smith v. Reese River Co., L. R. 2 Eq. 264, 12 Jur. N. S. 616, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 283, 14 Wkly. Rep. 606 [affirming L. R. 4 H. L. 64, 39 L. J. Ch. 849, 17 Wkly. Rep. 1024]; Venezuela Cent. R. Co. v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99, 36 L. J. Ch. 849, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 500, 15 Wkly. Rep. 821; Cargill v. Bower, 10 Ch. D. 502, 47 L. J. Ch. 649, 38 L. T. Rep. N. S. 779, 26 Wkly. Rep. 716; Rawlins v. Wickham, 3 De G. & J. 304, 5 Jur. N. S. 278, 28 L. J. Ch. 188, 7 Wkly. Rep. 145, 60 Eng. Ch. 237; Thorpe v. Hughes, 3 Myl. & C. 742, 14 Eng. Ch. 742.

Corporation a necessary party to a suit in equity brought by a creditor of the corporation against its officers and shareholders. Deerfield v. Nims, 110 Mass. 115.

16. Doctrine That Grounds of Recovery Are Same at Law and in Equity. In giving relief in these cases against the directors and officers, the courts of law and the courts of equity proceed, according to the highest authority, upon the same grounds; and this is logically and undeniably so, unless we are prepared to admit that there can be two kinds of law in the same jurisdiction, depending upon the forum in which relief is sought, and what is right in one forum might be wrong in the other.[96] "There can be no doubt," says Lord Chelmsford, "that equity exercises a concurrent jurisdiction in cases of this description, and the same principles applicable to them must prevail both at law and in equity."[97] The previous discussion has suggested what these grounds are: (1) False representations; (2) a guilty scienter; (3) proximate damage to plaintiff.[98] "If you do not fix them with what is technically called a scienter, upon an action of deceit, you cannot fix them personally with the consequences of the injury or damage that may result to the Plaintiff who has been so deceived."[99] Another judge has said that in such a case the chancellor cannot make any other inquiry than this: "Were the representations wilfully false and fraudulent?"[1] And upon this ground he ruled that a director of a company is not liable for a fraud of this nature committed by his co-directors, or by any other agent of the company, although guilty of gross negligence, unless there was an intention to allow of the commission of the fraud.[2]

17. Action Against Both Directors and Managers. There is no obstacle to bringing an action of this kind both against the directors and the managers, if both concurred in committing the fraud.[3]

18. Liable For Preferring One General Creditor Over Another. If anything of substance remains in this "trust-fund doctrine" it carries with it the conclusion that when the line of insolvency of the corporation is reached or sensibly approached, the directors become charged with a trust in favor of all the creditors, which necessarily means that in dealing with the trust funds they must treat the creditors equally, according to their respective course of priority; from which the conclusion flows that if they dissipate the assets in favor of one creditor by preferring him, at the same time postponing another creditor of an equal grade, they are liable to make good to the latter out of their personal estates what he has lost by their breach of trust.[4]

96. In an article in the April number, 1880, of the American Law Review, by Hon. James V. Campbell, of Michigan, every line of which is full of thought, that able judge says: "In those States which retain the distinctions between law and equity, the difference is generally one of remedies; and legal and equitable suits differ only as actions of assumpsit differ from ejectment or replevin." 1 Am. L. Rev. 265.

97. Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377, 43 L. J. Ch. 19, 22 Wkly. Rep. 29.

98. Henderson v. Lacon, L. R. 5 Eq. 249, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 527, 16 Wkly. Rep. 328; Barry v. Croskey, 2 Johns. & H. 1.

99. Sir W. Page Wood, V. C., in Henderson v. Lacon, L. R. 5 Eq. 249, 262, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 527, 16 Wkly. Rep. 328.

1. Cargill v. Bower, 10 Ch. D. 502, 516, 47 L. J. Ch. 649, 38 L. T. Rep. N. S. 779, 26 Wkly. Rep. 716, Fry, J.

2. Cargill v. Bower, 10 Ch. D. 502, 47 L. J. Ch. 649, 38 L. T. Rep. N. S. 779, 26 Wkly. Rep. 716. See also on this subject the very learned and interesting opinion of Hare, J., in Leffman v. Flanigan, 5 Phila. (Pa.) 155, 20 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 148, in which he shows that the rule in equity is so far different from that at law that there are many cases in which a party will not be allowed to refuse redress to another whom he has merely misled by unfounded assurances, on the ground that he spoke ignorantly and was free from intentional wrong.

3. Cullen v. Thompson, 9 Jur. N. S. 85, 6 L. T. Rep. N. S. 870, 4 Macq. 431, 2 Paton App. Cas. 143.

4. Richards v. New Hampshire Ins. Co., 43 N. H. 263. But this rule must not be carried so far as to make directors responsible to the holder of a litigated claim, which after being established goes unpaid, when acting in good faith, but without proper care, they reserve a sum which they think will be sufficient to meet all claims, this included, and it turns out to be insufficient. Lyman v. Bonney, 118 Mass. 222.

In England, where the doctrine that the directors of a company are trustees for its creditors does not obtain, the rule is different; the directors do not make themselves liable by preferring particular creditors, although it is done to absolve themselves from liability as guarantors. In re Wincham Shipbuilding, etc., Co., 9 Ch. D. 322, 48 L. J. Ch. 48, 38 L. T. Rep. N. S. 659, 26 Wkly. Rep. 823.

Estoppel.— Where the officers and shareholders of a corporation prefer themselves as

19. Liable For Fraudulently Diverting Assets of Corporation From Its Creditors. Outside of statutes, considered later,[5] and proceeding upon the principle that the assets of an insolvent corporation are a trust fund for its creditors, and that whoever is found in possession of a trust fund under circumstances which charge him with a knowledge of the trust is bound to account as trustee to those beneficially interested in such fund,[6] courts of equity frequently afford relief to the creditors of insolvent corporations. Under this so-called "trust-fund doctrine" even the shareholders of a corporation are conclusively charged with knowledge of the trust character which attaches to its capital stock. As to it they cannot occupy the status of innocent purchasers, but they are to all intents and purposes privies to the trust. When therefore they have in their hands any portion of this trust fund, they hold it cum onere, subject to the equities which attach to it in favor of others.[7] If this is true of shareholders it is true for stronger reasons of directors who, under all schemes of corporate organization, must not only be shareholders, but who also, as the managing agents of the corporation, are in a certain sense the custodians of the fund itself.[8] This doctrine has been applied so as to charge unfaithful directors with personal liability under the following circumstances: Where the managing director of a bank drew its funds to a very large amount without security and used them in his private business, in consequence of which the bank became insolvent, thus rendering the directors liable to account in equity for the amount so drawn,[9] where the directors of a corporation declared dividends when there were in reality no surplus assets to divide, in which case a creditor of the corporation was allowed to maintain a bill in equity against a director who as a shareholder had received his share of such dividend to subject them to the payment of his debt, although the dividend was not paid to him in cash, but went to him in the form of a credit upon his stock subscription;[10] where the charter of a bank required its shares to be paid in gold and silver and in notes or bills which the corporators or directors might deem equivalent to or better than specie, and the directors had taken in payment of their subscriptions notes which the subscribers had indorsed for each other, the conclusion being that this made the directors personally liable to the noteholders and creditors of the corporation for the whole amount of the capital stock pretended to be paid up in this way;[11] and where the charter of a bank required a certain portion of its capital stock to be paid in in specie, before the directors should be permitted to issue any circulating notes, and the directors in disregard of this inhibition put in circulation notes of the bank and the bank afterward became insolvent, the conclusion being that the billholders and other creditors might proceed at once against the shareholders for the stock subscribed creditors, they are not, according to a low conception, estopped as against unsecured creditors from denying that the corporation had a capital of twenty-five thousand dollars, by the fact that its manager used letter-heads stating the capital to be twenty-five thousand dollars, in the absence of proof that the creditors became such on the faith of such representations St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566; Calhoun v. King, 5 Ala. 523; Gratz v. Redd, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 178; Wood v. Dummer, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,944, 3 Mason 308; Adair v. Shaw, 1 Sch. & Lef. 266; Hill v. Simpson, 7 Ves. Jr. 152, 6 Rev. Rep. 105.

5. See infra, IX, P, 1, a et seq.

6. St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566; Calhoun v. King, 5 Ala. 523; Gratz v. Redd. 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 178; Wood v. Dummer. 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17.944, 3 Mason 308; Adair v. Shaw, 1 Sch. & Lef. 266; Hill v. Simpson, 7 Ves. Jr. 152, 6 Rev. Rep. 105.

7. Gratz v. Redd, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 178; Adler v. Milwaukee Patent Brick Mfg. Co., 13 Wis. 57; Wood v. Dummer, 30 Fed. Cas. No. 17,944, 3 Mason 308.

8. Gratz v. Redd, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 178.

9. St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566, the accounting was to the bank. Compare Lexington, etc., R. Co. v. Bridges, 7 B. Mon. (Ky.) 556, 46 Am. Dec. 528.

10. Gratz v. Redd, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 178 [recognized in Lexington, etc., R. Co. v. Bridges, 7 B. Mon. (Ky.) 556, 46 Am. Dec. 528]. Compare Rorke v. Thomas, 56 N. Y. 559; Osgood v. Laytin, 3 Abb. Dec. (N. Y.) 418, 3 Keyes (N. Y.) 521, 3 Transcr. App. (N. Y.) 124, 5 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 1, 37 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 63.

11. Moses v. Ocoee Bank, 1 Lea (Tenn.) 398, opinion of Heiskell, special judge, affirming decree of Cooper, chancellor.

and not paid in, and against the directors for the breach of trust which they had thus committed.[12] For the same reason the directors of a savings fund are liable to account in equity to the depositors for a maladministration of their trust, consisting of frauds or of gross negligence.[13] So it has been held that where one corporation holds the property of an insolvent corporation in trust for administration among its creditors, and the directors of the trustee corporation misapply such assets, they make themselves personally liable to the creditors of the insolvent corporation, although the trustee corporation had assumed the debts of the insolvent corporation.[14]

20. Liable to Pay For "Qualification Shares." Upon the question whether, in case the charter or other governing instrument of the corporation require that each director shall hold a certain number of shares in the corporation, one who becomes a director therein is ipso facto liable to pay for that number of shares in order to satisfy the demands of creditors in the event of the insolvency of the corporation, the conclusion of the English courts seems to be: (1) That the mere fact of accepting the office of director does not make the person a shareholder in respect of the number of shares necessary to qualify him to hold the office, but that it merely implies an agreement that he will qualify himself by procuring, either from the company or from some shareholder, the necessary shares.[15] (2) But that where he accepts the office of director and acts as such, and suffers himself to be held out as a shareholder, either by having his name put

12. Schley v. Dixon, 24 Ga. 273, 71 Am. Dec. 121. Compare Branch v. Roberts, 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 435.

13. Maisch v. Seamen's Sav. Fund Soc., 5 Phila. (Pa.) 30, 19 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 140. The jurisdiction of equity to call the directors of a saving fund to account is also very ably maintained by Hare, J., in Leffman v. Flanigan, 5 Phila. (Pa.) 155, 20 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 148.

14. Jefferson Nat. Bank v. Texas Invest. Co., 74 Tex. 421, 12 S. W. 101.

Cases not falling within this principle.— Kraft-Holmes Grocery Co. v. Crow, 36 Mo. App. 288 (director made bona fide advances to the corporation and then, after it had become insolvent, appropriated to his own use accounts due to it, to pay interest accruing on the advances, there being no fraud); Knowles v. Duffy, 40 Hun (N. Y.) 485 (not necessarily a fraud for trustees to purchase property from one of their number for the benefit of the corporation, paying therefor its entire capital stock); White, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Henry B. Pettes Importing Co., 30 Fed. 864 (directors of an insolvent corporation still doing business not liable to creditors by reason of making a bona fide sale of its assets to an attaching creditor, upon his agreement to cancel his own debt and discharge the debts of other attaching creditors).

Creditors may also follow misappropriated assets as a trust fund.— Peychaud v. Hood, 23 La. Ann. 732; Williams v. Colby, 3 Silv. Supreme (N. Y.) 337, 6 N.Y. Suppl. 459, 24 N. Y. St. 793; Chicago Union Nat. Bank v. Douglass, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14,375, 1 McCrary 86. Compare Saltmarsh v. Spaulding, 147 Mass. 224, 17 N. E. 316 (when purchaser at subsequent execution sale cannot maintain a right of entry against a director purchasing the same property at a previous sale): Jefferson Nat. Bank v. Texas Invest. Co., 74 Tex. 421, 12 S. W. 101 (cannot follow them into the hands of the bona fide purchaser for value without notice).

15. In re Metropolitan Public Carriage, etc., Co., L. R. 9 Ch. 102, 43 L. J. Ch. 153, 29 L. T. Rep. N. S. 562, 22 Wkly. Rep. 171; In re Anglo-Moravian Hungarian Junction R. Co., L. R. 8 Ch. 768, 42 L. J. Ch. 857. Contra, In re Disderi, L. R. 11 Eq. 242, 40 L. J. Ch. 248, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 694, 19 Wkly. Rep. 175. Compare In re Canadian Oil Works Corp., L. R. 10 Ch. 593, 44 L. J. Ch. 721, 33 L. T. Rep. N. S. 466, 24 Wkly. Rep. 191; In re General International Agency, L. R. 2 Eq. 567, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 752; In re Peninsular, etc., Bank, L. R. 2 Eq. 435, 15 L. T. Rep. N. S. 140, 14 Wkly. Rep. 1010; In re Englefield Colliery Co., 8 Ch. D. 388; In re Percy, etc., Nickel, etc., Min. Co., 7 Ch. D. 132, 47 L. J. Ch. 201, 37 L. T. Rep. N. S. 807, 26 Wkly. Rep. 291; In re East Norfolk Tramways Co., 5 Ch. D. 963, 26 Wkly. Rep. 3; In re Percy, etc., Nickel, etc., Min. Co., 5 Ch. D. 705, 46 L. J. Ch. 543, 37 L. T. Rep. N. S. 349, 25 Wkly. Rep. 600. Contrary to the rule declared in later cases, persons who had acted as directors, and who had even permitted their names to appear in the prospectus as such for the purpose of raising further capital, were permitted to show that they did not qualify in certain particulars; e. g., that they did not apply for shares (In re Freehold, etc., Invest. Co., L. R. 18 Eq. 428, 43 L. J. Ch. 629, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 672, 22 Wkly. Rep. 791); that although shares were allotted to them they never signed the subscription contract (Re Hereford, etc., R. Co., 3 Giff. 28); that they were informed that no qualification shares were necessary; and that they never executed or saw the deed of settlement (Mather v. National Assur., etc., Soc., 14 C. B. N. S. 676, 108 E. C. L. 676). See also supra, VI, H, 18.

on the register as such, or otherwise, then he is deemed to have accepted the necessary number of shares to qualify him and will not be allowed to repudiate them after the company becomes insolvent.[16] (3) A director who actually accepts the shares necessary to qualify him will not be allowed to repudiate them on account of any informality in the transaction,[17] but this rule of liability does not apply to the provisional directors who are permitted to hold shares supplied to them and paid for by the promoter or his agent,[18] which is not permitted in the case of directors required to be qualified as such by holding a stated number of shares.[19] (5) That a person who has consented to act as director is entitled to resign the office without prejudice, if he does so within a reasonable time and before actually having assumed the duties of the position, in which case he will not be held to a liability to pay for qualification shares for which he has not subscribed.[20]

21. Director Liable For Allotting Shares to His Own Infant Child. If a director has procured or connived at the allotting of shares to an infant, or to any other person who cannot be made to respond to the liability of a shareholder, he has clearly been guilty of a breach of trust and ought to make good the loss which the company has thus sustained.[21]

P. Statutory Liability of Directors — 1. In General — a. General Statement as to Statutes Creating Such Liability. Statutes have been enacted, it may 16. In re Empire Assur. Corp., L. R. 6 Ch. 469, 40 L. J. Ch. 254, 19 Wkly. Rep. 664; In re Western of Canada Oil, etc., Co., L. R. 20 Eq. 580; In re British, etc., Tel. Co., L. R. 14 Eq. 316, 42 L. J. Ch. 9, 27 L. T. Rep. N. S. 748, 21 Wkly. Rep. 37; In re Great Oceanic Tel. Co., L. R. 13 Eq. 30, 41 L. J. Ch. 283, 25 L. T. Rep. N. S. 690, 20 Wkly. Rep. 84; In re British Colonial, etc., Ins. Corp., 45 L. J. Ch. 488. Compare In re Robinson, etc., Brewery Co., L. R. 13 Eq. 228 (signed memorandum of association, attended meeting of directors, and then resigned, and yet was held liable); In re Australian Direct Steam Nav. Co., 3 Ch. D. 661 [affirmed in 5 Ch. Div. 70].

The rule was held not to apply where the qualification was fixed by a resolution and not in the articles of association. In re British Provident L., etc., Assoc., 5 Ch. D. 306, 46 L. J. Ch. 360, 36 L. T. Rep. N. S. 329, 25 Wkly. Rep. 476.

17. Matter of Companies Act, 4 De G. J. & S. 426, 33 L. J. Ch. 731, 10 L. T. Rep. N. S. 394, 12 Wkly. Rep. 814, 994, 69 Eng. Ch. 328; Matter of Vale of Neath, etc., Brewery Joint-Stock Co., 3 De G. & Sm. 149, 14 Jur. 566 [affirmed on appeal in 19 L. J. Ch. 501]. And such would seem to be the rule where a person has agreed to become an officer of the company, e. g., a local manager, and has applied for the requisite number of shares to qualify him for the position, and in some respects entered upon the duties of his office. Matter of Richards, L. R. 6 C. P. 591, 40 L. J. C. P. 290, 24 L. T. Rep. N. S. 752, 19 Wkly. Rep. 893.

18. In re Anglo-Moravian Hungarian Junction R. Co., L. R. 8 Ch. 768, 42 L. J. Ch. 857.

19. In re Disderi, L. R. 11 Eq. 242, 40 L. J. Ch. 248, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 694, 19 Wkly. Rep. 175.

The directors were exonerated except for those shares for which they had actually subscribed in the following cases: Tothill's Case, L. R. 1 Ch. 85, 11 Jur. 1009, 35 L. J. Ch. 120, 13 L. T. Rep. N. S. 485, 14 Wkly. Rep. 153. Compare In re La Mancha Irr., etc., Co., L. R. 8 Ch. 548, 42 L. J. Ch. 465, 28 L. T. Rep. N. S. 652, 21 Wkly. Rep. 518; Matter of Companies Act, 4 De G. J. & S. 426, 33 L. J. Ch. 731, 10 L. T. Rep. N. S. 394, 12 Wkly. Rep. 814, 994, 69 Eng. Ch. 328; Matter of Great Northern, etc., Coal Co., 3 De G. J. & S. 367, 32 L. J. Ch. 421, 8 L. T. Rep. N. S. 472, 68 Eng. Ch. 278.

Circumstances under which directors cannot hold such shares as a gift from the promoters. In re Disderi, L. R. 11 Eq. 242, 40 L. J. Ch. 248, 23 L. T. Rep. N. S. 694, 19 Wkly. Rep. 175; In re Caerphilly Colliery Co., 4 Ch. D. 222 [affirmed in 5 Ch. D. 336, 46 L. J. Ch. 339, 25 Wkly. Rep. 618]; In re Western of Canada Oil Lands, etc., Co., 1 Ch. D. 115, 45 L. J. Ch. 5, 33 L. T. Rep. N. S. 645, 24 Wkly. Rep. 165; Ex p. Daniell, 1 De G. & J. 372, 58 Eng. Ch. 289. Compare Matter of Great Northern, etc., Coal Co., 3 De G. J. & S. 367, 32 L. J. Ch. 421, 8 L. T. Rep. N. S. 472, 68 Eng. Ch. 278.

Circumstances under which directors may hold unpaid qualification shares as paid up. In re Australian Direct Steam Nav. Co., 3 Ch. D. 661; Matter of Great Northern, etc., Coal Co., 3 De G. J. & S. 367, 32 L. J. Ch. 421, 8 L. T. Rep. N. S. 472, 68 Eng. Ch. 278. Compare In re British Provident L., etc., Assoc., 5 Ch. D. 306, 46 L. J. Ch. 360, 36 L. T. Rep. N. S. 329, 25 Wkly. Rep. 476.

20. In re Pelotas Coffee Co., L. R. 20 Eq. 506, 44 L. J. Ch. 622. See also In re East Norfolk Tramways Co., 5 Ch. D. 963, 26 Wkly. Rep. 3; In re National Ins., etc., Assoc., 4 De G. F. & J. 78, 8 Jur. N. S. 951, 31 L. J. Ch. 828, 10 Wkly. Rep. 548, 65 Eng. Ch. 62.

21. In re Crenver, etc., United Min. Co.,

be assumed in all the American states and territories, making directors personally liable for the debts of the corporation by reason of their having been guilty of certain misprisions or delinquencies hereafter described. These statutes are too numerous to collect and classify in the space to which this article is limited; but their leading features, and the leading rules adopted by the courts in their construction, will now be stated.[22]

b. These Statutes Penal. These statutes are generally regarded as penal, so that actions upon them are actions for penalties,[23] although the sound view is believed to be that they should not be construed as being penal, but simply as presenting a case where the grant of a franchise to be personally exempt from the indebtedness which the grantees contract in their own behalf is made with a qualification which reads itself into the grant.[24]

c. And to Be Strictly Construed. They are hence to be strictly construed.[25] But while this is so a substantial compliance with their terms is necessary to exonerate the directors.[26] It is quite plain from this that such a liability is not created by doubtful terms in a charter. For example a clause in the charter of a corporation providing that it shall possess all the general powers and

L. R. 8 Ch. 45, 42 L. J. Ch. 81, 27 L. T. Rep. N. S. 597, 21 Wkly. Rep. 46.

22. Examples of comprehensive statutes of this kind may be seen in the following: Cal. Pen. Code, § 560; 2 Suppl. Mass. Gen. Stat. p. 557, c. 230, § 1; 1 Suppl. Mass. Gen. Stat. p. 810, c. 224, § 38; 2 N. Y. Rev. Stat. (Banks & Bros. (6th ed.) 1876), p. 297, § 1; p. 298, § 10; Utah Comp. Laws (1876), p. 634, § 321.

Liability of trustees of an incorporated chamber of commerce, the articles of incorporation of which declare that it is not formed for profit, under a statute providing that the trustees of a corporation created for a purpose other than profit shall be personally liable for debts of the corporation contracted by them, etc., where the articles provide for a capital stock and declare that one of the purposes of the corporation is to promote the prosperity of the city. Snyder v. Chamber of Commerce, 53 Ohio St. 1, 41 N. E. 33.

23. California.— Irvine v. McKeon, 23 Cal. 472.

Colorado.— Gregory v. German Bank, 3 Colo. 332, 25 Am. Rep. 760.

Massachusetts.— Stebbins v. Edmands, 12 Gray 203.

Missouri.— Kritzer v. Woodson, 19 Mo. 327.

New Jersey.— Derrickson v. Smith, 27 N. J. L. 166 (construing the New York statute); Nassau Bank v. Brown, 30 N. J. Eq. 478.

New York.— Gadsen v. Woodward, 103 N. Y. 242, 8 N. E. 653; Cameron v. Seaman, 69 N. Y. 396, 25 Am. Rep. 212; Wiles v. Suydam, 64 N. Y. 173 [reversing 3 Hun 604, 6 Thomps. & C. 292]; Adams v. Mills, 60 N. Y. 533; Rorke v. Thomas, 56 N. Y. 559; Verona Cent. Cheese Co. v. Murtaugh, 50 N. Y. 314; Miller v. White, 50 N. Y. 137; Merchants' Bank v. Bliss, 35 N. Y. 412 [affirming 1 Rob. 391]; Garrison v. Howe, 17 N. Y. 458; Esmond v. Bullard, 16 Hun 65; Hall v. Siegel, 7 Lans. 206, 13 Abb. Pr. N. S. 178; Craw v. Easterly, 4 Lans. 513; Price v. Wilson, 67 Barb. 9; McHarg v. Eastman, 7 Rob. 137; Bird v. Hayden, 1 Rob. 383; Vincent v. Sands, 11 Abb. Pr. N. S. 366; Dabney v. Stevens, 10 Abb. Pr. N. S. 39, 40 How. Pr. 341.

Ohio.— Sturges v. Burton, 8 Ohio St. 215, 72 Am. Dec. 582.

United States.— Union Iron Co. v. Pierce, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14,367, 4 Biss. 327.

24. In a recent federal case Mr. U. S. District Judge Lochren took substantially this view of such a statute. Fitzgerald v. Weidenbeck, 76 Fed. 695. See further to the effect that such statutes are not penal Banks v. Darden, 18 Ga. 318; Neal v. Moultrie, 12 Ga. 104; Farr v. Briggs, 72 Vt. 225, 47 Atl. 793, 82 Am. St. Rep. 930 (hence enforceable in another state); Davis v. Mills, 99 Fed. 39 (same ruling). Such an action therefore survives against the personal representatives of the directors. Taylor v. Cummings, 17 Nat. Corp. Rep. 732.

Examples of such statutes which have been held penal.— It has been held that the character of a penal statute should be ascribed to a statute making the trustees of corporations personally liable for its debts for failing to publish an annual report of its financial condition. Gregory v. German Bank, 3 Colo. 332, 25 Am. Rep. 760. The Colorado statute is identical with that of New York, which is also held to be penal in its nature, in many of the cases from that state just cited. So held in Providence Steam Engine Co. v. Hubbard, 101 U. S. 188, 25 L. ed. 786. And the same has been held of statutes imposing a personal liability upon the directors whenever they suffer the debts of the corporation to exceed a prescribed limit, the liability being to the extent of the excess. Irvine v. McKeon, 23 Cal. 472; Sturges v. Burton, 8 Ohio St. 215, 72 Am. Dec. 582.

25. Compare supra, VIII, E, 1, a et seq.

26. Vincent v. Sands, 11 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 366, holding that a statutory requirement that a report of the condition of a corporation shall be signed by the president and a majority of the trustees, and verified by the president and the secretary, is not satisfied by a report signed and verified by privileges, and that it shall be subject to all the general liabilities conferred and imposed upon corporations created by an existing general statute, does not incorporate into the charter a provision of the general statute making trustees of the corporation liable for its debts in certain cases.[27]

d. Whether Such Statutes Enforceable Outside State Enacting Them. The general rule, although seemingly founded in a narrow and tribal jealousy, by which one state of the American Union regards its sister states as foreign nations in friendly intercourse with it, has led to the doctrine, which obtains as a rule of private international law, that the courts of one of these states will not as a matter of obligation enforce the penal legislation of another of them;[28] although it is of course at liberty to do so as matter of comity, or whenever by doing so it will advance the rights of its own citizens or its own local policy.[29] This rule that the courts of one state will not enforce the penal legislation of another state applies to statutes making directors personally liable for certain misprisions, defaults, and delinquencies in those courts where such statutes are regarded as being penal in their nature;[30] but is denied in those states where such statutes are regarded as remedial.[31] This doctrine has been greatly shaken, if not entirely overthrown, by a decision of the supreme court of the United States to the effect that where a judgment has been recovered against directors in an action to enforce their personal liability for a statutory deliquency, there is a right of recovery upon the judgment in an action in a court of another state, and that a denial of this right is a failure to give full faith and credit to the judicial record of the former state, within the meaning of the constitution of the United States.[32]

e. Effect of Repeal of Such Statute Upon Accrued Rights. Under the operation of the principle that the repeal of a penal statute puts an end to all rights of action which have accrued under it, even though such actions may be pending, unless the statute contains a saving clause to the contrary,[33] many courts have the secretary exclusively, and hence does not exonerate the trustees.

27. National Park Bank v. Remsen, 158 U. S. 337, 15 S. Ct. 891, 39 L. ed. 1008.

28. U. S. v. Lathrop, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 4; Scoville v. Canfield, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 338, 7 Am. Dec. 467; Rorer Interstate Law 148; Story Confl. Laws, §§ 620, 621; Wharton Confl. Laws, § 853 et seq.

29. Wait v. Ferguson, 14 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 379, is suggested as an example of this.

30. Flash v. Conn, 16 Fla. 428, 26 Am. Rep. 721; Attrill v. Huntington, 70 Md. 191, 16 Atl. 651 14 Am. St. Rep. 344, 2 L. R. A. 779 [reversed on a federal question in 146 U. S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. ed. 1123]; Plymouth First Nat. Bank v. Price, 33 Md. 487, 3 Am. Rep. 204; Derrickson v. Smith, 27 N. J. L. 166; Price v. Wilson, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; Bird v. Hayden, 1 Rob. (N. Y.) 383, 2 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 61.

31. Taylor v. Cummings, 17 Nat. Corp. Rep. 732 (a similar statute); Farr v. Briggs, 72 Vt. 225, 47 Atl. 793, 82 Am. St. Rep. 930 (statute making directors liable for creating debts in excess of the subscribed capital stock); Davis v. Mills, 99 Fed. 39 (statute making directors liable for failure to file annual financial reports).

Examples of such statutes which have been held not enforceable outside the state enacting them.— A statute making directors liable for contracting indebtedness in excess of the capital actually paid in. Plymouth First Nat. Bank v. Price, 33 Md. 487, 3 Am. Rep. 204. A statute making directors jointly and severally liable for the debts of the company contracted during a time when such directors are in default in not obeying a statute requiring them to make and file in some public office certain reports concerning the condition of the corporation. Halsey v. McLean, 12 Allen (Mass.) 438, 90 Am. Dec. 157; Derrickson v. Smith, 27 N. J. L. 166; Bird v. Hayden, 1 Rob. (N. Y.) 383, 2 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 61. Making them liable to pay the debts of the company in case of a failure to give a certain notice therein specified (Cable v. McCune, 26 Mo. 371, 72 Am. Dec. 214) or liable upon certain contracts of the corporation which it is forbidden by statute to make (Lawler v. Burt, 7 Ohio St. 340). For another example of the rule that such statutes are not enforceable in other states see Wait v. Ferguson, 14 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 379.

32. Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. ed. 1123 [reversing 70 Md. 191, 16 Atl. 651, 14 Am. St. Rep. 344, 2 L. R. A. 779].

33. Alabama.— Pope v. Lewis, 4 Ala. 487.

Indiana.— State v. Youmans, 5 Ind. 280; Stephenson v. Doe, 8 Blackf. 508, 46 Am. Dec. 489.

Kentucky.— Com. v. Welch, 2 Dana 330.

Maine.— Oriental Bank v. Freeze, 18 Me. 109, 36 Am. Dec. 701.

New Hampshire.— Lewis v. Foster, 1 N. H. 61.

New York.— Butler v. Palmer, 1 Hill 324; People v. Livingston, 6 Wend. 526.

held that statutes of the kind under consideration, being penal, a repeal discharges all rights of action under them;[34] while other courts, regarding them as creating a liability quasi ex contractu,[35] and still others as being remedial in their nature,[36] hold the contrary.

f. Power of Legislature to Repeal Statutes of This Kind. The existence of a provision in the constitution of a state that "dues from corporations other than banking shall be secured by such individual liability of the corporators, or other means, as may be prescribed by law" does not render the legislature incompetent to repeal a statute making the directors of corporations liable to pay the corporate debts in consequence of a failure or refusal to file certain reports prescribed by the statute; but leaves to the legislature a wide discretion as to the manner in which it will secure such dues, and permits it to alter at its pleasure any legislation which it may have enacted to this end.[37]

g. Validity of Statute Imposing Liability After Persons Sought to Be Charged Become Directors. A statute making directors of a corporation primarily liable for its debts in the event of its insolvency is valid and operative upon such directors, although passed after they became directors, provided the indebtedness in respect of which it is sought to charge them was created subsequently to the passage of the act, they being directors at the time, such a statute, in such an application, having none of the incidents of an ex post facto law.[38] So, while an amended statute, making the liability of directors more onerous than under the original statute, will not make guilty any acts of directors done before its passage, which were then innocent, or attach any additional liability to such acts, yet if, by the terms of the original statute, the fact of insolvency fixed the liability of the directors, and if a particular bank became insolvent before the act took effect, then the liability of the directors became subject to its provisions.[39]

h. Effect of Dissolution of Corporation. The dissolution of the corporation does not put an end to a right of action given by statute to creditors against directors for official defaults.[40]

South Carolina.— Allen v. Farrow, 2 Bailey 584.

United States.— Norris v. Crocker, 13 How. 429, 14 L. ed. 210; U. S. v. Preston, 3 Pet. 57, 7 L. ed. 601; The Rachel v. U. S., 6 Cranch 329, 3 L. ed. 239; Yeaton v. U. S., 5 Cranch 281, 3 L. ed. 101.

England.— Miller's Case, 1 W. Bl. 451, 3 Wils. C. P. 420.

34. Colorado.— Gregory v. German Bank, 3 Colo. 332, 23 Am. Rep. 760.

Maine.— Gaul v. Brown, 53 Me. 496.

Massachusetts.— Nichols v. Squire, 5 Pick. 168.

Michigan.— Breitung v. Lindauer, 37 Mich. 217; Bay City, etc., R. Co. v. Austin, 21 Mich. 390.

New York.— Curtis v. Leavitt, 15 N. Y. 9.

United States.— Norris v. Crocker, 13 How. 429, 14 L. ed. 210; Union Iron Co. v. Pierce, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14,367, 4 Biss. 327.

There is a note on this subject in 19 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 112.

35. Banks v. Darden, 18 Ga. 318.

36. Hargroves v. Chambers, 30 Ga. 580.

The latter rule obtains with respect to statutes making shareholders individually liable to pay the debts of the corporation; so that a repeal of such a statute, in so far as it attempts to operate upon existing rights, impairs the obligations of a contract, within the meaning of the federal constitution, and is to that extent void. Norris v. Wrenschall, 34 Md. 492; Story v. Furman, 25 N. Y. 214, 223; Rochester v. Barnes, 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 657; Conant v. Van Schaick, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 87; Hathorn v. Calef, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 10, 17 L. ed. 776.

37. Union Iron Co. v. Pierce, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14,367, 4 Biss. 327. Compare the following cases:

California.— Noble v. Hook, 24 Cal. 638.

Georgia.— Harris v. Glenn, 56 Ga. 94; Sparger v. Cumpton, 54 Ga. 355.

Minnesota.— Coleman v. Ballandi, 22 Minn. 144; Cogel v. Mickow, 11 Minn. 475; Tuttle v. Strout, 7 Minn. 465, 82 Am. Dec. 108.

Nevada.— Hawthorne v. Smith, 3 Nev. 182, 93 Am. Dec. 397.

North Carolina.— Martin v. Hughes, 67 N. C. 293.

Wisconsin.— Parker v. King, 16 Wis. 223; Bull v. Conroe, 13 Wis. 233.

38. Falconer v. Campbell, 8 Fed. Cas. No. 4,620, 2 McLean 195.

For a corresponding rule as to shareholders see In re Reciprocity Bank, 22 N. Y. 9; In re Gibson, 21 N. Y. 9; Sherman v. Smith, 1 Black (U. S.) 587, 17 L. ed. 163. Compare U. S. Trust Co. v. U. S. Fire Ins. Co., 18 N. Y. 199, 8 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 192.

39. White v. How, 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,548, 3 McLean 111.

40. Hargroves v. Chambers, 30 Ga. 580.

i. Sense in Which Directors Are Jointly Liable For Such Defaults. The statutes generally make directors jointly and severally liable for the defaults which they denounce. This does not mean that a director is answerable for the defaults of others in which he did not participate or concur, as a guarantor of the good conduct of such others. It means no more than that the creditors may proceed against them all in one action, judgment being rendered against those who are shown to be liable.[41]

j. Where Liability Is Joint or Several Creditors May Proceed Against One or More or All. Where the statute makes the liability of the directors doing the forbidden act, or guilty of the delinquency which it denounces, joint or several, the creditor may bring his action against one or more or all, at his election or convenience; and where he does not join all, the non-joinder of the others will be no defense[42] or ground of abatement,[43] the reason being that no one can rightfully claim that another shall be joined with him as defendant in an action for a tort.[44] Therefore, in a suit by a creditor of a bank against the two surviving directors, upon the ground that all the directors became individually liable by violating the charter, it was not necessary to join the representatives of the deceased directors.[45]

k. If Statute Makes All Directors Liable, Innocent as Well as Guilty, All Must Be Joined. If the statute in terms imposes a liability upon all the directors who are members of the board at the time of the doing of the prohibited act, then an action to enforce the statutory liability is joint and not several, and all must be joined, the innocent as well as the guilty, those who were absent as well as those who were present, unless a sufficient averment is made showing why this cannot be done.[46] Under such a statute a director in office at the time of the failure to do the act required cannot defend by showing that the neglect was not that of himself, but that of his co-directors.[47]

l. Corporation Need Not Be Joined. Where the liability is both joint and several, as the creditor is at liberty to single out any offending director and proceed against him alone, it follows that the corporation need not be joined with him as a co-defendant.[48]

m. Whether Right of Action Dies With Creditor. If the strict rule is applied that such an action is an action for a penalty, then it follows that it dies with the creditor who brings it;[49] but for reasons already given[50] this is not the sound and just view;[51] and the statutes giving such rights of action generally provide in terms for their survival by giving them against executors and administrators.

n. Right to Proceed Against Directors Under These Statutes Is Assignable. Where the particular statute is construed as not giving an action for a penalty, but as giving an action quasi ex contractu, such a right of action is regarded as 41. Irvine v. McKeon, 23 Cal. 472; McMaster v. Kohner, 44 N. Y. Super. Ct. 253. For the meaning of the expression "jointly and severally liable" in such a statute, and its effect upon rules of procedure, see 3 Thompson Corp. § 4174; Quigley v. Walter, 2 Sweeny (N. Y.) 175 and cases cited.

Where the act denounced was of such a nature that it could not be done by a single director, as for example the declaring of an unlawful dividend, or the discounting of a certain kind of paper, it has been held that it would be necessary to allege that the single director proceeded against had the concurrence of others in doing the prohibited act. Gaffney v. Colvill, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 567, per Bronson, J. Contra, Hill v. Frazier, 22 Pa. St. 320. But this does not seem to be sound, since it overlooks the fact that one director may usurp the powers of the whole board or of a majority of the board in doing the prohibited act.

42. Patterson v. Stewart, 41 Minn. 84, 42 N. W. 928, 16 Am. St. Rep. 671, 4 L. R. A. 745; Strong v. Sproul, 4 Daly (N. Y.) 326 [reversed on other grounds in 53 N. Y. 497].

43. Andrews v. Murray, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 354. Compare Hargroves v. Chambers, 30 Ga. 580; Colburn v. Patmore, 1 C. M. & R. 73, 3 L. J. Exch. 317, 4 Tyrw. 677.

44. Strong v. Sproul, 4 Daly (N. Y.) 326; Gaffney v. Colvill, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 567.

45. Hargroves v. Chambers, 30 Ga. 580.

46. Banks v. Darden, 18 Ga. 318.

47. Van Etten v. Eaton, 19 Mich. 187. But see Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Jenkins, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 130.

48. Hill v. Frazier, 22 Pa. St. 320.

49. Dalton v. Goodwin, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 257, 25 N. Y. St. 858.

50. See supra, IX, P, 1, b.

51. Carr v. Risher, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 371.

merely an additional security attached to the debt of the corporate creditor and is capable of being assigned with such debt, so that the assignee may maintain the action.[52]

o. Liability Attaches to Directors De Facto. The liability created by these statutes attaches to de facto directors as well as directors de jure.[53] It attaches to those who hold over after the expiration of the term for which they were elected, in default of the corporation holding its annual election.[54] But where the governing statute provides that if a director shall cease to be a shareholder, his office shall become vacant, then an absolute transfer by a director of all his shares after a default in the filing of a statutory annual report, although made in contemplation of the insolvency of the corporation, and for the purpose of avoiding liability for debts subsequently contracted, is effectual to relieve him from such liability.[55]

p. This Statutory Liability Cannot Be Contracted Away. It has been held that a provision in a corporate bond that no shareholder shall be individually liable thereon or in respect thereto has no effect to relieve directors of the company from their statutory liability for its debts in case of their failure to file an annual report required by statute; and if such a provision were intended to provide against such liability it would be void as against public policy.[56]

2. What Debts Are Within Such Statutes — a. Such Statutes Do Not Include Torts. The word "debt" when used therein is not generally construed so as to

52. Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175 [affirmed in 141 N. Y. 584, 36 N. E. 345, 57 N. Y. St. 868]; Lexow v. Pennsylvania Diamond Drill Co., 5 Pa. Dist. 499.

53. Therefore a director proceeded against under a suit for failing to publish an annual report cannot escape liability on the ground that he was not eligible to the office (St. George Vineyard Co. v. Fritz, 48 N. Y. App. Div. 233, 62 N. Y. Suppl. 775), or on the ground of the invalidity of his election (Union Nat. Bank v. Scott, 53 N. Y. App. Div. 65, 66 N. Y. Suppl. 145). For example on the ground that he holds less than five shares of stock, as required by N. Y. Laws (1892), c. 688, § 20. Donnelly v. Pancoast, 15 N. Y. App. Div. 323, 44 N. Y. Suppl. 104.

54. Janet v. Nims, 7 Colo. App. 88, 43 Pac. 147.

55. Sinclair v. Fuller, 158 N. Y. 607, 53 N. E. 510 [affirming 9 N. Y. App. Div. 297, 41 N. Y. Suppl. 193, 75 N. Y. St. 641].

56. Swancoat v. Remsen, 26 N. Y. Civ. Proc. 94, 78 Fed. 592.

No recovery under such a statute by one who makes a loan to the corporation with knowledge that the director sought to be made liable has transferred his shares to another. Sinclair v. Dwight, 9 N. Y. App. Div. 297, 41 N. Y. Suppl. 193, 75 N. Y. St. 641.

Pennsylvania statute of July 18, 1863, on this subject not abrogated by General Corporation Act of 1874. Kurtz v. Wigton, 34 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 219. Compare Green v. Whitehead, 5 Pa. Dist. 613; Wagner v. Corcoran, 2 Pa. Dist. 440.

Provision of New York statute of 1848, c. 40, on this subject does not apply to corporations organized for the improvement of real estate for residences under N. Y. Laws (1871), c. 535. McComb v. Belknap, 30 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 119, 24 N. Y. Suppl. 935.

The liability of directors of a corporation for failure to file an annual report imposed by N. Y. Laws (1892), c. 2, was retained by N. Y. Laws (1892), c. 688, providing for the continuance of all liability accruing under any law since the passage of N. Y. Laws (1890), c. 564. Metropolis Bank v. Faber, 1 N. Y. App. Div. 341, 37 N. Y. Suppl. 423, 72 N. Y. St. 673 [affirmed in 150 N. Y. 200, 44 N. E. 779].

The omission from N. Y. Laws (1875), c. 510, of the word "annually," contained in N. Y. Laws (1848), c. 40, § 12, making trustees of corporations liable for corporate debts in case of their failure to file the statement therein mentioned, does not relieve the trustees from such liability upon filing one annual statement, since the words "each year" in the amending act take the place of the word "annually." Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175 [affirmed in 141 N. Y. 584, 36 N. E. 345, 57 N. Y. St. 868]. A corporation organized to manufacture and sell trees, wood, timber, and lumber, to mine, ship, and sell ore, erect and maintain blast furnaces and other iron works, purchase and construct docks, and repair, maintain, and operate a railroad, is within N. Y. Laws (1848), c. 40, as amended, authorizing the formation of corporations for manufacturing, mining, mechanical, or chemical purposes, and making trustees personally liable for the corporate debts upon failure to file the annual statement therein prescribed. Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175 [affirmed in 141 N. Y. 548, 36 N. E. 345, 57 N. Y. St. 868].

Director not liable who has transferred all his shares, and thereby vacated the office of director, if done openly, although to escape liability as a shareholder to creditors. Sinclair v. Dwight, 9 N. Y. App. Div. 297, 41 N. Y. Suppl. 193.

include torts committed by the agents of the corporation, for which the corporation is liable.[57] This rule applies only to torts simpliciter, which do not spring out of a breach of contract, and then only where the demand against the corporation has not been reduced to judgment.[58] It does not include a liability on the part of the directors for unliquidated damages for the breach of a contract by the corporation by reason of its insolvency.[59] If the demand against the corporation has been reduced to judgment, the directors may incur the statutory liability, but the bill seeking to charge them must so allege.[60]

b. Mere Gratuities. The word "debt" in such a statute does not extend to mere gratuities, such as bonds given by the corporation to plaintiff; since the demand against it thereby acquired did not arise in consequence of his giving credit to it.[61]

c. Security Debts. The liability of a principal to indemnify his surety is a "debt contracted" within the meaning of such a statute, and arises at the time when the surety signs the note, accepts the draft, or otherwise enters into the obligation of suretyship.[62] So an agreement of a corporation to indemnify an accommodation indorser is a "debt contracted" at the time when the agreement is made and not at the time when the debt is paid by the accepter.[63]

d. Debts Imposed Upon Corporation by Fraud. It is scarcely necessary to suggest that under a statute of this kind directors can be made liable only for bona fide debts of the corporation and not for debts imposed upon it by fraud.[64]

e. Debts Due to Directors Themselves. Neither are debts due from the corporation to one of its directors within the meaning of such a statute; since a director will not be permitted to create by his own wrong a cause of action against his co-directors, thereby cutting down the fund which the statute has created for the security of creditors other than the wrong-doers;[65] and as a director-creditor cannot assert such a liability in his own favor he cannot create it by assigning his demand against the corporation to another person, thereby giving to his assignee a higher right than he himself has.[66]

57. Cable v. Gaty, 34 Mo. 573, 86 Am. Dec. 126; Chase v. Curtis, 113 U. S. 452, 5 S. Ct. 554, 28 L. ed. 1038. So held under N. Y. Laws (1848), c. 40, § 12. Kirkland v. Kille, 99 N. Y. 390, 2 N. E. 36; Esmond v. Bullard, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 65. The rule is analogous where the statute extends the liability to shareholders. Bohn v. Brown, 33 Mich. 257; Cable v. Gaty, 34 Mo. 573, 86 Am. Dec. 126; Cable v. McCune, 26 Mo. 371, 72 Am. Dec. 214; Heacock v. Sherman, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 58. Other courts, however, have held, in construing statutes imposing individual liability upon shareholders in corporations, that the word "debt" embraces claims against the corporation for unliquidated damages. Mill Dam Foundry v. Hovey, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 417; Dryden v. Kellogg, 2 Mo. App. 87; Carver v. Braintree Mfg. Co., 5 Fed. Cas. No. 2,485, 2 Story 432. Compare as to the meaning of the word "debt" Conroy v. Sullivan, 44 Ill. 451; Lathrop v. Singer, 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 396; Schouton v. Kilmer, 8 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 527; Dellinger v. Tweed, 66 N. C. 206; Lane v. Baker, 2 Grant (Pa.) 424. The doctrine of the text is obviously the correct doctrine where the statute makes the directors liable for "debts contracted." Esmond v. Bullard, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 65.

58. Child v. Boston, etc., Iron Works, 137 Mass. 516, 50 Am. Rep. 328. Compare In re Boston, etc., Iron Works, 23 Fed. 880.

59. MacVeagh v. Wild, 95 Fed. 84.

60. Archer v. Rose, 3 Brewst. (Pa.) 264.

61. Norris v. De Wolf, 12 Hun (N. Y.) 666.

62. Byers v. Franklin Coal Co., 106 Mass. 131; Rice v. Southgate, 16 Gray (Mass.) 142.

63. Byers v. Franklin Coal Co., 106 Mass. 131, holding that a judgment obtained by the principal against the corporation merges the obligation on which suit is brought as to the obligee, but does not merge it as to any collateral liability he may have against shareholders, and consequently against directors. For the governing principle see Byers v. Franklin Coal Co., 106 Mass. 131, 137 (per Morton, J.); Campbell v. Phelps, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 62, 11 Am. Dec. 139; Ward v. Johnson, 13 Mass. 148; Porter v. Ingraham, 10 Mass. 88; Gilmore v. Carr, 2 Mass. 171.

64. Adams v. Mills, 60 N. Y. 533; N. Y. Stat. (1848), c. 40, § 12. Compare Bolen v. Crosby, 49 N. Y. 183.

65. Thacher v. King, 156 Mass. 490, 31 N. E. 648; McClave v. Thompson, 36 Hun (N. Y.) 365. Compare Wait v. Ferguson, 14 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 379.

So as to shareholders who have acquiesced in the wrongful conduct of directors. Walker v. Birchard, 82 Iowa 388, 48 N. W. 71.

66. Briggs v. Easterly, 62 Barb. (N. Y.) 51.

f. Ultra Vires Debts. It seems that such statutes make directors liable for ultra vires debts, provided circumstances of estoppel exist, as where the corporation has received and appropriated the benefit of the contract, which makes the corporation liable to pay the debt;[67] but not for debts founded in plain breach of trust on the part of the contracting officers of the corporation to which the creditor has been privy, so that there are no circumstances of estoppel,[68] resulting in the conclusion that the liability of the director is measured by the liability of the company, and that the remedy against them is concurrent.[69]

g. Certificates of Deposit. A statute which in describing debts used the word "secured" embraces certificates of deposit.[70]

h. Judgments and Judgments For Costs. A judgment is certainly a "debt" within the meaning of such a statute, since under all definitions it is a debt of record;[71] and this is equally so where it is founded upon a demand for a tort;[72] and a judgment for costs is plainly a "debt" within this rule,[73] although founded on an unsuccessful action by the corporation for a tort;[74] but this is not so where the statute uses the words "debt contracted."[75]

i. Debts Which Have Been Assigned. As already seen[76] the assignment of a debt against the corporation passes to the assignee, as an incident of the debt, the right to enforce a statutory liability of the directors;[77] and this applies to a case where the debt against the corporation has been reduced to judgment.[78] If a debt thus assigned is evidenced by a negotiable instrument, the rule which protects the innocent purchaser of negotiable paper of corporations in case of ultra

67. Patterson v. Stewart, 41 Minn. 84, 42 N. W. 926, 16 Am. St. Rep. 671, 4 L. R. A. 745; Whitney Arms Co. v. Barlow, 63 N. Y. 62, 20 Am. Rep. 504 [reversing 38 N. Y. Super. Ct. 554].

68. National Park Bank v. Remsen, 43 Fed. 226.

69. McCormick v. Seeberger, 73 Ill. App. 87; Salem First Nat. Bank v. Almy, 117 Mass. 476; Trowbridge v. Scudder, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 83; New York Iron Mine v. Negaunee First Nat. Bank, 39 Mich. 644; Gold v. Clyne, 134 N. Y. 262, 31 N. E. 980, 47 N. Y. St. 770, 17 L. R. A. 767; Trinity Church v. Vanderbilt, 98 N. Y. 170; Jones v. Barlow, 62 N. Y. 202. Compare Medill v. Collier, 16 Ohio St. 599.

70. Hargroves v. Chambers, 30 Ga. 580.

71. Lewis v. Armstrong, 8 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 385.

72. See supra, IX, P, 2, a. But see Chase v. Curtis, 113 U. S. 452, 5 S. Ct. 554, 28 L. ed. 1038.

To the effect that the judgment against the corporation extinguishes the obligation which was the foundation of the suit, but does not have the effect of merging the liability of its directors for statutory defaults, see McHarg v. Eastman, 7 Rob. (N. Y.) 137. That obtaining a judgment against a corporation does not affect the liability of the directors for a debt contracted during their failure to file the annual report required by N. Y. Laws (1892), c. 688, § 30, where the judgment is not paid, see Providence Steam, etc., Pipe Co. v. Connell, 86 Hun (N. Y.) 319, 33 N. Y. Suppl. 482, 67 N. Y. St. 196.

73. Allen v. Clark, 108 N. Y. 269, 15 N. E. 387 [reversing 43 Hun (N. Y.) 377]; Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175.

74. Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175 [affirmed in 141 N. Y. 584, 36 N. E. 345, 57 N. Y. St. 868]. Compare Bolen v. Crosby, 49 N. Y. 183; Green v. Easton, 74 Hun (N. Y.) 329, 26 N. Y. Suppl. 553, 55 N. Y. St. 895.

That directors are not liable under a statute for the costs incurred by the creditor in reducing his claim to a judgment against the corporation see Green v. Easton, 74 Hun (N. Y.) 329, 26 N. Y. Suppl. 553, 55 N. Y. St. 895. Compare Allen v. Clark, 141 N. Y. 584, 36 N. E. 345, 57 N. Y. St. 868.

75. Armstrong v. Cowles, 44 Conn. 44.

76. See supra, IX, P, 1, n.

77. Pier v. George, 86 N. Y. 613 [reversing on another point 20 Hun (N. Y.) 210]; Bedford v. Sherman, 68 Hun (N. Y.) 317, 22 N. Y. Suppl. 892, 52 N. Y. St. 98; Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175; Bonnell v. Wheeler, 16 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 81; Davis v. Mills, 99 Fed. 39.

78. Bolen v. Crosby, 49 N. Y. 183. That the assignment of a judgment necessarily carries with it the debt see Thomas v. Hubbell, 35 N. Y. 120; Rose v. Baker, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 230; Gallarati v. Orser, 4 Bosw. (N. Y.) 94; Pattison v. Hull, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 747; Jackson v. Blodget, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 202; Green v. Hart, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 580.

After assignment made and directors notified of it, they cannot compound with the assignor and so discharge their liability. Bolen v. Crosby, 49 N. Y. 183. Compare Robinson v. Bealle, 20 Ga. 275, holding that a release of the directors is a release of the liability of the shareholders.

vires contracts will protect such an assignee and enable him to enforce a statutory liability of the directors for failing to file an annual report.[79]

j. Wages of Employees. An obligation assumed by contract to pay an employee a stated salary is of course a "debt," within the meaning of such a statute, provided the salary has been earned,[80] and provided the services were rendered upon the request of the corporation, which request must be alleged.[81] But one employed as a "foreman" is not a "laborer, servant, or apprentice," within the meaning of such a statute.[82]

k. Debts Payable in Future. To charge a trustee of a manufacturing corporation with its debt, no report having been filed, the debt must have been so contracted as to give a present right of action against the corporation.[83]

l. Unliquidated Damages For Breaches of Contract. It has been held that such statutes do not make directors liable for unliquidated damages for breaches of contract by the corporation;[84] but the contrary is quite obviously the true rule.[85]

m. Taxes. A tax, duly assessed against the corporation, and personally payable, is a "debt" within the meaning of a statute making directors liable for the payment of such tax, in an action by the collector of taxes.[86]

n. Debts Barred by Limitation. After the bar of the statute of limitations has attached no debt remains on the basis of which the directors or trustees can be charged, under such a statute, for an official default.[87]

o. Renewals. A statute making directors liable for debts of the corporation contracted during the period of their default in making and publishing certain reports of the condition of the corporation will not extend to a renewal of an indebtedness, unless the date at which the renewal took place was within the period of the default.[88] Where the note of the corporation by which the debt is evidenced is merely a renewal and consolidation of items of previous indebtedness, the statutory liability of the directors who were such when the note was given does not attach, as in the case of a debt originally accruing during the period of their default.[89] Contrary to this it has been held that the mere liquidation of a debt by the corporation, and payment thereof in its promissory notes, does not cancel or merge the original indebtedness, and consequently does not affect the statutory liability of the trustees, provided it has become fixed with respect to the original indebtedness.[90]

79. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Colwell, 14 Daly (N. Y.) 361, 14 N. Y. St. 682.

80. Brandt v. Goodwin, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 807, 24 N. Y. St. 305 [affirmed in 15 Daly 456, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 339, 29 N. Y. St. 143].

81. Tovey v. Culver, 54 N. Y. Super. Ct. 404.

82. Welch v. Ellis, 22 Ont. 255.

83. Vernon v. Palmer, 62 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 425.

84. Victory Webb Printing, etc., Mach. Mfg. Co. v. Beecher, 26 Hun (N. Y.) 48.

85. Manhattan Co. v. Kaldenberg, 27 N. Y. App. Div. 31, 50 N. Y. Suppl. 265; Milsom Rendering, etc., Co. v. Baker, 16 N. Y. App. Div. 581, 44 N. Y. Suppl. 999 [affirmed in 153 N. Y. 687, 48 N. E. 1105]; Donnelly v. Pancoast, 15 N. Y. App. Div. 323, 44 N. Y. Suppl. 104; Camp Mfg. Co. v. Reamer, 14 N. Y. App. Div. 408, 43 N. Y. Suppl. 1027 [reversing 18 Misc. (N. Y.) 619, 43 N. Y. Suppl. 673, 26 N. Y. Civ. Proc. 100]; Rose v. Chadwick, 9 N. Y. App. Div. 311, 41 N. Y. Suppl. 190, 75 N. Y. St. 638; Green v. Easton, 74 Hun (N. Y.) 329, 26 N. Y. Suppl. 553, 55 N. Y. St. 895; MacVeagh v. Wild, 95 Fed. 84.

On the other hand a judgment against the corporation is not enough, but the creditor must also show that it was for a debt for which the statute makes the director liable. Collins v. Hydorn, 125 N. Y. 320, 32 N. E. 69; Wetter v. Lewis, 22 Misc. (N. Y.) 122, 48 N. Y. Suppl. 617.

86. Felker v. Standard Yarn Co., 148 Mass. 226, 19 N. E. 220.

87. Trinity Church v. Vanderbilt, 98 N. Y. 170.

88. That this is the rule as to the statutory liability of shareholders see Shellington v. Howland, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 14 [affirmed in 53 N. Y. 371]; 3 Thompson Corp. § 2246.

89. Sullivan v. Sullivan Mfg. Co., 24 S. C. 341.

90. Deming v. Puleston, 35 N. Y. Super. Ct. 309 [affirmed in 55 N. Y. 655; Jones v. Barlow, 38 N. Y. Super. Ct. 142 (affirmed in 62 N. Y. 202)]. But note a decision of a subordinate court to the effect that where, after the filing of a false certificate for which the directors are liable under a statute, renewal notes are given for a debt contracted prior to the filing of the certificate,

p. Debts Contracted and Due in Other States. Such a statute extends to debts contracted and due in other states.[91]

q. Debts Due to Partnership Dissolved by Death. If the debt of the corporation is due to a partnership, and it has subsequently become dissolved by the death of one of the partners, the surviving partner may enforce the statutory liability of the directors.[92]

r. Bonds Secured by Mortgage. Bonds secured by mortgage are "debts" within the meaning of such a statute.[93]

s. Simple Contract Debts. In a proceeding in equity under a statute of Massachusetts,[94] making the directors of a corporation personally liable for debts in excess of the capital, plaintiffs may not only prove their judgment debt, but any further sum due them by simple contract.[95]

t. Obligation to Pay Guaranteed Dividend. One court has held, but not upon clear grounds, that the obligation assumed by a corporation issuing preferred stock, to pay semiannually a dividend guaranteed by it upon that stock is not a "debt," within the meaning of a statute of the kind under consideration, after the company becomes insolvent and suspends business, so that there are no profits out of which a dividend can be declared and paid.[96]

u. For What Other Debts Directors Liable Under These Statutes. Directors are also liable under the Colorado statute, for the unpaid debts of the preceding year;[97] under the Pennsylvania statute, for all debts contracted during the period of neglect to comply with the requirements of the statute;[98] and for the fraudulent removal of grain stored in an elevator represented by an outstanding warehouse receipt.[99]

v. For What Other Debts Directors Not Liable Under These Statutes. Directors are not liable under the Montana statute for debts of the corporation incurred before their failure to file the prescribed reports, or at all, for a contingent liability accruing to the corporation for a breach of its covenant of warranty in its deed of conveyance,[1] or for a debt the incurring of which was not previously authorized by the defendants in their capacity as trustees.[2] the directors are personally liable for it under the statute. Ferguson v. Gill, 64 Hun (N. Y.) 284, 19 N. Y. Suppl. 149, 46 N. Y. St. 474. That the giving of promissory notes by the corporation in settlement of an indebtedness which accrued during the existence of the neglect of the directors to file the statutory report does not relieve them from liability where the notes are long past due and unpaid when the action to enforce their liability is commenced see Novelty Mfg. Co. v. Connell, 88 Hun (N. Y.) 254, 34 N. Y. Suppl. 717, 68 N. Y. St. 697. That an extension of time given to the corporation within which to pay a debt does not relieve the directors from liability for failing to make the annual statutory report see Providence Steam, etc., Co. v. Connell, 86 Hun (N. Y.), 319, 33 N. Y. Suppl. 482, 67 N. Y. St. 196.

91. Sears v. Waters, 44 Hun (N. Y.) 101.

92. Ferguson v. Gill, 64 Hun (N. Y.) 284, 19 N. Y. Suppl. 149, 46 N. Y. St. 474.

93. Morgan v. Hedstrom, 164 N. Y. 224, 58 N. E. 26 [affirming 25 N. Y. App. Div. 547, 49 N. Y. Suppl. 1049].

94. Mass. Pub. Stat. c. 106, § 60, cl. 3.

95. Thacher v. King, 156 Mass. 490, 31 N. E. 648.

96. Lockhart v. Van Alstyne, 31 Mich. 76, 18 Am. Rep. 156.

97. And the director is not relieved from liability for the balance of such a debt by the payment by the corporation, after he becomes a director, of an amount greater than such balance. Fairbank, etc., Co. v. Macleod, 8 Colo. App. 190, 45 Pac. 282.

98. Kurtz v. Wigton, 34 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 219.

99. Bedford v. Sherman, 68 Hun (N. Y.) 317, 22 N. Y. Suppl. 892, 52 N. Y. St. 98.

Other decisions under similar statutes as to the debts of the corporation for which directors become liable by reason of failing to file statutory reports of the condition of the corporation. Austin v. Berlin, 13 Colo. 198, 22 Pac. 433; Huntington v. Attrill, 118 N. Y. 365, 23 N. E. 544, 29 N. Y. St. 5; Ferguson v. Gill, 64 Hun (N. Y.) 284, 19 N. Y. Suppl. 149, 46 N. Y. St. 474; Torbett v. Godwin, 62 Hun (N. Y.) 407, 17 N. Y. Suppl. 46, 42 N. Y. St. 323; Whitney v. Cammann, 60 N. Y. Super. Ct. 391, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 200, 45 N. Y. St. 570; Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175; Woods v. Godwin, 19 N. Y. Suppl. 658, 46 N. Y. St. 937; Ashley v. Godwin, 19 N. Y. Suppl. 658, 46 N. Y. St. 936; Young v. Godwin, 19 N. Y. Suppl. 656, 46 N. Y. St. 934; Kurtz v. Wigton, 34 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 219.

1. Giddings v. Holter, 19 Mont. 263, 48 Pac. 8.

2. Wetter v. Lewis, 22 Misc. (N. Y.) 122, 48 N. Y. Suppl. 617.

3. STATUTORY LIABILITY ATTACHES TO WHAT DIRECTORS WITH RESPECT TO TIME WHEN DEBT WAS CONTRACTED — a. Liability Attaches Only to Those Directors Who Were in Office at Time of Default Already Prohibited. Liability under statutes for official defaults and prohibited acts obviously attaches only to those directors who were in office when the particular misprisions were committed. The rule being that each one stands liable, or exempt from the particular liability, accordingly as he did or did not participate in the particular wrong.[3] Under the operation of this principle a liability for contracting debts beyond the amount limited by statute attaches only to those directors who were in office at the time the particular debt was contracted, provided the statute was then infringed by them.[4] So where a statute requires an official statement to be made on a particular day, or within a limited time after a particular day, the liability for failing to comply with it attaches only to those who were in office at the time fixed for the statement, and who might have made it, but failed so to do.[5]

b. Theory That Liability Attaches to Those Directors Who Were in Office During Period of Default, and at Time When Debt Was Created. Where the statute enjoins the making of certain reports, then it is a sound theory that unless the language of the act imports otherwise, those directors become liable who were in office (1) during the period of the default, and (2) during the period within which the debt must have been contracted. The reason being that if they allow the statutory date to pass without publishing the required statement, then, during the period wherein they are in default, with respect to publishing it, they contract debts on behalf of the corporation at their own peril.[6] Where the statute allows the directors a locus pœnitentiæ, they will it seems cease to be liable for debts contracted after they set themselves right, by publishing the statutory statement,

3. Schley v. Dixon, 24 Ga. 273, 279, 71 Am. Dec. 121; Mutual Redemption Bank v. Hill, 56 Me. 385, 96 Am. Dec. 470. That this is the general rule (subject to exceptions) as to shareholders see Larrabee v. Baldwin, 35 Cal. 155; Davidson v. Rankin, 34 Cal. 503; Mokelumne Hill Canal, etc., Co. v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 265; Williams v. Hanna, 40 Ind. 535; Tracy v. Yates, 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 152; McCullough v. Moss, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 567; Harger v. McCullough, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 119; Adderly v. Storm, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 624; Moss v. Oakley, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 265; Judson v. Rossie Galena Co., 9 Paige (N. Y.) 598, 38 Am. Dec. 569. It follows that one named a director of a corporation for the first year of its existence may by resigning his office before the expiration of the year relieve himself of liability for the failure of the directors in office for the subsequent year to make the report required by statute for that year. Jackson v. Clifford, 5 App. Cas. (D. C.) 312.

A possible exception to the statement of the above text may exist in cases where directors who succeed those who committed the wrong do acts which amount to a ratification or to a continuation of it. Moses v. Ocoee Bank, 1 Lea (Tenn.) 398.

4. Windham Provident Sav. Inst. v. Sprague, 43 Vt. 502.

5. State v. Cox, 88 Ind. 254. See also in illustration of the text Austin v. Berlin, 13 Colo. 198, 22 Pac. 433 (where the statute required an annual report to be made and made the directors jointly and severally liable for the debts contracted during the year in case it is not made); Chandler v. Hoag, 2 Hun (N. Y.) 613, 5 Thomps. & C. (N. Y.) 197 (directors not liable whose terms of office began after the indebtedness had been created, and after default had been made by the previous board in failing to file the statutory report); Seaman v. Goodnow, 20 Wis. 27. So the filing of a false statement by the officers of a business corporation does not render them liable for debts of the corporation contracted or for liabilities incurred before the filing of such false statement. Witherow v. Slayback, 11 Misc. (N. Y.) 526, 32 N. Y. Suppl. 746.

6. Garrison v. Howe, 17 N. Y. 458; McHarg v. Eastman, 7 Rob. (N. Y.) 137. That two things must concur under the New York Manufacturing Act, default in publishing the reports required by the statute, and the contracting of the debt, see also Shaler, etc., Quarry Co. v. Bliss, 27 N. Y. 297 [affirming 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 309, 12 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 470]; Boughton v. Otis, 21 N. Y. 261. The same is true under the New York statute of 1892, c. 688, § 30, and this although the debt is evidenced by promissory notes of the corporation which do not become due until after the report for the following year is filed; since it is the contracting of the debt during period of default, and not the date when it becomes due, that fixes the liability. Shaler, etc., Quarry Co. v. Bliss, 27 N. Y. 297; Provident Steam, etc., Co. v. Connell, 86 Hun (N. Y.) 319, 33 N. Y. Suppl. 482, 67 N. Y. St. 196. So ruled under Connecticut Rev. Stat. § 404, p. 172. Provident Steam-Engine Co. v. Hubbard, 101 U. S. 188, 25 L. ed. 786. See also Witherow v. Slayback, 11 Misc. (N. Y.) 526, 32 N. Y. Suppl. 746, 64 N. Y. St. 456.

although not at the time required by the statute.[7] It will follow from this that if a director goes out of office during the period of default, he will be liable only for those debts which were contracted during the period of default and while he was in office.[8] On the other hand a director coming into office after the default is liable only for such debts as are contracted while he is in office, and before a report is made and published.[9] Where the liability has attached by reason of such a default, the directors cannot exclude themselves from it, by the retrospective act of filing a report relating to the period of such default.[10] Under the operation of this principle directors coming into office after the default are personally liable for such debts only as are contracted while they are in office, and before a report is made and published; so that if a director resigns the office he is not liable for debts of the company in consequence of defaults committed after he quits the office.[11]

c. Liability of Directors Holding Over. If after the time for the regular corporate election is passed a director holds over and continues to act as such, he becomes personally liable upon a failure to file the statutory report of the financial condition of the company.[12] But if at the expiration of his term he retires from office and afterward performs no official act and assumes no official authority he cannot be held so liable.[13]

d. Where Liability Is For Signing and Filing False Report. Where the liability is for signing and filing a false report it is held to attach only in respect of corporate debts contracted subsequently to the time of filing the report, and while the director continues in office.[14]

e. Where Statute Prohibits Contracting of Particular Debts. Where the statute[15] prohibits the contracting of debts of a given description, such as debts beyond the amount of the solvent stock of the corporation, the liability attaches only to those who were in office at the time when the particular debt was contracted, and who subsequently might have prevented or opposed the contracting of it. It does not attach to a member of a former board, so as to make him liable for the misconduct of his successors.[16] Plaintiff must therefore state that the debt which he seeks to charge upon defendant was contracted under the administration of defendant as a director.[17]

f. Directors Not Liable For Defaults Committed Before Coming Into Office. It is a necessary deduction from what has preceded that unless the statute is explicit to the contrary directors will not be liable for statutory defaults

7. Garrison v. Howe, 17 N. Y. 458; McHarg v. Eastman, 7 Rob. (N. Y.) 137.

8. Shaler, etc., Quarry Co. v. Bliss, 27 N. Y. 297 [affirming 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 309, 12 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 470]; Andrews v. Murray, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 354; Squires v. Brown, 22 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 35.

9. Boughton v. Otis, 21 N. Y. 261; Shaler, etc., Co. v. Brewster, 10 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 464.

10. Duckworth v. Roach, 8 Daly (N. Y.) 159.

11. Squire v. Brown, 22 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 35.

Statute under which directors are held liable by reason of the default for all debts of the corporation whenever contracted. Nimmons v. Hennion, 2 Sweeny (N. Y.) 663.

12. Tysen v. Fritz, 44 N. Y. App. Div. 562, 60 N. Y. Suppl. 923 (especially where the governing statute provides that every director shall continue to hold his office until his successor has been elected); Reed v. Keese, 37 N. Y. Super. Ct. 269; Deming v. Puleston, 35 N. Y. Super. Ct. 309.

13. Reed v. Keese, 37 N. Y. Super. Ct. 269.

Statute under which if the default occurs after the death of the creditor, the directors become liable to his executor. Carley v. Hodges, 19 Hun (N. Y.) 187.

Statute under which the director becomes liable the moment the debt is contracted, it being during the period of default. Chapman v. Comstock, 58 Hun (N. Y.) 325, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 920, 34 N. Y. St. 517.

14. Woods v. Godwin, 19 N. Y. Suppl. 658, 46 N. Y. St. 937; Ashley v. Godwin, 19 N. Y. Suppl. 658, 46 N. Y. St. 936; Young v. Godwin, 19 N. Y. Suppl. 656, 46 N. Y. St. 934.

15. Here Ind. Rev. Stat. (1876), p. 654.

16. Schofield v. Henderson, 67 Ind. 258. This obvious principle of justice would apply in any relation. Schley v. Dixon, 24 Ga. 273, 71 Am. Dec. 121.

17. Irvine v. McKeon, 23 Cal. 472, and that he was "present when the same did happen."

committed by their predecessors and before they themselves came into the office.[18]

g. Statutory Wrongs Committed by One Board and Continued by Its Successors. Subsequent directors and shareholders of a bank are not liable for the fraud of their predecessors in issuing bills for circulation, contrary to the prohibition of a statute before the amount of stock required by the charter has been paid up in specie, if they do not participate in it; but otherwise if they continue the fraud by reporting to the public authorities from time to time that the requisite amount has been paid.[19]

h. Statute Under Which Directors Liable For All Debts Without Reference to Date When Contracted. Statutes exist making directors guilty of certain defaults liable for all debts then existing, without reference to the dates when contracted.[20] It was so held under a statute providing that officers knowingly making a false certificate of the condition of the corporation should be "liable for all its debts," since this language could not be limited to debts occurring after the making of such certificate.[21]

i. When Debt Is Deemed to Have Been Contracted "After Such Violation." Under a statute declaring that "if any corporation organized and established under the authority of this act shall violate any of its provisions, and shall thereby become insolvent, the directors ordering or assenting to such violation shall be jointly and severally liable in an action founded on this statute for all debts contracted after such violation as aforesaid,"[22] it was held that where a series of acts or a continuous course of conduct on the part of the directors in violation of the statute, finally producing the insolvency of the corporation, is begun before the debt of a creditor is contracted, the debt is not contracted "after such violation," although the series of acts or course of conduct is not completed, or the insolvency of the corporation consummated until afterward.[23]

4. Statutory Liability For Debts Contracted Before Organization — a. Policy of Statutes Creating This Liability. It has been held that members of a company not fully organized as a corporation are not liable as partners for debts contracted by their directors.[24] To obviate the injury which might accrue to the public from such rules as this statutes exist in many of the states making the directors and shareholders liable as partners, for the debts contracted for the company prior to the time when the organization of the company is completed in the manner pointed out by the statute.[25] Outside of statutes and of principles already

18. Mabey v. Adams, 3 Bosw. (N. Y.) 346; Ogden v. Rollo, 13 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 300; Provident Steam Engine Co. v. Hubbard, 101 U. S. 188, 25 L. ed. 786 (debt contracted before the president of the corporation came into office, although it remained unpaid during the period when he neglected or refused to comply with the requirements of the statute).

19. Schley v. Dixon, 24 Ga. 273, 71 Am. Dec. 121.

20. Miller v. White, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 504, 8 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 46; Nimmons v. Hennion, 2 Sweeny (N. Y.) 663; Vincent v. Sands, 11 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 366, 371 [citing Shaler, etc., Quarry Co. v. Bliss, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 309, 12 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 470]. Statutes construed in these cases make the directors guilty of the default liable "for all debts then existing." Nimmons v. Hennion, 2 Sweeny (N. Y.) 663.

21. Felker v. Standard Yarn Co., 148 Mass. 226, 19 N. E. 220.

22. Minn. Laws (1873), c. 11, § 23; Minn. Gen. Stat. c. 34, § 42.

23. Patterson v. Stewart, 41 Minn. 84, 42 N. W. 926, 16 Am. St. Rep. 671, 4 L. R. A. 745.

Conclusiveness of the action of the creditor in fixing the date of the debt so as to estop him from averring that the debt was not due until a later date. Bond v. Clark, 6 Allen (Mass.) 361.

24. It is held in Massachusetts that members of a corporation, to whom a certificate of organization as a corporation has been issued by the secretary of the commonwealth, in accordance with the statute of 1870, c. 224, are not liable as partners before the whole of the capital has been paid in, in violation of section 32 of that statute. Salem First Nat. Bank v. Almy, 117 Mass. 476. Compare Haggerty v. Foster, 103 Mass. 17; Lancaster v. Choate, 5 Allen (Mass.) 530; Pierce v. Bryant, 5 Allen (Mass.) 91; Trowbridge v. Scudder, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 83; Fay v. Noble, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 188.

25. For examples of such statutes see Hipp v. Muehleisen, 88 Ill. App. 55; Ill. Rev. Stat. c. 32, § 18; Wis. Rev. Stat. (1878), § 1901.

considered[26] directors or other officers of inchoate corporations who assume to contract debts not the debts of the assumed corporation, before it has acquired its corporate character, become personally liable to pay those debts, on the ground of breach of warranty of agency,[27] although in doing so they may act in good faith.[28] But that this is compatible with the conclusion that a person who knows that he is dealing with a corporation before it has made publication of its articles of incorporation, stating the amount of indebtedness which it can contract, as required by law, cannot object that the publication was not completed, although begun within the time specified.[29]

b. These Statutes Mandatory. A statute of this kind provided that the capital stock of companies organized thereunder should be paid in within eighteen months from the incorporation, and that if any company violated the provisions of the act and thereafter became insolvent, its directors, ordering or assenting to such violation, should be jointly and severally liable for all debts contracted after such violation. This statute was held to be mandatory, and, in an action under it, it was no evidence that the collection of payments for the stock was devolved upon the treasurer.[30]

As these statutes involve the liability of the members or shareholders as well as that of the directors they will be found more fully treated supra, VIII, H, 1 et seq.

That a judgment against the corporation, execution, and return of nulla bona are necessary to charge a director under such a statute see Berwind-White Coal Min. Co. v. Ewart, 90 Hun (N. Y.) 60, 35 N. Y. Suppl. 573, 70 N. Y. St. 233.

Under the Illinois statute the members or shareholders of a corporation illegally formed are liable as partners for its acts or contracts; and directors, officers, and agents acting and contracting in its name render themselves personally liable independently of statute. Lovering v. McLaughlin, 161 Ill. 417, 44 N. E. 99 [affirming 46 Ill. App. 373].

Illustrations.— That a director cannot avoid his liability upon his note given for shares in the corporation on the ground that the capital was not actually paid in cash, and therefore that the corporation had never been legally organized, see Raegener v. McDougall, 33 N. Y. App. Div. 231, 53 N. Y. Suppl. 484 [citing Chubb v. Upton, 95 U. S. 665, 24 L. ed. 523]. A corporation may maintain an action against individuals who afterward became shareholders and directors of the corporation for fraudulent representations made to its directors after their first meeting and before the filing of their certificate of organization, which was acted upon after their organization. Scholfield Gear, etc., Co. v. Scholfield, 71 Conn. 1, 40 Atl. 1046. For a special finding of fact which shows a liability under a statute of this kind see Clark v. Kent, 80 Ill. App. 128 [affirmed in 181 Ill. 237, 54 N. E. 967]. The penalty imposed by such a statute has been visited upon contracting officers of a corporation whose certificate of incorporation had been issued by the secretary of state, but not filed for record with the recorder of deeds of the county, as required by another section of the statute. Edwards v. Armour Packing Co., 90 Ill. App. 333 [affirmed in 190 Ill. 467, 60 N. E. 807]. Where the governing statute makes the directors liable if they assume to exercise corporate powers before all the stock named in the articles of incorporation "shall be subscribed in good faith," they become so liable where the ostensible subscribers do not intend to pay for their shares, but intend merely to purchase shares for other persons who do not intend to pay for them. Clark v. Kent, 80 Ill. App. 128 [affirmed in 181 Ill. 237, 54 N. E. 967].

Not liable on contracts made before being empowered by by-laws.— The writer merely states under this head what he regards as a tenable decision (Hall v. Crandall, 29 Cal. 567, 89 Am. Dec. 64), under which, in connection with a previous decision (Hall v. Auburn Turnpike Co., 27 Cal. 255, 87 Am. Dec. 75), somebody got plaintiff's money and neither the corporation nor the directors were responsible.

26. See supra, IX, O, 1 et seq.

27. Herod v. Rodman, 16 Ind. 241.

28. Farmers' Co-operative Trust Co. v. Floyd, 47 Ohio St. 525, 26 N. E. 110, 21 Am. St. Rep. 846, 12 L. R. A. 346. So as to promoters. Hub Pub. Co. v. Richardson, 59 Hun (N. Y.) 626, 13 N. Y. Suppl. 665, 37 N. Y. St. 541. So where a corporation suspended for sixteen years was galvanized into life, ostensibly reorganized, and made a means of perpetrating a great swindle upon the public, the immunities of its charter afforded no protection to the conspirators. Bartholomew v. Bentley, 15 Ohio 659, 666, 45 Am. Dec. 596; Bartholomew v. Bentley, 1 Ohio St. 37 (in a case between the same parties). The principle laid down in Vose v. Grant, 15 Mass. 505, 515, per Jackson, J., that conspirators cannot claim the immunities of corporators.

29. Thornton v. Balcom, 85 Iowa 198, 52 N. W. 190. That the authority conferred by Tex. Rev. Stat. art. 585, to dispose of unsubscribed stock does not authorize the directors to commence to do business before the stock is all subscribed see Orynski v. Loustaunan, (Tex. 1890) 15 S. W. 674.

30. Clow v. Brown, 134 Ind. 287, 33 N. E. 1126.

c. Only Those Directors Liable Who Participated in Contracting of Debts. Here as in some other cases of the doing of wrongs authoritatively forbidden by statute the liability falls only upon those directors who participated in contracting the debts without previously complying with the law.[31] Consequently a director cannot be held liable under such a statute, where the indebtedness was contracted before he became director.[32]

d. Liable to Extent of Difference Between Amount of Capital Paid in and Amount Which Should Have Been Paid in. It has been held that persons who organize a corporation, and in the character of its directors enter upon the business for which it was created and contract debts before the statutory amount of capital has been paid in, become jointly and severally liable to creditors to the extent of the difference between the amount of capital actually paid in and the amount which the statute required to be paid in.[33]

e. Liable For Making Sham Payments of Stock Subscriptions. For the directors to deposit their notes in the place of specie in payment of the stock for which they had subscribed was not a compliance with such a statute, but was a fraud upon the public of the most reprehensible character, which made them liable for the corporate debts under the terms of the statute.[34]

5. Statutory Liability For Failing to File Certain Reports — a. General Description of These Statutes. In many of the states there exist statutes, and even constitutional ordinances, requiring the directors or trustees of corporations to make and file, in some designated public office, or to publish in some designated manner, at stated periods, reports of the condition of the company. If the directors fail to perform this duty, they are made liable to pay any debts of the company contracted during the period when they are thus in default. These statutes, which make an agent liable to pay the debts of his principal in consequence of a mere nonfeasance, fall within the class which are deemed penal and are to be strictly construed. Most of the questions which have arisen under them are of a general character, and are considered in the preceding subdivisions of this article. It is scarcely necessary to say that such a statute does not render directors liable to pay the debts of the corporation, unless the statute fixes this penalty upon the failure to do the required act.[35]

b. To What Class of Corporations Liability of Directors Attaches Under These Statutes. Whether a given corporation belongs to the class of corporations required to file such a report must of course be determined by a reference to its charter or governing statute.[36] Under the Kansas statute which uses the words, "each corporation for profit," are included all classes of corporations formed for pecuniary gain, including those which conduct a purely private business, such as manufacturing.[37]

c. To What Class of Directors Liability Attaches — (I) In General. Only the trustees who are guilty of the negligence are liable.[38] The liability does not extend to their successors in office.[39] It seems that a trustee whose term of office expired before the contracting of the debt will not be liable, unless plaintiff proves that he held over, and the fact of his holding over will not be presumed.[40]

31. Edwards v. Dettenmaier, 88 Ill. App. 366; Edwards v. Cleveland Dryer Co., 83 Ill. App. 643.

32. Hoyt v. Hasse, 80 Ill. App. 187.

33. Hequembourg v. Edwards, 155 Mo. 514, 56 S. W. 490 [reversing (Mo. 1899) 50 S. W. 908 (citing Burns v. Peck, etc., Co., 83 Ga. 471; Farmers' Co-operative Trust Co. v. Floyd, 47 Ohio St. 525, 26 N. E. 110, 21 Am. St. Rep. 846, 12 L. R. A. 346)].

34. Schley v. Dixon, 24 Ga. 273, 71 Am. Dec. 121.

35. Margarge, etc., Co. v. Ziegler, 9 Pa. Super. Ct. 438, 43 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 466; Chester Twist Drill, etc., Co. v. Wetherill, 7 Del. Co. (Pa.) 390; Bole v. West View Oil Co., 29 Pittsb. L. J. N. S. 98.

36. Cooke v. Pearce, 23 S. C. 239.

37. State v. Fenn, 60 Kan. 306, 56 Pac. 483.

38. Boughton v. Otis, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 196.

39. Shaler, etc., Quarry Co. v. Bliss, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 309, 12 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 470 [affirmed in 27 N. Y. 297].

40. Philadelphia, etc., Coal, etc., Co. v. Hotchkiss, 82 N. Y. 471. What corporations are within the provisions of this statute.

(II) De Facto Directors. The obligation to make and file this report and the consequent liability do not attach to a trustee by virtue of the mere fact that he has been elected as such; there must be evidence of an express or implied acceptance of the office.[41] But one who has assumed the character of trustee cannot escape the liability on the plea that he was not legally elected.[42]

d. Directors Liable For Debts Contracted During Period of Default and While Such Directors Were in Office. Unless such a statute in terms affixes to the failure to file the required report the penalty of paying antecedent debts of the corporation, its operation is to visit upon the delinquent directors the obligation of paying those debts of the corporation which were contracted under their administration and during the period of the default.[43] Where the statute charges the directors in case of a default to file an annual report with a joint and several liability for all the debts of the corporation "then existing,"[44] it follows that successive defaults by the same directors do not renew with respect to them the penalty already incurred; but that when a new director is elected a new default makes him jointly and severally liable with the old directors for the debts then existing.[45]

e. Liable For What Debts — (I) In General. It follows from the preceding that a director is not liable by reason of a default in failing to file the required report for a debt contracted after he ceased to be a director.[46] It has been held on the one hand that the bond of a corporation not due at the time of the default of the directors in filing the required report does not deprive it of the character of an "existing debt" within the meaning of the statute;[47] and on the other hand that a note indorsed by the corporation at a time when it was in default in the filing of its statutory report, but which did not fall due until after the next annual report of the corporation had been filed, would not charge the directors with personal liability, since the liability on the note did not become a debt with respect to the corporate indorser, until after the default by the maker and a notice thereof to the indorser.[48]

Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175.

That the publication in an obscure paper of limited circulation does not comply with the statute, but renders the trustees liable. Whitney v. Cammann, 60 N. Y. Super. Ct. 391, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 200, 45 N. Y. St. 570.

That the statute does not by implication prohibit a forfeiture of the charter see People v. Buffalo Stone, etc., Co., 131 N. Y. 140, 29 N. E. 947, 42 N. Y. St. 753, 15 L. R. A. 240.

That the words "each year" in the amending act of 1875, c. 110, take the place of the word "annually" in the original act of 1848, c. 40, section 12, and leave the statute of the same import see Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175.

41. Cameron v. Seaman, 69 N. Y. 396, 25 Am. Rep. 212.

42. Easterly v. Barber, 65 N. Y. 252.

43. M. I. Wilcox Cordage, etc., Co. v. Mosher, 114 Mich. 64, 72 N. W. 117; Gennert v. Ives, 102 Mich. 547, 61 N. W. 9 (construing the words "willfully neglect or refuse"); Gold v. Clyne, 134 N. Y. 262, 31 N. E. 980, 47 N. Y. St. 770, 17 L. R. A. 767; Kirkland v. Kille, 99 N. Y. 390, 2 N. E. 36; Bruce v. Platt, 80 N. Y. 379; Losee v. Bullard, 79 N. Y. 404; Huguenot Nat. Bank v. Studwell, 74 N. Y. 621; Jones v. Barlow, 62 N. Y. 202.

44. As for example N. Y. Laws (1892), c. 688, § 30.

45. Morgan v. Hedstrom, 164 N. Y. 224, 58 N. E. 26 [affirming 25 N. Y. App. Div. 547, 49 N. Y. Suppl. 1049].

N. Y. Laws (1892), c. 688, § 30, making the directors of a corporation failing to file an annual report liable for its debts, unless within a prescribed time after the time limited for filing such report they file a certificate of the refusal of the other directors to file the report, does not apply where before the time expires the corporation ceases to exist. Western Nat. Bank v. Faber, 29 Misc. (N. Y.) 467, 62 N. Y. Suppl. 82. For a case construing the same statute and charging a director with liability see Union Bank v. Keim, 52 N. Y. App. Div. 135, 64 N. Y. St. 1070.

A statute making any director who fails or refuses to make the required report liable for "all debts" of the corporation renders them liable for a debt of the corporation incurred after one default in failing to file such a report and before a second report. Saginaw Bank v. Pierson, 112 Mich. 410, 70 N. W. 901 [citing Felkner v. Standard Yarn Co., 148 Mass. 226, 19 N. E. 220].

46. Sinclair v. Fuller, 158 N. Y. 607, 53 N. E. 510 [affirming 9 N. Y. App. Div. 297, 41 N. Y. Suppl. 193, 75 N. Y. St. 641].

47. Lee v. Jacob, 38 N. Y. App. Div. 531, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 645 [explaining Jones v. Barlow, 62 N. Y. 202].

48. Western Nat. Bank v. Faber, 29 Misc. (N. Y.) 467, 62 N. Y. Suppl. 82.

(II) Debt Must Be Valid as Against Corporation. Under a principle already explained[49] the debt for which alone the director can be charged must be a valid debt as against the corporation itself. If the obligation was fraudulently imposed upon the corporation there is no personal liability;[50] and in general the directors may set up, in a proceeding against them to enforce this liability, any defense to which the original indebtedness was subject.[51] It was so held where the debt consisted of a note which had been so altered as to discharge the corporation.[52]

f. Time at Which Debt Is Deemed to Accrue — (I) In General. On the ground that these statutes are penal and hence to be strictly construed,[53] it has been held that the directors will not be charged if they were not in default at the time the note was given, although they were in default at the time the debt was first contracted.[54] Subsequent cases, however, hold that if the directors are in default at the time the debt was first contracted, their liability is fixed, and is not discharged by the taking of a note by the creditor of the corporation.[55] Neither is such liability affected by a renewing of the note,[56] or by the recovery of a judgment against the corporation.[57]

(II) Where Contract Is to Deliver or Receive Goods. Under a contract to furnish to a corporation materials to be delivered at stated times, to be paid for in the company's notes at ninety days, it seems that the debt would be deemed to arise from the time when the materials were delivered, and not from the time when the contract was made.[58] And where the contract was to deliver a certain number of articles, and its terms were such that the vendor could not demand payment until all were delivered, the fact that some of them may have been delivered during a period of default would not be sufficient to charge the trustees for the debt, if a report was made and filed in conformity with the statute before the delivery was complete. The court proceeded upon the ground that the statute being highly penal the directors ought not to be charged under it with liability for an uncertain and contingent debt.[59]

g. Debts Must Be Actually Due. Whatever will defeat the right of the corporation suing for the indebtedness will be available as a defense upon the part of the director. He is liable only where the debt of the corporation is actually due, and where the present right of action exists against it therefor.[60]

h. Effect of Dissolution of Corporation. Where a contract has been made to erect buildings for the corporation, and the work is not completed, and payment Liable for "existing debts" under New York Manufacturing Act.— This statute makes directors liable for all antecedent debts of the corporation which are due and payable at the time when the penalty for failing to file the statutory report attaches. It does not include a promissory note not due until after default. Nimmons v. Hennion, 2 Sweeny (N. Y.) 663.

49. See supra, IX, P, 2, d.

50. Adams v. Mills, 60 N. Y. 533.

51. Jones v. Barlow, 62 N. Y. 202.

52. Butte First Nat. Bank v. Weidenbeck, 87 Fed. 271.

53. See supra, IX, P, 1, b et seq.

54. Garrison v. Howe, 17 N. Y. 458.

55. Jones v. Barlow, 38 N. Y. Super. Ct. 142; Deming v. Puleston, 35 N. Y. Super. Ct. 309 [affirmed in 55 N. Y. 655].

56. Breitung v. Lindauer, 37 Mich. 217.

57. Vincent v. Sands, 33 N. Y. Super. Ct. 511, 11 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 366; McHarg v. Eastman, 7 Rob. (N. Y.) 137. These cases proceed upon the doctrine that the promissory note given for an antecedent debt is not the payment of an old debt, but merely an evidence of it or additional security. Freeland v. McCullough, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 414, 43 Am. Dec. 685.

Under the New York Manufacturing Act the fact that the company is closing up its affairs and has ceased to do business does not excuse the omission to file the report; nor does the fact that the creditor claiming the advantage of the statute is a shareholder, cognizant of the financial condition of the company. Sanborn v. Lefferts, 58 N. Y. 179. But it is otherwise where the creditor is himself a trustee of the corporation; he cannot enforce against his co-trustee a forfeiture for a wrong in which he himself has participated. Easterly v. Barber, 65 N. Y. 252.

58. Garrison v. Howe, 17 N. Y. 458.

59. Whitney Arms Co. v. Barlow, 63 N. Y. 62, 20 Am. Rep. 504, 68 N. Y. 34. Compare Cady v. Sanford, 53 Vt. 632.

60. Gold v. Clyne, 134 N. Y. 262, 31 N. E. 980, 47 N. Y. St. 770, 17 L. R. A. 767 [affirming 58 Hun (N. Y.) 419, 12 N. Y. Suppl. 531, 35 N. Y. St. 582]; Jones v. Barlow, 62 N. Y. 202.

therefor is not made until after a dissolution of the corporation, the debt is not within the statute.[61] The existence of a corporation is not terminated so as to relieve the directors of the duty of filing the annual report required by the governing statute, because the corporation has transferred a large part but not all of its property, provided it still exercises acts of absolute ownership over some of it.[62] A statute of New York, making directors failing to file a prescribed annual report liable for the debts of the corporation unless, within a stated time after the limitation for filing the report, they file a certificate of the fact that the other directors have refused to file the report, does not apply where, before the time for filing this certificate has expired, the corporation has ceased to exist.[63]

i. Report Filed in County or Counties Where Corporation Conducts Its Business. The provisions of the statutes of Michigan[64] requiring certain reports to be filed in the county or counties where the corporation may conduct its business is, when taken in connection with the rest of the statute, construed to mean that the report must be filed in each county in which the material business of the corporation is done.[65]

j. Effect of Giving Time to Corporation. Where the creditor at the request of the corporation gives a further time within which to pay the debt, this does not have the effect of discharging the directors, since they are conclusively deemed to assent thereto.[66]

k. Effect of Corporation Being Adjudged a Bankrupt. The fact that after the personal liability of the directors, by reason of their failure to file the required report has occurred, the corporation has been adjudged a bankrupt, and that notes accepted by a majority of its creditors in discharge of its indebtedness have not fallen due, does not prevent the creditors from maintaining an action to enforce the personal liability of the trustees, since this liability is created by statute, and is a cause of action entirely independent of a cause of action against the corporation.[67]

l. What Will and What Will Not Excuse Filing of Such Report. The construction of the New York Manufacturing Act is that the making and publishing of the report does not comply with the statute, but that it must also be filed as therein provided; that the trustees must make and verify the report within the time prescribed by the statute, twenty days after the close of the year, and that having done this they may file and publish it as soon thereafter as may be consistent with reasonable diligence and good faith, without incurring the penalty of 61. Gold v. Clyne, 134 N. Y. 262, 31 N. E. 980, 47 N. Y. St. 770, 17 L. R. A. 767 [affirming 58 Hun (N. Y.) 419, 12 N. Y. Suppl. 531, 35 N. Y. St. 582].

62. Witherow v. Slayback, 158 N. Y. 649, 53 N. E. 681, 70 Am. St. Rep. 507 [reversing 11 Misc. (N. Y.) 526, 32 N. Y. Suppl. 746, 64 N. Y. St. 456].

63. Pittsburgh Reduction Co. v. De Leon, 29 Misc. (N. Y.) 130, 60 N. Y. Suppl. 262.

64. Mich. Comp. Laws, c. 63, §§ 5, 18, 19.

65. Van Etten v. Eaton, 19 Mich. 187.

Meaning of the expression "within twenty days from the first day of January," in the New York Manufacturing Act.—It means that it must publish the required report in the January succeeding its organization, although a year has not elapsed. Union Iron Co. v. Pierce, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14,367, 4 Biss. 327. Contra, Cameron v. Seaman, 69 N. Y. 396, 25 Am. Rep. 212. Compare Cincinnati Cooperage Co. v. O'Keefe, 120 N. Y. 603, 24 N. E. 993, 31 N. Y. St. 912; Knox v. Baldwin, 80 N. Y. 610; Victory Web Printing, etc., Co. v. Beecher, 26 Hun (N. Y.) 48. It is not enough that the report be made out and ready to file within twenty days from the first of January; it must be actually filed within that time. When it was made out and got ready to be filed is immaterial, so that it contains a truthful statement of the facts required by the statute as of that date. Butler v. Smalley, 101 N. Y. 71, 4 N. E. 104. The directors are not exonerated by filing a report on the twenty-eighth day of the preceding December, the statute requiring it to be filed within twenty days from the first day of January. Cincinnati Cooperage Co. v. O'Keefe, 44 Hun (N. Y.) 64.

66. Jones v. Barlow, 62 N. Y. 202. The case resembles the rule that the giving of time to the principal debtor does not discharge the surety who assents thereto. Wright v. Storrs, 32 N. Y. 691.

67. Wood, etc., Co. v. English, 55 N. Y. App. Div. 549, 67 N. Y. Suppl. 371 [reversing 31 Misc. (N. Y.) 557, 65 N. Y. Suppl. 521].

the statute.[68] The fact that a company is closing up its affairs and has ceased to do business does not exonerate the trustees from liability for failing to file such a report;[69] but a total abandonment of the enterprise, either before[70] or after[71] the corporate organization was effected, may be shown in defense. The filing of such a report is excused where, before the time for filing it arrives, the object fails for which the corporation was organized, and there is no intention to prosecute its business;[72] as where it is adjudged a bankrupt and its entire property has passed into the hands of an assignee in bankruptcy;[73] or where, prior to the date at which the report should be filed, an application for a receiver has been made, followed by the appointment of a receiver subsequently to such date;[74] or where the trustees pass a resolution that the corporation shall cease to transact business, and thereupon resign their offices to take effect at the end of their term, and do not act afterward.[75] But in the view of another court it is not excused, although the corporation has become insolvent and has entirely abandoned its business, and all its property has been turned over to one of its trustees in satisfaction of an indebtedness, and none of its officers or trustees have exercised any corporate act or function for the period of two months, and there is no intention to resume the business of the corporation.[76] The omission thus to file the report is not excused by intrusting the duty to another who fails to perform it.[77] On the other hand the making and filing of a report as required by such a statute, after the life of the corporation has expired by limitation, will not raise any presumption of law that statutory proceedings have been taken to extend its period of existence.[78] In short the construction of the New York statute is that a technical dissolution is not necessary to absolve the trustees from the duty of making, publishing, and filing such a report, but that a de facto dissolution or total abandonment will be sufficient.[79] It is no ground for excusing the directors of a corporation

68. Whitney v. Cammann, 137 N. Y. 342, 33 N. E. 305, 50 N. Y. St. 664; Butler v. Smalley, 101 N. Y. 71, 4 N. E. 104; Cameron v. Seaman, 69 N. Y. 396, 25 Am. Rep. 212.

69. Sanborn v. Lefferts, 58 N. Y. 179, 16 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 42; Brown v. Clark, 81 Hun (N. Y.) 267, 30 N. Y. Suppl. 801, 62 N. Y. St. 764.

70. De Witt v. Hastings, 69 N. Y. 518.

71. Losee v. Bullard, 79 N. Y. 404; Witherow v. Slayback, 11 Misc. (N. Y.) 526, 32 N. Y. Suppl. 746, 64 N. Y. St. 456.

72. Kirkland v. Kille, 99 N. Y. 390, 2 N. E. 36; Carraher v. Mulligan, 4 Silv. Supreme (N. Y.) 550, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 42, 28 N. Y. St. 439.

73. Bruce v. Platt, 80 N. Y. 379.

74. Jersey City First Nat. Bank v. Lamon, 130 N. Y. 366, 29 N. E. 321, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 444, 41 N. Y. St. 684 [reversing 55 Hun (N. Y.) 414, 29 N. Y. St. 181].

75. Van Amburgh v. Baker, 81 N. Y. 46.

76. Gans v. Switzer, 9 Mont. 408, 24 Pac. 18.

77. Gans v. Switzer, 9 Mont. 408, 24 Pac. 18.

Whether it is excused by the existence of an injunction see Whitney v. Cammann, 137 N. Y. 342, 33 N. E. 305, 50 N. Y. St. 664 [affirming 60 N. Y. Super. Ct. 391, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 200, 45 N. Y. St. 570].

78. Gold v. Clyne, 134 N. Y. 262, 31 N. E. 980, 47 N. Y. St. 770, 17 L. R. A. 767.

79. Losee v. Bullard, 79 N. Y. 404.

Subsequent bankruptcy of trustee.— The fact that after the term of his office had expired and before the debt in favor of plaintiff was contracted by the corporation the trustee filed his petition in bankruptcy, including in his list of assets his shares of stock in the corporation, and was adjudged a bankrupt, and assigned and delivered his shares to the assignee and received his discharge, and that after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy he had no connection with the corporation, has been held a good defense to an action to charge him under the New York statute. Philadelphia, etc., Coal, etc., Co. v. Hotchkiss, 82 N. Y. 471.

Circumstances under which directors liable. —Where a judgment was recovered on a four months' draft of the corporation, dated Nov. 3, 1877, and the corporation failed to file the report required by the statute in the following January, it was held that the judgment creditor could maintain an action to enforce the liability of the president. South Norwalk First Nat. Bank v. Fenton, 23 Hun (N. Y.) 309. Where money was loaned to the corporation in 1873, for the recovery of which a cause of action accrued in 1874, in consequence of the failure of the directors to file the statutory report in that year, and there was another default in 1875, and the action was commenced under the statute in March, 1877, it was held not a good objection that the cause of action accrued in 1874, when made for the first time after the trial had taken place. Duckworth v. Roach, 81 N. Y. 49. For a failure of the report of trustees of a manufacturing corporation to comply with both N. Y. Laws (1848), c. 40, from filing a statutory report, that its accounts have not been kept in such a way as to enable them to give a detailed statement of receipts and disbursements, as required by the blank form furnished by the secretary of state;[80] that the auditor of the state who prescribed the form of such reports failed to notify the corporation of it, or to mail to it a copy of the prescribed form;[81] or that the directors are liable to creditors of the corporation under another statute, for causing its insolvency by violations of the law relating thereto.[82]

m. Defenses Against This Liability — (i) In General. Defendant in such a proceeding is entitled to prove that the enterprise of the contemplated company was abandoned before its formation; that no papers were filed; that he surrendered his stock, and notified the acting president that he would have nothing to do with it; and that in fact he had no further connection with it.[83] On the trial of such an action the defense that the omission to file the report was in consequence of the advice of plaintiff, given on the ground that the filing of the report would hurt the credit of the corporation, which was at the time largely indebted, should be submitted to the jury.[84] But where the indebtedness with which the director was sought to be charged for failing to file the statutory annual report consisted of bonds of the corporation, it was no defense that he was in default in failing to comply with the statute at the time when he sold the bonds to plaintiff.[85]

(ii) Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations runs in favor of the trustees from the time of each particular failure to file the statutory report, and a subsequent failure, or any successive number of subsequent failures, does not operate to extend the time within which suit must be brought against them.[86] Where the indebtedness of the corporation with respect to which it is sought to charge the directors for failing to file the statutory annual report is evidenced by bonds of the corporation, the statute of limitations does not begin to run until the bonds mature; and under the statute of New York the creditor is in time if his action is brought within three years from that date.[87]

n. Construction of Other Such Statutes — (i) California Statute Requiring Posting of Itemized Accounts and Balance-Sheets. The California statute[88] requiring the posting of itemized accounts and balance-sheets is construed as referring to two separate papers, either of which may be posted. The detailed statement mentioned in the statute is construed as applying only to the itemized account; so that the apparent purpose of the statute may be conveniently evaded by filing a balance-sheet merely, and a "balance-sheet," according to the commercial understanding of the term, posted by the directors of a mining corporation, and N. Y. Laws (1853), c. 333, the trustees become liable for all the debts of the company, as provided by section 12 of said chapter 40. Philadelphia, etc., Coal, etc., Co. v. Hotchkiss, 82 N. Y. 471; Blake v. Wheeler, 18 Hun (N. Y.) 466. What corporations are within the provisions of this statute. Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175. That the publication in an obscure paper of limited circulation does not comply with the statute but renders the trustees liable see Whitney v. Cammann, 60 N. Y. Super. Ct. 391, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 200. That the statute does not by implication prohibit a forfeiture of the charter see People v. Buffalo Stone, etc., Co., 131 N. Y. 140, 29 N. E. 947, 42 N. Y. St. 753, 15 L. R. A. 240. That the words "each year" in the amending act of 1875, c. 110, take the place of the word "annually" in the original act of 1848, c. 40, § 12, and leave the statute of the same import, see Allen v. Clark, 21 N. Y. Suppl. 338, 49 N. Y. St. 175.

80. State v. Fenn, 60 Kan. 306, 56 Pac. 483.

81. Louisville, etc., Ferry Co. v. Com., 104 Ky. 726, 47 S. W. 877, 20 Ky. L. Rep. 927.

82. Clow v. Brown, 150 Ind. 185, 48 N. E. 1034 [rehearing denied in 49 N. E. 1057].

83. De Witt v. Hastings, 69 N. Y. 518.

84. Carraher v. Mulligan, 4 Silv. Supreme (N. Y.) 550, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 42, 28 N. Y. St. 439.

85. Morgan v. Hedstrom, 164 N. Y. 224, 58 N. E. 26 [affirming 25 N. Y. App. Div. 547, 49 N. Y. Suppl. 1049].

86. Losee v. Bullard, 79 N. Y. 404 [distinguishing Boughton v. Otis, 21 N. Y. 261]; Cornell v. Roach, 9 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 275. See also Merchants' Bank v. Bliss, 35 N. Y. 412.

87. Morgan v. Hedstrom, 164 N. Y. 224, 58 N. E. 26 [affirming 25 N. Y. App. Div. 547, 49 N. Y. Suppl. 1049].

88. Cal. Acts (1880), p. 134.

is sufficient, although it does not contain all the particulars mentioned in the first section.[89] In an action under this statute it must be alleged that money had in fact been received and liabilities incurred. An allegation that the directors pretended to have received large sums of money and incurred large liabilities is not sufficient.[90] The directors are liable for the wilful failure of the superintendent to make the reports therein required, but not for his negligence in failing to make them.[91] The statute does not render the directors liable for each failure to post the verified balance-sheet therein required.[92] Where it appeared in evidence, in an action under the statute, that a director and shareholder, when elected superintendent, served as such, although declaring that he would not, and managed the business of taking out ores and working them, it was held that a finding that the corporation worked its mines was justified.[93] The mere fact that the directors have not the information sufficient to enable them to post the itemized account or balance-sheet required by the statute is no defense to such an action, unless they make it appear that they could not obtain the necessary information.[94] Where a right of action accrues to a shareholder by reason of the failure of the directors to post the itemized account at the time required by the statute, it is not avoided by posting it at a subsequent time, although before an action is actually commenced.[95] It is no defense to an action to recover the penalty prescribed by this statute that plaintiff had knowledge or the means of knowledge of the condition of the accounts of the corporation.[96] A wilful and intentional purpose to violate the statute is not a necessary predicate of the right to recover the penalty, at least where no attempt is made to comply with its requirements.[97]

(II) Colorado Statute Prescribing County in Which Report Is to Be Filed. The annual report of the directors of a corporation, required by the Colorado statute to be filed in the county where its principal business is carried on, must be filed in the county stated in the certificate of incorporation as the principal place of business, and not in that in which the business is actually transacted. The liability denounced by this statute cannot be avoided by a statement in the certificate of incorporation that the principal business is to be carried on in another state or in any part of Colorado, where it also states that the principal business office is in a certain county.[98]

(III) Kentucky Statute Against "Wilfully Failing or Refusing to Make Reports," Etc. A statute of Kentucky provides that "any corporation or officer thereof wilfully failing or refusing to make reports as required by its charter shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor."[99] Ignorance of the law is no defense in this case to a prosecution thereunder any more than in any other case. It is not necessary that the officers of the corporation should know of the existence of the statute, in order to make them liable for failing to comply with its provisions.[1] There was not a "wilful" failure to comply with the statute, where the corporation gave to its attorney, in good faith and in ample time, the data necessary for

89. Eyre v. Harmon, 92 Cal. 580, 28 Pac. 779.

90. Hewlett v. Epstein, 63 Cal. 184.

91. Eyre v. Harmon, 92 Cal. 580, 28 Pac. 779.

92. Loveland v. Garner, 71 Cal. 541, 12 Pac. 616.

93. Beal v. Osborne, 72 Cal. 305, 13 Pac. 871.

94. Schenck v. Bandmann, 81 Cal. 231, 22 Pac. 654.

95. Schenck v. Bandmann, 81 Cal. 231, 22 Pac. 654.

What not excuse.— A director of a corporation organized for mining purposes is not relieved from the making and posting of an itemized balance-sheet imposed by the California act of March 30, 1874, upon directors of all corporations formed for that purpose, by the fact that it has not engaged in mining. Francais v. Somps, 92 Cal. 503, 28 Pac. 592.

96. Ball v. Tolman, 119 Cal. 358, 51 Pac. 546.

97. Ball v. Tolman, 119 Cal. 358, 51 Pac. 546.

98. Tabor v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 62 Fed. 383, 10 C. C. A. 429.

99. Ky. Stat. (1899), § 4087.

1. Louisville, etc., Ferry Co. v. Com., 104 Ky. 726, 47 S. W. 877, 20 Ky. L. Rep. 927.

the making of the report, and the auditor of the state, although not authorized by statute so to do, granted the attorney an extension of time.[2]

(IV) MASSACHUSETTS STATUTE. Construing the Massachusetts statute[3] requiring certain annual reports, it has been held that if the certificate named in the statute is made and deposited in any month during one year, the officers will be liable for any debts contracted after the corresponding month of the year next ensuing, if they do not within that time make and deposit a regular certificate, and that they will continue to be so liable for debts contracted until the proper certificate is made and deposited by the directors; but that they will not be liable for any debt contracted during or until after the expiration of the whole of the next corresponding month.[4] Under such statutes a liability attaches to de facto directors as well as those who are such de jure,[5] in conformity with a rule already stated.[6] The acting officers of a corporation will not be allowed to avail themselves of any informalities which have taken place at the meeting at which they were chosen, in order to escape the liability imposed by such statute.[7]

(V) MICHIGAN STATUTE— WILFUL AND INTENTIONAL NEGLECT TO FILE ANNUAL REPORT. Under a statute of Michigan making the directors of corporations who wilfully and intentionally neglect to file annual reports of their affairs personally liable for their debts, the neglect to file such reports is presumed to be wilful and intentional.[8]

(VI) MONTANA TERRITORIAL STATUTE. This statute was not repealed by the provision of the constitution of Montana declaring that no company or corporation formed under the laws of any other state or territory shall have any greater rights or privileges than those possessed by corporations created under the laws of the state.[9]

(VII) NEW YORK STATUTE REQUIRING WRITTEN NOTICE WITHIN THREE YEARS. The Stock Corporation Law of this state was amended in the year 1899,[10] by providing that no director of a corporation shall be liable to a creditor of the corporation, "because of failure to make and file an annual report, whether heretofore or hereafter accruing," unless written notice is served on him within three years. This statute does not apply to actions to enforce such liability of directors which were commenced before its passage.[11]

o. Sufficiency of Report — (I) IN POINT OF FORM — (A) Signed by Majority of Board. Under a statute requiring the prescribed annual report to be signed by a majority of the trustees, or by a majority of the directors, unless it is so signed it is a nullity, and the filing of it does not operate to release the directors from their statutory liability.[12] The annual report demanded by this statute must be signed by the trustees in point of fact; and signing the names of the trustees by the secretary and a verification by him will not be sufficient.[13] But it is sufficient if it be signed by the majority of a de facto board of directors; so that, although the board has been irregularly reduced from twelve to nine, yet a report signed by six of the nine will be sufficient.[14] So where the number of the

2. Suburban Electric Co. v. Com., 55 S. W. 684, 21 Ky. L. Rep. 1556. See also State v. Moore, 69 N. H. 99, 35 Atl. 584.
3. Mass. Stat. (1851), c. 133, § 9.
4. Bond v. Clark, 6 Allen (Mass.) 361.
5. Newcomb v. Reed, 12 Allen (Mass.) 362.
6. See supra, IX, P, 1, o.
7. Thayer v. New England Lithographic Steam Printing Co., 108 Mass. 523.
8. M. I. Wilcox Cordage, etc., Co. v. Mosher, 114 Mich. 64, 72 N. W. 117.
9. Butte First Nat. Bank v. Weidenbeck, 87 Fed. 271 [criticizing Criswell v. Montana Cent. R. Co., 18 Mont. 167, 14 Pac. 525, 33 L. R. A. 554].
10. N. Y. Laws (1889), c. 354.
11. Shepard v. Fulton, 55 N. Y. App. Div. 329, 66 N. Y. Suppl. 861; Gundlach-Bundschu Wine Co. v. Fritz, 49 N. Y. App. Div. 647, 63 N. Y. Suppl. 198; Loeb v. Bien, 49 N. Y. App. Div. 638, 63 N. Y. Suppl. 202; St. George Vineyard Co. v. Fritz, 48 N. Y. App. Div. 233, 62 N. Y. Suppl. 775.
12. Leonard v. Faber, 52 N. Y. App. Div. 495, 65 N. Y. Suppl. 391; Westerfield v. Radde, 12 Daly (N. Y.) 450, 67 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 204.
13. Bolen v. Crosby, 49 N. Y. 183.
14. Wallace v. Walsh, 125 N. Y. 26, 25 N. E. 1076, 34 N. Y. St. 426, 11 L. R. A. 166 [affirming 52 Hun (N. Y.) 328, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 351, 23 N. Y. St. 641].

directors has been reduced by the changing in the by-laws and signing by a majority of directors, this reduced number will be sufficient, although the bill has not been filed in the proper offices.[15]

(B) Verification of Report. Under a statute requiring the annual report to be "verified by the oath of the president or vice-president and treasurer or secretary," a verification by the president alone is insufficient, but the statute demands a verification by the oath of either the president or vice-president, together with that of either the treasurer or the secretary;[16] in which case the directors are liable precisely as though no report had been filed.[17] A sworn statement of the president of the corporation that the report is "true to the best of his knowledge and belief" is a sufficient verification so far as he is concerned.[18]

(II) In Point of Substance — (A) Need Not State How Much Capital Paid in Cash, and How Much in Property. It was at one time supposed that the clause of the statute requiring the report to state "the amount actually paid in" of the capital required it to state how much was paid in in cash and how much in property.[19] But proceeding on the ground that the statute being penal, is to be strictly construed,[20] the court of appeals of that state, two judges dissenting, held that no liability attaches for failing so to state in such a report.[21] A statement in an annual report that the "capital stock had been paid up in full" is sufficient to comply with this requirement.[22]

(B) When Report Too Indefinite. Under a statute requiring stock corporations to make annual reports, stating the amount of their assets, or the amount which their assets at least equal, an annual report of such a corporation stating that its assets did not exceed a certain amount was held too indefinite to protect its directors from a personal liability for its debts.[23]

(C) What Language Sufficient to Show That Report Is Intended to Be Made as of First Day of Preceding January. Where the report purported to state the amount of the capital stock; the proportion actually paid in; the amount, and in general terms the nature of its existing assets and debts, and of its receipts and expenditures during the year ending the preceding thirty-first of December, and

15. International Bank v. Faber, 86 Fed. 443, 30 C. C. A. 178.

Where the statute required that the report should be signed "by the president and a majority of the trustees," and a bare majority of the trustees signed, and one of them was president, this satisfied the statutory requirements. Brand v. Godwin, 15 Daly (N. Y.) 456, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 339, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 743, 29 N. Y. St. 143.

16. Manhattan Co. v. Kaldenberg, 27 N. Y. App. Div. 31, 50 N. Y. Suppl. 265 [reversed in 165 N. Y. 1, 58 N. E. 790].

17. Metropolis Bank v. Faber, 38 N. Y. App. Div. 159, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 542.

18. Glens Falls Paper Co. v. White, 18 Hun (N. Y.) 214.

Verification not rendered insufficient by the failure to sign the verification of one of the duplicate reports filed as required by the statute in the office of the secretary of state, and in the office of the county clerk of the county where the principal business of the corporation was situated (Manhattan Co. v. Kaldenberg, 27 N. Y. App. Div. 31, 50 N. Y. Suppl. 265 [reversed in 165 N. Y. 1, 58 N. E. 790]); because the verification was signed by the president, where he took the oath and a magistrate certified to that fact (International Bank v. Faber, 86 Fed. 443, 30 C. C. A. 178); or because not verified by the separate oath of the treasurer or secretary, in addition to that of the president, where the secretary had resigned and no successor had been elected, and four months had elapsed since his resignation without acceptance thereof; since such resignation was effective although not accepted (International Bank v. Faber, 86 Fed. 443, 30 C. C. A. 178).

19. Accordingly the following statement was held to be defective: "Amount of capital stock, of which all but five shares were issued for the purchase of property necessary for the business of the association, and such five shares have been paid in full, $15,000." Glens Falls Paper Co. v. White, 18 Hun (N. Y.) 214.

20. See supra, IX, P, 1, b et seq.

21. Bonnell v. Griswold, 80 N. Y. 128, Folger and Earl, JJ., dissenting [reaffirmed in Whitaker v. Masterton, 106 N. Y. 277, 12 N. E. 604, 8 N. Y. St. 888].

22. Bonnell v. Griswold, 80 N. Y. 128.

That an omission of the names of the owners of stock in the company will not render the officers personally liable see Walton v. Goodwin, 58 Hun (N. Y.) 87, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 391, 33 N. Y. St. 886.

23. Lilienthal v. Yuengling, 33 Misc. (N. Y.) 619, 68 N. Y. Suppl. 897 [affirmed in 61 N. Y. App. Div. 601, 70 N. Y. Suppl. 920].

stated that no dividends had been declared during "said year," and that the names of its then shareholders were "as follows," it was held that it sufficiently showed that it was a report as of the first of January as required by the governing statute.[24]

p. Filing False Report Not Equivalent to Filing No Report. Where a proceeding is instituted under a statute making directors liable for failure to file a stated report, the allegations of plaintiff are not made good by proving that they filed a report which was false, since this must be dealt with under another branch of the statute.[25]

6. Statutory Liability For Making False Reports — a. General Description of Statutes Imposing This Liability. The statutes which have been considered in the subdivision immediately preceding, enjoining upon the directors and officers of corporations the making of certain reports, would afford little security to the public, if they were not followed up by statutes imposing a personal liability upon them in case such reports are false. Such statutes exist in most of the states, and we are now to deal briefly with them. They are threefold: (1) Those imposing a criminal liability as for perjury; (2) those making the guilty directors jointly and severally liable for the debts of the corporation; (3) those making them liable in damages to any person injured. To the last-named class may be added statutes making them liable for damages caused by the publication of false reports, prospectuses, etc., voluntarily put forth.[26]

b. Nature and Design of These Statutes. These statutes were obviously designed to further the remedy of creditors of corporations by giving them a direct action against directors for false reports and statements put forth with the design of deceiving and entrapping any member of the public whom they might catch, where some of the courts had denied a remedy on the ground of want of privity.[27] They obviously do not merge the remedy which the creditor may have against shareholders, saving of course the liability to pay the same debt twice, once as a director, and again as a shareholder.[28]

c. Whether Swearing to False Report Is Perjury. Swearing to a report of this kind knowing it to be false is not perjury at common law, because the oath is not taken in a judicial proceeding,[29] although it would be a criminal offense under statutes which exist in some states making it a misdemeanor to make a voluntary 24. American Grocery Co. v. Pratt, 36 N. Y. App. Div. 152, 55 N. Y. Suppl. 467. Similarly see Western Nat. Bank v. Faber, 29 Misc. (N. Y.) 467, 62 N. Y. Suppl. 82. Compare Cheever v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 150 N. Y. 59, 44 N. E. 701, 55 Am. St. Rep. 646, 34 L. R. A. 69; Hanover Nat. Bank v. American Dock, etc., Co., 148 N. Y. 612, 43 N. E. 72, 51 Am. St. Rep. 721; Wilson v. Metropolitan El. R. Co., 120 N. Y. 145, 24 N. E. 384, 30 N. Y. St. 787, 17 Am. St. Rep. 625.

25. Matthews v. Patterson, 16 Colo. 215, 26 Pac. 812; Heuer v. Carmichael, 82 Iowa 288, 47 N. W. 1034; Marshall v. Harris, 55 Iowa 182, 7 N. W. 509; Eisfeld v. Kenworth, 50 Iowa 389; Davenport First Nat. Bank v. Davies, 43 Iowa 424.

26. Specific references to the statutes are not given, for the reason that they are continually changing through legislative amendments and repeals.

27. As in the case of Fogg v. Pew, 10 Gray (Mass.) 409, 71 Am. Dec. 662. That there is no liability for filing a false certificate of the amount of capital stock paid in where the object of the statute was not to afford information to the public see Hunnewell v. Duxbury, 154 Mass. 286, 28 N. E. 267, 13 L. R. A. 733.

Statutes construed.— Effect of the Pennsylvania act of April 29, 1874, in repealing the penal provisions of the act of July 18, 1863, making directors liable for false reports. Barber v. Standard Sewer Pipe Co., 5 Pa. Co. Ct. 293. That the personal liability imposed on officers or directors of stock corporations for making false reports by N. Y. Stock Corporation Law, § 31, extends to reports which moneyed corporations are required to make by N. Y. Banking Law, § 30, see Hoff v. Hefford, 49 N. Y. Suppl. 172.

28. In the view of the court of appeals of Maryland, a judgment obtained, under the New York statute (N. Y. Laws (1875), c. 611, § 21), against a director for signing a false report, merges whatever right of action the creditor may have against the same person as a shareholder. Attrill v. Huntington, 70 Md. 191, 16 Atl. 651, 14 Am. St. Rep. 344, 2 L. R. A. 779. But two judges (Stone and McSherry, JJ.) dissented, and the case was reversed on a federal question in Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. ed. 1123. See also supra, IX, P, 1, d.

29. Bishop New Crim. L. § 1015.

and corrupt oath.[30] It might also fall within the statutory definition of perjury found in the criminal codes of some of the states, but even here the oath must have been taken with some degree of deliberation in order to support a conviction.[31]

d. Judgments Founded on Such Statutes Enforceable in Other States. Without reference to the question whether an action can be supported on such a statute outside the state of its creation, yet after such an action has been brought within the state whose statute law imposes the penalty, and prosecuted to judgment in such a state, a refusal of a judicial court of another state to allow a recovery on such judgment is a refusal to give full faith and credit to the judicial proceedings of another state, as required by the constitution of the United States.[32]

e. Right of Action Dies With Creditor of Corporation. One court has taken the view that such a statute is penal in such a sense that the right of action given by it does not survive to the personal representative of the creditor of the corporation.[33]

f. Directors Filing False Report Cannot Be Proceeded Against For Failing to File Any Report. Upon the ground that such statutes, being penal, must be strictly pursued, it is held that the filing of a report which is false cannot be treated by the creditor as the failure to file the report prescribed by law so as to enable him to proceed against the directors under that part of the statute which makes them liable for failing to file a report of a stated kind, thus mixing and confusing the two statutes.[34]

g. Only Those Liable Who Sign False Report. Only those directors are liable under such statutes who sign the false report.[35]

h. Whether Report Must Have Been Wilfully False. Proceeding upon the ground that statutes of this kind are penal, and hence to be strictly construed, it has been frequently held that in order to charge directors under them the report must have been knowingly and wilfully false,[36] which fact must be alleged,[37] and, where the proceeding is at law, proved to the satisfaction of a jury.[38] While this conclusion is imperative under the language of some statutes, as where the statute uses the words "knowing it to be false,"[39] yet, where the language of the statute does not require such an interpretation it is easier and more just to regard it as having been enacted for the security of the public, and to treat it as imposing upon directors the duty of knowing the truth or falsity of the report which they put forth and to charge them with the consequences of their negligent ignorance if the report is false.[40]

i. What Reports Have Been Held False Within Meaning of Such Statutes. Within the meaning of such statutes a report has been held false so as to make the directors putting it forth personally liable where the certificate set forth

30. See State v. Boland, 12 Mo. App. 74.

31. Com. v. Dunham, Thach. Crim. Cas. (Mass.) 519.

32. Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. ed. 1123 [reversing 70 Md. 191, 16 Atl. 651, 14 Am. St. Rep. 344, 2 L. R. A. 779].

33. Boyle v. Thurber, 50 Hun (N. Y.) 259, 2 N. Y. Suppl. 789, 19 N. Y. St. 881.

34. Matthews v. Patterson, 16 Colo. 215, 26 Pac. 812. See supra, IX, P, 5, p.

35. Pier v. George, 86 N. Y. 613; Pier v. Hanmore, 86 N. Y. 95.

36. Felker v. Standard Yarn Co., 148 Mass. 226, 19 N. E. 220, 150 Mass. 264, 22 N. E. 896; Stebbins v. Edmands, 12 Gray (Mass.) 203; Bonnell v. Griswold, 89 N. Y. 122; Pier v. George, 86 N. Y. 613; Pier v. Hanmore, 86 N. Y. 95.

37. Matthews v. Patterson, 16 Colo. 215, 26 Pac. 812. For a complaint under the Indiana statute see American Credit-Indemnity Co. v. Ellis, 156 Ind. 212, 59 N. E. 679.

38. Pier v. George, 86 N. Y. 613; Pier v. Hanmore, 86 N. Y. 95; Brockway v. Ireland, 61 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 372.

39. Stebbins v. Edmands, 12 Gray (Mass.) 203. So under the present statute. Felker v. Standard Yarn Co., 148 Mass. 226, 19 N. E. 220, 150 Mass. 264, 22 N. E. 896.

40. Huntington v. Attrill, 118 N. Y. 365, 29 N. Y. St. 5, 23 N. E. 544 [affirming 42 Hun (N. Y.) 459]; Torbett v. Eaton, 49 Hun (N. Y.) 209, 1 N. Y. Suppl. 614, 17 N. Y. St. 117; Brand v. Godwin, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 807, 24 N. Y. St. 305 [affirmed in 15 Daly (N. Y.) 456, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 339, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 743, 29 N. Y. St. 143, no de-that the capital stock had been paid in cash, whereas it had been paid in property of an uncertain value;[41] where it stated that the capital stock of two million dollars had been paid up in full, when the fact was that all the shares had been issued to one person in payment for certain mining property of a speculative value, the actual value of which did not exceed seventy thousand dollars;[42] and where the certificate contained the names of two persons as shareholders and stated the amount of their stock as capital paid in, when in fact they were not shareholders at all.[43]

j. What Reports Have Been Held Not False Within Meaning of Such Statutes. The cases cited in the margin will disclose conditions of fact where such reports passed judicial scrutiny.[44]

k. Effect of Creditors Assenting to Assignment For Creditors. The fact that creditors of a corporation assent to the making by it of an assignment of its assets for the benefit of its creditors does not of course take away their right to proceed against its officers under such a statute for uttering a false report, where they expressly reserve all rights to the maintenance of their claims against the officers.[45]

l. Questions of Procedure Under These Statutes. Each false report for each successive year gives rise to a separate cause of action.[46] Under the Massachusetts statute[47] the liability is to creditors as a class, and not to any particular creditor who may chose to sue.[48] Some of the statutes provide for the simultaneous prosecution of actions against the offending officers and against the company.[49] One of them adds a provision for a discovery, with the qualification that the answer is not to be admissible against the person "charged with any of the said misdefense that he signed it under the advice of counsel, believing it to be true]; Chittenden v. Thannhauser, 47 Fed. 410.

41. Waters v. Quimby, 27 N. J. L. 196.

42. Blake v. Griswold, 103 N. Y. 429, 9 N. E. 434. Similarly see Huntington v. Attrill, 42 Hun (N. Y.) 459 [affirmed in 118 N. Y. 365, 23 N. E. 544, 29 N. Y. St. 5].

43. Brand v. Godwin, 15 Daly (N. Y.) 456, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 339, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 743, 29 N. Y. St. 143.

44. Waters v. Quimby, 27 N. J. L. 296; Whitney Arms Co. v. Barlow, 63 N. Y. 62, 20 Am. Rep. 504 (although the language was admitted to be ambiguous and susceptible of a meaning that a portion of the company's capital had been paid in cash). To a similar effect in a case where the complaint was framed with a count under the statute for failing to file a report, and also with a count under the statute for filing a false report, see Whitaker v. Masterton, 106 N. Y. 277, 12 N. E. 604, 8 N. Y. St. 888.

That a slight discrepancy as to the amount of capital stock paid in and an erroneous statement that a certain person was a shareholder will not render the officers personally liable see Walton v. Godwin, 58 Hun (N. Y.) 87, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 391, 33 N. Y. St. 886.

That the published certificate, although false, was voluntary and not such as was required by the statute — defense overruled. Waters v. Quimby, 27 N. J. L. 296.

Statements of such a report.— Under Iowa statute, not proper to state outstanding accounts without deducting approximate amount for probable losses. Hubbard v. Weare, 79 Iowa 678, 44 N. W. 915. Sufficient under New York statute of 1848 if report states the amount of capital, and that it has been all paid in and then gives the amount of existing debts, without stating how much of the capital has been paid in cash and how much in property. Whitaker v. Masterton, 106 N. Y. 277, 12 N. E. 604, 8 N. Y. St. 888 [overruling Pier v. George, 20 Hun (N. Y.) 210].

The New York statute of 1875 does not make directors liable for antecedent debts by reason of publishing a false report. Torbett v. Godwin, 62 Hun (N. Y.) 407, 17 N. Y. Suppl. 46, 42 N. Y. St. 323, 27 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 444.

The statute of Massachusetts, using the words "liable for its debts," does make them liable for antecedent debts. Felker v. Standard Yarn Co., 148 Mass. 226, 19 N. E. 220.

That a director is an "officer" within the meaning of such a statute see Brand v. Godwin, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 807, 24 N. Y. St. 305. Compare Torbett v. Eaton, 49 Hun (N. Y.) 209, 1 N. Y. Suppl. 614, 17 N. Y. St. 117.

No defense that the director putting forth the false report is also a creditor of the corporation. Richards v. Crocker, 9 N. Y. St. 531, 19 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 73.

45. Hudson v. J. B. Parker Mach. Co., 173 Mass. 242, 53 N. E. 867 [distinguishing Marr v. Washburn, etc., Mfg. Co., 167 Mass. 35, 44 N. E. 1062].

46. Anderson v. Speers, 58 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 68, under the New York statute of 1848.

47. Mass. Pub. Stat. c. 106, § 60.

48. George Woods Co. v. Storer, 144 Mass. 399, 11 N. E. 662.

49. R. I. Gen. Stat. (1872), p. 306, § 19; S. C. Rev. Stat. (1873), p. 362, § 35.

meanors." [50] Where the rule of the jurisdiction makes it necessary to allege that defendant knew the report to be false,[51] it is not necessary to plead the evidence from which such knowledge is to be inferred.[52]

7. STATUTORY LIABILITY FOR DEBTS CONTRACTED IN EXCESS OF PRESCRIBED LIMIT — a. Description of These Statutes. Among the devices adoped by legislation to secure to the shareholders an exemption from liability to pay the debts of their corporations, and at the same time to protect the public dealing with such companies, is that of prohibiting the directors from contracting debts in behalf of the corporation beyond a stated limit, and making them personally liable for any such excess of indebtedness, and in some cases punishing the offense of making such excessive loans as a misdemeanor. These statutes exhibit such a variety of detail, especially as to the limit of indebtedness which they impose, that it would not be practicable to attempt to set them out in an article of this kind.[53]

b. Debts in Excess of Certain Proportion of Capital Stock. A statute making shareholders individually liable for debts of the corporation contracted in excess of a prescribed proportion of the capital stock is held to mean not the stock subscribed for when the articles were filed but of potential or authorized stock.[54]

c. Statutes Limiting Amount of Loan Made to Any One Person. Under a provision of the National Currency Act,[55] the directors of national banks who make or assent to the making of a loan to any one person, of a sum exceeding one tenth of the capital stock of the bank, become personally and individually liable for all losses sustained thereby.[56]

d. Loans Made to Directors Themselves. Loans made by a corporation to its own directors are of course to be counted in determining whether the limit prescribed by the statute has been reached prior to the making of the particular loan with which it is sought to charge the directors.[57] Considering section 5200 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, it has been held that the section does not apply as against a director where the excessive loan was made to him, since he stands thereby to the corporation in the relation of a simple contract debtor.[58] On the other hand the director violating the statute by receiving the prohibited loan cannot, if he is otherwise a creditor of the corporation, have the remedy against the directors provided for by the statute, because that would give him a remedy for his own wrong.[59]

e. Individual Liability Imposed Upon What Directors. The statutes under

50. Brightly Purd. Dig. Pa. (1873), p. 349, § 176.

51. Matthews v. Patterson, 16 Colo. 215, 26 Pac. 812. See supra, IX, P, 6, h.

52. Taylor v. Thompson, 66 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 102.

Report of commissioners appointed to take subscriptions to the stock competent evidence upon the question whether a certain per cent in cash had been paid in. Hatch v. Attrill, 118 N. Y. 383, 23 N. E. 549, 29 N. Y. St. 14.

Judgment recovered by plaintiff against the corporation not admissible in evidence against directors to establish debt. Torbett v. Godwin, 62 Hun (N. Y.) 407, 17 N. Y. Suppl. 46, 42 N. Y. St. 323; Watson v. Goodwin, 17 N. Y. Suppl. 51, 42 N. Y. St. 329 [following Miller v. White, 50 N. Y. 137].

53. They have been described and compared with each other with considerable detail in 3 Thompson Corp. §§ 4259–4261.

54. Sweney v. Talcott, 85 Iowa 103, 52 N. W. 106. A statute (Ky. Gen. Stat. c. 56, § 9), which provides that any person who has sustained injury from the fraudulent failure to comply with articles of incorporation may recover damages therefor, makes directors liable for debts which they have permitted the corporation to contract in excess of the limit prescribed by the articles. Gunther v. Baskett Coal Co., 107 Ky. 44, 52 S. W. 931, 21 Ky. L. Rep. 655.

55. U. S. Rev. Stat. § 5200.

56. Witters v. Sowles, 31 Fed. 1, 24 Blatchf. 332.

57. Thacher v. King, 156 Mass. 490, 31 N. E. 648; Bole v. West View Oil Co., 29 Pittsb. Leg. J. N. S. 98.

58. Witters v. Sowles, 31 Fed. 1, 24 Blatchf. 332.

59. Thacher v. King, 156 Mass. 490, 31 N. E. 648. See also supra, IX, P, 2, e.

For the construction of the statute of New Hampshire, providing that no shareholders who consented to the creation of a corporate debt in excess of the statutory limit "shall recover against any stockholder who did not . . . consent thereto," see Connecticut River Sav. Bank v. Fiske, 62 N. H. 178.

this head are numerous and variant. Many of them are set out and thrown into comparison in a recent work.[60]

f. Extent of Liability Imposed by These Statutes. In this respect the statutes present an equal variety of detail.[61] Judicial decisions construing them present wide differences of opinion, from a holding on the one hand that the liability prescribed by the statute attaches to any debt of the corporation in case it shall appear upon investigation that at any time there has been an excess of indebtedness beyond the limit fixed by the statute;[62] and on the other hand construing the same statute that the personal liability thereby created should be limited to debts due to creditors to whom the excessive indebtedness is owing.[63] It is, by the terms of most of the statutes themselves, and by their manifest policy, limited to the amount of the excess of the debts over the prescribed limit.[64] Where the statute made the directors liable "for the excess," beyond the prescribed limit of indebtedness, their liability was held to be in the nature of guarantors of final payment, in other words, a liability to pay any excess of indebtedness remaining after the exhaustion of corporate assets.[65] Manifestly the debts referred to in such a statute do not mean an indebtedness for capital stock.[66]

g. Only Those Directors Who Assent to Unlawful Loan Are Liable. By the express terms of many of the statutes and by their obvious policy determined by judicial construction, only those directors are liable who assent to the making of the prohibited loan; and many of the statutes contain provisions for exonerating those who dissent.[67] In one case alone, so far as the writer knows, has this statutory liability been held to attach to the directors without reference to their assent or dissent.[68] If the statute imposes the liability on "the directors assenting thereto," obviously the creditor must allege and prove that the defendant did assent thereto. And if the statute exempts from liability those directors who were not present when the unlawful indebtedness was contracted, it is necessary, in order to charge any particular director, to show affirmatively that he was present when this was done.[69] A simulated compliance with the mode prescribed by the statute for the exoneration of a dissenting director will not exonerate him where his course of conduct is unsustained with any other conclusion than that of his assenting, as where the director recorded a notice in the proper public office that the indebtedness of the company exceeded its capital stock by a stated amount, yet continued to act as director and to coöperate in the carrying on and expanding the business of the corporation until the amount so stated had been greatly expanded.[70]

h. To Whom Directors Liable — (1) To Creditors — (A) In General. Most of the statutes in terms make the directors liable to creditors, meaning it must be assumed to a creditor in favor of whom such excessive indebtedness was contracted.[71]

(B) Whether Liable to Creditors as Class. Where the statute provides a remedy in equity then, according to the principles of that forum, the liability is

60. 3 Thompson Corp. § 4263.

61. See 3 Thompson Corp. § 4264.

62. Tallmadge v. Fishkill Iron Co., 4 Barb. (N. Y.) 382.

63. Patterson v. Robinson, 37 Hun (N. Y.) 341.

64. Sturges v. Burton, 8 Ohio St. 215, 72 Am. Dec. 582.

65. Allison v. Coal Creek, etc., Coal Co., 87 Tenn. 60, 9 S. W. 226.

That the liability of a shareholder for such an excess of indebtedness was not secondary and collateral to that of the directors so as to require their liability to be first exhausted see McDougald v. Lane, 18 Ga. 444.

That directors cannot evade personal liability under such a statute by applying corporate assets to the payment of the unlawful indebtedness see Margarge, etc., Co. v. Ziegler, 9 Pa. Super. Ct. 438, 43 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 466.

66. Moore v. Lent, 81 Cal. 502, 22 Pac. 875.

67. 3 Thompson Corp. § 4266.

Construing section 24 of the New York Stock Corporation Law see Auburn Nat. Bank v. Dillingham, 86 Hun (N. Y.) 100, 34 N. Y. Suppl. 267, 68 N. Y. St. 147.

68. Banks v. Darden, 18 Ga. 318.

69. Irvine v. McKeon, 23 Cal. 472.

70. Cornwall v. Eastham, 2 Bush (Ky.) 561.

71. See 3 Thompson Corp. § 4265, where many of these statutes are cited.

to the creditors as a class, they sharing ratably in whatever is obtained from the directors doing or participating in the unlawful indebtedness.[72]

(II) To Corporation Itself. Some of the statutes make the creditors assenting to such excessive debts liable also to the corporation.[73] Where, however, the liability is to the corporation itself, and the action to enforce it is brought against the directors by the corporation or its legal representative, the directors are entitled to a reduction for advances made by them to the company, as well against the demand of creditors after dissolution, as they would have against the demand of the corporation before dissolution.[74] Thus action may be brought by a single creditor on behalf of himself and such other creditors as may join therein, as in other cases of creditors' bills.[75]

(III) To Other Shareholders. This liability extends to the benefit of other shareholders, if in their character of creditors they would have the right to invoke the statute against the directors provided they were not shareholders, since there is nothing in the fact of their being shareholders which of itself creates an estoppel against them.[76] Circumstances may, however, exist which on the theory of acquiescence or estoppel will prevent shareholders from maintaining the remedy against the directors, as where they became shareholders after the contracting of the unlawful indebtedness.[77]

i. No Recovery Except Upon Case Strictly Within Statute. A bill in equity to enforce a liability of this kind must clearly show that the excess of debts over and above the amount of the capital stock actually paid in — such was the measure of indebtedness created by the statute — happened under the administration of defendant, such being the language of the statute.[78] So it was held that plaintiff could recover only by showing that at the time when the debt was contracted it was "over and above the solvent stock of the company," such being the language of the statute.[79]

j. Whether Such Statutes Enforceable in Other States. Such statutes are not enforceable outside the state enacting them,[80] unless the rule is to be regarded as changed by a modern decision of the supreme court of the United States.[81]

k. Whether Corporation Also Liable For Such Excessive Debts. The judicial conception that the contracting of such debts being ultra vires the corporation cannot be held bound to pay them is seldom acted upon at the present day.[82] The reason is that the power to contract them is within the general scope of the powers of the directors, and that the creditor can never know when the limit of their power has been exceeded, but must take, and is entitled to take where everything seems fair and honest, their representations on the subject. Besides the 72. This construction was put upon the provision of the New York Manufacturing Act (N. Y. Laws (1848), c. 40, § 23), the conclusion being that such an action could be brought only by all the creditors jointly, or by one in behalf of himself and all the others, and that each creditor can recover only such a proportion of the excess of the debts over the amount of the capital stock as his debt bears to the whole amount of the debts of the company. Anderson v. Speers, 21 Hun (N. Y.) 568, 59 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 421.

73. S. C. Rev. Stat. (1873), p. 339, § 9.

74. Tallmadge v. Fishkill Iron Co., 4 Barb. (N. Y.) 382.

75. Whitney v. Pugh, 58 N. Y. App. Div. 316, 68 N. Y. Suppl. 992.

76. Anderson v. Blattau, 43 Mo. 42 [overruling in effect Kritzer v. Woodson, 19 Mo. 327].

77. Walker v. Birchard, 82 Iowa 388, 48 N. W. 71.

Contribution.— That the director guilty of the misprision and personally charged with liability therefor has no right of action against the shareholders for contribution see Connecticut River Sav. Bank v. Fiske, 62 N. H. 178.

78. Merchants' Bank v. Stevenson, 5 Allen (Mass.) 398.

79. Aimen v. Hardin, 60 Ind. 119. And for other illustrations see Irvine v. McKeon, 23 Cal. 472; Robinson v. Attrill, 66 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 121.

80. Rutland Nat. Bank v. Paige, 53 Vt. 452.

81. Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. ed. 1123 [reversing 70 Md. 191, 16 Atl. 651, 14 Am. St. Rep. 344, 2 L. R. A. 779]. Compare supra, IX, P, 1, d.

82. See, however, Workingmen's Banking Co. v. Rautenberg, 103 Ill. 460, 42 Am. Rep. 26; Weber v. Spokane Nat. Bank, 50 Fed. 735.

contract is fully executed on his part by parting to the corporation with his money, his property, or his labor. These circumstances on principles of reason and justice estop the corporation from defending against its liability to pay the debt by setting up the doctrine of ultra vires.[83] Many of the statutes place this beyond doubt by enacting that the provision for charging the directors shall not exonerate the corporation.[84] Some of the courts have recently taken the view that unless the statute declares the contract void in express terms, it is to be construed, not as prohibiting the corporation from making it as between it and the creditor, but as making it a breach of trust on the part of the directors as between them and the corporation, and as giving the corporation or the creditors an additional remedy against the directors for any loss sustained by reason of it.[85]

l. No Defense That Corporation Did Not Get Benefit. Where the creditor is innocent it will be no defense that the corporation did not get the benefit, it being a case where one dealing with a trustee is not bound to concern himself with the manner in which the trustee makes the application of the trust fund in his hands.[86]

m. What Contracts Do Not Create "Debts" Within Meaning of Such Statutes. A mortgage given by a bank to secure a depositor in the repayment of his deposits does not violate a statutory prohibition against increasing the indebtedness of the bank without the consent of the shareholders so as to make the directors personally liable.[87]

n. Liability Both For Excessive Debts and For Deficits Occasioned by Insolvency. Statutes have been enacted[88] which render directors liable for all excess of debts beyond a prescribed limit, without regard to the solvency of the corporation; and for all deficits in case of insolvency, without regard to the excess of debts incurred.[89]

o. Effect of Renewals, Substitutions, and Applications of Part Payments. The giving of new notes for old ones is not an increase of indebtedness in such a sense as to render the directors liable, under such a statute, in an action based on the new notes, although the original indebtedness represented by them was in excess of the statutory limit.[90] In short the meaning of all these statutes is, whether they say so in direct terms or not, that the excess of corporate indebtedness which will render the directors personally liable must have existed at one time,[91] and that time must either have been the time of the creation of the particular debt upon which it is sought to charge the directors or else that debt must have been created when the statutory limit was full.[92]

p. Remedies to Enforce These Statutes — (1) Provisions of Some Statutes. Some of the statutes prescribe an action of contract;[93] others an action of debt;[94] and it should be observed that this is the proper action at common law to recover the penalty given by such a statute.[95] Statutes enacted in states practising under 83. See infra, XVII, F, 2, b, (1) et seq. Compare the reasoning in Underhill v. Santa Barbara Land, etc., Co., 93 Cal. 300, 28 Pac. 1049.

84. See 3 Thompson Corp. § 4267, where several such statutes are referred to.

85. Smith v. Ferries, etc., R. Co., (Cal. 1897) 51 Pac. 710; Underhill v. Santa Barbara Land, etc., Co., 93 Cal. 300, 28 Pac. 1049; Woolverton v. Taylor, 132 Ill. 197, 23 N. E. 1007, 22 Am. St. Rep. 521.

86. White v. How, 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,549, 3 McLean 291.

87. Ahl v. Rhoads, 84 Pa. St. 319. And so of the execution of non-negotiable notes and mortgages, these not being an increase of the "bonded indebtedness" so as to make the contract void. Underhill v. Santa Barbara Land, etc., Co., 93 Cal. 300, 28 Pac. 1049.

88. Such as Mich. Act, March 15, 1837, § 25.

89. White v. How, 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,548, 3 McLean 111.

90. Rutland Nat. Bank v. Paige, 53 Vt. 452.

Agreement the effect of which was to pay new paper of the corporation, and hence not to be an increase of indebtedness. Patterson v. Robinson, 116 N. Y. 193, 22 N. E. 372, 26 N. Y. St. 685.

91. Kritzer v. Woodson, 19 Mo. 327.

92. Seneca County Bank v. Neass, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 329.

93. Mass. Gen. Stat. p. 203, § 27.

94. Brightly Purd. Dig. Pa. (1873), p. 1080, § 25.

95. Sturges v. Burton, 8 Ohio St. 215, 72 Am. Dec. 582.

a code, where there is but one form of civil action, merely provide that the liability may be enforced by an action.[96] One of them makes the offending directors liable to arrest and imprisonment in execution of the judgment in like manner as defendants in trespass.[97] Many of these statutes, and notably those just cited, provide for survival of the cause of action, by stating that the action may be prosecuted against executors and administrators.

(II) Remedies of Single Creditor. Where a single creditor is permitted to sue, he cannot recover the entire excess in solido, but at most can recover only the amount of his debt or demand;[98] and under some theories he can recover only his proportion of it.[99]

(III) Right of Action Not Altered by Corporate Dissolution. Under modern conceptions the right of action by or on behalf of the creditor to enforce the liability created by such a statute is not determined by a dissolution of the corporation.[1]

q. Defenses to Such Actions. It is therefore no defense to such an action that a proceeding has been commenced to dissolve the corporation;[2] that a receiver of its assets has been appointed,[3] although this might not be the rule where, under the statute, the right to enforce the liability is in the corporation or passes to its receiver; or that another action is pending against defendants as shareholders, since their liability as directors stands on a totally different footing.[4]

r. Operation of Statute of Limitations. It seems that the principle which determines what period of limitation is to apply is that these statutes are not penal but remedial, and that consequently the short period prescribed for penal actions does not attach.[5]

8. Statutory Liability For Certain Prohibited Loans. A class of statutes has been enacted prohibiting the lending of the money of corporations to their own directors, officers, and shareholders; prohibiting various other descriptions of loans; and making the directors and officers who authorize or participate in the making of such loans jointly and severally liable therefor.[6] Subject always to the consideration that the construction of any statute is determined by its very language, it may be said that the policy of these statutes requires them to be construed so as to make the directors or other officers of a corporation who consent to the making of the prohibited loan of the funds of the corporation liable to the corporation, and to its creditors in case of a failure of repayment. Therefore if the statute fixes the amount which may be loaned to directors and officers of a corporation it will be no defense to an action brought to charge the directors with violating the statute to say that they neglected to keep themselves informed of the amount of the loans made to such directors and officers.[7]

96. Md. Rev. Code (1878), p. 376, art. 7.

97. 2 N. Y. Rev. Stats. (Banks & Bros. (6th ed.) 1876), p. 545, § 77.

98. Moultrie v. Smiley, 16 Ga. 289.

99. Anderson v. Speers, 21 Hun (N. Y.) 568, 59 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 421.

1. Moultrie v. Smiley, 16 Ga. 289; Stephens v. Overstolz, 43 Fed. 771 (under the National Banking Act).

2. Stephens v. Overstolz, 43 Fed. 771.

3. White v. How, 29 Fed. Cas. No. 17,549, 3 McLean 291.

4. Barre First Nat. Bank v. Hingham Mfg. Co., 127 Mass. 563.

5. Woolverton v. Taylor, 132 Ill. 197, 23 N. E. 1007, 22 Am. St. Rep. 521 [reversing 30 Ill. App. 70], holding that where, after having contracted an amount of indebtedness in excess of the limit prescribed by the statute, the directors contract a further indebtedness and execute promissory notes of the corporation therefor, the statute of limitations, in an action to charge them in respect of this further indebtedness under the statute, begins to run, not from the date of the execution, but from the date of the maturity of the notes.

6. A brief description of these statutes will be found in 3 Thompson Corp. § 4285.

7. Bank Com'rs v. Buffalo Bank, 6 Paige (N. Y.) 497. It has been held that to create a liability under such a statute there must have been "a loan of money" both in fact and in law; that is, an actual loan of money in such a form as to create an indebtedness and a liability for repayment. Billings v. Trask, 30 Hun (N. Y.) 314. There is an obviously unsound decision to the effect that where the charter of a bank provides that no director shall be indebted to the bank above a certain amount, a note given to the bank by one of its directors for an indebtedness in

9. Statutory Liability For Declaring Unlawful Dividends — a. Introductory. There is no form of statutory liability more commonly imposed upon directors of corporations in all the states of the Union than that which makes them personally liable for declaring and paying dividends, when there is no surplus to divide. Such a distribution of the assets of a corporation is in the nature of a fraud upon its creditors, and is remediable in equity on the same principle on which those courts aid judgment creditors in setting aside fraudulent conveyances.[8] It has been suggested that a director is liable at common law to the corporation or to a receiver of its assets for wilfully coöperating with other directors in declaring and paying dividends when there are no surplus profits to divide.[9] But where there are profits which may lawfully be divided, whether a dividend shall be declared or not rests in general in the sound discretion of the directors,[10] subject to judicial supervision in the case of abuse.[11]

b. General Description of These Statutes. The general nature of these statutes is that they prohibit the declaration and payment of dividends out of the capital stock, or where there is no surplus to divide, and make the directors assenting thereto jointly and severally liable in their individual capacities for all debts thereafter contracted so long as they continue in office. They also contain provisions for exonerating dissenting directors similar to those which have been already noticed in another connection.[12] Without special reference to the language of statutes, the conclusion is that any liability for improperly declaring and paying a dividend attaches only to those directors who participated in or assented to the wrong.[13]

c. Nature of Liabilty Under These Statutes. Obviously the directors of a corporation will not be liable under such a statute for declaring and paying dividends, because of a mere error of judgment as to whether dividends could properly be made, unless such error of judgment was the result of negligence so gross and flagrant as in the eye of the law to be equivalent to actual fraud.[14] On the other hand it is immaterial what form the transaction takes. If in point of fact it amounts to a distribution of the assets of the company among its shareholders while the company itself is insolvent, it will render the directors liable under such a statute.[15] Some of the statutes impose an individual liability upon the directors for declaring a dividend when the corporation is insolvent.[16] Where an action is excess of that amount is void in such a sense that a guaranty thereof, although made by one not a director, is not enforceable. Workingmen's Banking Co. v. Rautenberg, 103 Ill. 460, 42 Am. Rep. 26.

8. Thompson Stockh. § 19; St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566. See also supra, VII, B, 1, c, (I).

9. Van Dyck v. McQuade, 45 N. Y. Super. Ct. 620, 57 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 62 [reversed on other grounds in 86 N. Y. 38].

10. Ely v. Sprague, Clarke (N. Y.) 351.

11. See supra, VII, B, 1, b, (I) et seq.

There is a note on the subject of the improper declaration of dividends in 19 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 219.

12. Many of these statutes are referred to and the statutes themselves cited in 3 Thompson Corp. §§ 4290, 4292, and notes.

13. When therefore, after the resignation of a director, his name appears as that of a director in a report issued to the shareholders, but he took no part in drawing up the report or in recommending the dividends then proposed to be paid, he will not, even if he was aware of his name being on the report, be liable in respect of the statements in the report or the recommendation of the dividend. In re Wales Nat. Bank, [1899] 2 Ch. 629, 68 L. J. Ch. 634, 81 L. T. Rep. N. S. 363, 48 Wkly. Rep. 99, where it is said that in England there is no law which prohibits a limited company, even a limited banking company, from paying dividends, unless its paid-up capital is kept intact. Consequently, where directors declare dividends out of the excess of the receipts over the outgoings in each year, without making provision for losses in previous years, although such a mode of procedure may ultimately exhaust the paid-up capital, and may be an improper mode of conducting business, the dividends cannot be said to have been paid out of capital, and the directors cannot be held liable on that ground.

14. Consult on this principle Gaffney v. Colvill, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 567; Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 11, 10 Am. Rep. 684; Charitable Corp. v. Sutton, 2 Atk. 400, 9 Mod. 349, 26 Eng. Reprint 642.

15. See for illustration the following somewhat complicated case: Rorke v. Thomas, 56 N. Y. 559.

16. Va. Code (1873), c. 57, § 33.

brought to charge the directors under such a statute, the question whether the corporation was insolvent at the date of the dividend is a question of fact, and of course plaintiff must establish it by sufficient proof.[17] A statute repealing an individual liability predicated upon the declaration of an unlawful dividend is of general application to all existing corporations in its relation to debts thereafter created.[18] In declaring upon such a statute it is not necessary to allege that defendants knowingly paid the dividends, since it is their duty to know, and ignorance is no defense.[19] Directors proceeded against under such a statute may show in defense that certain notes of third persons held by the corporation which, had they been properly classed as losses, would have left the corporation without surplus to divide on the day when the dividend was made, were thereafter paid in full, so that no actual loss was sustained by the payment of the dividend.[20]

d. What Is Not Declaration of Unlawful Dividend Under Such Statutes. The following cases have been held not to amount to the declaration of unlawful dividends within the meaning of such statutes: The ineffectual attempt of one corporation to consolidate with another to form a new corporation and to distribute the stock of the new corporation among the shareholders of both of the precedent corporations in a fixed proportion;[21] the transfer in good faith of all the assets of one corporation to another, for which the purchasing corporation issues to the shareholders of the selling corporation certificates of the shares of the purchasing corporation in lieu of the shares held by such shareholders in the selling corporation;[22] a dividend less than the whole amount of interest or profits earned, without any deduction therefrom for expenses, although the earnings have not been actually received, there being no evidence of fraud or bad faith;[23] the application of undivided profits to the retirement of stock of the corporation, in other words the use of the funds of the corporation in purchasing its own shares.[24]

e. Liable to Corporation. Many of the statutes make the directors and officers declaring and paying the prohibited dividends liable to the corporation itself.[25] On general principles of equity, and without the aid of any statute, a corporation may recover money paid to a director of the company for dividends illegally declared; and a judgment creditor of such company, whose execution has been returned nulla bona, may subject to the satisfaction of his demand the money so paid, when the company is insolvent; and he need not bring the other creditors and shareholders of the company before the court.[26]

f. Liable to Receiver. Where the statute creates a liability in favor of the corporation — and possibly where it does not — a right of action against the directors for declaring and paying a dividend which is within the prohibition of a statute of this kind accrues to a receiver appointed after dissolution of the corporation to wind up its affairs.[27]

g. Form of Remedy. The remedies given by these statutes are various, embracing the action of debt, action on the case, scire facias on the judgment

17. Slaymaker v. Jaffray, 82 Va. 346, 4 S. E. 606.

18. Slaymaker v. Jaffray, 82 Va. 346, 4 S. E. 606. That the declaration of a dividend when the corporation has no profits to divide and is embarrassed does not create a debt in favor of each of the shareholders upon which recovery may be had see Lexington L., etc., Ins. Co. v. Page, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 412, 66 Am. Dec. 165; Slayden v. H. J. Seip Coal Co., 25 Mo. App. 439. See also supra, I, K, 3, b.

19. Gaffney v. Colvill, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 567. See also supra, IX, M, 8.

20. Dykman v. Keeney, 160 N. Y. 677, 54 N. E. 1090 [affirming 16 N. Y. App. Div. 131, 45 N. Y. Suppl. 137; former appeal, 10 N. Y. App. Div. 610, 42 N. Y. Suppl. 488].

21. Topeka Paper Co. v. Oklahoma Pub. Co., 7 Okla. 220, 54 Pac. 455.

22. Skinker v. Taylor, 11 Mo. App. 592.

23. Van Dyck v. McQuade, 86 N. Y. 38, Folger and Earl, JJ., dissenting [reversing 45 N. Y. Suppl. 137; former appeal, 10 N. Y. 62].

24. Moon Bros. Carriage Co. v. Waxahachie Grain, etc., Co., 13 Tex. Civ. App. 103, 35 S. W. 337 [affirmed in 89 Tex. 511, 35 S. W. 1047].

25. 3 Thompson Corp. § 4292.

26. Gratz v. Redd, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 178.

27. Van Dyck v. McQuade, 45 N. Y. Super. Ct. 620, 57 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 62 [reversed in 86 N. Y. 38].

against the corporation, and bill in equity.[28] Under Delaware statutes such a liability is not for a "debt" such as can be sued for at law, but in the event of the insolvency of the corporation it can be enforced only by a suit in equity.[29]

h. Creditor Must Have Actionable Demand Against Corporation. A creditor seeking to enforce such a liability against the corporation must of course have an actionable demand against the corporation.[30]

i. Directors Not Chargeable Except Upon Strict Proof. When it is remembered that the courts regard statutes which impose this species of liability as penal statutes, it may easily be concluded that directors will not be personally charged under such a statute for declaring a prohibited dividend except upon strict proof.[31]

j. Liable to Creditor Who Is Shareholder and Who Has Received Unlawful Dividend. Under such a statute, giving an action for such a wrong of the director to a shareholder as well as to a creditor, the shareholder is not estopped to maintain the action against the director by reason of his having received the dividend, since he may have received it innocently.[32]

k. Liability When Not Enforceable Until Dissolution of Corporation. Under the Oklahoma statute this species of liability cannot be enforced against the directors until the life of the corporation has expired by its statutory limitation or until it has been dissolved by the judgment of a court.[33]

10. Miscellaneous Liabilities and Penalties Imposed Upon Directors by Statute — a. Acting as Agent of Foreign Insurance Company Which Has Not Complied With Domestic Law. Numerous statutes imposing such a liability have been enacted;[34] but as their terms fall more properly under the object of insurance they will not be treated here further than to say that they have the substantial effect of making the officers or agents of various insurance companies writing policies within the domestic state before such companies have complied with the domestic law guarantors of the solvency of the company and personally responsible in case of a loss.[35]

b. Trustees to Wind Up Liable For Negligence of Corporation. Where the governing statute law provides that the dissolution of a corporation shall not impair any remedy for any liability incurred previous thereto, and also provides that in case of a dissolution the directors shall become the trustees to wind up its affairs and shall be the trustees of its creditors, an action will lie against such trustees after dissolution for injuries caused by the negligence of the corporation prior to dissolution.[36]

c. Directors Liable For Issuing Stock as Gratuity. Under a statute providing that if any corporation of a given description violates any provisions of the act, and shall thereby become insolvent, the directors assenting to or ordering such violation shall be liable for all debts contracted after such violation, the directors are personally liable to creditors of the corporation for issuing a large amount of stock as a mere gratuity to contractors employed to construct the plant of the corporation and who in pursuance of an agreement to that effect transfer some of the stock so issued to them to the directors.[37]

d. Liability For Unfaithfulness. A statute providing that officers of a corporation are liable for the corporate debts when guilty of "unfaithfulness" is so

28. See 3 Thompson Corp. § 4293.
29. John A. Roeblings Sons Co. v. Mode, 1 Pennew. (Del.) 515, 43 Atl. 480.
30. Hill v. Frazier, 22 Pa. St. 320.
31. Slaymaker v. Jaffray, 82 Va. 346, 4 S. E. 606.
32. Gaffney v. Colvill, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 567.
33. Topeka Paper Co. v. Oklahoma Pub. Co., 7 Okla. 220, 54 Pac. 455.
34. See 3 Thompson Corp. § 4298 and citations.
35. Morton v. Hart, 88 Tenn. 427, 12 S. W. 1026.
Outside of statutes the agent makes himself personally liable on the theory of a breach of warranty of agency. Lasher v. Stimson, 145 Pa. St. 30, 23 Atl. 552.
36. Marstaller v. Mills, 143 N. Y. 398, 38 N. E. 370, 62 N. Y. St. 443, construing N. Y. Laws (1892), c. 691, § 5.
37. Clow v. Brown, 150 Ind. 185, 48 N. E. 1034 [rehearing denied in 49 N. E. 1057].

construed as to make the directors personally liable for any violation or neglect of official duty.[38]

e. Doing Business For Corporation Without License. Where a corporation has under its charter the power to invest its surplus funds in stocks, funded debts, etc., and to sell and transfer the same at pleasure, its directors are not liable to indictment under a statute for engaging the corporation in the business of buying and selling for its own account such securities, where it does not thus engage as a broker for third persons.[39]

f. Receiving Deposits and Creating Debts While Insolvent. Many statutes and constitutional ordinances exist prohibiting the directors and other officers of banking corporations from receiving deposits of money or other valuable things, or from creating debts, while the institution is insolvent.[40]

g. Statutory Liability For Official Misconduct, Mismanagement, Etc. Statutes exist which in various forms of expressions make directors personally liable for official mismanagement, fraudulent management, official misconduct, etc. Unless otherwise expressed this liability is on principle a liability to the corporation or to its representative after insolvency or in winding-up.[41] Under such a statute it is ruled that directors to avoid liability are obliged to take the same care as factors or agents. They are answerable, not only for any fraud and gross negligence which they may be guilty of, but also for all faults that are contrary to the care required of them. They are answerable for ordinary neglect, and this means the omission of that care every man of common prudence takes of his own concerns.[42] When therefore the directors discounted paper on the pledge of stock, in violation of the statute, on irresponsible names, those of day-laborers, clerks, and bankrupts, they were held liable. But they were not liable for renewing worthless paper which was discounted by their predecessors, for the conclusive reason that the bank sustained no loss on account of such renewals.[43]

h. Liability of Directors of National Banking Associations. This subject pertains more especially to the subject of banks and banking.[44]

38. Merrill First Nat. Bank v. Harper, 61 Minn. 375, 63 N. W. 1079, where the "unfaithfulness" consisted in depositing as collaterals for security of debenture bonds a large amount of worthless notes and mortgages which the president of the corporation had procured from irresponsible parties, and in the appropriation of the proceeds of the sale of the debenture bonds by the president to his own use. The corporation fraudulently represented that the notes and mortgages deposited as collaterals were all made by responsible parties who were known to the corporation.

39. Henderson v. State, 50 Ind. 234.

40. Several of these constitutional ordinances and statutes are referred to in 3 Thompson Corp. § 4300. See also BANKS AND BANKING.

Whether such constitutional provision is self-enforcing.— Fusz v. Spaunhorst, 67 Mo. 256 (ill-considered decision holding the contrary); Fischer v. Tamm, 13 Mo. App. 108 (under a statute making directors jointly and severally liable, but without prescribing to whom they should be liable, with the undeniable conclusion that the statute would not support an action against the directors by a depositor); Cummings v. Spaunhorst, 5 Mo. App. 21 (a well-considered decision, holding that the provision of Mo. Const. art. 12, § 27, is self-enforcing); Dodge v. Mastin, 17 Fed. 660, 5 McCrary, 404 (decision by a federal judge to the contrary).

That the Pennsylvania statute making it a criminal offense to receive deposits while a bank is insolvent does not create a felony see Com. v. Schall, 12 Pa. Co. Ct. 554.

41. See supra, IX, L, 1 et seq.

42. See Scott v. Depeyster, 1 Edw. (N. Y.) 513; Domat. 132, tit. 3, § 2.

43. Mutual Redemption Bank v. Hill, 56 Me. 385, 96 Am. Dec. 470.

Me. Stat. (1831), c. 519, § 28, "to regulate banks and banking," gave a remedy only to creditors of a bank, as holders of its bills or otherwise, and not to the shareholders, against the directors thereof, for losses arising "from the official mismanagement of the directors." Rich v. Shaw, 23 Me. 343; Me. Rev. Stat. (1871), p. 410, § 42.

Construction of obsolete Pennsylvania statute relating to the fraudulent insolvency of banks and the consequent personal liability of the directors, with the conclusion that there is no prima facie imputation of fraud springing from the mere fact of insolvency. Wright v. Davenport, 66 Pa. St. 148.

44. See and compare 3 Thompson Corp. § 4303; U. S. Rev. Stat. § 5239; 1 Brightly Purd. Dig. Pa. (1873), p. 124, § 40; National Exch. Bank v. Peters, 44 Fed. 13; Stephens v. Overstolz, 43 Fed. 465. Whether the right of action given by U. S. Rev. Stat. § 5239,

11. Remedies and Procedure Under These Statutes — a. Whether Statutory Remedy Exclusive. Contrary to the general rule that where a statute creates a right and gives a remedy for the enforcement of that right the statutory remedy is exclusive, it has been held that where the charter of a corporation makes the directors jointly and severally liable for the corporate debts (although it gives an action against them), the statutory remedy by such action is not exclusive, the reason being that the creditors of the corporation are in a sense creditors of the directors also, and may consequently pursue them or their property by law.[45]

b. Jurisdictions in Which Remedy Is in Equity. Without entering into details it may be said that equitable remedies have been recognized as appropriate and have been applied to enforce the statutory liability of directors considered in the preceding paragraphs, in the jurisdictions stated in the margin.[46]

c. Corporation or Its Assignee Not Indispensable Party. Neither the corporation nor its assignee in insolvency is an indispensable party, and hence their joinder will not be required where it would defeat the jurisdiction of the court;[47] but it is proper to make a receiver of the assets of the corporation a party defendant, in order that the decree may make proper provision as to the application of the assets, together with the amount which the directors may be required to pay in discharge of the debts in excess of the assets.[48]

d. Jurisdictions in Which Remedy Is at Law. On the other hand the remedy at law has been applied under various charters, statutes, and theories in the cases in the jurisdictions noted in the margin.[49] is lodged alone in the receiver see and compare National Exch. Bank v. Peters, 44 Fed. 13; Stephens v. Overstolz, 43 Fed. 465. National bank directors resigning the office not liable for subsequent defaults accruing from the negligence of the remaining directors. Movius v. Lee, 30 Fed. 298 [affirmed in 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662]. See, generally, Banks and Banking.

45. Ex p. Van Riper, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 614.

46. Alabama.— St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566.

California.— Winchester v. Mabury, 122 Cal. 522, 55 Pac. 393.

Georgia.— Schley v. Dixon, 24 Ga. 273, 71 Am. Dec. 121.

Illinois.— Woolverton v. Taylor, 132 Ill. 197, 23 N. E. 1007, 22 Am. St. Rep. 521 (holding that the fact that the statute clothes a court of equity with jurisdiction to enforce it leads to a conclusion that the statute is not penal); Buchanan v. Low, 3 Ill. App. 202; Buchanan v. Bartow Iron Co., 3 Ill. App. 191.

Massachusetts.— Thacher v. King, 156 Mass. 490, 31 N. E. 648; Bond v. Morse, 9 Allen 471; Peele v. Phillips, 8 Allen 86; Merchants' Bank v. Stevenson, 10 Gray 232. An action at law cannot be maintained by a creditor of a corporation against its officers to enforce the officers' liability imposed by Mass. Stat. (1863), c. 246, § 2. A bill in equity is now the only remedy. McRae v. Locke, 114 Mass. 96. The objection to such a proceeding at law is not waived by the submission of the case upon an agreed statement of the facts necessary for the determination of the question of liability. McRae v. Locke, 114 Mass. 96. See also Crease v. Babcock, 10 Metc. 525. Requisites of a bill in equity under Mass. Stat. (1862), c. 218, to charge the officers of a manufacturing corporation personally with a debt thereof. Thayer v. New England Lithographic Steam Printing Co., 108 Mass. 523; Norfolk v. American Steam Gas Co., 108 Mass. 404. The following are statutes of Massachusetts relating to this subject: Mass. Gen. Stat. p. 385, c. 68, § 17; 1 Suppl. Mass. Gen. Stat. p. 811, § 42.

Pennsylvania.— Margarge, etc., Co. v. Ziegler, 9 Pa. Super. Ct. 438, 43 Wkly. Notes Cas. 466.

United States.— Hornor v. Henning, 93 U. S. 228, 23 L. ed. 879 [reaffirmed in Stone v. Chisolm, 113 U. S. 302, 5 S. Ct. 497, 28 L. ed. 991]; Horner v. Carter, 11 Fed. 362, 3 McCrary 595.

So in other states under various statutes and charters.— The remedy in equity is also applied in other states under various statutes and charters. Citizens' Loan Assoc. v. Lyon, 29 N. J. Eq. 110; Crown v. Brainerd, 57 Vt. 625; Comp. Laws Mich. (1871), § 6572 et seq.; N. J. Rev. Stat. (1877), p. 194, § 94.

47. James H. Rice Co. v. Libbey, 105 Fed. 825, 45 C. C. A. 78.

48. Whitney v. Wilcox, 58 N. Y. App. Div. 57, 68 N. Y. Suppl. 667.

49. Indiana.— Union Iron Co. v. Pierce, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14,367, 4 Biss. 327, federal court decision holding an action of debt appropriate to enforce a statutory liability for neglecting to publish certain reports required by charter.

Kentucky.— Cornwall v. Eastham, 2 Bush 561, under a statute making directors jointly and severally liable for contracting corporate debts beyond a prescribed limit.

Missouri.— Thompson v. Greeley, 107 Mo. 577, 17 S. W. 962, jurisdiction where legal

e. Form of Action at Common Law. An action of debt is the appropriate form of action at common law to enforce a liability created by such a statute.[50]

f. Who May Maintain Action — (i) Creditors. Nearly all the statutes under consideration in terms give a direct action to creditors against the wrong-doing directors. But it has been held that such an action does not accrue to a creditor for wrongs done before he became a creditor.[51]

(ii) Single Creditor Against Single Director. Under some systems and theories an action may be maintained by a single creditor against any one of the wrong-doing directors, and he is not obliged to join other creditors as plaintiffs or other directors as defendants,[52] although he may join all who have participated in the wrong if he sees fit.[53]

(iii) Receiver of Corporation. If the terms of the statute are such that the penalty denounced against the directors for doing the prohibited act or for failing to do the required act accrues to the corporation itself, then plainly its receiver in the event of its insolvency or of its winding-up may maintain an action to recover it as corporate assets;[54] and where there was no statute conferring such a power on receivers of corporations, it was held competent for the court appointing the receiver to direct that such an action be brought, it being within the general jurisdiction of a court exercising equity powers.[55]

(iv) Assignees For Benefit of Creditors. It has been held that unless such an assignee brings an action against the directors of the corporation to charge them for declaring dividends out of the capital stock in violation of a statute, it will be a good ground for an acceptance to the final account of the assignee, and he will be personally liable for any amount which might have been realized by the bringing and prosecuting of such actions.[56]

(v) Shareholders. There is nothing in the relation of shareholders of the corporation to its directors[57] which will prevent a shareholder in the event he becomes a creditor of the corporation from maintaining an action to charge the directors with the personal liability denounced by a statute for their official defaults.[58] But it seems that this rule applies only in case of shareholders becoming creditors of the corporation through ordinary dealings with it and not in matters growing out of their relation as shareholders.[59] and equitable remedies are blended under a code — holding that a receiver of the corporation may prosecute an action at law against the directors where no accounting or other equitable relief is required.

New York.— Marsh v. Kaye, 44 N. Y. App. Div. 68, 60 N. Y. Suppl. 439 (under Membership Corporation Law); Rock Valley State Bank v. Andrews, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 167, 44 N. Y. St. 788; Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Jenkins, 3 Wend. 130. But compare Auburn Nat. Bank v. Dillingham, 147 N. Y. 603, 42 N. E. 338, 49 Am. St. Rep. 692, construing present statute of New York.

Vermont.— Bassett v. St. Albans Hotel Co., 47 Vt. 313; Windham Provident Sav. Inst. v. Sprague, 43 Vt. 502; Buell v. Warner, 33 Vt. 570.

50. Sturges v. Burton, 8 Ohio St. 215, 72 Am. Dec. 582; Union Iron Co. v. Pierce, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14,367, 4 Biss. 327 (per McDonald, J.).

51. Ogden v. Rollo, 13 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 300.

52. Patterson v. Stewart, 41 Minn. 84, 42 N. W. 926, 16 Am. St. Rep. 671, 4 L. R. A. 745; Rock Valley State Bank v. Andrews, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 167, 44 N. Y. St. 788.

53. Patterson v. Stewart, 41 Minn. 84, 42 N. W. 926, 16 Am. St. Rep. 671, 4 L. R. A. 745.

54. Niagara Bank v. Johnson, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 645.

55. Thompson v. Swain, 107 Mo. 594, 17 S. W. 967; Thompson v. Greeley, 107 Mo. 577, 17 S. W. 962.

56. Gunkle's Appeal, 48 Pa. St. 13. See also Grocers' Nat. Bank v. Clark, 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 26.

57. To this relation see Smith v. Hurd, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 371, 46 Am. Dec. 690; Willoughby v. Comstock, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 389; Brinham v. Wellersburg Coal Co., 47 Pa. St. 43.

58. Anderson v. Blattau, 43 Mo. 42 [distinguishing Kritzer v. Woodson, 19 Mo. 327, and holding that shareholders may recover of the directors corporate debts which the latter have contracted in excess of the amount limited by statute]; Sanborn v. Lefferts, 16 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 42.

59. This conclusion is the result of a comparison of Kritzer v. Woodson, 19 Mo. 327, and Anderson v. Blattau, 43 Mo. 42. For a statute which is construed as not creating a personal liability against individual directors for the debts of the corporation at the suit of shareholders as such see Riegel v. Rinehart, 26 N. J. Eq. 219.

g. When Action Proceeds Against All Directors. Where the suit is in equity, all the wrong-doing directors may be joined as defendants in an action. This necessarily results from the language of the statute making their liability both joint and several.[60]

h. Judgment Against Corporation Condition Precedent to Action to Charge Directors — (i) In General. On principle and authority,[61] and by the terms or the judicial construction of many statutes,[62] the creditor cannot proceed against the director to charge him with personal liability until he has exhausted his remedy against the corporation by recovering judgment and subjecting the corporate assets to his demands so far as they will go. To this rule exceptions exist under the statutes of some states which are construed as imposing upon the wrong-doing directors an original contract liability in favor of creditors,[63] so that a creditor may sue the corporation and join a director with it as a co-defendant and establish his demand against both in the same action.[64]

(ii) Theory That Judgment Against Corporation Is Conclusive on Director. Under some systems the judgment against the corporation is conclusive upon the directors so far as it establishes the indebtedness;[65] and even where it is deemed not even prima facie evidence against them it has been held to be conclusive in their favor, so that if the corporation is sued for the debt and succeeds on the merits there is no basis left on which to charge the directors.[66] The sound view is that a judgment recovered against a corporation is "a debt" of the corporation which may be counted upon and introduced in evidence in a suit against the directors to charge them with liability for debts of the corporation.[67]

That a shareholder of a bank who redeems its circulating notes may maintain an action for statutory misfeasance against the directors under a statute which gives the action to "any creditor" see Robinson v. Bealle, 20 Ga. 275.

That where the statute gives a right of action to "creditors who are shareholders," this does not extend such a right to a creditor who becomes such after the commission of the statutory breach of duty see Mabey v. Adams, 3 Bosw. (N. Y.) 346.

Actions by the attorney-general in New York.— By a very peculiar statute of New York, the attorney-general is required to bring actions to redress breaches of trust committed by directors of private corporations. N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1781, 1782, 1808, 1810. See People v. Ballard, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 845, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 918, 29 N. Y. St. 926 (where the court rule, in seeming opposition to the language of the statute, that the action cannot be maintained where only private interest are involved); People v. Bruff, 60 How. Pr. (N. Y. 1 (where such an intervention was successful).

60. M. I. Wilcox Cordage, etc., Co. v. Mosher, 114 Mich. 64, 72 N. W. 117.

61. Kinsley v. Rice, 10 Gray (Mass.) 325; Johnson v. Churchwell, 1 Head (Tenn.) 146. See also Thacher v. King, 156 Mass. 490, 31 N. E. 648 (holding that there must be judgment execution and a return of nulla bona); Uptegrove v. Schwarzwaelder, 46 N. Y. App. Div. 20, 61 N. Y. Suppl. 623; Bird v. Hayden, 1 Rob. (N. Y.) 383, 2 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 61; Paulsen v. Van Steenbergh, 65 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 342.

62. 1 Suppl. Mass. Gen. Stat. p. 811, § 40; N. J. Rev. Stat. (1877), p. 194, § 96; 2 Brightly Purd. Dig. Pa. (1873), p. 1411, § 47; Norfolk v. American Steam Gas Co., 103 Mass. 160; Cambridge Water Works v. Somerville Dyeing, etc., Co., 4 Allen (Mass.) 239; Bangs v. Lincoln, 10 Gray (Mass.) 600; Kinsley v. Rice, 10 Gray (Mass.) 325; Denny v. Richardson, 4 Gray (Mass.) 274; Thayer v. Union Tool Co., 4 Gray (Mass.) 75. Compare Merchants' Bank v. Stevenson, 5 Allen (Mass.) 398.

63. Rock Valley State Bank v. Andrews, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 167, 44 N. Y. St. 788.

64. Patterson v. Stewart, 41 Minn. 84, 42 N. W. 926, 16 Am. St. Rep. 671, 4 L. R. A. 671. The rule which requires a judgment against the corporation as a condition precedent to an action against a director has been held not to apply in an action where a creditor has been enjoined from suing the corporation; but he may maintain a suit in the nature of a suit in equity in behalf of himself and of other creditors who may join with him against the directors to enforce their liability, without first obtaining a judgment against the corporation. Whitney v. Pugh, 58 N. Y. App. Div. 316, 68 N. Y. Suppl. 992. Under Mich. Pub. Acts (1885), No. 232, making directors liable for wilful neglect to file a report of the affairs of the company a judgment against the corporation is not a condition precedent to their liability. M. I. Wilcox Cordage, etc., Co. v. Mosher, 114 Mich. 64, 72 N. W. 117.

65. Thayer v. New England Lithographic Steam Printing Co., 108 Mass. 523.

66. Tyng v. Clarke, 9 Hun (N. Y.) 269.

67. Tabor v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 62 Fed. 383, 10 C. C. A. 429.

Judgment on plaintiffs deemed not deferred to see whether it will be allowed in

(III) Doctrine That Judgment Against Corporation Is Not Even Prima Facie Evidence Against Directors. Opposed to the foregoing is the doctrine that in an action to charge directors for liabilities grounded on statutory misprisions, the judgment which the creditor may have recovered against the corporation establishing his debt is not even prima facie evidence,[68] the theory being that the directors are not in privity with the corporation in such a sense as makes such a judgment binding upon them, but it is inter alios acta.[69]

(IV) Whether Judgment Against Corporation by Garnishment, Trustee Process, or Factorizing Is Such Judgment as Will Support Action Against Directors. This question has been answered in the affirmative in Massachusetts[70] and in the negative in Connecticut.[71]

i. Burden of Proof Under These Statutes. These statutes are penal in the sense which obliges plaintiff to prove a case within the terms of the statute, even though in order to do so it may be necessary for him to prove a negative, such as the fact that the required report was not published.[72] But where the statute predicated the liability of the directors upon an "intentional neglect to file such reports" it was held that it would be presumed that their failure to do so was intentional.[73]

j. Parol Evidence Admissible to Identify and Characterize Judgment. In a bill in equity founded on a judgment at law against the corporation, where the liability of the directors is predicated upon the ground that during a period when they were in default in failing to file the report of the condition of the corporation prescribed by the statute, the debt for which the judgment was recovered was contracted by them, parol evidence has been held admissible to show that such was the fact.[74] insolvency proceedings where it is intended to lay the foundation for a proceeding against directors. Clarke v. Warwick Cycle Mfg. Co., 174 Mass. 434, 54 N. E. 887.

68. Esmond v. Bullard, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 65; Brand v. Godwin, 15 Daly 456, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 339, 3 N. Y. St. 807, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 743, 29 N. Y. St. 143 [affirming 3 N. Y. Suppl. 807, 24 N. Y. St. 305]; Chase v. Curtis, 113 U. S. 452, 5 S. Ct. 554, 28 L. ed. 1038; and other cases cited below.

69. Rorke v. Thomas, 56 N. Y. 559; Miller v. White, 50 N. Y. 137 [reversing 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 504, 59 Barb. (N. Y.) 434]; Esmond v. Bullard, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 65; McHarg v. Eastman, 7 Rob. (N. Y.) 137, 35 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 205. These decisions overrule Hall v. Siegel, 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 206.

Same rule as against shareholders.— The courts of New York, after a considerable conflict of opinion, have established the same rule in favor of shareholders when proceeded against to enforce a statutory liability. See McMahon v. Macy, 51 N. Y. 155, 162, and particularly the opinion of Mr. Commissioner Gray, where the previous authorities on the subject are reviewed. The doctrine of those courts being that an action against a shareholder to charge him for a debt of the corporation is an action on the original demand and not on the judgment which plaintiff has recovered against the corporation. Belmont v. Coleman, 21 N. Y. 96; Moss v. Averell, 10 N. Y. 449; Conant v. Van Schaick, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 87; Moss v. McCullough, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 131. For conflicting decisions see Belmont v. Coleman, 1 Bosw. (N. Y.) 188; Moss v. Oakley, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 265; Slee v. Bloom, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 669, 10 Am. Dec. 273. This being so the burden of establishing the validity of his debt rests on plaintiff as an original proposition, although he may have established it as against the corporation. Dabney v. Stevens, 40 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 341. But in respect of the liability of corporations a contrary rule prevails in other states, the judgment against the corporation being regarded either as conclusive or at least as prima facie evidence against the shareholder as to the validity of the debt.

Iowa.— Donworth v. Coolbaugh, 5 Iowa 300.

Kansas.— Grund v. Tucker, 5 Kan. 70.

Maine.— Milliken v. Whitehouse, 49 Me. 527; Came v. Bingham, 39 Me. 35; Merrill v. Suffolk Bank, 31 Me. 57, 50 Am. Dec. 649.

Massachusetts.—Hawes v. Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co., 101 Mass. 385.

Pennsylvania.—Wilson v. Pittsburg, etc., Coal Co., 43 Pa. St. 424.

70. Norfolk v. American Steam Gas Co., 103 Mass. 160.

71. Armstrong v. Cowles, 44 Conn. 44.

72. Whitney Arms Co. v. Barlow, 63 N. Y. 62, 20 Am. Rep. 504, 68 N. Y. 34.

73. Van Etten v. Eaton, 19 Mich. 187. See, however, Breitung v. Lindauer, 37 Mich. 217.

74. Norfolk v. American Steam Gas Co., 108 Mass. 404. That it is often competent to show by parol evidence what facts were passed upon by the jury in a case which proceeded to judgment see Merritt v. Morse, 108 Mass. 270; Burlen v. Shannon, 99 Mass. 200, 96 Am. Dec. 733, 14 Gray (Mass.) 433 (and cases there cited).

k. Misjoinder of Such Causes of Action. Under the statute law and code of procedure of New York a proceeding to charge the directors cannot be joined with a proceeding to charge the shareholders with a personal liability for the debts of the corporation;[75] but an action to charge directors for not making the statutory annual report may be joined with an action against them for making a false report, unless the false report was signed by all the defendants who are charged with the omission to make the annual report, in which case there would be a misjoinder, for the reason that the distinct causes of action do not affect all the defendants.[76]

l. Pleading Under Such Statutes — (i) In General. In a proceeding under such a statute the declaration or complaint must allege either in the words of the statute or in substance all the statutory grounds of recovery.[77]

(ii) What Exceptions of Statute Must Be Negatived. By an old rule of common-law pleading, in declaring upon a statute, even though it be not penal, any exception contained in the enacting or prohibiting clause of it must be excluded by averment;[78] but where exceptions contained in other clauses of the

75. Wiles v. Suydam, 64 N. Y. 173; Mappier v. Mortimer, 11 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 455.

76. Bonnell v. Wheeler, 16 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 81. See also Sterne v. Herman, 11 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 376; Vincent v. Sands, 11 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 366.

77. Henniker v. Contocook Valley R. Co., 29 N. H. 146.

The facts relating to the claims of the complainants against the corporation, where the suit is in equity, must be set out with particularity. Gunter v. Dale County, 44 Ala. 639; Boston, etc., R. Co. v. Parr, 104 Fed. 695, 44 C. C. A. 139 (holding that a bill in equity, where it alleged that the corporation was indebted to complainant in a sum "exceeding $239,000," on a contract of indemnity and insurance against liability for death or injury of employees, etc., bearing a certain date and setting out a copy of the form of the contract, was wholly insufficient, in the absence of any statement of the happening of any occurrence creating a liability under the contract, or of any fact showing how or when any part of such liability arose, or that any claims or proofs were ever submitted to the company on account of it).

A mistake in a complaint in such an action, due to a mistake as to the date on which a penalty was incurred under the governing statute, will not be construed reversible error if plaintiff has shown a right to recover within the true date. Morgan v. Hedstrom, 164 N. Y. 224, 58 N. E. 26 [affirming 25 N. Y. App. Div. 547, 49 N. Y. Suppl. 1049].

Must allege a written request to perform the duty, as required by the statute. Nassau Bank v. Brown, 30 N. J. Eq. 478.

Services rendered by request.— Must allege that the services creating the debt were rendered at the request of the corporation. Tovey v. Culver, 54 N. Y. Super. Ct. 404.

Requisites of petition in an action under Iowa Revision, § 1163, against an officer or shareholder of a corporation for fraud, etc. White v. Hosford, 37 Iowa 566.

Must aver that the corporation did business in the county.— Anfenger v. Anzeiger Pub. Co., 9 Colo. 377, 12 Pac. 400.

Must aver the purposes for which the corporation was organized and that defendants constituted a majority of the directors. Niles v. Dodge, 70 Ind. 147.

The allegation that defendants were shareholders is not irrelevant. Sterne v. Herman, 11 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 376.

For the allegations in a bill in equity under Mass. Stat. (1862), c. 218, to charge officers of a manufacturing corporation personally with a debt thereof see Thayer v. New England Lithographic Steam Printing Co., 108 Mass. 523; Norfolk v. American Steam Gas Co., 108 Mass. 404. For a bill in equity which failed to show that the excess of debts over and above the amount of capital stock actually paid in happened under the administration of the defendants see Merchants' Bank v. Stevenson, 5 Allen (Mass.) 398.

Not necessary to file a copy of the articles of incorporation, this not being the foundation of the action. Niles v. Dodge, 70 Ind. 147.

Sufficient showing that corporation was not a railroad or moneyed corporation.—That a complaint alleging that defendant was a director of the business corporation sufficiently showed that the corporation was not a railroad or moneyed corporation see Union Bank v. Keim, 52 N. Y. App. Div. 135, 64 N. Y. Suppl. 1070.

Sufficient allegation of director's acceptance of office.— That an allegation in the answer filed by a director sued to enforce such a statute that he was elected director, and attended one directors' meeting is sufficient proof of his acceptance of the office, although the answer also alleged that on discovering that false representations had been made to him to induce his attendance he refused further to act as director. Union Bank v. Keim, 52 N. Y. App. Div. 135, 64 N. Y. Suppl. 1070.

78. Gould Pl. c. 4, § 22. This has been held where the statute was not penal. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Lavery, 71 Ill. 522; Great Western R. Co. v. Hanks, 36 Ill. 281; Great Western R. Co. v. Bacon, 30 Ill. 347, 83 Am.

statute present matters of defense, they are to be pleaded and proved by defendant.[79]

(III) AVERMENT OF DATE OF DEBT. In many cases it is essential, to bring the case within the statute, for the pleader to aver the date when the debt was contracted, so as to show that it was contracted during the time when the directors were in default in failing to make the statutory report;[80] and so as to show, where the action proceeds on the ground of their making a false report and allowing the indebtedness to exceed the capital stock, that the debt was contracted after defendant became a trustee.[81]

m. Plaintiff Recovers Upon Preponderance of Evidence. It is not essential to a recovery where the ground is the making of a false report or certificate that plaintiff should satisfy the jury of the guilt of defendant beyond a reasonable doubt, but as in other civil actions he recovers upon a fair preponderance of the evidence.[82]

n. Entries in Book-Accounts — When Not Evidence. In such an action the entries in the account-books of the corporation are not competent evidence against defendant to prove the directors' claim, where it does not appear that defendant was privy to such entries.[83]

o. Procedure in Case of Death of Director. It is a rule of the common law that the personal representative of a deceased joint obligor cannot be joined in an action against the survivor.[84] This rule has been applied in Massachusetts, so as

Dec. 199; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Williams, 27 Ill. 48; Galena, etc., R. Co. v. Sumner, 24 Ill. 631; Ohio, etc., R. Co. v. Brown, 23 Ill. 94; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Carter, 20 Ill. 390.

79. Gould Pl. c. 4, § 22; Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Lavery, 71 Ill. 552; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Carter, 20 Ill. 390.

80. McHarg v. Eastman, 7 Rob. (N. Y.) 137, 35 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 205; Seaman v. Goodnow, 20 Wis. 27.

81. Anderson v. Speers, 8 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 382, 58 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 68.

What is not a good averment of the fact that defendant was a trustee at the time when the debt was alleged to be contracted. Anderson v. Speers, 8 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 382, 58 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 68.

Averment that the debt remains unpaid.— For a technical ruling to the effect that it is not enough to aver that the judgment recovered against the corporation remains unsatisfied, but that the pleader must aver that the debt remains unpaid, see McHarg v. Eastman, 7 Rob. (N. Y.) 137, 35 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 205. Compare Chambers v. Lewis, 28 N. Y. 454.

Misdescription of the statute immaterial. — It is not necessary for the pleader to describe the statute since the court will notice it judicially. Buell v. Warner, 33 Vt. 570. Therefore if he misdescribes it, as by referring to the wrong section, the misdescription will be rejected as surplusage. McHarg v. Eastman, 7 Rob. (N. Y.) 137, 35 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 205.

Not necessary to aver how the damage happened.— Where the damage consisted of a depreciation of plaintiff's shares it is not necessary to aver how or in what manner this depreciation was brought about, since that would be a matter of evidence. Gaffney v. Colvill, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 567. But another court has held, in an action to charge directors for failing to make the statutory report of the financial condition of the corporation, that the manner in which plaintiff was misled and deceived must be charged with reasonable fulness and certainty. Niles v. Dodge, 70 Ind. 147, setting out a complaint where it was not charged with sufficient certainty. See also Buell v. Warner, 33 Vt. 570, for a declaration under a statute which is set out in full, to which a number of specific objections were made by special demurrer, but where the declaration was held good.

Other points of pleading in such complaints.— Under a statute prohibiting the doing of certain acts a complaint has been held bad on special demurrer, which alleged that defendant caused the acts to be done. Gaffney v. Colvill, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 567. Not necessary to allege that defendants did the acts knowingly, mistake or want of guilty knowledge being matter of defense. Gaffney v. Colvill, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 567.

Not a good objection on the ground of duplicity that the declaration alleges that the directors did divide, withdraw, and pay to the shareholders a portion of the capital stock of the company and did thereby reduce the capital stock without the consent of the legislature. Gaffney v. Colvill, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 567.

Answer upon information and belief insufficient. 19 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 112 note.

82. Huntington v. Attrill, 118 N. Y. 365, 29 N. Y. St. 5, 23 N. E. 544.

83. Leonard v. Faber, 52 N. Y. App. Div. 495, 65 N. Y. Suppl. 391. [The reader is cautioned that there is a conflict of authority as to the effect of books of account as evidence.]

84. Green v. Watkins, 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 260, 5 L. ed. 256.

to exempt the estate of a deceased shareholder from liability as such, unless his personal representative should chose to come forward and assume such liability, by paying claims or otherwise.[85] This unjust and mischievous rule has been changed by statute in most of the states it is believed.[86] But in equity the maxim, Actio personalis moritur cum persona, does not obtain, and therefore the liability of directors to creditors, founded in fraud, may be redressed in those tribunals by an action against their personal representative in case of their death.[87]

p. Liability of Directors For Costs in Proceedings Under These Statutes. A statute making the directors liable for the debts of the corporation does not make them liable for the costs which have accrued in recovering judgments against the corporation for such a debt,[88] although they will of course be liable for the costs accruing in an action brought to charge them.[89]

q. Directors Estopped to Deny Existence of Corporation. Persons who hold themselves out to the public as a legally organized corporation by proceeding with the business for which the corporation was ostensibly created and by contracting in the corporate name are estopped, when proceeded against as directors to enforce the statutory liability, to deny the validity of the existence of the corporation.[90]

12. Defenses to Such Actions — a. Defense of No Corporation — (I) In General. If the directors of a corporation incur liability under a statute, by reason of failing to make and to file certain certificates and statements therein required, they cannot, when proceeded against for the enforcement of such liability, set up as a defense an irregularity in the organization of the corporation.[91]

(II) Cases Where This Defense Has Succeeded. It has, however, been held, under a statute of New Jersey authorizing any persons to associate and form a corporation and choose a board of directors, and under its direction carry on the business, that if the associates choose no directors, but merely a president, who is in fact the owner of the concern and who controls its business, they are to be regarded as a corporation, but are not liable in the character of directors.

85. Dane v. Dane Mfg. Co., 14 Gray (Mass.) 488; Ripley v. Sampson, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 371; Child v. Coffin, 17 Mass. 64.

86. See for example Cobb Stat. Ga. 483; Hargroves v. Chambers, 30 Ga. 580 (holding that if a director guilty of the statutory fault should die before the commencement of the action plaintiff would not be bound to join therein his personal representative, although he would be at liberty so to do).

87. Procedure in case of death of director in insolvency proceedings in Massachusetts. — See 3 Thompson Corp. § 4345 [collecting and expounding the following cases: Dane v. Dane Mfg. Co., 14 Gray (Mass.) 488; Bangs v. Lincoln, 10 Gray (Mass.) 600; Merchants' Bank v. Stevenson, 10 Gray (Mass.) 232; Grew v. Breed, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 569; Kelton v. Phillips, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 61; Andrews v. Callender, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 484; Ripley v. Sampson, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 371; Child v. Coffin, 17 Mass. 64].

Other decisions under statutes of Massachusetts. — For other decisions under the local and peculiar statutes of Massachusetts see Barre First Nat. Bank v. Hingham Mfg. Co., 127 Mass. 563; Moore v. Reynolds, 109 Mass. 473; Byers v. Franklin Coal Co., 106 Mass. 131; Dewey v. Baker, 16 Gray (Mass.) 130; Brayton v. New England Coal Min. Co., 11 Gray (Mass.) 493; Denny v. Richardson, 4 Gray (Mass.) 274.

88. Rorke v. Thomas, 56 N. Y. 559.

89. Compare People v. Ballou, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 277.

Various matters of practice in such cases. — What processes must be issued and served upon the directors separately see Cunningham v. Pell, 5 Paige (N. Y.) 607. That a mere return of nulla bona is not a sufficient ground for an action to charge directors, but that the return must set out that no real or personal property of the corporation was exhibited to the officer sufficient to satisfy the debt as required by the statute, see Bacon v. Morris, 10 Phila. (Pa.) 93, 30 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 392. When an action against a corporation was prosecuted under a writ commanding the body of a certain named director to be taken, it was held untenable to argue, after a judgment against the company and an appeal taken by it, that the suit was against the director and not against the corporation. Aycock v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 51 N. C. 231.

Nominal defendant in action against English joint-stock company. — Bartlett v. Pentland, 1 B. & Ad. 704, 20 E. C. L. 657; Wormwell v. Hailstone, 6 Bing. 668, 8 L. J. C. P. O. S. 264, 4 M. & P. 512, 19 E. C. L. 301; Harrison v. Pimmins, 7 Dowl. P. C. 28, 8 L. J. Exch. 94, 4 M. & W. 510.

90. Gay v. Kohlsaat, 80 Ill. App. 178.

91. Newcomb v. Reed, 12 Allen (Mass.) 362. Compare Utley v. Union Tool Co., 11 Gray (Mass.) 139.

but are liable in equity as shareholders to be charged with debts of the concern [92] to the extent unpaid on their shares. So where it appeared in such an action that the defendants had drawn up articles of incorporation, but with the understanding that they were not to take effect until certain things were done, which never were done, it was held that this did not constitute them a corporation, and that the president and directors could not be made liable under a statute [93] making such officers personally liable for debts contracted by the corporation or voluntary association before complying with certain statutory requirements.[94] So where a member of an association which had failed of a legal incorporation purchased claims against the association, it was held that this did not give an action against the directors, because it was a partnership, and one partner cannot sue the others at law.[95] So it has been held that with the expiration of a bank charter the personal liability of the directors for overissues of circulating notes ceases.[96]

b. Defense of Negligence, Ignorance of Law, Want of Guilty Scienter. Where the statute which has been violated enjoins an affirmative act, negligent ignorance is of course no defense;[97] but where it merely prohibits a wrongful act, then as a general rule only those who affirmatively participated in or assented to the wrong are liable under it; and such affirmative assent must in general be averred and proved,[98] although with respect to the evidence by which the fact is proved it is to be observed that such a statute raises a presumption of assent in the absence of some prescribed affirmative act of dissent; and many of the statutes in terms create a presumption of assent from the doing of the prohibited act and even from the failing to do the required act.[99] On the other hand, where the directors are sued under a statute making them liable for the debts of the corporation contracted during the time when they have been in default under a statute in filing certain prescribed reports, it will be no defense that they were ignorant of the existence of the law, or that they did not know whether or not the reports had been filed, and had not intentionally neglected to conform to the requirements of the statute, and indeed had no knowledge of such requirements and thought nothing about them. Although the statute only fixes personal liability upon the directors when they "intentionally neglect or refuse to comply with the provisions and to perform the duties required of them" by its terms, it is not incumbent upon a person sued under it to prove that the omission was intentional; the intent will be inferred from the neglect of the duty.[1] On the other hand, where the statute attaches a liability to a negative prohibition, it has been justly reasoned that to constitute "assent" there must be something more than mere negligence on the part of a director in not knowing what, in the exercise of proper care, he ought to have known. There must be some wilful or intentional violation of duty, assenting to it, knowing that the act is being done, or that it is about to be done. But if with such knowledge he neither objects to nor opposes it when his duty requires and when he has the opportunity of doing so this is "assent."[2]

c. Director Exonerated by Resigning or Abandoning Office. Where the liability imposed by a statute of this kind has not attached, a director may of 92. Kinsela v. Cataract City Bank, 18 N. J. Eq. 158.

93. Vt. Rev. Laws, § 3279.

94. Corey v. Morrill, 61 Vt. 598, 17 Atl. 840.

95. Coleman v. Coleman, 78 Ind. 344.

96. Moultrie v. Hoge, 21 Ga. 513. Contra, Moultrie v. Smiley, 16 Ga. 289.

As to the manner of proving the corporate character of the association in a suit in equity to enforce the liability of the officers of a manufacturing company see Salem First Nat. Bank v. Almy, 117 Mass. 476; Priest v. Essex Hat Mfg. Co., 115 Mass. 380.

97. Van Etten v. Eaton, 19 Mich. 187.

98. Patterson v. Stewart, 41 Minn. 84, 42 N. W. 926, 16 Am. St. Rep. 671, 4 L. R. A. 745.

99. See statute set out in 3 Thompson Corp. § 4357.

1. Van Etten v. Eaton, 19 Mich. 187. But see Breitung v. Lindauer, 37 Mich. 217. Compare In re Wales Nat. Bank, [1899] 2 Ch. 629, 68 L. J. Ch. 634, 81 L. T. Rep. N. S. 363, 48 Wkly. Rep. 99.

2. Patterson v. Stewart, 41 Minn. 84, 42 N. W. 926, 16 Am. St. Rep. 671, 4 L. R. A. 745.

course escape such liability by resigning or abandoning his office.[3] Nor is it necessary that the resignation should be accepted;[4] and it is immaterial in what form it is made, so that it is distinct and unequivocal. It may be made orally;[5] and it may be evidenced by conduct merely, as where the director sold out his shares and thereafter ceased to take any part in the affairs of the corporation, although his successor was not elected.[6]

d. Other Evidence of Want of Assent. Evidence of want of assent has been discovered in the act of the director in refusing to consent to the proposed violation of the statute and in protesting against it;[7] in failing to dissent when afterward informed that the indebtedness prohibited by the statute has been created;[8] in doing nothing more than failing to attend meetings, in not being consulted, in doing nothing but sign annual reports on the strength of their reliance of the truth and statement of a co-trustee.[9]

e. Assent of Plaintiff to Prohibited Act. Where plaintiff has himself assented, either in the character of director or otherwise, to the doing of the act prohibited by the statute, this fact will in general be a good defense in accordance with the maxim, Volenti non fit injuria.[10]

f. Operation of Statute of Limitations — (I) Whether Statute Relating to Penalties Applicable. Where statutes of this kind are regarded in the nature of penal statutes, it follows that the clause of the statute of limitations applicable to actions for penalties applies.[11] But where the view has been taken that such statutes are remedial, the short statute of limitations applicable to actions for penalties does not apply.[12]

(II) When Statute Begins to Run. Plainly such a statute does not begin to run until the debt is due; for until there is a right of action against the cor-

3. Bruce v. Platt, 80 N. Y. 379; Reed v. Keese, 37 N. Y. Super. Ct. 269 (director resigned after debt had been contracted, but before default had taken place, in filing the prescribed report, and escaped liability).

4. Blake v. Wheeler, 18 Hun (N. Y.) 496.

5. Movius v. Lee, 30 Fed. 298.

6. Sturges v. Vanderbilt, 73 N. Y. 384 (Miller, J., dissenting), holding that he could not be made liable for the acts of the managers five years afterward. But it has been held that in a proceeding to charge a director on statutory grounds he cannot show that he was adjudged a bankrupt, assigned and delivered his stock to the assignee in bankruptcy, received his discharge in bankruptcy, and had no connection with the corporation thereafter. Philadelphia, etc., Iron Co. v. Hotchkiss, 82 N. Y. 471. That a surety who took no part in the transaction of the bank after he had received the certificate required by the statute could not be charged with implied knowledge or notice as a director or manager see Kinsela v. Cataract City Bank, 18 N. J. Eq. 158.

7. Schofield v. Henderson, 67 Ind. 258.

8. Patterson v. Robinson, 36 Hun (N. Y.) 622, dissent doubtful.

9. Patterson v. Robinson, 36 Hun (N. Y.) 622. The following English decisions may be usefully consulted on the question what will and what will not be regarded as evidence of assent by the director to the doing of the act for which it is sought to charge him with liability. Johnson v. Goslett, 18 C. B. 728, 86 E. C. L. 728 [affirmed in 3 C. B. N. S. 569, 4 Jur. N. S. 50, 27 L. J. C. P. 122, 6 Wkly. Rep. 127, 37 Eng. L. & Eq. 308, 91 E. C. L. 569]; Burt v. British Nat. L. Assur. Assoc., 4 De G. & J. 158, 5 Jur. N. S. 612, 28 L. J. Ch. 731, 7 Wkly. Rep. 517, 61 Eng. Ch. 125; Ex p. Johnson, 31 Eng. L. & Eq. 430.

10. Slee v. Bloom, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 366. The following case, which was an action against the corporation, involved an application of the principle. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. v. Love, 125 Pa. St. 488, 17 Atl. 455. See also Knox v. Baldwin, 80 N. Y. 610, assignee of a manufacturing firm, one member of which was a trustee in the corporation, likewise estopped.

11. Merchants' Bank v. Bliss, 35 N. Y. 412 [affirming 1 Rob. (N. Y.) 391]. See also Chapman v. Comstock, 58 Hun (N. Y.) 325, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 920, 34 N. Y. St. 517; Bird v. Hayden, 1 Rob. (N. Y.) 383, 2 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 61; Lawler v. Burt, 7 Ohio St. 340 [overruling Lawler v. Walker, 18 Ohio 151] (action for issuing unauthorized notes in the similitude of bank paper); N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 383. See also Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Northwestern Mfg., etc., Co., 48 Minn. 349, 51 N. W. 117; Sturges v. Burton, 8 Ohio St. 215, 72 Am. Dec. 582.

12. Neal v. Moultrie, 12 Ga. 104.

In the nature of a specialty — Not barred until twenty years. — A widely opposite view is that the liability of directors created by statute is in the nature of a specialty, and is therefore not within the operation of the statute of limitations, and is consequently not barred until the expiration of twenty years, when a presumption of payment arises. Hargroves v. Chambers, 30 Ga. 580; Banks v. Darden, 18 Ga. 318; Neal v. Moultrie, 12 Ga. 104. For an explanation of this view poration, there can be none against the directors.[13] Where the debt has become due within the period of default in making a report required by statute, and has been extended by the consent of the creditor, the statute does not begin to run in favor of the defaulting trustee at the date of the maturity of the debt prior to its extension.[14]

(III) NOT AVAILABLE TO DIRECTOR WHERE CORPORATION HAS FAILED TO PLEAD IT. There is a questionable decision in New York to the effect that the defense that the debt itself is barred by the statute of limitations is not available to the director, where the corporation failed to plead the statute, and suffered a judgment for the debt to be recovered against it.[15]

(IV) NOT AVAILABLE UNLESS RAISED IN TRIAL COURT. This well-known rule of procedure applies to actions of the kind under consideration, so that the defense must, if they would avail themselves of the defense of the statute of limitations, set up the defense in their pleading and prove it at the trial.[16]

g. Defense of Laches. Where the proceeding is in equity the defense that the creditor has been guilty of laches is available as in other cases in that forum.[17]

h. Defense of Pendency of Proceedings Before Assigning For Creditors or Receiver. The pendency of proceedings before a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, or before a receiver is appointed to wind up the affairs of a corporation, does not constitute a defense to a proceeding on the part of creditors to enforce a statutory liability of the directors.[18]

i. Defense of Waste of Corporate Assets by Assignee or Receiver. In such an action it would ordinarily be no defense that the primary fund out of which the of the operation of the statute of limitations see 3 Thompson Corp. § 4362, and note on page 3203. The statutory liability of shareholders to pay the debts of the corporation has been held to be in the nature of a specialty, and within this rule. Thornton v. Lane, 11 Ga. 459; Lane v. Morris, 10 Ga. 162; Bullard v. Bell, 4 Fed. Cas. No. 2,121, 1 Mason 243. The supreme court of the United States has, however, ruled otherwise in a decision which it is thought must be accepted as overruling Bullard v. Bell, 4 Fed. Cas. No. 2,121, 1 Mason 243. Carrol v. Green, 92 U. S. 509, 23 L. ed. 738.

13. Duckworth v. Roach, 81 N. Y. 49; Jones v. Barlow, 62 N. Y. 202 [overruling on this point Merchants' Bank v. Bliss, 1 Rob. (N. Y.) 391, 13 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 225, 21 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 365 (affirmed in 35 N. Y. 412, where it was held that the statute begins to run from the time of contracting the corporate debt during the period of default in making the statutory report)]; Sullivan v. Sullivan Mfg. Co., 20 S. C. 79.

14. Jones v. Barlow, 62 N. Y. 202. See also Chapman v. Comstock, 58 Hun (N. Y.) 325, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 920, 34 N. Y. St. 517.

For a case where the question is made to turn upon whether it was the intention of the parties to renew the old debt or to create a new one, a mere metaphysical subtlety, see Sullivan v. Sullivan Mfg. Co., 20 S. C. 79.

The right of action given by a statute against directors has been held not saved by bringing suit against the corporation within the limitation prescribed by the statute, and then delaying for some years to sue the directors. Hall v. Siegel, 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 206, 13 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 178. Although the conclusion arrived at by the court seems sound, it is to be observed that it proceeds upon the authority of Miller v. White, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 504, which has been since reversed (50 N. Y. 137), and its authority may therefore be considered doubtful.

An action by judgment creditors to charge a railroad company and its former managers with the payment of their judgment, because of an unlawful payment of money to the president of the corporation, is barred within six years from the date of the adoption of the resolution authorizing such payment, irrespective of the ignorance of the judgment creditors. Link v. McLeod, 8 Pa. Dist. 175, 22 Pa. Co. Ct. 273.

15. Van Cott v. Van Brunt, 2 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 283. For suggestions which render this decision questionable see 3 Thompson Corp. § 4365.

16. Duckworth v. Roach, 81 N. Y. 49. For an answer which attempted to set up this defense but failed so to do see Cornell v. Roach, 101 N. Y. 373, 5 N. E. 52.

17. Merchants' Bank v. Bliss, 1 Rob. (N. Y.) 391. Seemingly untenable view that the right to proceed against a director of a national bank under U. S. Rev. Stat. § 3259, is lost by allowing such a period of time to lapse as cuts off the right to forfeit the charter under the same section, by reason of the misconduct complained of. Welles v. Graves, 41 Fed. 459.

18. Schley v. Dixon, 24 Ga. 273, 71 Am. Dec. 121; Patterson v. Stewart, 41 Minn. 84, 42 N. W. 926, 16 Am. St. Rep. 671, 4 L. R. A. 745 (holding that the appointment of a receiver neither takes away nor suspends the right of action against the directors); White v. How, 29 Fed. Cas. Nos. 17,548, 17,549, 3 McLean 111, 291 (at least without averring debt due to plaintiff should have been satisfied has been wasted by a receiver or by an assignee for creditors, since the creditors are in general not responsible for the good conduct of this species of trustee.[19]

j. Right to Set Off in Such Actions. Where the statute makes the liability of the directors a liability to the corporation, then the director may obviously set off against this liability any indebtedness of the corporation to him. But this rule would obviously not apply where the liability created by the statute was a liability to the creditors directly, for in such case there would be no mutuality.[20]

k. Defense of Former Adjudication. The fact that plaintiff has recovered a judgment against the corporation does not preclude him, under a Massachusetts statute, from enforcing the liabilities of the officers of the corporation for the original debt, by a bill in equity.[21]

l. Other Defenses Which Have Been Held Unavailing. Directors when sued to enforce their personal statutory liability cannot question the original consideration of a corporate note indorsed before maturity to a bona fide taker for value;[22] set up that there has been a judgment of forfeiture against the corporation, or that its charter has expired by limitation;[23] or, where the proceeding is against a director for signing false statements, that plaintiff is also a director;[24] that the company has liquidated the debt by giving its promissory notes therefor, since this does not cancel it nor affect the liability of its trustees;[25] or that subsequently to the time when the liability was incurred, the legislature permitted the corporation to form itself into two distinct companies, since this would not have the effect of exonerating the officers of one of the constituent companies from their statutory liability.[26]

13. Contribution and Subrogation — a. When Wrong-Doing Directors Entitled to Contribution Among Themselves. It seems that where the wrong consists of mere negligence and inattention, as in the case of an inadvertent failure to file certain reports of the condition of the corporation, required by statute, any one of the directors who is charged with more than his quota of liability because of misprision will be entitled to contribution against his co-directors,[27] but this would not be so in case of a positive wrong, involving a guilty scienter, such as the making of a false report, in which case no one would be responsible except those actually concurring in the wrong and the maxim, Ex turpi causa non oritur actio, would apply.[28] and proving either that the receiver had paid the notes or that there were assets in his hands sufficient to pay them).

19. Hargroves v. Chambers, 30 Ga. 580.

For an analogous rule where the action is to charge shareholders with a separate personal liability see Stewart v. Lay, 45 Iowa 604.

20. Tallmadge v. Fishkill Iron Co., 4 Barb. (N. Y.) 382. A judgment against a corporation upon which a particular director may be charged under a statute will be available as a set-off to an action by such creditor against the owner of such judgment, but the plea of set-off must show that the amount of the incorporate indebtedness which, under the statute, plaintiff has become liable to pay, is equal to defendant's judgment. Chambers v. Lewis, 28 N. Y. 454. As to the defense of set-off where the action is against the corporation by a shareholder for money lent see Milvain v. Mather, 5 Exch. 55, 19 L. J. Exch. 227, 1 L. M. & P. 220. Set-off of advances made by a shareholder against an action for a call see Matter of Joint-Stock Co.'s Winding-up Acts, 4 De G. M. & G. 19, 18 Jur. 710, 27 Eng. L. & Eq. 158, 53 Eng. Ch. 16. That in determining the amount for which creditors who are not directors can charge the directors for contracting an excess of debts over the statutory limit debts due the directors themselves are not to be counted. Thacher v. King, 156 Mass. 490, 31 N. E. 648.

21. Byers v. Franklin Coal Co., 106 Mass. 131. For an analogous rule with respect to the liability of shareholders see Vincent v. Sands, 11 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 366, 42 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 231.

22. Cooke v. Pearce, 23 S. C. 239.

23. Hargroves v. Chambers, 30 Ga. 580.

24. Richards v. Crocker, 19 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 73.

25. Deming v. Puleston, 35 N. Y. Super. Ct. 309.

26. Kane v. People, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 203.

27. But see to the contrary Andrews v. Murray, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 354.

Where there is no element of wrong-doing the right of contribution of course exists. Slaymaker v. Gundacker, 10 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 75.

28. Nickerson v. Wheeler, 118 Mass. 295.

b. Directors Not Entitled to Contribution From Shareholders. Where directors have acted contrary to statutory injunctions or prohibitions, and have thereby incurred a personal liability to creditors which they have been obliged to satisfy, they are not entitled to contribution from other shareholders; because the directors and the shareholders do not stand upon a common footing, they are not in æquali jure.[29] But where the transaction for which the director has been charged is merely ultra vires, has been taken in good faith, and is not characterized by moral turpitude, he is, on common principles of justice, entitled to contribution from his co-directors.[30]

c. When Wrong-Doing Directors Have No Right of Subrogation Against Company. Outside of statutes a director of a corporation against whom a judgment has been rendered for assenting to a declaration of a dividend when there were no profits to divide has no right of subrogation as against the company.[31]

d. Right of Contribution Among Directors by Agreement. Directors may have the right of contribution as among themselves, where they have become personally liable for the debts of the company, under an agreement for contribution among themselves in such a case.[32]

Q. Compensation of Directors — 1. Directors Not Entitled to Compensation For Services as Directors. Directors of corporations, like other trustees,[33] presumptively serve without compensation, and are not entitled to claim compensation for their services, unless the governing statute or some by-law, regulation, resolution, or contract, made or assented to by the corporation at large, and not merely by the directors themselves, gives it to them. The scope of this rule is such that they are not entitled to recover from the corporation compensation for any services incidental to their office of director.[34] The law does not imply a promise to pay for such services, although rendered to the corporation upon 29. Heald v. Owen, 79 Iowa 23, 44 N. W. 210; Stone v. Fenno, 6 Allen (Mass.) 579.

30. Ashhurst v. Mason, L. R. 20 Eq. 225, 44 L. J. Ch. 337, 23 Wkly. Rep. 506.

Construction of a statute providing that an officer of a corporation who has paid a debt for which by the statute he is made liable shall have no claim against the shareholders individually for contribution, so as to deprive a director of this right, who had paid a judgment rendered against himself as indorser of a note of the corporation, issued with his consent, but in excess of the statutory limit of indebtedness. Connecticut River Sav. Bank v. Fiske, 62 N. H. 178.

Statutes granting or withholding the right to contribution.— Numerous statutes have been enacted granting to or withholding from directors who have incurred statutory liability which they have been obliged to satisfy the right to contribution or subrogation. See 3 Thompson Corp. § 4378, where some of these statutes are collected.

31. Hill v. Frazier, 22 Pa. St. 320.

32. Smith v. Morrill, 54 Me. 48 [cited in Coolidge v. Wiggin, 62 Me. 568].

33. American Cent. R. Co. v. Miles, 52 Ill. 174.

34. California.— Brown v. Valley View Min. Co., 127 Cal. 630, 60 Pac. 424, cannot recover compensation for doing what he should have done as a director.

Colorado.— Brown v. Republican Mountain Silver Mines, 17 Colo. 421, 30 Pac. 66, 16 L. R. A. 426.

Connecticut.— New York, etc., R. Co. v. Ketchum, 27 Conn. 170.

Georgia.— Burns v. Beck, 83 Ga. 471, 10 S. E. 121.

Illinois.— Holder v. Lafayette, etc., R. Co., 71 Ill. 106, 22 Am. Rep. 89; Cheeney v. Lafayette, etc., R. Co., 68 Ill. 570, 18 Am. Rep. 584; Rockford, etc., R. Co. v. Sage, 65 Ill. 328, 16 Am. Rep. 587; Merrick v. Peru Coal Co., 61 Ill. 472; American Cent. R. Co. v. Miles, 52 Ill. 174.

Indiana.— Maux Ferry Gravel Road Co. v. Branegan, 40 Ind. 361.

Massachusetts.— Pew v. Gloucester First Nat. Bank, 130 Mass. 391; Sawyer v. Pawner's Bank, 6 Allen 207.

Michigan.— Eakins v. American White Bronze Co., 75 Mich. 568, 42 N. W. 982.

New Hampshire.— Smith v. Putnam, 61 N. H. 632.

New York.— Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317; Fitchett v. Murphy, 26 Misc. 544, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 322 (and the fact that each director refrained from voting on the resolution fixing his own salary does not alter the case); Pierson v. Thompson, 1 Edw. 212. That a trustee of a corporation organized under the Manufacturing Act (N. Y. Laws (1848), c. 40) cannot recover for services rendered to the corporation see McDowall v. Sheehan, 129 N. Y. 200, 29 N. E. 299 [reversing 59 Hun 618, 13 N. Y. Suppl. 386, 36 N. Y. St. 104].

Oregon.— Wood v. Lost Lake Mfg. Co., 23 Oreg. 20, 23 Pac. 848, 37 Am. St. Rep. 651.

Pennsylvania.— Martindale v. Wilson-Cass Co., 134 Pa. St. 348, 19 Atl. 680, 19 Am. St. Rep. 706; Kilpatrick v. Penrose Ferry Bridge Co., 49 Pa. St. 118, 88 Am. Dec. 497; Accomrequest; since a person rendering gratuitous services in the line of his legal duty does not thereby raise an implication that they are to be paid for by request of the party benefited by them.[35]

2. CANNOT VOTE THEMSELVES SALARIES OR COMPENSATION. The principle that directors cannot deal for themselves with the corporation[36] necessarily precludes them from voting compensation for themselves either before or after the rendition of the services for which the compensation is voted.[37] Such a resolution is void, as being a promise without a consideration, and hence it cannot be enforced in an action;[38] and in an action founded on such a resolution it is not admissible in evidence.[39] The director who claims compensation for his services being disqualified from voting on the question,[40] if he is necessary to make up a quorum of the board,[41] or if his vote is necessary to the result,[42] the resolution will be void in the sense already stated. But where his vote is not necessary to the adoption of such a resolution it will not necessarily be void, although he may have voted for it.[43]

3. CANNOT VOTE THEMSELVES "BACK PAY" FOR SERVICES ALREADY RENDERED. Especially is it the law that directors cannot vote themselves compensation for modation Loan, etc., Assoc. v. Stonemetz, 29 Pa. St. 534.

Vermont.— Hall v. Vermont, etc., R. Co., 28 Vt. 401.

Washington.— Burns v. Commencement Bay Land, etc., Co., 4 Wash. 558, 30 Pac. 668, 709.

United States.— Fitzgerald, etc., Constr. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 137 U. S. 98, 11 S. Ct. 36, 34 L. ed. 608.

England.— In re Newman, [1895] 1 Ch. D. 674, 64 L. J. Ch. 407 (holding that shareholders have no power as against creditors of the company to authorize the making of presents to the directors out of money borrowed by the company); Dunston v. Imperial Gas Light, etc., Co., 3 B. & Ad. 125, 1 L. J. K. B. 49, 23 E. C. L. 63.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 1334.

Valuable notes on the compensation of officers and agents of corporations will be found in 3 L. R. A. 378; 23 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 616; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 277.

35. Rockford, etc., R. Co. v. Sage, 65 Ill. 328, 16 Am. Rep. 587; American Cent. R. Co. v. Miles, 52 Ill. 174; Accommodation Loan, etc., Assoc. v. Stonemetz, 29 Pa. St. 534.

36. Duncomb v. New York, etc., R. Co., 84 N. Y. 190; Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312, 53 Am. Dec. 624. See supra, IX, G, 1.

37. California.— Zellerbach v. Allenberg, 99 Cal. 57, 33 Pac. 786; Wickersham v. Crittenden, 93 Cal. 17, 28 Pac. 788; Shattuck v. Oakland Smelting, etc., Co., 58 Cal. 550; Chamberlain v. Pacific Wool-Growing Co., 54 Cal. 103.

Connecticut.— Mallory v. Mallory Wheeler Co., 61 Conn. 131, 23 Atl. 708; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Ketchum, 27 Conn. 170.

Indiana.— Maux Ferry Gravel Road Co. v. Branegan, 40 Ind. 361.

Michigan.— Miner v. Belle Isle Ice Co., 93 Mich. 97, 53 N. W. 218, 17 L. R. A. 412.

Minnesota.— Jones v. Morrison, 31 Minn. 140, 16 N. W. 854.

Missouri.— Ward v. Davidson, 89 Mo. 445, 1 S. W. 846; Davis Mill Co. v. Bennett, 39 Mo. App. 460; Bennett v. St. Louis Car Roofing Co., 19 Mo. App. 349.

New Jersey.— Gardner v. Butler, 30 N. J. Eq. 702.

New York.— Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317 [affirming 38 Barb. 181]; Copeland v. Johnson Mfg. Co., 47 Hun 235; MacNaughton v. Osgood, 41 Hun 109, 3 N. Y. St. 795; Kelsey v. Sargent, 40 Hun 150; Blatchford v. Ross, 54 Barb. 42, 5 Abb. Pr. N. S. 434, 37 How. Pr. 110. Contra, and alone, McNab v. McNab, etc., Mfg. Co., 62 Hun 18, 16 N. Y. Suppl. 448, 41 N. Y. St. 906.

Pennsylvania.— Accommodation Loan, etc., Assoc. v. Stonemetz, 29 Pa. St. 534.

United States.— Doe v. Northwestern Coal, etc., Co., 78 Fed. 62.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 1340.

38. Gardner v. Butler, 30 N. J. Eq. 702; Copeland v. Johnson Mfg. Co., 47 Hun (N. Y.) 235; Accommodation Loan, etc., Assoc. v. Stonemetz, 29 Pa. St. 534.

39. Shattuck v. Oakland Smelting, etc., Co., 58 Cal. 550.

40. See supra, IX, G, 5, d; IX, I, 10.

41. Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317.

42. Wickersham v. Crittenden, 93 Cal. 17, 28 Pac. 788; R. T. Davis Mill Co. v. Bennett, 39 Mo. App. 460; Copeland v. Johnson Mfg. Co., 47 Hun (N. Y.) 235.

For examples of devices resorted to, but unsuccessfully, to evade this principle see Mallory v. Mallory Wheeler Co., 61 Conn. 131, 23 Atl. 708.

Application of this doctrine to an attempt of officers of a corporation to reduce their salaries see Richard Thompson Co. v. Brooks, 14 N. Y. Suppl. 370, 37 N. Y. St. 506. That an agreement between the president and the directors whereby the president is to forego his salary is void for want of consideration and mutuality see Snow v. Russell Coe Fertilizer Co., 58 Hun (N. Y.) 134, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 492, 33 N. Y. St. 959.

43. Clark v. American Coal Co., 86 Iowa 436, 53 N. W. 291, 17 L. R. A. 557. See services as directors previously rendered, unless the power to do so has been granted by the by-laws or other governing instrument.[44]

4. Cannot Recover Compensation For "Extra" Services Incidental to Their Official Duties. Directors cannot recover compensation from the corporation for services, although of an extraordinary character, which they may have undertaken by virtue of their office,[45] unless such services are clearly and unquestionably beyond the range of their official duties,[46] or unless they were rendered under such circumstances as warrants the conclusion that it was understood by the proper corporate officers as well as by the director himself that they were to be paid for.[47]

5. May Recover Compensation For Services Clearly Outside Their Duties as Directors. On the other hand a director or other fiduciary officer of a corporation can recover, on an express or an implied assumpsit, compensation for services rendered the corporation provided such services are clearly outside the scope of Ashley v. Kinnan, 2 N. Y. Suppl. 574, 18 N. Y. St. 791.

44. California.— Ashton v. Dashaway Assoc., 84 Cal. 61, 22 Pac. 660, 23 Pac. 1091, 7 L. R. A. 809.

Connecticut.— New York, etc., R. Co. v. Ketchum, 27 Conn. 170.

Georgia.— Burns v. Back, 83 Ga. 471, 10 S. E. 121.

Illinois.— Gridley v. Lafayette, etc., R. Co., 71 Ill. 200; Holder v. Lafayette, etc., R. Co., 71 Ill. 106, 22 Am. Rep. 89.

Indiana.— Blue v. Capital Nat. Bank, 145 Ind. 518, 43 N. E. 655; Maux Ferry Gravel Road Co. v. Branegan, 40 Ind. 361.

Iowa.— Schoening v. Schwenk, 112 Iowa 733, 84 N. W. 916, by-law authorizing directors to fix salaries of officers and employees does not authorize them to vote compensation to themselves.

Michigan.— Eakins v. American White Bronze Co., 75 Mich. 568, 42 N. W. 982.

Minnesota.— Jones v. Morrison, 31 Minn. 140, 16 N. W. 854.

Missouri.— Bennett v. St. Louis Car Roofing Co., 19 Mo. App. 349.

New Hampshire.— Smith v. Putnam, 61 N. H. 632.

New York.— Butts v. Woods, 37 N. Y. 317; Hofheimer v. American Distributing Co., 34 N. Y. App. Div. 628, 54 N. Y. Suppl. 270; Fitchett v. Murphy, 26 Misc. 544, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 322.

Ohio.— State v. People's Mut. Ben. Assoc., 42 Ohio St. 579.

Oregon.— Wood v. Lost Lake Mfg. Co., 23 Oreg. 20, 23 Pac. 848, 37 Am. St. Rep. 651.

Pennsylvania.— Martindale v. Wilson-Cass Co., 134 Pa. St. 348, 19 Atl. 680, 26 Wkly. Notes Cas. 48, 19 Am. St. Rep. 706; Kilpatrick v. Penrose Ferry Bridge Co., 49 Pa. St. 118, 88 Am. Dec. 497; Accommodation Loan, etc., Assoc. v. Stonemetz, 29 Pa. St. 534.

Rhode Island.— Flynn v. Columbus Club, 21 R. I. 534, 45 Atl. 551.

Vermont.— Henry v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 27 Vt. 435.

West Virginia.—Ravenswood, etc., R. Co. v. Woodyard, 46 W. Va. 558, 33 S. E. 285.

United States.— National Loan, etc., Co. v. Rockland Co., 94 Fed. 335, 36 C. C. A. 370; In re Grubbs-Wiley Grocery Co., 96 Fed. 183 (that a resolution or by-law of a corporation entered of record is necessary to make a valid contract to pay one of the directors for his services as managing officer); Stewart v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 41 Fed. 736.

England.— In re Newman, [1895] 1 Ch. 674, 64 L. J. Ch. 407, unless authorized to do so by the governing instrument of the company, or by the shareholders at a meeting properly convened.

Canada.— Gardner v. Canadian Manufacturer Pub. Co., 31 Ont. 488.

45. Cheeney v. Lafayette, etc., R. Co., 68 Ill. 570, 18 Am. Rep. 584; Pew v. Gloucester First Nat. Bank, 130 Mass. 391; Pierson v. Thompson, 1 Edw. (N. Y.) 212; Hodges v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 29 Vt. 220.

46. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Ketchum, 27 Conn. 170.

47. Brown v. Republican Mountain Silver Mines, 17 Colo. 421, 30 Pac. 66, 16 L. R. A. 426.

For the extreme doctrine that the director is entitled to no compensation, although the services were performed outside of his ordinary duties as director, and that a resolution of the board allowing compensation for such services imposes no duty on the corporation to pay for them, see Mobile Branch Bank v. Scott, 7 Ala. 107; Mobile Branch Bank v. Collins, 7 Ala. 95.

Illustrations of the doctrine that directors cannot claim compensation for their services see Holder v. Lafayette, etc., R. Co., 71 Ill. 106, 22 Am. Rep. 89 (holding that a director serving as treasurer cannot afterward claim compensation for so serving unless his compensation had been previously fixed by the board); Cheeney v. Lafayette, etc., R. Co., 68 Ill. 570, 18 Am. Rep. 584 (railway director cannot recover for services as a member of the executive committee in making efforts to contract for the construction of the road); Stacy v. State Bank, 5 Ill. 91 (cannot claim a reward offered by the bank for the discovery of a robber); Pew v. Gloucester First Nat. Bank, 130 Mass. 391 (holding that a director and president of a bank who received his duties as such director or officer.[48] If the directors appoint one of their number an agent of the corporation to perform ministerial acts or transact business such as might be performed by an agent who is not a director he will be entitled to compensation therefor.[49] Special services rendered by a director in soliciting subscriptions of stock or in procuring a right of way in case of a railroad company;[50] in acting as land commissioner and attorney;[51] in acting as attorney, and also in procuring aid notes, right of way, and enlisting capitalists in the enterprise, it being a railroad company;[52] in rendering services to the company as its general counsel;[53] as superintendent, treasurer, and general manager;[54] as secretary under a resolution of appointment which does not specify his compensation;[55] as commander of one of the boats of the corporation, it being a steam-navigation company and he being its president;[56] or for services a salary as president could not recover from the bank additional compensation for acting as a member on "a committee on alterations and repairs"); Ogden v. Murray, 39 N. Y. 202 (holding that the directors of a foreign steamship company cannot create a trust in certain of their own number who are American citizens, for the purpose of giving their steamships the privileges of American vessels, and thereby creating a claim to compensation in favor of such trustees for the performance of their duties as trustees); Pierson v. Thompson, 1 Edw. (N. Y.) 212 (directors appointed by the bank to subscribe for a certain amount of stock in the corporation); Hodges v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 29 Vt. 220 (that a director could not in addition to or in lieu of the compensation provided by a resolution of the board claim a commission for negotiating the bonds of the corporation).

48. California.— Bassett v. Fairchild, 132 Cal. 637, 64 Pac. 1082, 52 L. R. A. 611, 61 Pac. 791, holding that the action of the directors in granting compensation for such services may be ratified so as to exonerate the directors from personal liability therefor as for a wrongful expenditure of corporate funds.

Colorado.— Ruby Chief Min., etc., Co. v. Prentice, 25 Colo. 4, 52 Pac. 210; Brown v. Republican Mountain Silver Mine, 17 Colo. 421, 30 Pac. 66, 16 L. R. A. 426.

Illinois.— Gridley v. Lafayette, etc., R. Co., 71 Ill. 200; Lafayette, etc., R. Co. v. Cheeney, 68 Ill. 570, 18 Am. Rep. 584, 87 Ill. 446.

Indiana.— Greensboro, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Stratton, 120 Ind. 294, 22 N. E. 247; Prilliman v. Mendenhall, 120 Ind. 279, 22 N. E. 247.

Iowa.— Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Elliott, 55 Iowa 104, 7 N. W. 470, 39 Am. Rep. 167, doctrine recognized.

Kentucky.— Huffaker v. Krieger, 107 Ky. 200, 53 S. W. 288, 21 Ky. L. Rep. 887, 46 L. R. A. 384, holding that the court would not under the circumstances disturb the action of the board in voting compensation for the services of certain of its members at the instance of a dissenting shareholder.

Maryland.— Santa Clara Min. Assoc. v. Meredith, 49 Md. 389, 33 Am. Rep. 264.

New Jersey.— Evans v. Trenton, 24 N. J. L. 764, 769; Chandler v. Monmouth Bank, 13 N. J. L. 255.

Ohio.— In re Armleder Plumbing Co., 11 Ohio Cir. Dec. 320, holding that a director performing special services under a contract with the corporation is an "operative" and is entitled to have his wages preferred under a statute. Compare Williams v. Southard, 8 Ohio S. & C. Pl. Dec. 693, holding the contrary.

Vermont.— Hodges v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 29 Vt. 220; Henry v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 27 Vt. 435.

West Virginia.— Griffith v. Blackwater Boom, etc., Co., 46 W. Va. 56, 33 S. E. 125.

United States.— Fitzgerald, etc., Constr. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 137 U. S. 98, 11 S. Ct. 36, 34 L. ed. 608.

49. Illinois.— Lafayette, etc., R. Co. v. Cheeney, 68 Ill. 570, 18 Am. Rep. 584, 87 Ill. 446.

Kentucky.— Waller v. State Bank, 3 J. J. Marsh. 201.

Mississippi.— Shackelford v. New Orleans, etc., R. Co., 37 Miss. 202, holding that a director is not bound to perform any services outside of his duties as a director, and that if he does he will be entitled to compensation therefor.

Missouri.— Beach v. Stoffer, 84 Mo. App. 395, holding that the compensation of the director for services outside of his office of director should be fixed before the services are rendered.

New Jersey.— Chandler v. Monmouth Bank, 13 N. J. L. 255.

New York.— Utica Ins. Co. v. Bloodgood, 4 Wend. 652, holding that the implication of an agreement to pay for such outside services may be repelled by a long lapse of time during which no claim is made therefor.

50. Cheeney v. Lafayette, etc., R. Co., 68 Ill. 570, 18 Am. Rep. 584, 87 Ill. 446.

51. Rogers v. Hastings, etc., R. Co., 22 Minn. 25.

52. Ten Eyck v. Pontiac, etc., R. Co., 74 Mich. 226, 41 N. W. 905, 16 Am. St. Rep. 633, 3 L. R. A. 378.

53. Watts v. West Virginia Southern R. Co., 48 W. Va. 262, 37 S. E. 700.

54. Fitzgerald, etc., Constr. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 134 U. S. 98, 11 S. Ct. 36, 34 L. ed. 608.

55. Rogers v. Hastings, etc., R. Co., 22 Minn. 25.

56. New Orleans, etc., Packet Co. v. Brown, 36 La. Ann. 138, 51 Am. Rep. 5.

rendered by the president and director of a mining company in obtaining an option for certain lands, for obtaining a loan in London, and in procuring the surrender and cancellation of the first-mortgage bonds of the company, which surrender and cancellation were necessary to obtaining a loan, which services were either previously authorized or subsequently ratified by the corporation,[57] must be paid for by the corporation under that rule.

6. RIGHT TO COMPENSATION FOR SERVICES RENDERED PRIOR TO ORGANIZATION OF CORPORATION. In the view of some courts there can be no recovery by a director for services rendered as a promoter prior to the organization of the corporation.[58] Some courts on the contrary as already seen[59] hold a corporation liable for services necessarily rendered in bringing it into existence, on a theory resembling that of ratification; the corporation takes the benefit of the acts thus done in its favor and takes them cum onere.[60]

7. FORM OF RELIEF IN CASE OF MONEY MISAPPROPRIATED BY DIRECTORS IN PAYMENT OF COMPENSATION TO THEMSELVES. As already shown the form of relief varies according to the circumstances of the case and it may be an action at law by the corporation,[61] a suit in equity by the corporation proceeding upon the jurisdictional grounds of fraud and trust,[62] or an action by a single shareholder suing for himself and others,[63] where those in control of the corporation refuse to sue, in which latter case the action is always in equity.[64] And it may follow the suggestions given in the marginal notes.[65]

57. Santa Clara Min. Assoc. v. Meredith, 49 Md. 389, 33 Am. Rep. 264.

Circumstances under which a promoter was not entitled to share in the compensation offered by the proprietor of certain lands, to the promoters of a corporation organized to promote the sale of such lands. Armstrong v. Ebener, 46 N. J. Eq. 457, 19 Atl. 265.

58. Connecticut.— New York, etc., R. Co. v. Ketchum, 27 Conn. 170.

Illinois.— Rockford, etc., R. Co. v. Sage, 65 Ill. 328, 16 Am. Rep. 587; Safety Deposit L. Ins. Co. v. Smith, 65 Ill. 309.

Maryland.— Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Hart, 31 Md. 59.

New Jersey.— Armstrong v. Ebener, 46 N. J. Eq. 457, 19 Atl. 265.

New York.— Blatchford v. Ross, 54 Barb. 42, 5 Abb. Pr. N. S. 434, 37 How. Pr. 110 (holding that the executive committee of a company had no right to vote money to themselves, and that if they vote large sums for those services it will afford good grounds for the appointment of a receiver); Van Valkenburg v. Thomasville, etc., R. Co., 4 N. Y. Suppl. 782, 22 N. Y. St. 379.

Pennsylvania.— Tifft v. Quaker City Nat. Bank, 8 Pa. Co. Ct. 606.

See also supra, I, Q, 4.

59. See supra, I, Q. 4.

60. Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Christy, 79 Pa. St. 54, 21 Am. Rep. 39. Compare Mobile Branch Bank v. Collins, 7 Ala. 95; Twelfth St. Market Co. v. Jackson, 102 Pa. St. 269; Allentown First Nat. Bank v. Hoch, 89 Pa. St. 324, 33 Am. Rep. 769.

That the services for which the corporation may be thus charged must have been authorized by a majority of the shareholders and that the promise of a single shareholder will not be sufficient see Tift v. Quaker City Nat. Bank, 141 Pa. St. 550, 21 Atl. 660.

Power of equity to restrain exorbitant payments.— Untenable holding that a court of equity has no power at the suit of a minority shareholder to restrain the payment of exorbitant salaries. Fitchett v. Murphy, 46 N. Y. App. Div. 181, 61 N. Y. Suppl. 182 [reversed in 26 Misc. (N. Y.) 544, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 322].

Provision in articles of incorporation that directors shall be entitled to receive a certain sum "by way of remuneration in each year," under which no remuneration can be claimed except for a full year of service. Salton v. New Beeston Cycle Co., [1899] 1 Ch. 775, 68 L. J. Ch. 370, 80 L. T. Rep. N. S. 521, 6 Manson 238, 47 Wkly. Rep. 462, where it was held that the right of a director to compensation under a provision of the articles that the board shall be entitled to receive in each year £5,000, not dependent on his subscribing for the amount of shares which the articles make necessary for the qualification of a director. See also In re Anglo-Austrian Printing, etc., Co., [1892] 2 Ch. 158, 61 L. J. Ch. 481, 66 L. T. Rep. N. S. 593, 40 Wkly. Rep. 518, where the next preceding case was followed.

61. See supra, IX, N, 1, a.

62. See supra, IX, N, 1, b.

63. See infra, XI, F, 1, b, (III).

64. See infra, XI, B, 7.

65. That the officers of the corporation have no lien on the votes of the corporation for their services see Emporium Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Emrie, 54 Ill. 345. So held in case of the cashier of an insolvent bank in Bruyn v. Middle Dist. Bank, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 584.

That a court of equity will compel the reassignment of choses in action belonging to the corporation which have been improperly assigned to officers for their compensation see

X. MINISTERIAL OFFICERS AND AGENTS.

A. The President — 1. His Powers — a. As Presiding Officer. The president of a private corporation is, as the term implies, the presiding officer of its board of directors and of its shareholders when convened in general meeting.[66]

b. As an Agent — (I) In General. The office itself, however, confers no power to bind the corporation or control its property.[67] The president's power as an agent must be sought in the organic law of the corporation, in a delegation of authority from it, directly or through its board of directors, formally expressed or implied from a habit or custom of doing business.[68]

(II) Implied Powers — (A) In General. On the one hand in a corporation in which business transactions are few and carried on entirely by its board of trustees, the president exercises the functions of a presiding officer merely; unaccustomed to act for the corporation he has no powers as an agent not specially conferred.[69] On the other hand in a large business corporation, where its board of directors meets at long intervals and the management of its ordinary business is left entirely in the hands of its president, he is invested with large authority as its representative. Accustomed to act for the corporation daily in a multitude of transactions he has the power of a general agent in its usual course of business.[70]

t

Emporium Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Emrie, 54 Ill. 345.

That an assignee of the corporation can maintain an action to recover money taken by the directors to themselves as payment for past services see Smith v. Putnam, 61 N. H. 632.

That a court of equity will open its door to a shareholder where those in charge of the machinery of the corporation refuse to sue and recover the money or property lost by such breaches of trust see Wickersham v. Crittenden, 93 Cal. 17, 28 Pac. 788; Jones v. Morrison, 31 Minn. 140, 16 N. W. 854; MacNaughton v. Osgood, 41 Hun (N. Y.) 109, 3 N. Y. St. 795; Butts v. Wood, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 181 [affirmed in 37 N. Y. 317].

For various other holdings respecting the kind of relief available in such cases see Jennery v. Olmstead, 105 N. Y. 654 (holding that if the officer who has illegally appropriated compensation voted to him by the directors is under bond it may be recovered in an action on the bond); MacNaughton v. Osgood, 41 Hun (N. Y.) 109, 3 N. Y. St. 795 (holding that in an action by a shareholder the burden is upon plaintiff to make out a case and show that the corporation ought to have exercised its right to avoid the resolution made by the directors); Butts v. Wood, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 181 [affirmed in 37 N. Y. 317, circumstances under which one shareholder, suing in behalf of himself and the others, had the right to set aside a vote of money to pay the treasurer for his services when the quorum of directors consisted of the treasurer himself, his father, and another relative]. See also Ellis v. Ward, 137 Ill. 509, 25 N. E. 530, holding that the directors voting compensation to an officer of the company for past services may become personally liable, as for a breach of trust, for what is thereby lost to the corporation.

66. 4 Thompson Corp. § 4611.

67. Wait v. Nashua Armory Assoc., 66 N. H. 581, 23 Atl. 77, 49 Am. St. Rep. 630, 14 L. R. A. 356; Lyndon Mill Co. v. Lyndon Literary, etc., Inst., 63 Vt. 581, 22 Atl. 575, 25 Am. St. Rep. 783; Almon v. Law, 26 Nova Scotia 340.

68. Crawford v. Albany Ice Co., 36 Oreg. 535, 60 Pac. 14.

69. Wait v. Nashua Armory Assoc., 66 N. H. 581, 23 Atl. 77, 49 Am. St. Rep. 630, 14 L. R. A. 356; Lyndon Mill Co. v. Lyndon Literary, etc., Inst., 63 Vt. 581, 22 Atl. 575, 25 Am. St. Rep. 783.

70. California.— Siebe v. Joshua Hendy Mach. Works, 86 Cal. 390, 25 Pac. 14.

Illinois.—Anderson v. South Chicago Brewing Co., 173 Ill. 213, 50 N. E. 655 [reversing 67 Ill. App. 300]; Smith v. Smith, 62 Ill. 493; Voris v. Renshaw, 49 Ill. 425; Moser v. Kreigh, 49 Ill. 84; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Boone County, 44 Ill. 240; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Coleman, 18 Ill. 297, 68 Am. Dec. 544; Gubbins v. Bank of Commerce, 79 Ill. App. 150.

Kansas.— Topeka Primary Assoc. v. Martin, 39 Kan. 750, 18 Pac. 941.

Kentucky.— Kenton Ins. Co. v. Bowman, 84 Ky. 430, 1 S. W. 717, 8 Ky. L. Rep. 467.

Louisiana.— Marlatt v. Levee Steam Cotton Press Co., 10 La. 583, 29 Am. Dec. 468.

Michigan.— Ceeder v. H. M. Loud, etc., Lumber Co., 86 Mich. 541, 49 N. W. 575, 24 Am. St. Rep. 134.

Missouri.— Sparks v. Dispatch Transfer Co., 104 Mo. 531, 15 S. W. 417, 24 Am. St. Rep. 361, 12 L. R. A. 714; Bambrick v. Campbell, 37 Mo. App. 460.

New York.— Quee Drug Co. v. Plaut, 55 N. Y. App. Div. 87, 67 N. Y. Suppl. 10; Hudson River, etc., R. Co. v. Hanfield, 36 N. Y. App. Div. 605, 55 N. Y. Suppl. 877.

Pennsylvania.— Dougherty v. Hunter, 54 Pa. St. 380; Baltimore, etc., Steam Boat Co. v. McCutcheon, 13 Pa. St. 13; Grafius v. Land Co., 3 Phila. 447, 16 Leg. Int. 292.

Between these two extremes the implied powers of a president as an agent vary with the nature of the corporation's business and the custom of conducting it.[71] The "usual course of business" of the corporation is the limit of those powers, and as the meaning of this phrase depends so largely upon the facts of each particular case the use of general terms in defining them can lead only to confusion and apparent conflict. More profit can be derived from collating the instances in which such powers have been admitted and the instances in which they have been denied.

(B) Particular Powers Implied. The following powers have been implied in a president acting in the usual course of the business his corporation is engaged in: To make ordinary sales in the course of business of the goods or commodities in which the corporation deals;[72] to prosecute and defend ordinary litigation of the corporation and appoint attorneys to that end;[73] to indorse its negotiable paper for the purpose of transferring title in the ordinary course of business;[74]

South Carolina.— Lancaster County v. Cheraw, etc., R. Co., 5 S. C. 338, 28 S. C. 134.

Virginia.— Richmond, etc., R. Co. v. Snead, 19 Gratt. 354, 100 Am. Dec. 670.

The possession of certain powers necessarily implies the possession of certain other powers. Thus it has been held on the one hand that where he has power to contract with reference to a given subject-matter so as to bind the corporation, he may release a party to a contract or may substitute another party in his stead. Indianapolis Rolling-Mill Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 26 Fed. 140. And on the other hand that where he has no power to contract with reference to a given subject-matter he cannot affirm an unauthorized contract made by a former president. Lyndon Mill Co. v. Lyndon Literary, etc., Inst., 63 Vt. 581, 22 Atl. 575, 25 Am. St. Rep. 783.

71. See Terre Haute Nat. State Bank v. Vigo County Nat. Bank, 141 Ind. 352, 40 N. E. 799, 50 Am. St. Rep. 330.

72. Horton Ice Cream Co. v. Merritt, 17 N. Y. Suppl. 718, 43 N. Y. St. 416.

73. California.— Streeten v. Robinson, 102 Cal. 542, 36 Pac. 946.

Illinois.— Wetherbee v. Fitch, 117 Ill. 67, 7 N. E. 513; Boston Tailoring House v. Fisher, 59 Ill. App. 400.

Kansas.— Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Berry, 53 Kan. 696, 37 Pac. 131, 24 L. R. A. 719; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Grove, 39 Kan. 731, 18 Pac. 958.

Louisiana.— Bright v. Metairie Cemetery Assoc., 33 La. Ann. 58.

Massachusetts.— Smith's Charities v. Connolly, 157 Mass. 272, 31 N. E. 1058; Bristol County Sav. Bank v. Keavy, 128 Mass. 298.

Nebraska.— Johnston v. Milwaukee, etc., Invest. Co., 46 Nebr. 480, 64 N. W. 1100.

Nevada.— Reno Water Co. v. Leete, 17 Nev. 203, 30 Pac. 702.

New Jersey.—Beebe v. Beebe Co., 64 N. J. L. 497, 46 Atl. 168.

New York.— Oakley v. Working Men's Union Benev. Soc., 2 Hilt. 487; American Ins. Co. v. Oakley, 9 Paige 496, 38 Am. Dec. 561.

Oregon.— Lucky Queen Min. Co. v. Abraham, 26 Oreg. 282, 38 Pac. 65.

Texas.— Dallas Ice-Factory, etc., Co. v. Crawford, 18 Tex. Civ. App. 176, 44 S. W. 875.

West Virginia.— Coleman v. West Virginia Oil, etc., Co., 25 W. Va. 148.

United States.— Davis v. Memphis City R. Co., 22 Fed. 883.

The president, appearing for the body in a civil action, must be regarded as its attorney in fact for this purpose. Oakley v. Working Men's Union Benev. Soc., 2 Hilt. (N. Y.) 487.

Whether suit against corporation or president.— But the suit must be filed against the corporation by name and not against its president as such officer. Pentz v. Sackett, Lalor (N. Y.) 113; Ogdensburgh Bank v. Van Rensselaer, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 240; Delafield v. Kinney, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 345. A banking association organized under the New York Banking Law of 1838 might be sued in the name of its president; but in such suit the debt or contract must be laid as that of the corporation, not as that of "the defendant." Ogdensburgh Bank v. Van Rensselaer, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 240; Delafield v. Kinney, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 345. Compare Hunt v. Van Alstyne, 25 Wend. (N. Y.) 605. Effect of the death of a president of a corporation in whose name an action has been brought. Wright v. Rogers, 26 Ind. 218. Conversely a declaration by one styling himself president, etc., is not a declaration of the corporation as plaintiff. In such case the title of office is merely descriptio personæ. Hunt v. Van Alstyne, 25 Wend. (N. Y.) 605.

An affidavit made by the president, secretary, or other proper officer or agent of the corporation, when the corporation is a party to the suit, is in legal contemplation an affidavit made by the corporation. New Brunswick Steamboat, etc., Transp. Co. v. Baldwin, 14 N. J. L. 440; Ex p. Sargeant, 17 Vt. 425.

74. Palmer v. Nassau Bank, 78 Ill. 380; Howland v. Myer, 3 N. Y. 290; Caryl v. McElrath, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 176; Merrill v. Hurley, 6 S. D. 592, 62 N. W. 958, 55 Am. St. Rep. 859; Irwin v. Bailey, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,079, 8 Biss. 523. A bank president with general authority for that purpose from the directors may transfer by his indorsement a to make a promissory note in settlement of an ordinary obligation;[75] when intrusted with the entire management of the corporate business, to execute a bill of sale to secure the corporation's debts;[76] to purchase chattels used in the ordinary course of its business;[77] to guarantee a lease;[78] to pay a broker for effecting sales of the goods in which the corporation deals;[79] to make such an acknowledgment of a debt due by the corporation, it being a bank, as will take it out of the statute of limitations;[80] to waive a provision in an order for goods, inserted by his direction, to the effect that delivery should be made to the manager or foreman of the corporation;[81] to take a conveyance of land to himself in an attempt to save a debt due to the corporation, and his estate will be protected against consequent loss;[82] to assign mortgages given by the subscribers for their note made payable to the bank without a special vote or the use of a corporate seal. Northampton Bank v. Pepoon, 11 Mass. 288; Spear v. Ladd, 11 Mass. 94. There is a holding, however, to the effect that the president of an insurance company, when not authorized by its charter or by-laws to do so, has no authority as president to indorse and negotiate notes belonging to it. New York City Mar. Bank v. Clements, 3 Bosw. (N. Y.) 600. To the effect that the authority of the president of a corporation to indorse its notes must be proved see National Bank of Republic v. Navassa Phosphate Co., 56 Hun (N. Y.) 136, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 929, 30 N. Y. St. 289. But the general rule is that in the absence of any restriction in the charter or in the by-laws known to the party accepting the paper, it may be transferred by the president in accordance with the custom of the company by his official indorsement. Palmer v. Nassau Bank, 78 Ill. 380; Goodrich v. Reynolds, 31 Ill. 490, 83 Am. Dec. 240; Patten v. Moses, 49 Me. 255; New York City Mar. Bank v. Clements, 31 N. Y. 33 [affirming 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 166]; Clark v. Titcomb, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 122; Merchants' Bank v. McColl, 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 473; Caryl v. McElrath, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 176; Chillicothe Branch Ohio State Bank v. Fox, 5 Fed. Cas. No. 2,683, 3 Blatchf. 431. And such a transfer is presumptively valid, and must hence in pleading be denied on oath. Goodrich v. Reynolds, 31 Ill. 490, 83 Am. Dec. 240.

Accommodation paper.— A corporation has no implied power to indorse for the accommodation of others, and consequently no such power is implied in its directors and still less in its president. Ætna Nat. Bank v. Charter Oak L. Ins. Co., 50 Conn. 167; Pick v. Ellinger, 60 Ill. App. 570. But circumstances may exist where such an indorsement will be upheld for the protection of a third person. National Park Bank v. German American Mut. Warehousing, etc., Co., 53 N. Y. Super. Ct. 367.

75. Seeley v. San José Independent Mill, etc., Co., 59 Cal. 22; Consolidated Perfume Co. v. National Bank of Republic, 86 Ill. App. 642; Africa v. Duluth News-Tribune Co., 82 Minn. 283, 84 N. W. 1019, 83 Am. St. Rep. 424; Richmond, etc., R. Co. v. Snead, 19 Gratt. (Va.) 354, 100 Am. Dec. 670.

Paying claims against corporation.— Payment of claims against the corporation by the president binds it where such course is sanctioned by recognized usage or ratification by the board of directors. Perry v. Simpson Waterproof Mfg. Co., 37 Conn. 520; Warren v. Ocean Ins. Co., 16 Me. 439, 33 Am. Dec. 674; Fulton Bank v. New York, etc., Canal Co., 4 Paige (N. Y.) 127; Neiffer v. Knoxville Bank, 1 Head (Tenn.) 162. But the payment of a claim by the president on the verbal direction of a majority of the board of directors, even if regarded as irregularly made, cannot be recovered back in an action against him when the claim is justly due, and there is no good reason for withholding payment of it. New Orleans Bldg. Co. v. Lawson, 11 La. 34.

76. Quee Drug Co. v. Plaut, 55 N. Y. App. Div. 87, 67 N. Y. Suppl. 10.

77. Sparks v. Dispatch Transfer Co., 104 Mo. 531, 15 S. W. 417, 24 Am. St. Rep. 351, 12 L. R. A. 714.

78. Hall v. Ochs, 34 N. Y. App. Div. 103, 54 N. Y. Suppl. 4.

79. Northern Cent. R. Co. v. Bastian, 15 Md. 494; Lee v. Pittsburgh Coal, etc., Co., 56 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 373. But it is not within the scope of the powers of a president of a railroad corporation to promise a person a large fee for finding contractors who would agree to build a portion of the line of his company. Risley v. Indianapolis, etc., R. Co., 1 Hun (N. Y.) 202 [reversed on another point but affirmed as to this in 62 N. Y. 240].

80. Morgan v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 13 Lea (Tenn.) 234.

81. American Cotton Bale Imp. Co. v. Forsgard, (Tex. Civ. App. 1898) 47 S. W. 475.

82. Brown v. Mechanics', etc., Nat. Bank, 12 N. Y. Suppl. 861, 35 N. Y. St. 665.

Evidence insufficient to show that notes were the notes of the bank where they were taken by a bank president in his own name. Tradesmen's Nat. Bank v. Manhattan Lumber Co., 18 N. Y. Suppl. 920.

Rights of a bank under mortgages taken by its president to secure money borrowed by the president and cashier of the bank and loaned to a failing debtor and also to secure a debt owing by such debtor to the president personally. Apperson v. Exchange Bank, 10 S. W. 801, 10 Ky. L. Rep. 943.

Compelling conveyance of legal title.— Where the president of a bank took a conveyance of land in his own name in payment of a debt due the bank, in trust for the use and shares, the same being payable to him;[83] in the president of a street railway company to employ an engineer and bookkeeper for the term of one year;[84] to arrange to renew a debt due the corporation, it being a bank;[85] to certify under the charter that the note sued on is the bona fide property of the incorporated bank which sues;[86] to authorize a broker to sell certain stock which the bank has taken to secure a loan;[87] in the case of a bank, to draw, indorse, and receipt bills of exchange, give certificates of deposit, etc., in the course of ordinary daily business;[88] to assign a judgment recovered by the bank to a trustee for collection;[89] to offer a reward for information tending to the arrest of its absconding teller;[90] in case of a national bank, to guarantee commercial paper on making a sale thereof;[91] and to pledge the bank's deposit kept with another bank as security for loans made to the former.[92]

(c) Particular Powers Not Implied. The following cases, proceeding either upon the theory that the nature of the corporation or the custom of transacting its business gives the president no implied powers, or else that the particular act is beyond the scope of his authority while acting in the usual course of its business, have denied to him the power, without the authorization of the directors, to bind the corporation by a contract with an architect to make plans and specifications for a building which the corporation had been created to erect;[93] to make a contract for the purchase of material to be used in the repairing of a building belonging to the corporation;[94] in case of a railroad company, to make a sale of a quantity of ties belonging to the company, in payment of a debt due by the company;[95] to sell bonds of the company or to make a power of attorney authorizing another to sell them;[96] to dispose of "treasury stock" of the corporation;[97] benefit of the bank, and the interest of the bank was sold and conveyed by a receiver appointed in another state where the bank was situated, it was held that the grantee of the receiver as cestui que trust was entitled to have a decree requiring the widow and heirs at law of the president to convey the legal title to him. Moore v. Munn, 69 Ill. 591.

83. Valk v. Crandall, 1 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 179, holding that he need not use a seal, or that he may assign under his own seal instead of that of the corporation.

84. Trawick v. Peoria, etc., R. Co., 68 Ill. App. 156.

85. Cake v. Pottsville Bank, 116 Pa. St. 264, 9 Atl. 302, 2 Am. St. Rep. 600.

86. Bancroft v. Mobile Branch State Bank, 1 Ala. 230.

87. Sistare v. Best, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 611, sustained on new trial, 88 N. Y. 527.

88. Allison v. Hubbell, 17 Ind. 559; Jones v. Hawkins, 17 Ind. 550. It has been held that a bank president has power to assign the bank's choses in action. Northampton Bank v. Pepoon, 11 Mass. 288; Spear v. Ladd, 11 Mass. 94.

89. To the end that the trustee may maintain an action thereon in connection with a judgment against the same debtor assigned to him by another creditor. Guernsey v. Black Diamond Coal, etc., Co., 99 Iowa 471, 68 N. W. 777.

90. Such action not being prohibited by the by-laws. Minneapolis Bank v. Griffin, 168 Ill. 314, 48 N. E. 154 [affirming 66 Ill. App. 577].

91. In the absence of notice to such purchaser of such paper of the want of such authority. Thomas v. City Nat. Bank, 40 Nebr. 501, 58 N. W. 943, 24 L. R. A. 263.

92. Such power inferred from the course of business which the directors had permitted to grow up. Bell v. Hanover Nat. Bank, 57 Fed. 821.

93. Wait v. Nashua Armory Assoc., 66 N. H. 581, 23 Atl. 77, 49 Am. St. Rep. 630, 14 L. R. A. 356. See also Mathias v. White Sulphur Springs Assoc., 19 Mont. 359, 48 Pac. 624.

94. Lyndon Mill Co. v. Lyndon Literary, etc., Inst., 63 Vt. 581, 22 Atl. 575, 25 Am. St. Rep. 783.

95. Walworth County Bank v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 14 Wis. 325. Or make a contract for work already contracted to be done. Central Trust Co. v. Condon, 67 Fed. 84, 14 C. C. A. 314.

As to the power of the president of a railroad company to make contracts for the construction of the road see Risley v. Indianapolis, etc., R. Co., 1 Hun (N. Y.) 202, 4 Thomps. & C. (N. Y.) 13 [reversed in 62 N. Y. 240]; Queen v. Second Ave. R. Co., 35 N. Y. Super. Ct. 154. Compare Alexander v. Brown, 9 Hun (N. Y.) 641.

96. Titus v. Cairo, etc., R. Co., 37 N. J. L. 98; East Cleveland R. Co. v. Everett, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 205, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 493.

97. Without rendering himself liable to account to the corporation for the proceeds. In re Utica Nat. Brewing Co., 154 N. Y. 268, 48 N. E. 521 [affirming 19 N. Y. App. Div. 627, 46 N. Y. Suppl. 1102].

Antedating issue of stock.— It has been held that he cannot issue a certificate of stock to the corporation bearing date seven years to agree to pay an agent for selling capital stock;[98] to prescribe the mode of selling the shares of the corporation which are to be sold upon an increase of its capital stock, although shareholders have attempted to delegate to him that power;[99] in case of a turnpike company to make a contract for the doing of work and labor for the company;[1] to make a subscription for the payment of a designated sum by the corporation, upon the definite acceptance of specified lots as a site for a post-office building;[2] in case of a railroad company to make an affidavit of local prejudice for the purpose of removing the action to a court of the United States;[3] in case of an insurance company to indorse and negotiate securities belonging to it;[4] in case of a manufacturing company to make a contract for the purchase of supplies, when a resolution forbidding such a purchase stands on the books of the company, although the seller has no notice of the resolution;[5] to change contracts authorized by the directors after they have been made;[6] in case of a gravel-road company to make a contract for the grading of a piece of land between the terminus of his company's road and that of another company;[7] in case of a banking corporation to make admissions which will release the maker of a note held by the bank from his legal responsibility created by the note;[8] to convey the corporate real estate;[9] to mortgage the corporate property;[10] to make a deed of a patent for an invention, upon the possession of which the whole business of the corporation depends;[11] to commence actions on behalf of the corporation or bind it by an appearance in court;[12] to employ counsel so as to make the corporation liable for his services;[13] to confess a judgment against the corporation,[14] especially in favor of himself, thus getting a preference over other creditors;[15] to before. Manhattan L. Ins. Co. v. Forty-Second, etc., Ferry R. Co., 139 N. Y. 146, 34 N. E. 776, 54 N. Y. St. 474.

98. Clarkson v. Keystone Oilcloth Co., 8 Pa. Dist. 593, 23 Pa. Co. Ct. 189, 15 Montg. Co. Rep. (Pa.) 169.

99. Smith v. Franklin Park Land, etc., Co., 168 Mass. 345, 47 N. E. 409.

1. Mt. Sterling, etc., Turnpike Road Co. v. Looney, 1 Metc. (Ky.) 550, 71 Am. Dec. 491.

2. B. S. Green Co. v. Blodgett, 49 Ill. App. 180, 55 Ill. App. 556 [affirmed in 159 Ill. 169, 42 N. E. 176, 50 Am. St. Rep. 146].

3. Mahone v. Manchester, etc., R. Corp., 111 Mass. 72, 15 Am. Rep. 9.

4. New York City Mar. Bank v. Clements, 3 Bosw. (N. Y.) 600. See also Leavitt v. Connecticut Peat Co., 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,170, 6 Blatchf. 139.

But this power will be implied as incident to the execution of the power to adjust and pay all losses of the company conferred by the by-laws. Union Ins. Co. v. Greenleaf, 64 Me. 123; Baker v. Cotter, 45 Me. 236.

5. Westerfield v. Radde, 7 Daly (N. Y.) 326. See also Reed v. Ashburnham R. Co., 120 Mass. 43; Westcott v. Atlantic Silk Co., 3 Metc. (Mass.) 282.

6. Western R. Co. v. Bayne, 11 Hun (N. Y.) 166 [affirmed in 75 N. Y. 1]. Nor have the president and cashier of a banking corporation any power, according to one holding, to modify the terms of a written contract on which the bank has parted with its money. Thompson v. McKee, 5 Dak. 172, 37 N. W. 367.

7. Brooklyn Gravel Road Co. v. Slaughter, 33 Ind. 185.

8. Hodge v. Richmond First Nat. Bank, 22 Gratt. (Va.) 51.

9. Leggett v. New Jersey Mfg., etc., Co., 1 N. J. Eq. 541, 23 Am. Dec. 728; Tempel v. Dodge, 89 Tex. 68, 33 S. W. 222 [rehearing denied in 32 S. W. 514].

10. Union Nat. Bank v. State Nat. Bank, 155 Mo. 95, 55 S. W. 989.

11. Especially for a consideration which does not pass to the corporation. Kansas City Hay Press Co. v. Devol, 72 Fed. 717.

12. Ellsworth Woolen Mfg. Co. v. Faunce, 79 Me. 440, 10 Atl. 250; Globe Works v. Wright, 106 Mass. 207; Ashuelot Mfg. Co. v. Marsh, 1 Cush. (Mass.) 507. See also Markey v. Mutual Ben. L. Ins. Co., 103 Mass. 78; E. Carver Co. v. Manufacturers' Ins. Co., 6 Gray (Mass.) 214; White v. Westport Cotton Mfg. Co., 1 Pick. (Mass.) 215, 11 Am. Dec. 168.

It has been held that he cannot execute a cognovit upon which judgment may be entered against the corporation. Rauh v. Blairstown Creamery Assoc., 56 N. J. L. 262, 28 Atl. 384.

13. Pacific Bank v. Stone, 121 Cal. 202, 53 Pac. 634; Bright v. Metairie Cemetery Assoc., 33 La. Ann. 58.

14. J. W. Butler Paper Co. v. Robbins, 151 Ill. 588, 38 N. E. 153; Lemars Shoe Co. v. Lemars Shoe Mfg. Co., 89 Ill. App. 245; P. P. Mast Buggy Co. v. Litchfield Furniture, etc., Co., 55 Ill. App. 98; Adams v. Cross Wood Printing Co., 27 Ill. App. 313; Joliet Electric Light, etc., Co. v. Ingalls, 23 Ill. App. 45; Stokes v. New Jersey Pottery Co., 46 N. J. L. 237; Mallory v. Kirkpatrick, 54 N. J. Eq. 50, 33 Atl. 205; Smead Foundry Co. v. Chesbrough, 18 Ohio Cir. Ct. 783; Thew v. Porcelain Mfg. Co., 5 S. C. 415. Contra, Chamberlain v. Mammoth Min. Co., 20 Mo. 96.

15. Adams v. Cross Wood Printing Co., 27 Ill. App. 313.

give a power of attorney to another to confess such judgment;[16] under any theory of his powers to alien the corporate property, except in the ordinary course of its business;[17] to assign its property for the benefit of its creditors;[18] to consent to the appointment of a receiver;[19] in general to release the debts due to the corporation or otherwise give away its assets;[20] to change the rate of interest of a mortgage bond in consideration of extension of time of payment;[21] to agree with a vendor of land taking stock in payment to repurchase the stock if he becomes dissatisfied with it;[22] to relieve against the forfeiture of the shares of a member for the non-payment of assessments thereon;[23] to bind the corporation by promissory notes;[24] to borrow money in the name of the corporation and pledge its responsibility therefor;[25] to assign its assets as security therefor;[26] to assign cor-

16. Stokes v. New Jersey Pottery Co., 46 N. J. L. 237. Except where he has authority to execute a contract for property purchased by the corporation, which contract provides for a power of attorney to confess judgment on a note given under it. McDonald v. Chisholm, 131 Ill. 273, 23 N. E. 596 [affirming 30 Ill. App. 176]. But where such a power was formally executed under the corporate seal, the burden is on the party challenging it. Parker v. Washoe Mfg. Co., 49 N. J. L. 465, 9 Atl. 682 [distinguishing Stokes v. New Jersey Pottery Co., 46 N. J. L. 237]. The mere fact that the president is the owner of most of the stock and is also the superintendent and treasurer of the corporation and accustomed to borrow money for its use is not evidence of the possession of such authority. Stokes v. New Jersey Pottery Co., 46 N. J. L. 237.

17. German Nat. Bank v. Hastings First Nat. Bank, 55 Nebr. 86, 75 N. W. 531; Stokes v. New Jersey Pottery Co., 46 N. J. L. 237; Hoyt v. Thompson, 5 N. Y. 320.

Illustrations.— As to sell judgments belonging to it (Merchants' Bank v. Rawls, 7 Ga. 191, 50 Am. Dec. 394); to sell the safe to pay its debts (Asher v. Sutton, 31 Kan. 286, 1 Pac. 535); or to sell its lands (Fitzhugh v. Franco-Texas Land Co., 81 Tex. 306, 36 S. W. 1078). But it has been held that he may without special authority transfer a special tax bill. Bambrick v. Campbell, 37 Mo. App. 460.

18. Alabama.— Gibson v. Goldthwaite, 7 Ala. 281, 42 Am. Dec. 592.

Illinois.— Wagg-Anderson Woolen Co. v. Lesher, 78 Ill. App. 678.

Kansas.— Asher v. Sutton, 31 Kan. 286, 1 Pac. 535.

Massachusetts.— Hallowell, etc., Bank v. Hamlin, 14 Mass. 178.

Missouri.— McKeag v. Collins, 87 Mo. 164; Webb v. Midway Lumber Co., 68 Mo. App. 546.

New York.— Hoyt v. Thompson, 5 N. Y. 320; Schaefer v. Scott, 40 N. Y. App. Div. 438, 57 N. Y. Suppl. 1035.

Oregon.— Luse v. Isthmus Transit R. Co., 6 Oreg. 125, 25 Am. Rep. 506.

Wisconsin.— Walworth County Bank v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 14 Wis. 325.

19. Walters v. Anglo-American Mortg., etc., Co., 50 Fed. 316.

20. Thompson v. McKee, 5 Dak. 172, 37 N. W. 367; State Sav., etc., Co. v. Stewart, 65 Ill. App. 391 (on payment of part only of the debt); Reynolds, etc., Constr. Co. v. Police Jury, 44 La. Ann. 863, 11 So. 236; Hone v. Allen, 1 Sandf. (N. Y.) 171 note; Brouwer v. Appleby, 1 Sandf. (N. Y.) 158; Olney v. Chadsey, 7 R. I. 224; Hodge v. Richmond First Nat. Bank, 22 Gratt. (Va.) 51; Potts v. Wallace, 146 U. S. 689, 13 S. Ct. 196, 36 L. ed. 1135; U. S. Bank v. Dunn, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 51, 8 L. ed. 316.

21. Colton v. Depew, 59 N. J. Eq. 126, 44 Atl. 662 [affirmed in 60 N. J. Eq. 454, 46 Atl. 728].

22. Olds v. Phillipsburg Land Co., (Tenn. Ch. App. 1898) 48 S. W. 285.

23. Weeks v. Silver Islet Consol. Min., etc., Co., 55 N. Y. Super. Ct. 1, 8 N. Y. St. 110 [affirmed in 120 N. Y. 620, 23 N. E. 1152, 29 N. Y. St. 996]. That he cannot release a subscriber to the stock of the corporation see United Growers' Co. v. Eisner, 22 N. Y. App. Div. 1, 47 N. Y. Suppl. 906. But it has been held that a power to contract carries with it a power to release the contract. Indianapolis Rolling Mill Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 120 U. S. 256, 7 S. Ct. 542, 30 L. ed. 639. Other courts have upheld his power to compromise with debtors (Belleville Sav. Bank v. Winslow, 25 Fed. 471) and to enter a remittitur of a judgment after having arranged for its satisfaction (Case v. Hawkins, 53 Miss. 702).

24. Iowa.— Cattron v. Manchester First Universalist Soc., 46 Iowa 106.

New York.— McCullough v. Moss, 5 Den. 567.

Oregon.— Saylor v. Com. Invest., etc., Co., 38 Oreg. 204, 62 Pac. 652; Crawford v. Albany Ice Co., 36 Oreg. 535, 60 Pac. 14.

Pennsylvania.— Hazleton Coal Co. v. Megargel, 4 Pa. St. 324; Worthington v. Schuylkill Electric R. Co., 10 Pa. Super. Ct. 117, 44 Wkly. Notes Cas. 118.

Vermont.— Lyndon Mill Co. v. Lyndon Literary, etc., Inst., 63 Vt. 561, 22 Atl. 575, 25 Am. St. Rep. 783.

25. Hyde v. Larkin, 35 Mo. App. 365; Battin v. Grand Music Conservatory, 27 Misc. (N. Y.) 780, 57 N. Y. Suppl. 740; Life, etc., Ins. Co. v. Mechanics' F. Ins. Co., 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 31. Although facts may exist from which such power may be implied. Spangler v. Butterfield, 6 Colo. 356.

26. Hill v. Marston, 178 Mass. 285, 59 N. E. 766; Hyde v. Larkin, 35 Mo. App. 365.

porate assets as part payment of a corporate debt;[27] to do any act which has the effect of overruling or revoking the action of the directors;[28] to buy or sell land for the corporation;[29] in case of a railroad corporation to grant trackage rights over its land for nine hundred and ninety-nine years;[30] in case of a mining company to make a lease of any portion of its lands;[31] or in case of a bank to dispose of notes belonging to the bank,[32] to accept an order upon a third person in satisfaction of notes held by the bank,[33] to charge the bank with liability for a special deposit contrary to its custom,[34] to honor the checks of a corporation holding a claim against himself but having no deposits in the bank,[35] to sell a horse belonging to the bank,[36] or to bind the bank as surety upon an undertaking for a judicial order of arrest in a proceeding in which the bank is not interested.[37]

(III) When Acting Also as General Manager. The appointment of the president of a corporation to the office of general superintendent or manager necessarily invests him with the powers incident to that office or agency.[38] Or if he has been so held out and has been permitted in that character to act for the corporation it cannot escape liability upon a contract so made by him in the ordinary course of business, on the ground that the same was made without its knowledge or concurrence.[39] In the absence of an express grant of power or of an implication of the possession of power from custom, holding out, or habit of acting, judicial theory has ascribed to the president of various kinds of corporations, when also acting as the general manager of the corporation, the power to

27. Ferguson v. Venice Transp. Co., 79 Mo. App. 352.

28. Madison Ins. Co. v. Griffin, 3 Ind. 277; Tradesmen's Nat. Bank v. Manhattan Lumber Co., 18 N. Y. Suppl. 920, 46 N. Y. St. 487. See also the following cases:

Iowa.— Templin v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 73 Iowa 548, 35 N. W. 634.

Missouri.— McKeag v. Collins, 87 Mo. 164.

Nevada.— Lonkey v. Succor Mill, etc., Co., 10 Nev. 17.

New York.— Western R. Co. v. Bayne, 11 Hun 166 [affirmed in 75 N. Y. 1].

Vermont.— Hodges v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 29 Vt. 220.

United States.— Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. San Diego St. Car Co., 45 Fed. 518.

Where a matter has been committed to another officer or body, as for instance to a committee of directors, the president has no power to act alone with respect thereto. Third Ave. R. Co. v. Ebling, 12 Daly (N. Y.) 99 [reversed on another point in 100 N. Y. 98, 2 N. E. 878].

29. Bliss v. Kaweah Canal, etc., Co., 65 Cal. 502, 4 Pac. 507.

30. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 47 Fed. 15.

31. Yellow Jacket Silver Min. Co. v. Stevenson, 5 Nev. 224.

That the president of a building association has no such power see Kock v. National Union Bldg. Assoc., 35 Ill. App. 465 [affirmed on other grounds in 137 Ill. 497, 27 N. E. 530]. But he may lease an office for the use of the corporation. Steamboat Co. v. McCutcheon, 13 Pa. St. 13.

32. Central City First Nat. Bank v. Lucas, 21 Nebr. 280, 31 N. W. 805. But while a president has no power ex officio to transfer the property and securities of the corporation he may acquire it by a delegation of authority from the directors (Mitchell v. Deeds, 49 Ill. 416, 95 Am. Dec. 621; Stevens v. Hill, 29 Me. 133; Hallowell, etc., Bank v. Hamlin, 14 Mass. 178; Northampton Bank v. Pepoon, 11 Mass. 288; Spear v. Ladd, 11 Mass. 94; Valk v. Crandell, 1 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 179; Curtis v. Swartwout, 1 N. Y. Leg. Obs. 406; Irwin v. Bailey, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,079, 8 Biss. 523) or by a recognized usage of the corporation (Mitchell v. Deeds, 49 Ill. 416, 95 Am. Dec. 621; Brown v. Donnell, 49 Me. 421, 77 Am. Dec. 266; Hoyt v. Thompson, 5 N. Y. 320; Howland v. Myer, 3 N. Y. 290; Clark v. Titcomb, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 122; Elwell v. Dodge, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 336; Merchants' Bank v. McColl, 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 473; Scott v. Johnson, 5 Bosw. (N. Y.) 213; Brouwer v. Harbeck, 1 Duer (N. Y.) 114).

33. Wellsburg First Nat. Bank v. Kimberlands, 16 W. Va. 555.

34. Foster v. Essex Bank, 17 Mass. 479, 9 Am. Dec. 168; Austin v. Daniels, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 299.

35. Dowd v. Stephenson, 105 N. C. 467, 10 S. E. 1101.

36. Greenawalt v. Wilson, 52 Kan. 109, 34 Pac. 403.

37. Long v. Hubbard, 6 Kan. App. 878, 50 Pac. 968.

38. See Seeley v. San Jose Independent Mill, etc., Co., 59 Cal. 22.

But the president has not as such power to appoint a general business manager of the corporation without the consent of the directors. Vogel v. St. Louis Museum, etc., Gallery, 8 Mo. App. 587.

39. Grand Rapids Safety Deposit Co. v. Cincinnati Safe, etc., Co., 45 Fed. 671. See also Sparks v. Dispatch Transfer Co., 104 Mo. 531, 15 S. W. 417, 24 Am. St. Rep. 351, 12 L. R. A. 714; Perkins v. Washington Ins. Co., 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 645.

do any act in the ordinary transaction of its business in behalf of the corporation so as to bind it;[40] in the president of a manufacturing company to employ labor by the season in the ordinary business of the corporation;[41] in the president of a charitable corporation to institute a suit to foreclose a mortgage;[42] in the president of a railway corporation to promise to repay a purchaser of land from the corporation the purchase-money and interest in case the title proves defective;[43] in the president of a stage company to enter into a contract with an individual granting him an equal interest in such contract for carrying mail as the corporation may secure;[44] in the president of a business corporation to make a power of attorney to confess judgment upon procuring the discounting of a note of the corporation.[45] The president of a corporation, acting as its manager and controlling man, may assent to a reformation of a contract negotiated and executed by him in the name of the corporation, by inserting the proper term instead of one embodied therein by mistake.[46] On the other hand judicial theory has denied to the president of a corporation, who is also clothed with the office of its general manager, the power to bind the corporation by the following acts: By executing a note in the name of the corporation to a third person for an account due him from such corporation;[47] by encumbering its property by a mortgage, or by confessing a judgment for money borrowed, although he has been accustomed to borrow money for the corporation;[48] in the president of a railway company to indemnify a subcontractor against loss in consideration of his continuing the construction of the road after he was justified in abandoning it because of a breach of the contract on the part of the principal contractor;[49] in the president of a business corporation to enter into a transaction by which the corporation prefers one of its creditors, being in failing circumstances,[50] or purchase property not required for the common purposes of the corporation.[51]

(iv) When Acting Conjointly With Secretary. If a corporation commits the entire management of its affairs to its president and secretary and holds no meeting of its directors, except when the president sees fit to call them together, a conveyance of land made by the president and secretary without official authority from the board will be deemed valid, in favor of a bank which has made large advances upon notes secured by a vendor's lien given to the president and secretary for the purchase-money and transferred to the bank.[52] But it has been held that they have no power: To transfer substantially all the corporate property to

40. Unless the other party to the transaction has notice of his want of power. Powers v. Schlicht Heat, etc., Co., 23 N. Y. App. Div. 380, 48 N. Y. Suppl. 237. Especially in a case where the president is the substantial owner of the corporate stock. Senour Mfg. Co. v. Clarke, 96 Wis. 469, 71 N. W. 883.

41. Ceeder v. H. M. Loud, etc., Lumber Co., 86 Mich. 541, 49 N. W. 575, 24 Am. St. Rep. 134.

So the president and superintendent of a boom company have, unless restrained by the articles or by-laws, the authority to hire men to carry on the company's business, and a resolution by the board of directors authorizing the employment of a certain class of men at a certain rate of compensation is in no sense a restriction of the power of the company through its officers to hire other men than those alluded to on the same terms. Hardy v. Tittabawassee Boom Co., 52 Mich. 45, 17 N. W. 235.

42. Smith Charities v. Connolly, 157 Mass. 272, 31 N. E. 1058.

43. Dubuque, etc., R. Co. v. Pierson, 70 Fed. 303, 17 C. C. A. 401 [rehearing denied in 71 Fed. 268, 17 C. C. A. 403].

44. Calvert v. Idaho Stage Co., 25 Oreg. 412, 36 Pac. 24.

45. Especially where the act was not objected to by the directors after acquiring knowledge of it. Ford v. Hill, 92 Wis. 188, 66 N. W. 115, 53 Am. St. Rep. 902.

46. Nichols v. Scranton Steel Co., 137 N. Y. 471, 33 N. E. 561, 51 N. Y. St. 277.

47. Miller v. Reynolds, 92 Hun (N. Y.) 400, 36 N. Y. Suppl. 660, 71 N. Y. St. 574.

48. Smead Foundry Co. v. Chesbrough, 6 Ohio Cir. Dec. 670.

49. Grant v. Duluth, etc., R. Co., 66 Minn. 349, 69 N. W. 23.

50. Dooley v. Pease, 79 Fed. 860.

51. Blen v. Bear River, etc., Min. Co., 20 Cal. 602, 81 Am. Dec. 132.

52. Estes v. German Nat. Bank, 62 Ark. 7, 34 S. W. 85.

The president and secretary of a corporation have implied authority to execute notes of the corporation unless their authority in this respect is specifically limited. Fisk v. Carbonized Stone Co., 67 Ill. App. 327.

certain creditors by way of preference to them;[53] to convey an interest in a canal and pipe-line, where the directors had authorized merely the conveyance of a right to water to be delivered at specified points;[54] to mortgage the property of the corporation to secure its directors against an existing liability as shareholders for the corporation;[55] to order machinery for the corporation such as it presumptively needs in the prosecution of its business;[56] to appoint an agent to manage, control, sell, and transfer the corporate property;[57] or to execute negotiable notes in the name of the corporation.[58]

(v) When Acting in Manifest Violation of Duty. Acts of manifest bad faith or breach of duty toward the corporation on the part of its president are not binding upon it. Strangers who thus participate in a wrong against the corporation cannot be allowed to profit by it. Accordingly it has been held that the transaction is not binding, where the president of an insurance company, on receiving a premium note, agrees that it shall be given up at maturity[59] or waives the performance of certain conditions in the contract of insurance;[60] or where the president of a bank stays the collection of an execution against the estate of one of its debtors,[61] consents to an arrangement by which the security of the bank on paper due to it will be impaired, especially where the purpose is to release himself as indorser,[62] loans out money of the bank to known irresponsible parties,[63] assumes for the corporation liability for an individual debt of his own without consideration moving to it,[64] makes a corporate note and mortgage to himself to secure money advanced to pay the subscription of a shareholder,[65] makes a corporate note to himself and gives it to another for his individual debt, whatever the state of the accounts between himself and the corporation,[66] or, his own corporation being insolvent, draws drafts upon another against a fund not yet due, to be applied upon his corporation's notes upon which he is surety,[67] or indorses a note given by a contractor for materials furnished to the corporation and for which he has been paid by it.[68]

53. St. Joseph State Nat. Bank v. John Moran Packing Co., 68 Ill. App. 25 [affirmed in 168 Ill. 519, 48 N. E. 82].

54. Fudickar v. East Riverside Irr. Dist., 109 Cal. 29, 41 Pac. 1024.

55. Lowry Banking Co. v. Empire Lumber Co., 91 Ga. 624, 17 S. E. 968.

56. Des Moines Mfg., etc., Co. v. Tilford Milling Co., 9 S. D. 542, 70 N. W. 839.

57. Johnson v. Sage, (Ida. 1896) 44 Pac. 641.

58. City Electric St. R. Co. v. First Nat. Exch. Bank, 62 Ark. 33, 34 S. W. 89, 54 Am. St. Rep. 282, 31 L. R. A. 535.

It has been held that a mortgage executed by the president and secretary of a corporation in pursuance of an invalid resolution of the board of directors cannot be upheld as a valid exercise of their general powers, even if such powers were sufficient to enable them to execute the contract without a resolution. State Nat. Bank v. Union Nat. Bank, 168 Ill. 519, 48 N. E. 82 [affirming 68 Ill. App. 25].

59. Brouwer v. Appleby, 1 Sandf. (N. Y.) 158.

60. Sturgis First Nat. Bank v. Bennett, 33 Mich. 520; St. Nicholas Ins. Co. v. Howe, 7 Bosw. (N. Y.) 450.

61. Spyker v. Spence, 8 Ala. 333.

62. Gallery v. National Exch. Bank, 41 Mich. 169, 2 N. W. 193, 32 Am. St. Rep. 149. See also Hodge v. Richmond First Nat. Bank, 22 Gratt. (Va.) 51; Metropolis Bank v. Jones, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 12, 8 L. ed. 850; U. S. Bank v. Dunn, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 51, 8 L. ed. 316.

63. Sturgis First Nat. Bank v. Reed, 36 Mich. 263.

64. Barnhardt v. Star Mills, 123 N. C. 428, 31 S. E. 719. A bank, the creditor of both a corporation and its president individually, which receives from a debtor of the corporation, pursuant to the order of the president, who is its sole manager and principal shareholder, a payment on the president's individual obligation, is not thereby barred from a pro rata share on the claim against the corporation from its receiver in insolvency. Malcomson v. Wappoo Mills, 99 Fed. 633.

65. Hodson v. Eugene Glass Co., 156 Ill. 397, 40 N. E. 971 [affirming 54 Ill. App. 248]. Or makes a corporate mortgage to secure his own indebtedness. State v. A. F. Shapleigh Hardware Co., 147 Mo. 366, 48 S. W. 927.

66. Union Nat. Bank v. Post, 55 Ill. App. 369; Wall v. Niagara Min., etc., Co., 20 Utah 474, 59 Pac. 399. And it has been held that where the president is payee of a corporate note the presumption is against its validity, and the burden is on the holder to show that it is in fact the obligation of the corporation. Porter v. Winona, etc., Grain Co., 78 Minn. 210, 80 N. W. 965; Saylor v. Commonwealth Invest., etc., Co., 38 Oreg. 204, 62 Pac. 652.

67. Bosworth v. Jacksonville Nat. Bank, 64 Fed. 615, 12 C. C. A. 331.

68. Worthington v. Schuylkill Electric R.

(VI) When Acting in Interest of Himself or Third Party. Subject to exceptions in favor of innocent parties, the general rule is that acts of officers of a corporation in any transaction in which both the corporation and they themselves individually are interested do not bind the corporation.[69] Thus if the president of a corporation makes a note of the corporation and uses it for his own benefit, the corporation will not be chargeable thereon in favor of the holder, unless the latter occupies the position of a bona fide purchaser without notice.[70] Nor is the company bound by its president's acts, where he is clearly acting as the special agent of a third person.[71]

(VII) Extension of Authority by Holding Out. As in the case of other agents, the president of a corporation may acquire larger powers than those ordinarily belonging to him by being held out to the public as possessing them, and by being suffered by the directors habitually to exercise such powers in the face of the public.[72]

Co., 10 Pa. Super. Ct. 117, 44 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 118.

69. Davenport First Nat. Bank v. Gifford, 47 Iowa 575; Claflin v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 25 N. Y. 293.

For a conection of facts where it was held that the president acted for himself personally see Wisconsin F. & M. Ins. Co.'s Bank v. Filer, 80 Mich. 67, 45 N. W. 63, 83 Mich. 496, 47 N. W. 321. See also Hall v. Auburn Turnpike Co., 27 Cal. 255, 87 Am. Dec. 75; Baumann v. Manistee Salt, etc., Co., 94 Mich. 363, 53 N. W. 1113.

A general authority to the president of a bank to certify checks drawn upon it does not extend to check drawn by himself, and the fact that he does so attempt to use his official character for his private benefit puts third persons upon inquiry and deprives them of the protection accorded to innocent purchasers. Claflin v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 25 N. Y. 293 [reversing 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 540]. Compare Palmer v. Nassau Bank, 78 Ill. 380.

70. Kelley v. Post, 37 Ill. App. 396; Arnkens v. Rouse, 11 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 380, 26 Cinc. L. Bul. 221. See also Tradesmen's Nat. Bank v. Manhattan Lumber Co., 18 N. Y. Suppl. 920, 46 N. Y. St. 487.

71. As where the president of a corporation subscribed for stock in the name of defendant, promising to "take care of it for him" (St. Nicholas Ins. Co. v. Howe, 7 Bosw. (N. Y.) 450), or where he is acting as trustee under an assignment for creditors (Alpena Nat. Bank v. Greenbaum, 80 Mich. 1, 44 N. W. 1123). See also Sturgis First Nat. Bank v. Bennett, 33 Mich. 520, where the president agreed to indemnify sureties on a note discounted by his bank.

72. Arkansas.— Texarkana, etc., R. Co. v. Bemis Lumber Co., 67 Ark. 542, 55 S. W. 944.

Illinois.— Libby v. Union Nat. Bank, 99 Ill. 622.

Kansas.— Sherman Center Town Co. v. Swigart, 43 Kan. 292, 23 Pac. 569, 19 Am. St. Rep. 137.

Michigan.— Ceeder v. H. M. Loud, etc., Lumber Co., 86 Mich. 541, 49 N. W. 575, 24 Am. St. Rep. 134.

Missouri.— Washington Sav. Bank v. Butchers', etc., Bank, 107 Mo. 133, 17 N. W. 644, 28 Am. St. Rep. 405.

New York.— Corn Exch. Bank v. American Dock, etc., Co., 163 N. Y. 332, 57 N. E. 477 [modifying 14 N. Y. App. Div. 453, 43 N. Y. Suppl. 1028]; Chambers v. Lancaster, 160 N. Y. 342, 54 N. E. 707; Dallas City Nat. Bank v. National Park Bank, 32 Hun 105; Olcott v. Tioga R. Co., 40 Barb. 179; Western Nat. Bank v. Faber, 29 Misc. 467, 62 N. Y. Suppl. 82. See also Martin v. Niagara Falls Paper Mfg. Co., 44 Hun 130; Buffalo Mar. Bank v. Butler Colliery Co., 5 N. Y. Suppl. 291, 23 N. Y. St. 318.

Tennessee.— Neiffer v. Knoxville Bank, 1 Head 162.

Texas.— Dallas Ice Factory, etc., Co. v. Crawford, 18 Tex. Civ. App. 176, 44 S. W. 875. See also Fitzhugh v. Franco-Texas Land Co., 81 Tex. 306, 16 S. W. 1078.

United States.— Fitzgerald, etc., Constr. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 137 U. S. 98, 11 S. Ct. 36, 34 L. ed. 608; LeRoy, etc., R. Co. v. Sidell, 66 Fed. 27, 13 C. C. A. 308.

See also Wellsburg First Nat. Bank v. Kimberlands, 16 W. Va. 555.

Illustrations.— Thus although in the absence of the regular cashier of a banking company a person was appointed to discharge his duties, yet if it was the custom of the president to sign checks when the regular cashier was absent, a check so signed will be binding upon the bank. Neiffer v. Knoxville Bank, 1 Head (Tenn.) 162. See also Produce Exch. Trust Co. v. Bieberbach, 176 Mass. 577, 58 N. E. 162; Milbank v. De Riesthal, 82 Hun (N. Y.) 537, 31 N. Y. Suppl. 522, 64 N. Y. St. 199. So if the president of a company has been in the habit of acting as a business agent for the company with its knowledge and without objection, actual authority will be inferred from such fact and the company will be bound by his acts done as such agent. Dougherty v. Hunter, 54 Pa. St. 380. So the president of a banking corporation may, with the concurrence of the board of directors, as shown by a long-continued custom, assume the powers of a general manager of the affairs of the bank, and in such capacity may purchase real estate in satisfaction of debts due the (VIII) Restriction of Apparent Authority by Express Prohibition. A by-law restraining the powers of the president of a corporation so as to make them less than those ascribed to such officers by the law of the jurisdiction, or less than those habitually exercised by the particular officer, will not affect the rights of a party dealing with the corporation through its president, unless the by-law is brought to his notice.[73]

(IX) Ratification of Unauthorized Acts. The contracts made by the president of a corporation, although invalid at the time when they are entered into, may be made good by ratification,[74] on principles which are hereafter fully bank. Libby v. Union Nat. Bank, 99 Ill. 622. On the other hand the habitual ratification by the board of directors of a land company of sales made by the president of the land of the corporation, reserving a vendor's lien, gives the president no authority to sell land without reserving such lien, especially where it is the invariable custom of the country to make such reservation. Fitzhugh v. Franco-Texas Land Co., 81 Tex. 306, 16 S. W. 1078.

73. Smith v. Martin Anti-fire Car Heater Co., 19 N. Y. Suppl. 285, 47 N. Y. St. 26. See also supra, V, A, 5.

Where adverse party was chargeable with notice.— But where the by-laws of a corporation require the indorsement of its secretary on a promissory note to pass the title of such corporation to the note, it was held that the indorsement of such a note by the president of the corporation did not pass the title, where the indorsee was chargeable with knowledge of the fact that the indorsement was unauthorized by the corporation. Leavitt v. Connecticut Peat Co., 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,170, 6 Blatchf. 139.

Contract made directly with corporation.— When the by-laws of a corporation give its president power to make contracts and execute conveyances, where a contract is made directly with the corporation and recorded on its books, any instruments executed by the president in carrying such contract into effect are, so far as they depart from the terms of the contract, prima facie unwarranted. Monroe Mercantile Co. v. Arnold, 108 Ga. 449, 34 S. E. 176; East Rome Town Co. v. Brower, 80 Ga. 258, 7 S. E. 273.

Where the president has no power, express or implied, to do an act, the admission of evidence of a by-law forbidding him to do it is immaterial and not ground for reversal. Wait v. Nashua Armory Assoc., 66 N. H. 581, 23 Atl. 77, 49 Am. St. Rep. 630, 14 L. R. A. 356.

Restrictions contained in statute or charter. — The secretary and the president of a corporation, under a charter empowering them to conduct the business of the corporation subject to the by-laws and the regulations of the board of directors, cannot revoke a submission to arbitration made by the board of directors. Madison Ins. Co. v. Griffin, 3 Ind. 277. See also Lonkey v. Succor Mill, etc., Co., 10 Nev. 17. Under a statute prohibiting a corporation from using its funds in the purchase of stock in another corporation without the written consent of all the shareholders of each corporation, it was held a good defense to a suit on a note of a corporation given by its president in part payment of a subscription by him for his corporation to stock in another company that the shareholders never authorized such act. Midland Steel Co. v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 26 Ind. App. 71, 59 N. E. 211.

74. California.—Shaver v. Bear River, etc., R. Co., 10 Cal. 396.

District of Columbia.— Washington Times Co. v. Wilder, 12 App. Cas. 62.

Illinois.— Oakford v. Fischer, 75 Ill. App. 544.

Ohio.— East Cleveland R. Co. v. Everett, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 205, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 493.

Oregon.— Crawford v. Albany Ice Co., 36 Oreg. 535, 60 Pac. 14.

Pennsylvania.—Bagaley v. Pittsburgh, etc., Iron Co., 146 Pa. St. 478, 23 Atl. 837.

Virginia.— West Salem Land Co. v. Montgomery Land Co., 89 Va. 192, 15 S. E. 524.

Washington.— Glover v. Rochester-German Ins. Co., 11 Wash. 143, 39 Pac. 380.

Wisconsin.— Northwestern Fuel Co. v. Lee, 102 Wis. 426, 78 N. W. 584.

United States.— Prentiss Tool, etc., Co. v. Godchaux, 66 Fed. 234, 13 C. C. A. 420; Belleville Sav. Bank v. Winslow, 35 Fed. 471.

By accepting the benefits derived therefrom a corporation has been held to have ratified the unauthorized act of its president in contracting for the repair of a vessel (The Sappho, 94 Fed. 545, 36 C. C. A. 395 [reversing 89 Fed. 366]); in purchasing land (Lake St. El. R. Co. v. Carmichael, 82 Ill. App. 344 [affirmed in 184 Ill. 348, 56 N. E. 372]; Wall v. Niagara Min., etc., Co., 20 Utah 474, 59 Pac. 399; Northwestern Fuel Co. v. Lee, 102 Wis. 426, 78 N. W. 584) or chattels (Allen v. Groves Springs Hotel, etc., Co., 85 Hun (N. Y.) 537, 33 N. Y. Suppl. 355, 67 N. Y. St. 39); in employing a secretary (Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Owen, 121 Ala. 505, 25 So. 612), an attorney (Freeman Imp. Co. v. Osborn, 14 Colo. App. 488, 60 Pac. 730), or a surveyor (Heinze v. South Green Bay Land, etc., Co., 109 Wis. 99, 85 N. W. 145); in making a lease (Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Carson, 151 Ill. 444, 38 N. E. 140; Chase v. Redfield Creamery Co., 12 S. D. 529, 81 N. W. 951); in executing a note (Phillips v. Sanger Lumber Co., 130 Cal. 431, 62 Pac. 749; National Sparker Bank v. George C. Treadwell Co., 80 Hun (N. Y.) 363, 30 N. Y. Suppl. 77, 61 N. Y. St. 817); in making unauthorized representations (Balfour v. Fresno Canal, etc., Co., 123 Cal. 395, 55 Pac. 1062); in delivering collateral security in considera-discussed.[75] Such a ratification must of course be had by the body having power to contract in the premises.[76] This body will generally be the board of directors; but unless the governing statute makes the power of the directors exclusive as between them and the shareholders a ratification by the body of the shareholders, although not by the directors, will be good.[77]

(x) Express Powers. When the authority of the president is derived from a formal expression of his powers, as in a statute, charter, by-law, or resolution, it becomes the province of the court to define its meaning and determine its scope. Thus in the interpretation of various express powers it has been held that an authority given by statute to the president of a corporation to execute conveyances of its lands confers upon him no authority to make sales of such lands,[78] but that authority conferred upon the president of a bank to sell and convey premises implies a power to negotiate and make a bargain with a purchaser, prior to the conveyance, and that therefore such officer has power to execute a bond binding the corporation to make the conveyance;[79] that an express power conferred upon the president of a corporation to buy materials or goods used by it in its operations includes the power to buy on credit and to give the promissory note of the corporation therefor;[80] that the president is not authorized to dispose of the company's personalty in payment of its debts by a resolution appointing him the fiscal agent of the company with power "to purchase such equipments for the road as the board might direct, to purchase all necessary materials for the car-shop and to contract for all necessary transportation of the company";[81] that a by-law authorizing him to act as the "business and financial agent" of the corporation does not empower him to execute a mortgage upon the property of the corporation to secure one of its debts;[82] that the vote of the directors authorizing the president to "sell and convey" a tract of land empowers him to execute tion of an extension of time (Smith v. Richardson, 77 Mo. App. 422); in assigning a corporate asset in payment of a corporate debt (Ferguson v. Venice Transp. Co, 79 Mo. App. 352); or in unjustly attempting to repossess premises leased by the corporation (Texas, etc., Coal Co. v. Lawson, 10 Tex. Civ. App. 491, 31 S. W. 843).

To be binding the act of ratification must be done with full knowledge of the circumstances. Bright v. Canadian International Stock Yard, etc., Co., 83 Hun (N. Y.) 482, 32 N. Y. Suppl. 71, 65 N. Y. St. 234. See also infra, XV, C, 2, f, (I) et seq.

75. See infra, XV.

76. George v. Nevada Cent. R. Co., 22 Nev. 228, 38 Pac. 441.

77. Chicago, etc, R. Co. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 47 Fed. 15. See also infra, XV, B, 7, a, (I) et seq.

Cannot be ratified by president.— But the acts of the president himself, in regard to a corporate note which he has made payable to himself, such as part payment of it with the corporate funds, does not amount to a ratification of the unauthorized execution of the note. Porter v. Winona, etc., Grain Co., 78 Minn. 210, 80 N. W. 965.

78. Fitzhugh v. Franco-Texas Land Co., 81 Tex. 306, 16 S. W. 1078. See also Gibson v. Goldthwaite, 7 Ala. 861, 42 Am. Dec. 592.

79. Augusta Bank v. Hamblet, 35 Me. 491.

80. Siebe v. Joshua Hendy Mach. Works, 86 Cal. 390, 25 Pac. 14.

A power to make a sale of goods includes the power to agree to pay a commission to a broker for effecting such a sale. Northern Cent. R. Co. v. Bastian, 15 Md. 494.

For a case where a promise to pay a commission bound the president personally see Fitch v. Cunningham, 45 Hun (N. Y.) 590, 10 N. Y. St. 17.

Power to make a contract includes power to complete it by delivering the customary evidence of it. Allison v. Tennessee Coal, etc., Co., (Tenn. Ch. App. 1897) 46 S. W. 348.

81. Walworth County Bank v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 14 Wis. 325.

82. Luse v. Isthmus Transit R. Co., 6 Oreg. 125, 25 Am. Rep. 506. But a president authorized by a by-law to transact all its ordinary business may indorse its notes (Merrick v. Metropolis Bank, 8 Gill (Md.) 59; Howland v. Myer, 3 N. Y. 290) and lease premises for the business use of the corporation (Hawley v. Gray Bros. Artificial Stone Pav. Co., 106 Cal. 337, 39 Pac. 609), but not sell its bonds (East Cleveland R. Co. v. Everett, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 205, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 493), and where such power was given to the president of an insurance company, it was held that this included the power to borrow money for payment of a loss, and give premium notes to the amount of over one thousand dollars as collateral security therefor without a resolution of the directors (Brouwer v. Harbeck, 1 Duer (N. Y.) 114). But a by-law giving him "the general charge and direction of the business of the company, as well as all matters connected with the interests and objects of the corporation," does not authorize him "to do an act, which, by another by-law, is expressly given to a separate committee." Twelfth St. Market Co. v. Jackson, 102 Pa. St. 269. And if a statute or other governing instrument requires that all contracts shall be authenticated by the secretary the president cannot authenticate them. See infra, XII, B, 1, a. And if it requires the president and vice-president, the secretary and vice-president will not do. Thompson v. Des Moines Driving Park, 112 Iowa 628, 84 N. W. 678. But in the absence of such provision one court discovered no reason why the president might not act also as secretary at a meeting of the board of directors. Budd v. Walla Walla Printing, etc., Co., 2 Wash. Terr. 347, 7 Pac. 896.

a bond binding the corporation to convey,[83] but a resolution authorizing him to execute a bond of indemnity to the shareholders in consideration of their signing a joint note to provide for a debt of the company does not authorize him to execute to them a note of the corporation, and such a note cannot be enforced;[84] that a resolution authorizing him to convey land to purchasers includes authority to convey land given by the corporation by way of donation;[85] that he may appoint himself assignee of the corporation for its creditors under a resolution authorizing him to nominate a trustee to carry into effect the assignment;[86] that a power to appoint, remove, and fix the compensation of each and every person employed by the company does not authorize the employment of a person for life;[87] that under a power to incur indebtedness, negotiate loans, to contract and otherwise act as the agent of the corporation, the president has authority to execute a note binding the corporation;[88] that, under a statute permitting the board of directors to borrow money and mortgage corporate property, and providing that such powers should be exercised by them, the president cannot bind the corporation by a contract of employment to sell corporate bonds,[89] and that where a corporation constitutes its president its universal agent it is bound by any act of his which is within its corporate powers.[90]

(xi) Declarations by, and Notice to, President. A corporation is bound by the declarations and admissions of its president concerning corporate business while acting within the scope of his authority. Thus where the president and treasurer of a corporation, jointly authorized to sell and lease land, while negotiating a lease pointed out the boundaries of the land, their declarations relative thereto are admissible in evidence against the corporation, and after their decease against its subsequent grantees.[91] So where the president has implied power to bind the corporation by contracts in its ordinary business it will be presumed that he has an authority to make admissions as to matters pertaining to its ordinary business which will be binding upon it.[92] When the president is acting in the exercise of his office or agency, a notice to him of any matter pertaining to that office or agency is notice to the corporation; and as he is the chief executive officer of the corporation and the president of its board of directors it can hardly be doubted that in any case a notice properly communicated to him at the chief office of the corporation will bind the corporation. Thus a resignation by a bank

83. Augusta Bank v. Hamblet, 35 Me. 491.

84. Bacon v. Mississippi Ins. Co., 31 Miss. 116.

85. State v. Glenn, 18 Nev. 34, 1 Pac. 186. See also Siebe v. Joshua Hendy Mach. Works, 86 Cal. 390, 25 Pac. 14.

His power to settle accounts and allow interest thereon. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Mann. 4 Rob. (N. Y.) 356.

86. But creditors cannot avail themselves of the objection. Rogers v. Pell, 154 N. Y. 518, 49 N. E. 75.

87. Carney v. New York L. Ins. Co., 19 N. Y. App. Div. 160, 45 N. Y. Suppl. 1103 [affirmed in 162 N. Y. 453, 57 N. E. 78, 76 Am. St. Rep. 347, 49 L. R. A. 471].

88. McCormick v. Stockton, etc., R. Co., 130 Cal. 100, 62 Pac. 267. But power to execute judgment notes, mortgages, and other securities for borrowing money does not extend to prior debts created on general credit. J. W. Butler Paper Co. v. Robbins, 151 Ill. 588, 38 N. E. 153.

A by-law providing that the president shall not borrow money to exceed the amount fixed by the directors impliedly authorizes him to borrow unless his power is limited by the directors. Hayward v. Graham Book, etc., Co., 59 Mo. App. 453.

89. East Cleveland R. Co. v. Everett, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 205, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 493.

90. Petrolia Mfg. Co. v. Jenkins, 29 N. Y. App. Div. 403, 51 N. Y. Suppl. 1028.

91. Holmes v. Turner's Falls Lumber Co., 150 Mass. 535, 23 N. E. 305, 6 L. R. A. 283.

92. Bullock v. Consumers' Lumber Co., director made orally to the president has been held sufficient, where he has sold out his stock and thus parted with his qualification to be a director.[93]

(XII) PROOF OF OFFICIAL CHARACTER AND AUTHORITY. The official character of a president of a corporation may be established by proof that he has habitually acted in that capacity in the undisputed possession of the office and exercised its functions.[94] So the official character of a person assuming to act as president of a corporation may be proved by recognition and an adoption on the part of the corporation, just as the existence of a corporation may be proved by recognition and adoption on the part of the state.[95] Likewise the authority of the president may be established by proof that the corporation held him out to the public as possessing the powers which he exercised in the given case,[96] or that

(Cal. 1892) 31 Pac. 367. See also Henry v. Northern Bank, 63 Ala. 527; Johnson v. Union Switch, etc., Co., 129 N. Y. 653, 29 N. E. 964, 42 N. Y. St. 337 [affirming 13 N. Y. Suppl. 612, 37 N. Y. St. 876, unauthorized admission that company will continue to pay royalties not binding]; Gould v. Cayuga County Nat. Bank, 56 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 505 (misinformation by another officer no excuse for false statements of president); Spalding v. Susquehanna County Bank, 9 Pa. St. 28 It has been held that a statement by the president of a corporation authorized to represent it within the limits of its usual business to the holder of a note of the corporation, who had the election to declare the same immediately due upon the failure or insolvency of the corporation, that the corporation was insolvent and is about to make an assignment, is within the scope of his authority and is chargeable to the corporation. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Columbia Spinning Co., 21 N. Y. App. Div. 383, 47 N. Y. Suppl. 442. But it has been held that an investment company is not bound by the declarations of its president as to its condition, made to the maker of a note to the corporation secured by a deposit of its stock as collateral, whereby the latter was induced to keep his stock instead of selling it and paying the note. Philadelphia Invest. Co. v. Eldridge, 175 Pa. St. 287, 34 Atl. 629, 38 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 181.

93. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662. But if the president is acting partly for himself, the notice will not bind the corporation (Barnes v. Trenton Gas Light Co., 27 N. J. Eq. 33. See also infra, XIII, A, 3, b, (I) et seq), unless the circumstances are such that it would be for his interest rather to communicate than conceal it. For example where the president of a railway corporation executed to certain directors of the company, to secure the payment of his indebtedness to it, a mortgage of the premises, to which his wife had an equitable claim under an unrecorded deed to her, it was held that having acted in the matter not for the company but for himself alone, his knowledge of his wife's equities was not the knowledge of the company unless shown to have been communicated to it. Winchester v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 4 Md. 231.

94. Cahill v. Kalamazoo Mut. Ins. Co., 2 Dougl. (Mich.) 124, 43 Am. Dec. 457. See also supra, IX, B, 1.

95. Blackman v. Mobile Branch Bank, 8 Ala. 103; Kennedy v. Cotton, 28 Barb. (N. Y.) 59. See also supra, I, M, 10.

A president without power to contract with reference to a given subject-matter cannot affirm an unauthorized contract made by a former president. Lyndon Mill Co. v. Lyndon Literary, etc., Inst., 63 Vt. 581, 22 Atl. 575, 25 Am. St. Rep. 783. But where this species of indirect proof is not available, but resort must be had to direct proof, then the official character of the president must be proved by evidence that he was president de jure. Crawford v. Mobile Branch State Bank, 7 Ala. 205.

96. Illinois.— Libby v. Union Nat. Bank, 99 Ill. 622.

Kansas.—Sherman Center Town Co. v. Swigart, 43 Kan. 292, 23 Pac. 569, 19 Am. St. Rep. 137.

Michigan.— Ceeder v. H. M. Loud, etc., Lumber Co., 86 Mich. 541, 49 N. W. 575, 24 Am. St. Rep. 134.

Missouri.—Washington Sav. Bank v. Butchers', etc., Bank, 107 Mo. 133, 17 S. W. 644, 28 Am. St. Rep. 405.

New York.—Martin v. Niagara Falls Paper Mfg. Co., 44 Hun 130; Olcott v. Tioga, etc., R. Co., 40 Barb. 179; Buffalo Mar. Bank v. Butler Colliery Co., 5 N. Y. Suppl. 291, 23 N. Y. St. 318.

Pennsylvania.— Dougherty v. Hunter, 54 Pa. St. 380.

Tennessee.— Neiffer v. Knoxville Bank, 1 Head 162.

Texas.— Fitzhugh v. Franco-Texas Land Co., 81 Tex. 306, 16 S. W. 1078.

West Virginia.—Wellsburg First Nat. Bank v. Kimberlands, 16 W. Va. 555.

United States.— Fitzgerald, etc., Constr. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 137 U. S. 98, 11 S. Ct. 36, 34 L. ed. 608.

This most frequently happens in cases where the directors appoint him general manager, superintendent, or managing agent, by whatever name called, of the ordinary business corporation, in which case the law assumes that they intend to confer upon him the ordinary contracting powers which belong to such an agent, and will protect the innocent public in acting upon that assumption. Seeley v. San Jose Indenendent Mill, etc., Co., 59 Cal. 22; Hardy v. Tittabawassee Boom Co., 52 Mich. 45, 17 N. W. 235; Sparks the corporation has ratified his unauthorized acts.[97] And if it becomes necessary to prove a special authority of the president in the particular transaction this proof need not be made in the form of a resolution of the board of directors, duly entered upon the records of the corporation, conferring the authority upon the president, but the act of the directors may be shown by an oral vote[98] and may be otherwise proved by parol,[99] and often equally well by circumstantial evidence.[1]

(XIII) PRESUMPTION OF VALIDITY OF CORPORATE ACT PROPERLY EXECUTED. A careful distinction must always be taken between a president's power to make contracts for the corporation and his power formally to execute contracts made for the corporation by its board of directors or other authorized persons, it may be himself. The obvious distinction between making a sale of land and executing the deed illustrates what is here intended. Thus if a corporate contract is evidenced by a sealed instrument the presence of the corporate seal carries with it a presumption of antecedent authority on the part of the president and secretary to execute the contract.[2] The evidence is prima facie only, and the presumption may be rebutted, for the president cannot acquire a power which he does not otherwise possess, by the unauthorized use of the corporate seal.[3] But it operates to shift the burden of proof upon the corporation and compel it to prove that the sealed instrument was executed without authority.

v. Dispatch Transfer Co., 104 Mo. 531, 15 S. W. 417, 24 Am. St. Rep. 351, 12 L. R. A. 714; Grand Rapids Safety Deposit Co. v. Cincinnati Safe, etc., Co., 45 Fed. 671. But even here he has no power to purchase property not required for the common purposes of the corporation. Blen v. Bear River, etc., Water, etc., Co., 20 Cal. 602, 81 Am. Dec. 132.

97. There may be circumstances under which a ratification will be received as evidence of an authority to do a future act of the same kind. Thus because of the acquiescence of the corporation in the execution of a note by its president for money advanced for a steam-boiler, it has been held that the other party was warranted in considering he had authority to execute another note for further necessary advances. McDonald v. Chisholm, 131 Ill. 273, 23 N. E. 596. See also Sparks v. Dispatch Transfer Co., 104 Mo. 531, 15 S. W. 417, 24 Am. St. Rep. 351, 12 L. R. A. 714. But this principle must be carefully guarded. It is believed that a ratification can never be evidence of a future authorization except in two cases: (1) Where there have been so many acts of ratification as to make a custom; (2) where the act or acts of ratification take place under such circumstances as to hold out to third persons dealing with the corporation the prospect of further ratifications of similar acts, in which case an estoppel would arise against the corporation.

98. Clark v. Pratt, 47 Me. 55.

99. Southern Hotel Co. v. Newman, 30 Mo. 118; Magill v. Kauffman, 4 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 317, 8 Am. Dec. 713; U. S. Bank v. Dandridge, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 64, 6 L. ed. 552.

1. McDonald v. Chisholm, 131 Ill. 273, 23 N. E. 596; Cahill v. Kalamazoo Mut. Ins. Co., 2 Dougl. (Mich.) 124, 43 Am. Dec. 457; Sparks v. Dispatch Transfer Co., 104 Mo. 531, 15 S. W. 417, 24 Am. St. Rep. 351, 12 L. R. A. 714; Providence Fifth Nat. Bank v. Navassa Phosphate Co., 119 N. Y. 256, 23 N. E. 737, 29 N. Y. St. 993; Shimmel v. Erie R. Co., 5 Daly (N. Y.) 396. On the other hand, in an action against a corporation to recover goods claimed by it to have been furnished under an unauthorized contract, evidence of an agreement between the president of the board of trustees of such corporation and his co-trustees that he was to furnish the goods gratuitously is admissible to show his want of authority to bind the corporation for their price. Lyndon Mill Co. v. Lyndon Literary, etc., Inst., 63 Vt. 581, 22 Atl. 575, 25 Am. St. Rep. 783.

2. Campbell v. Pope, 96 Mo. 468, 10 S. W. 187; Little Saw-Mill Valley Turnpike, etc., Road Co. v. Federal St., etc., Passenger R. Co., 194 Pa. St. 144, 45 Atl. 66, 75 Am. St. Rep. 690; Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Davis, (Tex. Civ. App. 1899) 54 S. W. 381 [reversed in Tex. Sup. 1900) 55 S. W. 562]. And it has been held that one who takes such a contract so executed will be protected, unless he has knowledge of a want of authority on the part of the officers who profess to act for the corporation, or unless the circumstances are such as to put him upon inquiry as to whether they have power in the particular case. Winscott v. Nevada Guarantee Invest. Co., 63 Mo. App. 367; White v. Sheppard, 41 N. Y. App. Div. 113, 58 N. Y. Suppl. 563. But the testimonium to a mortgage executed for a corporation by the president thereof, reciting that such president is fully authorized to execute the mortgage without the corporate seal, is not sufficient proof of his authority. American Sav., etc., Assoc. v. Smith, 122 Ala. 502, 27 So. 919.

3. Gibson v. Goldthwaite, 7 Ala. 281, 42 Am. Dec. 592; Bliss v. Kaweah Canal Co., 65 Cal. 502, 4 Pac. 507; Luse v. Isthmus Transit R. Co., 6 Oreg. 125, 25 Am. Rep. 506.

Power to use the corporate seal.— It has been held that where the charter of a bank

(XIV) How Execute Contracts so as to Bind Corporation and Not Himself. To make a written contract the contract of the corporation, it must appear somewhere on its face to be the act of the corporation.[4] It is sufficient if this appears either in the body of the instrument or in the form of the signature.[5] But the mere addition of his corporate title to the signature, where there is nothing else to show that the instrument is a corporate act, is mere descriptio personæ and does not exclude the personal liability of the president.[6]

2. His Liability — a. To Corporation — (1) For Mismanagement. Where the president of a corporation is vested with the general care, oversight, and management of its concerns, and is paid a salary for his services, he is bound, in return for the confidence thus reposed in him and the compensation thus paid to him, to exercise good business diligence in the discharge of the duties thus assumed. He is therefore answerable to the corporation for the want of the reasonable or ordinary care bestowed by a good business man in the oversight of a similar business under similar circumstances.[7] intrusts its management to a board of directors its president and cashier have no power, without the board's consent, to make a deed of corporate property requiring the use of the corporate seal. Hoyt v. Thompson, 5 N. Y. 320 [affirming 3 Bosw. (N. Y.) 267, 285]. For a case in which it was held that the corporation was not bound by a lease executed by its president without the use of the corporate seal see Bohm v. Loewer's Gambrinus Brewing Co., 16 Daly (N. Y.) 80, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 514, 30 N. Y. St. 424 [following Rathburn v. Snow, 15 Daly (N. Y.) 141, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 925, 22 N. Y. St. 227]. It is not, however, a good objection to an instrument that it is too formal or that the corporate seal is unnecessarily used. Crawford v. State Bank, 5 Ala. 679.

4. See infra, XII, H, 1 et seq.

Exception in case of banking corporations. — By a custom of business peculiar to banks the presidents and cashiers of such corporations can make indorsements in their behalf by simply indorsing their own names with their titles of office; and such an indorsement is sufficient to charge the corporation, and to enable the indorsee to bring a suit in his own name. Chillicothe Branch Ohio State Bank v. Fox, 5 Fed. Cas. No. 2,683, 3 Blatchf. 431. A receipt signed by a bank president without his title for money for deposit has been held evidence that the money went to the bank. Sterling v. Marietta, etc., Trading Co., 11 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 179. And the payment or allowance of a claim to "Andrew T. Hall, President of the Tremont Bank," has been held to be the same as a payment to the bank. Tremont Bank v. Paine, 28 Vt. 24. But a satisfaction-piece signed by a bank president with his title, but without authority and without the corporate seal, is not a satisfaction by the bank. Booth v. Farmers', etc., Nat. Bank, 4 Lans. (N. Y.) 301.

5. St. Peter Episcopal Church v. Varian, 28 Barb. (N. Y.) 644. Similarly see Ellis v. Pulsifer, 4 Allen (Mass.) 165; Olcott v. Tioga R. Co., 40 Barb. (N. Y.) 179 [affirmed in 27 N. Y. 546].

6. See infra, XII, H, 1 et seq.

Although it is prima facie the president's individual contract, in some jurisdictions he is allowed to show that it was mutually understood to be the act of the corporation, provided he adds proof of the corporation's power and his own authority to do the act. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. v. Boutell, 45 Minn. 21, 47 N. W. 261. So a deed describing the grantors as a corporation, executed by the president thereof, in his own name and under his own seal, does not pass the title from the corporation. Hatch v. Barr, 1 Ohio 390. Of course an oral promise by the president to see that the company pays is his own obligation and not that of the company. Van Valkenburgh v. Thomasville, etc., R. Co., 4 N. Y. Suppl. 782, 22 N. Y. St. 379. And where he acts without authority he is liable on his implied warranty of agency, regardless of his belief that he had it. Nelligan v. Campbell, 20 N. Y. Suppl. 234, 47 N. Y. St. 576.

7. Thus it has been held that where losses occur to a savings-bank through investments by the president in securities not within the restrictions of the charter, or not such as ordinarily prudent men would make in the transaction of their own business, by means of checks signed and left in blank by the treasurer, the president and treasurer are personally liable, the president first and the treasurer next. Williams v. McKay, 46 N. J. Eq. 25, 18 Atl. 824. An honest error of judgment while in the exercise of ordinary care does not make the president liable to the corporation. Gubbins v. Bank of Commerce, 79 Ill. App. 150. It has been held that, although he should have consulted the board of directors before authorizing certain expenditures, yet if he acted in good faith and did no more than what they probably would have authorized, he was not liable to the corporation for damages. Davis v. Memphis City R. Co., 22 Fed. 883. It has also been held that a president of a national bank is guilty of no want of ordinary care in accepting a leave of absence granted to him of one year on account of ill health, and is not to be held for neglect of duty because he did not resign. Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132, 11 S. Ct. 924, 35 L. ed. 662. See also

(II) For Breach of Fiduciary Obligations. The president's obligations as a fiduciary rest upon the same footing as those of the directors, which have been considered.[8] He is bound to exercise his official powers in the utmost good faith for the benefit of the company, and he is not allowed to prostitute them for his own private gain and advantage.[9]

Movius v. Lee, 30 Fed. 298. It has been held that the president of a corporation is liable for allowing a debt of a corporation with which he is closely connected to accumulate until the debtor corporation becomes insolvent, when it could have been saved by prompt action. Doe v. Northwestern Coal, etc., Co., 78 Fed. 62. But he cannot be held responsible for not defending a suit, where there is no good defense. Boston Tailoring House v. Fisher, 59 Ill. App. 400.

8. See supra, IX, G, 1 et seq.

9. Thomas v. Sweet, 37 Kan. 183, 14 Pac. 545.

He will be compelled to account to the corporation for any personal profit made in dealing with the corporate property. Markley v. Rhodes, 59 Iowa 57, 12 N. W. 775; Thomas v. Sweet, 37 Kan. 183, 14 Pac. 545; McClure v. Law, 161 N. Y. 78, 55 N. E. 388, 76 Am. St. Rep. 262 [reversing 20 N. Y. App. Div. 459, 47 N. Y. Suppl. 84]; Center Creek Water, etc., Co. v. Lindsay, 21 Utah 192, 60 Pac. 559. And in general equity will interpose, if appealed to in time and by the proper party, to break up any "Credit Mobilier" arrangements by which he seeks to enrich himself at the expense of his associates. Langdon v. Branch, 37 Fed. 449, 2 L. R. A. 120; Earle v. Burland, 27 Ont. 540.

It has been held that he is not a technical trustee (Warner v. McMullen, 131 Pa. St. 370, 18 Atl. 1056. Compare Kane v. Bloodgood, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 90, 11 Am. Dec. 417 [where it is said that "every deposit is a direct trust"]; York's Appeal, 110 Pa. St. 69, 1 Atl. 162, 2 Atl. 65), but equity will nevertheless take jurisdiction to compel him to account for funds misappropriated (Warner v. McMullen, 131 Pa. St. 370, 18 Atl. 1056).

What acts are inconsistent with such obligations.—He cannot pay his own debt with corporate funds. Reed v. Newburgh Bank, 6 Paige (N. Y.) 337. His acts and declarations will not create an estoppel against the corporation in favor of another company of which he is also president (Pennsylvania R. Co.'s Appeal, 80 Pa. St. 265), although they might bind it under honest conditions (see supra, IX, J, 1, a et seq.). Where he agrees with the other trustees of the corporation to furnish certain materials as a gratuity, this will not bind the corporation for their payment, if he orders them of another company of which he is a member. Lyndon Mill Co. v. Lyndon Literary, etc., Inst., 63 Vt. 581, 22 Atl. 575, 25 Am. St. Rep. 783. It is inconsistent with his fiduciary obligations to make a contract on behalf of the corporation with a partnership of which he is a member. Sims v. Petaluma Gas Light Co., 131 Cal. 656, 63 Pac. 1011; German National Bank v. Hastings First Nat. Bank, 55 Nebr. 86, 75 N. W. 531. He cannot acquire a title adverse to his corporation by purchasing a tax-title against its property and transferring it to another corporation organized by him. Appleton Waterworks Co. v. Central Trust Co., 93 Fed. 286, 35 C. C. A. 302. If the president of a bank becomes interested with a customer of the bank in an outside enterprise, and to facilitate that enterprise directs that such customer be allowed to overdraw his account, and establishes the custom of paying his overdrafts, he will be liable to the bank for the loss thereby sustained as for a breach of trust. Oakland Sav. Bank v. Wilcox, 60 Cal. 126. To the same effect on nearly the same facts see Sturgis First Nat. Bank v. Reed, 36 Mich. 263; Boker's Estate, 7 Phila. (Pa.) 479 (liable for placing the money of a depositor to his own credit, and then allowing the depositor to withdraw).

What acts consistent with this obligation.—It does not prevent him from making a contract with the company, provided his own vote in the board is not necessary to the making of it. See supra, IX, G, 5, d; IX, I, 10; IX, J, 4, a. To assist the corporation when in distress, it has been held that he may purchase its past-due, outstanding bonds, and make a valid contract renewing, extending, and increasing their rate of interest. Bradley v. South Carolina Mar., etc., Phosphate Min., etc., Co., 3 Fed. Cas. No. 1,789, 3 Hughes 26. He may contract on his own behalf to do the business which his defunct corporation has ceased to do. Murray v. Vanderbilt, 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 140. Compare Ward v. Davidson, 89 Mo. 445, 1 S. W. 846. When his company needs rolling-stock which it cannot purchase he may rent it some of his own cars. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. O'Hara, 177 Ill. 525, 52 N. E. 734, 53 N. E. 118 [affirming 75 Ill. App. 496]. He may give the corporation pecuniary assistance in its difficulties, but unless he lawfully secures himself he becomes merely a general creditor. Sanders v. Page, 11 Colo. 518, 19 Pac. 468. See also Hentig v. Sweet, 33 Kan. 244, 6 Pac. 259. But where a bank, in violation of statute, issued time notes in payment of state stock, it was held that the president could not, by advancing to the seller the price agreed to be paid, enforce the payment against the bank. State Bank Com'rs v. St. Lawrence Bank, 7 N. Y. 513 [reversing 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 436]. If he advances money to raise a mortgage he is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee. Bush v. Wadsworth, 60 Mich. 255, 27 N. W. 532. He may accept stock of a company with which his own is consolidated, in consideration of not entering a rival business for a term of years, where that was the motive for the consolida-

b. To Third Parties — (I) For Torts. His liability for torts rests upon principles already considered.[10] Where the wrong done consists of mere nonfeasance, of the mere failure to perform some duty which the corporation, his principal, owes to plaintiff, then the corporation only is liable; but where it consists of misfeasance, an affirmative act wrongfully ordered or done against plaintiff, then he cannot escape liability by setting up that it was the act of the corporation, for although the corporation may be liable, he may be liable also. He, as a personal trespasser; it, on the principle of respondeat superior. It is, in the eye of the law, like other cases of joint trespass.[11] On principles elsewhere considered[12] the president of a corporation is liable to third persons for losses sustained by them in dealing with it on the faith of his misrepresentations as to its financial condition[13] or other facts forming a material inducement to the contract.[14] But in all these cases the evidence must in some way connect him with the fraud.

(II) For Breach of Warranty of Authority. As in the case of directors[15] and other contracting agents of corporations,[16] if the president executes a written obligation in the name of the corporation, but without authority to do so, whereby the obligee loses recourse against the corporate funds, the president will tion. Bristol v. Scranton, 63 Fed. 218, 11 C. C. A. 144. In a transaction between two corporations, the fact that the same man is the president of both does not of itself make void a promissory note (St. Joe, etc., Consol. Min. Co. v. Arpen First Nat. Bank, 10 Colo. App. 339, 50 Pac. 1055 [motion to dismiss appeal denied in 24 Colo. 537, 52 Pac. 678]) or a mortgage (Sells v. Rosedale Grocery, etc., Co., 72 Miss. 590, 17 So. 236). It has been held on the one hand that a president's fiduciary obligations permit him to buy land that his corporation was simply negotiating for. Lagarde v. Anniston Lime, etc., Co., 126 Ala. 496, 28 So. 199. And on the other hand that it prevents his buying land which he knows is desired for the corporation, and selling to it at an advance without the unanimous consent of the shareholders. Earle v. Burland, 27 Ont. App. 540. In the absence of a contract on the part of a shareholder, conferring a lien upon his stock for indebtedness to the corporation, or provisions of the charter or by-laws to this effect, there is nothing in the position of the president of a bank as a fiduciary which will prevent him from taking an assignment to himself of the shares of such shareholder, by way of security for a debt, and subsequently transferring the same in payment of such indebtedness, although the shareholder is in failing circumstances at the time and a debtor of the corporation. Farmers', etc., Bank v. Wasson, 48 Iowa 336, 30 Am. Rep. 398.

Conversion.— His liability for converting to his own use the property of the corporation rests upon the same footing as that of any other agent. Southern Mut. Ins. Co. v. Pike, 32 La. Ann. 488; Greenville Gas Co. v. Reis, 54 Ohio St. 549, 44 N. E. 271; Hayes v. Kenyon, 7 R. I. 136. So where a resolution of a corporation authorized its president to sell certain bonds at a certain price, and the president lent the bonds, in an action against him for their conversion, it was held that the question of his general powers as president had no bearing upon the case, but that as to these bonds the extent of his authority was measured by the resolution. Second Ave. R. Co. v. Mehrbach, 49 N. Y. Super. Ct. 267.

10. As for instance for fraud in procuring credit for the corporation. Phillips v. Wortendyke, 31 Hun (N. Y.) 192. See supra, IX, L, 1 et seq.

11. Nunnelly v. Southern Iron Co., 94 Tenn. 397, 29 S. W. 361, 28 L. R. A. 421; Bates v. Van Pelt, 1 Tex. Civ. App. 185, 20 S. W. 949. See also Perkins v. Mayville Dist. Camp-Meeting Assoc., 10 S. W. 659, 10 Ky. L. Rep. 781 (not liable for president's interference with trade of outsider); Bayless v. Orne, Freem. (Miss.) 161 (injunction to prevent malfeasance in office refused).

Donations of property wrongfully extorted by the president of a railroad company will be held by him in trust for donors. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Durant, 24 Fed. Cas. No. 14 377, 3 Dill. 343. See also supra, IX, G, 8, h.

He will not be held to be an innocent purchaser of county bonds purchased from his company to which they were illegally issued. Madison County v. Paxton, 57 Miss. 701.

12. See supra, IX, O, 5 et seq.

13. Hubbard v. Weare, 79 Iowa 678, 44 N. W. 915; King v. Davis, 16 N. Y. Suppl. 427, 41 N. Y. St. 898; Tyler v. Savage, 143 U. S. 79, 12 S. Ct. 340, 36 L. ed. 82.

14. Clark v. Dunham Lumber Co., 86 Ala. 220, 5 So. 560; Cable v. Bowlus, 21 Ohio Cir. Ct. 53, 11 Ohio Cir. Dec. 526; Bonhomme v. Bickerdike, 17 Quebec Super. Ct. 28. And the acts of a third party in revealing the falsity of the president's statements and causing the abandonment of the contract thereby induced is not actionable by the corporation. Hale v. Mason, 160 N. Y. 561, 55 N. E. 202 [affirming 22 N. Y. App. Div. 630, 48 N. Y. Suppl. 1105].

15. See supra, IX, O, 3, a et seq.

16. See supra, I, Q, 7, c, (I) et seq.

be held personally liable thereon, on the theory of a breach of his express or implied warranty of his authority.[17]

3. His Compensation — a. No Compensation For Ordinary Duties of His Office — (i) In General. The president of a corporation is not entitled to any compensation for performing the ordinary duties of his office, unless the governing statute or some by-law, regulation, resolution, or contract to which his own vote was not essential has given it to him.[18]

(ii) Unless by Antecedent, Valid Agreement. As the law does not imply any agreement to pay for such services, in order for him to recover compensation for them he must at least show an antecedent, valid agreement to pay for them.[19] In the absence of any specified method this is usually accomplished by a resolution of the board of directors fixing his salary,[20] but in some of the United States the statute law provides that there shall be no compensation for

17. Bradford v. Woodworth, 108 Cal. 684, 41 Pac. 797; Miller v. Reynolds, 92 Hun (N. Y.) 400, 36 N. Y. Suppl. 660, 71 N. Y. St. 574; Nelligan v. Campbell, 20 N. Y. Suppl. 234, 47 N. Y. St. 576.

Ultra vires contracts.— Where the president of a corporation who in behalf of the corporation attempts to bind it by a contract ultra vires the corporation, he does not bind himself, if the other party knows that his action was not so intended. Holt v. Winfield Bank, 25 Fed. 812. Compare supra, VIII, C, 8, b, (I) et seq.

18. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Elliott, 55 Iowa 104, 7 N. W. 470, 39 Am. Rep. 167; Martindale v. Wilson-Cass Co., 134 Pa. St. 348, 19 Atl. 680, 26 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 48, 19 Am. St. Rep. 706.

19. Illinois.— St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v O'Hara, 177 Ill. 525, 52 N. E. 734, 53 N. E. 118 [affirming 75 Ill. App. 496]; Ellis v. Ward, 137 Ill. 509, 25 N. E. 530; Illinois Linen Co. v. Hough, 91 Ill. 63.

Louisiana.— Levisee v. Shreveport City R. Co., 27 La. Ann. 641.

Maine.— McAvity v. Lincoln Pulp, etc., Co., 82 Me. 504, 20 Atl. 82; Holland v. Lewiston Falls Bank, 52 Me. 564.

Massachusetts.— Sawyer v. Pawners' Bank, 6 Allen 207.

Missouri.—Adlets v. Progressive Shoe Co., 84 Mo. App. 288.

New York.— Barril v. Calendar Water-Proofing Co., 50 Hun 257, 2 N. Y. Suppl. 758, 19 N. Y. St. 877.

Oregon.— Wood v. Lost Lake Mfg. Co., 23 Oreg. 20, 23 Pac. 848, 37 Am. St. Rep. 651; Thompson v. Willamette S. M. L., etc., Co., 15 Oreg. 604, 16 Pac. 647.

Pennsylvania.— Martindale v. Wilson-Cass Co., 134 Pa. St. 348, 19 Atl. 680, 26 Wkly. Notes Cas. 48, 19 Am. St. Rep. 706.

20. See Smith v. Woodville Consol. Min. Co., 66 Cal. 398, 5 Pac. 688; Sawyer v. Pawners' Bank, 6 Allen (Mass.) 207. But after the insolvency of the corporation the board is powerless to pass such a resolution. McAvity v. Lincoln Pulp, etc., Co., 82 Me. 504, 20 Atl. 82. See supra, IX, Q, 3. Nor is such a resolution of any avail to create a claim for past services. Ellis v. Ward, 137 Ill. 507, 20 N. W. 671; Wood v. Lost Lake Mfg. Co., 23 Oreg. 20, 23 Pac. 848, 37 Am. St. Rep. 651. It has been held competent evidence to show that the salary had been fixed as therein stated, but not to show a contract for prior services. Smith v. Woodville Consol. Min. Co., 66 Cal. 398, 5 Pac. 688. But it has been held on the other hand that the president is entitled to the salary fixed until his death or removal, although incompetent to perform the duties of the office. Brown v. Galveston Wharf Co., 92 Tex. 520, 50 S. W. 126 [reversing (Tex. Civ. App. 1898) 48 S. W. 41, 43]. Of course he cannot by his own vote as a director increase his salary. Jones v. Morrison, 31 Minn. 140, 16 N. W. 854; Ward v. Davidson, 89 Mo. 445, 1 S. W. 846; Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317. But it has been held that the action of the board of directors in electing a president and leaving his salary to be fixed by him and another director, who together practically represent all the stock, is such an exercise of the board's authority to fix his salary as to constitute a contract on which he can recover. Bagaley v. Pittsburgh, etc., Iron Co., 146 Pa. St. 478, 23 Atl. 837. See also Clark v. American Coal Co., 86 Iowa 436, 53 N. W. 291, 17 L. R. A. 557.

Where the directors, empowered to fix salaries, cut that of the president from twenty-five thousand dollars to ten thousand five hundred dollars, while making little if any change in those of the other officers, it was held that the reduction was not a fair and honest execution of the by-laws and did not prevent him from recovering the value of his services. Banigan v. U. S. Rubber Co., 22 R. I. 452, 45 Atl. 739.

Contract held void.— It has been held that a contract with one who controls, as trustee, a majority of the shares of a company, that plaintiff shall be retained as vice-president thereof at a salary of at least five thousand dollars per annum is void as against public policy. West v. Camden, 135 U. S. 507, 10 S. Ct. 838, 34 L. ed. 254.

Validity of note executed by president for his salary.— That a negotiable promissory note authorized to be executed by the president for his own salary will be good in the hands of a bona fide purchaser see Wilson v. Metropolitan El. Co., 120 N. Y. 145, 24 N. E 384, 30 N. Y. St. 787, 17 Am. St. Rep. 625.

services rendered by the president of a corporation unless it be allowed by the shareholders.[21]

b. Can Claim Compensation For Extra Services — (i) In General. While the president cannot claim compensation for services incidental to the duties of his office, unless such compensation has been previously fixed, he may claim compensation for services which are clearly outside of the scope of such official duties.[22]

(ii) Test by Which to Determine What Services Are Extra. In determining whether there was an implied contract to pay the president of a corporation for his services outside of his official duties, the nature of the corporation and of its business, the extent and character of the services, the comparative value and amount of the services of other officers of the company, and all other circumstances must be considered.[23]

B. The Vice-President — 1. Nature of His Office. There is no office pertaining to a private corporation about which both the statute and case-made law have so little to say as that of vice-president. The etymology of the term would indicate that the officer has no functions to perform other than those of an ordinary director, except in case of the absence, disability, or death of the president, when he acts in his stead, presiding at the meetings of the board of directors and performing the other functions of the office.[24]

2. Sources of His Power. It is well known, however, that in many extensive corporations such as railroad companies, two or three vice-presidents are provided for, each of whom receives a salary, and to each of whom are assigned special definite duties. Where such is the case, or where the vice-president acts in the absence of the president, his powers are derived from the same source[25] as those of

21. Under such a statute the directors cannot, without the consent of the shareholders, pass a resolution fixing the salary of the president. Ravenswood, etc., R. Co. v. Woodyard, 46 W. Va. 558, 33 S. E. 285. But a payment made under such a resolution, which was afterward approved at a general meeting of the shareholders, was held to be not a violation of the statute. Shickell v. Berryville Land, etc., Co., 99 Va. 88, 37 S. E. 813, 3 Va. Supreme Ct. 45.

22. Bartlett v. Mystic River Corp., 151 Mass. 433, 24 N. E. 780; Bagley v. Carthage, etc., R. Co., 165 N. Y. 179, 58 N. E. 895 [affirming 25 N. Y. App. Div. 475, 49 N. Y. Suppl. 718]; Outterson v. Fonda Lake Paper Co., 20 N. Y. Suppl. 980, 49 N. Y. St. 556; Olney v. Chadsey, 7 R. I. 224; Toponce v. Corinne Mill Canal, etc., Co., 6 Utah 439, 24 Pac. 534.

Illustrations.— Thus in the absence of an explicit contract compensation has been denied to a railroad president for superintending the construction of buildings or works for the company (Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Elliott, 55 Iowa 104, 7 N. W. 470, 39 Am. Rep. 167; Levisee v. Shreveport City R. Co., 27 La. Ann. 641); and to a bank president for guaranteeing its paper (Leavitt v. Beers, Lalor (N. Y.) 221. See also Gill v. New York Cab Co., 48 Hun (N. Y.) 524, 1 N. Y. Suppl. 202, 16 N. Y. St. 236). Right of president to compensation under particular states of fact. Rosborough v. Shasta River Canal Co., 22 Cal. 556; Indianapolis, etc., R. Co. v. Hyde, 122 Ind. 188, 23 N. E. 706; Com. v. Eagle F. Ins. Co., 14 Allen (Mass.) 344; Nebraska R. Co. v. Lett, 8 Nebr. 251. And where plaintiff, while drawing a salary as general manager, acted also as secretary, but without making any claim for compensation as such, it was held that after his retirement from the service of the company he could not recover for salary as secretary. Fowler v. Great Southern Telephone, etc., Co., 104 La. Ann. 751, 29 So. 271. On the other hand the president of a club has been allowed to recover compensation for services rendered the corporation, on its authority, in letting its building and collecting the rents, where that was not within his duty as president. Flynn v. Columbus Club, 21 R. I. 534, 45 Atl. 551. And the president of an insolvent mortgagor corporation has been held entitled to compensation for care of the property pending foreclosure, after a receiver had been refused. Onondaga Trust, etc., Co. v. Spartanburg Waterworks Co., 97 Fed. 409.

23. Bartlett v. Mystic River Corp., 151 Mass. 433, 24 N. E. 780.

24. Wagg-Anderson Woolen Co. v. Lesher, 78 Ill. App. 678; Aaronson v. David Mayer Brewing Co., 26 Misc. (N. Y.) 655, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 387 [reversed on other grounds in 29 Misc. (N. Y.) 289, 61 N. Y. Suppl. 1067]. And it has been held that on the death of the president the vice-president may act in his stead, although that office was not provided for by name in the by-laws, the directors simply being authorized to create other offices and they having created that of vice-president. Colman v. West Virginia Oil, etc., Land Co., 25 W. Va. 148.

25. The following implied powers have the president, and his liabilities rest upon the same principles that determine those of the president.[26]

3. Although Acting as President, Not Entitled to President's Salary. But where the vice-president acts during the president's disability he is not entitled to a salary in lieu of the president's salary, where there is no by-law to that effect and the by-laws make no provision for the deduction from the president's salary during his absence.[27]

C. The Managing Agent Other Than President and Cashier — 1. Who Regarded as Managing Agent. It seems that within the meaning of a statute providing for the service of process upon "the managing agent" of a corporation only that agent is to be regarded as a managing agent who has control of all the business of the corporation, as contradistinguished from an agent who has control of a part of its business merely.[28] Accordingly it has been held that neither the station agent of a railroad,[29] the ticket agent,[30] the baggage-master,[31] nor one having authority only to purchase the horses and feed for a street railroad corporation, whose employment continues only at the pleasure of the president,[32] answers this description.

2. His Appointment and Tenure — a. "Managing Agent" Not an Officer but an Agent Holding During Pleasure. The "managing agent" of a corporation, by whatever name called, other than president, and in case of a banking corporation, the cashier, is a mere employee of the board of directors, has no franchise in his been admitted: In the vice-president of a land company to employ persons to get out logs on its land (Kentucky Land, etc., Co. v. Wallace, 55 S. W. 885, 21 Ky. L. Rep. 1601); in the vice-president of a bank to assign notes belonging to the bank as security, additional to a bond previously executed with himself as surety, to secure a deposit of county funds (Richards v. Osceola Bank, 79 Iowa 707, 45 N. W. 294); and in the vice-president of a manufacturing company to accept notes due under a contract for the construction of a manufactured article (Whitaker v. Kilroy, 70 Mich. 635, 38 N. W. 606).

The following implied powers have been denied: In the vice-president of a business corporation to sign a guaranty (Rahm v. King Wrought-Iron Bridge-Manufactory Co., 16 Kan. 277; Aaronson v. David Mayer Brewing Co., 29 Misc. (N. Y.) 289, 60 N. Y. Suppl. 523 [reversing 26 Misc. (N. Y.) 655, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 387, 390]); in the vice-president of a railway company to make an agreement transferring all the franchises, road-bed, track, and other property of the company (Russell v. Alabama Midland R. Co., 94 Ga. 510, 20 S. E. 350); and in the vice-president of a bank to create evidence of indebtedness against the bank, which could be used to charge the shareholders after its dissolution, by executing a note in the name of the corporation, in favor of his own clerk (Bonaffe v. Fowler, 7 Paige (N. Y.) 576).

Question submitted to jury.— For a case in which it was held that the circumstances were sufficient to warrant the submission to a jury of the question of the validity of a guaranty made for the corporation by him see Fuld v. Burr Brewing Co., 18 N. Y. Suppl. 456, 45 N. Y. St. 649.

Presumption of validity from due execution by vice-president.— Proper formal execution by the vice-president of a corporation has been held to lend presumptive validity to a corporate deed (Smith v. Smith, 62 Ill. 493; Ellison v. Branstrator, 153 Ind. 146, 54 N. E. 433) and to a bill of sale (Springer v. Bigford, 55 Ill. App. 198). And so does a contract within the scope of the regular business of the corporation. Neosho Valley Invest. Co. v. Hannum, 10 Kan. 499, 63 Pac. 92.

26. He is not personally liable on contracts made in behalf of the corporation where to the knowledge of the other contracting party the contract is intended to bind the company, and is not made on his own behalf. Inhoff v. House, 36 Nebr. 28, 53 N. W. 1038.

Circumstances under which the corporation was held not responsible for the vice-president's conversion of the property of a third person. Thompson v. Six Penny Sav. Bank, 5 Bosw. (N. Y.) 293.

27. Brown v. Galveston Wharf Co., 92 Tex. 520, 50 S. W. 126.

28. Flynn v. Hudson River R. Co., 6 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 308; Brewster v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 5 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 183.

Construction of the words "general or special agent," within the meaning of a statute relating to service of garnishment. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Hunt, 39 Mich. 469. See also Washington, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Crane, 8 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 517.

That the acting superintendent of a railroad is to be deemed the superintendent within the meaning of a contract see Connecticut River R. Co. v. Williston, 16 Gray (Mass.) 64.

29. Brewster v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 5 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 183.

30. Doty v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 8 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 427.

31. Flynn v. Hudson River R. Co., 6 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 308.

32. Emerson v. Auburn, etc., R. Co., 13 Hun (N. Y.) 150.

office, but holds it like any other agent or servant subject to the terms of the particular contract under which it is assumed. Unless a stated term is fixed in the contract of employment, undoubtedly such an agent holds his agency subject to being terminated at the pleasure of the board of directors.[33]

b. Not Necessary That Charter Should Provide For His Election. It is not necessary, in order that his acts done within the scope of his agency shall bind the corporation, that the charter should provide for the election of such an officer. When therefore he has power to sell the personal property of the corporation as an incident to its business, its receiver after insolvency cannot impeach a sale made by him on the ground that the charter did not provide for such an officer; but it will be sufficient that he was the general manager de facto.[34] The governing principle, which applies in the case of other agents, is that where one has the actual charge and management of the business of a corporation, with the knowledge of the directors, the corporation will be bound by his contracts, made on account of the corporation in the course of the business thus conducted by him, without other evidence of actual authority from the corporation.[35]

3. General View of Scope of Powers of Managing Agents — a. Said to Be Virtually the Corporation Itself. It has been said, speaking with reference to a railroad corporation, that "the general agent of the company is virtually the corporation itself";[36] and so he is within the scope of his duties, that is to say, within the ordinary routine of the business of the corporation, but not for all purposes.

b. Has Power to Bind Corporation by Acts Done in Ordinary Course of Its Business — (I) In General. This power is impliedly ascribed to him in the absence of notice to the contrary, on the ground that otherwise the public would have no security in dealing with the corporation through its managing agent.[37] By such an appointment the corporation impliedly holds the managing agent out to the public as possessing all the authority to bind it by contracts which are necessary, proper, or usual to be made in the ordinary transaction of its business;[38] and so as possessing the authority to represent himself as possessing the full powers usually ascribed to such office or agency, which representations will bind the corporation,[39] a qualification of the well-known rule that an agent cannot make himself such so as to bind his principal by his own declarations.[40]

(II) His Apparent Powers, Acquired by a Holding Out, Etc. A corporation is bound by acts of its general manager which were in excess of his actual authority, where it had held him out to the public as possessing such authority.[41]

33. So held in regard to a superintendent of a street railway company in Queen v. Second Ave. R. Co., 44 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 281.

Grounds for removal held insufficient.— The sale by the general manager of a coal-mining corporation, of a large amount of coal to a railroad corporation of which he is fuel agent, was held not sufficient cause for his removal and for the removal of other directors and majority shareholders, as for mismanagement, where the price received was full market price. Hill v. Gould, 129 Mo. 106, 30 S. W. 181.

34. Hamm v. Drew, 83 Tex. 77, 18 S. W. 434.

35. Goodwin v. Union Screw Co., 34 N. H. 378.

36. Per Horton, C. J., in Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Reisner, 18 Kan. 458, 460.

The negligence of a superintendent is the negligence of the corporation itself. Marquette, etc., R. Co. v. Taft, 28 Mich. 289, 298, per Cooley, J.

37. Georgia Military Academy v. Estill, 77 Ga. 409; Getty v. C. R. Barnes Milling Co., 40 Kan. 281, 19 Pac. 617; Topeka Primary Assoc. v. Martin, 39 Kan. 750, 18 Pac. 941; Kenton Ins. Co. v. Bowman, 84 Ky. 430, 1 S. W. 717, 8 Ky. L. Rep. 467; Whitaker v. Kilroy, 70 Mich. 635, 38 N. W. 606.

38. Georgia Military Academy v. Estill, 77 Ga. 409.

39. Whitaker v. Kilroy, 70 Mich. 635, 638, 38 N. W. 606.

40. Circumstances under which one who had been appointed superintendent of the business of a corporation in a foreign country, his duties not to commence until a certain stage in the development of the business, could not bind the corporation by his declarations as to one who relied solely upon them. Rathbun v. Snow, 123 N. Y. 343, 25 N. E. 379, 10 L. R. A. 355 [affirming 15 Daly (N. Y.) 141, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 925, 22 N. Y. St. 227].

41. Western Homestead, etc., Co. v. Albuquerque First Nat. Bank, 9 N. M. 1, 47 Pac. 721. Thus it has been held that a corpora-

(III) His Apparent Powers Not Limited by Secret By-Laws. Such being the law, an innocent stranger, dealing with the corporation through such an agent, will not be affected by any limitation of his authority contained in the by-laws or other private instruments of the corporation of which he has no notice.[42]

4. What His Implied Powers Include. The powers thus ascribed to the managing agent of a corporation by implication of law have been held to include: In the general manager of a brewing and ice company, the power to purchase property which is necessary, or at least useful, in the proper conduct of its brewing and ice factory;[43] in the manager of a trading corporation, the power to purchase a machine necessary to the business of the corporation;[44] in the general manager of a foreign corporation, the power to make an agreement to pay a stated price for the rent of a storehouse occupied by an agent to sell the goods of the corporation;[45] in the general manager of a telegraph company, having full charge of its ordinary business transactions, the power to pledge the security of the company by making an overdraft in bank, where the receipts of the company are much less than its outlay and the company knew that the general manager was keeping an account in its name in the bank;[46] in the president, treasurer, and general manager of a business corporation, the power to subscribe to a fund to purchase land for the site of a post-office, which will result in the erection of a post-office adjoining the place of business of the corporation, and which will be of advantage to it;[47] in the general agent of a manufacturing corporation, the power to employ workmen to carry on the business of the concern, and to pay them with the funds of the corporation, or if the corporation is not in funds to execute a note of the corporation in payment;[48] in the general agent of a railroad company, the power to take a lease of property to be used for a ticket office of the road;[49] and in an officer of a manufacturing corporation who attends to the general details of its business and who has power to approve sales made through other officers, the power to bind the corporation by making a sale of its manufactured goods.[50]

5. What His Implied Powers Do Not Include. In the bookkeeper of a lumber company, left in charge by the superintendent, the hiring of a horse and buggy tion engaged in the purchase and sale of land is bound by the act of its general manager, without reference to his actual authority, in bidding in land at a judicial sale and executing a bond for purchase-money in its name, where the corporation, by permitting him to purchase numerous other tracts of land, executing therefor similar obligations, has held him out as possessing such authority. Hurst v. American Assoc., 105 Ky. 793, 49 S. W. 800, 20 Ky. L. Rep. 1624. See also Auburn Bank v. Putnam, 1 Abb. Dec. (N. Y.) 80, 3 Keyes (N. Y.) 343, 1 Transcr. App. (N. Y.) 322, agent had frequently before indorsed corporate name to accommodation paper — corporation held.

42. Hamilton Coal Co. v. Bernhard, 16 N. Y. Suppl. 55, 40 N. Y. St. 875. See also supra, V, A, 5; infra, XVII, F, 1, n, (I).

43. New South Brewing, etc., Co. v. Shuck, 50 S. W. 681, 20 Ky. L. Rep. 2005.

44. Thompson v. Brantford Electric, etc., Co., 25 Ont. App. 340, seller is not chargeable with notice of a resolution of the board of directors, specifying the terms upon which he is authorized to purchase the machine.

45. Singer Mfg. Co. v. McLean, 105 Ala. 316, 16 So. 912.

In the general manager of a loan association, the power to employ a broker to effect a sale or exchange of its property acquired under foreclosure sale, and not necessary to its corporate functions. Norton v. Genesee Nat. Sav., etc., Assoc., 57 N. Y. App. Div. 520, 68 N. Y. Suppl. 32. Special circumstances under which a real-estate broker was held entitled to rely upon the possession of such authority by the secretary and general manager of a savings and loan association. Tyler v. Anglo-American Sav., etc., Assoc., 30 N. Y. App. Div. 404, 52 N. Y. Suppl. 77.

46. Helena Nat. Bank v. Rocky Mountain Tel. Co., 20 Mont. 379, 51 Pac. 829, 63 Am. St. Rep. 628.

47. Green Co. v. Blodgett, 55 Ill. App. 556.

48. Bates v. Keith Iron Co., 7 Metc. (Mass.) 224; Odiorne v. Maxcy, 13 Mass. 178; Emerson v. Province Hat Mfg. Co., 12 Mass. 237, 7 Am. Dec. 66. But see Benedict v. Lansing, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 283 [citing Clark v. Farmers' Woolen Mfg. Co., 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 256].

49. Ecker v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 8 Mo. App. 223.

50. Emmons v. Excelsior Distilling Co., 9 Mo. App. 578.

for the use of its employees, the same not being necessary for the transaction of its business;[51] in the superintendent of a manufacturing company, the power to contract with an employee for an interest in the business and profits of the company;[52] in the superintendent of a waterworks company, the power to contract to furnish water to a hotel for a small proportion of the price charged to regular customers under a city ordinance, the same being much less than the water would be worth at regular rates;[53] in the secretary and business manager of a manufacturing and trading corporation, the power to exchange its manufactured articles for shares of its own capital stock;[54] or in the general agent of a corporation, to bind the company by the payment of a debt contracted by individual shareholders of the company before it was incorporated.[55]

6. WHETHER AUTHORITY TO EMPLOY SURGEONS, ETC., FOR WOUNDED EMPLOYEES — a. In General. This question has been answered differently by different courts.[56] Such an employment does not raise an implied promise to pay the physician or surgeon, where there is no legal duty toward the patient on the part of the person making the request, but in such a case the making of the request is ascribed to the exercise of an ordinary office of humanity.[57] The fundamental question therefore is whether there is a legal duty on the part of the corporation to furnish surgical or medical aid to the employee who is suddenly injured while in its service and in the line of its duty; and, secondly, whether its managing agent, by whatever name called, has implied authority to bind it to the performance of this legal duty. Such an implied power has been ascribed to the superintendent of a railroad;[58] to the division superintendent of a railroad, with the conclusion that he has power to ratify such an employment made by a subordinate without instructions;[59] to the assistant superintendent of a railroad;[60] and to the general superintendent of a mining company, having only charge of its affairs and property.[61]

b. Cases Denying Possession of This Authority. The possession of such an implied authority has been denied in the case of a superintendent of a manufacturing corporation[62] and in the manager of a business corporation.[63] Its posses-

51. Baird Lumber Co. v. Devlin, 124 Ala. 245, 27 So. 425.

52. Deffenbaugh v. Jackson Paper Mfg. Co., 120 Mich. 242, 79 N. W. 197.

53. Meridian Waterworks Co. v. Schulherr, (Miss. 1892) 17 So. 167.

54. Calteaux v. Mueller, 102 Wis. 525, 78 N. W. 1082, holding that the power of a corporation to purchase its own shares cannot be exercised by a ministerial officer without a special authorization by its board of directors.

55. White v. Westport Cotton Mfg. Co., 1 Pick. (Mass.) 215, 11 Am. Dec. 168, opinion by Parker, C. J.

56. An able discussion of it will be found in Marquette, etc., R. Co. v. Taft, 28 Mich. 289, where the court was equally divided.

57. Missouri.— Meisenbach v. Southern Cooperage Co., 45 Mo. App. 232.

New York.— Crane v. Baudouine, 55 N. Y. 256.

Pennsylvania.— Boyd v. Sappington, 4 Watts 247.

Vermont.— Smith v. Watson, 14 Vt. 332.

England.— Veitch v. Russell, 3 Q. B. 928, 43 E. C. L. 1041, C. & M. 362, 41 E. C. L. 201, 3 G. & D. 198, 7 Jur. 60, 12 L. J. Q. B. 13; Sellen v. Norman, 4 C. & P. 80, 19 E. C. L. 416.

58. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Rodrigues, 47 Ill. 188, 95 Am. Dec. 484; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Winterbotham, 52 Kan. 433, 34 Pac. 1052; Walker v. Great Western R. Co., L. R. 2 Exch. 228, 36 L. J. Exch. 123, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 327, 15 Wkly. Rep. 769.

59. Pacific R. Co. v. Thomas, 19 Kan. 256. Contra, Brown v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 67 Mo. 122, holding that a division superintendent has no implied authority to bind the company to pay for drugs, etc., furnished on his order to a wounded employee.

60. Bigham v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 79 Iowa 534, 44 N. W. 805, power to employ nurses.

That a surgeon of a railroad company has no implied authority to bind the company to pay for services and meals furnished nurses and others in attendance upon a wounded employee was held in Bushnell v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 69 Iowa 620, 29 N. W. 753.

61. Mt. Wilson Gold, etc., Min. Co. v. Burbidge, 11 Colo. App. 487, 53 Pac. 826.

62. Meisenbach v. Southern Cooperage Co., 45 Mo. App. 232 [distinguishing McCarthy v. Missouri R. Co., 15 Mo. App. 385].

63. Chase v. Swift, 60 Nebr. 696, 84 N. W. 86, 83 Am. St. Rep. 552. For an answer by a practising physician, in a suit by a railroad company, setting up a claim for professional services rendered at the request of its manager to a wounded employee, which was held sion has even been denied in the case of a road-master and conductor of a railroad company.[64]

7. Power to Alien Corporate Property — a. Such Power Generally Denied — (I) Statement of Rule. The courts generally deny to the managing agent, the general manager, or the superintendent of business corporations, by whatever name called, the power to alien the property of the corporation except in the ordinary course of its business. He can alien the property of the corporation in the ordinary course of its business,[65] but he has no incidental or implied power, by virtue of his office, to transfer the real estate of the corporation by deed, although such a deed will estop himself and those claiming through him.[66] A general agent of a corporation, even though his authority in this respect is not limited either by common usage or by the by-laws of the company, has no power as such to convey real estate of the company, but a special power is necessary.[67]

(II) Instances Where It Was Denied. For example such an agent has no authority, by virtue of his agency, to pledge or mortgage the machinery used by the company in the transaction of its work, for the security of a loan procured for the company;[68] to make a lease for the purpose of trying the title to land into which he has entered for condition broken, under a vote of the corporation specially authorizing him to enter and hold the land, but containing no provision empowering him to make a lease, and this, although he has uniformly made leases of lands in the possession of the corporation, with the knowledge of and without objection on the part of the corporation;[69] in the superintendent of a mining company to pledge the property of the company for a corporate debt;[70] in the local or district manager of a general electric company to assign the choses in action of the company;[71] or in the general manager of a mining company to grant an assignment of a license in the real property of the company.[72]

b. His Power to Pledge or Mortgage Personal Property of Corporation For Its Debts. It must be concluded from what has preceded that no such power exists, unless an authorization, expressed or implied, is shown;[73] but we have high judicial authority, in a decision of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts, speaking through Chief Justice Shaw, to the effect that the general agent and the treasurer of a manufacturing corporation might pledge the property of the corporation, without specific authority, and that, although the by-laws con-bad because it did not allege that the power to bind the corporation by such an engagement was within the scope of the manager's authority, see New Pittsburgh Coal, etc., Co. v. Shaley, 25 Ind. App. 282, 58 N. E. 87.

64. Peninsular R. Co. v. Gary, 22 Fla. 356, 1 Am. St. Rep. 194.

65. Hamm v. Drew, 83 Tex. 77, 18 S. W. 434.

66. Stow v. Wyse, 7 Conn. 214, 18 Am. Dec. 99. Even the trustees are in some cases restrained by the charter from aliening the real estate of the corporation. Stevens v. Willard, 43 Vt. 692. What acquiescence of the directors of a banking corporation in an arrangement made by an officer who has assumed the general management of its business will bind the corporation. Davies v. New York Concert Co., 13 N. Y. Suppl. 739, 36 N. Y. St. 816. Liability of a corporation for the acts of one shown to be its financial manager. Case Mfg. Co. v. Soxman, 138 U. S. 431, 11 S. Ct. 360, 34 L. ed. 1019.

67. Stow v. Wyse, 7 Conn. 214, 18 Am. Dec. 99; Leggett v. New Jersey Mfg., etc., Co., 1 N. J. Eq. 541, 23 Am. Dec. 728.

Whether the president and secretary of a corporation were especially authorized to convey its land was determined upon a review of the evidence in Marshall County High School Co. v. Iowa Evangelical Synod, 28 Iowa 360.

68. Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203; Whitwell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425.

69. Gillis v. Bailey, 17 N. H. 18.

70. Trent v. Sherlock, 24 Mont. 255, 61 Pac. 650, where it was also held that a bill of sale of a portion of a mining company's property by the superintendent, which he had no authority to make, was not prima facie binding on the corporation and did not tend to show that he had an implied power to make it.

71. Rigby v. Lowe, 125 Cal. 613, 58 Pac. 153.

72. Butte, etc., Consol. Min. Co. v. Montana Ore-Purchasing Co., 21 Mont. 539, 52 Pac. 375, 55 Pac. 112.

73. Rigby v. Lowe, 125 Cal. 613, 58 Pac. 153; Trent v. Sherlock, 24 Mont. 255, 61 Pac. 650; Packets Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205, 37 Am. Dec. 203; Whitwell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425.

ferred upon them the specific power to do certain acts but did not include the power to pledge the property of the corporation.[74]

c. His Power to Make Assignments For Creditors — (I) In General. The strict rule on this subject is that a ministerial officer of a corporation has no inherent power by reason of his office to make a general assignment of the property of the corporation for the benefit of creditors. Such power rests alone in the board of directors duly assembled.[75] For example it has been held upon a thorough consideration of the question that the general manager of a manufacturing corporation has no authority to turn over the bulk of its property to a creditor on the eve of a receivership, without the previous knowledge or subsequent ratification of the directors.[76]

(II) Cases Affirming This Power. On the contrary it has been held that where the management of the affairs of a corporation is intrusted to a general managing agent, he has power to assign its choses in action to its creditors, either in payment of, or as security for, a debt of the corporation, without express authority from the directors.[77] So it has been held that a conveyance of all the property of a lumber company to a trustee for the benefit of its creditors, made by a managing agent to whom the entire direction of the business of the company had been intrusted by the shareholders, they not having held a single meeting, but having left everything to him, was presumably made with their consent and was hence valid.[78] In like manner it has been held that a general manager of a corporation conducting a sawmill business and a general merchandise store, who is given general power to conduct and manage its business, is authorized to execute a deed of trust upon the interest of the corporation in a town site held for commercial purposes, and not essential to the conduct of its business, to secure debts contracted in the course of the business.[79]

d. His Power to Make Leases of Corporate Lands. It seems that even the general agent of a corporation cannot make a lease of its lands without special authority. Thus it has been held that the general agent of a corporation, having charge of its lands and buildings, cannot, by virtue of a special vote authorizing him to enter and hold certain lands, make a lease of the same, after his entry for condition broken, in order to try the title thereto; nor is he authorized to do so by reason of his having ordinarily leased lands of the corporation for rent.[80]

8. His Powers Touching Litigation — a. In General. It has been held that the general manager and agent of a corporation must be presumed prima facie at least to have authority to direct the issue of a replevin writ, for the improper service of which the company is sued.[81]

b. Power to Employ Counsel — (I) In General. Managing officers and agents of corporations have power to employ attorneys and counselors to prosecute or defend suits for the corporation, or otherwise to assist in legal proceedings in which it is interested, without any express delegation of power so to do, or any formal resolution of the board of directors to that effect.[82]

74. Fay v. Noble, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 1. See also St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Dalby, 19 Ill. 353.

75. Cupit v. Park City Bank, 20 Utah 292, 58 Pac. 839, power denied to cashier of a bank.

76. Hadden v. Dooley, 92 Fed. 274, 34 C. C. A. 338 [reversing 84 Fed. 80, affirmed in 93 Fed. 728, 35 C. C. A. 554, citing England v. Dearborn, 141 Mass. 590, and distinguishing Lewis v. Hartford Silk Mfg. Co., 56 Conn. 25, 12 Pac. 637].

77. McKiernan v. Lenzen, 56 Cal. 61.

78. Conley v. Collins, 119 Mich. 519, 78 N. W. 555, 44 L. R. A. 844, where the assignment was held bad upon a contest by a deferred creditor, because it was a preferential assignment.

79. Thayer v. Nehalem Mill Co., 31 Oreg. 437, 51 Pac. 202.

80. Gillis v. Bailey, 17 N. H. 18.

81. Frost v. Domestic Sewing Mach. Co., 133 Mass. 563.

82. Luce v. San Diego Land, etc., Co., (Cal. 1894) 37 Pac. 390; Southgate v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 61 Mo. 89; Western Bank v. Gilstrap, 45 Mo. 419; Lewis v. Pulitzer Pub. Co., 77 Mo. App. 434; Mumford v. Hawkins, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 355; American Ins. Co. v. Oakley, 9 Paige (N. Y.) 496, 38 Am. Dec. 561; Dallas Ice Factory, etc., Co. v. Crawford, 18 Tex. Civ. App. 176, 44 S. W. 875.

(II) To What Officers and Agents This Power Has Been Ascribed. This power has been ascribed to the president of a corporation;[83] to the cashier of a banking corporation;[84] to the superintendent of a railroad;[85] to the general manager of a newspaper publishing company who has under a contract a financial interest in its business, who is employed for a definite time, and who is free from the control of the other officers of the company;[86] to the general manager of a land company in California, whose president and directors are in a distant state;[87] to the general manager of a corporation whose duty it is to take charge of all the business and property of the corporation, and who is authorized to contract debts for the necessary operation of the business without an order of the board of directors, with the conclusion that he may bind the corporation by a contract to pay a fee to counsel whom he has consulted with reference to a suit against the company, brought to recover a large amount and to foreclose a lien upon its property, given to secure its payment.[88]

(III) No Such Power in Subordinate Officers or Agents. But while the managing officers of a corporation presumptively have authority to employ counsel to attend to legal business for the corporation, no such presumption obtains in the case of subordinate officers or agents.[89]

(IV) Such Power Implied From Adoption or Recognition. As in other cases[90] the authority of any other agent of a corporation, for example the superintendent of a railway company, to employ counsel in its behalf may be implied from the adoption or recognition of his acts by the company.[91]

9. His Powers to Make, Accept, and Indorse Negotiable Paper — a. No Such Power Ascribed to Him as Matter of Law. Generally speaking the managing agent of a corporation, other than the cashier of a bank, has no implied power to bind the corporation by making, accepting, or indorsing negotiable paper.[92] But where such a power in him is claimed it must be sought for in some special authorization, or in such a continued exercise of it as amounts to a holding out of him by the corporation as possessing it, raising the implication of a previous authorization or a subsequent ratification.[93]

That a town agent in Vermont may bind the town by employing an attorney see Langdon v. Castleton, 30 Vt. 285.

83. Cincinnati Sav. Bank v. Benton, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 240; Mumford v. Hawkins, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 355; American Ins. Co. v. Oakley, 9 Paige (N. Y.) 496, 38 Am. Dec. 561. The president may authorize counsel to appear for the corporation, and if in so doing he exceeds his power to the damage of the corporation, it must look to him for the damages. Lime Rock Bank v. Macomber, 29 Me. 564; Eastman v. Coos Bank, 1 N. H. 23; American Ins. Co. v. Oakley, 9 Paige (N. Y.) 496, 38 Am. Dec. 561. See also supra, X, A, 1, b, (II), (B).

84. Western Bank v. Gillstrap, 45 Mo. 419; Root v. Olcott, 42 Hun (N. Y.) 536.

85. Southgate v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 61 Mo. 89.

86. Lewis v. Pulitzer Pub. Co., 77 Mo. App. 434.

87. Luce v. San Diego Land, etc., Co., (Cal. 1894) 37 Pac. 390.

88. Dallas Ice Factory, etc., Co. v. Crawford, 18 Tex. Civ. App. 176, 44 S. W. 875.

89. Maupin v. Virginia Lead Min. Co., 78 Mo. 24.

90. See infra, X, D, 1, f, (I) et seq.

91. Southgate v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 61 Mo. 89.

92. It has been so held with respect to the agents of manufacturing corporations (Benedict v. Lansing, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 283) and with respect to the general agents of mining corporations (New York Iron Mine v. Negaunee First Nat. Bank, 39 Mich. 644).

93. Arkansas.— City Electric St. R. Co. v. First Nat. Exch. Bank, 62 Ark. 33, 34 S. W. 89, 54 Am. St. Rep. 282, 31 L. R. A. 535.

Kansas.— Topeka Capital Co. v. Remington Paper Co., 61 Kan. 6, 57 Pac. 504 [modified in 59 Pac. 1062].

Louisiana.— Culver v. Leovy, 19 La. Ann. 202.

Massachusetts.— Craft v. South Boston R. Co., 150 Mass. 207, 22 N. E. 920, 5 L. R. A. 641, note signed by defaulting treasurer without authority.

Michigan.— Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Detroit Knitting, etc., Works, 68 Mich. 620, 36 N. W. 696; New York Iron Mine v. Negaunee First Nat. Bank, 39 Mich. 644.

Montana.— Helena Nat. Bank v. Rocky Mountain Tel. Co., 20 Mont. 379, 51 Pac. 829, 43 Am. St. Rep. 628, a telegraph company.

Nevada.— Edwards v. Carson Water Co., 21 Nev. 469, 34 Pac. 381.

New Mexico.— Oak Grove, etc., Cattle Co. v. Foster, 7 N. M. 650, 41 Pac. 522, president of corporation no such implied power.

New York.— Huntington v. Attrill, 118 N. Y. 365, 23 N. E. 544, 29 N. Y. St. 5; Rail-

b. Power Need Not Be Formally Conferred, but May Be Inferred From Habit of Acting. No resolution of the directors or other formal proceeding or authorization is necessary to clothe the manager of a corporation with power to make and deliver notes of the corporation; but the power may be inferred from his being held out as possessing it, and from his habit of acting as in other cases.[94] Upon the question what course of business or conduct will afford presumptive evidence of such a power on the part of the managing officer of a corporation, it has been held that the fact that he has been accustomed to make and discount notes to raise money to meet its expenses is not evidence to prove his authority to accept accommodation drafts drawn upon it by another corporation in which the drawee had no interest; nor will the corporation be held liable on such acceptances by reason of the entries upon its books, by direction of the managing officer, of the accounts of such acceptances, without the direction or knowledge of its other officers.[95]

c. What Written Authorization and Habit of Acting Do Not Confer This Power. According to a recent holding the power of a general manager of a telegraph company to bind the company by executing a promissory note in its name is not conferred by a document clothing him with the power to manage the business of the company, and to make all necessary contracts and arrangements in carrying on and operating the business; by his habit of drawing checks against the funds of the corporation; or by evidence that he had on three previous occasions executed notes in the name of the corporation, where such facts had never been brought to the knowledge of the corporation.[96]

d. What Documents and Circumstances Have Been Held to Confer This Power. On the other hand it has been held that the general "manager" of a branch of an insurance company, as its executive officer, having the care and management of its business under the direction of the general board of directors, may accept a draft addressed to such branch department, in the absence of proof of any restriction upon the general powers conferred upon him.[97] Again, where the agent of a manufacturing corporation was empowered by its by-laws to manage the affairs of the corporation committed to his care; to exercise the powers committed to him according to his best ability and discretion; promptly to collect all assessments and other sums that should become due to the corporation; and to disburse them according to the order of the board of directors, who were made a board of control over him, it was held that such agent, unless the board of directors interposed to control his proceedings, had authority to employ workmen to carry on the business of the corporation, and to pay them with its funds; and consequently when not in funds to execute notes binding upon the corporation in payment.[98] Again where, under the articles of a corporation, an officer was way Equipment, etc., Co. v. Lincoln Nat. Bank, 82 Hun 8, 31 N. Y. Suppl. 44, 63 N. Y. St. 338.

Virginia.— Davis v. Rockingham Invest. Co., 89 Va. 290, 15 S. E. 547.

England.— In re Cunningham, 36 Ch. D. 532, it not being shown that it was necessary for him to sign the paper in order to carry on the business of the company.

Compare Glidden, etc., Varnish Co. v. Interstate Nat. Bank, 69 Fed. 912, 16 C. C. A. 534; Grommes v. Sullivan, 81 Fed. 45, 26 C. C. A. 320, 43 L. R. A. 419 (when bona fide purchaser protected).

94. Washington Times Co. v. Wilder, 12 App. Cas. (D. C.) 62.

95. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Detroit Knitting, etc., Works, 68 Mich. 620, 36 N. W. 696.

Other circumstances under which the "general manager" of a land company had no authority on the footing of usage or conduct, to indorse and negotiate paper for the company. Davis v. Rockingham Invest. Co., 89 Va. 290, 15 S. E. 547.

That the general manager of a corporation has presumptive authority to receive for the corporation promissory notes executed in settlement of a contract with it, so that the corporation cannot maintain an action on the original consideration, see Whitaker v. Kilroy, 70 Mich. 635, 38 N. W. 606.

96. Helena Nat. Bank v. Rocky Mountain Tel. Co., 20 Mont. 379, 51 Pac. 829, 63 Am. St. Rep. 628 [citing Elwell v. Puget Sound, etc., R. Co., 7 Wash. 487, 35 Pac. 376].

97. Hascall v. Life Assoc. of America, 5 Hun (N. Y.) 151 [affirmed in 66 N. Y. 616].

98. Bates v. Keith Iron Co., 7 Metc. (Mass.) 224. Compare Odiorne v. Maxcy, 13 given general charge, control, and management of its affairs, and authority to sign all contracts and conveyances, it was held that he had authority to indorse commercial paper on behalf of the corporation in the regular course of business.[99] Again, where the managing agent of a corporation executes a note in its name to secure a debt on which it is primarily liable to the creditor, but on which, as between it and a third person signing the note, it is a surety, the company is liable thereon, although no express authority has been given the agent to so execute the note.[1]

e. Special as to Power to Indorse. The distinction is often taken between the power to indorse for the mere purpose of transferring paper and to indorse for the purpose of binding the corporation as indorser.[2]

f. Managing Agent May Not Clothe Subagents With Power to Make Commercial Paper. Applying the principle that delegated power cannot be delegated, it has been held that although the general agent of a trading company may be regarded as having an implied power to bind the company by the making of negotiable paper, yet the subagents whom he may in the course of business of the company appoint have no such power, although it may be a part of their duty to buy and sell, and although they may in the course of their buying and selling pledge the credit of the company.[3]

g. Power to Waive Demand and Notice. A corporate agent, when authorized to raise money and create liability on the part of his principal, may also waive demand and notice on a note indorsed by such company, and this too after the note has been negotiated.[4]

10. Power of Managing Agent to Employ Workmen. Power has been ascribed to the managing agent of a manufacturing corporation to employ workmen.[5] Such a corporation has been held liable for the wages of a workman employed for the season by its president, acting as general manager of its business, although he had no express authority to employ by the season.[6]

11. His Powers and Liabilities With Respect to Taxation. The subject of the Mass. 178, 15 Mass. 39, which was the case of a manufacturing copartnership.

99. Hiawatha Iron Co. v. John Strange Paper Co., 106 Wis. 111, 81 N. W. 1034 [citing Hoge v. Lansing, 35 N. Y. 136; Houghton v. Elkhorn First Nat. Bank, 26 Wis. 663, 7 Am. Rep. 107; Warren-Scharf Asphalt Paving Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 97 Fed. 181, 38 C. C. A. 108; U. S. National Bank v. Little Rock First Nat. Bank, 64 Fed. 985, 13 C. C. A. 472].

1. Andres v. Morgan, 62 Ohio St. 236, 56 N. E. 875, 78 Am. St. Rep. 712.

2. Brown v. Donnell, 49 Me. 421, 77 Am. Dec. 266. Also it has been held that where a trading corporation which has been in the habit of assisting persons with whom it does business allows its general manager to transact all its business, and he indorses in the corporate name the note of one with whom the corporation is dealing, causes the note to be discounted, and pays the proceeds to the maker, he is not liable to the corporation, although it is obliged to pay the note. Holmes v. Willard, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 610, 24 N. Y. St. 260.

3. Emerson v. Province Hat Mfg. Co., 12 Mass. 237, 7 Am. Dec. 66.

4. Whitney v. South Paris Mfg. Co., 39 Me. 316.

5. Bates v. Keith Iron Co., 7 Metc. (Mass.) 224, also holding that the agent may execute notes binding on the corporation to raise money to pay the workmen whom he thus hires; but on this point the case has been often distinguished or contested.

6. Cceder v. H. M. Loud, etc., Lumber Co., 86 Mich. 541, 49 N. W. 575, 24 Am. St. Rep. 134. Circumstances under which a jury were warranted in finding that the principal foreman of a foreign mining corporation doing business in Michigan had authority to hire men for the season. Tunison v. Detroit, etc., Copper Co., 73 Mich. 452, 4 N. W. 502.

Evidence under which it was held that the superintendent and vice-president of a railroad corporation had authority to bind the company hy employing a civil engineer. Lewis v. Albemarle, etc., R. Co., 95 N. C. 179. Somewhat to the same effect see Benesch v. John Hancock Mut. L. Ins. Co., 16 Daly (N. Y.) 394, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 714, 34 N. Y. St. 16.

A division superintendent of a railroad has no implied authority to bind the company hy an agreement to give a life employment to an employee of the company in settlement of a claim for personal injuries. Maxson v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 117 Mich. 218, 75 N. W. 459.

What written authorization does not warrant the superintendent of a flumes company in employing an expensive broker in the absence of evidence that such an employment was necessary or usual. Harris v. San Diego Flume Co., 87 Cal. 526, 25 Pac. 758.

taxation of corporations is not included in this article,[7] but with respect to the powers and liabilities of the managing agents of corporations concerning the taxation of corporations see the cases cited in the note.[8]

12. Powers Ascribed to Particular Kinds of Managing Agents — a. Powers Ascribed to "Managing Director." This officer has a defined status in English law with respect to joint-stock companies, but is unknown to the American law. In this country a single director has by virtue of his office no agency for the corporation, but whatever power he possesses must have its source in a specific appointment or authorization;[9] but he can, for the purpose of the protection of the public dealing with the corporation through him, acquire power so as to bind the corporation by the exercise of it, by a long-continued course of action from which the previous authorization may be presumed.[10]

b. Powers of Officer Designated a "Superintendent." This officer or agent has no power which is defined in law, but the implications as to his power are left to be derived from facts in each particular case. The general superintendent of a railroad company may fairly be presumed to have the power to bind the company by contracts relative to the safe and effective operation of the road, such as a contract to fence its tracks.[11] The superintendent of iron works whose authority, as stated in the by-laws of the corporation, was "to have charge of the manufacturing department of the works, audit bills for materials and labor, and to appoint and discharge foremen and workmen" had no authority to receive a loan of money in the name of the company, and in consideration thereof to execute a contract in its name for the sale of a quantity of iron.[12] Similarly it has been decided that the superintendent of a mine, with authority to take ore therefrom and crush it, for the purpose of obtaining gold, cannot, upon such authority, borrow money in the name of his principal for the purpose of carrying on the mine.[13] It is competent for the secretary of a gas company, being also the superintendent, and having general control over its business and affairs, to waive a regulation of the company requiring applications for the supply of gas to be made in writing.[14]

c. General or Managing Agent of Particular Kinds of Corporations. The powers of the general or managing agents of mining companies have been the subject of judicial consideration with reference to special facts in several cases.[15] An educational corporation, organized to found and carry on a military academy, becomes responsible for the cost of printing, advertising, etc., by its superintendent, on the principle of having held him out as its general agent.[16] But in the

7. See, generally, TAXATION.

8. Lake County v. Sulphur Bank Quicksilver Min. Co., 68 Cal. 14, 8 Pac. 593; People v. Stockton, etc., R. Co., 49 Cal. 414; Wyandotte v. Corrigan, 35 Kan. 21, 10 Pac. 99.

9. New Haven, etc., Co. v. Hayden, 107 Mass. 525.

10. Walker v. Detroit Transit R. Co., 47 Mich. 338, 11 N. W. 187.

11. New Albany, etc., R. Co. v. Haskell, 11 Ind. 301.

Written instruments which do not confer upon the "superintendent" of a street railroad the power to bind the company by contracting for medical attendance to an employee. Stephenson v. New York, etc., R. Co., 2 Duer (N. Y.) 341. Compare supra, X, C, 6, a et seq.

12. Adriance v. Roome, 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 399.

13. Union Gold Min. Co. v. Rocky Mountain Nat. Bank, 1 Colo. 531.

14. Shepherd v. Milwaukee Gas Light Co., 11 Wis. 234.

Evidence proving the authority of the superintendent of a mining company to accept a mill built for it. Starr v. Gregory Consol. Min. Co., 6 Mont. 485, 491, 13 Pac. 195, 198.

Circumstances putting a dealer on inquiry as to the powers of a general superintendent. Planters' Rice Mill Co. v. Olmstead, 78 Ga. 586, 3 S. E. 647.

15. Union Gold Min. Co. v. Rocky Mountain Nat. Bank, 1 Colo. 531; Powrie v. Kansas Pac. R. Co., 1 Colo. 529; Consolidated Gregory Co. v. Raber, 1 Colo. 511; Starr v. Gregory Consol. Min. Co., 6 Mont. 485, 491, 13 Pac. 195, 198. The superintendent of the New Albany and Vincennes road in Indiana was not liable to holders of certificates issued by the commissioner appointed under the Indiana acts of 1843 and 1844, relating to that road, for the non-payment of money due on such certificate. Clendenin v. Frazier, 1 Ind. 553.

16. Georgia Military Academy v. Estill, 77 Ga. 409.

absence of evidence it will not be presumed that the business manager of a theatrical company has the power to engage performers for a year.[17]

d. Powers of General Agent Who Is Also President. The fact that a person having an active conduct of the business of a corporation is also its president does not operate as a limitation upon the powers usually exercised by its general agents or managers. His authority is not limited to that possessed by virtue of his office as president, but is incidental to the management of the business.[18]

13. His Liability to the Company. The manager of an investment company who indorsed notes given in renewal of notes indorsed by him personally before the organization of the company, which the funds of the company were ultimately used to pay, was held liable to the assignee of the company therefor, in the absence of an undertaking by the company to indemnify him against outstanding indorsements.[19]

14. His Liability to Third Persons For Negligence, Misfeasance, Etc. The personal liability of the managing agents of corporations for injuries to third persons depends upon the question whether the wrongful act or neglect is to be regarded as a misfeasance or as a mere nonfeasance or breach of duty toward his principal, the corporation. The manager of a corporation in charge of its work of constructing and building has been held liable to the person injured in consequence of his failure to erect a scaffold which was necessary to protect persons near the walls of the building.[20] An officer of a lumber company, who is also its managing agent, may be held personally liable for setting an inexperienced and ignorant employee at work on a machine which the officer knows to be dangerous.[21]

D. Powers of Other Subordinate Corporate Agents — 1. General Considerations Relating to Appointment, Tenure of Office, and Powers of Such Agents — a. Appointment, Tenure, Salaries, Removal, Control of Directors Over — (I) Power of Directors to Appoint. The power of directors to appoint subordinate agents, to make contracts with them touching their compensation, and the tenure of their agency is of course not open to question.[22]

(II) Not Necessary That Directors Should Appoint — (A) In General. On the other hand it is not at all necessary that subordinate agents, servants, and employees should, in order to be entitled to recover compensation for their services, derive their appointment from the directors, or that the directors should at a formal meeting either authorize or ratify the appointment.[23]

(B) Ministerial Officers and Agents May Appoint. For many purposes the ministerial officers and agents of the corporation may employ persons to perform services for it; and such employment, being within the scope of the agent or officer's duty, binds the corporation.[24]

17. Vogel v. St. Louis Museum, etc., Gallery, 8 Mo. App. 587.

18. Ceeder v. H. M. Loud, etc., Lumber Co., 86 Mich. 541, 49 N. W. 575, 24 Am. St. Rep. 134.

19. Minneapolis Trust Co. v. Clark, 47 Minn. 108, 49 N. W. 386.

Thefts of bookkeeper.— The manager of a corporation placed in immediate control and direction of all persons in its employ, and whose duty it was to cause regular and accurate accounts of all transactions of the corporation's business to be kept by a competent bookkeeper, was held liable for thefts of the bookkeeper, which the manager would have discovered if he had given proper attention to his duties, and which the bookkeeper was led to make by embezzlements by the manager, to conceal which he had the bookkeeper make false, deceptive, and fraudulent entries in the books. San Pedro Lumber Co. v. Reynolds, 121 Cal. 74, 53 Pac. 410, opinion by Henshaw, J.

20. Mayer v. Thompson-Hutchinson Bldg. Co., 104 Ala. 611, 16 So. 620, 53 Am. St. Rep. 88, 28 L. R. A. 433.

21. Greenburg v. Whitcomb Lumber Co., 90 Wis. 225, 63 N. W. 93, 48 Am. St. Rep. 911, 28 L. R. A. 439. But the manager of a corporation was exonerated from personal liability to an injured employee resulting from his failure to examine the appliances with which the employee was required to work, where he did not know that they were unsafe. O'Neil v. C. Young, etc., Seed, etc., Co., 58 Mo. App. 628.

22. Mobile Branch State Bank v. Collins, 7 Ala. 95.

23. 4 Thompson Corp. § 4873.

24. 4 Thompson Corp. § 4873.

(III) Proof of Appointment of Agent. We are dealing now with agents other than the regular officers of the corporation, whose appointment rests in contract, and whom the corporation may, as in the case of a mere clerk, remove at pleasure,[25] subject only to a civil liability for damages for breach of their contract with him. It must have been inferred from what has preceded that an entry upon the records of a corporation of the resolution appointing an agent is not essential to the validity of the appointment, unless the charter or by-laws absolutely require such entry to be made.[26] Nor unless the charter otherwise prescribes need such an appointment be made in writing[27] or by a vote or resolution[28] of the board of directors or trustees; nor need a resolution of appointment be entered upon the minutes.[29] Still less need it be evidenced by an instrument under the corporate seal;[30] but such appointments may be proved by parol[31] and by evidence of habitual action and recognition, under principles hereafter discussed.[32] As corporations from their nature can act only through agents, a grant of power to a corporation to do a particular act carries with it by necessary implication the grant of a power to appoint suitable agents by whom to perform such act. It is therefore held that a corporation may employ an agent to perform services consonant with its general design, without any specific authority for that purpose conferred by the charter.[33] But as courts cannot judicially notice the by-laws of corporations, or even their charters where they are granted by special acts of the legislature, unless the statute law otherwise provides,[34] a party claiming the existence of such a power under the charter or by-laws must introduce them in evidence.[35]

(IV) Liability of Corporation Receiving Benefit of Services of Agents so Appointed — (A) In General. In other cases if an officer employs

25. Martino v. Commerce F. Ins. Co., 47 N. Y. Super. Ct. 520.

26. Smiley v. Chattanooga, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 604, where it was so held in an action against a city for labor upon a smallpox hospital, where the city records failed to show the appointment upon the health committee of the alderman who engaged plaintiff. When therefore three persons organized a joint-stock corporation, all being directors, and at a meeting agreed that one of them should be empowered to act for and bind the corporation, it was held that the corporation was bound by their action and by that of the agent duly authorized, and that it was not necessary to this result that there should have been previous notice of the meeting or written resolution or record of what was done. Wood v. Wiley Constr. Co., 56 Conn. 87, 13 Atl. 137.

27. Hamilton v. Newcastle, etc., R. Co., 9 Ind. 359; Richardson v. St. Joseph Iron Co., 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 146, 33 Am. Dec. 460; Williams v. Christian Female College, 29 Mo. 250, 77 Am. Dec. 569.

28. Williams v. Christian Female College, 29 Mo. 250, 77 Am. Dec. 569; Kraft v. Freeman Printing, etc., Assoc., 87 N. Y. 628.

29. Elysville Mfg. Co. v. Okisko Co., 1 Md. Ch. 392.

30. Bates v. State Bank, 2 Ala. 451; Lathrop v. Commercial Bank, 8 Dana (Ky.) 114, 33 Am. Dec. 481; Planters' Bank v. Bivingsville Cotton Mfg. Co., 10 Rich. (S. C.) 95; Fleckner v. U. S. Bank, 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 338, 5 L. ed. 631.

31. Hamilton v. Newcastle, etc., R. Co., 9 Ind. 359; Richardson v. St. Joseph Iron Co., 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 146, 33 Am. Dec. 460; Detroit v. Jackson, 1 Dougl. (Mich.) 106.

32. See infra, XII, F, 3, e, (I) et seq.

33. Kitchen v. Cape Girardeau, etc., R. Co., 59 Mo. 514. See also Sharp v. New York, 40 Barb. (N. Y.) 256, 25 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 389. See infra, XVII, E, 1.

34. See supra, I, M, 2.

35. Haven v. New Hampshire Insane Asylum, 13 N. H. 532, 38 Am. Dec. 512.

Points as to the appointment of corporate agents.— That a member of a committee appointed by a town to procure subscriptions for the stock of a railroad company is not an agent of the corporation. Beloit, etc., R. Co. v. Palmer, 19 Wis. 574. That an instrument showing that A had been appointed agent of a foreign corporation "for transacting business at I," filed in accordance with Ind. Rev. Stat. (1881), § 3022, made A the company's general agent at that place. Morrow v. U. S. Mortgage Co., 96 Ind. 21. That an agent of a bank, being required to produce a sworn copy of his appointment, if of record on the books of the bank, does so by annexing what purports to be a copy from the books, and swearing to it, although he does not expressly state that he compared it with the original. Henderson v. Montgomery Bank, 11 Ala. 855. Authority may be conferred upon a corporate officer to act in a class of cases by a single resolution of the directors as well as by a separate resolution for each case. Elwell v. Dodge, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 336. See further as to the appointment of corporate agents Kalamazoo Novelty Mfg. Works v. Macalister, 40 Mich. 84; Felton v. McClave, 46 N. Y.

a person to perform a service for the corporation, and it is performed with the knowledge of the directors, and they receive the benefit of such service without objection, the corporation is liable upon an implied assumpsit.[36]

(B) Such Subordinate Agents Entitled to Recover Compensation on Implied Assumpsit. The rule in regard to directors[37] does not extend so far as to prevent a mere ministerial agent or servant of a subordinate character, for whose salary no provision has been made by corporate action, from recovering a quantum meruit on an implied assumpsit.[38]

(V) Removal of Ministerial Agents. The ministerial agents of a corporation, not holding for fixed terms, defined and limited by statute or by-laws, may be removed by the body that chose them, subject only to a right of action against the corporation, if such removal resulted in a breach of their contract of employment.[39]

b. Corporation Bound by Acts of Their Agents Same as Natural Persons — (I) General Rule. The general rule of law is that corporations are bound by the acts and declarations of their agents, done or made within the general scope of their authority, the same as natural persons are,[40] unless their charters or governing statutes otherwise provide.[41]

(II) Not Bound by Acts or Engagements of Agents Not Within Limits of Their Authority. On the other hand a corporation is not as a general rule any more than a natural person bound by any acts or engagements of its agents which are not within the limits of the authority conferred on them.[42]

(III) Not Necessary That There Should Have Been Express Authorization or Approval by Corporation. Therefore it has been held error to refuse to instruct a jury that "an individual officer of a corporation cannot by his acts bind the corporation, unless such acts are authorized or approved by the Super. Ct. 53; Hancock v. Holbrook, 9 Fed. 353, 4 Woods 52.

36. Hooker v. Eagle Bank, 30 N. Y. 83, 86 Am. Dec. 351.

37. See supra, IX, Q, 1.

38. Waller v. Commonwealth Bank, 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 201.

Index to other holdings.— Circumstances under which an employee of a railroad company was held not entitled to recover compensation for obtaining a contract for the construction of the road, notwithstanding the promise of its president to see him paid. Van Valkenburgh v. Thomasville, etc., R. Co., 4 N. Y. Suppl. 782, 22 N. Y. St. 379. Payment of brokerage to a shareholder for placing company's shares a breach of trust. In re Faure Electric Accumulator Co., 40 Ch. D. 141, 58 L. J. Ch. 48, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 918, 1 Meg. 99, 37 Wkly. Rep. 116. Dismissal by a railroad company of a servant without giving him three months' notice, etc., because of an offensive letter written by him. East Anglian R. Co. v. Lythgoe, 10 C. B. 726, 15 Jur. 400, 20 L. J. C. P. 84, 2 Eng. L. & Eq. 331, 70 E. C. L. 726. Promise of superintendent when no evidence of agreement to raise salary of employee. Raysor v. Berkeley Co. R., etc., Co., 26 S. C. 610, 2 S. E. 119. No payment of compensation for an act prohibited by law, as for securing a loan to a corporation prohibited from doing business within the state. Dudley v. Collier, 87 Ala. 431, 6 So. 304, 13 Am. St. Rep. 55. Action by a secretary for his salary, counter-claim for an unpaid assessment on stock purchased by such creditor — materiality of a special interrogatory to the jury. Cormac v. Western White Bronze Co., 77 Iowa 32, 41 N. W. 480.

39. In re A. A. Griffing Iron Co., 63 N. J. L. 357, 46 Atl. 1097 [affirming 63 N. J. L. 168, 41 Atl. 931].

40. Smith v. Atlas Steam Cordage Co., 41 La. Ann. 1, 5 So. 413; Essex Turnpike Corp. v. Collins, 8 Mass. 292; Leggett v. New Jersey Mfg., etc., Co., 1 N. J. Eq. 541, 23 Am. Dec. 728; Clark v. Washington, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 40, 6 L. ed. 544.

41. Covington v. Covington, etc., Bridge Co., 10 Bush (Ky.) 69.

42. Connecticut.— Hartford Bank v. Hart, 3 Day 491, 3 Am. Dec. 274.

Kentucky.— Mt. Sterling, etc., Turnpike Road Co. v. Looney, 1 Metc. 550, 71 Am. Dec. 491.

Louisiana.— Reynolds, etc., Constr. Co. v. Police Jury, 44 La. Ann. 863, 11 So. 236; Seibrecht v. New Orleans, 12 La. Ann. 496.

Mississippi.—Commercial Bank v. Bonner, 13 Sm. & M. 649; State v. Commercial Bank, 6 Sm. & M. 218, 45 Am. Dec. 280.

New York.— Brady v. New York, 2 Bosw. 173, 7 Abb. Pr. 234, 16 How. Pr. 432 [affirmed in 20 N. Y. 312, 18 How. Pr. 343]; Appleby v. New York, 15 How. Pr. 428; McCullough v. Moss, 5 Den. 567.

Pennsylvania.—Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Allegheny County, 79 Pa. St. 210.

Wisconsin.— Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. James, 22 Wis. 194.

United States.— Washington Gaslight Co. v. Lansden, 172 U. S. 534, 19 S. Ct. 296, 43 corporation."[43] But there are plainly many states of fact where the giving of such an instruction would be error.[44]

(iv) Binds Corporation by Contract Where Purpose to Act For Corporation Is Manifest From Whole Instrument. It has been well said that a contract executed by an agent or officer of the corporation is the contract of the corporation, where the officer or agent acts within the scope of his authority, and the purpose to act for the corporation is manifest from the contract taken as a whole.[45]

(v) Binds Corporation Where It Is Not His Purpose to Act For It. But a corporation will incur responsibility in many cases for the acts of its agent, where it is not his purpose to act for the corporation, but where he acts in violation of his duty, or even without authority to do the particular act, or even against the express orders of his superior, provided the act be within the general scope of his authority, and the injured party be innocent of knowledge that he is transcending his powers.[46]

c. Individual Shareholders and Directors No Inherent Authority as Agents of Corporation. It has already been pointed out[47] that a corporation cannot be bound by the acts or declarations of individual members, whether shareholders or directors, but can be bound only by the voice of the corporators or the directors, when acting or speaking in a body, and generally in a meeting duly convened.[48]

d. Distinction Between General and Special Agents. In defining the authority of agents, not only of corporations, but also of individuals, the terms "special" and "general" are frequently applied to such agents, for the purposes of classification. It has been said that the agents of corporations, like those of natural persons, are either general or special; that is, they act for the corporation either by virtue of a general power which attaches to their office by known usage, or by law, or else in virtue of an authority specially conferred upon them.[49] It may be doubted whether these distinctions are of much practical value in the administration of justice.[50]

L. ed. 543 [reversing 9 App. Cas. (D. C.) 508, 24 Wash. L. Rep. 807].

43. Brooklyn Gravel Road Co. v. Slaughter, 33 Ind. 185.

44. See supra, X, A, 1, b, (VII); X, A, 1, b, (XII).

45. Bryson v. Johnson County, 100 Mo. 76, 13 S. W. 239. Compare infra, XII.

46. Madison, etc., R. Co. v. Norwich Sav. Soc., 24 Ind. 457. For instance if it is a part of the general duty of the ticket agent of a railway corporation to post in his office a notice pertaining to the business carried on there, and he posts such a notice containing a libel upon a third person, the corporation will be responsible for it to such third person in damages. Fogg v. Boston, etc., R. Corp., 148 Mass. 513, 20 N. E. 109, 12 Am. St. Rep. 583.

47. See supra, IX, C, 5; IX, E, 1, a et seq.

48. Indiana.— Harris v. Muskingum Mfg. Co., 4 Blackf. 267, 29 Am. Dec. 372.

Maine.— Ruby v. Abyssinian Religious Soc., 15 Me. 306.

Maryland.— State University v. Williams, 9 Gill & J. 365, 31 Am. Dec. 72.

Massachusetts.— Canal Bridge v. Gordon, 1 Pick. 297, 11 Am. Dec. 170; Hayden v. Middlesex Turnpike Corp., 10 Mass. 397, 6 Am. Dec. 143.

New York.— Lawrence v. Gebhard, 41 Barb. 575.

Pennsylvania.— Allegheny County Workhouse v. Moore, 95 Pa. St. 408.

Vermont.— Wheelock v. Moulton, 15 Vt. 519.

England.— Bramah v. Roberts, 3 Bing. N. Cas. 963, 32 E. C. L. 441.

The distinction between a corporation and the aggregate of the members forming such corporation is well illustrated by the case of Practical Knowledge Soc. v. Abbott, 2 Beav. 559, 4 Jur. 453, 9 L. J. Ch. 307, 17 Eng. Ch. 559.

Corporation not bound by statement of a single director that the corporation would pay for goods furnished an employee. Rice v. Peninsular Club, 52 Mich. 87, 17 N. W. 708.

"Managing director" no authority as agent, unless by special appointment; as in Wood v. Wiley Constr. Co., 56 Conn. 87, 13 Atl. 137.

For a case erroneously holding that the separate action of the directors within their usual sphere binds the company see Foot v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 32 Vt. 633.

49. Leggett v. New Jersey Mfg., etc., Co., 1 N. J. Eq. 541, 553, 23 Am. Dec. 728, where the doctrine is stated with more brevity than in the text.

50. This attempted classification was disapproved by Comstock, J., in Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599, 632. See also the observations of Bell, J., in Smith

e. General Rule That Corporation Is Not Bound by Declarations of Officer or Agent as to Extent of His Authority. As such agents neither appoint themselves nor prescribe the limits of their own authority, the fact that a person (1) not being the officer or agent of a corporation claims to be such, or (2) being such officer or agent claims to possess power which has not been conferred upon him,[51] will not, subject to the exceptions elsewhere noted, bind the corporation. But where the power may be rightfully inferred from the nature of the office itself, to which the person has been appointed, then it has been held that the corporation is bound by his declaration that he possesses the power in point of fact.[52]

f. Both Appointment and Powers of Agent Proved by Recognition, Adoption, and Habitual Action — (I) In General. Stated generally, both the appointment and the powers of an agent may be proved by his having habitually exercised certain powers as agent with the adoption or recognition of the corporation or its superior agents, that is, of those entitled to oppose him, without the production of any record or other writing showing his appointment or authorization.[53]

(II) Rightful Possession of Power Legally Inferred From Continuous Habit of Exercising It — (A) In General. In general it may be stated to be well settled that if an officer of a corporation is allowed to exercise a particular authority in respect to the business of the corporation, or a particular branch of it, continuously and publicly, for a considerable time; in other words, if he is in effect held out to the world as having authority in the premises, the corporation is bound by his acts in the same manner as if the authority were expressly granted[54] in which case it is not necessary in order to charge the corporation to prove special authorization.[55] It is sometimes said that the corporation is bound on the theory of a recognition[56] of the course of action of the agent; but a little

v. Nashua, etc., R. Co., 27 N. H. 86, 59 Am. Dec. 364.

51. Officers of a corporation who have no power to bind the company by executing a contract on its behalf cannot impose any liability upon the company by stating that the company itself has executed a given contract, which it has not. Hillyer v. Overman Silver Min. Co., 6 Nev. 51.

52. Whitaker v. Kilroy, 70 Mich. 635, 38 N. W. 606.

53. Maine.— Fitch v. Lewiston Steam-Mill Co., 80 Me. 34, 12 Atl. 732; Lime Rock Bank v. Macomber, 29 Me. 564; Badger v. Cumberland Bank, 26 Me. 428.

Maryland.—Equitable Gas-Light Co. v. Baltimore Coal Tar, etc., Co., 65 Md. 73, 3 Atl. 108; Eckenrode v. Canton Chemical Co., 55 Md. 51; Elysville Mfg. Co. v. Okisko Co., 1 Md. Ch. 392.

Michigan.— Detroit v. Jackson, 1 Dougl. 106.

Missouri.— Lingenfelter v. Phœnix Ins. Co., 19 Mo. App. 252.

New York.— Phillips v. Campbell, 43 N. Y. 271; Perkins v. Washington Ins. Co., 4 Cow. 645.

Tennessee.—Smiley v. Chattanooga, 6 Heisk. 604.

Texas.— Hamm v. Drew, 83 Tex. 77, 18 S. W. 434.

Wisconsin.— Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. James, 22 Wis. 194.

Effect of defective appointment or want of appointment.— Exercise of general authority in respect to the business of a company, with the knowledge and acquiescence of its officers, by one who purports to be its agent, will render the corporation liable for his acts in transactions within the corporate scope, although his appointment be defective, or if there was in fact no appointment at all. Robinson Reduction Co. v. Johnson, 10 Colo. App. 135, 50 Pac. 215; Wood v. Wiley Constr. Co., 56 Conn. 87, 13 Atl. 137; Morrill v. C. T. Segar Mfg. Co., 32 Hun (N. Y.) 543; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. James, 22 Wis. 194.

54. Union Gold Min. Co. v. Rocky Mountain Nat. Bank, 2 Colo. 248, 257 [per Hallett, C. J., citing St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Dalby, 19 Ill. 353; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Coleman, 18 Ill. 297, 68 Am. Dec. 544; Ardesco Oil Co. v. Gilson, 63 Pa. St. 146; Dougherty v. Hunter, 54 Pa. St. 380; Alleghany City v. McClurkan, 14 Pa. St. 81; Commercial Mut. Ins. Co. v. Union Mut. Ins. Co., 19 How. (U. S.) 318, 15 L. ed. 636; Peyton v. St. Thomas' Hospital, 3 C. & P. 363, 14 E. C. L. 610]; Chicago Bldg. Soc. v. Crowell, 65 Ill. 453; Phillips v. Campbell, 43 N. Y. 271; Conover v. Albany Mut. Ins. Co., 1 N. Y. 290; Medbury v. New York, etc., R. Co., 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 564; Partridge v. Badger, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 146; Knight v. Lang, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 381, 2 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 227, 381; Smith v. Hull Glass Co., 11 C. B. 897, 73 E. C. L. 897 (note especially the language of Maule, J., in Smith v. Hull Glass Co., 11 C. B. 897, 928, 73 E. C. L. 897); Allard v. Bourne, 15 C. B. N. S. 468, 3 New Rep. 42, 109 E. C. L. 468.

55. Fayles v. National Ins. Co., 49 Mo. 380.

56. Stothard v. Aull, 7 Mo. 318.

reflection will make it clear that this recognition is the same as a holding out. The same conclusion is differently expressed by saying that if an officer of a corporation openly exercises a power which presupposes a delegated authority for the purpose, and the corporate acts show that the corporation must have contemplated the legal existence of such authority, the acts of such officer will be deemed rightful, and the delegated authority will be presumed.[57]

(B) Corporation Must Have Consented to Appearance of Power Exhibited by Agent. A governing principle, and one which brings the matter down to the ordinary rule of estoppel in pais, is that the circumstances must have been such that the corporation must have apparently consented to the appearance of power exhibited by the agent.[58] To illustrate this, take the case where a sale of chattels belonging to a corporation was made by the treasurer of the corporation, who was not authorized by any by-law to make such sale, but was proved to have been in the habit of doing such business, with the knowledge and sanction of the company, and to have been in fact its sole managing agent. It was held that the sale was valid.[59] A stronger illustration is found in a case where a railroad company without objection allowed a person to rent an office on its right of way, and display a sign styling it the office of the company. It thereby became bound by the purchase of goods by him in its name, although he was in fact agent of a foreign corporation of the same name.[60]

(C) Corporation Must Have Had Knowledge or Means of Knowledge of Act of Its Agent. As in other cases where an estoppel is predicated upon passive acquiescence,[61] the corporation must have had knowledge of the representations of its agent as to the existence of the particular fact in order to become estopped from denying the existence of such fact.[62] This knowledge may, however, be imputed to the corporation where the circumstances were such that it became the duty of the board of directors to know. For example a knowledge of, and acquiescence in, the fact that the treasurer of a manufacturing corporation was indorsing the corporate name to commercial paper, sufficient to raise the implication of an agency for that purpose, may be imputed to the board of directors where even a casual examination of the books of the corporation would have disclosed the repeated exercise by the treasurer of such an assumed authority.[63]

(III) Corporations Bound by Acts of Their Officers and Agents Within Scope of Their Apparent Powers. It is but another expression of the doctrine of the preceding paragraph to say that persons dealing in good faith with the officers of a corporation may rely upon what they do or omit to do in the exercise of their apparent powers.[64] Stating the same doctrine differently, authority will be presumed on the part of an officer of a corporation, who openly exercises a power which presupposes such authority, where such corporate acts show that the corporation must have contemplated the legal existence of such authority.[65]

57. Fayles v. National Ins. Co., 49 Mo. 380.

58. Mechanics' Bank v. New York, etc., R. Co., 13 N. Y. 599, 634. In New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30, the next preceding case was undoubtedly overruled, but yet the opinion of Comstock, J., herein, contains many observations which are sound and worthy of attention.

59. Phillips v. Campbell, 43 N. Y. 271, opinion by Peckham, J.

Other apt illustrations will be found in Lime Rock Bank v. Macomber, 29 Me. 564; Dean v. Ætna L. Ins. Co., 4 Thomps. & C. (N. Y.) 497; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. James, 22 Wis. 194.

60. Florida Midland, etc., R. Co. v. Varnedoe, 81 Ga. 175, 7 S. E. 129.

For still another illustration see Alexander v. Brown, 9 Hun (N. Y.) 641, 644, per Daniels, J. See also Fay v. Noble, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 1.

61. See infra, XIV.

62. Wheeler v. Home Sav., etc., Bank, 188 Ill. 34, 58 N. E. 598, 80 Am. St. Rep. 161 [reversing 85 Ill. App. 28].

63. Blake v. Domestic Mfg. Co., (N. J. Ch. 1897) 38 Atl. 241.

64. Home Sav., etc., Bank v. Wheeler, 74 Ill. App. 261.

65. Leroy, etc., Air-Line R. Co. v. Sidell, 66 Fed. 27, 13 C. C. A. 308.

(IV) THEORY THAT FACT THAT CORPORATE OFFICER OR AGENT EXERCISES CERTAIN POWERS IS EVIDENCE OF HIS AUTHORITY—(A) In General. Some of the cases disclose the theory that the fact that a corporation has appointed an agent of a particular kind or class is of itself evidence, upon which the public may safely act, that the agent may rightfully exercise the powers belonging to that kind or class of agents. Thus it is said that "the primary intention of a corporation in employing an agent is that he shall be enabled to accomplish the purposes of the agency, and other persons are invited to deal with the agent upon that understanding."[66] So also it is reasoned that where persons deal with an officer of a corporation, who assumes authority to act in the premises, and no want of authority or irregularity is brought to the knowledge of the party so dealing with the corporation, and nothing occurs to excite suspicion of such defect, the corporation is bound, although the agent exceeded his powers.[67] An extreme expression of the same doctrine is that corporations whose business is necessarily conducted altogether by agents will be required at their peril to see that the officers and agents employed by them not only know their powers but that they do not transcend them.[68]

(B) Limitation of Foregoing Doctrine Suggested. It is believed that the foregoing expressions of doctrine are applicable only to cases where the agent of a class so habitually exercises certain powers in the face of the public that the public fall into the habit of acting on the faith of their possessing them, and that the courts, on a principle of public policy and convenience, take judicial notice of the fact. Thus in one such case the contract of the agent bound the corporation because he was made in effect the superintendent of its business, and the contract was in the ordinary course of its business;[69] and in another case because he was its president and was also in the active management of its business.[70]

(C) Evidence of Single Seizure of Power Not Sufficient. A single seizure of power by a corporate officer or agent is not necessary to satisfy this rule and to furnish evidence of its rightful possession. There must be something in the nature of a continual or habitual exercise of it publicly and in the face of those who have the right to oppose.[71]

66. Ceeder v. H. M. Loud, etc., Lumber Co., 86 Mich. 541, 49 N. W. 575, 24 Am. St. Rep. 134.

67. Lungstrass v. German Ins. Co., 57 Mo. 107 [citing Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Boston State Nat. Bank, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 604, 19 L. ed. 1008].

68. Benesch v. John Hancock Mut. L. Ins. Co., 16 Daly (N. Y.) 394, 11 N. Y. Suppl. 714, 34 N. Y. St. 16.

69. Georgia Military Academy v. Estill, 77 Ga. 409.

70. Ceeder v. H. M. Loud, etc., Lumber Co., 86 Mich. 541, 49 N. W. 575, 24 Am. St. Rep. 134.

An illustration of the manner in which the courts have seemingly applied this doctrine may perhaps be found in a case where, for the purpose of establishing that a certain person was the agent of the corporation defendant, plaintiff offered letters written by the president of the corporation to that person, in which he was addressed as superintendent of the company, and the affairs and prospects of the company were discussed. It was shown that the president, for a considerable time before this and afterward, had assumed general authority in the affairs of the corporation, the control of its property, payment of its debts, and the management of its lawsuits. It was held that the letters were admissible without direct evidence of authority to write them, the presumption being indulged that the president was acting the part of a faithful executive, and with the knowledge and assent of the corporation. Union Gold Min. Co. v. Rocky Mountain Nat. Bank, 2 Colo. 248. So it has been held that where a mortgage given to secure a loan to a corporation recites on its face that it was duly authorized by the directors, the mortgagee, knowing that the corporation had power to borrow the money upon such security, has the right to assume that the necessary authority existed. Manhattan Hardware Co. v. Roland, 128 Pa. St. 119, 18 Atl. 429; Manhattan Hardware Co. v. Phalen, 128 Pa. St. 110, 18 Atl. 428. But this conclusion might be placed on the presumption which attends a corporate instrument executed under its seal. See infra, XII, D, 3, c, (I) et seq.

71. In conformity with this view it has been held that neither a remittance of money to one as the agent of a bank by another party, and his consent to receive it as such, nor his admissions, nor the fact that he is a director of the bank, have any tendency to prove that he is in point of fact the agent of the bank. Holman v. Norfolk Bank, 12 Ala. 369.

(D) Nor Is Evidence of the Doing of a Few Similar Isolated Acts. Thus where a clerk of a corporation borrowed a sum of money from it and absconded with it, and it was shown that in two or three previous instances he had borrowed money of other persons in the name of the corporation, which moneys had been used by the corporation and repaid by another clerk, of which transactions the person making the loan in question had no knowledge, it was held that the corporation was not liable.[72]

(V) General View That Officers and Agents of Corporations Are Held Out as Having Powers Commensurate With General Usages of Business in Which Corporation Is Engaged. This doctrine is that the officers of a business corporation are impliedly held out to the public as having authority to act in accordance with the general usage, practice, and course of the business in which such corporation is engaged; and consequently that their acts, within the scope of such usage, practice, and course of business, will in general bind the corporation in favor of persons possessing no knowledge of limitations of their authority or who are not in possession of facts attaching such limitations, such as ought to put prudent men upon inquiry;[73] and on the other hand that the officer or agent of the corporation binds the corporation only by his acts in the usual course of business.[74] It must be manifest on a little reflection that the first proposition can be ascribed only to managing or general agents or officers.

g. Certain Powers Ascribed to Certain Corporate Officers by Implication of Law. In general toward third persons the officers of a corporation are to be considered as having the authority usually incident to their offices; the treasurer to act in respect of the finances, the secretary to keep the records, the general agent or manager to superintend the business for which the corporation was created.[75] Although judicial opinion on the question is not unanimous,[76] the prevailing American doctrine, founded upon considerations of the most obvious sense, justice, and business convenience, is that certain powers usually exercised by certain officers of business corporations are presumed to exist in them, and that the public in dealing with such corporations have the right to act upon this presumption until the contrary fact is disclosed. Such powers are said to exist in particular officers by implication of law.[77]

h. Extent to Which Persons Dealing With Corporations Are Bound to Take Notice of Authority of Their Officers and Agents — (I) In General. Generally speaking all persons dealing with the officers and agents of corporations are bound to take notice of the fact that they act under charters, general statutes, by-laws, or usages, which more or less define the extent of their authority. Such persons must therefore in doubtful cases at their peril acquaint themselves with the extent of that authority.[78]

72. Martin v. Great Falls Mfg. Co., 9 N. H. 51.

73. Minor v. Mechanics Bank, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 46, 7 L. ed. 47.

74. Fulton Bank v. New York, etc., Canal Co., 4 Paige (N. Y.) 127.

75. Fay v. Noble, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 1.

76. The contrary doctrine has been maintained: That there is no grant of power in the name by which a corporate officer is designated; that persons dealing with the corporation are charged with notice of the authority conferred upon them, and of the limitations and restrictions upon it contained in the charter and by-laws. Adriance v. Roome, 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 399; Farmers' Bank v. McKee, 2 Pa. St. 318. Such is the strict view taken by the English decisions, but it lacks favor in this country.

77. A striking illustration of this is presented by the acts of the cashier of a bank (not specially treated of in this article, but see, generally, BANKS AND BANKING) of whose powers the courts take judicial notice. U. S. v. Columbus City Bank, 21 How. (U. S.) 356, 16 L. ed. 130, where the duties of a cashier are judicially defined.

78. Alabama.— Commonwealth Bank v. Comegys, 12 Ala. 772, 46 Am. Dec. 278.

Connecticut.— Witte v. Derby Fishing Co., 2 Conn. 260; Bulkley v. Derby Fishing Co., 2 Conn. 252, 7 Am. Dec. 271.

Georgia.— Hall v. Carey, 5 Ga. 239.

Illinois.— Chicago Bldg. Soc. v. Crowell, 65 Ill. 453.

Massachusetts.— Lyndeborough Glass Co. v. Massachusetts Glass Co., 111 Mass. 315; New Haven, etc., Co. v. Hayden, 107 Mass. 525; Brown v. Winnisimmet Co., 11 Allen 326; Burrill v. Nahant Bank, 2 Metc. 163, 35 Am.

(II) Not Chargeable With Notice of Secret Instructions. But where the corporation has within the foregoing principles clothed the agent with certain ostensible powers, third persons will not be limited by secret instructions given to the agent restricting such powers.[79]

(III) Not Bound to Know That Authority Is Rightfully Exercised in Particular Instance. Nor in the absence of fraud or collusion is the third person dealing with the corporation through its agent bound to know that he exercises his authority rightfully in the particular instance, the distinction being between limits of the power conferred and the rightful exercise of it within those limits.[80]

(IV) May Take Representation of Agent That Power Is Rightfully Exercised. Having ascertained that the agent possesses the power, and that the act about to be done is within the general limits of that power, the person dealing in good faith with the corporation through the agent is entitled, in the absence of notice to the contrary, or of circumstances putting him upon inquiry, to take and rely upon the declarations and representations of the agent as to facts and circumstances which show that he is rightfully exercising the power in the given case.[81]

(V) Whether Third Persons Are Bound to Take Notice of Limitations of Authority of Agents Contained in By-Laws. Another doctrine which seems to be gradually fading out is that unless the corporate officer or agent has acquired the appearance of possessing the powers which he has assumed in a given case to exercise, within the meaning of the principle already stated,[82] or unless, like a bank cashier or general manager, he is an agent of such a character that his power to do the particular act is implied in law, then the rule of the last section extends so far as to require any person dealing with the corporation through him to take notice of the extent of his powers, not only as conferred by the charter or governing statute, but also as conferred or limited by the by-laws[83]

Dec. 395. Compare Essex Turnpike Corp. v. Collins, 8 Mass. 292.

Michigan.— McLaughlin v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 8 Mich. 100. A fortiori if the articles of association limit the authority of an officer, and these are exhibited to a person dealing with such officer, he is bound by the limitation therein. Hotchin v. Kent, 8 Mich. 526.

Missouri.— Washington Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. St. Mary's Seminary, 52 Mo. 480; Kansas City First Nat. Bank v. Hogan, 47 Mo. 472; Barcus v. Hannibal, etc., Plankroad R. Co., 26 Mo. 102.

New Hampshire.— New Hampshire Sav. Bank v. Downing, 16 N. H. 187; Martin v. Great Falls Mfg. Co., 9 N. H. 51.

New York.— Alexander v. Canldwell, 83 N. Y. 480; Genesee Bank v. Patchin Bank, 13 N. Y. 309; Risley v. Indianapolis, etc., R. Co., 1 Hun 202; Akin v. Blanchard, 32 Barb. 527; Partridge v. Badger, 25 Barb. 146; Beers v. Phœnix Glass Co., 14 Barb. 358; Corn Exch. Bank v. Cumberland Coal Co., 1 Bosw. 436; Knight v. Lang, 4 E. D. Smith 381, 2 Abb. Pr. 227; French v. O'Brien, 52 How. Pr. 394; Dabney v. Stevens, 40 How. Pr. 341; Benedict v. Lansing, 5 Den. 283; Troy Turnpike, etc., Co. v. McChesney, 21 Wend. 296; Clark v. Farmers' Woolen Mfg. Co., 15 Wend. 256; Litchfield Iron Co. v. Bennett, 7 Cow. 234.

Pennsylvania.— Fox v. Northern Liberties, 3 Watts & S. 103.

Tennessee.— Farmers', etc., Bank v. Chester, 6 Humphr. 458, 44 Am. Dec. 318.

Virginia.— Bocock v. Alleghany Coal, etc., Co., 82 Va. 913, 1 S. E. 325, 3 Am. St. Rep. 128.

Wisconsin.— Walworth County Bank v. Farmers' Loan, etc., Co., 16 Wis. 629.

Collection of facts which did not cast upon a person dealing with the agent of a trading corporation the duty to make inquiry as to his authority to sell the goods of the corporation at the price asked. Levy v. Metropolis Mfg. Co., 73 Conn. 559, 48 Atl. 429.

79. California Ins. Co. v. Gracey, 15 Colo. 70, 24 Pac. 577, 22 Am. St. Rep. 376; Rivara v. Queens Ins. Co., 62 Miss. 720; Benesch v. John Hancock Mut. L. Ins. Co., 11 N. Y. Suppl. 348, 32 N. Y. St. 73; Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Taylor, 73 Pa. St. 342.

80. Cook v. Beatrice, 32 Nebr. 80, 48 N. W. 828.

81. Credit Co. v. Howe Mach. Co., 54 Conn. 357, 8 Atl. 472, 1 Am. St. Rep. 123; Farmers', etc., Bank v. Butchers', etc., Bank, 16 N. Y. 125, 69 Am. Dec. 678; North River Bank v. Aymar, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 262. Although this last case was reversed in the court of errors, yet as the decision of that court was never reported the court of appeals of New York, in the subsequent case of Farmers', etc., Bank v. Butchers', etc., Bank, 16 N. Y. 125, 69 Am. Dec. 678 [affirming 4 Duer (N. Y.) 219], regarded it as authority for the above proposition.

82. See supra, X. D, 1, f, (II), (B).

83. Adriance v. Roome, 52 Barb. (N. Y.)

of the corporation. More broadly and loosely it has been said that "every person dealing with a corporation is bound to take notice of its constitution, by-laws, and ways of doing business." [84] To this extent the principle already considered holds good, that a person dealing with a corporation is bound to know whether or not the person who assumes to represent it and to act in its name is authorized to do so.[85] The theory which justifies this rule is that the ministerial officers of corporations are presumptively special and not general agents,[86] and that the only general agents in contemplation of law are the directors, when acting together as a board. But it elsewhere sufficiently appears [87] that the tendency of modern decisions is to regard the by-laws of private corporations as being in the nature of private rules and regulations for the government of the officers, agents, and members of the corporation as among themselves, and not as governing the relations of the corporation with strangers who have no notice of such by-laws, and who have not the means of rightfully acquiring knowledge of them. The rule which requires strangers to notice them at their peril seems to be shockingly absurd and unjust. The true doctrine is that the by-laws of a corporation limiting the authority which would ordinarily be inferred from the employment pursued by its agent are binding on a third person who knows of them, but not if he does not know of them.[88] For example the by-laws of a corporation engaged in carrying on a large department store do not affect contracts made with third persons who relied on the apparent authority of the executive agents of such corporation.[89]

(VI) Strangers Deal With Corporate Agents Acting For Themselves at Their Peril. A person who enters into a contract with a corporate officer or agent, knowing that he is not acting for the corporation, cannot of course hold the corporation liable on the contract.[90] The rule is the same where the circumstances put him upon inquiry. Therefore one who receives from an officer of a corporation the securities of the corporation as security for a personal debt of such an officer does so at his peril.[91]

i. Proof of Authority of Corporate Agent — (I) Provable by Books and Records of Corporation — (A) In General. The books and records of the corporation as elsewhere seen are admissible against the corporation [92] on the footing of self-disserving statements or admissions made by it. A transaction entered upon the books of the corporation, although by its ministerial officers, is presumed to have been done with the knowledge and assent of the trustees, who are responsible for the acts of the officers whom they place and retain in position.[93] The records of the corporation may be admitted to prove any other relevant fact. For example the records of a shareholders' meeting are admissible in evidence in an action against the corporation to recover the value of services

399; Dabney v. Stevens, 2 Sweeny (N. Y.) 415, 10 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 39, 40 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 341.

84. Bocock v. Alleghany Coal, etc., Co., 82 Va. 913, 1 S. E. 325, 3 Am. St. Rep. 128; Bockover v. Life Assoc. of America, 77 Va. 85. See also Haden v. Farmers', etc., F. Assoc., 80 Va. 683; Life Assoc. of America v. Rundle, 103 U. S. 222, 26 L. ed. 337.

85. Credit Co. v. Howe Mach. Co., 54 Conn. 357, 8 Atl. 417, 1 Am. St. Rep. 123; Smith v. Co-operative Dress Assoc., 12 Daly (N. Y.) 304; Bocock v. Alleghany Coal, etc., Co., 82 Va. 913, 1 S. E. 325, 3 Am. St. Rep. 128.

86. Officers of a corporation it is said are special and not general agents; consequently they have no power to bind the corporation except within the limits prescribed by the charter and by-laws. Persons dealing with such officers are charged with notice of the authority conferred upon them, and of the limitations and restrictions upon it contained in the charter and by-laws. Nor is there any grant of power in the name by which such officer is designated. Adriance v. Roome, 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 399.

87. See supra, V, A, 5.

88. Hallenbeck v. Powers, etc., Casket Co., 117 Mich. 680, 76 N. W. 119.

89. Standard Fashion Co. v. Seigel-Cooper Co., 44 N. Y. App. Div. 121, 60 N. Y. Suppl. 739.

90. Patten v. Climax Quick Tanning Co., 40 N. Y. App. Div. 607, 57 N. Y. Suppl. 758.

91. Wheeler v. Home Sav., etc., Bank, 188 Ill. 34, 58 N. E. 598, 80 Am. St. Rep. 161 [reversing 85 Ill. App. 28].

92. See supra, VI, P, 5, b, (I).

93. Paine v. Irwin, 59 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 316.

rendered, to prove that the improvement with respect to which the services were rendered was recognized by the corporation.[94]

(B) If Books Not Produced, Secondary Evidence of Their Contents Necessary. When an effort is made to prove the fact of agency by an order upon the corporate books the books themselves must be produced or secondary evidence given of their contents after notice to produce them.[95]

(II) Provable by Other Relevant Written Instruments. Proof may also be made by other written instruments which afford evidence of official acts done. Thus it has been held that checks purporting to have been drawn by the president of a canal company on their treasurer in favor of contractors are evidence to show that such person acted as their president;[96] and similar instruments might no doubt be admitted under proper conditions, at least on the footing of relevant circumstances, to be considered in connection with other facts for the purpose of proving the powers of subordinate agents.

(III) Provable by Parol. The power of a corporate agent may be proved by parol evidence.[97]

(IV) Provable by Circumstantial Evidence. The authority of an agent of a corporation, like that of an agent of a natural person, may be proved by facts and circumstances, written evidence not being necessary.[98]

(V) Provable by Parol Evidence of Recognition and Habitual Action. Proof may also be made by parol evidence, including evidence of recognition or of habitual action, under principles already discussed. To illustrate: The testimony of a director of a railroad company as to the official position and authority of a certain person as member of the executive committee, coupled with evidence that he was recognized and acted as such, is competent and sufficient to show his authority to act for the corporation as to third persons.[99] So evidence that a contract for the keeping of the horses of a canal company was made in behalf of the corporation, by one who was directed to make it by the assistant of the general superintendent of the corporation, and that the corporation sent their horses to be kept under the contract, and that they were so kept for several weeks, has been held sufficient evidence to leave to the jury the question of the authority from the corporation to make the contract.[1]

(VI) Proof Helped Out by Presumption of Right-Acting. Finally, at a certain limit, the party affirming the agency need not go further, but his proof will be helped out by the presumption of right-acting on the part of the corporate officials.[2] Thus it has been held that in an action against a corporation upon a note signed by its officers, where it appears that the execution of the note was expressly authorized at a meeting of the board of directors, it will be presumed

94. Clarke v. Warwick Cycle Mfg. Co., 174 Mass. 434, 54 N. E. 887.

95. Montgomery R. Co. v. Hurst, 9 Ala. 513.

96. Union Canal Co. v. Loyd, 4 Watts & S. (Pa.) 393.

97. Ross v. Madison, 1 Ind. 281, 48 Am. Dec. 361.

Evidence sufficient to sustain a finding that the general agent of a corporation was authorized to make a certain contract. Siemens Regenerative Gas-Lamp Co. v. Horstmann, 16 Atl. 490, 24 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 396.

98. Elysville Mfg. Co. v. Okisko Co., 5 Md. 152. There are cases which suggest that parol evidence of the authority of such an agent is only heard where there is no written evidence on the records of the corporation. Ross v. Madison, 1 Ind. 281, 48 Am. Dec. 361. But this is not the true conception. The records of a corporation having been made by the corporation for their own purposes, not being binding on a stranger, he may resort for proof of the agency to parol evidence, just as though the record did not exist, and may prove the authority given by a private corporation to its agent to enter into a contract on its behalf by parol evidence, although such authority was conferred at a meeting of its directors, and although the record was made of the resolution conferring it. Morrill v. T. C. Segar Mfg. Co., 32 Hun (N. Y.) 543. The idea of proving the authority of corporate officers, and this by the way is not a new idea in the law, will be discovered by an examination of the old case of Manby v. Long, 3 Lev. 107.

99. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Drennan, 26 Ill. App. 263.

1. Stone v. Western Transp. Co., 38 N. Y. 240.

4. 4 Thompson Corp. § 4894.

in the absence of any proof to the contrary that the board was rightfully in session at the time such authority was given.[3]

(VII) Antecedent Authority Proved by Subsequent Recognition and Adoption. On the principle hereafter stated[4] the fact of agency and the authority of the agent are often proved by a subsequent recognition and adoption on the part of those who have the power to affirm or disaffirm for the corporation, and subsequent recognition or adoption warranting a finding that the previous act was authorized by the corporation.[5]

(VIII) Other Evidence Bearing on Question of Authority of Corporate Agent. In an action to recover the value of services, where the corporation denies that it employed plaintiff to render the services, the record of a meeting of shareholders is admissible in evidence to show that the improvement was recognized by the corporation.[6] In an action against a corporation for goods sold and delivered evidence that an alleged officer of the corporation was in its offices transacting its business and conversing with parties dealing with it was held admissible in order to lay a foundation for evidence that such officer ordered and received the goods in controversy on behalf of the corporation.[7] On an issue whether certain cattle which had been purchased by the superintendent of a corporation were purchased for the corporation or for himself individually, the fact that a note given in part payment was signed by him individually was not regarded as being conclusive of the fact that the sale was made to him personally.[8]

j. Authority to Execute Sealed Instrument Presumed From Corporate Seal and Proper Signatures. When the instrument is under the corporate seal the mode of proof is easier. The rule is said to be that when the common seal of a corporation appears to be affixed to an instrument, and the signatures of the proper officers are proved, the courts are to presume that the officers did not exceed their authority. The contrary must be shown by the objecting party.[9]

k. Delivery to and Possession by Corporation. Delivery to an officer or agent of a corporation who is empowered to receive the thing for the corporation is of course delivery to the corporation, and his custody is the custody of the corporation,[10] and the corporation and not the officer or agent receiving the custody of the thing, will be considered, with respect to the owner, as the depositary.[11] On the other hand the possession of the chattel by an officer of a corporation will not be the possession of the corporation, unless the chattel is held in his official character and for corporate purposes.[12]

l. Interpretation of Grants of Power to Corporate Agents — Powers Included by Implication — (I) In General. A grant of power by a corporation to an agent is interpreted by the same canon which applies in the interpretation of grants of power by the sovereign to corporations in their charters; the grant of a

3. Hardin v. Iowa R., etc., Co., 78 Iowa 726, 43 N. W. 543, 6 L. R. A. 52.

4. See infra, XV, A, 1, a.

5. Lathrop v. Commercial Bank, 8 Dana (Ky.) 114, 33 Am. Dec. 481; Lyndeborough Glass Co. v. Massachusetts Glass Co., 111 Mass. 315.

6. Clarke v. Warwick Cycle Mfg. Co., 174 Mass. 434, 54 N. E. 887.

7. Deutz Lithographing Co. v. International Registry Co., 32 Misc. (N. Y.) 687, 66 N. Y. Suppl. 540.

8. Lake Shore Cattle Co. v. Modoc Land, etc., Co., 130 Cal. 669, 63 Pac. 72, opinion by McFarland, J.

Evidence sufficient to raise a question for a jury whether an employee of a corporation had authority to make a contract for advertising the goods of the corporation in a magazine for two years. Conant v. American Rubber Tire Co., 48 N. Y. App. Div. 327, 62 N. Y. Suppl. 972.

9. St. Louis Public Schools v. Risley, 28 Mo. 415, 75 Am. Dec. 131. See Chouquette v. Barada, 28 Mo. 491; Berks, etc., Turnpike Road v. Myers, 6 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 12, 9 Am. Dec. 402. See infra, XII, D, 3, c, (II), (A) et seq.

This rule has been applied to the case where the officers of a corporation who customarily are empowered to act in its behalf executed a note in its name and caused the execution to be authenticated by the corporate seal. Bullen v. Milwaukee Trading Co., 109 Wis. 41, 85 N. W. 115.

10. Moore v. Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co., 56 Mo. 343.

11. Foster v. Essex Bank, 17 Mass. 479, 9 Am. Dec. 168.

12. Doyle v. Mizner, 40 Mich. 160.

general power carries with it by implication a grant of all the special powers which are necessary to effectuate the grant of the general power; and also all those general powers which by reasonable implication are included in the general grant, unless in either case a purpose to exclude such special power is manifest from some other portion of the instrument making the grant.[13]

(II) Instances Under This Rule. To give an instance under this rule, a grant of power to the vice-president of a bank to give a bond for the security of county moneys loaned to the bank includes power to give collateral security.[14] A railway engineer was appointed by the company its agent to procure the plaintiff's signature to a writing. He consented to a delay of one month. It was held that the company was bound by this action.[15] A grant of power to do an act which is severable manifestly includes the power to do a part of it.[16] So officers of a public corporation authorized to issue a certain amount of its bonds have the power and right, upon a sufficient reason, to issue a less amount.[17] Again if an agent has authority to purchase land for a corporation he may bind it by his agreement to pay more than the consideration expressed in the deed.[18] So an agent of a corporation charged with the performance of a particular duty may contract for the assistance of third persons necessary for this purpose.[19] So a general power confided to the agent of a manufacturing corporation by its by-laws to manage the affairs of the corporation committed to its care, to exercise the powers committed to him according to his best ability and discretion, promptly to collect all assessments and other sums that should become due to the corporation, and to disburse according to the order of the board of directors, who were made a board of control over him, has been held to include — if the board of directors did not interpose to control his proceedings — an authority to employ workmen to carry on the business of the corporation and to pay them with its funds or, not being in funds, to give the notes of the corporation in payment.[20] So it has been held that a resolution of the directors of a corporation whose business necessarily requires the employment of workmen to pay a certain rate of compensation to a certain class of workmen does not exclude the power to hire additional workmen on the same terms.[21] The power conferred upon an officer of a corporation to object to a plant constructed for the corporation if he is not satisfied therewith includes the power to accept if he is satisfied.[22] A by-law of a land company giving the president the general supervision of the business of the company, with power to sign all contracts, empowers him to employ a surveyor to plat the land of the company so as to bind the company for his services.[23]

(III) Instances Not Included Within This Rule. On the other hand it has been held that the grant of power by the directors of a corporation to execute a note for a certain sum at a given rate of interest does not include the power to execute a note which stipulates for the payment of attorney's fees in the event of

13. See infra, XVII, A, 1, c et seq.

14. Richards v. Osceola Bank, 79 Iowa 707, 45 N. W. 294.

15. Pratt v. Hudson River R. Co., 21 N. Y. 305.

16. Thus where a number of notes were placed by a corporation in the hands of trustees, who were authorized by resolution of the directors to dispose of any of them in a specified manner, and such trustees transferred a portion of them for the purpose stated, it was held that the transfer was valid. Warner v. Chappell, 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 309.

17. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Ozark Tp., 46 Kan. 415, 26 Pac. 710.

18. Kickland v. Menasha Wooden Ware Co., 68 Wis. 34, 31 N. W. 471, 60 Am. Rep. 831.

19. Lovejoy v. Middlesex R. Co., 128 Mass. 480. Thus a railroad company which sends an agent to remove a wreck on its road gives him implied authority to employ necessary outside assistance and is liable to a bystander who on his request assists in the labor and is injured by the negligence of the company in furnishing defective appliances with which to do the work. Goff v. Toledo, etc., R. Co., 28 Ill. App. 529.

20. Bates v. Keith Iron Co., 7 Metc. (Mass.) 224.

21. Hardy v. Tittabawassee Boom Co., 52 Mich. 45, 17 N. W. 235.

22. Frey-Sheckler Co. v. Iowa Brick Co., 104 Iowa 494, 73 N. W. 1051.

23. Heinze v. South Green Bay Land, etc., Co., 109 Wis. 99, 85 N. W. 145.

a suit for collection.[24] Nor does the grant of power by a railroad company to an agent to "procure a right of way" include the power to promise an owner of land that the company will locate a depot in a certain place.[25]

m. Power of Agent Cannot Exceed Power of Corporation — (I) In General. In all these cases it must be borne in mind that the powers of the agents of corporations are necessarily limited to such contracts as the corporation may lawfully make, and to such acts as the corporation may lawfully do;[26] and that it cannot be presumed that the agent of a corporation had authority to transact business which the corporation was not by its charter authorized to engage in.[27] Nor will the corporation be estopped from repudiating an attempted contract made by its agent which the corporation itself had no power to make.[28]

(II) Power of Agent Ceases With Power of Corporation. Consequently when the power of the corporation to do a given act ceases, as by its dissolution, the power of an agent of the corporation to bind it or its funds in liquidation by doing the prescribed act necessarily ceases also.[29]

n. Corporation Responsible For Acts of Officers and Agents Holding Over. If after the expiration of the term of their office or agency the corporation permits the officer or agent to continue in the face of the public to exercise the duties of the office or agency, unquestionably the corporation will be bound by such of his acts as would bind it if he were an officer or agent de jure.[30] The meaning is that, regardless of any term of office, however specified, the agent of a corporation, like the agent of an individual, has power to bind the corporation so long as he is held out as qualified for this purpose. Likewise if the agency be general and unlimited in terms it continues until the principal revokes the authority or ceases to exist.[31]

o. Determination of Office or Agency Releases Surety on Official Bond — (I) In General. The obligations of sureties for the conduct of officers will not be enlarged to embrace a period beyond the term of office, although the officer is permitted by the corporation to hold over, and no successor has been appointed.[32]

(II) When Office or Agency Determines For Purpose of This Rule. Subordinate officers and agents of corporations are deemed officers of the corporation and not of the directors. Their offices and agency do not hence necessarily terminate with the expiration of the offices of the directors, but they may continue to perform their functions after the particular members of the board by whom they were appointed have passed out of office.[33] Consequently the sureties of the official bond of such an agent may be liable for the faithful conduct of his duties

24. Hardin v. Iowa R., etc., Co., 78 Iowa 726, 43 N. W. 543, 6 L. R. A. 52.

25. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. McKinney, 55 Tex. 176.

Another illustration.— Authority given by the board of directors to certain officers to execute a bond to secure the performance of a contract does not empower them to sign a bond providing for liquidating damages. Roberts v. Washington Water Power Co., 19 Wash. 392, 53 Pac. 664.

26. Downing v. Mt. Washington Road Co., 40 N. H. 230.

27. Alexander v. Cauldwell, 83 N. Y. 480.

28. Hood v. New York, etc., R. Co., 22 Conn. 1, 502; Pennsylvania, etc., Steam Nav. Co. v. Dandridge, 8 Gill & J. (Md.) 248, 29 Am. Dec. 543. See to the contrary Perkins v. Portland, etc., R. Co., 47 Me. 573, 74 Am. Dec. 507, railroad company estopped from denying authority of agent to represent that it will carry beyond its own line.

29. Wilson v. Tesson, 12 Ind. 285 [citing State v. Vincennes University, 5 Ind. 77].

30. Chelmsford Co. v. Demarest, 7 Gray (Mass.) 1.

31. Union Bank v. Ridgely, 1 Harr. & G. (Md.) 324; Thompson v. Young, 2 Ohio 334.

32. Mutual Loan, etc., Assoc. v. Price, 16 Fla. 204, 26 Am. Rep. 703; Chelmsford Co. v. Demarest, 7 Gray (Mass.) 1; Bigelow v. Bridge, 8 Mass. 275; Dover v. Twombly, 42 N. H. 59; Peppin v. Cooper, 2 B. & Ald. 431; St. Saviour v. Bostock, 2 B. & P. N. R. 175; Liverpool Water-Works v. Atkinson, 6 East 507, 2 Smith K. B. 654; Curling v. Chalklen, 3 M. & S. 502; Hassell v. Long, 2 M. & S. 363; Arlington v. Merricke, 2 Saund. 411.

33. Minor v. Mechanics' Bank, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 46, 7 L. ed. 47.

after the expiration of the terms of office of the directors by whom he was appointed.[34]

2. Their Declarations and Admissions — a. Declarations Made Dum Fervet Opus. The declarations of an agent of a corporation as to the matter in his charge, accompanying his acts as agent, stand on the same ground with the acts themselves, and both go to show what has been the conduct of the corporation in the matter to which they relate.[35] Such declarations of agents are often called verbal acts.

b. Declarations as to Present Matters. It is merely to state the same rule a little differently, to say that declarations made by the officers or agents of corporations, while acting in the course of their official duties or of the business of their agency, with reference to the then existing state of affairs, are admissible in evidence as part of the res gestæ.[36]

c. Declarations Made With Reference to Past Transactions. As a corporation can speak only through the mouths of its agents, their declarations or admissions as to past transactions will be admissible in evidence against the corporation, provided it was within the scope of their office or agency to make declarations or admissions on the particular subject.[37]

d. Declaration Must Have Been Made With Reference to Matters Within Scope of Agency — (I) In General. Such declarations, in order to bind the corporation, must of course have been made with reference to matters within the scope of the office or agency of the person making them.[38] The rights of the shareholders are not to be affected by the irregular transactions or by the declarations or confessions of their officers beyond the legal sphere of their action.[39] In other words such declarations must have been made officially and not privately.[40]

(II) Authority of Corporate Officers to Make Declarations Scrutinized. Where it is sought to bind the corporation by the declarations of its offi-

34. Anderson v. Longden, 1 Wheat. (U. S.) 85, 4 L. ed. 42. See also Union Bank v. Ridgely, 1 Harr. & G. (Md.) 324; Dedham Bank v. Chickering, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 335; Northampton Bank v. Pepoon, 11 Mass. 288; Exeter Bank v. Rogers, 7 N. H. 21. For the governing principle see also Curling v. Chalklen, 3 M. & S. 502. It followed that a bond of indemnity given to the trustees of a public unincorporated insurance company in England conditioned for the good conduct of a clerk while in the service of the company remained in full force during the period within which the clerk continued to serve the company, although there may have been a very considerable annual fluctuation in the membership of the company. Metcalfe v. Bruin, 2 Camph. 422, 12 East 400, 11 Rev. Rep. 432.

35. Toll Bridge Co. v. Betsworth, 30 Conn. 380, declarations made by drawbridge tenders at various times that they preferred to have them sail through instead of warping through, binding on the toll-bridge company.

36. Western Boatmen's Benev. Assoc. v. Kribben, 48 Mo. 37; Union Sav. Assoc. v. Edwards, 47 Mo. 445; Spelman v. Fisher Iron Co., 56 Barb. (N. Y.) 151.

Declarations of agents of corporations affecting the sureties on their official bonds.— Union Sav. Assoc. v. Edwards, 47 Mo. 445; Cheltenham Fire-Brick Co. v. Cook, 44 Mo. 29; Blair v. Perpetual Ins. Co., 10 Mo. 559, 47 Am. Dec. 129; Smith v. Whittingham, 6 C. & P. 78, 25 E. C. L. 330.

37. Morse v. Connecticut River R. Co., 6 Gray (Mass.) 450 (admissions of the officers of a railway company as to the manner of the loss of a passenger's baggage); Malecek v. Tower Grove, etc., R. Co., 57 Mo. 17 (declarations of a street railway superintendent justifying an assault upon a passenger).

38. National F. Ins. Co. v. Denver Consol. Electric Co., (Colo. App. 1901) 63 Pac. 949; Cosh-Murray Co. v. Adair, 9 Wash. 686, 38 Pac. 749 (unless previously authorized or subsequently ratified); Walrath v. Champion Min. Co., 63 Fed. 552. On this ground the declaration of the secretary of a corporation as to the amount due on a mortgage has been held not admissible. Johnston v. Elizabeth Bldg., etc., Assoc., 104 Pa. St. 394. And so of a certificate by the treasurer of a corporation, and so also a consulting director, as to a balance due on account of salary. Kalamazoo Novelty Mfg. Co. v. McAlister, 36 Mich. 327.

39. Salem Bank v. Gloucester Bank, 17 Mass. 1, 9 Am. Dec. 111; Wyman v. Hallowell, etc., Bank, 14 Mass. 58, 7 Am. Dec. 194. The declaration of an agent outside the scope of his agency is like the obiter dictum of a judge.

40. Stewart v. Huntingdon Bank, 11 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 267, 14 Am. Dec. 628. See also Pemigewassett Bank v. Rogers, 18 N. H. 255; Spalding v. Susquehanna County Bank, 9 Pa. St. 28. Compare Magill v. Kauffman, 4 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 317, 8 Am. Dec. 713, which contains language which in connection with the facts seems inconsistent with this principle, cers or agents, a careful scrutiny will be instituted to determine whether such declarations are within the scope of their authority, and if found to be in excess of it the declaration will not be left in evidence.[41] To warrant the admission of such a declaration there must be either an actual authority or a reasonable presumption of authority.[42]

e. Such Declarations Must Have Been External, Not Merely Internal, Communications. Such declarations, in order to bind the corporation, must have been something more than mere communications to the directory or to the shareholders by the officer or agent;[43] but where they relate to a claim against the corporation, if made to the directors in the presence of claimant and allowed to pass uncontradicted, they will be evidence against the corporation, although not conclusive.[44]

f. Declarations of Individual Shareholders Not Binding on Corporation. The declarations or admissions of individual shareholders are not binding upon the corporation.[45]

g. Declarations of Individual Directors. The declarations of a single director will not bind the corporation, unless in addition to his office of director he is holding some office or exercising some agency under the corporation.[46] A broad statement of this doctrine is that neither shareholders nor directors, without special power, can create a corporate liability; hence the confessions, admissions, or knowledge of either, while not engaged in the precise business confided to them, cannot affect the corporation.[47] Such declarations, to be even evidentiary against the corporation, must be ordinarily made at a meeting of the board;[48] otherwise

41. Wakefield v. South Boston R. Co., 117 Mass. 544; Hackney v. Allegheny County Mut. Ins. Co., 4 Pa. St. 185; Crump v. U. S. Mining Co., 7 Gratt. (Va.) 352, 56 Am. Dec. 116.

42. Custar v. Titusville Gas, etc., Co., 63 Pa. St. 381.

43. Hall v. Mobile, etc., R. Co., 58 Ala. 10.

44. Williams v. Christian Female College, 29 Mo. 250, 77 Am. Dec. 569.

45. Connecticut.— Fairfield County Turnpike Co. v. Thorp, 13 Conn. 173.

Georgia.— Mitchell v. Rome R. Co., 17 Ga. 574.

Maine.— Oldtown Bank v. Houlton, 21 Me. 501; Ruby v. Abyssinian Religious Soc., 15 Me. 306; Polleys v. Ocean Ins. Co., 14 Me. 141.

New York.— Osgood v. Manhattan Co., 3 Cow. 612, 15 Am. Dec. 304.

Ohio.— Loomis v. Eagle Bank, 1 Disn. 285, 12 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 625.

46. Illinois.— Grayville, etc., R. Co. v. Burns, 92 Ill. 302.

Maine.—Ruby v. Abyssinian Religious Soc., 15 Me. 306.

New Hampshire.— Pemigewassett Bank v. Rogers, 18 N. H. 255.

New York.— East River Bank v. Hoyt, 41 Barb. 441; Soper v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 19 Barb. 310.

Ohio.— Loomis v. Eagle Bank, 1 Disn. 285, 12 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 625.

See also supra, IX, E, 1, b, (I) et seq.

A qualification is sometimes made, "unless they are within the scope of his ordinary powers, or some special agency relative to the subject-matter." Soper v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 310, 312, per Strong, J., but this expression is inaccurate, since no director has such a power, "ordinary" or otherwise, touching the corporation. In another case the expression of doctrine is that the declarations of individuals, who are directors of a corporation, not forming a part of an official act, are not admissible to prove an antecedent fact against the corporation. Pemigewassett Bank v. Rogers, 18 N. H. 255.

47. Loomis v. Eagle Bank, 1 Disn. (Ohio) 285, 12 Ohio Dec. (Reprint) 625.

48. Alabama.— Holman v. Norfolk Bank, 12 Ala. 369.

Connecticut.— Fairfield County Turnpike Co. v. Thorp, 13 Conn. 173; Hartford Bridge Co. v. Granger, 4 Conn. 142; Lockwood v. Smith, 5 Day 309; Hartford Bank v. Hart, 3 Day 491, 3 Am. Dec. 274.

Maine.— Polleys v. Ocean Ins. Co., 14 Me. 141.

New Hampshire.— Pemigewassett Bank v. Rogers, 18 N. H. 255.

New York.— Soper v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 19 Barb. 310; First Baptist Church v. Brooklyn F. Ins. Co., 18 Barb. 69 [reversed in 19 N. Y. 305]; National Bank v. Norton, 1 Hill 572; Osgood v. Manhattan Co., 3 Cow. 612, 15 Am. Dec. 304.

Pennsylvania.— Stoystown, etc., Turnpike Road Co. v. Craver, 45 Pa. St. 386; Stewart v. Huntingdon Bank, 11 Serg. & R. 267, 14 Am. Dec. 628.

Tennessee.— Jones v. Planters' Bank, 9 Heisk. 455.

England.— Holt's Case, 22 Beav. 48; Matter of Royal British Bank, 3 De G. & J. 387, 5 Jur. N. S. 205, 28 L. J. Ch. 257, 7 Wkly. Rep. 217, 60 Eng. Ch. 301; McMillan v. Liverpool, etc., Steamship Co., 38 L. T. Rep. N. S. 288.

a single director might revoke or alter the engagements or any or all the others.[49]

h. Personal Responsibility For Erroneous Declarations. Outside the limits of fraud and negligence, there is in general no personal liability on the part of an officer or agent of the corporation for damages which may accrue to a third person in consequence of giving erroneous information to him.[50]

3. Powers of Ministerial Officers and Agents Touching Particular Acts — a. Appointment of Agents, Foremen, Etc. Under a power given to the directors of a company "to appoint a secretary and such surveyors and other assistants as may be necessary," they have authority to appoint an agent who may sign contracts on such terms as may be previously authorized by them.[51] Where the superintendent of a manufacturing corporation hired a foreman for the mill of the company, the company was bound thereby, the contract being within the general scope of the authority of the superintendent.[52]

b. Borrowing Money. It has been well observed that the authority of the agent of a corporation to borrow money for the use of his principal may be inferred from the character of his agency, his habit of borrowing money for the corporation, and the fact of the application of the money to the use of the corporation, without any direct authority being shown by a resolution by the board of directors.[53]

c. Touching Commercial Paper — (I) Indorsing For Accommodation — (A) In General. The power to indorse commercial paper for the accommodation of third persons is denied to agents, because it does not exist in the corporation itself unless expressly granted by charter or governing statute.[54] Such an indorsement is void in the hands of everyone who has notice that it is made for accommodation,[55] although good in the hands of all innocent purchasers of the paper.[56]

(B) Such Power Implied From Previous Recognition. But it has been held that a corporation cannot evade liability on negotiable paper indorsed with its name, by their agent, for the accommodation of a third person, on the ground that the agent had no authority so to indorse it, if it appears that the agent had frequently before indorsed their paper, and procured it to be discounted by plaintiff, and received the avails, and that the corporation had recognized the validity of such previous transactions.[57]

(II) Notes Executed in Name of Corporation Presumed to Be Corporate Obligations. A note purporting to be a note of a corporation, and signed by its agent, is therefore at the outset presumed to be a corporate obligation;[58] and the party denying it must do so by a plea, or by an answer in the nature of a plea, of non est factum, which in most jurisdictions must be under oath.[59]

Proof of authority necessary.— In an action by a bank, evidence of parol declarations of "officers of the bank" is not admissible for the defendant, without proof of the particular officers being authorized by the board of directors to speak for them, even though it should appear that the board of directors kept no minutes of their transactions. Stewart v. Huntingdon Bank, 11 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 267, 14 Am. Dec. 628.

49. East River Bank v. Hoyt, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 441, per Clarke, J. See also Shackelford v. New Orleans, etc., R. Co., 37 Miss. 202. As to the right and necessity of consultation see supra, IX, E, 6.

50. Herrin v. Franklin County Bank, 32 Vt. 274.

51. Wright v. Delafield, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 498.

52. Peck v. Dexter Sulphite Pulp, etc., Co., 164 N. Y. 127, 58 N. E. 6.

53. Allen v. Citizens' Steam Nav. Co., 22 Cal. 28. So as to the agent who usually transacts the financial business of the company. Elwell v. Dodge, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 336; Beers v. Phœnix Glass Co., 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 358.

54. See infra, XVII, C, 4, a, (I) et seq.

55. Genesee Bank v. Patchin Bank, 13 N. Y. 309, 19 N. Y. 312.

56. See infra, XVII, C, 4, c.

Evidence held not sufficient to suggest to the taker of the paper that it was indorsed for accommodation. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Colwell, 16 Daly (N. Y.) 28, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 285, 29 N. Y. St. 726.

57. Auburn Bank v. Putnam, 1 Abb. Dec. (N. Y.) 80.

58. Butts v. Cutbertson, 6 Ga. 166; Bradley v. McKee, 3 Fed. Cas. No. 1,784, 5 Cranch C. C. 298.

59. Instances of promissory notes held cor-

(III) Such Powers Inferred From Public Habit of Exercising Them. Under principles already stated [60] the power to make, accept, or indorse commercial paper may be inferred from the public habit of exercising it. For instance the authority of the president of a corporation to indorse notes may be shown by acquiescence or ratification by the trustees, or by proof of such a course of dealing by the president, and such negligence on the part of the trustees as would estop the corporation from denying his authority.[61]

(IV) Power to Appoint Agents to Draw, Indorse, Etc. The officers of a corporation, unless prohibited by its charter, may confer authority upon an agent to draw and execute bills of exchange on behalf of the company. And no action in writing on the part of the board of directors is necessary in order to vest such authority in the agent.[62]

d. Arranging Novation. The novation of a debt due from a corporation is within the authority of a general agent who has power to pay its debts.[63]

e. Increasing Capital Stock. It is plainly not within the implied powers of any corporate officer to bind the corporation to increase the capital stock, by an agreement with an employee that the latter shall receive stock for his services, when the corporation holds no stock.[64]

f. Releasing Contracts. Where the by-laws of a corporation provided that its superintendent should, with the approval of the president, buy and sell material and make all contracts for the same, and that the superintendent and all others should be subject to the control of the board of directors in everything where the board should elect to exercise such control, it was held that the president, who also held the office of superintendent, had power to release a contract executed by him as president, without the seal of the company, and without any express resolution or ratification of the directors; and that a disaffirmance by them, by a resolution passed two years after the release, or by bringing suit on the contract six months after a knowledge of the release, was too late.[65]

g. Compromising Disputed Claims. One who is the cashier and one of the bookkeepers and the corresponding clerk of a manufacturing company, and who is sent by the company to another place to collect a bill, has no implied authority to enter into an extraordinary contract compromising a dispute, settling unliquiporate obligations. Lake Shore Nat. Bank v. Butler Colliery Co., 51 Hun (N. Y.) 63, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 771, 20 N. Y. St. 688; Liebscher v. Kraus, 74 Wis. 387, 43 N. W. 166, 17 Am. St. Rep. 171, 5 L. R. A. 496.

60. See supra, X, D, 1, f, (I) et seq.

61. National Bank of Republic v. Navassa Phosphate Co., 56 Hun (N. Y.) 136, 8 N. Y. Suppl. 929, 30 N. Y. St. 289. But it has been held that evidence that the general agent of a corporation was in the habit of giving notes for such company is inadmissible, unless there is an offer to prove that the company had some knowledge that the agent was in the practice of giving notes in the name of the company. Lawrence v. Gebhard, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 575. Compare Dabney v. Stevens, 2 Sweeny (N. Y.) 415, 10 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 39, 40 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 341. That such authority may be shown by other evidence than the by-laws see Brown v. Donnell, 49 Me. 421, 77 Am. Dec. 266.

62. Preston v. Missouri, etc., Lead Co., 51 Mo. 43.

When corporation cannot set up its by-laws to disprove such authority see Marine Bank v. Butler Colliery Co., 1 Silv. Supreme (N. Y.) 155, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 291, 23 N. Y. St. 318.

63. Mulcrone v. American Lumber Co., 55 Mich. 622, 22 N. W. 67.

Want of power in agent of manufacturing corporation to bind the company by issuing non-transferable "labor tickets." Stanley v. Sheffield Land, etc., Co., 83 Ala. 260, 5 So. 34. That the acceptance of an order by a corporation to pay money already provided for by a contract with it is not within a governing instrument requiring all contracts creating liabilities for the payment of money to be signed by at least three members of the board of managers see French Spiral Spring Co. v. New England Car Trust, 32 Fed. 44.

64. Finley Shoe, etc., Co. v. Kurtz, 34 Mich. 89. That the president and secretary of a corporation have power to bind it by an agreement to pay a certain number of its shares to a broker for procuring a loan for it see Arapahoe Cattle, etc., Co. v. Stevens, 13 Colo. 534, 22 Pac. 823.

65. Indianapolis Rolling Mill Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 120 U. S. 256, 7 S. Ct. 542, 30 L. ed. 639.

dated damages, releasing a debt due to the company, and in effect giving away its property.[66]

4. Civil and Criminal Liability of Ministerial Officers and Agents — a. Responsibility of Officers and Agents to Corporation — (I) In General. The officers of a corporation are merely its agents, and if they transcend or abuse their powers they are as much responsible to their principal as the agent of an individual is to him.[67] They are responsible to their principal for nonfeasance and negligence in like manner as other agents. Thus, although the general agent of a company is not responsible for bad debts, or for negligence or faithlessness of agents necessarily employed by him, yet it is his duty to see that the debts due the company are collected, and he must show that he exercised ordinary diligence for that purpose.[68]

(II) Their Liability to Account to Corporation. Officers of a corporation, to whom money borrowed by it is turned over to a third person in discharge of a debt upon which they are personally liable, who fail to make payment until after a receiver is appointed for the corporation, are accountable to the receiver for such moneys.[69]

b. Their Personal Liability For Trespasses — (I) In General. The command, direction, or authorization of the master does not exonerate a servant from liability for committing a trespass, although it may make the master jointly liable with the servant or separately; and this rule applies to trespasses committed by the executive agents of corporations under the orders or authorization of the directors.[70] Obviously the liability of the corporation is not essential to the liability of the officer committing the trespass; he may be liable and it not be. It may fall within the numerous class of cases where the doctrine of respondeat superior does not obtain, but where the act is found not to have been authorized by the corporation through its board of directors or other authoritative agency, nor ratified by it, but where it is to be ascribed to the private malice of the actor.[71] The nature of the trespass may be entirely personal to the agent, and yet it may be done under such circumstances as involve a violation of the duty which the corporation has assumed toward the injured person, as where the conductor of a railway train attempted improper familiarities with a female passenger, and an action for damages was sustained against the company, because the wrong involved a violation of its undertaking to carry the passenger safely.[72]

(II) Officers or Agents Not Liable For Trespasses of Subordinate Agents. Nor will such an officer be personally liable for the trespasses of his subordinate officer; for the doctrine of respondeat superior does not apply to

66. Delta Lumber Co. v. Williams, 73 Mich. 86, 40 N. W. 940.

67. Austin v. Daniels, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 299; Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Jenkins, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 130.

68. Williams v. Gregg, 2 Strobh. Eq. (S. C.) 297.

As to the effect of a ratification of an unauthorized contract upon the remedy of the corporation against its agent who made it see infra, XVI, D, 2, a.

69. Crawfordsville First Nat. Bank v. Dovetail Body, etc., Co., 143 Ind. 534, 42 N. E. 924. An officer of a railroad corporation who is intrusted with its bonds and stock to use in constructing the road will be held to account only for the actual market value, although he is unable, because of the lapse of a long period of time before he was called upon to account, to state precisely the amount realized therefrom. Danville, etc., R. Co. v. Kase, 39 Atl. 301, 41 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 411.

Circumstances under which a member of a committee of a building and loan association was not liable to the association for embezzlement of large sums of the association's funds by its secretary. Alpena Loan, etc., Assoc. v. Denison, 121 Mich. 159, 79 N. W. 1098.

70. Lightner v. Brooks, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,344, 2 Cliff. 287. See Bonaparte v. Camden, etc., R. Co., 3 Fed. Cas. No. 1,617, Baldw. 205.

71. Thomson v. Sixpenny Sav. Bank, 5 Bosw. (N. Y.) 293; Mill v. Hawker, L. R. 10 Exch. 92, 44 L. J. Exch. 49, 33 L. T. Rep. N. S. 177, 23 Wkly. Rep. 348; McManus v. Crickett, 1 East 106, 5 Rev. Rep. 518; 2 Thompson Neg. p. 886.

72. Cracker v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 36 Wis. 657, 17 Am. Rep. 504.

intermediate agents, but only applies to the ultimate principal, which is the corporation.[73]

(III) Where Wrong Arises Out of Contract, Corporation, Not Agent, Generally Liable. The reason for this is that the corporation, and not the agent through whom the contract is effected, is the contracting party. For example where the president of a corporation made a contract with a contractor, which involved the use of a certain patented machine for which the contractor had no license, this did not make the president personally liable to the patentee for a trespass.[74]

c. Their Personal Liability For Ultra Vires Contracts — (I) In General. On strictly logical grounds the agent of a corporation who enters into a contract with a third person, professedly on behalf of the corporation, when he has no authority, so that his contract does not bind the corporation, is not himself liable on the contract, if that was not the intention of the parties; but he is liable for damages for the wrong.[75]

(II) Their Liability on Theory of Breach of Warranty of Agency. It is often said that he is liable in such a case on the theory of breach of warranty of agency, the meaning being that he impliedly warrants his authority to make the contract on behalf of the corporation. On this theory he would not be liable on a contract previously made, but would be liable on another contract, his implied contract of warranty of his agency.[76]

d. Their Criminal Responsibility — (I) In General. The governing principle here is that an officer, agent, or servant of a corporation who does an act forbidden by law is responsible for it in his own person; since the corporation is not presumed to have given him any authority to do such an act.[77] While in some cases this principle may operate to shield the corporation from criminal responsibility,[78] yet in others, as where the punishment is by a pecuniary fine only,[79] the corporation may be proceeded against jointly with the wrong-doing officer or agent.[80]

(II) Responsible Criminally For Nuisances Jointly With Corporation. If the corporation carries on a business so offensive and injurious to the inhabitants of the neighborhood as to constitute a nuisance, the managing officers may be proceeded against jointly with the corporation, convicted, and fined under a municipal ordinance; and it is not necessary, in order to sustain such a conviction, that they should be actually at work on the premises.[81]

E. Their Compensation. The regular officers of a corporation, of whatever grade, from director down, presumptively serve without compensation. They cannot recover compensation for services rendered within the scope of their

73. Hewett v. Swift, 3 Allen (Mass.) 420; Bath v. Caton, 37 Mich. 199. To the same principle are Brown v. Lent, 20 Vt. 529; Milligan v. Wedge, 12 A. & E. 737, 10 L. J. Q. B. 19, 4 P. & D. 714, 40 E. C. L. 366; Stone v. Cartwright, 6 T. R. 411, 3 Rev. Rep. 220; Story Agency, §§ 314, 315 et seq.; 2 Thompson Neg. p. 1060, § 1; Wood Master and Servant, §§ 281, 304.

74. Lightner v. Brooks, 15 Fed. Cas. No. 8,344, 2 Cliff. 287.

75. Hall v. Crandall, 29 Cal. 567, 84 Am. Dec. 64.

76. It has been held that one who assumes to execute a promissory note on behalf of a corporation, without authority, makes himself liable thereon on the theory of breach of warranty of agency, and that when sued upon the note it is for him to show his authority to execute it for the corporation. Harwood v. Humes, 9 Ala. 659.

By-laws construed as giving the president the right to execute necessary negotiable paper without the concurrence of the treasurer. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Colwell, 16 Daly (N. Y.) 28, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 285, 29 N. Y. St. 726.

77. Com. v. Ohio, etc., R. Co., 1 Grant (Pa.) 329.

78. Com. v. Ohio, etc., R. Co., 1 Grant (Pa.) 329.

79. See infra, X, D, 4, d, (II).

80. As to indictments against corporations see infra, XIX, E, 1 et seq.

81. People v. Detroit White Lead Works, 82 Mich. 471, 46 N. W. 735, 9 L. R. A. 722, where the managing officers were the president, vice-president, and treasurer.

Liability of directors and officers for a conspiracy to defraud.— Reg. v. Brown, 7 Cox C. C. 442; s. c. sub nom. Reg. v. Esdaile, 1 F. & F. 213. See also Reg. v. Burch, 4 F. & F. 407.

official duties upon an implied contract,[82] but any right to compensation for such services must be sought for in an express contract.[83] This does not necessarily apply to extra services clearly outside of the duties of the office, such for example as services as manager of the business of the corporation performed by a director,[84] or where the general manager of a corporation renders valuable services in its behalf outside of his duties as trustee and treasurer;[85] or where the superintendent of a mining company renders unusual and extraordinary services in extinguishing a fire in a mine.[86] Nor should officers of a corporation be deprived of all compensation for their services because the amounts to be received by them were not definitely fixed before they entered upon the discharge of their duties.[87] In short an officer of a corporation may be entitled to compensation under an implied contract, where services clearly outside his ordinary duties as such officer are performed under circumstances showing that it was well understood by the proper corporate officers as well as himself that the services were to be paid for.[88] Decisions are met with which restrain this doctrine especially as to directors who constitute a portion of the governing body, and who are under the temptation to vote compensation to themselves for extra services. One view is that a director of a corporation employed by the board to perform service for the corporation not necessarily incidental to his ordinary duties is not entitled to compensation unless it is fixed by corporate action before the services are rendered.[89] Nor will an officer of a corporation be allowed to receive an increase of his salary in pursuance of a resolution, the adoption of which depended upon and was accomplished by his own vote as trustee, although the increase was a reasonable one.[90]

Statutes making embezzlement and conversion of corporate funds larceny see 4 Thompson Corp. § 4999, where many such statutes are collected. Statutes defining such offenses as embezzlement see 4 Thompson Corp. § 5000 and statutes cited. Statutes making such offenses misdemeanors or high misdemeanors see 4 Thompson Corp. § 5001 and statutes cited. Statutes declaring such offenses a felony but without civil remedies being merged see 4 Thompson Corp. § 5002. Sufficiency of indictments under such statutes see 4 Thompson Corp. § 5003 and citations. Various questions in the interpretation of such statutes see 4 Thompson Corp. § 5004 and citations.

82. Barry v. Coffeen Coal, etc., Co., 52 Ill. App. 183.

83. Brown v. Valley View Min. Co., 127 Cal. 630, 60 Pac. 424 (mining corporation not liable for services in watching its mine, performed by shareholders chiefly interested therein); Danville, etc., R. Co. v. Kase, 39 Atl. 301, 41 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 411; McMuller v. Ritchie, 64 Fed. 253 (officer of mining company not allowed compensation for buying land, extending market for its ores, etc., where such services were rendered without contract or expectation of payment, and no account of expenses was kept by such officer).

84. Bassett v. Fairchild, (Cal. 1900) 61 Pac. 791 [affirmed in 132 Cal. 637, 64 Pac. 1082, 52 L. R. A. 611].

85. Dwight v. Williams, 25 Misc. (N. Y.) 667, 55 N. Y. Suppl. 201.

86. Fox v. Mackay, 123 Cal. 580, 56 Pac. 434.

87. National Loan, etc., Co. v. Rockland Co., 94 Fed. 335, 36 C. C. A. 370.

88. Felton v. West Iron Mountain Min. Co., 16 Mont. 81, 40 Pac. 70.

89. Rose v. Eclipse Carbonating Co., 60 Mo. App. 28.

90. Wickersham v. Crittenden, 103 Cal. 582, 36 Pac. 602.

Officers of a corporation were compelled to account for all sums withdrawn for salaries, together with interest thereon, where they had voted them for the purpose of depriving shareholders of the results of a litigation in case they should be successful, although the officers were paid nominally and partly for services rendered to the company. Eaton v. Robinson, 19 R. I. 146, 31 Atl. 1058, 32 Atl. 339, 29 L. R. A. 100.

A director appointed engineer in chief was not entitled to compensation as such, where the resolutions fixing his compensation were reconsidered at the next meeting of the board, and the question of his compensation was postponed until a future time, and was never again called up, since there was no contract to pay compensation, and he was not entitled to it on an implied contract. Savannah Cotton Mills v. Cunningham, 100 Ga. 468, 28 S. E. 435; In re Steam Dredge No. 1, 87 Fed. 760.

The fact that a corporation is without funds with which to pay salaries does not relieve it of liability for the salary of its secretary, so long as it permits him to remain in office and accepts his services. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Owen, 121 Ala. 505, 25 So. 612.

In action may make claim in form of an account.— A salaried officer of a corporation elected and serving from year to year, whose yearly compensation is fixed by a resolution of the board of directors, may in an action therefor make out his claim in the form of

XI. RIGHTS AND REMEDIES OF SHAREHOLDERS.

A. Right to Inspect Books and Papers of Corporation — 1. NATURE AND EXTENT OF THIS RIGHT AT COMMON LAW. One of the privileges incident to ownership of stock in a corporation is that of an inspection of the books and condition of the company, and this privilege in general becomes a right when the inspection is sought at proper times and for proper purposes.[91]

2. STATUTES AND CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS AFFIRMING THIS RIGHT. In England and in many of the United States this right has been guaranteed by statute, and these statutes are generally regarded as merely in affirmance of the common law.[92] In some of the states this right has been guaranteed by constitutional provisions.[93] Statutes guaranteeing this right are generally construed as creating a right absolute in its nature, so that the right cannot be withheld unless it is made to appear that the examination is sought for some improper or unlaw-an account. Talbotton R. Co. v. Gibson, 106 Ga. 229, 32 S. E. 151.

An employment by the year of the secretary of a corporation is not changed to one by the week by a subsequent resolution of the directors changing the compensation to a weekly sum. In re Philadelphia Packing, etc., Co., 4 Pa. Dist. 57, 15 Pa. Co. Ct. 650.

That a bill of discovery will not lie to compel the directors to divulge the amounts paid in salaries to the officers, for the reason that such salaries rest in their discretion, see Marshall v. American Caramel Co., 9 Pa. Dist. 152.

Unreasonable salaries.— That the directors of corporations will not be upheld in diverting the corporate funds to the payment of unreasonable salaries see Decatur Mineral Land Co. v. Palm, 113 Ala. 531, 21 So. 315, 59 Am. St. Rep. 140; Church v. Church Cementico Co., 75 Minn. 85, 77 N. W. 548; Freeman v. Stine, 15 Phila. (Pa.) 37, 38 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 268; Hubbard v. New York, etc., Invest. Co., 14 Fed. 675.

When promise to pay implied.— A resolution of a corporation employing a real estate firm to sell its lots indicates a purpose to pay for such services, notwithstanding that the firm was composed alone of a shareholder and officer of the corporation. Wiano Land, etc., Co. v. Webster, 75 Mo. App. 457.

91. Illinois.— Mathews v. McClaughry, 83 Ill. App. 224.

Iowa.— Ellsworth v. Dorwart, 95 Iowa 108, 63 N. W. 588, 58 Am. St. Rep. 427, under Iowa Code, § 1279.

Louisiana.—Legendre v. New Orleans Brewing Assoc., 45 La. Ann. 669, 12 So. 837, 40 Am. St. Rep. 243; Cockburn v. Union Bank, 13 La. Ann. 289.

New York.— In re Steinway, 159 N. Y. 250, 53 N. E. 1103, 45 L. R. A. 461 [affirming 31 N. Y. App. Div. 70, 52 N. Y. Suppl. 343].

Pennsylvania.— Com. v. Phœnix Iron Co., 105 Pa. St. 111, 51 Am. Rep. 184 [citing State v. Bienville Oil Works, 28 La. Ann. 204; Angell & A. Corp. § 681; Grant Corp. 311; 2 Phillips Ev. 313; Redfield Railways 227].

Rhode Island.— Lyon v. American Screw Co., 16 R. I. 472, 17 Atl. 61.

Washington.— State v. Pacific Brewing, etc., Co., 21 Wash. 451, 58 Pac. 584, 47 L. R. A. 208.

United States.— Ranger v. Champion Cotton-Press Co., 51 Fed. 61.

England.— Rex v. Merchant Tailors' Co., 2 B. & Ad. 115, 9 L. J. K. B. O. S. 146, 22 E. C. L. 57; Richards v. Pattinson, 1 Barnes Notes 156; In re West Devon Great Consols Mine, 27 Ch. D. 106, 51 L. T. Rep. N. S. 841, 32 Wkly. Rep. 890; In re Burton, etc., Co., 31 L. J. Q. B. 62, 10 Wkly. Rep. 87; Gery v. Hopkins, 7 Mod. 129; Rex v. Newcastle F. of H., 2 Str. 1223; Rex v. Babb, 3 T. R. 579; Rex v. Shelley, 3 T. R. 141, 1 Rev. Rep. 673; Young v. Lynch, 1 W. Bl. 27.

See 12 Cent. Dig. tit. "Corporations," § 674.

92. Ellsworth v. Dorwart, 95 Iowa 108, 63 N. W. 588, 58 Am. St. Rep. 427 (the right of shareholder to inspect the original stock record, stock and transfer-books, and the record of financial condition of a railway corporation is expressly conferred by Iowa Code, § 1279); People v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 11 Hun (N. Y.) 1 [affirmed in 70 N. Y. 220].

93. For example La. Const. art. 245, providing that such books shall "be kept for public inspection." Under this provision a shareholder has the right to inspect the books of the corporation for the purpose of discovering the amount of capital stock which has been subscribed, the names of the shareholders, amounts held by them respectively, the number of shares which have been paid for, and by whom, and the transfer of shares, and generally the assets and liabilities of the corporation. State v. New Orleans Gas Light Co., 49 La. Ann. 1556, 22 So. 815. The right conferred by this constitutional provision may be exercised by the personal representative of the shareholder after his death. State v. Citizens' Bank, 51 La. Ann. 426, 25 So. 318. So under Pa. Const. art. 17, requiring every railroad and canal company to maintain an office where its books shall be kept for inspection by any shareholder. Under this constitutional provision a shareholder in a railroad company is entitled to inspect the books for the purpose of enabling him to counsel with other shareholders and to obtain proxies to be used at the election of managers. Com. v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 3 Pa. Dist. 115.

ful purpose.[94] Others have received a reasonable and not an impracticable construction.[95]

3. STATUTES DENOUNCING PENALTIES FOR REFUSING THIS RIGHT — a. In General. The larger number of these statutes denounce a pecuniary penalty or forfeiture against the officer so refusing.[96] Among the many statutes on this subject we may cite statutes enacting a forfeiture of fifty,[97] one hundred, two hundred,[98] two hundred and fifty,[99] and even one thousand dollars.[1] By a statute of New Jersey the forfeiture is "the sum of two hundred dollars, the one-half thereof to the use of the state of New Jersey, and the other moiety to him who will sue for the same, to be recovered by action of debt in any court of record, together with costs of suit."[2] Other statutes denounce a forfeiture for each twenty-four hours' neglect after request.[3]

b. Construction of Such Statutes. In an action to recover the penalty denounced by such a statute, the complaint should show that the officer upon whom the demand for inspection was made had notice that the person making the demand was entitled to the inspection.[4] It should set forth specifically the facts which are relied upon to constitute the offense denounced by the statute.[5] But no injury to the shareholder by reason of such refusal need be shown to enable him to recover the penalty.[6] The action being to recover a penalty denounced against the wrong-doing officer, the corporation is not a necessary party.[7]

c. Statutes Making Refusal of This Right Criminal Offense. Many statutes punish such refusals as criminal misdemeanors,[8] and one has been found which 94. Meysenburg v. People, 88 Ill. App. 328, construing Hurd Ill. Stat. (1898), c. 32, § 13.

95. For example a statute, here Md. Code, art. 23, § 5, providing that "the president and directors of every corporation shall keep full, fair and correct accounts of their transactions, which shall be open at all times for the inspection of the stockholders or members," confers upon a shareholder the right to examine the accounts of the transactions of its president and directors at all reasonable times. Weinhenmayer v. Bitner, 88 Md. 325, 331, 42 Atl. 245, 45 L. R. A. 446.

Statutory right does not restrict common-law right.— A statute (Mo. Rev. Stat. (1889), § 2503) providing that the transfer-books and the books containing the names of shareholders shall be kept open for inspection for twenty days previous to the election of directors is construed as not restricting the common-law right of a shareholder to examine and inspect the books and records, on the theory that the expression of one is the exclusion of the other. State v. Laughlin, 53 Mo. App. 542. Similarly see People v. Eadie, 63 Hun (N. Y.) 320, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 53, 43 N. Y. St. 649 [affirmed in 133 N. Y. 573, 30 N. E. 1147, 44 N. Y. St. 930].

96. The following may be referred to as an example: Mass. Gen. Stat. p. 386, c. 68, § 10.

For the English statutes see Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 441 et seq.

For questions of procedure in an action by a shareholder for such a penalty see Lewis v. Brainerd, 53 Vt. 519.

97. R. I. Gen. Stat. (1872), p. 296, § 21.

98. Ala. Rev. Code (1876), § 1897 (officer to furnish transcript); Ida. Rev. Laws, p. 622, § 18; 2 Brightly Purd. Dig. Pa. (1873), p. 1437, § 37 (turnpike bridge and plank-road companies); R. I. Gen. Stat. (1872), p. 319, § 17.

Penalty for failure, two hundred dollars. Ala. Rev. Code, § 1898.

Penalty for refusing to allow an inspection, two hundred dollars. Ala. Rev. Code, § 1900.

99. Mo. Rev. Stat. (1879), § 721; 2 N. Y. Rev. Stat. (Banks & Bros. (6th ed.) 1876), p. 303, § 48 (relating to "moneyed corporations").

1. N. H. Gen. Stat. (1867), p. 277, § 13.

2. N. J. Rev. Stat. (1877), p. 183, § 36. A similar provision is found in the statutes of New York, although the common-law action of debt has long been abolished by statute in that state. 2 N. Y. Rev. Stat. (Banks & Bros. (6th ed.) 1876), p. 398, § 1.

3. Vt. Gen. Stat. (1862, Appendix 1870), p. 551, § 53. See also p. 544, § 8; Wyo. Laws (1869), p. 242, § 23.

4. Williams v. College Corner, etc., Gravel Road Co., 45 Ind. 170.

5. Gunst v. Goldstein, 30 Misc. (N. Y.) 44, 61 N. Y. Suppl. 707.

6. Kelsey v. Pfaudler Process Fermentation Co., 3 N. Y. Suppl. 723, 20 N. Y. St. 733. The penalty here referred to is given by N. Y. Laws (1848), c. 40, § 25.

7. Gunst v. Goldstein, 30 Misc. (N. Y.) 44, 61 N. Y. Suppl. 707.

Circumstances under which it was held that the statute should not be construed so strictly as to entitle the shareholder to the penalty therein provided for. Kelsey v. Pfaudler Process Fermentation Co., 41 Hun (N. Y.) 20. Compare same case, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 723, 20 N. Y. St. 733, where the contrary was held. Construction of a complaint in such an action. Levy v. Cohen, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 155, 45 N. Y. St. 278.

8. California.— Pen. Code, § 565.

by providing for a term of imprisonment in the penitentiary, assimilates such an offense to a felony.[9]

d. Statutes Punishing Offense as Misdemeanor, Fining Corporation, and Giving Action For Damages Against Corporation. Another class of statutes is found which punish the offending officer as for a misdemeanor, and give a forfeiture and an action for damages to the injured person, both payable out of the money of the corporation.[10]

4. Where Right Is Guaranteed by Statute, Motive For Exercising It Cannot Be Inquired Into. Where the right is guaranteed by statute,[11] the shareholder need not give any reason to the officers of the corporation for demanding it,[12] the rule of law being that where a party has a legal right to do a thing, the motive which may prompt him in demanding such right is not the proper subject even of judicial investigation.[13] It is therefore no defense to a judicial proceeding to compel the granting of this right that the information sought to be obtained might be used for an improper purpose;[14] that, at the time of making the request, the shareholder is accompanied by his attorney who represents him in a litigation against the company, and also by an amanuensis;[15] or that the shareholder making the request is a rival and competitor in the business carried on by the corporation, and desires an examination of its books, documents, and records for the purpose of obtaining information to be used by him in the conduct of his business to the injury and loss of the corporation.[16]

5. Statutory Right Is Qualified Right Unless Given in Absolute Terms. Where the right is not given by statute in absolute terms, it is held to be a qualified right; and one court has gone so far as to say that "it is discretionary with the court whether to issue a writ of mandamus or not; and that this discretion

Maryland.— Rev. Code (1878), p. 324.
Montana.— Code Stat. (1871), p. 409, § 26.
Nevada.— Comp. Laws (1873), § 3403.
New York.— 2 Rev. Stat. (Banks & Bros. (6th ed.) 1876), p. 362, § 318; p. 509, § 60; p. 765, § 14 (relating to hotel companies); p. 793, § 17 (relating to "moneyed corporations").
Utah.— Comp. Laws (1876), p. 635, § 326.

9. Mich. Comp. Laws (1871), § 2220.

10. Md. Rev. Code (1878), p. 324, § 67. See also Mont. Stat. (1871–1872), p. 409, § 26; 2 N. Y. Rev. Stat. (Banks & Bros. (6th ed.) 1876), p. 283, § 134; p. 509, § 60; p. 710, § 25; p. 729, § 45; p. 765, § 14; p. 793, § 17.

11. As for instance under Ala. Code (1886), § 1677, or under Mo. Rev. Stat. (1879), § 720.

12. Alabama.— Foster v. White, 86 Ala. 467, 6 So. 88.
Louisiana.— State v. Bienville Oil Works Co., 28 La. Ann. 204.
Missouri.— State v. Sportsman's Park, etc., Assoc., 29 Mo. App. 326; State v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 29 Mo. App. 301.
New Jersey.— Mitchell v. Rubber Reclaiming Co., (Ch. 1892) 24 Atl. 407, no set-off.
Ohio.— Cincinnati Volksblatt Co. v. Hoffmeister, 62 Ohio St. 189, 56 N. E. 1033, 48 Am. St. Rep. 707, 48 L. R. A. 732.
Rhode Island.— Lyon v. American Screw Co., 16 R. I. 472, 17 Atl. 61, per Stiness, J.
England.— Mutter v. Eastern, etc., R. Co., 38 Ch. D. 92, 57 L. J. Ch. 615, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 117, 36 Wkly. Rep. 401.

13. "If the charge upon which the party rests his case be free from odium, the general rule is that he is entitled to have that right protected, whatever may be his motive in asking the aid of the court for that purpose." Bird, V. C., in Mitchell v. Rubber Reclaiming Co., (N. J. Ch. 1892) 24 Atl. 407 [citing Davis v. Flagg, 35 N. J. Eq. 491; Morris v. Tuthill, 72 N. Y. 575; McDonald v. Smalley, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 620, 624, 7 L. ed. 287]. See also People v. Goldstein, 37 N. Y. App. Div. 550, 56 N. Y. Suppl. 306, holding that the motive prompting the request of the president of a corporation for an inspection of the stock-book is immaterial, in a proceeding by mandamus to compel the secretary of the corporation to produce the stock-book for his inspection.

14. State v. Sportsman's Park, etc., Assoc., 29 Mo. App. 326; State v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 29 Mo. App. 301, 307; People v. Pacific Mail Steamship Co., 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 280.

15. Ellsworth v. Dorwart, 95 Iowa 108, 63 N. W. 588, 58 Am. St. Rep. 427.

16. Weinhenmayer v. Bitner, 88 Md. 325, 42 Atl. 245, 45 L. R. A. 446.

Right of shareholder to impart knowledge obtained.— Where the right to inspect the books is an absolute right under a statute, it has been held that the shareholder will not be enjoined from imparting to others the information thus obtained. Rodger Ballast Car Co. v. Perrin, 17 Nat. Corp. Rep. 819.

Burden of proving improper motive.— Where the officers of the corporation refuse the request of the shareholder for an inspection of the books and records, on the ground that the purpose of the inspection was not in the interest of the corporation, in an application for a mandamus to compel the granting of this right they have the burden of proving it, there being no presumption that the in-depends upon the necessity or propriety of granting it under the circumstances shown." [17]

6. Other Questions Under Statutes Giving Such Right of Inspection. Numerous other questions have arisen under statutes conferring upon shareholders the right to inspect the books and records of the corporation, which will be briefly noted in the margin.[18]

7. By-Laws Conferring or Regulating This Right. No doubt this right may be regulated by a corporate by-law, provided it be reasonable,[19] and provided it have a reasonable construction. Thus in a state where the right of inspection is guaranteed by statute, a by-law providing for the closing of the transfer-books thirty days before an election was not subject to the construction that it authorized the closing of them against inspection by a person authorized thereto, but only as limiting the time for transfers of shares, since a contrary interpretation would make the by-law invalid.[20] A by-law established in the absence of a statute conferring the right of inspection, providing that the treasurer should "keep or cause to be kept a full and accurate account of all the business of the company, in suitable books, which books shall at all times be open to the inspection of any of the stockholders," was restrained by construction so as to give the right of inspection of the manufacturing and commercial accounts of the company, and not of a book containing the names of the shareholders.[21]

8. Theory That There Is No Common-Law Right of Inspection Unless There Is a Defined, Distinct Dispute. The English doctrine seems to be that in the absence of a statute or other instrument conferring the right a shareholder has no right to an inspection of the corporate books for the purpose of acquiring a knowledge of facts upon which to create a dispute, but that there must be a defined and distinct dispute already in existence with reference to which the right of inspection is demanded.[22] This does not necessarily mean that a suit should have been instituted, but it is sufficient if there is an existing dispute to be settled by spection was required for an improper purpose. State v. Pacific Brewing, etc., Co., 21 Wash. 451, 58 Pac. 584, 47 L. R. A. 208.

17. Lyon v. American Screw Co., 16 R. I. 472, 475, 17 Atl. 61.

18. Winter v. Baldwin, 89 Ala. 483, 7 So. 734 (holding that a state statute conferring this right extends to national banks and gives the right to a mandamus against the cashier of such a bank); People v. Pacific Mail Steamship Co., 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 280, 3 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 364, 34 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 193 (no objection to the right that the books have not been correctly kept, or that they contain information to which the shareholder is not entitled); State v. Bergenthal, 72 Wis. 314, 39 N. W. 566 (the word "accounts" in such a statute not restricted to stock accounts, but includes general accounts); Rex v. Wilts, etc., Canal Nav. Co., 3 A. & E. 477, 5 N. & M. 344, 30 E. C. L. 228; Rex v. Grand Canal Co., L. R. 1 Ir. 337 (holding that the shareholder must state for what purpose he desires to see the books, which must be a reasonable purpose, and the refusal must proceed from the managing body).

Statute of New York giving penalties for refusing to furnish statements to shareholders. N. Y. Laws (1892), c. 687, § 52. Shareholder cannot require that the statement shall include all the business transactions of the corporation. French v. McMillan, 43 Hun (N. Y.) 188, 4 N. Y. St. 357. Compare Burden v. Burden, 3 N. Y. St. 776. One acquiring stock by bequest has no right to examine the books of account to find out the value of the shares before availing himself of this statute. People v. Nassau Ferry Co., 86 Hun (N. Y.) 128, 33 N. Y. Suppl. 244, 66 N. Y. St. 801.

Statute of New Jersey requiring corporate books to be brought into the state for inspection under pain of forfeiture of charter and liability for contempt of court. N. J. Rev. Stat. p. 186, § 50. Order of inspection granted in compliance with statute in Huylar v. Cragin Cattle Co., 40 N. J. Eq. 392, 2 Atl. 274, 42 N. J. Eq. 139, 7 Atl. 521. No defense that the petitioner is the president and director of the corporation, and hence presumed to know what the books contain. Mitchell v. Rubber Reclaiming Co., (N. J. Ch. 1892) 24 Atl. 407.

19. Cockburn v. Union Bank, 13 La. Ann. 289.

20. State v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 29 Mo. App. 301.

21. Lyon v. American Screw Co., 16 R. I. 472, 473, 17 Atl. 61. Compare People v. Eadie, 133 N. Y. 573, 30 N. E. 1147, 44 N. Y. St. 930 [affirming 63 Hun (N. Y.) 320, 18 N. Y. Suppl. 53, 43 N. Y. St. 649]; State v. Bergenthal, 72 Wis. 314, 39 N. W. 566 (holding that a statute conferring this right is salutary and ought not to be construed restrictively).

22. In re Burton, etc., Co., 31 L. J. Q. B. 62, 10 Wkly. Rep. 87.

reference to the books.[23] There is neither sense nor justice in this restriction, since every proprietor has the right to know the manner in which his agents are conducting his business.

9. Right Not Allowed For Speculative Purposes, Gratification of Curiosity, or Where It Would Produce Great Inconvenience — a. In General. The judicial decisions either hold or concede that the right of a shareholder to inspect the books of the corporation will not be enforced for speculative purposes or for the gratification of curiosity; since if every shareholder could inspect for such purposes, at his own will, the business of most corporations would be greatly impeded.[24]

b. Contra, That It Is No Answer to Granting of Right That It Will Be Inconvenient to Corporation. A contrary view is that it is no ground for the denial of the right that it will be inconvenient to the corporation or detrimental to the rights of other shareholders, but that if the right of inspection is clear, it cannot be denied on the ground of inconvenience, but the convenience of the corporation and the convenience of the shareholder must to some extent yield to each other.[25]

10. Right to Make Copies and Extracts. The right to inspect is regarded as including, by reasonable implication, the right to make copies, memoranda, or extracts of such copies of the books or records as pertain to the rights or interests of the shareholders.[26]

11. No Answer That Corporation Is Willing to Buy Shares of Shareholder. Where the right of inspection is conferred by statute, it is no answer to the shareholder's demand for permission to exercise the right that the corporation is willing to purchase his shares, but such an answer is impertinent.[27]

12. Shareholder Must Make Inspection in Peaceable and Gentlemanly Manner. Where the shareholder obtains an order of inspection for some purpose connected with a pending litigation, he is bound in making the inspection to conduct himself in a peaceable, decorous, and gentlemanly manner, and not to make public or communicate to strangers to the litigation the contents of the documents which may have been produced to him; and in such a case the court may by process of contempt control the manner of making the inspection so as to compel it to be exercised in a decent and gentlemanly way.[28]

13. Shareholder May Exercise This Right Through Agent, Attorney, or Expert. The shareholder is not confined to a personal inspection by himself, but may exercise the right through an agent, attorney, solicitor, counsel, or expert.[29]

23. Rex v. Merchant Tailors' Co., 2 B. & Ad. 115, 9 L. J. K. B. O. S. 146, 22 E. C. L. 57. See also Com. v. Phœnix Iron Co., 105 Pa. St. 111, 51 Am. Rep. 184.

24. Com. v. Phœnix Iron Co., 105 Pa. St. 111, 51 Am. Rep. 184. See also People v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 11 Hun (N. Y.) 1 [affirmed in 70 N. Y. 220]. Substantially to the same effect are Lyon v. American Screw Co., 16 R. I. 472, 17 Atl. 61, and many other cases.

25. State v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 29 Mo. App. 301.

26. Rex v. Merchant Tailors' Co., 2 B. & Ad. 115, 9 L. J. K. B. O. S. 146, 22 E. C. L. 57; Browning v. Aylwin, 7 B. & C. 204, 9 D. & R. 801, 14 E. C. L. 97; Mutter v. Eastern, etc., R. Co., 38 Ch. D. 92, 57 L. J. Ch. 615, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 117, 36 Wkly. Rep. 401; Rex v. Lucas, 10 East 235, 10 Rev. Rep. 283; In re Burton, etc., Co., 31 L. J. Q. B. 62, 10 Wkly. Rep. 87; Rex v. Newcastle F. of H., 2 Str. 1223.

For cases affirming this right under statutes granting right of inspection see Matter of Martin, 62 Hun (N. Y.) 557, 17 N. Y. Suppl. 133, 42 N. Y. St. 409; Brouwer v. Cotheal, 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 216 [affirmed in 5 N. Y. 562]; Cincinnati Volksblatt Co. v. Hoffmeister, 62 Ohio St. 189, 56 N. E. 1033, 78 Am. St. Rep. 707, 48 L. R. A. 732. But see to the contrary an obviously untenable decision to the effect that a constitutional provision requiring a list of shareholders to be kept at the office of the corporation for inspection of shareholders and creditors does not confer the right to take a copy of the list. Com. v. Empire Pass. R. Co., 134 Pa. St. 237, 19 Atl. 629.

27. State v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 29 Mo. App. 301.

28. Williams v. Prince of Wales, etc., Co., 23 Beav. 338, 3 Jur. N. S. 55.

29. Alabama.— Foster v. White, 86 Ala. 467, 6 So. 88.

Georgia.— Ballin v. Ferst, 55 Ga. 546.

Iowa.— Ellsworth v. Dorwart, 95 Iowa 108, 63 N. W. 588, 58 Am. St. Rep. 427.

14. Illustrative Cases Where Inspections Have Been Granted. Orders have been made, in equity, allowing shareholders to inspect the books of their corporations where the bill alleged fraud on the part of the directors whereby the complaining shareholder has been damnified;[30] on a verified petition by the shareholder stating that a mine owned by the company is being worked at a loss;[31] in an action by a shareholder to hold the directors of a life-insurance company personally responsible for large losses alleged to have been sustained in consequence of making improper payments of money upon policies, and this, although plaintiff appeared to have but a trifling interest in the company, and although it further appeared that he was desirous of injuring it and had published prejudicial statements relating to the matters alleged in his bill.[32] Mandamus or other order to compel inspections has also been granted in the cases noted in the margin.[33]

15. Illustrative Cases Where Inspections Have Been Refused. In his learned note to the decision of the chancery court of New Jersey in Stettauer v. New York, &c., Construction Co.,[34] the late Mr. John H. Stewart, the Reporter of the court, makes the following compressed statement of the cases where orders to enable shareholders to inspect the books and papers of their corporations have been refused: "An inspection will not be allowed to gratify mere idle curiosity;[35] nor because some of the books are necessarily kept in another State, where the main office is, in violation of a statute of Connecticut;[36] nor to fish out a defense;[37] nor upon an allegation of belief that the company's affairs are being Louisiana.—State v. Sportsman's Park, etc., Assoc., 29 Mo. App. 326.

New Jersey.—Mitchell v. Rubber Reclaiming Co., (Ch. 1892) 24 Atl. 407.

New York.—People v. Nassau Ferry Co., 86 Hun 128, 33 N. Y. Suppl. 244, 66 N. Y. St. 801.

England.—Lindsay v. Gladstone, L. R. 9 Eq. 132; Williams v. Prince of Wales L., etc., Co., 23 Beav. 338, 3 Jur. N. S. 55; Bonnardet v. Taylor, 1 Johns. & H. 383, 7 Jur. N. S. 328, 30 L. J. Ch. 523, 3 L. T. Rep. N. S. 384, 9 Wkly. Rep. 452; Atty.-Gen. v. Whitwood Local Bd., 40 L. J. Ch. 592, 19 Wkly. Rep. 1107; In re Birmingham Banking Co., 36 L. J. Ch. 150; Hide v. Holmes, 2 Molloy 372; Blair v. Massey, 5 Ir. Eq. 623. But see Summerfield v. Pritchard, 17 Beav. 9, 17 Jur. 361, 22 L. J. Ch. 528, 1 Wkly. Rep. 270; In re West Devon Great Consols Mine, 27 Ch. D. 106, 51 L. T. Rep. N. S. 841, 32 Wkly. Rep. 890; Draper v. Manchester, etc., R. Co., 3 De G. F. & J. 23, 6 Jur. N. S. 1239, 30 L. J. Ch. 95, 3 L. T. Rep. N. S. 402, 9 Wkly. Rep. 117, 64 Eng. Ch. 18; Bartley v. Bartley, 1 Drew. 233, 16 Jur. 1062, 22 L. J. Ch. 47, 1 Wkly. Rep. 48.

Contra, and seemingly untenable, is a holding to the effect that a corporation will not be required to permit the examination of its books by an expert accountant, at the request of a shareholder who alleges misconduct in the management of its affairs. Clarke v. Eastern Bldg., etc., Assoc., 89 Fed. 779.

30. Walburne v. Ingilby, Coop. t. Brough. 270, 3 L. J. Ch. 21, 1 Myl. & K. 61, 7 Eng. Ch. 61; Stainton v. Chadwick, 15 Jur. 1139, 3 Macn. & G. 575, 49 Eng. Ch. 444. Compare Bassford v. Blakesley, 6 Beav. 131.

31. In re West Devon Great Consols Mine, 27 Ch. D. 106, 51 L. T. Rep. N. S. 841, 32 Wkly. Rep. 890.

32. Williams v. Prince of Wales L., etc., Co., 23 Beav. 338, 3 Jur. N. S. 55.

33. State v. Bienville Oil Works Co., 28 La. Ann. 204 (where the relator desired to acquire knowledge to enable him to vote understandingly at a shareholders' meeting); Phœnix Iron Co. v. Com., 113 Pa. St. 563, 6 Atl. 75 (collection of facts showing concealment, oppression, etc.); [for another case involving the same conclusion on the same facts see Com. v. Phœnix Iron Co., 105 Pa. St. 111, 51 Am. Rep. 184]; In re Birmingham Banking Co., 36 L. J. Ch. 150 (company being wound up, permission granted to employ an accountant to prosecute an examination of the books). See also In re Emma Silver Min. Co., L. R. 10 Ch. 194, 44 L. J. Ch. 456, 31 L. T. Rep. N. S. 816, 23 Wkly. Rep. 300. In the following cases an inspection was granted expressly upon the showing of a proper cause or of a right given. Cockburn v. Union Bank, 13 La. Ann. 289; People v. Pacific Mail Steamship Co., 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 280; In re Burton, etc., Co., 31 L. J. Q. B. 62, 10 Wkly. Rep. 87. In Cotheal v. Brouwer, 5 N. Y. 562, the right was given by a statute imposing a penalty for a refusal of it. In People v. Pacific Mail Steamship Co., 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 280, the right was given by charter and was enforced by mandamus. See also Kelsey v. Pfaudler Process Fermentation Co., 3 N. Y. Suppl. 723, 20 N. Y. St. 533.

34. 42 N. J. Eq. 46, 49 note, 6 Atl. 303.

35. People v. Walker, 9 Mich. 328.

36. Pratt v. Meriden Cutlery Co., 35 Conn. 36. See also Cain v. Pullen, 34 La. Ann. 511; Ervin v. Oregon R., etc., Co., 22 Hun (N. Y.) 566.

37. Birmingham, etc., Junction R. Co. v. White, 1 Q. B. 282, 5 Jur. 800, 10 L. J. Q. B. 121, 4 P. & D. 649, 2 R. & Can. Cas. 863, 41 E. C. L. 541; Imperial Gas. Co. v. Clarke, 7 conducted improperly and the officers unduly chosen, and alleging mismanagement in some particulars not affecting petitioners, nor then in dispute;[38] nor to furnish materials to the other side for a new trial;[39] nor to ascertain whether petitioner would better accept, with the other shareholders, what was offered her for her holding in an old company which was being wound up, rather than proceed with an arbitration;[40] nor to establish justification in an action against the petitioner for libel imputing insolvency to the company;[41] nor to examine all the books of the company for the preceding fifty years, because petitioner alleges that he is dissatisfied with the management of the company and with the accounts, and on other grounds;[42] nor where the petition does not specify the particular books asked for, and the object of the petitioner in making the application to the officers, and also to the court;[43] nor whether certain allegations in the applicant's affidavit are true; nor whether he has documents in his possession relating to the matters in issue."[44] To this may be added, nor where there is no allegation of mismanagement, but merely an allegation that the company has recently paid no dividends; that the shares have depreciated in market value; that the officers have not distributed to the shareholders reports as to the business condition of the corporation, and that the petitioners desire to inform themselves so as to confer with their fellow-shareholders;[45] or where the purpose of the inspection was to enable the petitioner to file a bill in equity to set aside a lease made by the corporation to another corporation, of all its property and franchises for a long term, and the petitioner desired to obtain a list of the shareholders, so that he might confer with his fellow-shareholders in order that they might join him in the litigation and share expenses with him, but the petition did not allege that any wrong or injury had been inflicted upon the petitioner or his fellow-shareholders through the making of the lease, the court taking the view that the purpose for which the relator desired the mandamus was not a reasonable and proper purpose,[46] and this, although the right of inspection was guaranteed by the constitution of the state; nor where the relator desired the inspection in order to ascertain the facts concerning a loan made by the corporation, to the end of laying them before the attorney-general, that he might use them in making the officers who incurred the loan account for any deficit arising from their misconduct.[47]

16. Directors Cannot Exclude One of Their Own Number From Access to Company's Books. It is well settled that the directors of a corporation have no

Bing. 95, 9 L. J. C. P. O. S. 28, 4 M. & P. 727, 20 E. C. L. 51. See Shoe, etc., Reporter Assoc. v. Bailey, 49 N. Y. Super. Ct. 385; Hoyt v. American Exch. Bank, 1 Duer (N. Y.) 652.

38. Rex v. Merchant Tailors' Co., 2 B. & Ad. 115, 9 L. J. K. B. O. S. 146, 22 E. C. L. 57.

39. Pratt v. Goswell, 9 C. B. N. S. 706, 3 L. T. Rep. N. S. 669, 99 E. C. L. 706.

40. In re Glamorganshire Banking Co., 28 Ch. D. 620, 54 L. J. Ch. 765, 51 L. T. Rep. N. S. 623, 33 Wkly. Rep. 209.

41. Metropolitan Saloon Omnibus Co. v. Hawkins, 4 H. & N. 146, 5 Jur. N. S. 201. See Opdyke v. Marble, 44 Barb. (N. Y.) 64; Collins v. Yates, 27 L. J. Exch. 150; Finlay v. Lindsay, 7 Ir. C. L. 1.

42. Rex v. Grand Canal Co., L. R. 1 Ir. 337.

43. Reg. v. London, etc., Docks Co., 44 L. J. Q. B. 4, 31 L. T. Rep. N. S. 588, 23 Wkly. Rep. 136. See Walker v. Granite Bank, 44 Barb. (N. Y.) 39; New England Iron Co. v. New York Loan, etc., Co., 55 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 351; Central Cross-town R. Co. v. Twenty-third St. R. Co., 53 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 45; Forsyth County v. Lemly, 85 N. C. 341; Hunt v. Hewitt, 7 Exch. 236, 16 Jur. 503, 21 L. J. Exch. 210; Pepper v. Chambers, 7 Exch. 226, 16 Jur. 19, 21 L. J. Exch. 81.

44. Rayner v. Alnusen, 15 Jur. 1060, 21 L. J. Q. B. 68, 2 L. M. & P. 605. In the following cases an inspection was also denied because the facts did not show that it was necessary for the particular occasion. Hatch v. New Orleans City Bank, 1 Rob. (La.) 470; State v. Einstein, 46 N. J. L. 479; People v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 11 Hun (N. Y.) 1 [affirmed in 70 N. Y. 220]; People v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 50 N. Y. Super. Ct. 456; Rex v. Merchant Tailors' Co., 2 B. & Ad. 115, 9 L. J. K. B. O. S. 146, 22 E. C. L. 57; Reg. v. Mariquita, etc., Min. Co., 1 E. & E. 289, 5 Jur. N. S. 725, 28 L. J. Q. B. 67, 7 Wkly. Rep. 98, 102 E. C. L. 289.

45. Lyon v. American Screw Co., 16 R. I. 472, 17 Atl. 61, untenable and unjust decision.

46. Com. v. Empire Pass. R. Co., 134 Pa. St. 237, 19 Atl. 629.

47. People v. Produce Exch. Trust Co., 53 N. Y. App. Div. 93, 65 N. Y. Suppl. 926.

power to exclude one of their own number from access to the books of the corporation.[48]

17. Inspection of Books of Foreign Corporation. The fact that a corporation is created under the laws of another state and that the right of its shareholders to inspect its books is defined by the laws of such state does not prevent a court of the state having jurisdiction of the person of the custos of the books from awarding a mandamus in a proper case to compel him to allow a shareholder to inspect them and to take copies from them.[49]

18. What Person Deemed Shareholder For Purpose of Claiming Right of Inspection. No person can claim the right to inspect the books of the corporation who is not a shareholder as between himself and the company, that is to say, who is not registered as a shareholder on the company's books.[50] Nor does such a right exist where a transaction has been had between the shareholder and another, which has the legal effect of a completed sale of his shares.[51]

19. Right of Inspection Where Corporation Has Passed Into Hands of Receiver. It has been held that an inspection of the books of a corporation in the custody of a receiver will be granted a shareholder who in good faith asks therefor to enable him to determine whether or not a proposed plan of reorganization is desirable, with proper regulations as to time and circumstances, so as not to interfere with the exercise of the receiver's duties or the inspection of other shareholders; and it is not a sufficient answer that the proposed plan meets with the approval of the majority of the shareholders, who have not received such information as is asked for, or that it is commended by the receiver and promises to afford means for an early liquidation of the debts of the company. But it was also held that a shareholder in an insolvent corporation will not be granted an inspection of its books in the hands of the receiver, for the purpose of determining as to the advisability of a proposed plan of reorganization, where he did not become a shareholder until after the appointment of the receiver.[52]

20. Remedies to Enforce Right of Inspection — a. Action at Law For Damages Against Corporation. The correct theory under this head seems to be that the wrong of refusing a shareholder the right to inspect the books and records of the corporation is not a wrong of the corporation itself, but of the officers having the custody of the books and refusing the right. It would seem to follow that an action at law against the corporation will not lie for the refusal of this right by a ministerial officer of the corporation, for example by its secretary.[53] But the rule might be otherwise where the right is denied by those officers who constitute the governing body of the corporation,[54] although the distinction between a denial of the right by a ministerial officer acting under the governing body and denial of it by the governing body itself seems to be shadowy.

b. Mandamus the Usual and Proper Civil Remedy. If this right is denied the shareholder, mandamus is the proper remedy to compel the officers of the Nor for the purposes stated in Philadelphia Invest. Co. v. Eldridge, 2 Pa. Dist. 394.

48. Lindley Comp. L. (5th ed.) 411 [citing Turquand v. Marshall, L. R. 6 Eq. 112, 37 L. J. Ch. 582, 18 L. T. Rep. N. S. 385, 16 Wkly. Rep. 719 [reversed in L. R. 4 Ch. 376, 38 L. J. Ch. 639, 20 L. T. Rep. N. S. 765, 17 Wkly. Rep. 965]; Stuart v. Bute, 12 Sim. 460, 35 Eng. Ch. 388; Taylor v. Rundell, 1 Y. & Coll. Ch. 128, 20 Eng. Ch. 128 [affirmed in 7 Jur. 1073, 13 L. J. Ch. 20, 1 Phil. 222, 19 Eng. Ch. 222].

49. Swift v. Richardson, 7 Houst. (Del.) 338, 32 Atl. 143, 40 Am. St. Rep. 127, 6 Atl. 856. And see under a statute Mitchell v. Rubber Reclaiming Co., (N. J. Ch. 1897) 24 Atl. 407; Huylar v. Cragin Cattle Co., 40 N. J. Eq. 392, 2 Atl. 274, 42 N. J. Eq. 139, 7 Atl. 521.

50. Matter of Reiss, 30 Misc. (N. Y.) 234, 62 N. Y. Suppl. 145.

51. State v. Whited, 104 La. Ann. 125, 28 So. 922.

52. Chable v. Nicaragua Canal Constr. Co., 59 Fed. 846.

53. Legendre v. New Orleans Brewing Assoc., 45 La. Ann. 669, 12 So. 837, 40 Am. St. Rep. 243.

54. Bourdette v. Sieward, 52 La. Ann. 1333, 27 So. 724, right refused by the president. See also Lewis v. Brainerd, 53 Vt. 510, right refused by the clerk or recording officer.

corporation to grant it.[55] The fact that there is an adequate remedy at law by a mandamus has been held to exclude the jurisdiction of equity to grant such relief.[56]

c. Whether There Is Also Remedy in Equity. Under American theories it seems that a court of equity will not grant a mandatory injunction to the officers of a corporation compelling them to allow such an inspection, because the usual remedy by mandamus in a court of law is equally effective.[57] But in England the conclusion is precisely the reverse, because in that country the prerogative writ of mandamus does not extend to the vindication of rights unless they be of a public nature. There the denial of a right of this character is regarded as presenting simply the case of a statutory right connected with the ownership of private property and of a wrongful interference with that right, and therefore an injunction is allowed to restrain such interference.[58] Statutes also exist in America under which the remedy is by injunction.[59]

d. Who Proper Party Defendant in Proceeding by Mandamus. The writ is properly directed to the person having the possession, custody, and control of the books, the inspection of which is desired by the relator, and is not directed to the corporation.[60] It has been held that whether the corporation itself should be made a party is not a question which can be raised on a motion to quash the writ, but the parties in that behalf should be made to appear in the return.[61] But under the English chancery practice, where an injunction is issued restraining the corporation from denying the right of the shareholder to inspect the books, the corporation itself is the defendant in the action.[62] In one case, where the injunction was granted, the defendants were the directors in the corporation.[63]

21. Appeals and Writs of Error From Orders of Inspection. A peremptory mandamus to allow a shareholder to inspect the books of the corporation is a final judgment which is subject to review on writ of error or on a statutory appeal in

55. Alabama.— Foster v. White, 86 Ala. 467, 6 So. 88.

Louisiana.— Cockburn v. Union Bank, 13 La. Ann. 289.

Missouri.— State v. Sportsman's Park, etc., Assoc., 29 Mo. App. 326; State v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 29 Mo. App. 301.

New York.— People v. Pacific Mail Steamship Co., 50 Barb. 280.

Pennsylvania.— Phœnix Iron Co. v. Com., 113 Pa. St. 563, 6 Atl. 75.

56. Stettauer v. New York, etc., Constr. Co., 42 N. J. Eq. 46, 6 Atl. 303. Earlier English decisions proceed upon the view that a mandamus will not be awarded except in cases of a public nature, and will hence not be awarded to adjust rights in a trading corporation. Rex v. London Assur. Co., 5 B. & Ald. 899, 1 D. & R. 510, 7 E. C. L. 489; Rex v. Bank of England, 2 B. & Ald. 620. But the rule of these decisions has been superseded at least in the United States.

57. Stettauer v. New York, etc., Constr. Co., 42 N. J. Eq. 46, 6 Atl. 303.

58. Mutter v. Eastern, etc., R. Co., 38 Ch. D. 92, 57 L. J. Ch. 615, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 117, 36 Wkly. Rep. 401; Holland v. Dickson, 37 Ch. D. 669, 57 L. J. Ch. 502, 58 L. T. Rep. N. S. 845, 36 Wkly. Rep. 320.

59. Cincinnati Volksblatt Co. v. Hoffmeister, 62 Ohio St. 189, 56 N. E. 1033, 78 Am. St. Rep. 707, 48 L. R. A. 732. See also Fraternal Mystic Circle v. State, 61 Ohio St. 628, 48 N. E. 940, 76 Am. St. Rep. 446; State v. Carpenter, 51 Ohio St. 83, 37 N. E. 261, 46 Am. St. Rep. 556; Freom v. Carriage Co., 42 Ohio St. 30, 51 Am. Rep. 794.

60. Delaware.— Swift v. Richardson, 7 Houst. 338, 32 Atl. 143, 40 Am. St. Rep. 127, 6 Atl. 856.

Georgia.— Bailey v. Strohecker, 38 Ga. 259, 95 Am. Dec. 88.

Massachusetts.—St. Luke's Church v. Slack, 7 Cush. 226.

New York.— People v. Throop, 12 Wend. 183.

Wisconsin.— State v. Bergenthal, 72 Wis. 314, 39 N. W. 566.

England.— Reg. v. Kendall, 1 Q. B. 366, 10 L. J. Q. B. 137, 41 E. C. L. 580.

61. State v. Bergenthal, 72 Wis. 314, 39 N. W. 566.

62. Mutter v. Eastern, etc., R. Co., 38 Ch. D. 92, 57 L. J. Ch. 615, 59 L. T. Rep. N. S. 117, 36 Wkly. Rep. 401.

63. Holland v. Dickson, 37 Ch. D. 669, 57 L. J. Ch. 502, 58 L. T. Rep. N. S. 845, 36 Wkly. Rep. 320.

Other points of practice in this proceeding. — Effect of a motion to quash. State v. Bergenthal, 72 Wis. 314, 39 N. W. 566. When denial of affidavit in support of petition deemed to be evasive. Matter of Martin, 62 Hun (N. Y.) 557, 17 N. Y. Suppl. 133, 42 N. Y. St. 409 [affirming 12 N. Y. Suppl. 844, 25 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 350]. When the court has power to direct a reference. People v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 44 Hun (N. Y.) 552, 7 N. Y. St. 415, 19 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 1. A former proceeding against the nature of a writ of error,[64] and this, although such an appeal or writ of error may work a supersedeas and render the order absolutely worthless to the petitioner.

B. Remedies of Shareholders in Equity — 1. Shareholders Cannot Sue to Redress Injuries Done to Corporation — a. In General. Neither a single shareholder nor any number of shareholders, even the whole number, have the right to sue in their own names or in the corporate name, either at law or in equity, to recover damages to the corporate property, or to redress or to prevent injuries to the corporation except under conditions hereafter stated;[65] or to defend in their own names actions brought against the corporation; but such right of action or defense rests ordinarily in the corporation itself, to be exercised through its board of directors, or through its other officers who are its agents to that end, and not through its shareholders, who are not in any sense its agents or part owners of its property, but who ordinarily stand as strangers to it.[66] The shareholders cannot as individuals recover on a cause of action vested in the corporation, although all unite in the action.[67] A single shareholder cannot recover in his own behalf his proportionate share of misappropriated funds of a corporation, although the corporation has for years done no business and has no property except the claim for such funds; but recovery must be had in behalf of the corporation.[68] If an individual shareholder has money in his hands accruing from the sale of corporate property, another shareholder cannot recover his proportion of it in an action for money had and received;[69] nor does the fact that the same persons constitute the majority shareholders in each of two companies enlarge the jurisdiction of equity to interfere with the management of one of those corporations in its relation with the other, at the suit of a minority shareholder.[70]

b. This Rule Applicable in Equity as Well as at Law. Subject to exceptions hereafter stated this rule is applicable in equity as well as at law; so that shareholders cannot ordinarily sue in equity to redress wrongs done to the corporation.[71]

the same corporate officers is no bar to the proceeding. State v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 29 Mo. App. 301.

64. People v. Kent County, 38 Mich. 351; Thompson v. Erie R. Co., 9 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 212; Forsyth County v. Lemly, 85 N. C. 341; Lancashire Cottonspinning Co. v. Greatorex, 14 L. T. Rep. N. S. 290. See McCargo v. Crutcher, 27 Ala. 171; Sage v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 70 N. Y. 220; Clyde v. Rogers, 24 Hun (N. Y.) 145; Bustros v. White, 1 Q. B. D. 423, 45 L. J. Q. B. 642, 34 L. T. Rep. N. S. 835, 24 Wkly. Rep. 721; Saxby v. Easterbrook, L. R. 7 Exch. 207, 41 L. J. Exch. 113, 26 L. T. Rep. N. S. 439, 20 Wkly. Rep. 751.

As to the costs of an inspection see Gardner v. Daingerfield, 5 Beav. 389; Davey v. Pemberton, 11 C. B. N. S. 628, 8 Jur. N. S. 891, 103 E. C. L. 628; Hill v. Philp, 7 Exch, 232, 16 Jur. 90, 21 L. J. Exch. 82.

65. Connecticut.—Allen v. Curtis, 26 Conn. 456.

Kentucky.— Jones v. Johnson, 10 Bush 649.

Massachusetts.— Smith v. Hurd, 12 Metc. 371, 46 Am. Dec. 690.

New York.— Gardiner v. Pollard, 10 Bosw. 674; Bishop v. Houghton, 1 E. D. Smith 566.

Texas.— Evans v. Brandon, 53 Tex. 56.

66. Smith v. Parker, 148 Ind. 127, 45 N. E. 770 (no right of action for a breach of contract with the corporation); Byers v. Franklin Coal Co., 14 Allen (Mass.) 470; South-West Natural Gas Co. v. Fayette Fuel-Gas Co., 145 Pa. St. 13, 23 Atl. 224, 29 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 247. See also Arkansas River Land, etc., Co. v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 13 Colo. 587, 22 Pac. 954.

67. Cutshaw v. Fargo, 8 Ind. App. 691, 34 N. E. 376, 36 N. E. 650; Hamilton v. James A. Cushman Mfg. Co., 15 Tex. Civ. App. 338, 39 S. W. 641 (cannot in their individual capacity maintain an action on a contract with the corporation, although all or nearly all of the shareholders are represented).

68. Thompson v. Stanley, 20 N. Y. Suppl. 317.

69. Hodsdon v. Copeland, 16 Me. 314.

For other decisions more or less supporting the text see McNab v. McNab, etc., Mfg. Co., 62 Hun (N. Y.) 18, 16 N. Y. Suppl. 448, 41 N. Y. St. 906; Boyd v. American Carbon Black Co., 182 Pa. St. 206, 37 Atl. 937, 40 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 459.

A shareholder cannot, in the absence of any fraud or collusion in the making of the contract, avoid an executory contract of the corporation, voidable at the instance of the corporation itself, because made between two corporations having a common director. Burden v. Burden, 8 N. Y. App. Div. 160, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 499.

70. Shaw v. Davis, 78 Md. 308, 28 Atl. 619, 23 L. R. A. 294.

71. Alabama.— Tuscaloosa Mfg. Co. v. Cox, 68 Ala. 71.

The ordinary remedy for injuries to the corporation is to be sought primarily through corporate action. If the directors in office will not act in an emergency requiring immediate action, the remedy is for the shareholders to elect a board of directors who will take the proper action.[72] Before the shareholders can be heard in a court of equity in behalf of the corporation, the remedial agencies afforded by charter or other laws of the corporation must be exhausted, and this must be made to appear.[73]

2. SHAREHOLDERS ORDINARILY CANNOT DEFEND FOR CORPORATION IN EQUITY. The rule is equally applicable to cases where the shareholders seek to defend for the company in equity. Subject to exceptions hereafter stated, they cannot appear or answer for the company, since the company would not be bound by their admissions or by their stipulations;[74] but the rule hereafter considered, which opens the doors of courts of equity to shareholders seeking to become complainants in right of the corporation, will equally admit them to become defendants, and where legal and equitable remedies are blended under the modern codes they may, under the proper conditions, appear and defend both at law and in equity.[75]

3. CANNOT MAINTAIN ACTION AT LAW AGAINST DIRECTORS FOR OFFICIAL MISDEMEANORS. In the absence of statute a shareholder cannot for instance maintain an action at law against the directors for any loss sustained by him through the waste of the assets of the corporation, the deprivation of dividends, or the diminution of the value of his shares, in consequence of the mistake, negligence, fraud, or other nonfeasance or malfeasance of the directors in the discharge of the duties of their offices.[76]

Colorado.— Miller v. Murray, 17 Colo. 408, 30 Pac. 461.

Georgia.— Colquitt v. Howard, 11 Ga. 556.

Maine.— Kennebec, etc., R. Co. v. Portland, etc., R. Co., 54 Me. 173.

Massachusetts.— Abbott v. Merriam, 8 Cush. 588 (not if all the shareholders were to unite); Pratt v. Bacon, 10 Pick. 123.

Missouri.— Slattery v. St. Louis, etc., Transp. Co., 91 Mo. 217, 4 S. W. 79, 60 Am. Rep. 245.

New Jersey.— Brown v. Vandyke, 8 N. J. Eq. 795, 55 Am. Dec. 250.

New York.— Robinson v. Smith, 3 Paige 222, 24 Am. Dec. 212; Forbes v. Whitlock, 3 Edw. 446.

Rhode Island.— Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312, 53 Am. Dec. 624.

72. Franklin F. Ins. Co. v. Jenkins, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 130; Charitable Corporation v. Sutton, 2 Atk. 400.

73. Tuscaloosa Mfg. Co. v. Cox, 68 Ala. 71; Henry v. Elder, 63 Ga. 347; Pittsburgh Fifth Nat. Bank v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 1 Fed. 190; Hare v. London, etc., R. Co., 2 Johns. & H. 80, 7 Jur. N. S. 1145, 30 L. J. Ch. 817.

74. Bronson v. La Crosse, etc., R. Co., 2 Wall. (U. S.) 283, 17 L. ed. 725.

75. Morrill v. Little Falls Mfg. Co., 46 Minn. 260, 48 N. W. 1124.

76. Connecticut.— Allen v. Curtis, 26 Conn. 456.

Iowa.— Oliphant v. Woodburn Coal, etc., Co., 63 Iowa 332, 19 N. W. 212.

Kentucky.— Jones v. Johnson, 10 Bush 649.

Louisiana.— Wood's Succession, 30 La. Ann. 1002.

Maine.— Smith v. Poor, 40 Me. 415, 63 Am. Dec. 672.

Massachusetts.— Smith v. Hurd, 12 Metc. 371, 46 Am. Dec. 690.

Minnesota.— Hodgson v. Duluth, etc., R. Co., 46 Minn. 454, 49 N. W. 197; Mealey v. Nickerson, 44 Minn. 430, 46 N. W. 911.

New Jersey.—Conway v. Halsey, 44 N. J. L. 462.

New York.— Gardiner v. Pollard, 10 Bosw. 674.

Pennsylvania.— South-West Natural Gas Co. v. Fayette Fuel-Gas Co., 145 Pa. St. 13, 23 Atl. 224, 29 Wkly. Notes Cas. 247; Craig v. Gregg, 83 Pa. St. 19.

Texas.— Evans v. Brandon, 53 Tex. 56.

For illustrations of the doctrine see the following cases:

Alabama.— Decatur Mineral Land Co. v. Palm, 113 Ala. 531, 21 So. 315, 59 Am. St. Rep. 140.

Louisiana.— Faurie v. Millaudon, 3 Mart. N. S. 476, creditor no action against corporate officers for breach of duty to corporation.

Massachusetts.— French v. Fuller, 23 Pick. 108, no remedy against treasurer for refusing dividend.

New York.— Gardiner v. Pollard, 10 Bosw. 674 (no right of action against directors to recover in severalty his proportion of a general loss sustained by the corporation); Denny v. Manhattan Co., 2 Den. 115.

Wyoming.— Wilson v. Rogers, 1 Wyo. 51.

Exceptions have occasionally been admitted, as in the case of a wrong done by the directors to a shareholder individually, as by transferring to themselves shares belonging to him (Kimmel v. Stoner, 18 Pa. St. 155. See also Crook v. Jewett, 12 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 19); or where the directors through fraud and deceit induced a person to purchase

4. No Right of Action For Frauds of Directors or Corporate Agents. Neither can a shareholder maintain in his own name an action against the directors of the company for fraud and deceit practised by them in its promotion,[77] or against its agents for frauds practised upon it in buying property at one price and transferring it to the company at a greater price.[78]

5. Rule Not Varied by Expiration of Charter and Commencement of Liquidation. The rule is not varied by the circumstance that the charter of the corporation has expired, or that it has gone into liquidation; for in such a case the right of action, which was in the corporation itself while it was a going concern, passes to its receiver or other representative.[79] If the assets of the corporation are in the hands of an assignee for creditors and if its managing officer has been guilty of unauthorized acts for which he ought to be held responsible, and if a shareholder requests the assignee to institute an action against him to compel him to account for such acts, under the ninety-fourth equity rule of the federal courts, then on the refusal of the assignee to institute such suit the shareholder may institute and maintain it.[80] But the remedy of the shareholder for a misappropriation of corporate funds by the directors is by petition to the receiver or to the court for the institution of the proper action.[81] It is not enough that the shareholder petitions the receivers to bring the appropriate action, but if they refuse his petition he must carry the matter to the court itself to which the receivers are responsible, and until he does this he will not be allowed to prosecute in another court the cause of action which the receivers should have prosecuted.[82]

6. Distinction Between Actions by Shareholders to Redress Wrongs Done to Corporation and Actions to Redress Wrongs Done to Shareholders Themselves. The distinction between the right of a shareholder to sue or defend for the corporation and his right to sue for the redress of injuries which are personal to himself, whether committed by the corporation or through the malfeasance of its agents, is total and clear. The rule which restrains a shareholder from suing to redress injuries to the corporation does not operate to impose any restraint upon him from suing to redress injuries which are personal to himself[83] or to restrain wrongful acts which are not only wrongs against the corporation but also violations of duties arising from contracts or otherwise and owing directly to the injured shareholders.[84]

7. Shareholder May Sue in Equity Where Corporation Will Not. If the directors are guilty of a breach of trust, injurious to the corporate property or to shares in the company (Salmon v. Richardson, 30 Conn. 360, 79 Am. Dec. 255). Exceptions also exist under statutes too numerous to be enumerated. Buell v. Warner, 33 Vt. 570.

77. McAleer v. McMurray, 6 Phila. (Pa.) 244, 24 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 260. See also Colton Imp. Co. v. Richter, 26 Misc. (N. Y.) 26, 55 N. Y. Suppl. 486.

78. McAleer v. McMurray, 6 Phila. (Pa.) 244, 24 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 260.

79. Howe v. Barney, 45 Fed. 668.

80. Streight v. Junk, 59 Fed. 321, 8 C. C. A. 137. It has been held that if the assets of the corporation are in the hands of a receiver, the shareholders have ordinarily no standing in court to ask for the removal of this officer when it appears that the corporation has a regularly elected board of directors, a majority of whom are in active sympathy with the shareholders. Pittsburgh Fifth Nat. Bank v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 1 Fed. 190. But the decision is obviously unsound, since the right of action cannot reside in any other official or official body than the receiver.

81. Cunningham v. Wechselberg, 105 Wis. 359, 81 N. W. 414.

82. Swope v. Villard, 61 Fed. 417. To the same general effect see Egbert v. Third Ward Bldg. Assoc. Co., 9 Ohio S. & C. Pl. Dec. 646; Miesse v. Loren, 5 Ohio N. P. 307.

83. Salmon v. Richardson, 30 Conn. 360, 79 Am. Dec. 255; Kimmel v. Stoner, 18 Pa. St. 155. See also Crook v. Jewett, 12 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 19; Wilson v. Cheyenne First Nat. Bank, 1 Wyo. 108.

84. Ritchie v. McMullen, 79 Fed. 522, 25 C. C. A. 50.

When a bill by a majority shareholder will not be dismissed as multifarious because it includes a cause of action in favor of the corporation and also one in favor of himself individually. De Neufville v. New York, etc., R. Co., 81 Fed. 10, 26 C. C. A. 306. That it is no objection to a bill by a shareholder to enforce corporate rights that he is interested in the cause of action aside from the status of shareholder see Henry v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 5 Ohio S. & C. Pl. Dec. 41.

the rights of the shareholders, or a portion of them, and if the corporation refuses to institute the proper proceedings to restrain or redress such injury, one or more of the shareholders may do it in their individual names.[85] This rule is founded in part upon the consideration that the directors are trustees for the shareholders, and that in any action to redress breaches of trust on the part of the directors as toward the shareholders the shareholders are the real parties in interest.[86]

85. This doctrine was either acted upon or conceded in each of the following cases:

Alabama.— Smith v. Prattville Mfg. Co., 29 Ala. 503; St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566.

California.— Wickersham v. Crittenden, 93 Cal. 17, 28 Pac. 788; Farmers', etc., Bank v. Downey, 53 Cal. 466, 31 Am. Rep. 62; Wright v. Oroville Gold, etc., Min. Co., 40 Cal. 20.

Colorado.— Miller v. Murray, 17 Colo. 408, 30 Pac. 46; Byers v. Rollins, 13 Colo. 22, 21 Pac. 894.

Connecticut.—Allen v. Curtis, 26 Conn. 456.

Georgia.— Atlanta Real Estate Co. v. Atlanta Nat. Bank, 75 Ga. 40; Robinson v. Lane, 19 Ga. 337; Colquitt v. Howard, 11 Ga. 556.

Illinois.— Chetlain v. Republic L. Ins. Co., 86 Ill. 220.

Indiana.— Hill v. Nisbet, 100 Ind. 341.

Kansas.—Ryan v. Leavenworth, etc., R. Co., 21 Kan. 365.

Louisiana.— Percy v. Millaudon, 8 Mart. N. S. 68.

Maine.— Kennebec, etc., R. Co. v. Portland, etc., R. Co., 54 Me. 173; Smith v. Poor, 40 Me. 415, 63 Am. Dec. 672; Hersey v. Veazie, 24 Me. 9, 41 Am. Dec. 364.

Maryland.— Mottu v. Primrose, 23 Md. 482.

Massachusetts.— Brewer v. Boston Theater, 104 Mass. 378; Peabody v. Flint, 6 Allen 52.

Minnesota.— Morrill v. Little Falls Mfg. Co., 46 Minn. 260, 48 N. W. 1124; Rothwell v. Robinson, 39 Minn. 1, 38 N. W. 772, 12 Am. St. Rep. 608.

Mississippi.— Bayless v. Orne, Freem. 161.

Missouri.— Slattery v. St. Louis, etc., Transp. Co., 91 Mo. 217, 4 S. W. 79, 60 Am. Rep. 245.

Nebraska.— State v. Holmes, 60 Nebr. 39, 82 N. W. 109.

New Jersey.— Knoop v. Bohmrich, 49 N. J. Eq. 82, 23 Atl. 118; Brown v. Vandyke, 8 N. J. Eq. 795, 55 Am. Dec. 250.

New York.— Flynn v. Brooklyn City R. Co., 158 N. Y. 493, 53 N. E. 520 [affirming 9 N. Y. App. Div. 269, 41 N. Y. Suppl. 566, 75 N. Y. St. 955]; Sage v. Culver, 147 N. Y. 241, 41 N. E. 513, 69 N. Y. St. 524; Gamble v. Queens County Water Co., 123 N. Y. 91, 25 N. E. 201, 33 N. Y. St. 88, 25 Abb. N. Cas. 410, 9 L. R. A. 527 [reversing 52 Hun 166, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 124, 23 N. Y. St. 409]; Barr v. New York, etc., R. Co., 96 N. Y. 444; Greaves v. Gouge, 69 N. Y. 154; Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317; Young v. Drake, 8 Hun 61; Gray v. New York, etc., Steamship Co., 3 Hun 383; Ives v. Smith, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 645, 19 N. Y. St. 556; Brewster v. Hatch, 10 Abb. N. Cas. 400; Winter v. Baker, 34 How. Pr. 183; Patteson v. Baker, 34 How. Pr. 180; Austin v. Daniels, 4 Den. 299; Robinson v. Smith, 3 Paige 222, 24 Am. Dec. 212; Forbes v. Whitlock, 3 Edw. 446.

North Carolina.— Havens v. Hoyt, 59 N. C. 115.

Ohio.— Taylor v. Miami Exporting Co., 5 Ohio 162, 22 Am. Dec. 785.

Pennsylvania.— South-West Natural Gas Co. v. Fayette Fuel-Gas Co., 145 Pa. St. 13, 23 Atl. 224, 29 Wkly. Notes Cas. 247; Watts' Appeal, 78 Pa. St. 370; Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 11, 10 Am. Rep. 684; Gravenstine's Appeal, 49 Pa. St. 310.

Rhode Island.— Hazard v. Durant, 11 R. I. 195; Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312, 53 Am. Dec. 624, 3 R. I. 9.

South Dakota.— Loftus v. Farmers' Shipping Assoc., 8 S. D. 201, 65 N. W. 1076.

Tennessee.— Wallace v. Lincoln Sav. Bank, 89 Tenn. 630, 15 S. W. 448, 24 Am. St. Rep. 625; Deaderick v. Wilson, 8 Baxt. 108.

Texas.— Mussina v. Goldthwaite, 34 Tex. 125, 7 Am. Rep. 281.

United States.— Detroit v. Dean, 106 U. S. 537, 1 S. Ct. 560, 27 L. ed. 300; Hawes v. Contra Costa Water Co., 104 U. S. 450, 26 L. ed. 827; Dodge v. Woolsey, 18 How. 331, 15 L. ed. 401; Foster v. Mansfield, etc., R. Co., 36 Fed. 627; Forbes v. Memphis, etc., R. Co., 9 Fed. Cas. No. 4,926, 2 Woods 323; Heath v. Erie R. Co., 11 Fed. Cas. No. 6,306, 8 Blatchf. 347; Pond v. Vermont Valley R. Co., 19 Fed. Cas. No. 11,265, 12 Blatchf. 280; Smith v. Poor, 22 Fed. Cas. No. 13,093, 3 Ware 148.

England.— Menier v. Hooper's Tel. Works, L. R. 9 Ch. 350, 43 L. J. Ch. 330, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 209, 22 Wkly. Rep. 396; In re Gibraltar, etc., Bank, L. R. 1 Ch. 69, 11 Jur. N. S. 916, 35 L. J. Ch. 49, 13 L. T. Rep. N. S. 386, 14 Wkly. Rep. 69; Gregory v. Patchett, 33 Beav. 595; Salomons v. Laing, 12 Beav. 339, 14 Jur. 471, 19 L. J. Ch. 225, 6 R. & Can. Cas. 289.

86. Racine, etc., R. Co. v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 49 Ill. 331, 95 Am. Dec. 595; Covington, etc., R. Co. v. Bowler, 9 Bush (Ky.) 468; Richards v. New Hampshire Ins. Co., 43 N. H. 263; Butts v. Wood, 37 N. Y. 317, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 181.

The English practice as to shareholders filing such bills in the name of the company where objection is made to their authority may be gathered from Atwood v. Merryweather, L. R. 5 Eq. 464 note, 37 L. J. Ch. 35; Macdougall v. Gardiner, 1 Ch. D. 13, 45 L. J. Ch. 27.

That foreign shareholders may file such bills in United States courts where the amount in controversy is sufficient to give jurisdiction see Bacon v. Robertson, 18 How.

8. When Shareholder's Right of Action Arises — a. In General. In order that this jurisdiction may be invoked in cases not governed by statute three things must ordinarily concur: (1) The matter complained of must be a breach of duty on the part of the directors;[87] (2) the corporation must fail or refuse to demand redress;[88] and (3) there must be an injury to the shareholder.[89]

b. Instances Showing When This Right Arises. This right of action arises where the majority of the shareholders, in control of the corporation, are pursuing a course of action which is plainly oppressive to the minority and in fraud of their rights;[90] where the directors and officers are acting, not in faithful discharge of their trust, but are perverting their official powers to their own personal gain and benefit, and in fraud of the rights of the shareholders;[91] where the managers and a majority of the shareholders are diverting the assets of the corporation from their legitimate purposes to their own use and benefit;[92] where the assets of the corporation have been fraudulently diverted into the hands of individual shareholders;[93] to cancel shares which have been issued by the corporation in violation of law, as being a cloud upon the rights of the lawful shareholders;[94] in case of a corporation reorganized to take over a branch of the business of each of several dealers, to enjoin one of such dealers from a breach of a covenant not to engage in competition with the company, where such shareholders are parties to the agreement, although the new company has been organized;[95] under a statute, to compel an accounting for official misconduct and for property of the corporation which the officers have wrongfully acquired or transferred to others;[96] to enjoin a transaction of the directors which, although lawful in itself and intra vires, is concocted by them and the other party in pursuance of a selfish scheme to perpetuate themselves in office, the same being conspicuously unwise and injurious to the corporation and its shareholders;[97] to recover damages from the directors of (U. S.) 480, 15 L. ed. 499; Dodge v. Woolsey, 18 How. (U. S.) 331, 15 L. ed. 401.

87. Dodge v. Woolsey, 18 How. (U. S.) 331, 15 L. ed. 401.

88. Kennebec, etc., R. Co. v. Portland, etc., R. Co., 54 Me. 173; Smith v. Poor, 40 Me. 415, 63 Am. Dec. 672; Hersey v. Veazie, 24 Me. 9, 41 Am. Dec. 364; Greaves v. Gouge, 69 N. Y. 154; Robinson v. Smith, 3 Paige (N. Y.) 222, 24 Am. Dec. 212; Dodge v. Woolsey, 18 How. (U. S.) 331, 15 L. ed. 401.

89. Hill v. Nisbet, 100 Ind. 341; Havens v. Hoyt, 59 N. C. 115; Hedges v. Paquett, 3 Oreg. 77; Dodge v. Woolsey, 18 How. (U. S.) 331, 15 L. ed. 401.

That this doctrine is not applicable to charitable corporations see Tyree v. Bingham, 100 Mo. 451, 13 S. W. 952.

As to a bill in equity by vendee of lands held in common by corporators to compel delivery of corporate certificate see Hopkins v. Smith, 111 Mass. 176.

90. Montana.— Forrester v. Butte, etc., Consol. Copper, etc., Min. Co., 21 Mont. 544, 55 Pac. 299 [rehearing denied in 21 Mont. 565, 55 Pac. 353], to restrain the transfer of all the corporate assets.

New York.— Gamble v. Queens County Water Co., 123 N. Y. 91, 25 N. E. 201, 33 N. Y. St. 88, 25 Abb. N. Cas. 410, 9 L. R. A. 527 [reversing 52 Hun 166, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 124, 23 N. Y. St. 409]; Barr v. New York, etc., R. Co., 96 N. Y. 444; Sage v. Culver, 71 Hun 42, 24 N. Y. Suppl. 514, 54 N. Y. St. 297 [affirmed in 147 N. Y. 241, 41 N. E. 513, 69 N. Y. St. 524].

Pennsylvania.— Weckerly v. Fell, 8 Pa. Dist. 89, 22 Pa. Co. Ct. 209.

United States.— Rogers v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 91 Fed. 299, 33 C. C. A. 517.

Canada.— Earle v. Burland, 27 Ont. App. 540, to restrain the majority from accumulating from the profits a reserve fund far in excess of all the liabilities of the business of the concern.

91. Fox v. Hale, etc., Silver Min. Co., 108 Cal. 475, 41 Pac. 328 (shareholders' action against the executors of one who has misappropriated funds of corporation maintainable under California statute); Marcuse v. Gullett Gin Mfg. Co., 52 La. Ann. 1383, 27 So. 846 (illegally diverted all corporate funds to themselves as salaries); Watkins v. Watkins, etc., Lumber Co., 11 N. Y. App. Div. 517, 43 N. Y. Suppl. 41 (to account for misappropriated corporate funds and to enjoin a threatened sale of the entire assets); Gray v. New York, etc., Steamship Co., 3 Hun (N. Y.) 383.

92. Rothwell v. Robinson, 39 Minn. 1, 38 N. W. 772, 12 Am. St. Rep. 608. See also People's Sav. Bank v. Colorado Min. Exch. Bldg. Co., 8 Colo. App. 354, 46 Pac. 620.

93. Taylor v. Miami Exporting Co., 5 Ohio 162, 22 Am. Dec. 785.

94. Stebbins v. Perry County, 167 Ill. 567, 47 N. E. 1048 [reversing 66 Ill. App. 427].

95. McCausland v. Hill, 23 Ont. App. 738.

96. Hayt v. Malone, 9 N. Y. Suppl. 877, 31 N. Y. St. 739.

97. Wildes v. Rural Homestead Co., 53 N. J. Eq. 452, 32 Atl. 676.

the corporation caused by their mismanagement of its affairs, where the corporation is managed and controlled by them;[98] where the directors have suffered the corporate property to be sold under a mortgage for a comparatively small sum in order to bankrupt the corporation and destroy the value of its shares, and are transferring its property to a third person without compensation, and are mortgaging other property belonging to it without the consent of the shareholders, the shareholders' suit taking the form of a single action against the directors and all the other parties to such transactions;[99] where the board of directors of a railroad company have refused to take steps to prevent another company from taking its located route in violation of its rights, and through collusion with the other company;[1] where a particular number of the shareholders, intrenched in power by reason of being able to command a majority of the votes, are committing frauds to the injury of the minority;[2] and in many other cases.[3]

9. To Enjoin Performance of Ultra Vires Acts. This jurisdiction has often been exerted to enjoin the performance of ultra vires acts injurious to the complaining shareholders or to the body of shareholders generally, or to the corporation considered as an ideal body;[4] but not where the acts are injurious to no one, or are ultra vires in the sense of not having been taken in formal compliance with the law.[5] The fact that the unlawful scheme in which the funds of the company are embarked is profitable does not affect the right of a shareholder to contest it.[6]

10. To Prevent Corporation From Being Wrecked and Absorbed by Another Corporation. Minority shareholders have a standing in a court of equity to pre-

98. Kelley v. Collier, 11 Tex. Civ. App. 353, 32 S. W. 428.

99. Gray v. Fuller, 17 N. Y. App. Div. 29, 44 N. Y. Suppl. 883.

1. Weidenfeld v. Sugar Run R. Co., 48 Fed. 615.

2. Mason v. Harris, 11 Ch. D. 97, 48 L. J. Ch. 589, 40 L. T. Rep. N. S. 644, 27 Wkly. Rep. 699.

3. Other instances where such relief has been granted may be found in the following cases:

Alabama.— Birmingham Min., etc., Co. v. Mutual L. & T. Co., 96 Ala. 364, 11 So. 368; St. Marys' Bank v. St. John, 25 Ala. 566.

California.— Wickersham v. Crittenden, 93 Cal. 17, 28 Pac. 788; Woodroof v. Howes, 88 Cal. 184, 26 Pac. 111; Smith v. Fagan, 17 Cal. 178.

Connecticut.— In re Shepaug Voting Trust Cases, 60 Conn. 553, 24 Atl. 32.

Illinois.—Farwell v. Great Western Tel. Co,. 161 Ill. 620 [affirmed on rehearing in 161 Ill. 522, 44 N. E. 891]; Chicago Hansom Cab Co. v. Yerkes, 141 Ill. 320, 30 N. E. 667, 33 Am. St. Rep. 315.

Indiana.— Rogers v. Lafayette Agricultural Works, 52 Ind. 296.

Kansas.— Ryan v. Leavenworth, etc., R. Co., 21 Kan. 365.

Missouri.— Hannerty v. Standard Theatre Co., 109 Mo. 297, 19 S. W. 82.

New York.— Zeigler v. Hoagland, 52 Hun 385, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 305, 24 N. Y. St. 453 (enjoining the spoliation of the corporation by excessive increase of salaries); Dyckman v. Valiente, 43 Barb. 131; Aver v. Seymour, 15 Daly 249, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 650; Ives v. Smith, 3 N. Y. Suppl. 645, 19 N. Y. St. 556 (enjoining the construction of branch line and bridges); Meyer v. Staten Island R. Co., 7 N. Y. St. 245.

Ohio.— Robison v. Cleveland City R. Co., 7 Ohio S. & C. Pl. Dec. 312.

Pennsylvania.— Malone v. Lancaster Gaslight, etc., Co., 14 Lanc. L. Rev. 225.

Texas.— People's Invest. Co. v. Crawford, (Civ. App. 1898) 45 S. W. 738.

United States.— De Neufville v. New York, etc., R. Co., 81 Fed. 10, 26 C. C. A. 306.

England.— Menier v. Hooper's Tel. Works, L. R. 9 Ch. 350, 43 L. J. Ch. 330, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 209, 22 Wkly. Rep. 396; Fraser v. Whalley, 2 Hem. & M. 10, 11 L. T. Rep. N. S. 175.

4. Percy v. Millaudon, 8 Mart. N. S. (La.) 68; Wilcox v. Bickel, 11 Nebr. 154, 8 N. W. 436; Rabe v. Dunlap, 51 N. J. Eq. 40, 25 Atl. 959; Gregory v. Patchett, 33 Beav. 595.

5. Larwill v. Burke, 19 Ohio Cir. Ct. 513, 10 Ohio Cir. Dec. 579. See also Montgomery Light Co. v. Lahey, 121 Ala. 131, 25 So. 1006; Stanley v. Luse, 36 Oreg. 25, 58 Pac. 75; Spaulding v. North Milwaukee Town Site Co., 106 Wis. 481, 81 N. W. 1064; Cunningham v. Wechselberg, 105 Wis. 359, 81 N. W. 414; Macdougall v. Gardiner, 1 Ch. D. 13, 45 L. J. Ch. 27. When a shareholder and officer of a piano-manufacturing company will not be heard to complain of expenditures to secure the good-will of musical artists as to the value of the musical instruments. Steinway v. Steinway, 17 Misc. (N. Y.) 43, 40 N. Y. Suppl. 718.

6. Byrne v. Schuyler Electric Mfg. Co., 65 Conn. 336, 31 Atl. 833, 28 L. R. A. 304.

That a shareholder in such a suit cannot question the right of the corporation to exercise all its granted powers, especially its power to own shares of another corporation, but that such right can be questioned only by vent the corporation from being wrecked and absorbed by another corporation into whose hands the directors of the victim corporation are playing.[7]

11. DISTINCTION BETWEEN REDRESSING BREACHES OF TRUST AND INFLUENCING CORPORATE ACTION. A distinction has been admitted between the jurisdiction of courts of equity to accord relief at the suit of shareholders where the action is to redress breaches of trust on the part of the directors or to recover damages from the same, and the want of jurisdiction in such courts, where the object of the bill is to influence corporate action, or where in its results it will have this effect.[8] The distinction is refined and unsubstantial, for the reason that the action taken by the directors in the exercise of their powers is necessarily corporate action, the corporation being an ideal and intangible body whose powers are wielded by them. The funds of the corporation are answerable to strangers for their frauds under the principle of respondeat superior.[9] If the courts are obliged to stay their hands whenever to move would have the effect of influencing corporate action, it would follow that if the corporation should, by a vote of a majority of the shares, condone the offense of their guilty directors or agents, then the minority would have no standing in court to object. It is almost needless to suggest that this is not the law.[10] But this does not leave the shareholders helpless in case of plain breaches of trust on the part of the directors. These shareholders have the same right as any cestui que trust to have the property honestly managed and preserved from waste and misappropriation.[11]

12. EQUITY WILL NOT INTERFERE ON MERE QUESTIONS OF CORPORATE MANAGEMENT OR POLICY. The true distinction is between acts in excess of the powers of the directors and in breach of their trust, and acts which are within their powers and which merely involve an exercise of the discretion committed to them. The rule here is that in the absence of usurpation, of fraud, or of gross negligence, courts of equity will not interfere at the suit of a dissatisfied minority, merely to overrule and control the discretion of the directors on questions of corporate management, policy, or business, but will allow the majority to rule, and will leave the dissatisfied minority to redress their grievances through ordinary corporate methods.[12]

13. ACTIONS BY SHAREHOLDERS AGAINST THIRD PARTIES FOR WRONGS DONE TO CORPORATION. The general rule is that such actions must be brought by and in the name of the corporation itself and not by the shareholders,[13] as for example an action to redress a slander of title of property of the corporation[14] or an

the state, see Willoughby v. Chicago Junction R., etc., Co., 50 N. J. Eq. 656, 25 Atl. 277.

7. Peabody v. Flint, 6 Allen (Mass.) 52; Menier v. Hooper's Tel. Works, L. R. 9 Ch. 350, 43 L. J. Ch. 330, 30 L. T. Rep. N. S. 209, 22 Wkly. Rep. 396.

8. See for instance Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312, 53 Am. Dec. 624.

9. Rives v. Montgomery South Plank-Road Co., 30 Ala. 92; Henderson v. San Antonio, etc., R. Co., 17 Tex. 560, 67 Am. Dec. 675; Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 325, 344, 36 L. J. Ch. 949, 16 L. T. Rep. N. S. 808, 15 Wkly. Rep. 1201; Scotland Western Bank v. Addie, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 145, 158 (per Lord Chelmsford).

10. Hazard v. Durant, 11 R. I. 195.

11. Rabe v. Dunlap, 51 N. J. Eq. 40, 25 Atl. 959.

12. Alabama.— Tuscaloosa Mfg. Co. v. Cox, 68 Ala. 71 (opinion by Stone, J.); Smith v. Prattville Mfg. Co., 29 Ala. 503 (in the absence of a wilful abuse of discretion, or bad faith, or wilful negligence, or a breach of a known duty).

Illinois.— Baker v. Backus, 32 Ill. 79.

Minnesota.—Rothwell v. Robinson, 44 Minn. 538, 47 N. W. 255.

New Jersey.— Ellerman v. Chicago Junction R., etc., Co., 49 N. J. Eq. 217, 232, 23 Atl. 287; Park v. Grant Locomotive Works, 40 N. J. Eq. 114, 3 Atl. 162 [affirmed in 45 N. J. Eq. 244, 19 Atl. 621]; Elkins v. Camden, etc., R. Co., 36 N. J. Eq. 241.

New York.— Gamble v. Queens County Water Co., 123 N. Y. 91, 25 N. E. 201, 33 N. Y. St. 88, 25 Abb. N. Cas. 410, 9 L. R. A. 527 [reversing 52 Hun 166, 5 N. Y. Suppl. 124, 23 N. Y. St. 409]; Gernsheim v. Olcott, 10 N. Y. Suppl. 438, 31 N. Y. St. 321.

Pennsylvania.—Chambers v. McKee, 185 Pa. St. 105, 39 Atl. 822, 42 Wkly. Notes Cas. 90 (error of judgment in accepting an award of arbitrators is binding on the shareholders); Madden v. Penn. Electric Light Co., 7 Pa. Dist. 304.

United States.— McMullen v. Ritchie, 64 Fed. 253.

13. Boyd v. Sims, 87 Tenn. 771, 11 S. W. 948.

14. Langdon v. Hillside Coal, etc., Co., 41 Fed. 609.

action to enjoin the infringing of a trade-mark which is the property of the corporation.[15]

14. When Relief Can Be Had Against Third Parties — a. In General. Relief can be had against third parties in the following among other cases: (1) Where plaintiff is entitled to an injunction against the consummation of a threatened act, in respect of which such third party is concurring with the directors of plaintiff's corporation.[16] (2) Where such an act has been consummated and plaintiff is entitled to have it undone; for instance where the assets of plaintiff's corporation have been unlawfully diverted into the hands of a third person or corporation, plaintiff is entitled to have them restored to his own corporation or its representative;[17] or where persons, acting as agents for the corporation, have received its money and refused to pay it over.[18] But where no relief can be had against the third person or corporation, he or it cannot be dragged into a litigation of this kind, and a bill which attempts to do so is multifarious.[19]

b. Misconduct Complained of Must Work Substantial Injury. Moreover the misconduct complained of on the part of the governing body of the corporation must work a substantial injury to the corporation, or at least to the complaining shareholder.[20] If the injury is slight and inconsiderable, and affects all shareholders alike, and no other shareholder complains, it will not afford ground for equitable relief.[21]

c. When Not Necessary to Allege and Prove Bad Faith on Part of Directors. It is not necessary in all cases to allege and prove bad faith on the part of the directors;[22] but if the directors are making an illegal application of the funds of the corporation the question whether they are acting corruptly or honestly is quite immaterial, and the complaining shareholder need not allege or prove any actual or wilful fraud or collusion on the part of the company, the directors, or others.[23] So if the directors are putting themselves in an attitude where they are tempted to act in violation of their duty, as where the directors of a railroad com-

15. Converse v. Hood, 149 Mass. 471, 21 N. E. 878, 4 L. R. A. 521.

Instances under which a bill in equity may be maintained by a shareholder against his own corporation and another corporation and the trustees of his own corporation, to restore to his own corporation property diverted from it to the other corporation. Ryan v. Leavenworth, etc., R. Co., 21 Kan. 365.

16. Of this nature was the leading case of Dodge v. Woolsey, 18 How. (U. S.) 331, 15 L. ed. 401, where Woolsey, a shareholder residing in Connecticut, of a banking corporation domiciled in Ohio, sustained an action for an injunction against Dodge, a tax-collector of the state of Ohio, restraining him from enforcing a tax laid by the state authorities of Ohio against the banking corporation, in violation of the exemption from taxation conferred by the legislature of Ohio upon it, in its charter, plaintiff having purchased his stock in good faith before the state of Ohio laid the tax, and having requested the directors and officers of the corporation to sue in the courts of Ohio, which they declined to do, because they regarded the action hopeless, and because the law imposed upon them penalties for refusing its execution. Other cases affirming the invalidity of the tax are: Mechanics', etc., Bank v. Thomas, 18 How. (U. S.) 384, 15 L. ed. 460; Mechanics', etc., Bank v. Debolt, 18 How. (U. S.) 380, 15 L. ed. 458.

